chapter one hundred fifty-four, acts of the thirty-third general assembly. He shall have charge and management of the state fish hatcheries, which shall be used in stocking the waters of the state with fish native to the country and to the extent of the means provided by the state. He shall impartially and equitably distribute all fry raised by or furnished to the state, or for it through other sources, in the streams and lakes of the state; shall faithfully and impartially enforce obedience of the provisions of this chapter, and shall make a biennial report to the governor of his doings, together with such information upon the subject of the culture of fish and the protection of game in the country as he may think proper, accompanied with an itemized statement monthly to the executive council under oath of all moneys expended and for what purpose, and of the number and varieties of fish distributed, and in what waters. It shall be the duty of the fish and game warden, sheriffs, constables, and police officers of this state to seize and take possession of any fish, birds, or animals which have been caught, taken, or killed at a time, in a manner, or for a purpose, or had in possession or under control, or have been shipped, contrary to the provisions of this chapter. Such seizure may be made without a warrant. Any court having jurisdiction of the offense, upon receiving proof of probable cause for believing in the concealment of any fish, birds, or animals, caught, taken, killed, had in possession, under control, or shipped contrary to any of the provisions of this chapter, shall issue a search warrant and cause a search to be made in any place therefor. Any fish, birds, or animals so found shall be sold for the purpose of paying the costs in the case, and the amount, if any, in excess of the costs shall be turned into the school fund of the county in which the seizure is made. Any net, seine, trap, contrivance, material, and substance whatever, while in use or had and maintained for the purpose of catching, taking, killing, trapping or deceiving any fish, birds, or animals contrary to any of the provisions of this chapter is hereby declared to be, and is, a public nuisance, and it shall be the duty of the fish and game warden, sheriffs, constables, and police officers of the state, without warrant or process, to take or seize any and all of the same, and abate and destroy any and all of the same without warrant or process and no liability shall be incurred to the owner or any other person for such seizure and destruction, and said warden or his regularly constituted deputies or other peace officers as hereinbefore named shall be released from all liability to any person or persons whomsoever for any act done or committed or property seized or destroyed under or by virtue of this section. [35 G. A., ch. 203, § 2; 34 G. A., ch. 116, § 1; 33 G. A., ch. 152, § 1.] [29 G. A., ch. 103, § 1; 27 G. A., ch. 64, § 1; 23 G. A., ch. 34, § 12; 17 G. A., ch. 80, §§ 1, 4.]

SEC. 2539-a. Repeal. That section five of chapter sixty-four of the laws of the twenty-seventh general assembly be and the same is hereby repealed. [29 G. A., ch. 103, § 3.]

SEC. 2540. Fishing — rules and regulations — shipment — statement to common carrier—confiscation. Between the first days of October and April fifteenth no one shall take from the waters of the state any salmon or trout, nor between the first day of December and the fifteenth day of May any bass, pike, croppies, pickerel, or catfish, or other game fish, nor shall any one person take of said fish from the waters of the state in any one day more than forty of any or all of said kinds of fish, of which total number not more than twenty shall be bass, pike or pickerel. It shall be unlawful for any person, firm or corporation to offer for transportation or to transport to any place within or without this state for purposes of sale, any game fish taken from the inland waters of the state.

Any person, firm or corporation desiring the shipment or transportation of any game fish shall deliver to the common carrier, express or transportation company a statement under oath in duplicate, setting forth the name of the shipper, the person to whom the package is shipped, the residence of both, the kind and number of fish contained in such package, and that the fish contained in such package are not being shipped for the purpose of sale or market, and one copy thereof shall be retained by the common carrier, express or transportation company receiving such shipment for the period of twelve months thereafter and the other copy thereof shall be attached in a secure manner to such package.

Any agent of any common carrier, express or transportation company receiving such shipment is hereby authorized to administer to such shipper the oath contemplated in the last preceding paragraph. Any shipment made in violation of the provisions of this act may be seized, confiscated and sold by any game warden in this state at private or public sale, the proceeds thereof to be turned into the fish and game protection fund, or such shipment may be by such warden destroyed. Nor shall anyone fish for, or by any means catch any fish in any stream which has been stocked with breeding trout one or two years old, within one year from the date of the stocking thereof, if notice of such fact is by the authority of the warden posted where a public road crosses such stream; nor shall anyone at any time take from the waters of the state any fish, except minnows for bait. unless by hook and line; but any person may, between the fifteenth day of May and the first day of December use not more than one trot-line in streams only, and extending not more than halfway across; nor shall anyone place, erect or cause to be placed or erected, any trot-line, seine, net, trap, dam or other device or contrivance in the water in such a manner as to hinder or obstruct the free passage of fish, up, down or through the same for the purpose of catching them, except as provided in the next section; nor have, erect or use, while fishing on or through the ice, any house, shed or other protection against the weather, or have or use any stove or other means for creating artificial heat. The possession of a spear, trap, net or seine in or upon any of the public waters of the state, or upon the ice of the same, or on the shore within a limit of ten rods, or the taking or killing or attempting to take or kill any fish by any means other than by rod, line, hook and bait within three hundred feet of a fishway or dam shall be unlawful, but the provisions of this section shall not prevent the taking of carp, sucker, red horse or buffalo in the daytime by use of a spear in any months except March and April.

No person shall, at any time, kill, destroy, have in possession or under control, for any purpose whatever, any bass, catfish, wall-eyed pike, crappie, or trout less than six inches in length, except for the purpose of returning the same to the water from which they were taken, as soon as they are taken therefrom, with as little injury to the fish as possible. [35 G. A., ch. 205, § 1; 35 G. A., ch. 204, § 1; 33 G. A., ch. 153, § 1.] [30 G. A., ch. 93; 30 G. A., ch. 92, §§ 1, 2; 29 G. A., ch. 103, §§ 2, 4; 27 G. A., ch. 64, §§ 2, 4; 26 G. A., ch. 80, § 1; 25 G. A., ch. 65; 23 G. A., ch. 34, §§ 2, 3, 6, 7; 17 G. A., ch. 80, §§ 5, 6; 16 G. A., ch. 70, § 6.]

Fish and game are so related to the public welfare that they have, time out of mind, been the subjects of legal control, and their preservation has ever been a matter of legislative concern. Statutes relating to the preservation of fish and game are an abridgment of otherwise legal rights of the owners of the soil in taking fish and game thereon. State v. Beardsley, 108–396, 79 N. W. 138; State v. Meek, 112–338, 84 N. W. 3.

Several counts charging illegal seining of fish may be embraced in a single information before a justice of the peace, and the fact that the aggregate fine which may be imposed under such information exceeds one hundred dollars does not deprive the court of jurisdiction. State v. Denhardt, 129–135, 105 N. W. 385.

One who engages in the unlawful act of seining by which fish are taken and carried away may be punished although it does not appear that he assisted in carrying such fish away. Ibid.

SEC. 2540-a. Explosives—drugs—penalty. It shall be unlawful for anyone to place in the waters of the state any lime, ashes, or drug of any kind or other substance, explode dynamite, gun cotton, giant powder or other compound or preparation or use electricity in any way with the intent to kill or so to affect any fish that it may be taken, and anyone guilty of any of said acts shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction thereof be fined not less than fifty dollars nor more than one hundred dollars or imprisoned in the county jail not less than fifteen nor more than thirty days. [33 G. A., ch. 153, § 2.] [29 G. A., ch. 103, § 5.]

SEC. 2544. Violation—penalties. That section twenty-five hundred forty-four of the code be repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"Any person, firm or corporation who shall violate any of the provisions of section twenty-five hundred forty of the supplement to the code, 1907, as herein amended, or twenty-five hundred forty-one, twenty-five hundred forty-two or twenty-five hundred forty-three of the code, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and, upon conviction, shall pay a fine of not less than five nor more than fifty dollars and cost of prosecution for each offense, or be imprisoned in the county jail for not less than one day nor more than thirty days, and the taking of each fish in violation of law shall be construed to be a separate offense." [33 G. A., ch. 153, § 3.] [26 G. A., ch. 80, § 3; 23 G. A., ch. 34, §§ 5, 8, 9; 16 G. A., ch. 170, §§ 4, 7.]

SEC. 2546. Taking by warden—written permits. The warden may take from any of the public waters of the state, at any time and in any manner, any fish for the purpose of propagating or restocking other waters, or exchanging with fish commissioners or wardens of other states. Provided, further, that the warden may, upon proper application in writing, made upon blanks furnished by said warden, issue to whomsoever he may see fit, written permits, upon blank forms to be furnished by said warden, suspending for a specified period specified portions of this chapter relating to fishing and authorizing the person to whom said permit is issued, to take from certain designated lakes of the state, having an area of not less than two square miles, buffalo, carp, quillbacks, red horse, suckers and gar, as in said permit named, in any quantities and for all purposes; provided, however, that no such permit holder shall be authorized to exercise the rights granted in said permit, except in the presence and under the supervision of the warden or one or more of his regularly constituted deputies, without expense to the state, and provided that seining shall not be permitted between the first day of December and the fifteenth day of June. [30 G. A., ch. 94; 29 G. A., ch. 103, § 6; 23 G. A., ch. 34, § 2.]

The warden has no authority to take, or empower others to take, fish from the public waters for the purpose of stocking private ponds. State v. Sears, 115–28, 87 N. W. 735.

SEC. 2547. Rivers excepted—dams. Except as otherwise expressly stated, nothing herein contained shall be held to apply to fishing in the Mississippi or Missouri rivers, nor to so much of the Des Moines river as forms the boundary line between this state and Missouri, nor to forbid the erection of dams across the waters of the state for manufacturing or other lawful purposes, subject to the provisions of the following section. [33 G. A., ch. 155, § 1.] [29 G. A., ch. 104, § 1; 23 G. A., ch. 34, § 11; 18 G. A., ch. 92; 16 G. A., ch. 70, § 10.]

The exception of boundary rivers from the provisions of the statute regulating fishing does not include a nonnavigable slough lying wholly within the boundaries of this state though connected at each end and supplied by water from the Mississippi. Little v. Green, 144-492, 123 N. W. 367.

In ch. 155, acts 33 G. A., as amended by ch. 117, acts 34 G. A., the state attempted for the first time to regulate fishing in boundary rivers over which it has concurrent jurisdiction with other states. But such statutes are not in excess of the power of the state with reference to such boundary rivers. State v. Moyers, 155-678, 136 N. W. 896.

SEC. 2547-a. Nets, seines and other contrivances—boundary waters—license—bond—fee. It shall be unlawful for any person to take from the waters of that part of the Des Moines river forming a part of the boundary between this state and Missouri, or from the waters of the Big Sioux river within the jurisdiction of this state, any fish with net, seine, trap, contrivance, material or substance whatsoever except by rod, line, hook and bait. It shall be unlawful for any person to take from the Mississippi or Missouri rivers within the jurisdiction of this state any fish with nets or seines without first procuring from the state fish and game warden an annual license for the use of such nets and seines. Before any such license shall be issued to a nonresident of the state of Iowa, the applicant shall execute and deliver to the fish and game warden a bond running to the state of Iowa in the penal sum of two hundred dollars with two sureties who shall each justify in the sum of two hundred dollars in property in this state over and above all debts and liabilities, and property exempt by law from sale on execution. In lieu of such bond such licensee may make a cash deposit of two hundred dollars or provide bond of any surety company authorized to do business in this state. Such bond shall be conditioned that if the applicant shall well and faithfully observe and comply with all the requirements of this act and the rules and regulations which are or may be hereafter prescribed by law, such application to be null and void, otherwise to remain in full force and effect. The fee charged for such license shall be as follows: For each five hundred lineal feet of seine, or fraction thereof, ten dollars; for each pound net having more than one hundred feet lead on each side, four dollars; for each pound net having less than one hundred feet lead on each side one dollar; for each bait net, dip net, hoop net, and fyke net, fifty cents; for each three hundred lineal feet of trammel net used for floating fishing, five dollars. All licenses shall expire on the first day of March following their issuance. The state fish and game warden shall furnish to each licensee at an expense not to exceed ten cents each, a metal tag, numbered and stamped so as to show year of issuance and for what issued, for each net, and each five hundred feet, or fraction thereof, of seine; and it shall be unlawful to use any seine or net in the waters specified in this section without having a tag thus procured attached thereto; provided that no seine or net with less than two and one-half inch mesh, stretch measure, shall be licensed or used for fishing, under this act. [34 G. A., ch. 117, § 1; 33 G. A., ch. 155, § 2.]

These statutory provisions are not in excess of the power of the state with reference to boundary rivers over which it has concurrent jurisdiction with other states. State v. Moyers, 155–678, 136 N. W. 896.

SEC. 2547-b. Funds—how expended—removal of fish from cut-off waters. The funds received for such licenses and sale of tags shall be expended by the state fish and game warden for the maintenance of his department and meeting the expenses thereof, and so far as same are available he shall expend same in the preservation of food fishes in the waters described in section two[1] hereof by removing young fish from dead or cut-off waters to the live waters adjacent thereto, and where practicable, cleaning the channel from said dead and cut-off waters so that young fish can escape therefrom. He shall render an itemized account of all such funds in each biennial report. [34 G. A., ch. 117, § 2; 33 G. A., ch. 155, § 3.]

[1See § 2547-a herein. EDITOR.]

SEC. 2547-c. Taking of certain fish prohibited. It shall be unlawful for any person to take from the waters described in section two[1] of this act, except by hook and line and spear, any of the following fish in lengths less than as follows, to wit: carp, fifteen inches; buffalo, fifteen inches; black bass, eleven inches; striped or white bass, eight inches; pike, fifteen inches; croppies, eight inches; pickerel, eighteen inches; catfish, thirteen inches; and the following fish weighing less than as follows, to wit: sand sturgeon, one pound; rock sturgeon, three pounds; and no pike, bass or croppies between and including March thirty-first and June first of each year. [34 G. A., ch. 117, § 3; 33 G. A., ch. 155, § 4.]

[1See § 2547-a herein. EDITOR.]

SEC. 2547-d. Food fishes not to be injured or destroyed. It shall be unlawful for any person to take from the waters described in section two[1] of this act, by seine or net, any food fishes and cause or permit same to perish or be destroyed, or to remove such fish within such water so as to cause same to be destroyed or to perish, and any person taking any food fishes from such waters who does not make use of same shall immediately return same to such waters without injury. [33 G. A., ch. 155, § 5.]

[1See § 2547-a. EDITOR.]

SEC. 2547-e. Violation—penalty. Any person violating any of the provisions of this act shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and be punished by imprisonment in the county jail for a period of not exceeding thirty days or by a fine not exceeding one hundred dollars. [33 G. A., ch. 155, § 6.]

SEC. 2548. Fishways.

The legislature may provide for the passage of fish along, and their protection in, unnavigable as well as navigable waters. State v. Beardsley, 108–396, 79 N. W. 138.

One who acquires the right to maintain a dam by grant from the state is subject, without reservation in the grant, to the subsequent control of the legislature as to the construction of fishways. State v. Meek, 112–338, 84 N. W. 3.

But where, in an action before a justice of the peace having jurisdiction, it was determined that the owner of the dam was not liable for a violation of the statute in not maintaining a fishway, on the ground that by reason of the grant from the state the statute was not applicable to him, and this judgment was not appealed from, held that this constituted a prior adjudication. Ibid.

SEC. 2551. Game protected—penalty. No person shall trap, shoot or kill any pinnated grouse or prairie chicken between the first day of December and the first day of September next following; any woodcock, between the first day of January and the tenth day of July; any ruffed grouse or pheasant, wild turkey or quail, between the fifteenth day of December and the first day of November; any wild duck, goose or brant, rail, plover, sandpiper and marsh or beach bird, between the fifteenth day of April and the first day of September; or any gray or fox squirrel or timber squirrel, between the first day of January and the first day of September; provided that it shall be unlawful to kill any ruffed grouse or wild turkey prior to January first, nineteen hundred. Shooting or killing quail on the public highway shall be in violation of law. No person shall kill or attempt to kill any of the birds mentioned in this section from any artificial ambush of any kind or with the aid or use of any sneak boat or sink box or from any sailboat, gasoline or electric launch or steamboat, or any other water conveyance, except as propelled by oar or paddle, or other device used for concealment in the open water, nor use any artificial light, battery or other deception, contrivance or device whatever, with the intent to attract or deceive any of the birds mentioned in this chapter, except that decoys may be used in hunting wild geese and ducks, but no person shall at any time hunt or shoot from any boat, canoe, contrivance or device whatever on any of the waters of this state between sunset and sunrise. Any person violating any of the provisions of this section shall be held guilty of a misdemeanor and punished as provided for in section twenty-five hundred fifty-six of the supplement to the code, 1907, and in addition thereto for use of any ambush, sink box, sneak boat or other water conveyance, prohibited by law, on the waters of this state, a fine of not less than twenty-five dollars, nor more than one hundred dollars, and shall stand committed to the county jail for thirty days unless such fine and costs are paid. [33 G. A., ch. 153, § 4.] [30 G. A., ch. 92, § 3; 29 G. A., ch. 103, § 7; 27 G. A., ch. 66, § 1; 20 G. A., ch. 67; 18 G. A., ch. 193; 17 G. A., ch. 156, § 2.]

SEC. 2551-a. Protection of certain animals. That it shall be unlawful for any person other than the owner, or person authorized by the owner, to kill, maim, trap, or in any way injure or capture any deer, elk, or goat except when distrained as provided by law. [27 G. A., ch. 65, § 1.]

SEC. 2551-b. Penalty. Any person violating the provisions of this act shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and be punished by imprisonment in the county jail for a period not exceeding thirty days or by a fine not exceeding one hundred dollars, or by both such fine and imprisonment. [27 G. A., ch. 65, § 2.]

SEC. 2552. Killing for traffic—destroying eggs or nests—penalty. That section twenty-five hundred fifty-two of the supplement to the code, 1907, be repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"No person shall at any time or at any place within this state, trap, shoot or kill for traffic any of the birds, animals or game named in this chapter, nor shall any person shoot or kill more than twenty-five in any one day, of any kind of said named animals, birds or game, nor shall any one person, firm or corporation have more than twenty-five of either kind of said named birds or game named in this chapter in his or their possession at any time unless lawfully received for transportation; provided, however, the limit of ducks in possession is hereby made fifty. Nor shall any person capture or take, or attempt to catch or take, with any trap, snare or net any of the birds or animals named in the preceding sections, or in any manner wilfully destroy the eggs or nest of any of the birds named in this chapter. Any person, firm or corporation violating any of the provisions of this section shall be held to be guilty of a misdemeanor and punished as provided for in section twenty-five hundred fifty-six of the supplement to the code, 1907." [33 G. A., ch. 153, § 5.] [30 G. A., ch. 95, §§ 1, 2; 18 G. A., ch. 193, § 2; 17 G. A., ch. 156, § 3.]

SEC. 2554. Having in possession—violation—penalty. That section twenty-five hundred fifty-four of the code be repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"It shall be unlawful for any person, firm or corporation to buy or sell, dead or alive, any of the birds, game or animals named in this chapter, and it shall be unlawful to have the same in possession during the period when the killing of such birds, game or animals is prohibited, except during the first five days of such prohibited period; and the possession by any person, firm or corporation of any of such birds, game or animals during such prohibited period, except during the first five days thereof, shall be presumptive evidence of the violation of this chapter relating to game and he or they shall be held to be guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be punished as provided for in section twenty-five hundred fifty-six of the supplement to the code, 1907." [33 G. A., ch. 153, § 6.] [17 G. A., ch. 156, § 5.]

SEC. 2555. Shipments—intra-state and interstate. No person, company or corporation shall at any time ship, take or carry out of this state any of the birds or animals named in this chapter. No person, firm or corporation shall at any time ship to any person, firm or corporation within this state any of the birds or animals named in this chapter, except in strict compliance with the following provisions: It shall be lawful for any person to ship to any person within this state any game birds named, not to exceed one dozen in any one day, during the period when the killing of such birds is not prohibited; but before such shipment is made, he shall first make an affidavit before some person authorized to administer oaths that said birds have not been unlawfully killed, bought, sold or had in possession, are not being shipped for sale or profit, giving the name and post-office address of the person to whom shipped, and the number of birds to be so shipped. A copy of such affidavit, indorsed "a true copy of the original" by the person administering the oath, shall be furnished by him to the affiant, who shall deliver the same to the railroad agent or common carrier receiving such birds for transportation, and the same shall operate as a release to such carrier or agent from any liability in the shipment or carrying of such birds. The original affidavit shall be retained by the officer taking the same, and may be used as evidence in any prosecution for violation of the sections of this chapter relating to game. Any person who shall ship more than one dozen of the birds named in this chapter in any one day, or any person shipping any of the birds named in this chapter without first complying with the provisions of this section, or any person, firm or corporation violating any of the provisions of this section at any time, shall be held to be guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be punished as provided for in section twenty-five hundred fifty-six of the supplement to the code, 1907. Provided, however, that it shall be lawful to have in possession game lawfully taken outside this state and lawfully brought into this state, but the burden shall rest upon the person in possession to establish the fact that such game so shipped into the state was lawfully killed and lawfully shipped into this state. [33 G. A., ch. 153, § 7.] [17 G. A., ch. 156, § 6.]

The delivery to the carrier for transportation to a point beyond the state constitutes a violation of the statute, although the game shipped is taken from the carrier by the authorities while it is yet within the state. State v. Carson, 147–561, 126 N. W. 698.

SEC. 2556. Penalty. If any person use any device, kill, trap, ensnare, buy, sell, ship, or have in his possession, or ship, take or carry out of the state, or ship within this state contrary to the provisions of this chapter, any of the birds or animals named or referred to herein, or shall wilfully destroy any eggs or nests of the birds named or referred to in the preceding sections, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and be punished by a fine of ten dollars for each bird, beaver, mink, otter, or muskrat, or other animals named or referred to in this chapter, and ten dollars for each nest and the eggs therein, so killed, trapped, ensnared, bought, sold, shipped, had in possession, destroyed, or shipped, taken, or carried out of the state, or shipped within this state contrary to law, and shall stand committed to the county jail for thirty days unless such fine and costs of prosecuting are sooner paid. [33 G. A., ch. 153, § 8.] [29 G. A., ch. 103, § 8; 17 G. A., ch. 156, § 7.]

SEC. 2559. Prosecutions — attorney's fee — opinion of attorney-general. In all prosecutions under this chapter, any number of violations may be included in the information, but each one shall be set out in a separate count. Prosecutions for violations of any provision of this chapter may be brought either in the county in which the offense was committed, or in any other county where the person, company or corporation complained of has had or has in his or their possession any fish, birds or animals named herein and bought, sold, caught, taken, killed, trapped or ensnared in violation hereof. When requested by the fish and game warden the attorney-general shall give his opinion, in writing, upon all questions of law pertaining to the office of such warden. Nothing in this chapter shall be construed as prohibiting any person from instituting legal proceedings for the enforcement of any provisions hereof. [33 G. A., ch. 153, § 10.] [27 G. A., ch. 64, § 3; 17 G. A., ch. 156, § 11.]

SEC. 2561. Protection of birds. No person shall destroy the nests or eggs of, or catch, take, kill or have in possession or under control for any purpose whatever, except specimens for use of taxidermists, at any time, any whippoorwill, nighthawk, bluebird, finch, thrush, linnet, lark, wren, martin, swallow, bobolink, robin, turtledove, catbird, snowbird, blackbird, or any other harmless bird except blue jays and English sparrows, but nothing herein shall be construed to prevent the removal of nests from buildings, and the keeping of song birds in cages as domestic pets. Any person violating any of the provisions of this section shall be fined not less than one dollar nor more than twenty-five dollars and costs of prosecution, and may be committed to the county jail until such fine and costs are paid. [29 G. A., ch. 103, § 9.]

The exception of specimens as to taxidermists has no reference to the killing of game birds during the prohibited season, under code §§ 2551 and 2554. State v. Fields, 118–530, 92 N. W. 651.

SEC. 2562. Deputy wardens — compensation—expenses—bonds—powers. That section twenty-five hundred sixty-two of the code be repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"The fish and game warden may appoint three assistant fish and game wardens who shall receive a salary of twelve hundred dollars per year, and such number of deputies as he may deem necessary, who shall receive a compensation of two dollars and fifty cents per diem and actual expenses, for the time and money actually employed and expended by them in the enforcement of the provisions of this act. Such deputy warden shall act under the advice and direction of the fish and game warden, and perform such duties in relation to their offices as may be required of them and submit, under oath, itemized statements of their per diem and expenses as aforesaid; and shall have full power and authority to serve and execute all warrants and process of law issued by any court in enforcing the provisions of this act, or any other law of this state relating to the propagation, preservation and protection of fish, game and birds, in the same manner as any constable or sheriff may serve and execute the same and receive the same fee therefor, and for the purpose of enforcing the provisions of this act they may call to their aid any sheriff, deputy sheriff, constable or police officer or any other person, and it shall be the duty of all sheriffs, deputy sheriffs, constables and police officers and other persons when called upon to enforce and aid in enforcing the provisions of this act. All deputy wardens shall have power to arrest without warrant any person or persons found in the act of violating any law enacted for the purpose of propagation and protection of fish, game and birds. All deputy wardens shall give bonds conditioned for the faithful performance of their duties, in such amounts as may be fixed by the state executive council." [35 G. A., ch. 203, § 1; 33 G. A., ch. 153, § 9.]

SEC. 2562-a. Acts in conflict repealed. All acts and parts of acts inconsistent with this act are hereby repealed. [33 G. A., ch. 153, § 11.]

SEC. 2562-b. State ownership and title—exceptions. The ownership and title of all wild game, animals, and birds, found in the state of Iowa, except deer in parks and public and private preserves the ownership of which has been acquired prior to taking effect of this act and all fish in any of the public waters of the state, including all ponds, sloughs, bayous, or other waters adjacent to any public waters, which ponds, sloughs, bayous and other waters are stocked with fish by overflow of public waters, is hereby declared to be in the state, and no wild game, animals, birds, or fish shall be taken, killed, or caught in any manner at any time or had in possession, except the person so catching, taking, killing, or having in possession, shall consent that the title to said wild game, animals, birds, or fish, shall be and remain in the state of Iowa for the purpose of regulating and controlling the use and disposition of the same after such catching, taking, or killing. [34 G. A., ch. 118, § 1.]

SEC. 2562-c. Violation deemed consent to title. The catching, taking, killing, or having in possession, wild game, animals, birds, or fish at any time, or in any manner, or by any person, except as provided in section one hereof, shall be deemed a consent of said person that the title of the state shall be and remain in the state for said purpose of regulating the use and disposition of the same and said possession shall be consent to such title in the state. [34 G. A., ch. 118, § 2.]

SEC. 2562-d. Deer—killing or capture. That section three of chapter one hundred eighteen of the acts of the thirty-fourth general assembly be and the same is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"When it shall become necessary in the opinion of the state game warden or his deputies to kill or capture any deer now running at large within this state, it shall be done under the authority and direction of the state fish and game warden, who shall distribute such deer so killed or captured within this state and the expense of said killing or capture and distribution shall be paid by the person receiving such deer." [35 G. A., ch. 206, § 1; 34 G. A., ch. 118, § 3.]

CHAPTER 15-A.

IN RELATION TO THE PROTECTION OF GAME.

SECTION 2563-a. Repeal. That sections twenty-five hundred sixty-three-a, twenty-five hundred sixty-three-b, twenty-five hundred sixty-three-c, twenty-five hundred sixty-three-d, twenty-five hundred sixty-three-e, twenty-five hundred sixty-three-f, twenty-five hundred sixty-three-g, and twenty-five hundred sixty-three-h of the supplement to the code, 1907, are hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof: [33 G. A., ch. 154, § 1.] [28 G. A., ch. 86, § 1.]

SEC. 2563-a1. License to hunt. No person shall hunt, pursue, kill or take any wild animal, bird, or game in this state, with a gun, without first procuring a license as herein provided. [33 G. A., ch. 154, § 2.]

SEC. 2563-a2. Age limit—consent of parent or guardian. No license shall be granted any person under eighteen years of age unless the written consent of parents or guardian is attached to the application. [33 G. A., ch. 154, § 3.]

SEC. 2563-a3. Application blanks—enclosed or cultivated lands. The state fish and game warden shall furnish county auditors with application blanks for a license and license blanks. These blanks shall provide for the insertion of the name, age, sex, and place of residence of the applicant and of the licensee. The license shall authorize its holder to hunt in accordance with the provisions of this act in any county of the state, but not on enclosed or cultivated lands without permission of the owner or the tenant, or upon any public highway; and shall bear a facsimile signature of the state fish and game warden and the seal and signature of the county auditor [of the county] in which it is issued. [33 G. A., ch. 154, § 4.]

SEC. 2563-a4. Fees. An applicant for a license shall fill out an authorized application blank and subscribe and swear to it before the county auditor, or a notary or justice of the peace. Before the license is issued, the applicant, if a resident of the state of Iowa, shall pay the county auditor the sum of one dollar as a license fee, and if a nonresident of the state of Iowa shall pay him the sum of ten dollars as a license fee. These fees the county auditor shall pay at the end of each month to the state treasurer, who shall place them to the credit of a fund known as the fish and game protection fund. [33 G. A., ch. 154, § 5.]

SEC. 2563-a5. Nonresidents—restrictions. A nonresident holding a valid license may take from the state not to exceed twenty-five game birds or animals, provided they are so carried as to be readily inspected and his license is shown on request. [33 G. A., ch. 154, § 6.]

SEC. 2563-a6. State fish and game protection fund—use. The state fish and game protection fund shall be used for the payment of the expenditures made necessary under the provisions of section twenty-five hundred thirty-nine of the code, for the traveling, contingent and office expenses of the warden; for deputy wardens' salaries and expenses; for the protection and propagation of fish and game; for gathering and distributing fish in the public waters of the state; for the care and preservation of the lakes of the state; for the expenditures made necessary under the operation or enforcement of this statute or any other laws enacted affecting the fish and game service; and shall be paid out only on verified vouchers approved by the executive council. [33 G. A., ch. 154, § 7.]

SEC. 2563-a7. License record. The county auditor shall keep a record of the licenses he issues which shall show the date of issue, the name and address of the person to whom issued, and the date of revocation, if revoked. [33 G. A., ch. 154, § 8.]

SEC. 2563-a8. Terms of license—owners or tenants—alteration—violation—penalties. The license shall be signed by the licensee in ink, and shall entitle the person to whom issued to hunt, pursue and kill wild animals, birds or game within the state at any time when it shall be lawful to hunt, pursue and kill such wild animals, birds or game, but it shall not entitle the person to whom issued to hunt, pursue or kill wild animals, birds or game in this state without being prepared at the time of so doing to exhibit it for inspection and permitting it, on demand, to be examined by any person. All licenses shall be void after the first day of July next succeeding issuance. Provided, however, that owners of farm lands, their children or tenants, shall have the right, without procuring a license, to hunt and kill wild animals, birds or game upon the lands owned or occupied by them. Any person found guilty of violating any of the provisions of this section shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be fined in any sum not less than twenty-five dollars nor more than fifty dollars for each offense, and shall stand committed to the county jail until such costs and fines are paid, but such imprisonment shall not exceed thirty days for each offense. Any person who shall alter or change a license in any material manner shall be deemed guilty of forgery, and upon conviction thereof shall be subject to the penalties provided for the commission of forgery. Any person who uses or attempts to use the license of another, or altered license, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be fined not less than twenty-five dollars nor more than fifty dollars for each offense, and shall stand committed to the county jail until such fine and costs are paid, but such imprisonment shall not exceed thirty days for each offense. [33 G. A., ch. 154, § 9.]

SEC. 2563-a9. Revocation. A license in the possession of any person other than to whom first issued, and on complaint, the license of any person hunting on enclosed or cultivated lands, without permission of the owner or tenant, may be revoked by the county auditor. [33 G. A., ch. 154, § 10.]

SEC. 2563-a10. Prima-facie evidence. Possession of a gun in the fields or forests or on the waters of the state, or upon the ice of the same, and a failure to display a license when it is demanded by any person, shall be, except in the case of the owner or tenant, prima-facie evidence of a violation of the provisions of this act. [33 G. A., ch. 154, § 11.]

SEC. 2563-a11. Appropriation—when available. Any appropriation made by the general assembly for the use of the state fish and game warden shall not be drawn upon until the fund arising from license fees shall be exhausted. [33 G. A., ch. 154, § 12.]

SEC. 2563-a12. Acts in conflict repealed. All acts and parts of acts inconsistent with this act are hereby repealed. [33 G. A., ch. 154, § 13.]

SEC. 2563-c. Application filed—repealed. [33 G. A., ch. 154, § 1.] [28 G. A., ch. 86, § 3.]

SEC. 2563-d. Restrictions—repealed. [33 G. A., ch. 154, § 1.] [28 G. A., ch. 86, § 4.]

SEC. 2563-e. Penalty—repealed. [33 G. A., ch. 154, § 1.] [28 G. A., ch. 86, § 5.]

SEC. 2563-f. Game protection fund—repealed. [33 G. A., ch. 154, § 1.] [28 G. A., ch. 87, §§ 1, 6.]

SEC. 2563-g. Form of license—repealed. [33 G. A., ch. 154, § 1.] [28 G. A., ch. 86, § 7.]

SEC. 2563-h. How enforced—repealed. [33 G. A., ch. 154, § 1.] [28 G. A., ch. 86, § 8.]

SEC. 2563-i. Using birds as targets—penalty. Any person who keeps or uses a live pigeon, fowl or other bird for the purpose of a target or to be shot at either for amusement or as a test of skill in marksmanship, or shoots at a bird kept or used as aforesaid, or is a party to such shooting, or leases any building, room, field or premises, or knowingly permits the use thereof, for the purpose of such shooting, shall upon conviction thereof be fined not less than ten dollars nor more than one hundred dollars or imprisoned in the county jail not exceeding thirty days. Nothing in this act shall apply to the shooting of wild game. [30 G. A., ch. 96.]

SEC. 2563-j. Wild birds—property of state. That all wild birds, both resident and migratory, in this state, shall be, and are hereby declared to be the property of the state. [31 G. A., ch. 108, § 1.]

SEC. 2563-k. Sale of wild birds and plumage prohibited—game birds defined. That no person shall, within the state of Iowa, kill or catch, or have in his or her possession, living or dead, any wild bird other than a game bird, or purchase, offer or expose for sale, transport or ship within or without the state, any such wild bird after it has been killed or caught, except as permitted by this act. No part of the plumage, skin, or body of any bird protected by this section shall be sold or had in possession for sale, irrespective of whether said bird was captured or killed within or without the state. For the purpose of this act the following only shall be considered game birds: The Anatidæ, commonly known as swans, geese, brant and river and sea ducks; the Rallidæ, commonly known as rails, coots, mud-hens and gallinules; the Limicolæ, commonly known as shore birds, plovers, surf birds, snipe, woodcock, sandpipers, tatlers, and curlews; the Gallinæ, commonly known as wild turkeys, grouse, prairie chickens, pheasants, partridges, and quail. All other species of wild birds, either resident or migratory, shall be considered nongame birds. [31 G. A., ch. 108, § 2.]

SEC. 2563-l. Birds' nests and eggs. That no person shall, within the state of Iowa, take or needlessly destroy or attempt to take or destroy the nest or the eggs of any wild birds, or have such nest in his or her possession, except as permitted by this act. [31 G. A., ch. 108, § 3.]

SEC. 2563-m. Transportation of wild birds prohibited. That no person or persons, or any corporation acting as a common carrier, its officers, agents or servants, shall ship, carry, take or transport, either within or beyond the confines of the state, any resident or migratory wild nongame bird, except as permitted by this act. [31 G. A., ch. 108, § 4.]

SEC. 2563-n. Not applicable to holder of certificate. That sections two, three, four and ten of this act shall not apply to any person holding a certificate giving the right to take birds, their nests, or eggs for scientific purposes only, as provided in section six of this act. [31 G. A., ch. 108, § 5.]

SEC. 2563-o. Certificate of permission for scientific purposes—fees. That certificates may be granted by the fish and game warden of the state to any properly accredited persons of the age of fifteen years or upward, permitting the holder thereof to collect birds, their nests or eggs for scientific purposes only. The applicant for the same must present to said officer written testimonials from two well known ornithologists who must be residents of Iowa, certifying to the good character, and fitness of said applicant to be intrusted with such privilege and must pay said officer one dollar to defray the necessary expenses attending the granting of such certificate. On proof that the holder of such certificate has killed any bird, or taken the nest or eggs of any bird for other than strictly scientific purposes, his certificate shall become void, and he shall be liable to a fine of one hundred dollars, or imprisonment of thirty days, or both, at the discretion of the court. [31 G. A., ch. 108, § 6.]

SEC. 2563-p. Expiration of certificates. That the certificates authorized by section six of this act shall expire on the thirty-first day of December of the year issued and shall not be transferable. [31 G. A., ch. 108, § 7.]

SEC. 2563-q. Certain birds not included. That the English, or European house sparrow, great horned owl, sharp shinned hawk, Cooper's hawk, and blackbirds and crows are not included among the birds protected by this act. [31 G. A., ch. 108, § 8.]

SEC. 2563-r. Domestic pets—parrots and canaries. That nothing in this act shall prevent a citizen of Iowa from taking or keeping any wild nongame bird in a cage as a domestic pet, provided that such bird shall not be sold, or exchanged, or offered for sale or exchange, or transported out of the state; and provided further that this act shall not be construed to forbid the selling or shipping of parrots, canaries or any other cage birds, which are imported from other countries or not native to any part of the United States. [31 G. A., ch. 108, § 9.]

SEC. 2563-s. Penalty. That any person who violates any of the provisions of this act shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be liable to a fine of five dollars for each offense, and an additional fine of five dollars for each bird, living or dead, or part of bird, or nest, or set of eggs or part thereof, possessed in violation of this act, or to imprisonment for thirty days, or both, at the discretion of the court. [31 G. A., ch. 108, § 10.]

SEC. 2563-t. Acts in conflict repealed. All acts or parts of acts heretofore passed inconsistent with or contrary to the provisions of this act are hereby repealed. [31 G. A., ch. 108, § 11.]

SEC. 2563-u. Trapping, shooting or killing of pheasants prohibited. No person shall trap, shoot, kill or take in any manner, any Mongolian, ring-neck, English or Chinese pheasants in this state prior to the first day of October, A. D. nineteen hundred fifteen. [32 G. A., ch. 134, § 1.]

SEC. 2563-v. Penalty. Any person violating the provisions of this act shall upon conviction thereof be fined not to exceed one hundred dollars or imprisonment[1] in the county jail not to exceed thirty days. [32 G. A., ch. 134, §2.]

CHAPTER 16.

OF THE STATE BOARD OF HEALTH.

SECTION 2564. Members—terms—secretary—qualifications—meetings—board of appointment—powers. That the law as it appears in section twenty-five hundred sixty-four of the supplement to the code, 1907, be and the same is hereby repealed, and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"That the governor, secretary of state and auditor of state are hereby made a board of appointment, two of whom shall constitute a quorum for the purpose of making appointments as hereinafter provided, and the secretary of the executive council shall be the secretary thereof. Said board of appointment shall appoint a secretary of the state board of health, who shall be a legally qualified physician and a graduate of a reputable school of medicine, of not less than ten years' experience, and who shall serve for a term of five years or until his successor is appointed, as are the members of the state board of health, and who shall be the executive officer and commissioner of public health as hereinafter provided, and five members of the state board of health, of which not more than three shall belong to the same political party, nor more than two be of the same school of medical practice, which shall be constituted as follows: That the state board of health shall consist of one well qualified civil and sanitary engineer, who shall devote as much of his time to the service of the state as may be needed or required, and when so engaged, shall have all his necessary traveling and incidental expenses paid by the state, and shall have his salary fixed by the board of appointment, not to exceed eight dollars per day nor twenty-five hundred dollars per annum, and four physicians, each of whom shall be a graduate of a reputable school of medicine, each to serve for a term of five years, unless sooner removed by said board of appointment for good cause, same to apply to the secretary, and until his successor is appointed; provided, that the term of the office of the five members first appointed shall be for one, two, three, four and five years, respectively, their terms to be designated by the board of appointment, and to be so arranged that the term of one such member shall expire on the thirtieth day of June of each year. Any vacancies that may occur shall be filled by appointment by the board of appointment, and at the expiration of the term of each member, his successor shall be appointed for a full term of five years. No member of the state board of health shall be an officer or a member of the faculty of any medical school, and the board of appointment shall have the power to remove any member or the secretary of said board of health for good cause. That the board of health shall meet semiannually, in July and January of each year, and at such other times as it may be deemed necessary by the secretary, or on the written request of two or more members of the board of health, such meeting to be held at the seat of government; suitable rooms, furniture, office supplies, postage, stationery and printing therefor, to be provided by the executive council in the same manner as for other departments of the state. That at the meeting held in July, a president shall be elected from the board of health for one year, and the board of appointment shall in July, nineteen hundred thirteen, name and appoint a secretary, as herein provided, not a member of the board of health, who shall serve for a term of five years or until his successor is appointed, unless sooner removed by the board of appointment for good cause; said secretary shall have charge of the office of the state board of health. That when the board of health is not in session, the secretary shall be the executive officer thereof, and commissioner of public health, and shall have full power and authority to execute and enforce all of the laws, rules and regulations of the board of health, pertaining to the health and life of the citizens of the state, to quarantine, to marriages, births and deaths, to sanitary investigations, and to all other matters subject to regulations and control by the board of health, the board of medical examiners, and all of the various other departments that are now or may hereafter be provided by law, or by the rules and regulations of such boards or commissions as are authorized to make and adopt rules with reference thereto. That the compensation of the members of the state board of health, except the civil and sanitary engineer which is otherwise provided for in this section, not only as such members, but as members of the state board of medical examiners, and for any and all other services which they may render, either in their individual capacity, or in connection with any other boards or commissions, by virtue of their membership, either upon the board of health, board of medical, embalmers, nurses or optometry examiners, shall be nine hundred dollars per annum, to be paid as are the salaries of other state officers, which shall be in lieu of all per diem and expenses, except transportation expenses. That all other laws pertaining to compensation or expenses of the physician members of the state board of health and state board of medical examiners as such members, or in connection with any of the other departments, board or commissions connected with the office of the state board of health, and all laws in conflict with any of the provisions of this act are hereby amended to conform to its provisions. That the terms of the present members of the state board of health and the secretary thereof as such, and in connection with all other departments connected with the office of said state board of health shall terminate upon the taking effect of this act. [35 G. A., ch. 207, § 1.] [30 G. A., ch. 97; 28 G. A., ch. 88, § 1; 27 G. A., ch. 67, § 1; 26 G. A., ch. 91; 20 G. A., ch. 173; 18 G. A., ch. 151, §§ 1, 9, 10, 12.]

SEC. 2564-a. Appropriation—how expended. That all appropriations or provisions hereafter to be made or which have been made the state board of health for public health purposes of whatever nature or character, shall be expended under the immediate supervision and direction of the executive council of the state, composed of the governor, secretary of state, auditor of state and treasurer of state, all of whom shall be members, ex officio, to serve without compensation, of the state board of health, and no bill for contingent or miscellaneous expenses, or expenses of any kind, of said state board of health shall be allowed or paid unless it is properly itemized, verified and certified to, and audited by the executive council of the state. [35 G. A., ch. 207, § 2.]

SEC. 2564-b. Acts in conflict repealed. That all laws and parts of laws in conflict with any of the provisions of this act are hereby repealed. [35 G. A., ch. 207, § 3.]

SEC. 2565. Powers—regulations—reports.

In a prosecution for violation of the regulations of the state board of health, the rules of the board may be established by certification of its secretary. Pierce v. Doolittle, 130–333, 106 N. W. 751.

SEC. 2566. Registration of births and deaths—repealed. [31 G. A., ch. 109, § 9.]

SEC. 2567. Clerk of court to keep registry—repealed. [31 G. A., ch. 109, § 9; 31 G. A., ch. 110, §§ 1, 2.]

[See § 2575-a19 for repeal and § 2575-a16 for substitute. § 2567, as amended by ch. 110, 31 G. A., appears in the supplement of 1907 but is omitted in this work as unnecessary duplication, all of the amendments shown in said section also appearing in § 2575-a16. The repealing act was approved subsequently to the amending act. EDITOR.]

SEC. 2568. Local board of health—quarantine.

The physician appointed as a health officer by a local board of health becomes simply an officer to assist in the administration of the law and the enforcement of the regulations of the board and is not required to treat the sick in his professional capacity. If called into service by the board of health to treat persons infected with contagious disease he is entitled to compensation, although the county may have had a contract with another physician to treat all the paupers of the county. The fact that the patient is a pauper is material in determining who shall pay the bill and not with reference to who shall perform the services. Lacy v. Kossuth County, 106–16, 75 N. W. 689.

A certificate of the board of health attached to a physician's claim against the county for compensation for services in treating a person infected with contagious disease is admissible in evidence as a part of the claim for such compensation. Ibid.

There is nothing to prevent a member of a city council from acting as physician under the employment of the board of health appointed by the mayor of the city. Dewitt v. Mills County, 126–169, 101 N. W. 766.

It being made the duty of local boards of health to establish such relations as are necessary for the protection of the public health, and to proclaim and establish quarantine against infectious or contagious diseases, the members of such board are not individually liable for loss sustained by an individual on account of the establishment of a quarantine. Beeks v. Dickinson County, 131–244, 108 N. W. 311.

The provision that the mayor may declare a quarantine in case of infectious or contagious diseases, upon written notice given by any practicing physician of the existence of such disease, makes the written notice by such physician necessary before a quarantine against an individual can be declared, and in the absence of such notice there can be no punishment for violation of such quarantine. State v. Kirby, 120–26, 94 N. W. 254.

Expense of disinfecting premises is not chargeable to the county. Schmidt v. Muscatine County, 120–267, 94 N. W. 479.

Beyond the boundaries of the city the board of health of the city has no power or authority, and it cannot establish a smallpox pesthouse in an adjoining township. Warner v. Stebbins, 111–86, 82 N. W. 457.

The written notice given by a practicing physician is only necessary when the mayor acts without authority of the board of health. Such notice is not necessary to confer jurisdiction on the board. Kirby v. Harker, 143–478, 121 N. W. 1071.

In the absence of evidence that the mayor has acted beyond the scope of his authority and with malice, he is not liable for damages to one injured by such action. Ibid.

SEC. 2569-a. Enforcement on complaint of citizens. In any case where five or more citizens in any locality in this state present a petition to the state board of health signed by such citizens setting forth complaint regarding sanitary conditions in their locality, it is hereby made the duty of the state board of health to use all means at its command to make special effort to improve the sanitation and health conditions and precautions in such localities of this state. If the local board of health should fail to carry out the directions of the state board of health, the state board of health may employ the necessary assistants to carry out the provisions of this act. [35 G. A., ch. 208, § 1.]

SEC. 2569-b. Appropriation. That there is hereby appropriated out of the funds in the state treasury, not otherwise appropriated, the sum of two thousand dollars, or so much thereof as may be necessary for carrying out the provisions and stipulations of senate file number four hundred ninety-one,[1] thirty-fifth general assembly, said sums of money to be paid by the state treasurer on order of the state board of health on warrants properly certified by said board. [35 G. A., ch. 332, § 1.]

[§ 2570 of the code was originally repealed and a substitute enacted therefor by 29 G. A., ch. 105, § 1. The substitute enactment was placed in the 1902 supplement under § 2570-a. EDITOR.]

This section does not enlarge the territorial limits of the jurisdiction of the city board of health, as specified in code § 2568, nor authorize a transfer of patients having contagious diseases to the jurisdiction of the board of health of an adjoining township. Warner v. Stebbins, 111–86, 82 N. W. 457.

A physician employed by the local board of health to treat cases of contagious diseases is entitled to recover by way of compensation from the county for such treatment given by him as is reasonable under the circumstances. Bay v. Monroe County, 121–302, 96 N. W. 854.

Where it is made to appear that smallpox or other disease dangerous to the public health exists, the board of health has power to make provision for the care of the patients and may provide nursing and medical attendance, which will be charged to the patients or those liable for his support, if able to pay; but if unable to pay it is to be at the expense of the county. A physician seeking to enforce a claim for such services against a county must show that the persons to whom such services were rendered are unable to pay the expense thereof. Walker v. Boone County, 123–5, 97 N. W. 1077.

Before amendment of this section by 29 G. A., ch. 105, the liability of the county for the services of a physician employed by a local board of health to attend a person afflicted with a contagious disease as allowed by the board of health was absolute if the patient or those liable for his support were unable to pay. And held that the acceptance of a portion of the claim as allowed by the board of supervisors did not defeat recovery for the balance. Resner v. Carroll County, 126–423, 102 N. W. 148.

While the statute as to local boards of health provides for the care of infected persons and for the payment of the expenses incurred on account thereof, it neither expressly nor by implication provides for compensation to one who is injured by the establishment of a quarantine. Beeks v. Dickinson County, 131–244, 108 N. W. 311.

SEC. 2570-a. Care of infected person—expenses—repealed. [33 G. A., ch. 156, § 1.] [31 G. A., ch. 111, § 1; 30 G. A., ch. 98.]

The expense of fitting up a permanent detention hospital is to be paid by the county, and not by the persons who are detained and treated there. Kurtz v. Polk County, 136–419, 109 N. W. 612.

The local board of health is directed to allow such amount as is reasonable, and the certificate of the board is made prima-facie evidence of the correctness of the bills, with the power of the supervisors to review the amount allowed and fix the same. Hoskins v. Woodbury County, 146–165, 124 N. W. 894.

Where the services have in fact been rendered and plaintiff's bill therefor has been approved by the local board, such action constitutes a ratification and obviates the objection that there was no formal employment prior to the rendering of the services. Ibid.

Local boards of health are charged with the duty of caring for persons afflicted with contagious disease in such manner as shall best protect the community, either by segregation or at their place of residence; and the county is liable for the expense of disinfecting a building in which contagious disease has existed, irrespective of the question of quarantine. Sawyer v. Wapello County, 152–749, 133 N. W. 104.

The approval of a bill by the board of health for disinfecting a building in which a contagious disease has existed is only prima-facie evidence of the value of the service. Ibid.

A ratification by the board after the rendition of services is as effectual as a prior contract. Ibid.

SEC. 2571-a. Quarantine—care of infected person—fumigation—disinfection—report of undertaker—expenses. That the law as it appears in sections twenty-five hundred seventy-a, twenty-five hundred seventy-a one, twenty-five hundred seventy-b, and twenty-five hundred seventy-one of the supplement to the code, 1907, is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"When any person shall be sick or infected with any contagious or infectious disease, dangerous to the public health, whether a resident or otherwise, the local board of health through the mayor or township clerk, shall make such provisions as are best calculated to protect the inhabitants therefrom, and may remove such person to a separate house, a house of detention or hospital; but quarantine shall not be established or maintained except in cases of scarlet fever (including scarlet rash and scarlatina) smallpox, diphtheria (including membranous croup), cholera, leprosy, cerebro-spinal meningitis, anterior poliomyelitis, and bubonic plague. In case any person or persons liable for the support of such person under quarantine or restrained under and by virtue of this act, shall be financially unable to secure the proper care, provisions or medical attendance, it shall be the duty of the mayor or township clerk to procure for such diseased person proper care, provisions, supplies and medical attendance, while so quarantined or restrained. All bills for supplies furnished and services rendered by order of the mayor or township clerk as herein provided, for persons removed to a separate house, or house of detention, or hospital, or for persons financially unable to provide for their sustenance and care, shall be allowed and paid for only on a basis of the local market price for such provisions, services and supplies in the locality in which such services and supplies may have been furnished. All services and supplies furnished to individuals or families under the provisions of this section must be authorized by the local board of health or by the mayor or township clerk acting under standing regulations of such local board, and a written order therefor designating the person or persons employed to furnish such services or supplies, issued before said services or supplies were actually furnished, shall be attached to the bill when the same is presented for audit and payment. No bill for any expenses incurred for any person during quarantine or for disinfecting premises or effects shall be allowed or paid except in cases removed to a separate house, or house of detention, unless it shall be found that such person is financially unable to pay said bill. Provided that nothing contained in this section shall be construed to prevent any person removed to a separate house or house of detention or hospital, as herein provided, from employing, at his own expense, the physician or nurse of his choice, nor from providing such supplies and commodities as he may require. It is further provided that if the person receiving services or supplies be not a legal resident of the county in which such bills were incurred and paid, the amount so paid shall be certified to the board of supervisors of the county in which said party claims residence or owns property and the board of supervisors of such county shall reimburse the county from which such claim is certified, in the full amount originally paid by it. All fumigations and disinfections, for the protection of the public health, shall be done in accordance with the regulations of the state board of health and under the directions of the local board, which shall direct the attending physician to superintend or perform the work. In case there be no attending physician or in case the attending physician refuses to perform this duty, then it shall be the duty of the local board of health to provide some other suitable person to perform such work. The undertaker or person in charge of the funeral of any person, dying of tuberculosis, shall within forty-eight hours after the death of such person report to the mayor of the city or town, or to the township clerk, the name and residence of the deceased person, together with the cause of death. Upon receipt of the notice as herein provided, the mayor of the city or town, or clerk of the township shall cause said premises to be disinfected in accordance with the regulations of the state board of health. All bills and expenses incurred in carrying out the provisions of this section and establishing, maintaining and raising quarantine and furnishing necessary detention hospitals shall be filed with the clerk of the local board of health. This board at its next regular meeting or special meeting called for the purpose shall examine and audit the same and if found correct, approve and certify the same to the county board of supervisors for payment. If the board of supervisors determine such bills payable, under the provisions of this act, it shall order the county auditor to draw warrant therefor upon the poor fund of said county. The board of supervisors shall not be bound by the action of the local board of health in approving such bill but may increase or diminish the same as may be just and reasonable. The forcible removal of infected persons as herein provided shall be effected by an application to any civil magistrate in the manner provided in section twenty-five hundred sixty-nine of the code for the removal and abatement of nuisances, who shall issue the warrant, as directed in such cases, to remove such person or persons to the place designated by the local board of health and to take possession of a condemned or infected house, lodging room, premises or effects. The officers designated by such magistrate shall be entitled to receive for such services such reasonable compensation as shall be determined by the local board of health, the amount so determined to be certified to and paid in the same manner as other expenses incurred under the provisions of this section. [34 G. A., ch. 119, § 1; 33 G. A., ch. 156, § 1.]

SEC. 2571-b. Local boards—meetings—rules and regulations of state board—reports. "Local boards of health shall meet for the transaction of business on the first Monday of April and November in each year and at such other times as it may be deemed necessary. Local boards of health shall furnish to the state board of health reports of their proceedings at such times and in such form as may be reasonably required by the state board of health. They shall give notice of all regulations adopted by publication thereof in some newspaper of general circulation in the town, city or township, or by posting a copy thereof in five public places therein. The secretary of the state board of health immediately after the adoption of any rules and regulations of said board, in accordance with section one of this act, shall forward a certified copy of such rules to the county auditor of each county. Whenever such rules may be amended or changed, similar notice shall be forwarded to each county auditor. The state board of health shall cause to be printed such number of copies of the rules and regulations by it adopted as may be necessary to supply the needs of the several counties of the state and upon application forward the required number to the county auditors of the state for distribution to the several boards of health within the county. The clerk of each local board of health shall upon request furnish a copy of said rules to any resident, physician or citizen. It shall be the duty of the official when establishing quarantine, to furnish to the person or persons quarantined a copy of the rules and regulations covering such quarantine." [33 G. A., ch. 156, § 2.]

SEC. 2572. Regulations of state board. Local boards of health shall obey and enforce the rules and regulations of the state board; and peace and police officers within their respective jurisdictions, when called upon to do so by the local boards, shall execute the orders of such board. If any local board of health shall refuse or neglect to enforce the rules and regulations of the state board of health, the state board of health may enforce its rules and regulations within the territorial jurisdiction of such local board, and for that purpose shall have and may exercise all of the powers given by statute to local boards of health; and the peace and police officers of the state, when called upon by the state board of health to enforce its rules and regulations, shall execute the orders of such board. All expenses incurred by the state board of health in determining whether its rules and regulations are enforced by a local board of health, and in enforcing the same when a local board has refused or neglected to do so, shall be paid in the same manner as is now provided for the payment of the expenses of enforcing such rules and regulations by local boards of health. [29 G. A., ch. 107, § 1.]

SEC. 2572-a. Antitoxin department—establishment. That for the purpose of furnishing antitoxin to the people of the state of Iowa, an antitoxin department is hereby established to be under the control and direction of the state board of health. [34 G. A., ch. 122, § 1.]

SEC. 2572-b. Label. All antitoxin furnished or distributed under the provisions of this act shall be labeled "Iowa State Board of Health Antitoxin." [34 G. A., ch. 122, § 2.]

SEC. 2572-c. Distributing stations—rates. It shall be the duty of the state board of health to establish such distributing stations throughout the state as will enable physicians, druggists and other persons to secure the Iowa state board of health antitoxin at the reduced rates established by the board. [34 G. A., ch. 122, § 3.]

SEC. 2572-d. Annual appropriation. For the purpose of carrying into effect the provisions of this act and the payment of all expenses connected therewith, including necessary clerical assistance, there is hereby appropriated out of any funds in the state treasury, not otherwise appropriated, the sum of two thousand dollars per annum, or so much thereof as may be necessary to pay for clerical assistance and such other expenses as may be incurred by the state board of health in establishing antitoxin stations and providing for the distribution of Iowa state board of health antitoxin under the provisions of this act; provided that not to exceed nine hundred dollars of said sum shall be expended for clerical assistance. All bills for expenses of whatever nature or character are to be itemized, verified, certified, audited and paid as other expenses of the board. [34 G. A., ch. 122, § 4.]

SEC. 2573. Failure to comply with orders or regulations.

The violation by a physician of the rules of the state board of health is a misdemeanor punishable as provided in code § 4906. The rules of the board may be proved by certification of the secretary. Pierce v. Doolittle, 130–333, 106 N. W. 751.

Rules prescribed by the board prior to the enactment of the code of '97 continued in force after the enactment of such code. Ibid.

SEC. 2574. Compensation of secretary — expenses of members. [That section twenty-five hundred seventy-four of the code be repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:[1]]

The secretary of the state board of health shall receive such salary as the board shall fix, not to exceed three thousand dollars per annum, payable upon the certificate of the president to the state auditor, who shall issue his warrant for the amount due, upon the state treasurer; provided, however, that the aforesaid three thousand dollars shall be in lieu of any and all other compensation he may receive in any official capacity. Each member of the board shall receive only actual traveling and other necessary expenses incurred in the performance of his duties, said expenses to be itemized, verified, certified, audited, and a warrant drawn therefor in the same manner as the secretary's salary. [34 G. A., ch. 120, § 1.] [20 G. A., ch. 173; 18 G. A., ch. 151, § 10.]

[1]The direction to repeal and substitute appears only in the title of the enrolled bill. EDITOR.]

SEC. 2575-a1. Location of pesthouses—controversy—how settled. That when a controversy arises between municipalities or between boards of health thereof, respecting the location of pesthouses or hospitals for the treatment of infectious or contagious diseases, such matter shall be referred to the president of the state board of health who shall forthwith appoint a committee of three members thereof, which committee shall upon two days' notice to the parties interested, investigate the matter and make such order in the premises as the facts warrant, and such order shall be final. [29 G. A., ch. 108, § 1.]

A municipality may acquire in an adjoining school township a location for a pesthouse. Hanson v. Cresco, 132–533, 109 N. W. 1109.

SEC. 2575-a2. Jurisdiction. The health officers of the municipality which is allowed to maintain a pesthouse or hospital for patients affected by infectious or contagious diseases outside the limits of said municipality, shall have exclusive jurisdiction and control of such pesthouse or hospital for the enforcement of all sanitary and health regulations. [29 G. A., ch. 108, § 2.]

SEC. 2575-a3. Removal—written permission. That no person known to be infected, or sick with any contagious disease dangerous to the public health shall move or be removed from one city, town or township to another city, town or township except as hereinafter provided and by written permission of the local board of health of the city, town or township to which such person is to be removed. [30 G. A., ch. 99, § 1.]

SEC. 2575-a4. Expenses of removal and care. If any person known to be infected or sick with smallpox or other contagious disease dangerous to the public health shall with the knowledge or consent of any member of the local board of health of the city, town or township in which he resides be removed from said city, town or township to another city, town or township either with or without the permission of the local board of such city, town or township to which he is removed, all expense of quarantine or care of such person incurred by the city, town or township to which he is removed shall be paid by the city, town or township from which such person was so removed, in the manner provided in section twenty-five hundred seventy-a of the supplement to the code [1902]. If said person be so removed to another county, said expenses shall in the first instance be paid by such county and recovered from the county from which such person had been removed. [30 G. A., ch. 99, § 2.]

SEC. 2575-a5. Method of removal—warning signs—expenses. When it is determined by any physician or health officer that any person is sick with smallpox or any other contagious disease dangerous to the public health while in any city, town or township other than the one in which he resides, provided the distance be not to exceed fifteen miles from his place of residence, then and in that event if the person so diseased elect to be moved to the city, town or township in which he resides, he may be so removed by private conveyance along the least frequented highways under escort of a health officer to his abode immediately on determining that he is so diseased; and every such vehicle shall carry as a signal of warning, conspicuously displayed, a yellow flag not less than two feet square. All expenses of removal, care and quarantine of such person shall be paid by the city, town or township to which he is removed and shall be paid in the manner provided in section two of this chapter. [30 G. A., ch. 99, § 3.]

SEC. 2575-a6. Violation—penalty. Any person who shall move, or any physician or any member of a local board of health who shall cause or assist any person known to be infected or sick with smallpox, or any contagious disease dangerous to the public health to be removed from one city, town or township, to another city, town or township, contrary to the provisions of this act or of any regulation of the state board of health, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and be punished by a fine not exceeding one hundred dollars or imprisonment not exceeding thirty days, or both at the discretion of the court. [30 G. A., ch. 99, § 4.]

SEC. 2575-a6a. Syphilis and gonorrhea. That syphilis and gonorrhea are hereby declared contagious and infectious and shall be reported as contagious diseases to the local board of health. [35 G. A., ch. 212, § 1.]

SEC. 2575-a6b. Report of cases by number—duty of physician. From and after the first day of January, A. D. nineteen hundred fourteen, it shall be the duty of every physician and surgeon practicing within the state of Iowa, to report to the local board of health, within twenty-four hours, every case of syphilis or gonorrhea coming to his knowledge, and shall make and preserve a record of every such case so reported, numbering each case consecutively. He shall require the person to state whether or not he has been previously reported to a local board of health in this state and if so, when, where, by whom, and under what number. The report shall state the sex of the person and the age as nearly as practicable, together with the character of the disease and the probable source of infection, and whether previously reported or not, and if so, when, where, by whom, and under what number, but shall not disclose the name of the infected person. [35 G. A., ch. 212, § 2.]

SEC. 2575-a6c. Failure to report—penalty. Any physician or surgeon who shall be called upon to treat professionally anyone afflicted with syphilis or gonorrhea who shall fail to report the same to the local board of health within twenty-four hours shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be punished by a fine not exceeding one hundred dollars or imprisonment in the county jail not more than thirty days. And in addition thereto, the state board of health may revoke his license or certificate to practice medicine, surgery and obstetrics in the state of Iowa. [35 G. A., ch. 212, § 3.]

SEC. 2575-a6d. Penalty for transmission of disease—liability for damage. Any person afflicted with either of these diseases, who shall knowingly transmit or assume the risk of transmitting the same by intercourse to another person shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof be fined in the sum of not to exceed five hundred dollars or imprisoned in the county jail not to exceed one year, or both such fine and imprisonment; and in addition thereto, shall be liable to the party injured in damages to be recovered in any court of competent jurisdiction. [35 G. A., ch. 212, § 4.]

SEC. 2575-a6e. Acts in conflict repealed. All acts or parts of acts in conflict with any of the foregoing sections are hereby repealed. [35 G. A., ch. 212, § 5.]

CHAPTER 16-A.

OF THE BACTERIOLOGICAL LABORATORY.

SECTION 2575-a7. Establishment. The bacteriological laboratory of the medical department of the state university at Iowa City is hereby established as a permanent part of the medical department of the university work, and it shall in addition to its regular work perform all scientific analyses and tests, chemical, microscopical or other scientific investigations, which may be required by the state board of health, and it shall make prompt report of the results thereof, under such rules and regulations as the said state board of health may from time to time adopt. [30 G. A., ch. 101, § 1.]

SEC. 2575-a8. Director—reports. The professor of bacteriology of the medical department of the state university shall be the director of said laboratory and shall make or cause to be made all such analyses, tests and investigations as shall be required by the state board of health as provided in the preceding section, causing the same to be made without delay and giving such analyses, tests or investigations the preference of the point of time over all other work and shall make prompt report of the result thereof to the board of health or to such person or persons as the board of health may by rule or designation designate. [30 G. A., ch. 101, § 2.]

SEC. 2575-a9. Appropriation—purposes. That section three of chapter one hundred and one of the laws of the thirtieth general assembly and chapter one hundred thirteen of the laws of the thirty-first general assembly be and the same are hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"There is hereby appropriated out of any money in the state treasury not otherwise appropriated, for the purpose of more perfectly equipping the present bacteriological laboratory at the state university and for the purpose of enabling it to perform the duties hereby imposed, and to provide it with the necessary apparatus and assistants to render the same effective, the sum of six thousand dollars annually or so much thereof as may be necessary, to be additional salary of the director, the assistants, the expenses of said laboratory as may be necessary by this act, including postage, stationery, and other contingent and miscellaneous expenses which may be incurred in the maintaining of said laboratory and performing the duties required therein by the provision of this act. The director shall receive such additional salary not to exceed twelve hundred dollars per year as the state board of health may fix. The appropriations hereby provided shall be expended in the manner provided in section twenty-five hundred seventy-five of the code." [32 G. A., ch. 137, § 1; 31 G. A., ch. 113; 30 G. A., ch. 101, § 3.]

SEC. 2575-a10. Acts in conflict repealed. All acts and parts of acts inconsistent with this act are hereby repealed. [32 G. A., ch. 137, § 2.]

OF REGISTRATION OF BIRTHS AND DEATHS.

SECTION 2575-a11. State registrar of vital statistics. That for the complete and proper registration of births and deaths for legal, sanitary and statistical purposes, the secretary of the state board of health is hereby constituted state registrar of vital statistics, and it shall be his duty to promulgate and enforce all necessary rules and regulations that may be required to carry out the purposes of this act. [31 G. A., ch. 109, § 1.]

SEC. 2575-a12. Certificates of death. The undertaker or the person in charge of the funeral of any person dying in Iowa shall cause a certificate of death to be filled out, with all the personal particulars contained in the standard blanks adopted by the U. S. census bureau, and with a statement of cause of death by attending physician, or in his absence, by the health officer or coroner, and shall file it with the state registrar on or before the fifth day of each month for the month preceding and no sexton or superintendent of a cemetery shall permit interment, and no railroad or other transportation company shall permit shipment of the body unaccompanied by such certificate of death. [31 G. A., ch. 109, § 2.]

SEC. 2575-a13. Blanks—furnished by registrar. The state registrar shall furnish blank certificates of death to physicians and undertakers, and all proper forms and instructions for the effectual execution of the law. [31 G. A., ch. 109, § 3.]

SEC. 2575-a14. Certified transcripts of certificates of death. It shall be the duty of the state registrar to furnish to the clerk of the district court of each county on or before the first day of February of each year, certified transcripts of the certificates of death filed with him from the respective counties as well as similar transcripts of deaths to the U. S. census bureau at Washington, and to arrange by counties, bind and deposit in the state historical building at Des Moines the original certificates; and transcripts sent each county shall be bound at the expense of said county, and preserved for reference by the clerk of the district court. [31 G. A., ch. 109, § 4.]

SEC. 2575-a15. Assessor to report births and deaths. It shall be the duty of all assessors at the time of making assessment to obtain and report to the clerk of the district court upon blanks adopted by the state registrar and furnished by the county auditor, such registration of births and deaths as occur within their respective districts for the year ending December thirty-first, immediately preceding. [32 G. A., ch. 135; 31 G. A., ch. 109, § 5.]

SEC. 2575-a16. Record of marriages and divorces and births. The clerk of the court in each county shall keep a book in which shall be recorded all marriages and divorces occurring within the county, together with such data respecting the same as shall be required by the state registrar and shall report to said state registrar on or before the first day of August in each year, such data respecting such marriages and divorces for the year ending June thirtieth immediately preceding, and the clerk of the district court of each county shall keep a book in which shall be recorded all births occurring within the county as shown by the returns filed in his[1] office by the assessor as provided in the section preceding, and on or before the first day of August in each year shall furnish to the state registrar a report of such births. [31 G. A., ch. 109, § 6.]

[1]"this" in 31 G. A. session laws. EDITOR.]

SEC. 2575-a17. Appropriation. There is hereby appropriated the sum of two thousand dollars, annually, or so much thereof as may be necessary, to pay the expense of printing, postage, clerk hire, and such other expenses as may be required. All bills to be itemized, certified to and approved by the state registrar. [32 G. A., ch. 136; 31 G. A., ch. 109, § 7.]

SEC. 2575-a18. Penalty. Any person acting as undertaker, sexton, agent of a transportation company, or other person, violating any of the provisions of this act shall be fined not less than ten dollars and not more than one hundred dollars or be imprisoned not more than sixty days or be subject to both fine and imprisonment at the discretion of the court. It shall be the duty of the prosecuting attorney in each county upon complaint of the state registrar to prosecute in such cases and the state registrar shall endeavor to see that this act is uniformly and officially executed throughout this state. [31 G. A., ch. 109, § 8.]

SEC. 2575-a19. Acts in conflict repealed. Sections twenty-five hundred sixty-six and twenty-five hundred sixty-seven of the code and chapter one hundred of the laws of the thirtieth general assembly and all other acts and parts of acts in conflict with this act are hereby repealed. [31 G. A., ch. 109, § 9; 30 G. A., ch. 100.]

CHAPTER 16-C.

OF MATERNITY HOSPITALS.

SECTION 2575-a20. Erection, establishment or maintenance—permit. That from and after the taking effect of this act, it shall be unlawful to erect. or establish or maintain, conduct, keep or carry on, or to continue to maintain, keep or carry on, within this state, any lying-in or maternity hospital, or any institution or place for the reception, care and treatment of women in labor, or where females may be received, cared for and treated during pregnancy or after delivery, or any hospital wherein women are received, cared for and treated during pregnancy, or after delivery, the proprietor, owner or persons in charge of which, or any person representing them, undertakes to adopt or procure or assist in procuring the adoption or disposal of any child born therein, within two hundred feet of any church building, university, school or other institution of learning, or public park, or in a building situated within seventy-five feet of premises owned by another. And it shall from and after the taking of this act be unlawful to so erect, establish, maintain, conduct, keep or carry on, or continue to keep or carry on elsewhere in this state, any place or places above enumerated, for any such purpose or purposes, without having first obtained a permit in writing, as hereinafter provided. This act shall not apply to general hospitals for the treatment of diseases, obstetrics and surgical cases. [32 G. A., ch. 138, § 1.]

SEC. 2575-a21. Board of health to grant permit. The state board of health is hereby authorized to grant a permit in writing, to establish, maintain, conduct, keep or carry on such lying-in or maternity hospital, or hospital ward, or institution, or place for the reception, care and treatment of women in labor, for pay, or where females may be received, cared for or treated during pregnancy or during or after delivery, for pay, at any place within the state, except as prohibited in section one of this act; but only one such permit shall be issued for any one premises. [32 G. A., ch. 138, § 2.]

SEC. 2575-a22. Application—inspection of premises—issuance of permit—fees. Any person or persons who desire to obtain the permit provided in section two of this act shall file with the state board of health an application for said permit, naming each person to whom said permit is to be granted, and particularly describing the place or premises to be used for said purposes, and the location thereof; and shall also cause to be filed with said state board of health a statement signed by two regular physicians, holding a certificate, in force, from the state board of medical examiners of this state, to the effect that, to the personal knowledge of each of said physicians, said person, or each of said persons, is of good character and reputation; that he has personally examined the premises described in the application for said permit, and that the same are suitable and properly furnished for the uses described in section one of this act, and that such hospital or ward or other institution or place will be for the public convenience. Upon the filing of such application for a permit, together with said physicians' certificate, the state board of health shall satisfy itself as to the correctness of the matters set forth in said application and physicians' certificate, and shall cause said premises to be inspected, for which inspection a fee of five dollars shall be paid by the person or persons signing such application, and when so satisfied, and upon the payment of a fee of twenty-five dollars by the person or persons applying for said permit to the said state board of health, said state board of health shall issue its permit, particularly naming the person or persons to whom granted, the description and location of the premises to be used, and the purpose or purposes for which said permit is granted, which permit shall continue in force for one year from the date thereof, unless sooner revoked. Said permit may be renewed, from time to time, whenever said state board of health deem it proper so to do, and upon payment to said board of a fee of five dollars for each renewal thereof. Said permit shall not authorize the use of any other place or premises than the one named in said permit or in the renewal thereof. Provided that no fee mentioned in this section should [shall] be required of any religious or charitable institution conducting such lying-in or maternity hospital. [32 G. A., ch. 138, § 3.]

SEC. 2575-a23. Register of patients, births and deaths—reports. The person or persons in charge of the place described in said permit shall keep a true, accurate and complete register of all patients and of all births and deaths occurring upon said premises, giving date of entry of each patient, date of birth and name of each child born on said premises, and the age of all children dying thereon, and the same particulars, as well as the name, so far as known, of any woman patient dying on said premises; and said person or persons in charge of the place described in said permit shall furnish to the officer authorized by law to receive them, all of the particulars required by law to be furnished for the due registration of each birth or death occurring on said premises, except when such particulars have been furnished by the physician in attendance at birth, or attending on the person so dying thereon. The state board of health shall furnish blanks to all permit holders specified in this act and to be filled out and returned to the state board of health within twenty-four hours after the birth or death of any child or death of any woman patient dying on the premises described in such permit, giving date of birth and sex of each child born on said premises and name and age of the mother, and if the true name of the mother cannot be ascertained then the assumed name given by her, and the age and sex of all children dying on said premises. And the state board of health shall keep a record of same, which record shall be accessible to the members of the state board of health, members of the board of control of state institutions, the attorney-general and any county attorney in the state, and to no other person except on order of a court of record. [32 G. A., ch. 138, § 4.]

SEC. 2575-a24. Articles of adoption—record. The person or persons in charge of the premises described in such permit shall not adopt or dispose of by adoption or procure or assist in the disposal by adoption of any child born thereon, without the articles of adoption being filed as required by law. Within twenty-four hours after the departure, removal or withdrawal from said premises of any child born thereon, or of the body of any such child, the person or persons in charge thereof shall enter upon said register a record of such departure, removal or withdrawal and the name or other description of said child, the name or names and respective residences of the person or persons who took said child or its body, the disposition made of said child or its body, the place to which the same was taken and where the same was left. [32 G. A., ch. 138, § 5.]

SEC. 2575-a25. Inspections—by whom made—report. Every person in charge of the premises described in any such permit, his servants, employes or agents, shall permit visitation or inspection of said premises, and of the register in this act provided to be kept, to be made at any time, by the state board or local board of health or by any person designated in writing by the state or local board of health for that purpose. It shall be the duty of the local board of health of the city, town or township in which such premises are maintained to inspect such premises at least once in six months; and to file an accurate report of such inspection with the city, town or township clerk of the city, town or township in which such premises are maintained, and that such report shall be preserved as a permanent record. [32 G. A., ch. 138, § 6.]

SEC. 2575-a26. Revocation of permit. Said permit may be revoked after reasonable notice by the state board of health, and a conviction under the succeeding section of this act shall operate to terminate and revoke said permit. [32 G. A., ch. 138, § 7.]

SEC. 2575-a27. Penalty. Any person violating any of the provisions of this act or making any false entry on the register required by this act to be kept, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be punished by a fine of not more than two hundred fifty dollars, or by confinement in the county jail not more than six months, or by both such fine and imprisonment. And the premises so unlawfully used are hereby declared to be a nuisance, and the same shall be subject to the procedure provided in sections twenty-four hundred and five, twenty-four hundred and six and twenty-four hundred and seven of the code, as far as applicable thereto. [32 G. A., ch. 138, § 8.]

CHAPTER 16-D.

OF THE PRACTICE OF NURSING.

SECTION 2575-a28. Certificate required. That section twenty-five hundred seventy-five-a twenty-eight of chapter sixteen-D of the supplement to the code, 1907, be and the same is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"It shall be unlawful for any person to profess to be a registered or graduated nurse without first obtaining from the state board of health a certificate authorizing him or her to practice nursing in this state, except as hereinafter provided." [34 G. A., ch. 121, § 1.] [32 G. A., ch. 139, § 1.]

SEC. 2575-a29. Examining committee—qualifications of applicants—nurses previously engaged in practice. That section twenty-five hundred seventy-five-a twenty-nine of the supplement to the code, 1907, be repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"At the annual meeting of the state board of health it shall select two physicians from its own membership, and two registered nurses, residents of this state actively engaged in the practice of nursing, who, together with the secretary of the state board of health, shall constitute the examining committee for the year. The examinations provided for in this act shall be held in the city of Des Moines, in July of each year and at such other times and places as the board of health shall direct. All applicants for certificates to practice nursing shall have attained the age of twenty-one years and shall be of good moral character. They shall be graduates of training schools recognized as being in good standing by the state board of health of Iowa, and shall have received at least two years' instruction in general hospital practice. After July first, nineteen hundred ten, no training school shall be accredited by the state board of health as a school of recognized standing which is not attached to a general hospital, and which does not have a course of study of at least three years; provided, that all nurses who have had five or more years' training in a general hospital which prior to July first, nineteen hundred and seven, did not issue diplomas to its graduates, shall upon furnishing the board with satisfactory evidence that they were in actual attendance as students at said hospital for a period of not less than three years, shall upon the payment of a fee of ten dollars be entitled to registration and certificate without examination, provided such nurses were bona fide residents of the state of Iowa and actually engaged therein in the practice of nursing upon the twelfth day of March, nineteen hundred and seven, and that application for registration shall be filed not later than the first day of January, nineteen hundred ten." [33 G. A., ch. 157, § 2.] [32 G. A., ch. 139, § 2.]

SEC. 2575-a30. Examination — fees — certificates — where registered. After the passage of this act, any person who is not exempt from examination by section two of this act and who shall apply for a certificate to practice nursing shall be examined in the following subjects: elementary hygiene, anatomy, physiology, materia medica, dietetics, and also practical nursing, medical and surgical nursing, obstetrics, nursing of children and the rules and regulations of the state board of health relating to infectious diseases and quarantine and such other subjects as the examining board may require from time to time. Each applicant shall pay the secretary of the state board of health a fee of five dollars. If the examination be satisfactory to three members of said committee it shall so report to the state board of health; if the board find the report and ratings correct, it shall authorize its president and secretary to issue a certificate to the successful candidate for which such candidate shall pay an additional fee of one dollar. This certificate shall confer upon the holder the right to practice as a registered nurse and be conclusive evidence thereof. The state board of health is empowered to recognize certificates issued to nurses under the laws of other states having substantially similar requirements to those existing in this state, provided, that such states recognize certificates issued by the state of Iowa; then certificates issued by authority of such other states may be deemed sufficient evidence of qualifications of the licentiate without further examination for certificate in this state; the fee for such certificate shall be ten dollars. The holder of such certificate provided for in this act, shall cause the same to be registered in the office of the county recorder of the county wherein he intends to reside. [32 G. A., ch. 139, § 3.]

SEC. 2575-a31. Unlawful practice. That section twenty-five hundred seventy-five-a thirty-one, supplement to the code, 1907, as amended by chapter one hundred fifty-seven, acts of the thirty-third general assembly, be and the same is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"On and after the taking effect of this act, no person, except one holding a certificate under chapter sixteen-D of title twelve, supplement to the code, 1907, as amended, shall advertise to be, or assume, or use the title of registered or graduated nurse, or use the abbreviations 'R. N.' or 'G. N.' or any other figures or letters to indicate that the person using the same is a registered or graduated nurse; and it shall be unlawful for any nurse to practice nursing as registered or graduate nurse within this state without having first registered as provided in chapter sixteen-D, title twelve, supplement to the code, 1907, as amended by this act." [34 G. A., ch. 121, § 2; 33 G. A., ch. 157, § 1.] [32 G. A., ch. 139, § 4.]

SEC. 2575-a32. Not applicable to certain nurses. This act shall not apply to any person nursing the sick with or without pay who does not in any way assume to be a registered or graduate nurse. [32 G. A., ch. 139, § 5.]

SEC. 2575-a33. Refusal to grant certificates—revocation of certificates. The board of health may refuse to grant, or renew any certificate provided for in this act, to a person otherwise qualified, who obtained said certificate by false or fraudulent representation, or for immoral or unprofessional or dishonorable conduct, or for wilful or repeated violation of the rules or regulations of the state board of health; and the board may revoke any certificate issued by it, for any such or similar cause; provided, that before the revocation of any certificate issued under the provisions of this act, the licentiate shall have been afforded an opportunity for a hearing before the board. At least twenty days prior to the date set for such hearing, the secretary of the state board of health shall cause written notice, under registered mail, to be sent to the licentiate at his last known place of residence; said notice shall contain a statement of the charges, and the date and place set for the hearing before the board. If the party thus notified fails to appear, either in person or by counsel, at the time and place designated in said notice, the board may, after receiving satisfactory evidence of the truth of the charges and proper issuance of the notice, revoke said certificate. If the licentiate appear either in person or by counsel, the board shall proceed with the hearing as herein provided. The board may receive and consider affidavits and oral statements, and shall cause stenographic report of the oral testimony to be taken, which, together with all other papers pertaining thereto, shall be preserved for one year. If five members of the board present at the hearing are satisfied that the licentiate is guilty of any of the offenses charged, the certificate shall be revoked, for such time as the state board of health may determine. [32 G. A., ch. 139, § 6.]

SEC. 2575-a34. Compensation of examining committee—expenses. Each member of the examining committee, except the secretary, shall receive for his services out of the funds created by the payment of fees by applicants for examination such compensation as is allowed to the members of the state board of medical examiners for like services and the secretary shall receive his necessary expenses, incurred for services which cannot be performed at the capitol. All printing, postage and other contingent expenses, necessarily incurred under the provisions of this act shall be paid from said fund. All expenses incurred under the provisions of this act shall be itemized, verified, and audited and a warrant drawn therefor on the nurses' fund in the same manner as other expenses of the state board of health. [32 G. A., ch. 139, § 7.]

SEC. 2575-a35. Penalty. Any person who shall knowingly violate any of the provisions of this act shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be fined a sum not exceeding one hundred dollars or imprisoned in the county jail not to exceed thirty days. [32 G. A., ch. 139, § 8.]

CHAPTER 16-E.

OF THE PRACTICE OF EMBALMING.

SECTION 2575-a36. Unlawful practice. It shall be unlawful for any person to embalm or otherwise prepare for transportation by railway or other public conveyance except as hereinafter provided, the dead body of any human being, or to embalm or otherwise prepare any such body, or to practice, or publicly profess to practice the art of embalming without first obtaining, from the state board of health, a license authorizing him to practice embalming in this state. [32 G. A., ch. 140, § 1.]

SEC. 2575-a37. Examining committee — applicants — qualifications. At the annual meeting of the state board of health, it shall select two physicians from among its own membership, and two licensed embalmers, residents of this state, who, together with the secretary of the state board of health, shall constitute the examining committee for the year. The examinations provided for in this act shall be held in the city of Des Moines, in July and January of each year and at such other times as the board of health may direct. All applicants for license to practice embalming shall have attained the age of twenty-one years, and shall have had not less than two years' practical experience under a licensed embalmer in this state, or in lieu thereof, shall have had a practical experience of not less than one year under a licensed embalmer, and have completed the regular course of instruction in a school of embalming recognized as being in good standing by the state board of health of Iowa; in addition to all of said requirements, each applicant for an embalmer's license shall have actually embalmed not less than ten bodies, under the supervision of a licensed embalmer, prior to the date of examination. Each applicant for examination shall file with the secretary of the state board of health not later than ten days prior to the date of the next examination, a sworn statement of his age and other qualifications as required by this act, and a certificate of good moral character signed by three responsible citizens, one of whom must be a licensed embalmer personally acquainted with the applicant for at least one year. All applications under this act shall be upon blanks furnished by the state board of health. [32 G. A., ch. 140, § 2.]

SEC. 2575-a38. Examination—license—fee. After the passage of this act, each applicant for license to practice embalming shall be examined in the following subjects: anatomy, sanitary science, the care, disinfection, preservation, transportation of and burial, or other final disposition of dead bodies, and the rules and regulations of the state board of health relating to infectious diseases and quarantine; he may also be required to demonstrate his proficiency as an embalmer by operations on a cadaver. The examination papers and oral answers shall, when concluded, be graded upon the scale of one hundred, each applicant first to pay, to the secretary of the state board of health, a fee of five dollars therefor. The average rating required to pass shall be fixed by the board of health prior to the examination. If the examination be satisfactory to three members of the examining committee, it shall so report to the state board of health; if the board find the report and ratings correct, it shall authorize its president and secretary to issue a license to the successful candidates, for which such candidates shall each pay an additional fee of one dollar. The license, while in force, shall confer upon the holder the right to practice embalming, or to otherwise prepare dead bodies for transportation, burial, or other authorized mode of final disposition, and be conclusive evidence thereof. [32 G. A., ch. 140, § 3.]

SEC. 2575-a39. Licenses renewed annually—licentiates of other states—fees—licenses registered. Any person now holding an unexpired license from the state board of health as an embalmer shall be held to be licensed as an embalmer under the terms of this act, but all licenses now in force, or hereafter issued, shall expire on the thirtieth day of June following the date of issuance of such license. Licenses shall be renewed without examination annually by the state board of health within thirty days after expiration, provided the holder of said license shall make written application to said board, and pay to the secretary thereof the sum of one dollar renewal fee. The state board of health is empowered to recognize licenses issued to embalmers by authorities under the laws of other states having substantially similar requirements to those existing in this state, provided, that such states recognize licenses issued by the Iowa state board of health, then licenses issued by authority of such other states may be deemed sufficient evidence of qualifications of the licentiate without further examination for license in this state; the fee for such license shall be ten dollars. The owner of any license, or renewal, provided for in this act shall cause the same to be registered in the office of the local board of health of each city or town wherein he intends to practice the art of embalming, and no transportation permit shall be issued by the local board to any person not so recorded. [32 G. A., ch. 140, § 4.]

SEC. 2575-a40. Secretary of state board of health to keep record. The secretary of the state board of health shall keep a record of the names and residence of all persons to whom licenses have been issued, with the official number and date of issuance; a copy of this record, together with such other information as may tend to improve the public service, shall be published annually. [32 G. A., ch. 140, § 5.]

SEC. 2575-a41. Refusal to grant licenses—revocation. The state board of health may refuse to grant, or renew, any license provided for in this act, to a person otherwise qualified, who obtained said license by false or fraudulent representation, or for habitual intoxication, or for immoral or unprofessional or dishonorable conduct, or for wilful or repeated violation of the rules or regulations of the state board of health; and the board may revoke any license, issued by it, for any such similar cause; provided, that before the revocation of any license issued under the provisions of this act, the licentiate shall have been afforded an opportunity for a hearing before the board. At least ten days prior to the date set for said hearing, the secretary of the state board of health shall cause written notice, under registered mail, to be sent to the licentiate at his last known place of residence; said notice shall contain a statement of the charges, and the date and place set for the hearing before the board. If the party thus notified fails to appear, either in person or by counsel, at the time and place designated in said notice, the board may, after receiving satisfactory evidence of the truth of the charges and the proper issuance of the notice, revoke said license. If the licentiate appear, either in person or by counsel, the board shall proceed with the hearing as herein provided. The board may receive and consider affidavits and oral statements, and shall cause a stenographic report of the oral testimony to be taken, which together with all other papers pertaining thereto shall be preserved for one year. If five members of the board, present at the hearing, are satisfied that the licentiate is guilty of any of the offenses named in this section, the license shall be revoked. After the revocation of a license the licentiate, or holder thereof, shall not practice embalming or any of its branches in this state. [32 G. A., ch. 140, § 6.]

SEC. 2575-a42. Jurisdiction over transportation of dead bodies—rules and regulations. The state board of health shall have sole jurisdiction over the transportation of all dead bodies and of all methods preparatory thereto, and the said board is hereby authorized to make such rules and regulations, relating thereto, as in its opinion are necessary to subserve and protect the public health; said rules and regulations when made shall be enforced by the secretary of the state board of health. [32 G. A., ch. 140, § 7.]

SEC. 2575-a43. Removal or shipping permit. It shall be unlawful for any railway agent, express agent, baggage-master, conductor, or other person acting as such, to receive the dead body of any person for shipment, or transportation by railway or other public conveyance, to or from any point in this state or to a point outside of this state, unless said body be accompanied by a removal, or shipping permit signed by the health officer of the local board of health, and a certificate, attached to the outside box containing such body, showing the name and official number of the embalmer by whom it was prepared, and the method of preparation employed; provided, that nothing in this act shall be so construed as to prevent the shipment of dead bodies intended for use for anatomical purposes within this state when the same are so designated by the shipper. [32 G. A., ch. 140, § 8.]

SEC. 2575-a44. Compensation of examining committee—expenses. Each member of the examining committee, except the secretary, shall receive for his services, out of the funds created by the payment of fees by applicants for examination or license and renewals, such compensation as is allowed the members of the state board of medical examiners for like services, and the secretary shall receive the sum of twenty-five dollars per month, and his necessary expenses incurred for services which cannot be performed at the capitol. All printing, postage, and other contingent office expenses necessarily incurred under the provisions of this act, shall be paid from said fund. Any balance of said funds remaining shall be turned over to the state treasurer for the use of the state. All expenses incurred under the provisions of this act shall be itemized, verified, and audited, and a warrant drawn therefor on the embalmers' fund in the same manner as other expenses of the state board of health. [32 G. A., ch. 140, § 9.]

SEC. 2575-a45. Penalty—enforcement. Any person who shall knowingly violate any of the provisions of this act, or who shall offer a forged removal, shipping or transportation certificate, or who shall certify falsely as to the preparation of a dead body, or who shall represent himself to be the bona fide owner of a license or renewal when such license or renewal was not regularly issued to him by the state board of health, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof, shall be fined not exceeding one hundred dollars, or be imprisoned in the county jail for a period not exceeding thirty days, or both at the discretion of the court. It shall be the duty of the secretary of the state board of health to see that the provisions of this act are properly administered and enforced throughout the state, and all peace officers and county attorneys shall aid him in their several capacities in the discharge of these duties. [32 G. A., ch. 140, § 10.]

SEC. 2575-a46. Acts in conflict repealed. All acts or parts of acts in conflict with this act are hereby repealed. [32 G. A., ch. 140, § 11.]

CHAPTER 16-F.

OF NURSERY STOCK INFESTED WITH THE SAN JOSE SCALE.

SECTION 2575-a47. State entomologist—ex officio—duties—assistants—fees. The entomologist of the state experiment station is hereby constituted the state entomologist and charged with the execution of this act. He may appoint such qualified assistants as may be necessary, fix a reasonable compensation for their labor, and pay the same; and their acts shall have the same validity as his own. He shall, by himself or his assistants, between the first day of June and the fifteenth day of September, in each year, when requested by the owner or agent or where he has reasonable grounds to believe any dangerously injurious insect or plant disease exists, carefully examine any nursery, fruit farm, or other place where trees or plants are grown for sale, and if found apparently free from any dangerously injurious insect or plant disease, he shall issue his certificate stating the facts, and shall collect therefor a fee of not less than five dollars, nor more than fifteen dollars, according to the amount of stock inspected. It shall be unlawful to sell, or offer for transportation, any nursery stock unless accompanied by a copy of this certificate. [31 G. A., ch. 112, §§ 1, 2; 27 G. A., ch. 53, § 1.]

SEC. 2575-a48. Quarantine—treatment—collection of cost. The state entomologist shall have authority, when requested by the owner or agent, or when he has reasonable grounds to believe any dangerously injurious insect or plant disease exists, to enter upon any grounds, public or private, for the purpose of inspection, and, if he finds any nursery, orchard, garden, or other place infested by the scale, he may, by himself or his assistants, enter upon such premises and establish quarantine regulations. If in his judgment any dangerously injurious insect or plant disease may be eradicated by treatment, he may, in writing, order such treatment, and prescribe its kind and character. In case any trees, shrubs, or plants are found so infested that it would be impracticable to treat them, he may order them burned. A failure for ten days after the delivery of such order to the owner or persons in charge to treat or destroy such infested trees or plants, as ordered, shall authorize the entomologist to perform this work by himself or his assistants, and to ascertain the cost thereof. He shall certify the amount of such cost to the owner or person in charge of the premises, and if the same is not paid to him within sixty days thereafter he shall certify the amount to the county auditor, who shall spread the same upon the tax books, to be collected as other taxes are, and turned over to the entomologist to become a part of the fund for carrying this act into effect. [31 G. A., ch. 112, § 1; 27 G. A., ch. 53, § 2.]

SEC. 2575-a49. Inspection of nursery stock shipped into state. Where nursery stock is shipped into this state, accompanied by a certificate as herein provided, it shall be held prima-facie evidence of the facts therein stated, but the state entomologist, by himself or his assistants, when they have reason to believe any such stock is infested with any dangerously injurious insect or plant disease, shall be authorized to inspect the same and subject it to like treatment as provided in section two of this act. [31 G. A., ch. 112, § 1; 27 G. A., ch. 53, § 3.]

SEC. 2575-a50. Certificate of inspection—penalties. It shall be unlawful for any person, firm or corporation to bring into this state any trees, plants, vines, cuttings, or buds, commonly known as nursery stock, unless accompanied by a certificate of inspection, signed by the state entomologist of the state of Iowa or by another inspector duly approved by him, showing that the stock has been carefully inspected and found apparently free from any dangerously injurious insect or plant disease. Any person violating or neglecting to carry out the provisions of this act, or offering any hindrance to the carrying out of this act, shall be adjudged guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction before a justice of the peace shall be fined not less than ten dollars, nor more than one hundred dollars, for each and every offense, together with all the costs of the prosecution, and shall stand committed until the same are paid. All amounts so recovered shall be paid over to the state entomologist, and added to the fund herein provided for the carrying out [of] the provisions of this act. [31 G. A., ch. 112, § 3; 27 G. A., ch. 53, § 4.]

SEC. 2575-a51. Compensation. The state entomologist shall be allowed and paid for his services while engaged in this work, all his necessary traveling expenses and the sum of five dollars per day. All funds coming into his hands shall be paid over to the state treasurer, with an itemized statement of the source whence received. He shall certify the amount of his expenses and per diem to the auditor of state, who shall thereupon draw his warrant upon the treasurer of state for the amount, which shall be paid out of the funds provided for carrying this act into effect. [27 G. A., ch. 53, § 5.]

SEC. 2575-a52. Annual appropriation. That section twenty-five hundred seventy-five-a fifty-two of the supplement to the code, 1907, be and the same is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"There is hereby appropriated out of any moneys not otherwise appropriated, the sum of two thousand dollars annually, or so much thereof as may be necessary, for carrying out the provisions of this act." [35 G. A., ch. 210, § 1.] [27 G. A., ch. 53, § 6.]

CHAPTER 16-G.

OF THE PREVENTION OF DISEASE AMONG BEES AND INSPECTION THEREOF.

SECTION 2575-a53. Inspector — appointment — term — deputies. The governor is hereby authorized to appoint a competent man as inspector of bees, who shall hold his office for a term of two years, or until his successor is appointed and qualified; and said inspector shall have the power to appoint deputies. [33 G. A., ch. 169, § 1.]

SEC. 2575-a54. Duties—"foul brood"—inspection—destroying of infected colonies. It shall be the duty of such inspector, when notified in writing, by at least three beekeepers in any locality, of the existence, or supposed existence, of the disease known as "foul brood" among the apiaries of such locality, to at once thoroughly examine such apiaries as are reported to be diseased, and all other apiaries in the same locality, and thus ascertain whether such disease exists. If the bees in any apiary are in such place or condition as to prevent a thorough examination by the inspector, he may order the same to be put into proper place or condition for such examination. If such order is not complied with, and the inspector has reason to believe such bees to be diseased, he may cause them to be destroyed. If upon examination the inspector is satisfied of such disease, he shall give the owner or person in charge of such apiary full instructions as to the manner of treating the same. Within reasonable time after such examination the inspector shall, without other notice, make further examination of such apiaries, and if the condition of any of them is such as in his judgment renders it necessary, he may burn, or cause to be burned, all the infected colonies of bees in any apiary, together with all the combs and hives, in order to prevent the further spread of the disease. [33 G. A., ch. 169, § 2.]

SEC. 2575-a55. Annual report. The inspector shall make a yearly report to the governor, stating the number of apiaries visited, the number of those diseased and treated and the number of colonies of bees destroyed. Such report shall also show the expenses incurred by the inspector while in the discharge of his duties under the provisions of this act. [33 G. A., ch. 169, § 3.]

SEC. 2575-a56. Illegal sale or removal—penalty. Anyone who knowingly sells, barters or gives away, moves or allows to be moved, a diseased colony or colonies of bees, be they queen or workers, or infected appliances, or who exposes any infected honey to the bees without the consent of the inspector, shall be deemed guilty of [a] misdemeanor and be liable on conviction before any justice of the county, to a fine of not less than twenty-five nor more than one hundred dollars or to imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding thirty days, or both fine and imprisonment. [33 G. A., ch. 169, § 4.]

SEC. 2575-a57. Sale after treatment without consent of inspector—penalty. Any person whose bees have been destroyed or treated for foul brood who sells or offers for sale any bees, hives or appurtenances, after such destruction or treatment, without being authorized by the inspector to do so, or exposes[1] in his apiary or elsewhere any infected honey, or other infected thing, or conceals[2] the fact that said disease exists, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and on conviction thereof shall be liable to a fine of not less than twenty-five dollars nor more than fifty dollars or imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding thirty days. [33 G. A., ch. 169, § 5.]

SEC. 2575-a58. Violation—penalty. Any owner or possessor of bees who disobeys the directions of the inspector, or offers resistance, or obstructs said inspector in the performance of his duties shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction thereof before any justice of the peace of the county, shall be fined not exceeding the sum of fifty dollars or by imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding thirty days. [33 G. A., ch. 169, § 6.]

SEC. 2575-a59. Compensation—expenses. Such inspector shall receive as compensation the sum of five dollars per day for each day actually and necessarily employed in the discharge of the duties as herein provided, together with his expenses actually incurred while so employed, provided that the amount to be paid on account of such expenses shall in no event exceed the sum of fifteen hundred dollars for any one year, including salary and expenses of deputies. [35 G. A., ch. 211, § 1; 33 G. A., ch. 169, § 7.]

SEC. 2575-a60. Importation of diseased bees. It shall be unlawful for any person, firm or corporation to bring into, or cause to be brought into the state of Iowa, any apiary or honey bees infected with foul brood or other infectious disease, or bee-destroying insects. [35 G. A., ch. 209, § 1.]

SEC. 2575-a61. Common carrier shall require certificate of health. No common carrier shall accept colonies of bees for delivery at Iowa points unless the said bees be accompanied by a certificate of health signed by some duly authorized state or government inspector. [35 G. A., ch. 209, § 2.]

SEC. 2575-a62. Violation—penalty. Any person convicted of a violation of this act shall be fined not less than twenty-five dollars nor more than one hundred dollars. [35 G. A., ch. 209, § 3.]

OF THE PRACTICE OF MEDICINE.

SECTION 2576. Board of medical examiners—examinations—certificates. The state board of medical examiners shall consist of the physicians of the state board of health, and the secretary of the board of health shall be secretary thereof. It shall hold regular meetings in January and July and special ones as may be necessary, due notice thereof being given, at which it shall discharge the duties contemplated by this chapter. All examinations shall be in writing, each candidate for examination in any school of medicine being given the same set of questions, covering anatomy, physiology, general chemistry, pathology, surgery and obstetrics. In materia medica, therapeutics and the principles and practice of medicine, a set of questions shall be used corresponding to the school of medicine which the applicant desires to practice. The examination papers, when concluded, shall be marked upon a scale of one hundred, each candidate for examination first to pay to the secretary of the board a fee of ten dollars therefor. The average required to pass shall be fixed by the board prior to the examination. Each applicant shall, upon obtaining an order for examination, receive from the secretary a confidential number which he shall place upon his work when completed, so that the board, in passing thereon, shall not know by whom it was prepared. All matters connected therewith shall be filed with the secretary and preserved for five years as a part of the records of the board, during which time they shall be open to public inspection. If the examination is satisfactory to three members of the board, it shall issue its certificate, under its seal, signed by its president, secretary, and not less than three other members, who may, in the absence of the others, act as an examining board, and the different schools of medicine represented in the board of health shall be represented in said number. The certificate, while in force, shall confer upon the holder the right to practice medicine, surgery and obstetrics, and be conclusive evidence thereof. In all examinations made or proceedings had pursuant to the provisions of this chapter, any member of the board may administer oaths and take testimony in any manner authorized by law. Anyone failing in his examination shall be entitled to a second one, within three months thereafter, without further fee. If any person shall by notice in writing apply to the secretary of the board for an examination or reëxamination, and it fails or neglects for three months thereafter to give him the same, he may, notwithstanding any provision of this chapter, practice medicine until the next regular meeting of the board without the required certificate. [35 G. A., ch. 213, § 1.] [31 G. A., ch. 114; 28 G. A., ch. 89, § 1; 22 G. A., ch. 66; 21 G. A., ch. 104, §§ 1–3.]

When the question of license arises collaterally in a civil action between the physician and one who employs him, due qualification under the statute will be presumed and the burden will be upon him who denies such license. Lacy v. Kossuth County, 106–16, 75 N. W. 689.

All who hold themselves out to heal the sick, regardless of the particular school according to which they practice, are to be examined in anatomy, physiology, general chemistry, pathology, surgery and obstetrics. State v. Heath, 125–585, 101 N. W. 429.

Magnetic healers, so called, come within the provision of the statute requiring a physician to procure a license. Ibid.

It is contemplated by this section that a hearing be given as the result of which a certificate may be granted or revoked, and that the person concerned shall be given an opportunity to be heard. Smith v. State Board of Med. Exam., 140–66, 117 N. W. 1116.

The general assembly having declared the subjects in which those who undertake to practice the healing art shall be proficient, the courts will not interfere to excuse from the requirements of the statute. State v. Adkins, 145–671, 124 N. W. 627.

The title of the chapter of the code of which this section is a part is sufficient to cover the subject matter. State v. Miller, 146–521, 124 N. W. 167.

These statutory provisions are not unconstitutional as discriminative or as granting to one class of citizens rights which all may not enjoy. Ibid.

The courts will not presume for the purpose of holding the statute unconstitutional that the state board has exceeded its authority or done an unlawful act. Ibid.

SEC. 2577. Recording certificate.

A practitioner who has procured the proper certificate and has had it recorded in the county of his residence is entitled to practice in any county in the state unless he is an itinerant physician as described in code § 2581, and he is required to have it recorded in another county only in event of a change of residence. State v. Zechman, 157–158, 138 N. W. 387.

Where the indictment charges practice without a certificate it is immaterial that it alleges a failure to record such certificate in a particular county without alleging that such county is the county of defendant's residence. Ibid.

SEC. 2578. Refusal of certificate or revocation for cause—"gross unprofessional conduct" defined. That section twenty-five hundred seventy-eight of the code be and the same is hereby repealed and the following is enacted in lieu thereof:

The board of medical examiners may refuse to grant a certificate to any person otherwise qualified and shall revoke any certificate issued by it to any physician, who is not of good moral character, or who solicits professional patronage by agents, or who profits by the acts of those representing themselves to be his agents, or who is guilty of fraudulent representations as to his skill and ability, or who is guilty of gross unprofessional conduct, or for incompetency, or for habitual intoxication or drug habit; or if the certificate has been granted upon false and fraudulent statements as to graduation or length of practice, the board of medical examiners shall, to safeguard the public health, revoke the certificate in the manner hereinafter set forth.

The words "gross unprofessional conduct" as used in this section are hereby declared to mean:

1. The procuring or aiding or abetting in procuring a criminal abortion.

2. The employment of what are popularly known as "cappers" or "steerers" in procuring practice.

3. The obtaining of a fee on the assurance that a manifestly incurable disease can be permanently cured.

4. A wilful betrayal of a[1] professional secret to the detriment of the patient.

5. Any advertisement of medical business in which untruthful and improbable statements are made.

6. Any advertisement of any kind, of any medicine or means, whereby the monthly periods of women can be regulated or the menses be re-established if suppressed.

7. Conviction of any offense involving moral turpitude.

8. Wilful neglect of a patient in a critical condition.

9. Accepting any fee for service as a witness in a case at law or equity other than such as is allowed by the court, or that the court is made cognizant of.

10. The splitting or division, or agreeing to split or divide, any fee or charge paid or to be paid on account of any operation performed or to be performed, upon any patient, with any other person for any service performed or agreed to be performed, or in any consideration of such other person accompanying, bringing or referring to him a patient for any treatment or operation, or on account of such other person assisting him in reference to such treatment or operation without the knowledge and consent of the patient or the person having the patient in charge or the patient's administrator or executor in the event of the patient's death.

11. Knowingly misstating the cause of a death in a death certificate, except where an exact statement would render the physician liable to suit for libel, or subject the decedent or his family to public odium. [35 G. A., ch. 214, § 1.] [32 G. A., ch. 141, § 1; 21 G. A., ch. 104, § 7.]

["the" in enrolled bill. EDITOR.]

The state board of examiners may revoke a certificate on account of "incompetency." The person whose right is involved should in such case be given a fair opportunity to meet the charges and evidence against him, but it is not necessary that the evidence be strictly confined to that which would be admissible in a court. Affidavits may be considered. Traer v. State Board of Medical Examiners, 106–559, 76 N. W. 833.

The provision for revocation of certificate for want of good moral character or incompetency is not unconstitutional. The statute contemplates a hearing before action of revocation is taken. Smith v. State Board of Med. Exam., 140–66, 117 N. W. 1116.

SEC. 2578-a. Notice—charges—procedure. Before the revocation of any certificate issued by the state medical examiners the licentiate shall have been afforded an opportunity for a hearing before the board. At least twenty days prior to the date set for such a hearing, the secretary of the state board of medical examiners shall cause written notice to be personally served upon the defendant in the manner prescribed for the serving of original notice in civil actions. Said notice shall contain a statement of the charges and the date and place set for the hearing before the board. If the party thus notified fails to appear, either in person or by counsel at the time and place designated in said notice, the board shall, after receiving satisfactory evidence of the truth of the charges and the proper issuance of notice, revoke said certificate. If the licentiate appear either in person or by counsel, the board shall proceed with the hearing as herein provided. The board may receive and consider affidavits and oral statements and shall cause stenographic reports of the oral testimony to be taken, which, together with all other papers pertaining thereto, shall be preserved for two years. If three members of the board, present at the hearing, are satisfied that the licentiate is guilty of any of the offenses charged, the license shall be revoked. After the revocation of a certificate the holder thereof shall not practice medicine, surgery or obstetrics in this state, for such times as the state board of medical examiners may determine. [35 G. A., ch. 213, § 2; 33 G. A., ch. 158, § 1.] [32 G. A., ch. 141, § 2.]

SEC. 2578-b. Appeal—certification of record. Any person aggrieved by any ruling or order entered under the provisions of this act shall have the right of an appeal to the district court in the county in which the alleged offense was committed, upon giving notice to the board of medical examiners of such appeal within twenty days after the entry of such ruling, order, or judgment. Upon giving said notice the original complaint, affidavits, depositions and a duly certified transcript of evidence taken upon the hearing before the state board of medical examiners shall be by the secretary of said board certified to the clerk of the district court of the county to which said appeal is taken. Said appeal shall be triable at the next term of court in the county to which said appeal is taken convening not less than ten days after notice of appeal is served. The appeal shall be heard and determined upon the affidavits, depositions and evidence so transcribed and such further evidence as either party may offer. The provisions hereof shall apply to all cases not actually tried upon appeal at the time this act goes into effect. [35 G. A., ch. 215, § 1.] [32 G. A., ch. 141, § 3.]

SEC. 2579. Who deemed practitioner.

These statutory directions as to qualifications for the practice of medicine are not unconstitutional on the ground that they grant to some citizens or classes of citizens privileges or immunities which on the same terms are not equally granted to all. The statute merely establishes a rule of evidence by which qualifications to practice medicine shall be ascertained. State v. Bair, 112–466, 84 N. W. 532.

Those who are to be deemed as practicing medicine under the statutory provisions requiring a license to practice are of three classes: (1) those professing to be physicians, surgeons or obstetricians and assume the duties incident thereto; (2) those who make a practice of prescribing or do prescribe and furnish medicine; and (3) those who publicly profess to heal. State v. Heath, 125–585, 101 N. W. 429.

It is proper to charge in the indictment as contemporaneous acts which considered together constitute the practice of medicine without a license, that the defendant professed to cure and heal and advertised so to do in newspapers, that he maintained an office with the sign of a doctor for this purpose, and that he actually undertook to cure and heal diseases. State v. Wilhite, 132–226, 109 N. W. 730.

The statute prohibiting the practice of medicine without a license is not unconstitutional. Ibid.

The design of the law is not to render any mode of treatment whatsoever unlawful, but that everyone before he shall undertake to prevent, cure or alleviate disease and pain as an occupation, shall have some knowledge of the nature of disease, its origin, its anatomical and physiological features, its causative relations, and of the preparation and action of drugs. Ibid.

In an indictment for practicing without a license, it is not necessary to allege specifically the time, place or circumstances of such unlawful practicing, nor is it necessary to allege that the prescribing of medicine or the practicing charged was for or upon human beings as distinguished from domestic animals. State v. Kendig, 133–164, 110 N. W. 463.

It is not necessary in the indictment to negative the exceptions contained in the statute. Ibid.

The exemption in the statute as to physicians who had practiced for five years referred to such citizens as were then and for five years prior to the enactment of the law had been practicing within this state. State v. Miller, 138–28, 115 N. W. 493.

One who has been illegally practicing medicine without a certificate, after the requirement of a certificate took effect, is not entitled to the exemption on account of the practice within the state for five consecutive years. State v. Taylor, 140–138, 118 N. W. 301.

The state may properly determine what acts constitute practice as a physician and may impose conditions on the exercise of that privilege. The provisions of this section apply to those who profess to cure and heal without medicine or the practice of surgery. It therefore applies to chiropractors. One professing and undertaking to cure and heal by that method of practice must possess the knowledge required of physicians. State v. Corwin, 151–420, 131 N. W. 659.

The acts prohibited disjunctively in the statute may be charged conjunctively as constituting a violation. Ibid.

One who professes to be a chiropractic and maintains an office for the practice of such system, holding himself out to treat and treating patients for disease, with the purpose of curing and healing, must have such certificate as is required in case of physicians. State v. Zechman, 157–158, 138 N. W. 387.

The statute applies equally to those who profess to be physicians and assume the duties of such profession and to those who make a practice of prescribing for the sick. Ibid.

SEC. 2580. Penalties.

The practice of medicine is not a right but a privilege upon which the state may impose such license tax as it sees fit. State v. Edmunds, 127–333, 101 N. W. 431.

One who publicly announces his skill in the art of healing under circumstances indicating an intention to treat the sick, is guilty of a violation of the statute if without a certificate and not within the statutory exceptions, although he has not actually undertaken to render his services in any particular case. State v. Heath, 125–585, 101 N. W. 429.

The practice of medicine, or the prescribing and furnishing of medicine for the sick, is not necessarily included in the charge of publicly professing to be a physician and assuming the duties of such profession. The phrases used in the statute are not merely different expressions of the same idea. State v. Bresee, 137–673, 114 N. W. 45.

It is not necessary for the court to instruct the jury as to the meaning of the words "making a practice of" as used in the statute. Ibid.

The acts specified in this section may be charged conjunctively as constituting a single offense. State v. Yates, 145–332, 124 N. W. 174.

The filing for record of the certificate is in fact the recording, so far as the holder of the certificate is concerned, but an allegation as to recording is surplusage. Ibid.

SEC. 2581. Itinerant physician. Every physician practicing medicine, surgery or obstetrics, or professing or attempting to treat, cure or heal diseases, ailments or injuries by any medicine, appliance or method, who, by himself, agent or employe goes from place to place, or from house to house, or by circulars, letters or advertisements solicits persons to meet him for professional treatment at places other than his office at the place of his residence, shall be considered an itinerant physician; and any such itinerant physician shall, in addition to the certificate elsewhere provided for in this chapter, procure from the state board of medical examiners a license as an itinerant, for which he shall pay to the treasurer of state, for the use of the state of Iowa, the sum of two hundred fifty dollars per annum. Upon payment of this sum, the secretary shall issue to the applicant therefor a license to practice within the state, as an itinerant physician, for one year from the date thereof. The board may, for satisfactory reasons, refuse to issue such license, or may cancel such license upon satisfactory evidence of incompetency or gross immorality. Any person practicing medicine as an itinerant physician, as herein defined, without having procured such license shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and, upon conviction thereof, shall be fined not less than three hundred dollars, nor more than five hundred dollars, and costs, and shall be committted to the county jail until such fine is paid: provided, however, that nothing herein shall be construed to prevent any physician otherwise legally qualified from attending patients in any part of the state to whom he may be called in the regular course of business, or in consultation with other physicians. [29 G. A., ch. 109, § 1.]

An indictment for practicing as a non-licensed itinerant physician by professing to cure by dieting patients and prescribing exercises and furnishing eye glasses is sufficient. State v. Edmunds, 127–333, 101 N. W. 431.

The words "medicine, appliance or method" used in this section are not to be limited to a medicine or drug or something administered as such. Ibid.

An itinerant physician licensed by the state board of medical examiners to practice within the state may be required by city ordinance to pay an additional license fee for practicing within the city. Fairfield v. Shallenberger, 135–615, 113 N. W. 459.

It is only in the case of an itinerant physician that it is necessary to record a certificate in a county other than that of the residence of the physician. State v. Zechman, 157–158, 138 N. W. 387.

SEC. 2582. Examination and diploma required—registration—fee—temporary permits. From and after January first, eighteen hundred ninety-nine, all persons beginning the practice of medicine in the state of Iowa must submit to an examination as set forth in this chapter, and, in addition thereto, shall present diplomas from medical colleges recognized as in good standing by the state board of medical examiners, and all persons receiving their diplomas subsequent to January first, eighteen hundred ninety-nine, shall present evidence of having attended four full courses of study of not less than twenty-six weeks each, no two of which shall have been given in any one year. The state board of medical examiners shall examine the graduates of the medical departments of the state university of Iowa and of such other medical colleges in this state as are recognized by said board of medical examiners as being in good and legal standing at the annual medical commencement and at the location of said state university and other medical colleges respectively:

(a) A certificate of registration showing that an examination has been made by the proper board of any state, on which an average grade of not less than seventy-five per cent. was awarded, the holder thereof having been at the time of said examination the legal possessor of a diploma from a medical college in good standing in this state, may be accepted in lieu of an examination, as evidence of qualification. But in case the scope of said examination was less than that prescribed by this state, the applicant may be required to submit to a supplemental examination in such subjects as have not been covered.

(b) A certificate of registration or license, issued by the proper board of any state, may be accepted as evidence of qualification for registration in this state, provided the holder thereof was, at the time of such registration, the legal possessor of a diploma issued by a medical college in good standing in this state, and that the date thereof was prior to the legal requirement of the examination test in this state. The fee for such examination shall be fifty dollars.

(c) Applicants for registration under the provision of clauses (a) and (b) of this section shall make proper application upon forms furnished by the board and file same together with the registration fee, with the secretary of said board. If the credentials of the applicant are complete and regular, the secretary shall issue a temporary permit authorizing the said applicant to practice in Iowa during the period intervening between the date of filing his application and the date upon which the board authorizes or refuses the issuance of a permanent certificate, but not more than one such permit shall be issued to the same applicant. The temporary permits herein provided for shall apply only to applicants for a certificate under reciprocal agreements with other states. [33 G. A., ch. 159, § 1.] [30 G. A., ch. 102, § 1; 28 G. A., ch. 89, § 2.]

The power given to the board of examiners by this section as amended is not open to the objection that it authorizes a discrimination against any class of citizens. State v. Miller, 146–521, 124 N. W. 167.

SEC. 2582-a. Restrictions. If, by the laws of any state or the rulings or decisions of the appropriate officers or boards thereof, any burden, obligation, requirement, disqualification or disability is put upon physicians registered in this state or holding diplomas from medical colleges in this state, which are in good standing therein, affecting the right of said physicians to be registered or admitted to practice in said state, then the same or like burdens, obligations, requirements, disqualification or disability shall be put upon the registration in this state of physicians registered in said state, or holding diplomas from medical colleges situated therein. [30 G. A., ch. 102, § 2.]

SEC. 2583. Compensation—expenses of board. Each member of the board of examiners shall receive, out of the fund created by the payment of fees by applicants for examination or certificates, the sum of eight dollars for each day, and necessary traveling expenses, for the time he is actually engaged in the discharge of his duties as a member of the board, and the secretary shall receive a sum not to exceed twenty-five dollars per month and his necessary expenses incurred for services which cannot be performed at the capitol. All printing, postage, and other contingent office expenses necessarily incurred under the provisions of this chapter shall be paid from said fund. Any balance of said funds remaining shall be turned over to the state treasurer for the use of the school fund. [28 G. A., ch. 90, § 1; 27 G. A., ch. 68, § 1; 22 G. A., ch. 66; 21 G. A., ch. 104, § 6.]

OF THE PRACTICE OF OSTEOPATHY.

SECTION 2583-a. Diploma—examination—certificate. Any person holding a diploma from a legally incorporated school of osteopathy, recognized as of good standing by the Iowa osteopathic association, and wherein the course of study comprises a term of at least twenty months, or four terms of five months each, in actual attendance at such school, and which shall include instruction in the following branches, to wit: Anatomy, including dissection of a full lateral half of the cadaver, physiology, chemistry, histology, pathology, gynecology, obstetrics and theory of osteopathy and two full terms of practice of osteopathy, shall, upon the presentation of such diploma to the state board of medical examiners and satisfying such board that he is the legal holder thereof, be granted by such board an examination on the branches herein named (except upon the theory and practice of osteopathy until such time as there may be appointed an osteopathic physician on the state board of health and medical examiners). The fee for said examination, which shall accompany the application, shall be ten dollars and the examination shall be conducted in the same manner, and at the same place and on the same date that physicians are examined as prescribed by section twenty-five hundred seventy-six of the code. The same general average shall be required as in case of physicians; provided that osteopaths who are graduates of legally incorporated schools of osteopathy as above recognized, and who are at the time of the passage of this act engaged in the practice of osteopathy in Iowa, shall be entitled to receive a certificate upon the payment of the prescribed fee without such examination. Upon passing a satisfactory examination as above prescribed the said board of medical examiners shall issue a certificate to the applicant therefor, signed by the president and secretary of said board, which certificate shall authorize the holder thereof to practice osteopathy in the state of Iowa. This certificate when issued shall be registered with the recorder of the county in which the holder thereof resides and for which he shall pay a fee of fifty cents, and the holder thereof shall not be subject to the provisions of section twenty-five hundred eighty of the code. [29 G. A., ch. 158, § 1.]

SEC. 2583-b. Drugs—major or operative surgery. The certificate provided for in the foregoing section shall not authorize the holder thereof to prescribe or use drugs in his practice, nor to perform major or operative surgery. [29 G. A., ch. 158, § 2.]

SEC. 2583-c. Revocation of certificate. The board of medical examiners may refuse to grant a certificate to any person otherwise qualified, who is not of good moral character. For like cause, or for incompetency, or habitual intoxication, or upon satisfactory evidence by affidavit or otherwise that a certificate has been granted upon false and fraudulent statements as to graduation or length of practice, the said board may revoke a certificate by an affirmative vote of at least three members of the board, which number shall include one or more members of the different schools of medicine, represented in said board. After the revocation of a certificate, the holder thereof shall not practice osteopathy, surgery, or obstetrics in the state. [35 G. A., ch. 216, § 1.] [29 G. A., ch. 158, § 3.]

SEC. 2583-d. Fraudulent diploma — false representation — penalties. Any person who shall present to the board of medical examiners a fraudulent or false diploma, or one of which he is not the rightful owner, for the purpose of procuring a certificate as herein provided, or shall file, or attempt to file, with the recorder of any county in the state the certificate of another as his own, or who shall falsely personate anyone to whom a certificate has been granted by such board, or shall practice osteopathy, surgery or obstetrics in the state without first having obtained and filed for record the certificate herein required, and who is not embraced in any of the exceptions contained in this chapter, or who continues to practice osteopathy, surgery or obstetrics after the revocation of his certificate, is guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof, shall be fined not less than three hundred dollars, nor more than five hundred dollars and costs of prosecution, and shall stand committed to the county jail until such fine is paid; and whoever shall file or attempt to file with the recorder of any county in the state the certificate of another with the name of the party to whom it was granted or issued erased, and the claimant's name inserted, or shall file or attempt to file with the board of medical examiners any false or forged affidavit of identification, shall be guilty of forgery. [29 G. A., ch. 158, § 4.]

SEC. 2583-e. Itinerant osteopath—license. Every person practicing osteopathy, or obstetrics, or professing to treat, cure or heal diseases, ailments or injury by osteopathic application or method, who goes from place to place, or from house to house, or by circulars, letters or advertisements solicits persons to meet him for professional treatment at places other than his office at the place of his residence, shall be considered an itinerant osteopath; and such itinerant osteopath shall, in addition to the certificate elsewhere provided for in this chapter, procure from the state board of medical examiners a license as an itinerant, for which he shall pay to the treasurer of state, for use of the state of Iowa, the sum of two hundred fifty dollars per annum. Upon payment of this sum, the secretary shall issue to the applicant therefor a license to practice within the state, as an itinerant osteopath, for one year from the date thereof. The board may, for satisfactory reasons, refuse to issue such license, or may cancel such license upon satisfactory evidence of incompetency or gross immorality. [29 G. A., ch. 158, § 5.]

SEC. 2583-f. Acts in conflict repealed. All acts and parts of acts in conflict herewith are hereby repealed. [29 G. A., ch. 158, § 6; 27 G. A., ch. 89, §§ 1–5.]

CHAPTER 17-B.

OF THE PRACTICE OF OPTOMETRY.

SECTION 2583-g. Defined. The practice of optometry is defined to be the employment of any means other than the use of drugs for the measurement of the powers of vision and the adaptation of lenses for the aid thereof. [33 G. A., ch. 167, § 1.]

SEC. 2583-h. Board of examiners—appointment—terms—vacancies. The board of optometry examiners shall be appointed by the governor and consist of three optometrists who have been engaged in the practice of optometry not less than five years in the state of Iowa, and are recommended by the Iowa state association of optometrists, one physician member of the state board of health, and the secretary of the state board of health. They shall be appointed on or before July first, nineteen hundred and nine, and each year thereafter and their terms of office shall be one year from July first of each year. Vacancies shall be filled by the governor, but the number of optometrists shall neither be increased nor diminished by any appointment to fill vacancy. [33 G. A., ch. 167, § 2.]

SEC. 2583-i. Organization—meetings—general powers. The board shall organize by selecting one of its members as president and the secretary of the state board of health shall serve as secretary for the board. They shall meet at least once each year the second Tuesday in July and at such other times as they may deem necessary, in the office of the state board of health. A majority of the board shall constitute a quorum and its meetings shall at all reasonable times be open to the public. This board shall have power to make all needed regulations for its government and proper discharge of its duties in accordance with this act. [33 G. A., ch. 167, § 3.]

SEC. 2583-j. Who not eligible. No members of the faculty of any optical school or college, or members of any wholesale or jobbing optical house shall be eligible to an appointment upon the state board of examiners in optometry. [33 G. A., ch. 167, § 4.]

SEC. 2583-k. Examination—requirements of—certificate—record. The board shall, at any regular meeting, and may at any special meeting, examine applicants for a license to practice optometry. Such examination shall be confined to such knowledge and requirements as are essential to the practice of optometry. Said board shall issue a license or certificate duly authorizing such as are found to be qualified to practice optometry. Such certificate shall be conclusive as to the rights of the lawful holders of same to practice optometry in the state of Iowa. The name, age, nativity, location, number of years of practice of the person to whom a license is given, the number of the license and the date of registration thereof shall be entered in a book kept in the office of the secretary of the board, which shall be open to the inspection of the public, and the number of the book and page containing such entries shall be noted on the face of the license. [33 G. A., ch. 167, § 5.]

SEC. 2583-l. Qualifications of applicant—standards of education—license to persons from other states—fee. Section six of chapter one hundred sixty-seven of the acts of the thirty-third general assembly is hereby repealed, and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"On and after October first, nineteen hundred and nine, every person desiring to begin or continue the practice of optometry in this state must furnish satisfactory evidence that he is twenty-one years of age and of good moral character; that he has a preliminary education equivalent to at least two years' study in an accredited high school; that he has studied three years in the office of a registered optometrist, or is a graduate from a standard school of optometry, before he shall be eligible to examination by the board. The standard school of optometry shall include a course of instruction of not less than two years' duration, and the terms of school shall not be less than three months' actual attendance each year. The requirements of a standard school of optometry shall be that each student shall devote seventy-eight hours to each subject named in this section during each three months' course. He shall not be entitled to be registered, or to receive a license from the board unless he shall show proficiency in the following subjects: physiology of the eye, optical physics, anatomy of the eye, ophthalmology, and practical optometry. Any person successfully passing such examination, and meeting all of the requirements in this section shall be registered by the board, and receive a license. The board of examiners may issue a certificate to any person taking up a permanent residence in the state of Iowa, and desiring to practice optometry, providing satisfactory evidence is furnished of his qualifications, including credentials from the state board of examiners in optometry of the state in which he formerly resided, and upon payment of a fee of fifteen dollars." [34 G. A., ch. 127, § 1; 33 G. A., ch. 167, § 6.]

SEC. 2583-m. Certificate of exemption—revocation of license—notice—hearing. Every person entitled to a certificate of exemption from examination as herein provided must make application therefor and present the evidence to entitle him thereto on or before six months after the passage of this act or he shall be deemed to have waived his right to such certificate. Any license issued by said board of examiners may be revoked by said board for violation of the law, incompetency, immorality or inebriety; provided that before any certificate or license shall be revoked, the holder thereof shall have notice in writing of the charge or charges against him, and at a day specified in said notice, and at least five days after the service thereof, be given a public hearing and have ample opportunity to produce testimony in his behalf and confront the witnesses against him. Any person whose certificate has been revoked may, after the expiration of ninety days, apply to have same regranted upon a satisfactory showing that the disqualification has ceased. [33 G. A., ch. 167, § 7.]

SEC. 2583-n. Fees—privilege of second examination. The fee for said examination shall be fifteen dollars, for which a license shall be issued, to practice optometry in this state, fee payable in advance to secretary of the board. Should the applicant fail in his first examination he shall have the right to appear at the next meeting of the board for another examination free of charge. For a certificate of exemption a fee of ten dollars shall be paid to the secretary of the board of examiners, for which a license shall be issued to practice optometry in this state; said fees constitute a fund for expenses made necessary by this act. From this fund the board shall cause to be paid all necessary expenses incurred in the administration of this act. [33 G. A., ch. 167, § 8.]

SEC. 2583-o. Filing of license—recording fee. Every person to whom a license is issued under this act shall file the same for record with the clerk of the district court in the county or counties in which he desires to practice optometry and the clerk of the district court shall be entitled to a fee of fifty cents for recording such license. [33 G. A., ch. 167, § 9.]

SEC. 2583-p. Compensation of board of examiners—expenses. Each member of the board of examiners (except the secretary) shall be paid five dollars for each day actually engaged in the duties of his office with actual expenses incurred by him in the discharge of such duties, from the fund created by the payment of fees by applicants for examination. [The] secretary shall receive his necessary expenses incurred for services which cannot be performed at the capitol. All printing, postage and other contingent expenses necessarily incurred under the provisions of this act shall be paid from said fund. All expenses incurred under the provisions of this act shall be itemized thereupon and audited and a warrant drawn therefor on the optometrists' fund in the same manner as other expenses of the state board of health. [33 G. A., ch. 167, § 10.]

SEC. 2583-q. Not applicable to dealers—unlawful use of prefix "doctor." This act shall not be construed to apply to merchants or dealers who sell glasses as merchandise and who do not profess to be optometrists or practice optometry as herein defined. Any person practicing optometry shall be prohibited from using the prefix "doctor" to his name, unless he is a duly registered and licensed physician and surgeon and his rights to such being allowed by the state board of medical examiners, nor shall he advertise himself in such a manner as to lead the public to believe him to be different than an optometrist as defined in this section. [33 G. A., ch. 167, § 11.]

SEC. 2583-r. Violation—penalty. Any person who shall practice optometry in this state in violation of the provisions of this act, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction thereof shall be punished by a fine not exceeding one hundred dollars or imprisonment in the county jail not more than thirty days. [33 G. A., ch. 167, § 12.]

SEC. 2583-s. Disposition unappropriated funds. Section thirteen of chapter one hundred sixty-seven of the acts of the thirty-third general assembly is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"All unappropriated funds arising under this act, shall be accounted for and turned into the state treasury on June thirtieth of each year, except the sum of five hundred dollars, which shall be placed to the credit of the optometry fund, by the state treasurer, to defray current expenses of the board of optometry examiners." [34 G. A., ch. 127, § 2; 33 G. A., ch. 167, § 13.]

OF PRACTICE OF PHARMACY.

SECTION 2585. Secretary and treasurer. The commissioners of pharmacy shall annually, on the first Monday in May, elect a suitable person, who shall not be a member of said board, and who shall be known as secretary and treasurer; said secretary and treasurer shall enter upon the discharge of his duties as soon as he shall have filed with the secretary of state a good and sufficient bond in the penal sum of three thousand dollars signed by at least two sureties, who shall justify in the aggregate to double the amount of said bond, and which shall bear upon its face the approval of the governor. The salary of said secretary and treasurer shall not exceed eighteen hundred dollars per annum. The secretary shall have charge of the office of the commission and of all books, documents, records and other appurtenances thereof. He shall keep a full and complete record of the proceedings of the commission and of all matters required by law or by the rules of the commission to be made of record and shall conduct and carry on all correspondence pertaining to the affairs of the commission and when unable to adjust any matter by correspondence, he shall refer the same to a member of the commission for investigation and determination. [34 G. A., ch. 123, § 1.] [32 G. A., ch. 2, § 8; 26 G. A., ch. 59, § 1.]

Under a prior statute making no provision for a treasurer of the commission under the statutes as to embezzlement, held that a person appointed treasurer by the commission was not a public officer. State v. Spaulding, 102-639, 72 N. W. 288.

SEC. 2587. Records—compensation. The books, accounts, vouchers and funds belonging to or kept by said board of pharmacy shall at all times be open or subject to the inspection of the governor, or any committee appointed by him. Each commissioner of pharmacy shall receive as full compensation for his services the sum of five dollars for each day actually employed in attending meetings of the commission, in conducting examinations and while away from his place of residence in the discharge of his official duties, together with his actual traveling expenses in performing said duties, all of which shall be paid from the fees of the office, and each commissioner shall file with the auditor of state, at the end of each quarter of his official year, an itemized statement under oath of his actual time in days employed in the discharge of his duty, and traveling expenses incurred in the performance of his duty, for such quarter. [34 G. A., ch. 123, § 3.] [26 G. A., ch. 59, § 3.]

SEC. 2588. Registered pharmacists—labeling of poisons. No person not a registered pharmacist shall conduct the business of selling at retail, compounding or dispensing drugs, medicines or poisons, or chemicals for medicinal use, or compounding or dispensing physicians' prescriptions as a pharmacist, nor allow anyone who is not a registered pharmacist to so sell, compound or dispense such drugs, medicines, poisons or chemicals, or physicians' prescriptions, except such as are assistants to and under the supervision of one who is a registered pharmacist, and physicians who dispense their own prescriptions only; but no one shall be prohibited by anything contained in this chapter from keeping and selling proprietary medicines and such other domestic remedies as do not contain intoxicating liquors or poisons, nor from selling denatured alcohol and poison fly paper, concentrated lye or potash having written or printed on the package or parcel its true name and the word "poison," sales of which need not be registered. Whoever violates either provision of this section, for the former shall pay five dollars for each day of its violation, to be recovered in an action in the name of the state, brought by the county attorney under the direction of the commission, and for the latter shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and punished accordingly. In actions or prosecutions under this chapter it need not be proven that the defendant has not a pharmacist's certificate, but such fact shall be a matter of defense. No one shall be prohibited by the provisions of this chapter, relating to the practice of pharmacy, from selling insecticides or fungicides consisting of hellebore, Paris green, nicotine preparations, arsenical preparations, copper sulphate, formaldehyde and crude carbolic acid in original packages, provided the package or parcel containing same has plainly written or printed thereon its true name and if poisonous it shall be conspicuously marked with the word "poison" and its poisonous contents, correctly and conspicuously stated in conformity with the national insecticide act of June, nineteen hundred ten. Said insecticides and fungicides shall comply with the law of the state as to strength and purity and the sales of such preparations when marked as specified above need not be registered. [34 G. A., ch. 124, § 1; 33 G. A., ch. 160, § 1.] [22 G. A., ch. 71, § 21; 22 G. A., ch. 81; 21 G. A., ch. 83; 19 G. A., ch. 137, § 4; 18 G. A., ch. 75, §§ 1, 2, 12.]

A registered pharmacist having a permit to sell intoxicating liquors is not liable for the payment of the mulct tax although he sells in violation of his permit. In re Assignment of Shonkwiler, 104–67, 73 N. W. 479.

A pharmacist selling liquor so compounded with other substances as to lose its distinctive character as an intoxicant, and to be no longer desirable for use as a stimulating beverage, and in fact a medicine, does not violate the prohibitory law, although he may be a permit holder, as provided in code § 2385. He is not required in such cases to take written requests. State v. Gregory, 110–624, 82 N. W. 335.

In an action against a person conducting a drug store for negligence of a clerk in compounding a prescription, it is no defense that the clerk was a registered pharmacist, although the principal was restricted to registered pharmacists in the employment of clerks. Burgess v. Sims Drug Co., 114–275, 86 N. W. 307.

SEC. 2589. Repeal. The law as it appears in section twenty-five hundred eighty-nine of the supplement to the code, [1902] and section twenty-five hundred ninety of the code, is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof: [31 G. A., ch. 115, § 1; 27 G. A., ch. 70, § 1.]

SEC. 2589-a. Examination. That section twenty-five hundred eighty-nine-a of the supplement to the code, 1907, be repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"To enable persons to engage in and conduct business as registered pharmacists within the meaning of section twenty-five hundred eighty-eight of the code, the commission shall hold not more than five examinations each year, one of which may be held at Iowa City and the others at the state house at Des Moines. Not more than three days previous to the holding of each such examination, the commission shall meet at its office in Des Moines and prepare lists of questions for such examination. When the examination is completed, the commission shall remain in session until all of the papers have been graded and passed upon and the record of the grades turned over to the secretary of the commission. Following any examination held at Iowa City, the commission shall repair to its office in Des Moines and complete the work of the examination as above provided." [34 G. A., ch. 123, § 2.] [31 G. A., ch. 115, § 2; 27 G. A., ch. 70, § 1; 22 G. A., ch. 71, § 20; 21 G. A., ch. 83, § 2; 18 G. A., ch. 75, §§ 5, 8.]

SEC. 2589-b. Conditions—registration—foreign licenses—fee. No person shall be eligible to take this examination until he has passed his twenty-first birthday and has presented to the commission his own affidavit and that of his employer or employers, affirming that he has had not less than four years' practical experience (including the actual number of weeks he has spent in a reputable college of pharmacy as hereinafter defined) as clerk under the supervision of a registered pharmacist in a drug store or pharmacy in which physicians' prescriptions are compounded. Provided, however, that graduates of reputable pharmaceutical schools and colleges whose entrance and graduation requirements are equivalent to those prescribed by the American Conference of Pharmaceutical Faculties, and whose course of study consists of two years of not less than thirty-six weeks each, shall be eligible to take the examination without proof of experience as hereinbefore defined. Applicants who are graduates of a junior course, consisting of not less than thirty-six weeks in pharmaceutical schools and colleges whose course consists of or is equivalent to the requirements above specified, shall be allowed one year's credit on store experience. If such applicant passes the required examination, he shall be granted a certificate of registration. Pharmacists thus registered shall have the sole right to keep and sell all medicines and poisons, except intoxicating liquors. A certificate of registration, or license, as pharmacist or assistant pharmacist, issued by the proper board or commission of any state, or foreign country, may be accepted as evidence of qualification for registration in this state, provided the holder thereof shall present satisfactory evidence of qualifications equal to those required of licentiates in this state, that he was registered or licensed by examination in such other state or foreign country, and that the standard of competency required in such other state or foreign country accords similar recognition to the licentiates of this state. Applicants for license under this section shall, with their application, forward to the secretary of the board of pharmacy a fee of ten dollars. [34 G. A., ch. 125, § 1; 33 G. A., ch. 161, § 1.] [31 G. A., ch. 115, § 3.]

SEC. 2589-c. Assistant's certificate. If the applicant has passed his eighteenth birthday and has had at least two years' practical experience as hereinbefore defined (including actual number of weeks spent in a reputable college of pharmacy as defined herein) and has presented to the commission his own affidavit and that of his employer or employers, affirming that he has had such experience, he shall upon passing a satisfactory examination, be granted an assistant's certificate to be exchanged for full registration when he shall have reached the age of twenty-one years, and upon satisfactory proof that he has had since the taking of the examination, two additional years of practical experience in a drug store as defined herein. [31 G. A., ch. 115, § 4.]

SEC. 2589-d. Examination and registration fees. Each person furnished a certificate under this act shall be charged a fee of five dollars which shall be in full for all services, and in case the examination of said person shall prove defective or unsatisfactory and his name be not registered, he shall be permitted to present himself for reëxamination within any period not exceeding twelve months next thereafter, and no charge shall be made for reëxamination. The said commissioners are authorized to administer oaths pertaining to their said office and take a certificate of acknowledgment of instruments in writing. After registration, an annual fee of one dollar for renewal certificate shall be paid on or before the twenty-second day of March by all pharmacists and assistants who continue in business, and the conduct of such business without such renewal shall be a misdemeanor. [31 G. A., ch. 115, § 5.]

SEC. 2593. Sale of poisons. Section twenty-five hundred ninety-three of the code is hereby repealed, and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"No persons shall sell at retail any poisons enumerated in the following schedule, to wit: Acids, hydrochloric, nitric, and sulphuric, arsenic, chloral hydrate, chloroform, ammoniated mercury, atropine, arsenate of copper, aconitine, benzaldehyde, bromine, cyanide of potassium, cobalt, corrosive-sublimate, dionin, ether sulphuric. hyoscine, morphine, kermes mineral, cantharides, cotton root, croton oil, carbolic acid, digitalis, ergot, hydrocyanic acid, nux vomica, opium and its preparations (excepting those containing less than two grains to the ounce), oils of bitter almonds, savin and pennyroyal, oxalic acid, phosphorus, strychnine and its salts, veratrum, and wood alcohol; without affixing to the bottle, box, or other package containing the poison, a label bearing the name of the article and the word poison distinctly shown, with the name and place of business of the registered pharmacist from whom the article was obtained, nor sell or deliver such poison unless upon due inquiry it be found that the party receiving it is aware of its character and represents it to be used for proper purposes, nor sell or deliver the poisons heretofore enumerated, without entering same in a book kept for that purpose, the date of sale, the name and address of purchaser, the name of the poison, the purpose for which it was represented to be required, and the name of the dispenser, which book shall be open for inspection by the proper authorities and preserved for at least five years, provided that nothing in this section shall apply to the sale of patent medicines, or to drugs used in the filling of prescriptions from physicians, veterinary surgeons or dentists; provided that it shall not be necessary to keep a record in said book of sales of wood alcohol, when it is ascertained it is[1] to be used for mechanical purposes; provided however, that nothing herein contained shall be construed to permit or authorize the sale of any of the poisons herein named where the sale thereof is otherwise prohibited or regulated by law. The obtaining of any such poisons by any person under a false name or statement shall be deemed a violation of the provisions of this act. Any person violating any of the provisions of this act shall be adjudged guilty of a misdemeanor and be punished by a fine of not less than twenty-five dollars nor more than one hundred dollars, or by imprisonment in the county jail not more than thirty days." [33 G. A., ch. 162, § 1; 33 G. A., ch. 160, § 2.] [32 G. A., ch. 142; 18 G. A., ch. 75, § 9; C. '73, § 4038; R. § 4374; C. '51, § 2728.]

[1]The words "denatured alcohol and" which preceded the words "wood alcohol," were stricken out by 33 G. A., ch. 162; hence the words "they are" have been changed to "it is." The title of the act does not correspond with § 1 thereof. EDITOR.]

The provisions of this section have no application to the sale of phosphorus, and a pharmacist is not liable in damages for selling that substance without direction as to the care to be exercised in handling it. Gibson v. Torbert, 115–163, 88 N. W. 443.

One who sells poisons without the label required by statute is guilty of negligence rendering him liable for injury proximately resulting from his wrong. Burk v. Creamery Pkg. Mfg. Co., 126–730, 102 N. W. 793.

SEC. 2593-a. Denatured alcohol not a poison. Denatured alcohol shall not be deemed to be a poison within the meaning of the statutes relating to the sale or handling of poisons. [33 G. A., ch. 162, § 2.]

SEC. 2593-b. Acts in conflict repealed. That all statutes or parts thereof in conflict herewith are hereby repealed. [33 G. A., ch. 162, § 3.]

SEC. 2594. Itinerant vendors of drugs—assignment of license. Any itinerant vendor of any drug, nostrum, ointment, or appliance of any kind for the treatment of any disease or injury, and all those who by any method publicly profess to treat or cure diseases, injury or deformity, shall pay to the treasurer of the commission of pharmacy an annual fee of one hundred dollars, upon the receipt of which the secretary of the commission shall issue a license for one year from its date. Two thousand dollars annually of the money arising from the license fund, or so much as may be needed, shall be devoted to defraying expenses of the commission, and any balance remaining shall be paid into the state treasury. Said commission shall, on the first day of January of each year, make a verified and itemized statement in writing to the auditor of state of all receipts and expenditures of moneys coming into their hands by virtue of their office. Any violation of this section shall be a misdemeanor, and any person shall, upon conviction thereof, pay a fine of not less than one hundred dollars, nor more than two hundred dollars. In actions or prosecutions under this chapter it need not be proven that the defendant has not a license, but such fact shall be a matter of defense. That the holder of any unexpired license may assign the same to any person, and that said license, as soon as assigned, shall be forwarded to the secretary of the board of pharmacy, who shall approve and record the assignment and shall at once return said license to the assignee, who shall thus acquire all the rights and privileges conferred upon the original holder of the said license. Provided, however, the person requesting the transfer shall accompany his request with a transfer fee of one dollar. [35 G. A., ch. 217, § 1.] [21 G. A., ch. 83, § 3; 19 G. A., ch. 137, § 2; 18 G. A., ch. 75, § 10.]

One who merely sells eyeglasses for defective eyes may perhaps be considered an itinerant vendor of drugs under provisions of this section. State v. Edmunds, 127–333, 101 N. W. 431.

One who travels from place to place taking orders for certain remedies and consulting with persons who apply as to their ailments is required to procure a license. State v. Stewart, 138–536, 116 N. W. 693.

SEC. 2596-a. Cocaine and certain other drugs—sale. That section twenty-five hundred ninety-six-a of the supplement to the code, 1907, as amended by chapter one hundred sixty-three of the laws of the thirty-third general assembly, be and the same is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"No person, firm or corporation shall sell, exchange, deliver or have in his possession with intent to sell, exchange or expose or offer for sale or exchange any coca (Erythroxylum Coca), cocaine, alpha or beta eucaine, or derivatives of any of them, or any preparation containing coca, cocaine, alpha or beta eucaine or derivatives of any of them, or cotton root, ergot, oil of tansy, oil of savin or derivatives of any of them, except upon the original written prescription of a registered physician or veterinarian or licensed dentist, who is personally known to such person, firm or corporation, for medical, dental or veterinary purposes only, and no such prescription shall be refilled. Provided that nothing in this act shall prevent the sale thereof to a wholesale or retail dealer in drugs, nor to a registered physician or veterinarian or licensed dentist for use in practice of his profession." [34 G. A., ch. 126, §§ 1, 2; 33 G. A., ch. 163, § 1.] [32 G. A., ch. 143; 29 G. A., ch. 110, § 1.]

SEC. 2596-b. Penalty. Anyone found guilty of violating the provisions of section one of this act, for the first offense, shall pay a fine of not less than twenty-five dollars and not more than one hundred dollars and cost of prosecution. For the second offense, and each subsequent offense, he shall pay on conviction thereof,[1] a fine of not less than one hundred dollars, and not more than three hundred dollars, or imprisonment in the county jail not to exceed three months. Any clerk, employe or agent, violating, or aiding in the violation of section one, shall be charged and convicted as principal. [29 G. A., ch. 110, § 2.]

[1"thereon" in 29 G. A. session laws. EDITOR.]

SEC. 2596-c. Enforcement. Peace officers shall see that the provisions of this act are faithfully executed within their respective jurisdictions, and when they are informed, or have reason to believe that this act has been violated, and the proof thereof can be had, they shall file information to that effect against the offending party before a magistrate, who thereupon shall proceed according to law. The county attorney shall prosecute violators of this act. [29 G. A., ch. 110, § 3.]

CHAPTER 19-A.

BOARD OF DENTAL EXAMINERS AND PRACTICE OF DENTISTRY.

SECTION 2600-a. Repeal. That chapter nineteen of title twelve of the code be and the same is hereby repealed, and the following enacted in lieu thereof: [28 G. A., ch. 91, § 1.]

SEC. 2600-b. Board of examiners—how appointed—term. The board of dental examiners shall consist of five practicing dentists, who shall have been engaged in the continuous practice of their profession in this state for the period of five years preceding their appointment, one of whom shall be appointed annually by the governor, and hold office for the term of five years from and after the first day of August following his appointment, and until his successor is appointed. The Iowa state dental society shall, at the request of the governor, submit a list of dentists of recognized ability, from which he may select the member of the board to be appointed. All vacancies occurring in the board shall be filled in like manner, and the appointee hold office for the unexpired term of his predecessor. All members of the present board shall continue in office under this act until the expiration of their respective terms of office. [28 G. A., ch. 91, § 2.]

SEC. 2600-c. Officers—meetings—quorum. The board shall organize by selecting one of its members as president, and one as secretary and treasurer, and shall meet at least once each year, and at such other times as it may deem necessary, and at such place as it may select. A majority of the board shall constitute a quorum, and its meetings shall at all reasonable times be open to the public. [28 G. A., ch. 91, § 3.]

SEC. 2600-d. Examinations—license—record books—fees. The board shall at any regular meeting, and may at any special meeting, examine applicants for a license to practice dentistry as to their knowledge and skill in dental surgery, and shall issue to such applicants as are found to be qualified a license authorizing them to practice dentistry. The license shall be signed by each member of the board, attested by the president and secretary, and have the seal of the board affixed thereto, and shall be presumptive evidence of the right of the holder to practice dentistry in the state. The name, age, nativity, location, number of years of practice of the person to whom a license is given, the number of the license, and the date of the registration thereof shall be entered in a book kept in the office of the secretary of the board, which shall be open to the inspection of the public, under proper restrictions as to its safe keeping, and the number of the book and page containing such entries shall be noted on the face of the license. Each applicant for a license shall be a graduate of a reputable dental school, which is recognized as such by the board of dental examiners, and pay to the board a fee of twenty dollars before a license is issued. [28 G. A., ch. 91, § 4.]

SEC. 2600-e. Testimony—rules and regulations. The board shall have authority to take testimony in relation to all matters within its jurisdiction, and the presiding officer thereof, or of any committee appointed thereby, may issue subpoenas for, and administer oaths to, witnesses called to testify before the board or such committee; and it may make and adopt all necessary rules, regulations and by-laws not inconsistent with law necessary to enable it to perform the duties and transact the business authorized and required by this act. [28 G. A., ch. 91, § 5.]

SEC. 2600-f. Treasurer to give bond. The treasurer shall, on assuming the duties of his office, file with the secretary of state, a good and sufficient bond in the penal sum of one thousand dollars, conditioned for the faithful discharge of his duties; and shall keep a full and accurate account of all moneys received by him under the provisions of this act, and pay out the same upon the written order of the president countersigned by the secretary. [28 G. A., ch. 91, § 6.]

SEC. 2600-g. Compensation. Each member of the board shall receive the sum of five dollars for each day he is actually engaged in the duties of his office, with the actual expenses incurred by him in the discharge of such duties, and the treasurer shall receive a salary not exceeding three hundred dollars per annum for his services as secretary and treasurer, which amounts shall be paid out of the fund received by the board under the provisions of this act, and from no other fund or source. [28 G. A., ch. 91, § 7.]

SEC. 2600-h. Biennial report—auditing committee. The board shall make a biennial report to the governor of its proceedings, including a full and accurate account of all moneys received and disbursed and shall publish said report with a list of dentists licensed to practice in this state, and the president shall appoint an auditing committee consisting of three practicing dentists of the state who are not members of the board, whose duty it shall be to audit the accounts of the board annually, and make a full report thereof, which report shall accompany the biennial report made by the board to the governor. Any sum of money, remaining after the payment of the compensation and expenses of the members of the board and the salary of the secretary and treasurer, shall be by the treasurer paid into the state treasury on or before the first day of May of each year. [31 G. A., ch. 116, § 4; 28 G. A., ch. 91, § 8.]

SEC. 2600-i. License filed with clerk of district court—license filed in wrong county office—fee—repealed. [35 G. A., ch. 218, § 9.] [32 G. A., ch. 144; 31 G. A., ch. 116, § 3; 28 G. A., ch. 91, § 9.]

SEC. 2600-j. Penalty—repealed. [35 G. A., ch. 218, § 9.] [28 G. A., ch. 91, § 10.]

SEC. 2600-k. Who not eligible to appointment on board. No member of a dental college faculty, or no person connected therewith, shall be eligible to an appointment upon the state board of dental examiners. [28 G. A., ch. 91, § 11.]

SEC. 2600-l. Provisions as to physicians, dental students and registered practitioners. Nothing herein shall be construed to prevent physicians and surgeons from extracting teeth in the practice of their profession, or to prevent bona fide students of dentistry, in the regular course of their instruction, from operating upon patients at clinics, or under the supervision and in the presence of their preceptors, but no fee or salary for such operations shall be received, either directly or indirectly, by any such student of dentistry. And nothing herein shall be construed to prohibit the practice of dentistry in this state by any practitioner who has been duly registered in accordance with the laws of Iowa existing prior to the passage of this act; or any person who is a member of an incorporated society or community and practicing dentistry solely for and among the members of such community or incorporated society without charge or compensation. [28 G. A., ch. 91, § 12.]

SEC. 2600-m. License for practitioners from other states—fee. The board of dental examiners may, without examination, issue license to practice to any dentist who shall have been in legal practice in some other state or territory for a period of at least five years, upon the certificate of the board of dental examiners or a like board of the state or territory in which such dentist was a practitioner, certifying his competency and that he is of good moral character and upon payment of twenty-five dollars. Provided, however, that the state from which any practitioner may come shall have, and maintain equal standards of laws regulating the practice of dentistry and recognize exchange certificates issued by the board of examiners of the state of Iowa. [31 G. A., ch. 116, § 1.]

SEC. 2600-n. Change of residence to another state—certificate—fee. Any duly licensed dentist of the state of Iowa who is desirous of changing his residence to that of another state or territory shall upon application to the board of dental examiners, and the payment of a fee of five dollars receive a certificate which shall attest that he is a duly licensed dentist of the state of Iowa. [31 G. A., ch. 116, § 2.]

SEC. 2600-o. Practice defined—prima-facie evidence. That all persons shall be regarded as practicing dentistry within the meaning of this act who, for a fee, salary, or reward, paid directly or indirectly, either to himself, or some other person, shall diagnose, or profess to diagnose, or treat, or profess to treat, any of the diseases or lesions[1] of the oral cavity, teeth, gums, or maxillary bones, or who shall extract teeth, or prepare or fill cavities in the human teeth, correct, or attempt to correct, malposition of teeth or jaws, or supply artificial teeth as substitutes for natural teeth, or administer anaesthetics, general or local, or give prophylactic treatments, or engage in any other practice included in the curricula of recognized dental colleges; provided, however, that nothing in this act shall be so construed as to prevent regularly licensed physicians or surgeons from extracting teeth or treating any diseases coming within the province of the practice of medicine or to prohibit bona fide students of dentistry from operating upon patients at clinics in connection with their regular course of instruction in any reputable dental college. The opening up of an office for the purpose of practicing dentistry, or announcing to the public in any way, of an intention to practice dentistry, or the use of any sign, card, circular, device, or advertisements by any person as a dentist or a dental surgeon, or person skilled in the science of dentistry, or who shall make examination with the intent of performing, or causing to be performed, any operation in the oral cavity, shall be considered prima-facie evidence that such person is engaged in the practice of dentistry. [35 G. A., ch. 218, § 1.]

SEC. 2600-o1. Posting of license and names of those employed. Every person who shall practice dentistry, either personally or as proprietor, employe, or assistant, shall keep his license in open view in his operating room; and if he owns, operates or controls a dental office, where anyone other than himself is practicing dentistry, he shall also cause to be displayed, and keep in a conspicuous place at the entrance of his place of business, the name of each and every person employed by him in the practice of dentistry at that place. [35 G. A., ch. 218, § 2.]

SEC. 2600-o2. Employment of unlicensed dentist—laboratory work. It shall be unlawful for any person owning, or conducting a dental office where dental work of any kind is done, or contracted for, to employ, retain, or permit any unlicensed dentist to practice dentistry in such dental office, contrary to the provisions of this act, but nothing in this act shall be construed to prevent a person not a licensed dentist from doing laboratory work. [35 G. A., ch. 218, § 3.]

SEC. 2600-o3. Recording license—forfeiture—change of residence—record. The license issued to any dentist by this state shall, within six months after its issue, be filed for record with the clerk of the district court in the county where said licensed dentist desires to practice dentistry; and failure to so file such license for record within six months after its issue shall incur a forfeiture thereof, and said license shall not be restored by the board, except upon the payment to the board of the sum of twenty-five dollars as penalty therefor; and should said licensed dentist change his place of business to any other county within the state of Iowa, he shall, within three months, file his license for record with the clerk of the district court of such new residence, and the clerk of the court shall be entitled in all instances to a fee of fifty cents for recording such license. The clerk of the district court shall keep, as a part of the record, an alphabetical index, giving the names of the licensed dentists and a reference to the pages in the record wherein a copy of their licenses can be found. Upon the application of the state board of dental examiners, the clerk of the district court shall furnish said board with information as to whether or not any party named has filed his license in said county, together with the date of said license, and the date of recording, which information shall be furnished without expense to the state board of dental examiners. [35 G. A., ch. 218, § 4.]

SEC. 2600-o4. Violation—penalty. It shall be unlawful for any person to practice dentistry in this state without having first complied with all the statutory provisions regulating the same, and any person who shall violate any of said statutory provisions shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof, shall be punished by a fine of not less than fifty dollars, nor more than five hundred dollars, or by imprisonment in the county jail not more than sixty days, or by both such fine and imprisonment. [35 G. A., ch. 218, § 5.]

SEC. 2600-o5. Revocation for cause—notice—procedure. The state board of dental examiners may, by a four-fifths vote of its members, revoke the license of any dentist in this state for any of the following causes:

1. The presentation to the board of any diploma, license, or certificate, illegally or fraudulently obtained.

2. The conviction of any felony involving moral turpitude, or chronic or persistent inebriacy, or addiction to the excessive use of narcotics, or if the person holding such license shall be guilty of grossly unprofessional conduct, or of misrepresentation in his advertisements, whereby he deceives and defrauds the public.

In all proceedings for the revocation of a license, the holder thereof shall be given thirty days' notice to prepare for a hearing, and he shall be heard in person, or by counsel, or by both. The president and secretary of the state board of dental examiners shall have the power to administer oaths in the hearing of all matters arising in the course of their duties in such trials, and the state board of dental examiners may take such oral or written proof, for or against the complainant, as it may deem will best present the facts. In all cases of revocation, the holder may appeal to the governor of the state within thirty days after such action by the state board of dental examiners. [35 G. A., ch. 218, § 6.]

SEC. 2600-o6. "Person" defined. That wherever the word "person" is used in this act, it shall be interpreted to mean corporation, association, company, person, or aggregation of persons, owning, operating, or controlling any room, or rooms, office, or dental parlor. [35 G. A., ch. 218, § 7.]

SEC. 2600-o7. Enforcement—duty of county attorney. It shall be the duty of the several county attorneys throughout the state to enforce the provisions of this act, and to prosecute those guilty of its violation. [35 G. A., ch. 218, § 8.]

SEC. 2600-o8. Repeal. That sections twenty-six hundred-i and twenty-six hundred-j of the supplement of the code, 1907, and all other acts and parts of acts inconsistent herewith are hereby repealed. [35 G. A., ch. 218, § 9.]

OF THE PREVENTION OF THE PROCREATION OF HABITUAL CRIMINALS, DEGENERATES AND OTHER PERSONS.

SECTION 2600-p. Unsexing—duty of board of parole. That it shall be the duty of the state board of parole, with the managing officer and the physician of each public institution in the state, entrusted with the care and custody of criminals, rapists, idiots, feeble-minded, imbeciles, lunatics, drunkards, drug fiends, epileptics, syphilitics, moral and sexual perverts, and diseased and degenerate persons, and they are hereby authorized and directed to, annually or oftener, examine into the mental and physical condition, the records and family history of the inmates of such institutions, with a view of determining whether it is improper or inadvisable to allow any of such inmates to procreate and to judge of such matters. If a majority of them decide that procreation by any of such inmates would produce children with a tendency to disease, deformity, crime, insanity, feeble-mindedness, idiocy, imbecility, epilepsy or alcoholism, or if the physical or mental condition of any such inmate will probably be materially improved thereby, or if such inmate is an epileptic or syphilitic, or gives evidence, while an inmate of such institution, that he or she is a moral or sexual pervert, then the physician of the institution, or one selected by him, shall perform the operation of vasectomy or ligation of the Fallopian tubes, as the case may be, upon such person. Provided that such operation shall be performed upon every convict or inmate of such institution who has been convicted of prostitution or violation of the law as laid down in chapter two hundred sixteen of the acts of the thirty-third general assembly,[1] or who has been twice convicted of other sexual offenses, including soliciting, as defined in section forty-nine hundred seventy-five-c of the supplement to the code, 1907, or who has been twice convicted of a felony, and each such convict or inmate shall be subjected to this same operation of vasectomy or ligation of the Fallopian tubes, as the case may be, by the physician of the institution, or one selected by him. [35 G. A., ch. 187, § 1; 34 G. A., ch. 129, § 1.]

SEC. 2600-q. Application for operation—restriction against marriage removed. Those afflicted with syphilis or epilepsy may apply to the board of parole, or any judge of the district court, and upon order of such board or judge, the operation of vasectomy or ligation of the Fallopian tubes may be performed upon such person, and any law restricting the marriage of such persons shall be void and of none effect, in case one of the contracting parties has submitted to such operation and the same was known to both parties before their marriage. [35 G. A., ch. 187, § 2.]

SEC. 2600-r. Annual report. The board of parole shall make an annual report to the governor of the state, fully covering their proceedings under the authority of this act, and also observations and statistics regarding its benefits. [35 G. A., ch. 187, § 3.]

SEC. 2600-s. Unauthorized operation—penalty. Except as authorized in this act, every person who shall perform, encourage, assist in or otherwise promote the performance of either of the operations described in section one of this act, for the purpose of destroying the power to procreate the human species, or any person who shall knowingly permit either of such operations to be performed upon such persons, unless the same shall be a medical necessity, shall be fined not more than one thousand dollars, or imprisoned in the penitentiary not to exceed one year, or both. [35 G. A., ch. 187, § 4; 34 G. A., ch. 129, § 2.]

[The title of ch. 187, 35 G. A., is, "An act to repeal the law as it appears in ch. 129, acts of 34 G. A., and to enact a substitute therefor" * * *; but no repeal is shown in the body of the act. In view of the manifest intent of the legislature, and to avoid duplication, the said act of 34 G. A. is not shown herein. EDITOR.]

CHAPTER 20.

OF THE SOLDIERS' HOME.

SECTION 2601. Object—trustees—compensation—bond. The Iowa soldiers' home, located at Marshalltown, shall be maintained for dependent honorably discharged Union soldiers, sailors and marines, their dependent widows, wives, fathers and mothers, and dependent army nurses, and shall be under the management and control of five trustees[1] who served in the Union army or navy, who shall be appointed by the governor of the state by and with the consent of the senate, and not more than three of whom shall belong to the same political party, and no two of whom shall be from the same congressional district. No member of the general assembly shall be eligible to the office of trustee. The members of the board shall hold their office for the term of five years, or until their successor shall be appointed and qualified. The compensation allowed shall be four dollars per day for the time necessarily employed, and mileage at the rate of five cents per mile each way over the nearest traveled route. In case of a vacancy in the board of trustees by death or any other cause, the appointing power provided for shall have power to fill the vacancy for the unexpired portion of the term. Three members of the board shall constitute a quorum for the transaction of business: provided that, for the adoption of plans and letting of contracts for buildings, and for the selection of a commandant for said home, the affirmative vote of a majority of the entire board shall be required. Before entering upon his office, each member of the board of trustees shall take and sign an oath and execute a bond in the general sum of ten thousand dollars for the use of the state of Iowa, to be approved by the executive council and filed in the office of secretary of state, conditioned for the faithful performance of his duties. [33 G. A., ch. 164, § 1.] [21 G. A., ch. 58, §§ 2, 4.]

[1]See §§ 2727-a8 and 2727-a9. EDITOR.]

SEC. 2602. Admission. All persons named in section twenty-six hundred and one of this act, not having sufficient means for his or her own support, who are disabled by disease, wounds, old age or otherwise, who served in Iowa regiments or batteries, or were accredited to the state of Iowa, or who have been residents of the state for three years next preceding the date of application, shall be eligible to admission into said home. Before admission such person shall file with the officer having charge of such home a certificate signed by the board of supervisors of the county in which such person resides stating that such person is a resident of such county. Such certificate shall be conclusive evidence of the residence of such person in all matters affecting the liability of the county with respect to the expenses of such person in case of insanity or any other cause for which the county may be liable. If the applicant is entitled to admission and is not a resident of the state, a record shall be made thereof on admission. Nothing in this act shall be construed to bar any person from admission who is entitled to such admission under section twenty-six hundred and two of the code. [32 G. A., ch. 145; 21 G. A., ch. 58, § 2.]

SEC. 2602-a. Members may pay cost of support—pension money. That chapter one hundred sixty-six of the acts of the thirty-third general assembly is hereby repealed and in lieu thereof is enacted the following:

"It shall be lawful to receive in the soldiers' home persons who have sufficient means for their own support but are otherwise eligible to become members of the home, on payment of the cost of their support, which cost shall be fixed from time to time by the board of control of state institutions. All money paid under the provisions of this act shall be received by the commandant and remitted each month to the treasurer of state and placed to the credit of the support fund of the home. Provided, however, that no person having sufficient means for his or her own support shall be received or permitted to remain in the home unless there be room for all eligible applicants who do not have such means, but pension money received by any member of the home from the United States government shall not be taken from him for his support in the home." [35 G. A., ch. 16, § 1; 33 G. A., ch. 166, § 1.]

SEC. 2604. Commandant—inferior officers—vacancy. The board of trustees shall appoint a commandant to serve during the pleasure of the board, and who shall be one who has an honorable discharge from the United States army or navy, and whose salary shall not exceed two thousand dollars per year, and use and occupancy of the commandant's house with lights, fuel, ice and water, which shall include all allowances. The commandant may appoint, subject to the approval of the board, the adjutant, quartermaster and surgeon, together with such assistant surgeons as may, from time to time, be required, and the said adjutant and quartermaster shall be of like qualifications, as to service in the army or navy, with himself, and also a matron and other necessary subordinate employes, and they shall be subject to removal by him for misconduct or incompetency, but in the case of every removal a detailed statement of the cause shall be reported at once to the board of trustees and subject to its approval. The board shall fix the compensation to be paid the subordinate officers and employes of the home, not to exceed that paid for like services in similar institutions. Provided that the adjutant, quartermaster and surgeon shall also be furnished without charge the houses erected by the state and now occupied by such officers, together with lights, heat, fuel, ice and water.

If at any time a vacancy shall exist in the office of commandant, adjutant, quartermaster or surgeon and a suitable person who has an honorable discharge from the United States army or navy is not available for the office, it shall be lawful to appoint any other person otherwise properly qualified to fill the vacancy. [35 G. A., ch. 219, § 1; 33 G. A., ch. 165, § 1.] [31 G. A., chs. 117, 118; 29 G. A., ch. 112, § 1; 29 G. A., ch. 111, § 1; 21 G. A., ch. 58, § 16.]

SEC. 2606. Rules for admission. That section twenty-six hundred and six of the supplement to the code, 1907, is hereby repealed, and there is hereby enacted in lieu thereof the following:

"The board of control of state institutions may receive into the home, under such rules and regulations, and subject to such conditions as said board may prescribe, the dependent persons not having sufficient means or ability to support themselves, designated as follows:

1. Honorably discharged Union soldiers, sailors and marines.

2. Women who, prior to the year eighteen hundred ninety married honorably discharged Union soldiers, sailors or marines, and who have ceased to be the wives of such soldiers, sailors or marines by reason of their death or because divorced from them without fault on the part of the wives, and a subsequent marriage shall not deprive such women of their right to the benefits of the home, nor shall such right depend upon the presence of the husband in the home as a member of it.

3. Army nurses, and the fathers and mothers of honorably discharged Union soldiers, sailors and marines.

The board may permit husbands and wives to occupy together cottages or other quarters on the home grounds." [35 G. A., ch. 220, § 1.] [31 G. A., ch. 119; 24 G. A., ch. 95, §§ 4, 5.]

SEC. 2606-a. Restriction as to pension money. The board of control shall not adopt or enforce any rule in the Iowa soldiers' home which will deprive any member of the home of any part of the pension money which such member receives from the United States government, except as provided for in this act. [28 G. A., ch. 92, § 1.]

SEC. 2606-b. Penalty for intoxication. Any member of the home, who shall, while a member of the home, be convicted twice by any court of justice, of violating the criminal statutes of the state, or who shall twice be found guilty by the commandant, or a court martial, if the member so elect, of intoxication or other misdemeanors, shall be required to deposit the money received from the United States government as a pension, with the commandant, immediately on the receipt of his pension check. In cases where such pensioner has a wife, child, or parent dependent upon him for support, at least one half of such pension money shall be sent to such dependent person, and if there be two or more dependent relatives the pensioner may determine to whom one half of the pension received by him shall be sent. The other half of such persion money, as well as all money received from such pensioners as have no dependent relatives, shall be kept on deposit by the commandant for such pensioner, subject to the direction of the board of control, and the money so deposited may be paid out with the consent of the depositor, subject to the approval of the commandant under such rules as the board of control may provide; but in case the pensioner abstain from intoxication and is not guilty of further violation of the criminal statutes of the state for a period of ten months from the date of conviction or of intoxication, as hereinbefore provided, he shall be entitled to receive two dollars for the eleventh month and four dollars for the twelfth month following such conviction, from his said pension; and if, during these two months, he shall conduct himself in an orderly and sober manner, he shall then have the same control of his pension money as though he had not been twice convicted of violating the criminal statutes, or of being intoxicated as provided in this act. In case any depositor is discharged from the said home, any balance of such deposit in the hands of the commandant, after his ticket has been purchased, shall be paid to such pensioner thirty days after his discharge, and in the case of the death of such depositor the money shall be paid to his heirs, legatees, or legal representatives. No assignment of the money deposited with the commandant, or any claim therefor shall be valid. [30 G. A., ch. 103; 29 G. A., ch. 169, § 1; 28 G. A., ch. 92, § 2.]

SEC. 2606-c. Pension money—when deposited. Section three of said chapter [28 G. A., ch. 92] is hereby repealed, and the following is enacted in lieu thereof:

"Each member of the home who receives a pension, and who has a wife or minor children, shall deposit with the commandant forthwith on receipt of his pension check one half of the amount thereof, which shall be sent at once to the wife if she be dependent upon her own labor or others for support, or, if there be no wife, to the guardian of the minor child or children if dependent upon others for support. Provided, however, that the commandant if satisfied that the wife has deserted her husband, or is of bad character, or is not dependent upon others for support, may pay the money deposited as aforesaid to the guardian of the dependent minor child or children." [29 G. A., ch. 169, § 2; 28 G. A., ch. 92, § 3.]

SEC. 2606-d. Acts in conflict repealed. All acts and parts of acts, in conflict with the provisions of this act, are hereby repealed. [28 G. A., ch. 92, § 4.]

SEC. 2608. Annual appropriation—support. For the general support of said home, there is hereby appropriated the sum of fifteen dollars per month for each member, and ten dollars per month for each officer and employe not a member of the home, or so much thereof as may be necessary, to be estimated by the average number present for the preceding quarter, these appropriations to be drawn monthly on the requisition of the board of trustees of the home in the usual manner, and then only in such amounts as the wants of the home may require. If the average number of members shall be less than eight hundred fifty in any month, the auditor of state and treasurer of state shall credit the home with the sum of twelve thousand seven hundred fifty dollars for that month in addition to the monthly allowance for each officer and employe, and the sums so credited shall be drawn from the state treasury in the same manner and for the same purposes as the regular monthly per capita allowance is drawn. [35 G. A., ch. 221, § 1.] [32 G. A., ch. 146; 29 G. A., ch. 113, § 1; 27 G. A., ch. 72, § 1; 23 G. A., ch. 58; 22 G. A., ch. 121.]

[See § 2627-i. EDITOR.]

SEC. 2627-a. Appointment by governor—term—vacancy. The governor shall, during the session of the thirty-sixth general assembly and every four years thereafter, nominate and with the consent of two thirds of the members of the senate in executive session, appoint a superintendent of public instruction, whose term of office shall commence on the first secular day of July next following his appointment, and shall continue for the period of four years, and until his successor is appointed and qualified; and the term of office of the superintendent of public instruction in office at the taking effect of this act is hereby extended until the appointment and qualification of such officer under this act. Vacancies at any time occurring in said office shall be filled by appointment by the governor, but no person so appointed shall hold office beyond the end of the session of the legislature next ensuing, unless approved by the senate as above provided. [35 G. A., ch. 103, § 1.]

SEC. 2627-b. Qualifications—oath. The superintendent of public instruction shall, at the time of his appointment, be a graduate of an accredited university or college, or of a four-year course above high school grade in an accredited normal school, and shall have had at least five years' experience as a teacher or school superintendent. He shall, before entering upon his duties, take and subscribe the constitutional oath of office, which shall be filed in the office of the secretary of state. [35 G. A., ch. 103, § 2.]

SEC. 2627-c. General supervision—duties. The superintendent of public instruction shall have general supervision and control over the rural, graded and high schools of the state, and over such other state and public schools as are not under the control of the state board of education, or board of control of state institutions, and his office shall be known as the department of public instruction. It shall be his duty:

1. Inspection. To ascertain, so far as practicable, by inspection or otherwise, the conditions, needs and progress of the schools belonging to his department.

2. Recommendations. To suggest, through public addresses, pamphlets, bulletins, and by meetings and conferences with school officers, teachers, parents, and the public generally, such changes and improvements as he may think desirable, and may publish and distribute such views and information as he may deem important.

3. Promotion of interest in education. To endeavor to promote among the people of the state a proper interest in the general subject of education, including industrial and commercial education, agriculture, manual and vocational training, domestic science and continuation work.

4. Classification. To classify and define the various schools belonging to his department, and to formulate suitable courses of study therefor, and to publish and distribute such classifications and courses of study.

5. Officers' and teachers' reports—forms. To prescribe the reports, both regular and special, which shall be made by public school officers, superintendents and teachers, and other persons or officers having the custody or control of public school funds or property, and to prepare suitable forms therefor, and to furnish blanks for such reports as are to be made to him.

6. Days for special observance. To publish and distribute from time to time leaflets and circulars relative to such days and occasions as he may deem worthy of special observance in the public schools.

7. Appeals—opinions. To examine and determine all appeals made to him according to law and the rules relating thereto, and to prescribe rules of practice therefor not inconsistent with law. He shall also render written opinions upon questions submitted by school officers pertaining to their duties.

8. Reports. He shall, on the first day of January of each year, report to the auditor of state the number of persons of school age in each county. He shall report biennially to the governor the conditions of the schools under his supervision, including the number and kind of school districts, the number of schools of each kind, the number and value of schoolhouses, the enrollment and attendance in each county for the previous year, any plans matured or measures proposed for the improvement of the public schools, and such financial and statistical information as may be of public importance; he may also include such general information relating to educational affairs and conditions within the state or elsewhere, as he may deem necessary.

9. Plans and specifications for buildings. He shall, when deemed necessary, cause to be prepared and published a pamphlet containing suitable plans and specifications for public school buildings, including the most approved means and methods of heating, lighting and ventilating the same, together with information and suggestions for the proper and economical construction thereof. It is hereby made the duty of the state architect to render such assistance and to perform such services in preparing such plans and specifications as may be requested by the superintendent of public instruction.

10. Institutes. He shall appoint county educational meetings or institutes to be held in each county once each year and not more than twice, and shall designate the time and place for holding them. The program therefor, and the instructors and lecturers therein, shall be subject to his approval.

11. Examinations. He shall prepare and supply questions for the examination of applicants for teachers' certificates and for the examination of pupils completing the eighth grade in the rural schools. [35 G. A., ch. 103, § 3.]

SEC. 2627-d. Office—records—clerks—supplies. The superintendent of public instruction shall have an office in the capitol. He shall file and preserve all reports, documents and correspondence that may be of permanent value, which shall be open to inspection under reasonable conditions, by any citizen of the state. He shall keep a record of the business transacted by him, and shall turn over to his successor all records, papers, reports, documents, books and other state property pertaining to his office. He shall be furnished by the executive council with sufficient office room and clerical and stenographic help, and with all necessary books, blanks, stationery, printing, postage and office supplies, and with the reports of the supreme court of the state. [35 G. A., ch. 103, § 4.]

SEC. 2627-e. School laws—publication. He shall every four years, if deemed necessary, cause to be printed in book form all school laws then in force, with such forms, rulings and decisions, and such notes and suggestions as may aid school officers in the proper discharge of their duties; a sufficient number of copies shall be sent to the county superintendent of each county to supply the school officers, directors, and superintendents therein. He may cause to be printed in pamphlet form after each session of the general assembly, any amendments or changes in the school laws with necessary notes and suggestions, which shall be distributed as above provided. [35 G. A., ch. 103, § 5.]

SEC. 2627-f. Reports of funds or school property—delinquency. He may require from time to time reports under oath from all officers and persons who have any authority over, or who have any duties in connection with, public school affairs, or who have, or who have lately had, the custody or control of any public school funds or property. He shall furnish the proper blanks for such reports, and any such officer or person who unreasonably neglects or refuses to make a report required by the superintendent of public instruction shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor. [35 G. A., ch. 103, § 6.]

SEC. 2627-g. Deputy—chief clerk—inspectors. He may appoint a deputy whose appointment must be approved by the governor of the state. The qualifications of the deputy shall be the same as required by section two of this act. The deputy shall qualify in like manner as his principal and, in the absence or inability of the superintendent, shall perform the duties of the office. He shall also appoint a chief clerk and such regular inspectors of the public schools of the state, including rural, graded and high schools, as he may deem necessary, not exceeding three. [35 G. A., ch. 103, § 7.]

SEC. 2627-h. Salaries—expenses. From and after the taking effect of this act the salary of the superintendent of public instruction shall be four thousand dollars per annum; the salary of his deputy shall be twenty-five hundred dollars per annum; the salary of the regular inspectors in the department of public instruction shall be two thousand dollars per annum each; the salary of the chief clerk shall be fifteen hundred dollars per annum, all such salaries to be paid monthly upon the warrant of the state auditor. The superintendent of public instruction and his deputy and the regular inspectors in his department shall also receive their actual necessary traveling expenses incurred in the performance of their official duties, to be allowed upon an itemized and verified account filed with and approved by the executive council and the state auditor who shall draw his warrant on the state treasurer for the amount allowed. [35 G. A., ch. 103, § 8.]

SEC. 2627-i. Repeal. Chapter one of title thirteen of the supplement to the code, 1907, as amended, relating to the office of public instruction is hereby repealed and all other acts and parts of acts inconsistent with the provisions of this act are hereby repealed in so far as they may be inconsistent herewith. [35 G. A., ch. 103, § 9.]

OF THE BOARD OF EDUCATIONAL EXAMINERS.

SECTION 2629. Meetings—examinations. The board shall meet for the transaction of business at such times and places as the president may direct, and shall annually hold at least two public examinations of teachers, to be conducted by a member or the secretary of the board or by such qualified person or persons as the board may select. All examinations shall be conducted in accordance with rules and regulations adopted by the board, not inconsistent with the laws of the state, and a record shall be kept of all of its proceedings. It may issue state certificates and state diplomas to such teachers as are found upon examination to possess a good moral character, thorough scholarship and knowledge of didactics, with successful experience in teaching, or with such other training and qualifications as the board may require. The examination for certificates and diplomas shall cover orthography, reading, writing, arithmetic, geography, English grammar, bookkeeping, physiology, history of the United States, algebra, botany, natural philosophy, drawing, civil government, constitution and laws of the state, and didactics; those for diplomas, in addition to the foregoing, geometry, trigonometry, chemistry, zoology, geology, astronomy, political economy, rhetoric, English literature, general history, and such other studies as the board may require. [32 G. A., ch. 6, § 2; 29 G. A., ch. 114, § 1; 28 G. A., ch. 95, § 1; 19 G. A., ch. 167, §§ 2–4.]

SEC. 2630-a. Repeal. Section twenty-six hundred thirty of the code is hereby repealed, and the following enacted in lieu thereof: [28 G. A., ch. 96, § 1.]

SEC. 2630-b. Special certificates. The educational board of examiners may issue a special certificate to any teacher of music, drawing, penmanship, or other special branches, or to any primary teacher, of sufficient experience, who shall pass such examination as the board may require in the branches, and methods pertaining thereto, for which the certificate is sought. Such certificates shall be designated by the name of the branch and shall not be valid for any other department or branch. The board shall keep a complete register of all persons to whom certificates or diplomas are issued. [28 G. A., ch. 96, § 2; 23 G. A., ch. 22.]

SEC. 2630-c. Validation authorized. The state educational board of examiners is hereby empowered to validate certificates issued by state departments of education in other states, where such certificates were issued upon evidence of scholarship and experience equivalent to that required for like certificates under the laws of this state. Such validated certificate shall authorize the holder to teach in any public school in the state for five years after the date of such validation. [34 G. A., ch. 130, § 1.] [32 G. A., ch. 149.]

[Acts in conflict with § 1, ch. 130, 34 G. A., are repealed by § 2634-h3. EDITOR.]

SEC. 2631. How long valid—revocation—fees. A state certificate shall authorize the holder to teach in any public school in the state for five years thereafter, and a diploma shall confer such authority for life; but any certificate or diploma may be revoked by the board for sufficient cause, or such cause as would, if known at the time, have prevented issuance thereof, provided the holder of such certificate or diploma shall have due notice, and shall be allowed to be present and make his defense. For each certificate issued the applicant shall pay two dollars, and for each diploma five dollars, which may be required before the examination is commenced. All moneys obtained from this source shall be paid into the state treasury. [32 G. A., ch. 6, § 3; 19 G. A., ch. 167, §§ 5, 6.]

[See § 2634-a repealing the same section number of the 1902 supplement which contained a repeal of code § 2634. EDITOR.]

SEC. 2634-a. Compensation—secretary—employes—salaries. That section twenty-six hundred thirty-four-a of the supplement to the code [1902] be and the same is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"Each member of the board shall receive for the time actually employed in such service, his actual necessary expenses, and those not salaried officers or employes of the state or any institution thereof shall be paid in addition, three dollars per day. The board shall have power to employ a secretary and prescribe his duties. He shall receive a salary not exceeding one hundred dollars per month and actual necessary expenses while engaged in the performance of his duties at places other than the capitol. The board shall have power to employ such persons as are necessary to assist in examinations and in reading answer papers and for clerical work and other necessary assistance. Persons so employed shall receive not to exceed fifty cents per hour for the time actually employed and actual traveling expenses to and from the place where their services are required. All expenditures authorized to be made under the provisions of chapter two of title thirteen of the code and of the supplement to the code [1902] and amendments thereto and under the provisions of chapter one hundred twenty-two, acts of the thirty-first general assembly, and under the provisions of this act shall be certified by the chairman of the educational board of examiners to the executive council for payment. If found correct the executive council shall cause same to be paid from any funds paid into the state treasury under the provisions of section twenty-six hundred thirty-one of the code and chapter one hundred twenty-two, acts of the thirty-first general assembly, and amendments thereto." [32 G. A., ch. 6, § 4; 27 G. A., ch. 73, § 1; 25 G. A., ch. 36; 19 G. A., ch. 167, § 8.]

SEC. 2634-a1. Printing. This act shall be construed as giving legal authority to the educational board of examiners to obtain all the necessary printing for the performance of their duties, as required by law, in the same manner as the printing is provided for state officers. [32 G. A., ch. 6, § 5.]

SEC. 2634-b. Repeal. Sections twenty-six hundred thirty-four-b, twenty-six hundred thirty-four-c and twenty-six hundred thirty-four-d of the supplement to the code, 1907, are hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof: [34 G. A., ch. 131, § 1.] [29 G. A., ch. 115, § 1.]

[See § 2634-b1 to § 2634-b8 inclusive. EDITOR.]

SEC. 2634-b1. Training of teachers for rural schools—normal courses in certain high schools. That section two of chapter one hundred thirty-one of the acts of the thirty-fourth general assembly be and the same is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

For the purpose of increasing the facilities for training teachers for the rural schools, by requiring a review of such common branches as may be deemed essential by the superintendent of public instruction and for instruction in elementary pedagogy and the art of teaching elementary agriculture and home economics, provision is hereby made for normal courses of study and training in such four-year high schools as the superintendent of public instruction may designate, provided that such high schools shall be selected and distributed with regard to their usefulness in supplying trained teachers for the rural schools of all portions of the state, and with regard to the number of teachers required for rural schools in each portion of the state. It is further provided that where a township high school or a consolidated school organized in accordance with the provisions of chapter one hundred forty-three[1] of the acts of the thirty-fourth general assembly can meet the requirements of the superintendent of public instruction, it shall be given preference over a city high school. [35 G. A., ch. 242, § 1; 34 G. A., ch. 131, § 2.]

[[1]§ 2794-a herein. EDITOR.]

SEC. 2634-b2. Private and denominational schools. Private and denominational[1] schools are eligible to the provisions of this act, except as to receiving state aid. [34 G. A., ch. 131, § 3.]

[[1]"denomination" in enrolled bill. EDITOR.]

SEC. 2634-b3. State aid—reports—limitations. That section four of chapter one hundred thirty-one of the acts of the thirty-fourth general assembly be and the same is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

Each high school approved under the provisions of this act shall receive state aid to the amount of seven hundred fifty dollars per annum, payable in two equal installments at the close of each semester as hereinafter provided. The superintendent of each approved training school shall at the close of each semester file such report with the superintendent of public instruction as said officer may require. Upon receipt of a satisfactory report, the superintendent of public instruction shall issue a requisition upon the auditor of state for the amount due the school corporation of said high school for said semester, whereupon the auditor of state shall draw a warrant on the state treasury payable to said school corporation for the amount of said requisition and forward the same to the secretary of said school corporation. No high schools shall be approved as entitled to state aid unless a class of ten or more shall have been organized, maintained and instructed during the preceding semester in accordance with the provisions of this act and the regulations of the superintendent of public instruction. [35 G. A., ch. 242, § 2; 34 G. A., ch. 131, § 4.]

[See § 2794-f respecting high school in consolidated district. EDITOR.]

SEC. 2634-b4. Inspector—salary—expenses. The appropriation provided by this act for instruction of pupils in high schools in the science and practice of rural school teaching and the teaching of elementary agriculture and home economics, may be expended in part for inspection and supervision of such instruction by the superintendent of public instruction and by such person as he may designate, and the expense of such inspection and supervision shall be paid out of said appropriation on vouchers certified by the superintendent of public instruction. In accordance with the foregoing provisions of this section, the superintendent of public instruction is authorized to appoint an inspector of normal training in high schools and private and denominational schools at a salary of not to exceed two thousand dollars per year and necessary traveling expenses while in the discharge of his duties. [34 G. A., ch. 131, § 5.]

SEC. 2634-b5. Admission—course of instruction—rules—requirements for graduation. The superintendent of public instruction shall prescribe the conditions of admission to the normal training classes, the course of instruction, the rules and regulations under which such instruction shall be given and the requirements for graduation subject to the provisions of this act. [34 G. A., ch. 131, § 6.]

SEC. 2634-b6. Examination for graduation—fee. On the first Friday in February and the Wednesday and Thursday immediately preceding and on the second Friday in May and the Wednesday and Thursday immediately preceding, each year, in each high school approved under this act, an examination for graduation from the normal training course shall be conducted under such rules as the state board of examiners shall prescribe, but the county superintendent of the county in which an approved high school may be located shall be designated as the conductor of said examination. Each applicant for a certificate of graduation shall pay a fee of one dollar, one half of which shall be paid into the state treasury on or before the first day of the succeeding month, and one half of which shall be paid into the institute fund of the county wherein the examination is held. [34 G. A., ch. 131, § 7.]

SEC. 2634-b7. Certificate—license to teach—renewal. A certificate of graduation from the normal training course provided for in this act shall be issued by the superintendent of public instruction, and shall be a valid license to teach in any public school in the state for a term of two years, subject to registration as provided for other teachers' certificates. At the expiration of said certificate the superintendent of public instruction is authorized to renew it for a period of three years under the same conditions that apply to the renewal of first grade uniform county certificates. [35 G. A., ch. 242, § 4; 34 G. A., ch. 131, § 8.]

SEC. 2634-b8. Appropriation. That section nine of chapter one hundred thirty-one of the acts of the thirty-fourth general assembly be and the same is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

For the purpose of carrying out the provisions of this act, there is hereby appropriated out of any moneys in the state treasury, not otherwise appropriated, the sum of one hundred thousand dollars, available for the period ending June thirtieth, nineteen hundred fourteen, and the sum of one hundred twenty-five thousand dollars annually thereafter. [35 G. A., ch. 242, § 3; 34 G. A., ch. 131, § 9.]

SEC. 2634-c. Accredited schools—annual visitations—repealed. [34 G. A., ch. 131, § 1.] [29 G. A., ch. 115, § 2.]

SEC. 2634-d. Certificates—fees—repealed. [34 G. A., ch. 131, § 1; 34 G. A., ch. 130, § 2.] [29 G. A., ch. 115, § 3.]

SEC. 2634-e. Record of students—sworn statement. At the close of each school year, the principal or superintendent of each accredited school shall file with the board of examiners a sworn statement, showing the name, age, post-office address, studies and attendance of each of the students in his school taking the prescribed teachers' course. [29 G. A., ch. 115, § 4.]

SEC. 2634-f. Graduates from accredited colleges. That the state educational board of examiners may accept graduation from the regular and collegiate courses in the state university, state teachers college, state normal schools, and the state college of agriculture and mechanic arts, and from other institutions of higher learning in the state having regular and collegiate courses of equal rank, as evidence that a teacher possesses the scholarship and professional fitness for a state certificate. [35 G. A., ch. 226, § 1.] [32 G. A., ch. 148, § 1.]

SEC. 2634-f1. Graduates of accredited colleges—same recognition. Graduates of colleges and schools located in other states than Iowa, having regular and collegiate courses of equal rank with the accredited colleges and schools of Iowa, may be given the same recognition as provided in section one of this act, providing they file with the board of educational examiners evidence of at least two years' successful experience as a teacher, principal or superintendent of schools. [35 G. A., ch. 226, § 2.]

SEC. 2634-g. State certificates granted. That in all cases where such graduation shows the extent and quality of scholarship that is required by section twenty-six hundred twenty-nine of the supplement to the code, [1902] and when the teacher possesses a good moral character and satisfies the board of being professionally qualified, there shall be granted by the said board of examiners a state certificate valid for five years to teach in any public school in the state. [32 G. A., ch. 148, § 2.]

SEC. 2634-h. Renewal for life—fee. That section twenty-six hundred thirty-four-h of the supplement to the code, 1907, is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"All certificates referred to in sections twenty-six hundred twenty-nine, twenty-six hundred thirty-b, twenty-six hundred thirty-c, twenty-six hundred thirty-four-d, twenty-six hundred thirty-four-f, and twenty-six hundred thirty-four-g, of the supplement to the code, 1907, shall be renewed for life by the state board of educational examiners upon the payment of a fee of five dollars and proof of at least five years' successful teaching, three of which shall have been during the time the said certificate (with renewals) has been in force." [34 G. A., ch. 130, § 3.] [32 G. A., ch. 148, § 3.]

SEC. 2634-h1. Conditions for renewal under certain sections—fee. All certificates referred to in sections twenty-seven hundred thirty-four-d and twenty-seven hundred thirty-four-e of the supplement to the code, 1907, in section twenty-seven hundred thirty-four-g of the supplement to the code, 1907, as amended by chapter one hundred eighty-one of the acts of the thirty-third general assembly and by section five of this act, and in section six of this act, shall be renewed for life by the state board of educational examiners upon compliance by the holder with the following conditions:

1. The applicant shall show by testimonials from county or city superintendents or from the principals having immediate supervision of his school work and from a member of the local school board that he has had at least five years' continuous successful teaching experience (which may have been before or after the passage of this act), at least three of which shall have been immediately prior to the time validation is sought and under the grade of certificate for which such validation is desired;

2. The standing of such applicant in the several branches shown upon his certificate shall average not less than eighty-five per cent. and in no branch shall the per cent. be less than eighty per cent., provided that in case the standing is less than the per cent. required, either average or special, the holder of the certificate may, at any of the times provided in section twenty-seven hundred thirty-four-c of the supplement to the code, 1907, take an examination in any branch or branches he may desire and the per cent. then received shall be entered upon his certificate;

3. The applicant shall furnish proof of professional study during the entire five-year period such as is made necessary in the case of term renewals of certificates.

Upon the issue of a life certificate as herein contemplated, the applicant shall pay a fee of five dollars to be turned into the state treasury. [34 G. A., ch. 130, § 7.]

[Acts in conflict are repealed by § 2634-h3. EDITOR.]

SEC. 2634-h2. Lapse of certificate. All life certificates provided for in this act shall lapse provided the holder shall not teach during a period of five successive years. [34 G. A., ch. 130, § 10.]

[Acts in conflict are repealed by § 2634-h3. EDITOR.]

SEC. 2634-h3. Acts in conflict repealed. All acts and parts of acts inconsistent with the provisions hereof are hereby repealed. [34 G. A., ch. 130, § 13.]

OF THE IOWA STATE TEACHERS COLLEGE.

SECTION 2675. Official designation—board of trustees—officers. The normal school at Cedar Falls, for the special instruction and training of teachers for the common schools shall be officially designated and known as the "Iowa State Teachers College" and shall be under the management and control of a board of trustees, of which the superintendent of public instruction shall be, by virtue of office, a member and president. It shall meet annually on or before June fifteenth, at the call of the president, and organize by the election of one of its members vice president, and a secretary and treasurer, neither of the latter to be a member of the board. The treasurer shall give bond in the sum of twenty thousand dollars, with good and sufficient sureties, to be filed with and approved by the secretary of state, which bond shall be conditioned for the safe keeping and proper disbursement of all money coming into his hands by virtue of his office. [33 G. A., ch. 171, § 1.] [16 G. A., ch. 129, §§ 1, 4.]

SEC. 2680. Report to governor. The board shall biennially, through its secretary, make a detailed report to the governor of its proceedings during the preceding two years, which report shall show the number of teachers employed, the compensation of each, the number of pupils and classification, an itemized statement of receipts and expenditures, and such further information with such recommendations as may be regarded important to the interests of the institution, and with reference to its connection with the educational work of the state; provided that the report made in the year nineteen hundred and six shall cover the period only from the date of its last biennial report. [31 G. A., ch. 125; 22 G. A., ch. 64, § 2; 16 G. A., ch. 129, § 9.]

SEC. 2682. Appropriation. There is hereby appropriated the sum of twenty-eight thousand five hundred dollars annually as an endowment fund for the payment of the teachers of said normal school, and the further sum of nine thousand dollars annually as a contingent fund therefor. The amount herein appropriated shall be drawn and paid quarterly on the first days of March, June, September and December, on the requisition of the board of trustees of the school. [27 G. A., ch. 77, § 1.]

SEC. 2682-a. Special tax—purpose—how drawn. For the purpose of providing for the erection, repair and improvement and equipment of such necessary buildings as shall be determined upon by the board of trustees of the state normal school, there shall be levied annually for five years, a special tax of one tenth of a mill on the dollar upon the assessed valuation of the taxable property of the state, and the proceeds thereof shall be carried into the treasury to the credit of said state normal school. Said levy shall be first made with the levy made for state purposes in the year nineteen hundred and two and the same levy shall be made annually for the four successive years thereafter. The money realized from such levy for said state normal school shall be held by the treasurer of the state for the purposes hereinbefore provided and drawn upon requisition of the board of trustees of said state normal school. [29 G. A., ch. 117, § 1.]

OF REPORTS FROM EDUCATIONAL INSTITUTIONS.

SECTION 2682-b. When made—what included. That the secretary of the state university, the secretary of the state college of agriculture and mechanic arts and the secretary of the state normal school be required hereafter to make report to each general assembly within three days after the said general assembly shall have convened. Said reports shall show in plain manner the amount available each fiscal year from state appropriations and all other sources, for the erection, equipment, improvement and repair of buildings, also the funds received from state appropriations, interest on endowment funds, tuition, laboratory fees, janitor fees, donations, rent of lands and from all sources whatsoever going to effect the annual income of the support funds of said institutions. Any appropriation or funds received for any special purpose whatsoever shall also be reported. Hospital receipts and sales of departments shall be listed separately. The report shall show how the moneys thus received were expended, giving under separate heads the cost of instruction, administration, maintenance and equipment of departments, and the general expenses of the institutions. It shall clearly state the number of professors, instructors, fellows and tutors and the number of students enrolled in each course during each year of the biennial period. Students attending the short courses shall be reported separately. The amount of unexpended balances of departments remaining in the hands of the treasurer and the amounts undrawn from the state treasury on the thirtieth of June of the last year of the biennial period shall be given. The report of the secretary of the state college of agriculture and mechanic arts shall also show the receipts of the experiment station from all sources for each fiscal year and how such funds were expended. [30 G. A., ch. 104.]

OF THE STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION.

SECTION 2682-c. How constituted — institutions governed. The state university, the college of agriculture and mechanic arts, including the agricultural experiment station, the normal school at Cedar Falls and the college for the blind at Vinton shall be governed by a state board of education consisting of nine members, and not more than five of the members shall be of the same political party. Not more than three alumni of the above institutions and but one alumnus from each institution may be members of this board at one time. [34 G. A., ch. 141, § 2; 33 G. A., ch. 170, § 1.]

SEC. 2682-d. Appointment — terms — removal — suspension — vacancies. The governor shall, prior to the adjournment of the thirty-third general assembly, nominate, and, with the consent of two thirds of the members of the senate in executive session, appoint nine persons from the state at large, and they shall be selected solely with regard to their qualifications and fitness to discharge the duties of their position. No nominations shall be considered by the senate until the same shall have been referred to a committee of five, not more than three of whom shall belong to the same political party, to be appointed by the president of the senate without the formality of a motion, which committee shall report to the senate in executive session, which report shall be made at any time when called for by the senate. The consideration of nominations, by the senate, shall not be had on the same legislative day that the nominations are so referred. Three of the members of said board of education shall hold office as designated by the governor for two years, three for four years and three for six years. Subsequent appointments shall be made as above provided, and, except to fill vacancies, shall be for a period of six years. The governor may, by and with the consent of a majority of the senate, during a session of the general assembly, remove any member of the board for malfeasance in office, or for any cause that renders him ineligible to appointment, or incapable or unfit to discharge the duties of his office, and his removal, when so made, shall be final. When the general assembly is not in session, the governor may suspend any member so disqualified and shall appoint another to fill the vacancy thus created, subject, however, to the approval or disapproval of the senate when next in session. All vacancies on said board that may occur while the general assembly is not in session shall be filled by appointment by the governor, which appointment shall expire at the end of thirty days from the time the general assembly next convenes, and vacancies occurring during the session of the general assembly shall be filled as regular appointments are made and before the end of said session. [33 G. A., ch. 170, § 2.]

SEC. 2682-e. Meetings. The board shall meet four times a year. Special meetings may be called by the board, by the president of the board, or they may be called by the secretary of the board, upon the written request of any five members thereof. [33 G. A., ch. 170, § 3.]

SEC. 2682-f. Organization—powers and duties. The state board of education shall have power to elect a president from their number; a president and treasurer for each of said educational institutions, and professors, instructors, officers, and employes; to fix the compensation to be paid to such officers and employes; to make rules and regulations for the government of said schools, not inconsistent with the laws of the state; to manage and control the property, both real and personal, belonging to said educational institutions; to execute trusts or other obligations now or hereafter committed to the institutions; to direct the expenditure of all appropriations the general assembly shall, from time to time, make to said institutions, and the expenditure of any other moneys; and to do such other acts as are necessary and proper for the execution of the powers and duties conferred upon them by law. Within ten days after the appointment and qualification of the members of the board, it shall organize and prepare to assume the duties to be vested in said board, but shall not exercise control of said institutions until the first day of July, A. D. nineteen hundred and nine. [33 G. A., ch. 170, § 4.]

SEC. 2682-g. Boards of regents and trustees abolished. The board of regents and the boards of trustees now charged with the government of the state university, the college of agriculture and mechanic arts, and the normal school, shall cease to exist on the first day of July, A. D. nineteen hundred and nine, and, on the same date, full power to manage said institutions, as herein provided, shall vest in the said state board of education. Nothing herein contained shall limit the general supervision or examining powers vested in the governor by the laws or constitution of the state. [33 G. A., ch. 170, § 5.]

SEC. 2682-h. Finance committee—organization—proceedings. The said board of education shall appoint a finance committee of three from outside of its membership, and shall designate one of such committee as chairman and one as secretary. The secretary of this committee shall also act as secretary of the board of education and shall keep a record of the proceedings of the board and of the committee and carefully preserve all their books and papers. All acts of the board relating to the management, purchase, disposition, or use of lands or other property of said educational institutions shall be entered of record, and shall show who are present and how each member voted upon each proposition when a roll call is demanded. He shall do and perform such other duties as may be required of him by law or the rules and regulations of said board. Not more than two members of this committee shall be of the same political party, and its members shall hold office for a term of three years unless sooner removed by a vote of two thirds of the members of the state board of education. [34 G. A., ch. 132, § 1; 33 G. A., ch. 170, § 6.]

SEC. 2682-i. Oath—bond. Each member of the board and each member of the finance committee shall take oath and qualify, as required by section one hundred seventy-nine of the code. The members of the finance committee, before entering upon their official duties, shall each give an official bond in the sum of twenty-five thousand dollars, conditioned as provided by law, signed by sureties approved by the governor and, when so given, said bonds shall be filed in the office of the secretary of state. [33 G. A., ch. 170, § 7.]

SEC. 2682-j. Offices—supplies—official publications. The board and the finance committee shall be provided by the executive council with suitably furnished offices, at the seat of government, and shall be also furnished with all necessary books, blanks, stationery, printing, postage, stamps and such other office supplies as are furnished other state officers; and the board may publish from time to time, and distribute, such circulars, pamphlets, bulletins and reports as may by it be deemed necessary for the best interests of the institutions under its control; but the board shall secure the approval of the executive council therefor before incurring such expense, which shall be paid out of any funds in the treasury not otherwise appropriated. [34 G. A., ch. 132, § 2; 33 G. A., ch. 170, § 8.]

SEC. 2682-k. Business offices—employes—visitation. A business office shall also be maintained at each of the three educational institutions, and the board may hire such employes as may be necessary to enable the board to carry out the purposes of its creation, and to assist the said finance committee in the performance of its duties, and shall present to each general assembly an itemized account of the expenditures of said committee. The members of the finance committee shall, once each month, attend each of the institutions named for the purpose of familiarizing themselves with the work being done, and transacting any business that may properly be brought before them as a committee. [34 G. A., ch. 132, § 3; 33 G. A., ch. 170, § 9.]

SEC. 2682-l. Appropriation. There is hereby appropriated from any funds in the state treasury not otherwise appropriated, sufficient thereof to pay the salaries and expenses of the board and the finance committee, including the salaries and expenses of their assistants. [33 G. A., ch. 170, § 10.]

SEC. 2682-m. Compensation—expenses—official residences. Each member of the board shall be allowed seven dollars for each day that he is actually and necessarily engaged in the performance of official duties, not exceeding sixty days in any one year, and mileage at the rate of two cents per mile, by the nearest traveled and practicable route, in going from his home to the different institutions, or to other places, and in returning to his home when on official business. Members of the finance committee shall devote their entire time to the work of said institutions and shall each receive a salary of thirty-five hundred dollars a year. The members of the finance committee and other employes shall maintain their official residences at the places designated by the board, and shall be entitled to the necessary traveling expenses therefrom, by the nearest traveled and practicable route, incurred in visiting the different institutions and other places and returning therefrom when on official business; and to such other expenses as are actually and necessarily incurred in the performance of their official duties. [34 G. A., ch. 132, § 4; 33 G. A., ch. 170, § 11.]

SEC. 2682-n. Claims—approval. All claims of members of the said board of education for attendance upon meetings of the board for time actually and necessarily spent in official duties, shall be itemized, showing the date of such service and the nature thereof and shall be sworn to by such member and certified by the secretary of the board. It shall then be filed with the auditor of state, who shall compute the mileage due such claimant by the nearest traveled and practicable route from his home to the place of meeting and return, and shall enter such mileage on the claim; and, if it be in due form of law, the auditor shall draw his warrant upon the treasurer of state for the amount of said attendance and mileage. No compensation shall be allowed any member of such board except as provided herein. [33 G. A., ch. 170, § 12.]

SEC. 2682-o. Blanks for claims. The secretary of the executive council shall, upon request, furnish proper blanks prepared in accordance with the preceding section for the purpose of making claims by the members of such board. [33 G. A., ch. 170, § 13.]

SEC. 2682-p. Itemized statement of expenditures. Before any expenses of the members of the finance committee, or other person employed to assist such committee in the performance of its duties, under the direction of the board, shall be paid, a minutely itemized statement of every item of expenditure, duly verified and sworn to by the claimant and certified to by the secretary of the board, shall be filed with the auditor of state. The verification shall show that the expense bill is just, accurate, and true, and is claimed for cash expenditures or cash disbursements, truly and actually made and paid to the parties named, as shown by said statement. Unless the statement is so verified, and duly audited, payment thereof shall not be made. [33 G. A., ch. 170, § 14.]

SEC. 2682-q. Auditor's report. The auditor shall include in his report to the governor the amount paid for such services, expenses, and mileage, and to whom paid. [33 G. A., ch. 170, § 15.]

SEC. 2682-r. Financial agent—office abolished. The office of the financial agent of the college of agriculture and mechanic arts shall cease to exist on the first day of July, A. D. nineteen hundred and nine; and on said date the said financial agent shall deliver to the finance committee of the board of education all books, papers, and other property belonging to the state and then in his hands. [33 G. A., ch. 170, § 16.]

SEC. 2682-s. Authority to loan funds—conditions. The finance committee may loan said funds upon approved real estate security, subject to the following regulations:

1. Each loan shall be for a term not exceeding ten years, at a rate of interest to be fixed by said board; payable annually, and the borrower shall have the privilege of paying one hundred dollars or any multiple thereof on any interest pay day;

2. Each loan shall be secured by a mortgage paramount to all other liens upon approved farm lands in this state, the loan not to exceed fifty per cent. of the cash value thereof, exclusive of buildings;

3. A register containing a complete abstract of each loan and showing its actual condition shall be kept by the secretary of said board and be at all times open to inspection. [33 G. A., ch. 170, § 17.]

SEC. 2682-t. Mortgages—foreclosure—lands bid in. The finance committee of the board shall negotiate loans in accordance with the provisions of the preceding sections and shall release the mortgages securing loans when paid by a satisfaction piece signed by the president[1] or secretary of said finance committee and the same shall be recorded in the office of the county recorder of the county where said mortgage is recorded, or by the president[1] or secretary of said finance committee signing the same on the margin of the record of said mortgage, and shall take charge of the foreclosure of mortgages and collections from delinquent debtors to said fund. The foreclosure of any mortgage belonging to the state university or to the college of agriculture and mechanic arts shall be made in the name of the state board of education for the use and benefit of the institution to which it belongs; and, in case of a sale upon execution under foreclosure, the premises may be bid off in the name of the board of education for the benefit of the institution to which it belongs; and, if a deed therefor is executed, the premises shall be held for the benefit of such institution, and such lands shall be subject to lease or sale, the same as its other lands. [35 G. A., ch. 222, § 1; 33 G. A., ch. 170, § 18.]

[1The 34 G. A., by ch. 132, § 1, amended § 6, ch. 170, 33 G. A. (§ 2682-h herein), by changing the word "president" to "chairman" of the finance committee. EDITOR.]

SEC. 2682-u. Reports. The board shall make reports to the governor and legislature of its observations and conclusions respecting each and every one of the institutions named, including the regular biennial report to the legislature covering the biennial period ending June thirtieth, preceding the regular session of the general assembly. Said biennial report shall be made not later than October first in the year preceding the meeting of the general assembly, and shall also contain the reports which the executive officers of the several institutions are now or may be by the board required to make, including, for the use of the legislature, biennial estimates of appropriations necessary and proper to be made for the support of the said several institutions and for the extraordinary and special expenditures for buildings, betterments and other improvements. [33 G. A., ch. 170, § 19.]

SEC. 2682-v. Repeal. Sections twenty-six hundred seventeen, twenty-six hundred eighteen, twenty-six hundred nineteen, twenty-six hundred twenty, twenty-six hundred thirty-five, twenty-six hundred thirty-six, twenty-six hundred forty-two, twenty-six hundred forty-seven, twenty-six hundred fifty-one, twenty-six hundred fifty-two, twenty-six hundred fifty-three, twenty-six hundred sixty-eight, twenty-six hundred sixty-nine, twenty-six hundred seventy and twenty-six hundred eighty-one of the code, and the law as it appears in sections twenty-six hundred forty-six, twenty-six hundred fifty, twenty-seven hundred twenty-seven-a fifty-three, twenty-seven hundred twenty-seven-a fifty-four, twenty-seven hundred twenty-seven-a fifty-five and twenty-seven hundred twenty-seven-a fifty-six of the supplement to the code, 1907, and all acts and parts of acts inconsistent with this act are hereby repealed. [33 G. A., ch. 170, § 20.]

SEC. 2682-w. College for blind—control transferred. That all the powers heretofore granted to and exercised by the board of control over the college for the blind are hereby transferred to the state board of education and the state board of education is authorized and empowered to take charge of, manage and control said college for the blind. [34 G. A., ch. 141, § 3.]

SEC. 2682-x. Funds transferred. All funds now in the hands of the treasurer of state to the credit of the said college for the blind are transferred from the board of control to the state board of education. [34 G. A., ch. 141, § 4.]

SEC. 2682-y. Appropriations—paid in monthly installments. All appropriations made payable annually to the state university, the Iowa state college of agriculture and mechanic arts, the Iowa state teachers college and the college for the blind, shall on and after July first, nineteen hundred thirteen, be paid in twelve equal monthly installments on the last day of each month on order of the Iowa state board of education. [35 G. A., ch. 324, § 1.]

CHAPTER 6.

IOWA SOLDIERS' ORPHANS' HOME.

SECTION 2683. Trustees and officers. The Iowa soldiers' orphans' home, located at Davenport, shall be under the management and control of three trustees, one of whom shall be a resident of Scott county. They shall, at their meeting in May after the regular session of the legislature, elect a president and secretary from their number, and shall elect a treasurer who shall be a resident of the county in which the home is situated, and he shall serve without compensation. The treasurer shall give a bond in a sum to be fixed by the board, with good and sufficient sureties, to be filed with and approved by the secretary of state, and conditioned for the faithful discharge of his duties and the safe keeping and proper disbursement of all money coming into his hands by virtue of his office. The secretary shall keep full and accurate minutes of the doings of the board, the meetings of which shall be held at the home. The board of trustees shall examine all applications for admission, and reject any for good and sufficient cause. It shall appoint a superintendent, who shall hold his or her office at its pleasure and subject to its direction. The superintendent, subject to the board, shall have charge of the institution and its conduct, and the board shall make biennial reports to the governor of the condition of the home, financial and otherwise. [27 G. A., ch. 78, § 2; 22 G. A., ch. 74; 22 G. A., ch. 82, § 30; 16 G. A., ch. 94, §§ 4, 10; C. '73, §§ 1623–4, 1629, 1632.]

SEC. 2685. Admissions. All destitute children of soldiers, sailors and marines, residents of the state, orphans of soldiers under fifteen years of age, who are destitute or unable to care for themselves, shall be admitted upon applications approved by the board of trustees of the home and become wards of the state, and such other destitute children of like age who have a legal settlement in the state, and whose applications for admission are approved by the board of supervisors or a judge of a court of record, shall be received into the home, but none in the latter class shall be so admitted as long as there are applicants denied in the former; all applications in the latter class to be made to a judge in the district of the applicant's residence, or the board of supervisors of the county in which the applicant is living. [31 G. A., ch. 126; 27 G. A., ch. 78, § 3; 21 G. A., ch. 111; 16 G. A., ch. 94, §§ 1, 2.]

SEC. 2688. Regulations. All children admitted to the home shall be subject to the rules and regulations of the same, and, subject to the approval of the trustees, may be expelled by the superintendent for disobedience and refusal to submit to proper discipline. They shall also be discharged upon arriving at the age of sixteen years, or sooner if possessed of sufficient means to provide for themselves. [27 G. A., ch. 78, § 4; 16 G. A., ch. 94, § 3; C. '73, § 1634.]

SEC. 2690. Adoption of orphans—repeal. Section twenty-six hundred ninety of the code and all acts and parts of acts in conflict with this act are hereby repealed. [31 G. A., ch. 127, § 5.]

SEC. 2690-a. Placing of child by adoption. That any child in the Iowa soldiers' orphans' home who is an orphan or has been abandoned by its parents, and any child in the home who is not an orphan and who has not been abandoned, with the consent in writing of its parents, or if but one be living, with the consent in writing of the survivor, may be adopted by any citizen of this state on the recommendations of the superintendent with the approval of the board of control of state institutions. The adoption shall be by an instrument in writing to be signed by the superintendent, subject to the approval, in writing, of the board of control, and by the person adopting, and except as herein otherwise provided such instrument shall be signed and recorded as provided by chapter seven of title sixteen of the code as amended and the adoption shall create the rights and liabilities provided by said chapter as amended. [31 G. A., ch. 127, § 1.]

SEC. 2690-b. Placing of child by contract. That the law as it appears in section twenty-six hundred ninety-b of the supplement to the code, 1907, is hereby repealed and in lieu thereof is enacted the following:

"All children received in the soldiers' orphans' home, whether admitted on application of a parent, guardian or other person or committed as dependent or neglected under the law as it appears in chapter five-B of title three of the supplement to the code, 1907, shall when received become wards of the state. Any child so received, unless adopted as authorized under the law as it appears in section twenty-six hundred ninety-a of the supplement to the code, 1907, may be placed by the superintendent with any person or family of good standing and character where it will be cared for and educated properly. Such child shall be placed under articles of agreement to be signed by the person or persons taking the child and the superintendent, approved in writing by the board of control of state institutions, which articles shall provide for the custody, care, education, maintenance and earnings of the child for a time to be therein fixed which shall not extend beyond the time when the child shall attain its majority." [34 G. A., ch. 133, § 1.] [31 G. A., ch. 127, § 2.]

SEC. 2690-c. Recovery of possession of child. In case any child, whether adopted or placed under articles of agreement for a term of years, is not furnished the care, education, treatment and maintenance required by the articles of adoption or agreement, the board of control may cause the child to be taken from the person or persons with whom it is placed, and may make such other disposition of it as shall seem to be for its best interests. And in case legal proceedings are necessary to recover the possession of such child they may be instituted and carried on in the name of the superintendent, and the county attorney of the county in which the child is placed shall, if requested by the superintendent, act as his attorney in the proceedings. [31 G. A., ch. 127, § 3.]

SEC. 2690-d. Interference of parent or other person prohibited. It shall not be lawful for any parent or other person not a party to the placing of a child by adoption or for a term of years under the provisions of this act, to interfere in any manner with or to assume or exercise any control over such child or his earnings while so placed, but such earnings shall be used, held, or otherwise applied for the exclusive benefit of the child. [31 G. A., ch. 127, § 4.]

SEC. 2691. Appropriation—per capita allowance. That the law as it appears in section twenty-six hundred ninety-one of the supplement to the code, 1907, is hereby repealed and in lieu thereof is enacted the following:

"For the support of the home there is hereby appropriated out of any money in the state treasury not otherwise appropriated, or so much thereof as may be needed, twelve dollars for each child actually supported, and in addition the expense of his transmission to the home, which sums shall be paid upon abstracts and certificates as required by the law as it appears in section twenty-seven hundred twenty-seven-a forty-two and section twenty-seven hundred twenty-seven-a forty-three of the supplement to the code, 1907. The number of children shall be ascertained by taking the average attendance for the preceding month. Provided, however, that if the average number of children shall be less than five hundred fifty in any month the auditor of state and the treasurer of state shall credit the home with sixty-six hundred dollars for that month and the sum so credited shall be drawn from the state treasury in the same manner and for the same purposes as the regular monthly per capita allowance is drawn." [35 G. A., ch. 229, § 1.] [30 G. A., ch. 106, § 1; 16 G. A., ch. 94, § 5; C. '73, §§ 1630–1.]

SEC. 2692. Counties liable. That the law as it appears in section twenty-six hundred ninety-two of the supplement to the code, 1907, is hereby repealed and in lieu thereof is enacted the following:

"Each county shall be liable for sums paid by the home in support of all its children, other than the children of soldiers, to the extent of six dollars per month for each child, and when the average number of children shall be less than five hundred fifty in any month each county shall be liable for its just proportion for each child of the amount credited to the home for that month. The sums for which each county is so liable shall be charged to the county, and collected as a part of the taxes due the state, and paid by the county at the same time state taxes are paid." [35 G. A., ch. 229, § 2.] [30 G. A., ch. 106, § 2; 27 G. A., ch. 78, § 5; 16 G. A., ch. 94, § 6.]

OF STATE AGENTS.

SECTION 2692-a. State agents—appointment—salary—office—supplies. That the board of control of state institutions is authorized to appoint not more than three persons to act as state agents for the soldiers' orphans' home, and for the industrial school. The salaries of such agents shall be fixed by said board, in no case to exceed seventy-five dollars per month, and they may hold their positions during its pleasure. The board shall procure and furnish the agents with office room and such furniture, books, blanks and supplies as may be necessary for the proper discharge of their duties in the same manner as supplies are now furnished other officers of the board. Provided that the board may furnish such office room and supplies to said agents at one or more of the institutions for which they are to act, and may require the institutions to furnish the agents with room, board and facilities for transacting business when stopping therein without charge. [33 G. A., ch. 172, § 1.] [31 G. A., ch. 181, § 1.]

SEC. 2692-b. Duties. The duties of the agents shall be as prescribed by law and by the board of control. In addition to other duties they shall be required to find suitable homes, positions and employment when desirable for inmates of said institutions who are to be or have been released, to inspect the homes of such persons, to exercise supervision over such persons, examine into their conduct and environment, and when the conduct of any such persons who have not been finally discharged has been bad or in violation of[1] any of the conditions of their release to return them or cause them to be returned to the institutions from which they were released, or in such cases or when the environment or associations are bad to require them to obtain other homes or places of employment. The state agent shall keep records of their acts and report to the board of control when required the work they do, and results accomplished, the treatment received and the failure or progress made by the persons under supervision and other information required by the board. [31 G. A., ch. 181, § 2.]

SEC. 2692-c. Appropriation — how expended—money advanced. That section two of chapter one hundred seventy-two of the acts of the thirty-third general assembly and the law as it appears in section twenty-six hundred ninety-two-c as amended are hereby repealed and in lieu thereof is enacted the following:

"There is hereby appropriated out of any money in the state treasury not otherwise appropriated the sum of five thousand dollars annually for the payment of salaries and expenses of the state agents and other expenses incurred under the provisions of this act, such salaries and expenses to be paid in the manner provided by section twenty-seven hundred twenty-seven-a six of the supplement to the code, 1907. Provided that the board of control may cause to be advanced from the funds hereby appropriated to each agent from time to time the sums to be used in defraying the official expenses of such agent, but the aggregate amount of money so advanced and not expended at any time shall not exceed the sum of two hundred fifty dollars, and the agent shall give security to be approved by the board for the proper use and accounting each month of all money so advanced." [34 G. A., ch. 134, § 1; 33 G. A., ch. 172, § 2.] [31 G. A., ch. 181, § 3.]

SEC. 2692-d. Repeal. Chapter one hundred fifty-seven of the acts of the thirtieth general assembly and all other acts and parts of acts in conflict with this act are hereby repealed. [31 G. A., ch. 181, § 4; 30 G. A., ch. 157.]

OF THE INSTITUTION FOR FEEBLE-MINDED CHILDREN.

SECTION 2695-a. Admission of certain women. That all feeble-minded women under forty-six years of age who are residents of the state of Iowa may be admitted to the institution for feeble-minded children at Glenwood. [29 G. A., ch. 118, § 1.]

SEC. 2695-b. Statutes applicable. The provisions of chapter seven of title thirteen of the code, in regard to the admission and maintenance of children in said institution, shall apply to the admission and maintenance of feeble-minded women authorized by this act. [29 G. A., ch. 118, § 2.]

SEC. 2695-c. Admission of certain men. That all feeble-minded men under forty-six years of age who are residents of the state of Iowa, may be admitted to the institution for feeble-minded children at Glenwood. [33 G. A., ch. 173, § 1.]

SEC. 2695-d. Statutes applicable. The provision of chapter seven of title thirteen of the code in regard to the admission and maintenance of feeble-minded children in said institution shall apply to the admission and maintenance of feeble-minded men authorized by this act. [33 G. A., ch. 173, § 2.]

SEC. 2700. Support. For the support of the institution, there is appropriated out of any money in the state treasury, not otherwise appropriated, the sum of twelve dollars monthly for each inmate therein supported by the state, counting the actual time such person is an inmate and so supported. Upon the presentation to the state auditor of a sworn statement of the average number of inmates supported in the institution by the state for the preceding month, he shall draw his warrant upon the state treasurer for such sum. [27 G. A., ch. 79, §§ 1, 2; 23 G. A., ch. 56; 19 G. A., ch. 40, § 9.]

CHAPTER 8.

OF INDUSTRIAL SCHOOLS.

[For general supervision by board of control and abolishment of board of trustees, see §§ 2727-a8 and 2727-a9. EDITOR.]

SECTION 2701-a. Separate institutions—designation. That the state industrial schools at Eldora and Mitchellville are hereby declared to be separate and distinct institutions. The school at Eldora shall be known and designated hereafter as the Iowa Industrial School for Boys and the school at Mitchellville shall be known and designated hereafter as the Iowa Industrial School for Girls. [35 G. A., ch. 230, § 1.]

SEC. 2701-b. Acts in conflict repealed. All acts and parts of acts in conflict with this act are hereby repealed. [35 G. A., ch. 230, § 2.]

SEC. 2703-a. Repeal. That section twenty-seven hundred and two and section twenty-seven hundred and three of the code be and the same are hereby repealed. [28 G. A., ch. 100, § 1.]

SEC. 2704. Placing of boys and girls under contract—conditions. That the law as it appears in section twenty-seven hundred and four of the supplement to the code, 1907, is hereby repealed and in lieu thereof is enacted the following:

"All boys and girls committed to and received in the industrial school may be placed by the superintendent, with the approval in writing of the board of control of state institutions, with any persons or in any families of good standing and character where they will be properly cared for and educated. They shall be so placed under articles of agreement to be signed by the person or persons taking them and the superintendent, approved by said board of control, which shall provide for their custody, care, education, maintenance and earnings for a time to be fixed in said articles, which shall not extend beyond the time when the persons bound shall attain their majority. In case a boy or girl so placed be not given the care, education, treatment and maintenance required by such agreement, the board of control may cause the boy or girl to be taken from the person or persons with whom placed and returned to the institution, or may replace, release, or finally discharge him or her as may seem best. It shall not be lawful for any parent or other persons not a party to the placing of a boy or girl to interfere in any manner or assume or exercise any control over such boy or girl or his or her earnings which shall be used, held or otherwise applied for the exclusive benefit of such boy or girl. In case legal proceedings are necessary to enforce any right hereby conferred on any boy or girl, the county attorney of the county in which such proceedings should be instituted shall, on request of the superintendent, approved by the board of control, institute and carry on in the name of the superintendent, the proceedings in behalf of the superintendent." [34 G. A., ch. 135, § 1.] [31 G. A., ch. 128; 28 G. A., ch. 100, § 2; C. '73, § 1649.]

SEC. 2705. Visits—reports—repealed. [28 G. A., ch. 100, § 3.] [See § 2705-a.]

SEC. 2705-a. Repeal. That section twenty-seven hundred and five of the code be and the same is hereby repealed. [28 G. A., ch. 100, § 3.]

SEC. 2705-b. Report by superintendent. The superintendent of the industrial school at Mitchellville shall, on or before the first day of January of each year, and at any other time when so requested by the board of control of state institutions, make a report to the said board in writing, touching all matters required of him by said board. [28 G. A., ch. 100, § 4.]

SEC. 2707. Superintendent—powers and duties. The superintendent, with such subordinate officers and employes as he may appoint, shall have charge and custody of the inmates of the school. He shall discipline, govern, instruct, employ, and use his best endeavors to reform the pupils in his care, so that, while preserving their health, he may promote, as far as possible, moral, religious and industrious habits, regular, thorough and progressive improvement in their studies, trade and employment. He shall have charge of all the property of the institution. [28 G. A., ch. 100, § 5; C. '73, §§ 1651–2.]

SEC. 2708. Commitment—conditions—procedure. That the law as it appears in section twenty-seven hundred and eight of the supplement to the code, 1907, and chapter one hundred seventy-four of the acts of the thirty-third general assembly is hereby repealed and in lieu thereof is enacted the following:

"When a boy over the age of ten years and under eighteen, or [a] girl over the age of ten years and under eighteen, of sound mind, excepting married women, prostitutes, or any girl who is pregnant, shall be found guilty in any court of record of any crime excepting that of murder, the court in its discretion may, instead of entering judgment of conviction, order and direct the party to be sent to the industrial school, if a boy to the department at Eldora, if a girl, to that at Mitchellville, which order, certified by the clerk of the court and under its seal, shall be sufficient authority for his or her transfer to and confinement in said school. If such a boy or girl is convicted before any inferior court of a crime, or shall be found to be guilty of being a disorderly person, he or she may be forthwith sent by the court, accompanied with all the papers filed in his office upon the subject, in custody of an officer, to a judge of a court of record, who shall thereupon issue an order, directed to the parent or guardian of the party, or to such person as may have him or her in charge, or with whom he or she last resided, or one known to be nearly related to him or her, or if he or she be alone and friendless, then to any person the judge may appoint to act as guardian for the purposes of the case, requiring him or her to appear at a time and place stated and show cause why the party should not be committed to the industrial school, which order shall be served by an officer by delivering a copy to the party to whom it is addressed, or by leaving it with some person of full age at the residence or place of business of said party, and immediate return shall be made to the judge of the service. At the time and place mentioned in the order, or to which the hearing may be adjourned, on the appearance of the parent or guardian, or, in case of their failure to appear, then after the appointment of some suitable person as guardian for the purposes of the case, the judge shall proceed to take the voluntary examination of the boy or girl, to hear the statements of the party appearing for him or her, and such testimony in relation to the case as may be produced, and if upon such examination and hearing he shall be satisfied that the boy or girl is a fit subject for the industrial school, he may commit him or her to said school, until he or she arrives at the age of twenty-one years, by warrant, which warrant shall state the place in which the party resided at the time of arrest, and his or her age, as nearly as can be ascertained, and shall command the officer to take and deliver without delay to the superintendent of said school or other person in charge thereof the said boy or girl, and the statement as to residence or age shall be conclusive thereof for the purposes of this chapter. With the warrant, the judge shall also transmit a statement of the nature of the complaint, and such other particulars concerning the accused as he may be able to ascertain, including the date of birth, and a brief statement of the habits and environment of the accused, arrests if any for misconduct, influence and conduct of parents and other members of the family, and the substance of the evidence submitted. If the judge is of the opinion that the boy or girl is not a fit subject for the school, or if said boy or girl shall appeal from the decision of the court in which the conviction was had, he shall remand him or her to the custody of the officer who had him or her in charge, to be returned to the magistrate before whom the conviction was had, to be dealt with according to law." [34 G. A., ch. 136, § 1; 33 G. A., ch. 174, § 1.] [31 G. A., ch. 129; 29 G. A., ch. 119, §§ 1, 2; 28 G. A., ch. 100, §§ 6, 12; 27 G. A., ch. 80, § 1; 16 G. A., ch. 38, §§ 2–4; C. '73, §§ 1653–8.]

SEC. 2708-a. Repeal. That section twelve, section thirteen, and section fourteen of chapter one hundred, laws of the twenty-eighth general assembly, be and the same are hereby repealed. [29 G. A., ch. 119, § 1; 28 G. A., ch. 100, §§ 12–14.]

SEC. 2709. Complaint by parent or guardian. The law as it appears in section twenty-seven hundred and nine of the supplement to the code, 1907, is hereby repealed and in lieu thereof is enacted the following:

"If any parent or guardian shall make complaint to a judge of a court of record that any boy over the age of ten years and under eighteen, or girl over the age of ten years and under eighteen, the child or ward of such parent or guardian, is habitually vagrant, disorderly or incorrigible, said judge shall issue a warrant to the sheriff or constable to cause said boy or girl to be brought before him at such time and place as he may appoint, when and where he shall examine the parties, and if in his judgment the boy or girl is a fit subject for the industrial school, he may issue an order, with the consent of said parent or guardian indorsed thereon, to be executed by the sheriff or constable, committing said boy or girl to the custody of the superintendent of said school for reformation and instruction until he or she attains the age of twenty-one years; but security for the payment of the expenses of said complaint, commitment and transportation to the school, and the expenses of board thereat, may, in the discretion of the judge, be required of said parent or guardian before such order is executed. Provided, however, that no married woman, prostitute, or girl who is pregnant shall be committed under the provisions of this section, and provided further that with the order the judge shall also transmit a statement of the nature of the complaint, and such other particulars as he may be able to ascertain, including the date of birth and a brief statement of the habits and environment of the accused, arrests if any for misconduct, influence and conduct of parents and other members of the family, and the substance of the evidence submitted." [34 G. A., ch. 136, § 2; 33 G. A., ch. 174, § 2.] [29 G. A., ch. 119, §§ 1, 3; 28 G. A., ch. 100, §§ 7, 11, 13; 27 G. A., ch. 80, § 2; 19 G. A., ch. 150; C. '73, § 1659.]

SEC. 2710. Return to county. If any person committed to the industrial school shall prove unruly or incorrigible, or if his or her presence shall be manifestly and constantly dangerous or detrimental to the welfare of the school, the board of control of state institutions may order his or her removal to the county from which he or she came, and deliver to the jailer of such county, where proceedings shall be resumed as if no committal had been made to the industrial school. [28 G. A., ch. 100, § 8; C. '73, § 1662.]

SEC. 2711. Discharge—parole. No one shall be committed to the industrial school for a longer term than until he or she attains the age of twenty-one years, and the board of control of state institutions may at any time after one year's service order the discharge or parole of any inmate as a reward for good conduct. And the board may, in exceptional cases, discharge or parole inmates without regard to the length of their service or conduct, when satisfied that the reasons therefor are urgent and sufficient. If paroled upon satisfactory evidence of reformation, the order may remain in effect or terminate under such rules and regulations as the board may prescribe. The binding out or the discharge of an inmate as reformed, or having arrived at the age of twenty-one years, shall be a complete release from all penalties incurred by the conviction for the offense upon which he or she was committed to the school. [29 G. A., ch. 120, § 1; 29 G. A., ch. 119, §§ 1, 4; 28 G. A., ch. 100, §§ 9, 11, 14; 27 G. A., ch. 80, § 2; 25 G. A., ch. 106; 19 G. A., ch. 150; C. '73, §§ 1660–1.]

SEC. 2711-a. Repeal. That chapter eighty of the laws of the twenty-seventh general assembly be and the same is hereby repealed. [28 G. A., ch. 100, § 11.]

SEC. 2713. Support—per capita allowance. That chapter one hundred thirty-seven of the acts of the thirty-fourth general assembly is hereby repealed, and in lieu thereof is enacted the following:

"For the support of the industrial school there is hereby appropriated out of any money in the state treasury not otherwise appropriated, or so much thereof as may be necessary; thirteen dollars monthly for each boy and sixteen dollars monthly for each girl actually supported in said school, counting the average number therein for each month; the monthly statement for each department to be verified by its superintendent and presented to the state auditor who shall draw his warrant upon the state treasurer for the same; provided, however, that when the average number of inmates in the department for boys shall be less than four hundred eighty for any month said department shall be credited by the auditor of state and the treasurer of state with the sum of sixty-two hundred forty dollars, and when the average number of inmates in the department for girls shall be less than two hundred thirty-five for any month said department shall be credited by the auditor of state and the treasurer of state with the sum of thirty-seven hundred sixty dollars, and any sum which shall be credited to either department as aforesaid shall be drawn from the state treasury as the regular monthly per capita allowance is drawn." [35 G. A., ch. 231, § 1; 34 G. A., ch. 137, § 1.] [31 G. A., ch. 130, § 1; 30 G. A., ch. 143; 29 G. A., ch. 159, § 1; 28 G. A., ch. 101, § 1; 28 G. A., ch. 100, § 10; 27 G. A., ch. 81, § 1; 23 G. A., ch. 54; 19 G. A., ch. 92, § 1; 17 G. A., ch. 97, § 1; 15 G. A., ch. 21, § 1.]

SEC. 2713-1a. Appropriation for dental work. There is further appropriated out of any money in the state treasury, not otherwise appropriated, the sum of one thousand dollars for the industrial school at Eldora and four hundred dollars for the industrial school at Mitchellville. The same, or so much thereof as shall be necessary, shall be used, in connection with the support fund heretofore appropriated, to furnish proper dental work for those supported in said schools. The statements to be made and vouchers drawn for said funds shall be as provided in the first section of this bill. [31 G. A., ch. 130, § 2.]

[This section was § 2713-a1 in the prior supplement. EDITOR.]

SEC. 2713-2a. Commitment to other institutions for girls authorized. Whenever under the provisions of chapter eight, title thirteen, of the code, the supplement to the code, 1907, and amendments thereto, any court or judge is authorized to commit any female within the ages therein prescribed to the state industrial school, said court or judge may, instead of committing said female to said industrial school as therein provided, commit the said female to the care of any reputable institution within this state devoted to the detention and reformation of wayward and fallen girls, in which event the provisions of chapter eight, title thirteen, of the code, the supplement to the code, 1907, and amendments thereto, and sections thirty-two hundred sixty-g, thirty-two hundred sixty-j and thirty-two hundred sixty-k, supplement to the code, 1907, shall govern so far as applicable. [34 G. A., ch. 138, § 1.]

SEC. 2713-3a. Monthly allowance. The institution receiving and caring for any female under the provisions of this act shall be entitled as compensation not to exceed a monthly allowance of sixteen dollars from the county of the legal settlement of such female, the same to be allowed by the board of supervisors and paid in the [same] manner as other claims against said county are paid. [34 G. A., ch. 138, § 2.]

SEC. 2713-4a. Report to governor. Each institution above referred to shall, on or before the first day of January in each year, make a report to the governor of the state showing the number of inmates in such institution admitted under the provisions of this act, and the total amount paid for each inmate. [34 G. A., ch. 138, § 3.]

CHAPTER 8-A.

IOWA INDUSTRIAL REFORMATORY FOR FEMALES.

SECTION 2713-a. Name and location. There is hereby established at Anamosa, Iowa, the Iowa industrial reformatory for females. [28 G. A., ch. 102, § 1.]

SEC. 2713-b. Management—officers—rooms. Said reformatory shall be under the control of the board of control of state institutions, and the immediate management of it shall be under such officers as said board may deem proper, but the chief executive officer of said institution, so selected by the board, shall appoint all subordinate officers and employes, as provided in chapter one hundred eighteen, acts of the twenty-seventh general assembly, and the salary or compensation to be paid any officer or employe of said reformatory shall be fixed in the manner provided in said chapter. Said reformatory may use and occupy the building now known as the female department of the penitentiary at Anamosa, except the two rooms on the lower floor at the right of the main entrance of the said female department, which may be used as store rooms by said penitentiary and reformatory, and said rooms shall be under the control of the warden of the penitentiary. [28 G. A., ch. 102, § 2.]

SEC. 2713-c. When opened. Said reformatory may be opened under the direction of the board of control of state institutions as soon as the female department of the penitentiary and the warden's house shall be completed. [28 G. A., ch. 102, § 3.]

SEC. 2713-d. Instruction. Any woman or girl committed or transferred to said institution shall be instructed in piety and morality, and in such branches of useful knowledge as are adapted to her age and capacity, and in some regular course of labor, as is best suited to her age, strength, disposition, and capacity, and as promises best to secure the reformation and future well-being of the inmate, and to that end the board of control is authorized to establish, and cause to be operated, in such institutions, schools for education and industrial training as may be deemed best. [28 G. A., ch. 102, § 4.]

SEC. 2713-e. Commitment—minimum age. All girls who may now be committed under chapter eight, title thirteen, of the code, to the industrial school at Mitchellville, may, in the discretion of the district court or judge thereof, be committed to said industrial school or to this reformatory; provided, however, that no girl under nine years of age shall in any event be committed to said reformatory or to said industrial school under the provisions of this act or of chapter eight, title thirteen, of the code. [28 G. A., ch. 102, § 5.]

SEC. 2713-f. Transfer from industrial school. Any woman or girl over the age of fourteen years, who may be an inmate of the industrial school for girls, whom the superintendent of such school may report to the board of control of state institutions as being unruly and incorrigible, and whose presence is dangerous and detrimental to the welfare of such school, may be, upon investigation of the charge by the board of control, and the same being substantiated, ordered transferred by said board of control to said reformatory to be kept there, under such rules and regulations as may be provided therefor and for the length of time prescribed by chapter eight of title thirteen of the code. [28 G. A., ch. 102, § 6.]

SEC. 2713-g. Discharge or parole. The board of control shall have power to order the discharge or parole of any person who is confined under the provisions of this act in said reformatory, said discharge or parole to be a reward for good conduct and for proficiency in studies, and for excellency in work in the industrial department. If paroled, such order shall remain in effect, or terminate under such rules and regulations as may, with the approval of the board, be prescribed. [28 G. A., ch. 102, § 7.]

SEC. 2713-h. Officers of penitentiary shall serve. The physician, chaplain, and storekeeper at the Anamosa penitentiary shall also serve in the same capacity for the Iowa industrial reformatory for females, for the compensation already provided by law. [28 G. A., ch. 102, § 8.]

SEC. 2713-i. Board to notify judges and clerks. At least thirty days prior to the opening of said institution for the reception of inmates, the board of control shall officially notify each judge of the district, superior, or police courts, and each clerk of the district court, of each county in this state, of the time when such institution shall be open for the reception of inmates. [28 G. A., ch. 102, § 9.]

SEC. 2713-j. Board to name officers and fix salaries. The board of control of state institutions shall determine what officers may be necessary at said institution, in addition to the superintendent heretofore provided for, and fix the salaries of the same, and may prescribe their duties, and they shall be appointed in the manner prescribed in chapter one hundred eighteen, acts of the twenty-seventh general assembly, which chapter shall apply to and govern said institution in all respects, except as herein provided. [28 G. A., ch. 102, § 10.]

SEC. 2713-k. Heat, light, water, furnished. Heat, light, water, sewer facilities, power to operate machinery if needed, shall all be furnished to said reformatory free by the penitentiary at Anamosa. [28 G. A., ch. 102, § 11.]

SEC. 2713-l. Per capita appropriation—estimates for supplies. There is hereby appropriated for the support, care, maintenance, clothing, and transportation of the inmates of the said reformatory, and for the purpose of maintaining the schools therein, the sum of fifteen dollars per month per capita, or so much thereof as may be necessary for each inmate thereof; said per capita to be based upon the average number present for the preceding month, and to be available one month in advance. The chief executive officer of said institution is hereby authorized, a month in advance of said opening, to make estimate herein provided for all supplies for the operation of said institution, on the basis of fifty inmates for the first month. Thereafter, all the provisions of chapter one hundred eighteen, acts of the twenty-seventh general assembly, relating to estimates, vouchers, reports, and otherwise, shall apply to this institution, providing that said estimates shall be made by the warden of the penitentiary at Anamosa, Iowa, upon information furnished by the chief executive officer of said institution, and the said warden shall return to the board of control of state institutions said estimates for approval; and requisitions for supplies needed in said reformatory shall be made upon said warden by such officer of said reformatory as the board of control may designate, and said requisitions shall be honored by the said warden and the storekeeper of said penitentiary. [28 G. A., ch. 102, § 12.]

SEC. 2713-m. Appropriation for industries. For the purpose of establishing and operating proper industries in said institution, there is hereby appropriated the sum of one thousand dollars, or so much thereof as may be necessary, and for the purpose of furnishing said reformatory there is hereby appropriated the sum of fifteen hundred dollars, or so much thereof as may be necessary. [28 G. A., ch. 102, § 13.]

SEC. 2713-n. Government and discipline. The board of control of state institutions is hereby authorized to make any provisions for the government, discipline, and control of said institution, not herein specifically provided for, and not in conflict with law. [28 G. A., ch. 102, § 14.]

CHAPTER 9.

OF THE COLLEGE FOR THE BLIND.

[For government by state board of education see §§ 2682-c and 2682-w. EDITOR.]

SECTION 2715. Admission. All blind persons, residents of the state, of suitable age and capacity, shall be entitled to an education in this institution at the expense of the state, and nonresidents may also be entitled to the benefits thereof, if they can be accommodated therein, upon paying to the treasurer sixty-six dollars quarterly in advance. [30 G. A., ch. 107; 17 G. A., ch. 72, § 1; C. '73, §§ 1672, 1680; R. §§ 2147–8.]

SEC. 2717. Report. On or before the fifteenth day of August in each even-numbered year, the principal of the college shall report to the governor the number of pupils in attendance, the name, age, sex, residence, place of nativity and cause of blindness, with the studies pursued, trades taught, and a complete statement of the expenditures made, and the number, kind and value of articles manufactured and sold. Provided that the report for the year nineteen hundred and six shall cover only the period from the date of the last biennial report. [31 G. A., ch. 131; 22 G. A., ch. 82, § 32; C. '73, § 1677.]

SEC. 2718-a. Appropriation—per capita allowance. That the law as it appears in section twenty-seven hundred eighteen-a of the supplement to the code, 1907, is hereby repealed and in lieu thereof is enacted the following:

"For the support of the college and to meet the ordinary and current expenses thereof, including the compensation of officers, teachers and other employes, the purchase of supplies of food, clothing, furniture and furnishings, books, maps and apparatus, and other incidental expenses, there is hereby appropriated out of any money in the state treasury not otherwise appropriated, or so much thereof as may be needed, twenty-two dollars per month for nine months each year for each resident pupil actually supported in the college. Said sum shall be placed to the credit of the college on the certificate of the board of control of state institutions, which shall show the average number of pupils in the college for the preceding month, and shall be paid from the state treasury as provided by the law as it appears in section twenty-seven hundred twenty-seven-a one and subsequent sections to and including section twenty-seven hundred twenty-seven-a fifty-one of the supplement to the code, 1907, and acts amendatory thereof. Provided, however, that when the average number of resident pupils shall be less than one hundred sixty for any one of the nine months, the sum of thirty-six hundred dollars shall be placed to the credit of the college and paid as herein provided." [34 G. A., ch. 139, § 1.] [29 G. A., ch. 121, § 1; 27 G. A., ch. 82; 19 G. A., ch. 166; 18 G. A., ch. 165; 17 G. A., ch. 72, § 2; C. '73, §§ 1675–6, 1679.]

SEC. 2718-b. Prior expenses—allowance. All expenses of the college incurred prior to the first day of March, A. D. nineteen hundred and two, shall be paid from the funds heretofore authorized by section twenty-seven hundred eighteen of the code, as amended, and the monthly allowance authorized by this act shall be computed from the first day of February, A. D. nineteen hundred and two. [29 G. A., ch. 121, § 2.]

SEC. 2718-c. Blind and deaf children—compulsory education. Children, residents of the state, between twelve and nineteen years of age, who are so deaf as to be unable to obtain an education in the common schools, and children of such age whose sight is so defective that they cannot attend the public schools, must attend the school for the deaf or the college for the blind during the scholastic year, unless exempted as hereinafter provided. [33 G. A., ch. 175, § 1.]

SEC. 2718-d. Failure to comply—penalty. Any person having such a child under his control and who fails to comply with any of the provisions of this act, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be fined not exceeding twenty-five dollars, or imprisoned not exceeding eight days. [33 G. A., ch. 175, § 2.]

SEC. 2718-e. Encouraging absence—penalty for. Any person who induces or attempts to induce any deaf or blind child to absent himself or herself from school, or employs or harbors any such child while his or her school is in session shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be fined or imprisoned as provided in the preceding section. [33 G. A., ch. 175, § 3.]

SEC. 2718-f. Attendance excused—conditions. The superintendent of the school for the deaf, or the superintendent of the college for the blind, with the approval of the board of control of state institutions may excuse attendance when satisfied:

1. That the child is in such bodily or mental condition as to prevent his or her attendance at school.
2. That the child is so diseased or possesses such habits as to render his or her presence a menace to the health or morals of other pupils, or for any reason deemed good and sufficient.
3. That the child is efficiently taught for the scholastic year in a private or other school, or by a private tutor, the branches taught in the public schools. [33 G. A., ch. 175, § 4.]

OF THE INDUSTRIAL HOME FOR THE BLIND.

[See §§ 2727-a8 and 2727-a9 for supervision by board of control and abolishment of board of trustees. See also § 2722-h, which doubtless repeals all of ch. 10 of the code. EDITOR.]

SECTION 2722-a. Board of control to close institution—expenses of inmates. As soon as practicable after the passage of this act, the board of control of state institutions is directed to close the industrial home for the blind at Knoxville, to cease all manufacturing thereat, and to cause to be sent to their homes in this state, all of the inmates therein, who may desire to return home, paying the actual expenses thereof, and they are also authorized to give each of said inmates a sum not exceeding twenty-five dollars to cover their incidental expense on their journey home. [28 G. A., ch. 103, § 1.]

SEC. 2722-b. Custodian. Said board of control is hereby authorized to employ a proper person as a custodian, whose business it shall be to care for said buildings and all other state property on said farm. He shall live in the building, and shall be paid such sum per month as the board may deem proper for his services. [28 G. A., ch. 103, § 2.]

SEC. 2722-c. Authority to lease the farm. Said board is authorized to lease the farm and collect the rental thereof, or they may, if a suitable arrangement can be made, make the lessee of the farm the custodian of said buildings and property. [28 G. A., ch. 103, § 3.]

SEC. 2722-d. Disposition of personal property. Said board is authorized to sell such of the personal property at said institution or on said farm as they may deem proper to any person, or they may sell the same to any other institution under their control, which may need the same, or any part of it at a price to be fixed by them. Groceries and other perishable articles and other articles which cannot be disposed of at a fair price may, in the discretion of the board, be given to the industrial school at Mitchellville for use in said institution. [28 G. A., ch. 103, § 4.]

SEC. 2722-e. Disposition of rent or sale money. All money received by said board for rent or for sale of personal property shall be paid into the state treasury and placed to the credit of said institution. [28 G. A., ch. 103, § 5.]

SEC. 2722-f. Appropriation. There shall be available for the purpose of carrying out the provisions of this act the moneys collected from rent and from sales of personal property; and there is hereby further appropriated for said purpose the sum of three thousand dollars or so much thereof as may be necessary, and the board is empowered to draw in the name of the present superintendent of said industrial home a sufficient sum in advance, on filing vouchers therefor, to in their judgment pay all expenses of transportation of inmates to their homes, and the incidental expenses above provided, on a certificate reciting the facts to said officers, all other sums to be drawn in the manner provided by chapter one hundred eighteen, acts of the twenty-seventh general assembly. [28 G. A., ch. 103, § 6.]

SEC. 2722-g. Authority to transfer balances. The treasurer of state is hereby authorized to transfer the following balances of special appropriations to the general funds of the state, viz.: of appropriations made in chapter eighty-six, acts of the twenty-fourth general assembly. A balance of eighty-two dollars and ninety-five cents of the appropriations for additional furniture and machinery. A balance of one hundred eighteen dollars and fifty cents for planting orchard and small fruits. A balance of two hundred twenty-eight dollars and thirty-nine cents for ice house and cold storage. Also of chapter one hundred forty-four of the acts of the twenty-fifth general assembly, a balance of sixty dollars of the item for the building and grounds. [28 G. A., ch. 103, § 7.]

SEC. 2722-h. Acts in conflict repealed. All acts and parts of acts in conflict with this act are hereby repealed. [28 G. A., ch. 103, § 8.]

CHAPTER 11.

OF THE SCHOOL FOR THE DEAF.

SECTION 2724. Admission. That the law as it appears in section twenty-seven hundred twenty-four of the supplement to the code, 1907, is hereby repealed and in lieu thereof is enacted the following:

Every resident of the state of Iowa who is not less than five nor more than twenty-one years of age who is deaf and dumb, or so deaf as to be unable to acquire an education in the common schools, and every such person who is over twenty-one and under thirty-five years of age who has the consent of the board of control of state institutions, shall be entitled to receive an education in the institution at the expense of the state; and nonresidents similarly situated may be entitled to an education therein, upon the payment of sixty-six dollars quarterly, in advance. Each superintendent of common schools, on or before the first day of November of each year, shall report to the superintendent of the institution the name, age and post-office address of each deaf and dumb person, or person so deaf as to be unable to acquire an education in the common schools, between the ages of five and thirty-five years and residing in his county so far as he may ascertain. [35 G. A., ch. 232, § 1.] [30 G. A., ch. 108; C. '73, §§ 1688–9; R. §§ 2156, 2160.]

SEC. 2726. Expenses—charged to county—how certified and paid. Section twenty-seven hundred twenty-six of the code, relating to the expenses of the inmates of the school for the deaf, is hereby repealed, and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"When pupils are not supplied with clothing, or transportation, it shall be furnished by the superintendent who shall make out an account therefor against the parent or guardian, if the pupil be a minor, and against the pupil if he have no parent or guardian, or has attained the age of majority, which bill shall be certified by him to be correct, and shall be presumptive evidence thereof in all courts. The superintendent shall on the first days of April and October of each year, certify to the auditor of state the amounts due from several counties, and the auditor of state shall thereupon pass the same to the credit of the institution, and charge the amount to the proper county. The superintendent shall at the time of sending certificate to the auditor of state, send a duplicate copy to the auditor of the county of the pupil's residence, who shall, when ordered by the board of supervisors, proceed to collect the same by action if necessary, in the name of the county, and when so collected, shall pay the same into the county treasury. The county auditor shall, upon receipt of said certificate, pass the same to the credit of the state, and thereupon issue a notice to the county treasurer authorizing him to transfer the amount from the general county fund to the general state revenue, which shall be filed by the treasurer as his authority for making such transfer, and shall include the amount in his next remittance of state taxes to the treasurer of state, designating the fund to which it belongs." [31 G. A., ch. 132; 23 G. A., ch. 55, § 1; C. '73, § 1695.]

SEC. 2727-a. Appropriation—support—residence during vacation. That section twenty-seven hundred twenty-seven-a of the supplement to the code, 1907, be and the same is hereby repealed and in lieu thereof is enacted the following:

For the support of the school and to meet the ordinary and current expenses thereof, including the compensation of officers, teachers, and other employes, the purchase of supplies, of food, clothing, furniture and furnishings, books, maps, apparatus, and other incidental expenses, there is hereby appropriated, out of any money in the state treasury not otherwise appropriated, or so much thereof as may be needed, twenty-two dollars per month for nine months of each year, for each resident pupil actually supported in the school. Said sum shall be placed to the credit of the school on the certificate of the board of control of state institutions which shall show the average number of pupils in the school for the preceding month, and shall be paid from the state treasury, as provided by chapter one hundred eighteen of the acts of the twenty-seventh general assembly and acts amendatory thereof. Provided, however, that whenever the average number of pupils in any month shall be less than two hundred seventy-five, the school shall be credited by the auditor of state and the treasurer of state with the sum of six thousand and fifty dollars.

[1]Provided the residence of indigent or homeless pupils may, by order of the board of control of state institutions, be continued during vacation months, and for such purposes the provisions of this section shall apply for twelve months. [33 G. A., ch. 177, § 1; 33 G. A., ch. 176, § 1.] [29 G. A., ch. 122, § 1; 27 G. A., ch. 83; 23 G. A., ch. 55, § 2; 20 G. A., ch. 73; 19 G. A., ch. 105; 18 G. A., ch. 203; 17 G. A., ch. 98; C. '73, § 1696.]

SEC. 2727-1a. Minimum monthly allowance—how computed. The minimum monthly allowance provided for by this act shall be computed from and after the first day of October, A. D. nineteen hundred and eight, and credit shall be given as hereinbefore authorized for a sum which shall make the credits given to said school since said date equal to the credits which it would have received if the provisions of this act had been in force during that time. [33 G. A., ch. 177, § 2.]

SEC. 2727-2a.[1] Prior expenses. All expenses of the school, incurred prior to the first day of April, A. D. nineteen hundred and two, shall be paid from the funds heretofore authorized by section twenty-seven hundred twenty-seven of the code, as amended, and the monthly allowance authorized by this act shall be computed from the first day of February, A. D. nineteen hundred and two. [29 G. A., ch. 122, § 2.]

OF THE BOARD OF CONTROL OF STATE INSTITUTIONS.

SECTION 2727-a1. Nomination — term of office — confirmation — salaries—removal—vacancies. The governor shall, prior to the adjournment of the twenty-seventh general assembly, nominate and, with the consent of two thirds of the members of the senate in executive session, appoint three electors of the state, not more than two of whom shall belong to the same political party, and no two of whom shall reside at the time of their appointment in the same congressional district, as members of a board to be known as a board of control of state institutions. Said members shall hold office, as designated by the governor, for two, four, and six years respectively. Subsequent appointments shall be made as above provided and, except to fill vacancies, shall be for a period of six years. The board shall at all times be subject to the above limitations and restrictions. No nomination shall be considered by the senate until the same shall have been referred to a committee of five, not more than three of whom shall belong to the same political party, to be appointed by the president of the senate without the formality of a motion, which committee shall report to the senate in executive session, which report shall be made at any time when called for by the senate. The consideration of nominations, by the senate, shall not be had on the same legislative day the nominations are referred. The chairman of the board for each biennial period shall be the member whose term first expires, and each member thereof shall receive a salary of three thousand dollars per annum. The governor may, by and with the consent of the senate, during a session of the general assembly, remove any member of the board for malfeasance or nonfeasance in office, or for any cause that renders him ineligible to appointment, or incapable or unfit to discharge the duties of his office, and his removal when so made shall be final. When the general assembly is not in session the governor may suspend any member so disqualified, and shall appoint another to fill the vacancy thus created, subject, however, to the action of the senate when next in session. All vacancies on said board that may occur while the general assembly is not in session shall be filled by appointment by the governor, which appointment shall expire at the end of thirty days from the time the general assembly next convenes, and vacancies occurring during a session of the general assembly shall be filled as regular appointments are made and before the end of said session.

The term of office of the member of the board whose term expires April, nineteen hundred twelve, is hereby extended to June thirtieth, nineteen hundred thirteen; the term of office of the member of the board whose term expires April, nineteen hundred fourteen, is hereby extended to June thirtieth, nineteen hundred fifteen; and the term of office of the member of the board whose term expires April, nineteen hundred sixteen, is hereby extended to June thirtieth, nineteen hundred seventeen. [34 G. A., ch. 140, § 1.] [27 G. A., ch. 118, § 1.]

SEC. 2727-a2. Oath—bond—examination—not excused from testifying. Each member of the board shall take the oath, and qualify, as required by section one hundred seventy-nine of the code, and shall devote his whole time to the duties of his office. Before entering on the duties of his office, each member shall give an official bond in the sum of twenty-five thousand dollars, conditioned as provided by law, signed by sureties, to be approved by the governor, and when so approved, said bonds shall be filed in the office of the secretary of state. No member of the board of control shall be eligible to any other lucrative office in the state during his term of service or for one year thereafter or to any position in any state institution during the term for which he was appointed, nor within one year after his term shall have expired. The said board of control shall be subject to the examination of the joint committee on retrenchment and reform, created by section one hundred eighty-one of the code. The claim that any testimony or evidence sought to be elicited or produced on such examination may tend to criminate the person giving or producing it, or expose him to public ignominy, shall not excuse him from testifying or producing evidence, documentary or otherwise; but no person shall be prosecuted or subjected to penalty or forfeiture for and on account of any matter or thing concerning which he may testify or produce such evidence, provided that he shall not be exempted from prosecution and punishment for perjury committed in so testifying. [27 G. A., ch. 118, § 2.]

SEC. 2727-a3. Officers—secretary—salary—acting secretary—supplies. The board shall be provided by the proper authorities with suitably furnished offices at the seat of government, and shall employ a competent secretary, who shall receive a salary not to exceed two thousand dollars per annum, and may also hire a stenographer and such other employes as may be necessary. In the absence or disability of the secretary, and the business of the board requires it, the board of control may appoint a member of the board as acting secretary during such absence or disability, who shall at such time have the powers of the secretary of the board. Said appointment shall be made of record in the proceedings of the board, and no additional compensation shall be paid because of the service of such acting secretary. This board shall, by the proper authorities, be also furnished with all necessary books, blanks, stationery, printing, postage stamps, and such other office supplies as are furnished other state officers. It shall present to each general assembly an itemized account of its expenditures, to the end that the legislature may, for the future, fix the maximum amount of such expenditures. [28 G. A., ch. 143, § 4; 27 G. A., ch. 118, § 3.]

SEC. 2727-a4. Appropriation. There is hereby appropriated from any funds in the state treasury not otherwise appropriated sufficient thereof to pay the salaries and expenditures hereby authorized. [27 G. A., ch. 118, § 4.]

SEC. 2727-a5. Traveling expenses—governor's approval. In addition to the salaries paid the members of the board and the secretary or other employes they shall be entitled to the necessary traveling expenses, by the nearest traveled and practicable route, incurred in going from Des Moines to the different institutions, or to other places in the state, when on official business. No expenditure for traveling expenses to other states shall be made by the board, or by any officer or agent thereof, or by any officer, employe, or agent of any state institution subject to this board, unless the authority to make such trip is granted at a meeting of the board of control upon a written resolution, adopted by the board, which shall state the purpose of such trip, and the reason the same is deemed necessary. Said resolution, if adopted, shall then be submitted to the governor for his written approval, and if he does not approve the same such trip shall not be made at the expense of the state. [27 G. A., ch. 118, § 5.]

SEC. 2727-a6. Itemized statement. Before any expenses of the members of the board, any officer, or agent thereof, or before any expenses incurred by others under the direction of the board, or the expenses of any officer or employe of any institution under the charge of the board, shall be paid, a minutely itemized statement of every item of expenditure shall be presented to the proper authority, duly verified, which verification shall aver that the expense bill is just, accurate and true, and is claimed for cash expenditures, or cash disbursements, truly and actually made and paid to the parties named, as shown by said statement. Unless the statement is so verified and duly audited, payment thereof shall not be had. The expense bills of the members of the board, the secretary and its other employes, when so verified, shall be presented to the governor for his written audit, before payment is made. The salaries and such actual expenses of the board, and of the secretary and other officers, and the salaries of employes, shall be paid monthly by the treasurer of state, upon the warrant of the auditor of state. [27 G. A., ch. 118, § 6.]

SEC. 2727-a7. Official seal. The board shall have an official seal, and every commission, order, or other paper executed by the board may, under its direction, be attested with its seal affixed, by the secretary, or any member of the board. [27 G. A., ch. 118, § 7.]

SEC. 2727-a8. Institutions under control. The board of control shall have full power to manage, control, and govern, subject only to the limitations contained in this act, the soldiers' home; the state hospitals for insane; the school for the deaf; the institution for the feeble-minded; the soldiers' orphans' home; the industrial home for the blind; the industrial school, in both departments; and the state penitentiaries. Within ten days after the appointment and qualification of the members of the board, it shall organize and assume the duties vested in said board, but shall not exercise full control of the institutions until July first, eighteen hundred ninety-eight. [34 G. A., ch. 141, § 1.] [27 G. A., ch. 118, § 8.]

[The board of control is given control over the state hospital for inebriates by § 2310-a8, and over the state colony for epileptics by § 2727-a93. EDITOR.]

SEC. 2727-a9. Powers—duties—annual statement. The boards of trustees and commissioners now charged with the government of the institutions named in section eight hereof shall on and after July first, eighteen hundred ninety-eight, have no further legal existence. All trustees now in office shall continue in office until July first, eighteen hundred ninety-eight. The powers possessed by the governor and executive council, with reference to the management and control of the state penitentiaries, shall, on July first, eighteen hundred ninety-eight, cease to exist in the governor and executive council, and shall become vested in the board of control; and the said board is, on July first, eighteen hundred ninety-eight, and without further process of law, authorized and directed to assume and exercise all the powers heretofore vested in or exercised by the several boards of trustees, the governor, or the executive council with reference to the several institutions of the state herein named. The duties imposed on the executive council, by statute, to establish an uniform system of books and accounts for state institutions, and to cause the same to be examined annually by a skilled accountant, and to annually require a settlement with the officers of each state institution, are transferred from said council to the board of control as to the institutions herein named. Nothing herein contained shall limit the general supervisory or examining powers vested in the governor by the laws or constitution of the state, or that are vested by him in any committee appointed by him. The board shall prepare annually for publication, in accordance with the provisions of section one hundred sixty-three of the code, a statement of the cost for the preceding year of maintaining each of said institutions, including improvements, itemized so far as practicable, and so arranged as to show the cost of the various kinds of provisions and supplies. [27 G. A., ch. 118, § 9.]

SEC. 2727-a10. Investigation—witnesses—contempt of court. It shall be the duty of said board, or a committee thereof, to visit and inspect, at least once in six months, the institutions named, and investigate the financial condition and management of such institutions; and in aid of any investigation the board shall have the power to summon and compel the attendance of witnesses; to examine the same under oath, which any member thereof shall have the power to administer; and shall have access to all books, papers and property material to such investigation, and may order the production of any other books or papers material thereto. Witnesses other than those in the employ of the state shall be entitled to the same fees as in civil cases in the district court. The claim that any testimony or evidence sought to be elicited or produced on such examination may tend to criminate the person giving or producing it, or expose him to public ignominy, shall not excuse him from testifying or producing evidence, documentary or otherwise; but no person shall be prosecuted or subjected to any penalty or forfeiture for and on account of any matter or thing concerning which he may testify or produce such evidence, provided that he shall not be exempted from prosecution and punishment for perjury committed in so testifying. And it shall be the duty of the board to cause the testimony so taken to be transcribed and filed in the office of the secretary of the board at the seat of government within ten days after the same is taken, or as soon thereafter as practicable and when so filed the same shall be open for the inspection of any person. Any person failing or refusing to obey the orders of the board issued under the provisions of this section, or to give or produce evidence when required, shall be reported by the board to the district court or any judge thereof, and shall be dealt with by the court or judge as for contempt of court. [27 G. A., ch. 118, § 10.]

SEC. 2727-a11. Monthly visitation—may appoint a woman—visiting committee abolished. The board, by a committee, or its secretary, shall visit each hospital for the insane once each month, and in making such visits shall be vested with and exercise the powers and functions now granted the visiting committee to such hospitals, except that the discharge of employes for cause shall be left with the superintendent as hereinafter provided. If the board deem it prudent, it may appoint a woman who resides within fifty miles of any hospital, whose duty it will be to visit such hospital, when directed by the board, and to report to the board, and who shall be paid the same compensation from the funds of the institution visited as is now provided for members of the visiting committee, upon proper audit of the bill for such services and expenses by the board, in the manner provided for payment of current expenses of institutions. The visiting committee to the hospitals for the insane is hereby abolished, and the members are relieved from further duty upon the passage of this act. [27 G. A., ch. 118, § 11.]

SEC. 2727-a12. Biennial report. The board shall make reports to the governor and legislature of its observations and conclusions respecting each and every of the institutions named, including the regular biennial report to the legislature, covering the biennial period ending June thirtieth, preceding the regular session of the general assembly. Said biennial report shall be made not later than November fifteenth in the year preceding the meeting of the general assembly, and shall also contain the reports which the executive officers of the several institutions are now or may be by the board required to make, also a statement of visitations to the several institutions and when and by whom made. [27 G. A., ch. 118, § 12.]

SEC. 2727-a13. Books and accounts. It shall keep at its office a proper and complete system of books and accounts with each institution, which shall show every expenditure authorized and made thereat and said books shall exhibit an account of each extraordinary or special appropriation made by the legislature, with every item of expenditure thereof. [27 G. A., ch. 118, § 13.]

SEC. 2727-a14. Uniform system of records and accounts—expert help. It shall prescribe the form of records and the kind of accounts to be made and kept by the institutions heretofore specified. In providing for the books of accounts the said board shall establish as uniform a system as possible, compelling similar institutions to keep similar books in the financial operations of such institutions; and the board shall institute and require the keeping of a perfected system of accounts, and requisitions showing the purchase, storing and consumption of supplies for subsistence, construction or other purposes. For the purpose of establishing said system of accounts, the board is authorized to employ competent and expert help, and to inaugurate in the institutions on July first, eighteen hundred ninety-eight, the most modern and complete method of accounts. The board shall, within six months after the passage of this act, determine the kinds and quality of provisions and supplies for the several institutions subject to its charge. [27 G. A., ch. 118, § 14.]

SEC. 2727-a15. Biennial estimates of special appropriations. It shall prepare for the use of the legislature, biennial estimates of appropriations necessary and proper to be made for the support of the said several institutions, and for the extraordinary and special expenditures for buildings, betterments, or other improvements. [27 G. A., ch. 118, § 15.]

SEC. 2727-a16. Suggestions for legislation. The board shall incorporate in its report to the legislature, suggestions respecting legislation for the benefit of the several institutions, or for the dependent, defective or criminal classes of the state. The board and its secretary shall on request, attend the meetings of legislative committees to which such questions may be submitted for consideration, and furnish such committees such information in regard to its doings and the conduct of such institutions as may be demanded. [27 G. A., ch. 118, § 16.]

SEC. 2727-a17. Plans and specifications—limited to amount of appropriation—penalty. It shall prepare plans for all betterments, improvements or buildings costing more than one thousand dollars for which it may recommend an appropriation. But when an appropriation for any amount has been made, there shall be no expenditure thereof until the board has secured suitable plans and specifications prepared by a competent architect, and accompanied by a detailed statement of the amount, quality and description of all the material and labor required for the completion of said structure; and no plan or plans shall be adopted, and no betterments, improvements or buildings constructed, that contemplate the expenditure of more money for completion than the amount appropriated by the legislature therefor, unless exempted from the provisions of this section by the act making such appropriation. In no event shall the board direct or permit an expenditure for any purpose in excess of the amount appropriated by law, or contemplated by the statute, and the members of the board, its officers and agents, are subject to the provisions of sections one hundred seventy-eight, one hundred eighty-two, one hundred eighty-four, one hundred eighty-five, one hundred eighty-six, one hundred eighty-seven and one hundred eighty-nine of the code, to the same extent as if said named persons were particularly specified in said sections. The violation of any of the provisions of either of the sections of the code above named by any of such named officers or persons, shall be deemed a misdemeanor, and on conviction the offender shall be fined in any sum not less than two hundred dollars, nor more than five thousand dollars, in the discretion of the court, or imprisoned in the county jail not exceeding one year, or by both such fine and imprisonment. [27 G. A., ch. 118, § 17.]

SEC. 2727-a18. Report to governor. It shall investigate and report to the governor any abuses or wrongs alleged to exist in the state institutions referred to in this act. [27 G. A., ch. 118, § 18.]

SEC. 2727-a19. What to inspect. The board or any member thereof at the stated visits to any of the institutions under its control shall inspect every part of each institution, and all the places, buildings and grounds belonging thereto, or used in connection therewith. They shall make an examination of the general and special dietary, the stores, and methods of supply; as far as circumstances may permit they shall see every inmate of the soldiers' home, and the charitable institutions, especially those admitted since the preceding visit, and shall give such as may require it, suitable opportunity to converse with the members of the board apart from the officers and attendants. They shall, if deemed necessary, examine under oath the officers, attendants, guards and other employes, and make such inquiries as will determine their fitness for their respective duties. [27 G. A., ch. 118, § 19.]

SEC. 2727-a20. Recommendations — quarterly conferences. The board shall, during the first six months after its creation, meet in conference as often as it may determine, the superintendents, wardens and other executive officers of each of the said institutions, or as many thereof as it deems practicable, and consider in detail, all questions of management, and the methods to be adopted to secure the economical management of the several institutions, and shall send to such officers such recommendations in regard to the management and improvement of the institutions, as it may deem necessary or advisable, and the board is vested with power to enforce such recommendations and directions. After six months from the creation of the board a consultation and conference of the superintendents, wardens and chief executive officers shall be held quarterly with the board at its office in Des Moines, at a time to be designated by the board, at which meeting all matters concerning the government and management of the institutions shall be considered and discussed, and the chairman of the board of control shall preside at such meetings, and full minutes thereof shall be preserved by the secretary of such board, who shall be secretary of said meeting. [27 G. A., ch. 118, § 20.]

SEC. 2727-a21. Districts. The board shall divide the state into proper districts from which the several institutions may receive patients or inmates. The limit of such districts may, from time to time, as the occasion warrants, be changed or altered. And in making such districts, or the rearrangement thereof, the superintendents, wardens, or executive heads of the institutions shall be consulted, at a time and place to be fixed by the board. When the districts are established, or a change thereof is had, the board shall notify the proper county or judicial officers of such establishment or change. [27 G. A., ch. 118, § 21.]

SEC. 2727-a22. Records—transfer—managing officer. The board shall keep in its office, accessible only to the members, secretary and proper clerks, except by the consent of the board, or on the order of a judge or court of record, a record showing the residence, sex, age, nativity, occupation, civil condition and date of entrance or commitment of every person, patient, inmate, or convict in the several institutions governed by the board, the date of discharge of every such person from the institution, and whether such discharge was final, and the condition of the person at the time he left the institution. The record shall also indicate if a person is transferred from one institution to another, and to what institution; and if dead, the date and cause of death. This information shall be furnished to the board by the several institutions, and such other obtainable facts as the board may from time to time require. It is the duty of the managing officer of each institution, who shall be named by the board, within ten days after the commitment or entrance of a person, patient, inmate or convict to the institution, to cause a true copy of his entrance record to be made and forwarded to the office of the board of control. When a patient or inmate leaves, or is discharged, transferred, or dies in any institution, the superintendent or person in charge shall, within ten days thereafter, send such information to the office of the board, all of which information shall be furnished on forms which the board may prescribe. [27 G. A., ch. 118, § 22.]

SEC. 2727-a23. State architect—expenses—assistant draftsmen. The board may employ an architect who shall be skilled in the most improved method of sanitation, and competent to prepare plans, specifications, estimates and details for the buildings, betterments, and every item of equipment which may be necessary in any of the institutions, whose duty shall be to perform the work usually done by architects in preparing plans and specifications, and supervising the work of construction on all the buildings, betterments and improvements done at institutions under the control of the board. Said architect shall also perform such other labor as may be designated by the board, and shall receive a compensation to be by the board fixed, which, including expenses, shall in no event exceed three thousand dollars per annum. In cases of sufficient magnitude, the board may secure the advice of a consulting architect, or may procure plans and specifications and drawings from other architects, but the expense thereof shall not exceed fifteen hundred dollars in any one year. The state architect shall be entitled to receive in addition to the compensation for his services fixed by the board, his necessary traveling expenses within the state when engaged in official business, and the board may allow him compensation for assistant draftsmen for services performed for the state when, in the opinion of the board, such services are necessary; provided, however, that the total amount allowed for traveling expenses and draftsmen shall not exceed two thousand dollars in any biennial period. [30 G. A., ch. 109; 29 G. A., ch. 160, § 1; 27 G. A., ch. 118, § 23.]

SEC. 2727-a24. Institution officers—term of office—removal—qualifications. It shall be the duty of the board to appoint a superintendent, warden or other chief executive officer of each institution under the control of the board. The tenure of office of said officers shall be four years from the date of their appointment, and the superintendent, warden or other chief executive officer now in charge of the several institutions placed under the control of this board and who is now holding under an election or contract for a definite term shall continue in office until the expiration of such term or contract; all other superintendents, wardens, or other chief executive officer shall hold office until January first, eighteen hundred ninety-nine. This provision shall not be applicable to the present warden at the Anamosa penitentiary, and the warden elect, W. A. Hunter, shall hold his office for the time for which he has been elected. The superintendent, warden, or other chief executive officer of any of the institutions named, may be removed by the board for misconduct, neglect of duty, incompetency, or other proper cause showing his inability or refusal to properly perform the duties of his office, but such removal shall be had only after an opportunity is given such person to be heard before such board upon preferred written charges, but the removal, when made, shall be final. The officers of the several institutions shall have the qualifications, and perform the duties now imposed and required of them by the statute, except as the same are modified or abrogated in this act. In case there is an alleged or seeming conflict between the powers of the superintendents or other executive officers and the board of control, the determination of such question by the board shall be final. [27 G. A., ch. 118, § 24.]

SEC. 2727-a25. Power to investigate question of insanity. The board shall have the power to investigate the question of the insanity and condition of any person committed to any state hospital, and shall discharge any person so committed or restrained, if, in its opinion, such person is not insane, or can be cared for after such discharge, without danger to others, and with benefit to the patient, but in determining whether such patient shall be discharged, the recommendation of the superintendent of such hospital shall be secured. The granting of this power to the board to serve as a commission for the determination of the insanity of a person is merely permissive, and does not repeal or alter any statute respecting the discharge or commitment of inmates to the state hospitals. [27 G. A., ch. 118, § 25.]

SEC. 2727-a26. Power to transfer. Patients shall be sent to the state hospital and convicts shall be sent to the penitentiary located in the district embracing the county from which they are committed. But the board may transfer the inmate in any hospital, or the convict in any penitentiary to another hospital or to the other penitentiary, at the expense of the state, and shall see that proper record thereof is made at the hospitals and penitentiaries, and in the office of the board. [27 G. A., ch. 118, § 26.]

SEC. 2727-a27. Collection of information—bulletins—forms. The board shall gather and present information embodying the experience of soldiers' homes, charitable, reformatory and penal institutions in this and other countries, regarding the best and most successful methods of caring for the insane, delinquent and criminal classes. And it shall encourage and urge the scientific investigation of the treatment of insanity and epilepsy by the medical staffs of the insane hospitals, and the institution for the feeble-minded, and shall publish from time to time bulletins and reports of the scientific and clinical work now done in said institutions, or which it may require to be done therein. It shall also provide for the several institutions the forms for statistical returns to be made by them in their annual and other reports. [27 G. A., ch. 118, § 27.]

SEC. 2727-a28. Repeal. The law as it appears in section twenty-seven hundred twenty-seven-a twenty-eight of the supplement to the code [1902] and all acts and parts of acts in conflict with this act are hereby repealed. [31 G. A., ch. 92, § 3; 27 G. A., ch. 118, § 28.]

SEC. 2727-a28a. Nonresident insane — care and removal. That when the commissioners of insanity of any county shall find to be insane a person who is a nonresident of this state, or whose residence is found by the commissioners to be unknown, they shall at once report the case to the board of control of state institutions and furnish it with a copy of the evidence taken on the question of the legal settlement of the insane person. The board shall investigate the case and if the legal settlement cannot be ascertained the board shall cause him to be taken to a state hospital for the insane as a charge of the state, and if the legal settlement of the patient is found thereafter to be in any county of this state the cost of maintaining him shall be charged to that county and collected as provided by law in other cases. If the board of control find that the insane person is a nonresident of this state it may cause him to be conveyed to the place of his legal settlement forthwith or to a state hospital for the insane, there to be treated and cared for until released, at the cost of the state. When the legal settlement of any nonresident patient received in a state hospital is known or if then unknown is afterwards ascertained, he may be transferred to the place of his legal settlement if his condition permit such transfer, unless the cost thereof, or other reasons, shall, in the opinion of the board of control, make the transfer inadvisable. No patient to be maintained at the expense of the state shall be received in a state hospital without the formal order of the board of control. [31 G. A., ch. 92, § 1.]

[Acts in conflict are repealed by § 2727-a28. EDITOR.]

SEC. 2727-a28b. Transfers of insane persons — expenses. The transfer of insane persons to state hospitals or to the places of their legal settlement under the provisions of this act or under the provisions of chapter seventy-eight of the acts of the thirtieth general assembly shall be made according to the directions of the board of control, and when practicable by employes of state hospitals, and the actual and necessary expenses of such transfers shall be paid on itemized vouchers sworn to by the claimants and approved by the board of control from any funds in the state treasury not otherwise appropriated. [31 G. A., ch. 92, § 2.]

SEC. 2727-a29. Questionable commitment. The superintendents for the hospitals for the insane and the institution for the feeble-minded are required to immediately notify the board if there is any question as to the propriety of the commitment or detention of any person received at such institution, and said board, upon such notification, shall inquire into the matter presented, and take such action as may be deemed proper in the premises. [27 G. A., ch. 118, § 29.]

SEC. 2727-a30. Protection against fire—means of escape. It shall be the duty of the board to compel the superintendent, warden or other chief executive officer of each of the institutions under the control of the board, to provide at each institution, adequate and ready means of protection against fire, and to construct proper means of escape for the inmates and attendants where the same are not already constructed and to establish and enforce rigid rules and regulations, by which the danger of fire shall be minimized, and prevent, as far as possible, injury to the persons of the inmates, and the loss or destruction, by any cause, of the property of the state. [27 G. A., ch. 118, § 30.]

SEC. 2727-a31. Official bonds. It shall be the duty of the board of control to require its secretary and each officer and employe of said board, and of every institution under its control who may be charged with the custody or control of any money or property belonging to the state, and who is not now required by statute to give bond, to give an official bond, properly conditioned, and signed by sufficient sureties, in a sum to be fixed by the board, which bond shall be approved by the board, and filed in the office of secretary of state. [27 G. A., ch. 118, § 31.]

SEC. 2727-a32. Inventory of stock and supplies. The board shall require within thirty days after its organization, the chief executive officer of each institution under its charge, to make a complete, minute and accurate inventory of the stock and supplies on hand, the amount and value thereof, which inventory shall be under the following heads: Live stock, produce of the farm on hand, carriages and vehicles, agricultural implements, machinery, mechanical fixtures, real estate, beds and bedding in inmates' department, other furniture in inmates' department, personal property of the state in superintendent's department, ready-made clothing, dry goods, provisions and groceries, drugs and medicines, fuel, library, and all other property under such other heads as the board may deem proper. A like inventory shall be submitted by the proper officer of each institution to the board when the annual report of said officer is submitted to the board. [27 G. A., ch. 118, § 32.]

SEC. 2727-a33. Gifts or gratuities—penalties. No member of the board of control, or officer, agent or employe thereof, and no superintendent, officer, manager or employe of any of the institutions under the charge and control of said board, shall, directly or indirectly, for himself or any other person or for any institution under the charge of said board, receive or accept any gift or gratuity from any person or persons, firm or corporation who are dealers in goods, merchandise or supplies which may be used in any of said institutions, or from any employe, servant or agent of such person or persons, firm or corporation. Any person violating the provisions of this section shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction be punished as provided in section forty-nine hundred and four of the code, and such violation shall be cause for his removal from office. [27 G. A., ch. 118, § 33.]

SEC. 2727-a34. Contents of biennial report—daily record. The board shall publish in its biennial report to the legislature the name and salary of every employe of said board, the name and salary of each officer and employe in the several institutions, subject to its control. It shall be the further duty of the board to require the proper officer of each institution to keep in a book prepared for the purpose, a daily record, to be made each day, of the time and the number of hours of service of each employe, and the monthly pay roll shall be made from such time book, and shall be in accord therewith. When an appropriation is based on the number of inmates in or persons at an institution, the board shall require a daily record to be kept of the persons actually residing at and domiciled in such institution. [27 G. A., ch. 118, § 34.]

SEC. 2727-a35. Political activity or contributions prohibited. Any member, employe, or officer of the board of control, or any officer or employe of a state institution subject to this board, who by solicitation or otherwise, exerts his influence directly or indirectly, to induce other officers or employes of the state to adopt his political views or to favor any particular person or candidate for office, or who shall in any manner contribute money or other thing of value to any person for election purposes shall be removed from his office or position by the proper authorities. [28 G. A., ch. 143, § 2; 27 G. A., ch. 118, § 35.]

SEC. 2727-a36. Solicitation of contributions for political purposes prohibited—penalty. Any person who demands or solicits, from any member, employe, or officer of the board of control, or from any officer or employe of any institution subject to this board, a contribution of money or other thing of value, for election purposes, or for the payment of the expenses of any political committee or organization, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and punished accordingly. [28 G. A., ch. 143, § 3.]

SEC. 2727-a37. Assistants—discharge. The superintendent, warden, or other chief executive officer of the several institutions shall appoint all assistants, guards and employes required in the management of the institution, the number of whom shall be determined by the board. It is hereby declared a misdemeanor for the members of the board, or any officer thereof, to exert any influence, by solicitation or otherwise, on the managing officer of an institution in the selection of any employe or assistant. The said chief executive officer may, at his pleasure, discharge any person employed, but shall keep in the record of employes the date of such discharge, and shall place opposite his name the reason therefor. [27 G. A., ch. 118, § 36.]

SEC. 2727-a38. Institution salaries. The board shall, prior to July first, eighteen hundred ninety-eight, and annually thereafter fix, with the written approval of the governor, the annual or monthly salaries of all the officers and employes in the several institutions, except such as are fixed by the general assembly. The board shall classify the officers and employes into grades, and the salaries and wages to be paid in each grade shall be uniform in similar institutions in the state. The schedule of wages so fixed shall become operative on July first of each year. The salaries and wages shall be included in the monthly estimates as hereinafter provided, and paid in the same manner as other expenses of the several institutions. Officers entitled to food supplies for their families shall receive such allowances from the supplies furnished for the patients and inmates of the institution. The word "family" shall be construed to mean only the wife and minor children of an officer. [27 G. A., ch. 118, § 37.]

SEC. 2727-a39. Local treasurer abolished. The treasurers of the institutions placed under the management of the board of control will be relieved of their duties, and all such offices will be abolished on July first, eighteen hundred ninety-eight. Such local treasurer shall account to the proper authorities for all moneys, books, records, vouchers or other evidences of property belonging to his office, and in his possession. It shall be the duty of the state treasurer to receive all moneys and evidences of indebtedness in the hands of said treasurer, and a failure on the part of any such treasurer to properly account to the state treasurer on July first, eighteen hundred ninety-eight, without further process of law, shall be by the said state treasurer immediately reported to the attorney-general for such action as may be proper in the premises. [27 G. A., ch. 118, § 38.]

SEC. 2727-a40. Moneys remitted to state treasurer. All moneys belonging to the state, derived from any source at any of the institutions under the control of this board, shall be by the proper executive officer, named by the board, accounted for and remitted to the state treasurer on the first day of each month, and all funds for the necessary expenditures of such institutions shall be drawn from the state treasury, as provided in this act. [27 G. A., ch. 118, § 39.]

SEC. 2727-a41. Triplicate estimates—revision—purchase of supplies. The superintendent, warden, or other chief executive officer, as may be designated by the board of control, shall on or before the fifteenth day of each month, cause to be prepared triplicate estimates in minute detail, including estimated cost of each item, of all the expenditures required for the institution for the ensuing month. Such estimate shall also include a statement of the source and amount of all the revenues received by the said institution and accounted for to the state treasurer on the first day of each month. Two of said triplicate estimates shall be sent to the office of the board, and the third shall be kept by said superintendent, warden, or other chief executive officer. The board may revise the estimates for supplies or other expenditures, either as to quantity, quality or the estimated cost thereof, and shall certify that it has carefully examined the same, and that the articles contained in such estimate, as approved or revised by it, are actually required for the use of said institution. When the estimates have been so certified and revised, a copy of such revised estimate, duly certified, shall be sent to the institution, and another copy retained by the board. The certified copy sent to the institution shall be sufficient authority to the management of the institution to purchase the supplies enumerated in said estimate, at prices not to exceed those therein named, and not otherwise. Said supplies shall be so purchased as to permit at least thirty days' time to pay therefor, and the steward, clerk, or other officer of the institution, designated by the board, shall require itemized bills to be rendered by the persons who furnish supplies, in duplicate, for all purchases, whether made upon contract or otherwise, which shall be in the following form:

SEC. 2727-a42. Monthly statement—affidavit. The steward, clerk or other officer who may be designated by the board, shall prepare a monthly statement showing purchases and expenditures of every kind for the preceding month, which shall be signed by such officer, approved by the chief executive officer of the institution, and filed with the board on a day certain to be fixed by said board. Attached thereto shall be the affidavit of such steward, clerk, or officer, as the case may be, stating that the goods and other articles therein specified were purchased and received by him or under his direction at the institution, and were purchased at a fair cash market price, on credit not exceeding thirty days, and that neither he nor any person in his behalf had any pecuniary or other interest in the purchases made, or received any pecuniary or other benefit therefrom, directly or indirectly, by commission, percentage, deductions, or in any other manner whatever, and that the articles contained in such bill conformed in all respects to the invoiced goods received and ordered by him, or the samples from which the goods were purchased, both in quality and quantity. If any invoice or statement, or part thereof, is found objectionable, the board shall endorse its disapproval thereon, with its reason therefor, and return it to the management of the institution, and when the matter complained of is corrected, said statement and invoice shall be returned to the board. [27 G. A., ch. 118, § 41.]

SEC. 2727-a43. Pay roll—triplicate abstract—duties of state treasurer. When the monthly statement is so made, approved and verified, it shall be forwarded to the board of control, together with the original invoices of the purchases and a complete and itemized statement of every expense of said institution, including the receipted pay roll, for the examination and audit of the board, which board shall fix a regular time for the auditing of the accounts of the institution for the preceding month. The monthly pay roll of each institution shall show the name of each officer and employe, when first employed, the monthly pay, time paid for, the amount of pay, and any deductions for the careless loss or destruction of property. This requirement shall be observed in all cases, and in no event shall a substitute be permitted to receive compensation in the name of the employe for whom he is acting. When the said accounts are audited, the secretary of the board of control shall, under the seal of the board, prepare in triplicate an abstract showing the name, residence and amount due each claimant, and the institution and the fund thereof on account of which the payment is made, which abstract shall also be certified by at least one member of the board, who shall be so authorized by the board, and the proceedings granting such authority shall be preserved in the records of the board. He shall deliver one copy thereof to the auditor of state, another to the treasurer of state, and the third shall be retained in the office of the board. Upon such certificate the auditor of state shall, if the institution named has sufficient funds, issue his warrant upon the treasurer of state for the gross amount as shown by such certified abstract. Said last named officer, upon being furnished by the board with a certified copy of such abstract as herein provided, shall send checks of the treasurer of state to the several persons for the amounts of their respective claims, as certified by the board of control. The treasurer of state shall preserve in his books a record of each check and remittance in the proper manner, showing the date of the issuance of each check, the name of the person to whom it was made payable, and such other data as may be evidence for the state, showing the payment of such indebtedness. The pay roll of each institution can be paid by a single check sent to the steward, clerk or other officer designated by the board of control. If the treasurer of state shall require more clerical help because of this enactment, the executive council may authorize him to employ an assistant. [28 G. A., ch. 143, § 5; 27 G. A., ch. 118, § 42.]

SEC. 2727-a44. Contingent fund. The board of control may permit a contingent fund, not to exceed in any institution two hundred fifty dollars, to remain in the hands of the managing officer of such institution, from which expenditures may be made in case of actual emergency requiring immediate action to prevent loss or danger to the institution or to the inmates thereof. A full, minute, and itemized statement of every expenditure made during the month from such fund, shall be submitted by the proper officer of said institution to the board under such rules and regulations as may be by said board established. If necessary, the board shall make proper requisition upon the auditor of state for a warrant on the state treasurer to secure the said contingent fund for each institution. [27 G. A., ch. 118, § 43.]

SEC. 2727-a45. Blanks and forms. The board of control shall formulate and furnish to each institution proper blanks and forms for all statements and accounts necessary to furnish the information required of such institution. [27 G. A., ch. 118, § 44.]

SEC. 2727-a46. Duties of institution officers. The stewards of the hospitals for the insane, the clerks of the prisons, and the proper officer of the other institutions who shall be designated by the board, shall have charge of and be accountable for all the supplies and stores of such institution, and shall be charged therewith at their invoice value, and shall in conjunction with the chief executive officer of each institution, make or direct all purchases for such institution as may be ordered by the board, under the estimates as hereinbefore provided. Such officer shall issue all the stores upon requisition approved by the superintendent or other officer designated by the board, which shall be his voucher therefor. He shall present monthly to the board of control an abstract of all expenditures, together with the accounts and pay rolls for the preceding month, and shall examine and register all goods delivered, according to their amount and quality, and if found to correspond with the samples, and in good order, and correct in charge, he shall certify the bills as herein provided. He shall quarterly take an account of the subsistence supplies and stock in his possession and under his control, and transmit a copy of such invoice, duly verified, to the board; and at the close of the biennial period he shall make a consolidated report of all purchases, and all other transactions of his department, to the state board. If it shall appear that there is any shortage in the stores of the institution, the board shall appoint a committee from its number to investigate the cause thereof, and if it shall appear that the said shortage resulted from unavoidable loss, without the negligence of such steward, clerk or other designated officer, then such officer[1] shall be credited therewith; otherwise, he shall be charged with the amount thereof, and shall be required to pay the same into the state treasury within sixty days after the determination of the loss. If default shall be made in said payment, he shall forfeit his office, and suit shall be instituted upon his official bond to recover the same. [27 G. A., ch. 118, § 45.]

["The words "then such officer" did not appear in the last supplement, but do appear in the 1902 supplement and the session laws. As it seems that the words were unintentionally omitted, it has been thought best to insert them in this compilation. EDITOR.]

SEC. 2727-a47. Purchase of supplies from one institution for use of another. Without complying with the provisions of chapter one hundred eighteen of the laws of the twenty-seventh general assembly, requiring estimates to be made, the board of control is empowered to direct the purchase of materials, or any articles of supply, for any institution subject to its management, from any other institution under its control, which purchase shall be made at the reasonable market value of the commodity so purchased, the value thereof to be ascertained and fixed by the said board, and payments therefor shall be made as between institutions in the manner provided by law for payments for supplies. [28 G. A., ch. 143, § 1.]

SEC. 2727-a48. Rules—additional duties. The board of control is authorized to make its own rules for the proper execution of its powers, and may require the performance of additional duties by the officers of the several institutions, so as to fully enforce the requirements, intents and purposes of this enactment, and particularly so much thereof as relates to the making of the estimates and furnishing proper proofs of the expenditures or use of all stocks of subsistence and supplies. [27 G. A., ch. 118, § 46.]

SEC. 2727-a49. Contracts. Contracts may be entered into under the direction of the board of control by the proper officers of one or more of the institutions for staples and other articles of supplies, as may be found feasible by the board for the institutions to purchase in bulk for use or consumption for periods longer than thirty days. Such contracts shall not, however, be made except in conformity with the provisions of this act relating to estimates. If thought advisable, such contracts may be executed by the representative of one institution, who may be designated by the board to act for other institutions. [27 G. A., ch. 118, § 47.]

SEC. 2727-a50. Purchase of supplies—rules and regulations. It shall be the duty of the board to make specific rules and regulations respecting the manner in which supplies shall be purchased and contracts made for the several institutions, so as to insure the competition and publicity necessary to secure the economical management of each institution. Jobbers, or others desirous of selling supplies to an institution shall, by filing with the chief executive officer of such institution, or with the secretary of the board, a memorandum showing their address and business, be afforded an opportunity to compete for the furnishing of the supplies under such limitations and rules as the board may prescribe. In purchasing all supplies, local dealers shall have the preference, when such can be given without loss to the state. When samples are furnished the same shall be properly marked and preserved for six months after purchase of such merchandise. [27 G. A., ch. 118, § 48.]

SEC. 2727-a51. Letting of contracts—labor of inmates utilized. Contracts for the erection, repairs or improvements of buildings, grounds, or properties of the institutions under charge of this board, and for which appropriations have been or may be made by the legislature, must be let for the whole or for any part of the work to be performed, by the chief executive officer of the institution, subject, however, to the same rules and regulations as herein provided for the furnishing of estimates by said institution to, and the approval and revision thereof by the board of control. If the cost of the erection or betterment is not in excess of three hundred dollars, the board may permit the management of the institution to construct the same by day's labor, without contracting the work. All plans or specifications for the said erections, repairs and improvements, shall be prepared by the architect of the board, under the board's direction. The board shall determine to what extent and for what length of time, and by what means advertisements are to be inserted in newspapers for proposals for the said erections, repairs or improvements. All contracts shall be awarded by the management of the institution to the lowest responsible bidder, subject to the provisions of this act, and the approval of the board, prior to the execution of the contract. The management of the institution has the right to reject any and all bids, and to readvertise, upon the approval of the board. A preliminary deposit of money or certified check upon a solvent bank in such amount as the board may prescribe shall be required as an evidence of good faith, upon all proposals for the construction of said buildings, repairs and improvements, which deposit or certified check shall be held by the management of the institution under the direction of the board. The provision of this section which requires all work to be let by contract, shall not be mandatory as to the labor on the construction work at the penitentiaries, but the board shall establish such rules, and enforce the provisions of this act so that the construction work at the penitentiaries shall be performed in a manner agreeable thereto, with the strictest accountability exacted in the consumption of all supplies for construction purposes, and in the expenditure of the public moneys. On proper representations the board is authorized to so construct the erections, betterments and improvements at other institutions that the work of inmates may be utilized, if it is found to be advantageous to the state, and a substantial saving made, but the attempt to use such labor shall not permit a substantial departure from the requirements of this section; and in no case shall any expenditure be made except on estimates submitted to and approved by the board, as provided herein. No payment shall be authorized for construction purposes until satisfactory proof has been furnished to the board of control, by the proper officer or supervising architect, that the contract has been complied with by the parties; and all payments shall be made in a manner similar to that in which the current expenses of the several institutions are paid. [27 G. A., ch. 118, § 49.]

SEC. 2727-a52. Cherokee hospital commission abolished. The members of the building commission authorized to construct the hospital for the insane at Cherokee shall be relieved from such duty, and the commission abolished on July first, eighteen hundred ninety-eight. Before said last named day the said commission shall surrender to the board of control all plans, specifications, books, records and other properties belonging to or in the possession of the said commission, or any member thereof. The said board shall succeed to and be vested with all the powers of the said building commission, and all duties thereof will be performed by said board, and all legislation affecting the powers, duties or obligations of said building commission shall, so far as applicable, apply with equal force to the said board of control. The said board shall call upon any of the superintendents of the hospitals for the insane for such information or service as the board shall deem proper; and the said superintendents shall respond to such call for the compensation provided in the act relating to the building commission of the hospital for the insane at Cherokee. All outstanding obligations of said commission shall be executed and performed by the board of control, but this shall not prevent said board from selecting all its agents or employes in the work of construction, which shall be executed in a manner agreeable to and pursuant to the provisions of this act. [27 G. A., ch. 118, § 50.]

SEC. 2727-a53. Educational institutions—repealed. [33 G. A., ch. 170, § 20.] [27 G. A., ch. 118, § 51.]

SEC. 2727-a54. Powers as to the same—repealed. [33 G. A., ch. 170, § 20.] [27 G. A., ch. 118, § 52.]

SEC. 2727-a55. Investigation of management—repealed. [33 G. A., ch. 170, § 20.] [27 G. A., ch. 118, § 53.]

SEC. 2727-a56. Estimates of cost—repealed. [33 G. A., ch. 170, § 20.] [27 G. A., ch. 118, § 54.]

SEC. 2727-a57. Existing laws—acts in conflict repealed. Existing laws relating to the institutions referred to in this act, which are not inconsistent with the provisions of this act, shall remain in force, and all acts or parts of acts in conflict with, or inconsistent with this act, are hereby repealed. [27 G. A., ch. 118, § 55.]

SEC. 2727-a58. County and private insane institutions—governed by board of control. All county and private institutions wherein insane persons are kept are hereby placed under the supervision of the board of control of state institutions. [28 G. A., ch. 144, § 1.]

SEC. 2727-a59. Visitation, when and by whom—reports. It shall be the duty of said board of control as soon as practicable after the passage of this act, and at least twice annually thereafter, by one or more of its members or by some competent and disinterested person, whom the board shall appoint, to visit every private and county institution wherein insane persons are kept. Said visitor shall carefully examine into the capacity of said institutions for the care of insane patients, the number kept therein, and their sex, the arrangement of buildings and the method of their construction, their adaptation for the purposes intended, their condition as to sewerage, ventilation, light, heat, cleanliness, means of water supply, fire escapes and fire protection, the care of patients, their food, clothing, medical attendance, and treatment, their employment, if any, the number, kind, and sex of employes, their duties and salaries, including nurses, attendants, and night watches, the cost to the state or county maintaining patients, which shall in all cases be kept separate and distinct from the cost of keeping paupers, and such other information which the said board shall deem proper. Said visitors shall make a written report including all of said matters to said board. [28 G. A., ch. 144, § 2.]

SEC. 2727-a60. Patients to have a hearing. The person making the visit above provided for shall see all patients in the institutions and shall give each an opportunity to converse with him out of the hearing of any officer or employe of the institution, and shall fully investigate and inquire into any complaint by making inquiry from the persons in charge of said institution, and others, and report the result thereof in writing to said board; but said board, before acting on said report adversely to the institution, shall give the persons in charge thereof a copy of such report and an opportunity to be heard thereon. [28 G. A., ch. 144, § 3.]

SEC. 2727-a61. Compensation of inspector. In case the inspection herein provided for shall be made by a person appointed by the board of control of state institutions, such person shall be allowed such a sum as the board may, in its discretion, deem proper, not to exceed five dollars per day for the time actually employed in said work and in going to and from the same. The actual expenses of the person making the visit, and his per diem, if any, shall be allowed and paid when itemized, sworn to, and approved, as provided for in chapter one hundred eighteen of the acts of the twenty-seventh general assembly in relation to the expenses of the board. [28 G. A., ch. 144, § 4.]

SEC. 2727-a62. Board to make rules and regulations. As soon as all private and county institutions in which insane persons may be kept shall have been visited and reports thereon received, the board of control shall adopt reasonable rules and regulations touching the care and treatment of, and make orders in relation to, such insane patients as may be kept in said institutions, which rules and regulations shall not interfere with the medical treatment given to private patients by competent physicians. Copies of such rules and regulations, when adopted, shall be mailed to the chief executive officer of each private institution, and to the clerk of the district court, the chairman of the board of supervisors, and the officer in charge of the institution in all counties having county institutions caring for insane persons. The board shall allow in this case a reasonable time for the management of these institutions to comply with such rules and regulations. [28 G. A., ch. 144, § 5.]

SEC. 2727-a63. Failure to comply with rules—penalty. If any such institution shall fail, neglect, or refuse within the time fixed by the board to comply substantially in all respects with said rules, regulations, and orders, said board is authorized to remove all said insane persons kept therein at public expense, to the proper state hospital, or to some private or county institution or hospital for the care of the insane that has complied with the rules and regulations prescribed by said board of control, at the expense of the county which sent said patient to said institution, such removal of patients, if to a state hospital, to be made by an attendant or attendants sent from the state hospital, and the cost of such removal including all expenses of said attendant, shall be certified, by the superintendent of the hospital receiving the patient, to the auditor of state, whereupon he shall draw his warrant upon the treasurer of state for said sum, which shall be credited to the support fund of said hospital and charged against the general revenues of the state and collected by the auditor of state from said county. And the board of control shall notify the guardian, or one or more of the relatives of patients kept therein at private expense, that the rules as to their care are being disregarded, and of the action taken by the board as to the other patients. And should the board of control believe any person in any such institution sane, or illegally restrained of liberty, it shall institute and prosecute proceedings in the name of the state of Iowa, before the proper officer, board, or court, for the discharge of such person. If a female is removed under the provisions of this section, at least one attendant shall be a female. [28 G. A., ch. 144, § 6.]

SEC. 2727-a64. Removal of patient from one institution to another. Whenever it shall be found by said board of control that any patient cared for at public expense is confined in any private asylum or county institution, who is violent and whose case is acute and said board shall be of the opinion, after taking competent medical testimony, that said patient can be better cared for in the state hospital with better hopes of recovery, it may remove said patient to the proper state hospital, at the expense of the proper county, said expense to be recovered as provided for in section six hereof. And whenever said board shall find any patient in a state hospital, who shall have become chronic, or likely to do as well in a county or private institution as in the state hospital, it may order the county to which the keeping of said patient is chargeable to remove him or her to some county or private institution in the state which shall have complied with the rules of said board relative to the keeping of insane patients; but in no case shall a patient, the relative or guardian of whom pays the expense of their keep in a state hospital, be thus transferred except upon the written consent of such relative or guardian; but a patient, the expense of whom is borne by the county, may be transferred on the written request of the board of supervisors, or the commissioners of insanity of the county to which the patient is chargeable, and of the board of control; nor shall a patient in a state hospital, who is not cured, be discharged without the consent of the board of control. [35 G. A., ch. 235, § 1.] [28 G. A., ch. 144, § 7.]

SEC. 2727-a65. Insane of other counties. The commissioners of insanity, with the consent of the board of supervisors of any county, having insane persons within such county, and having no proper facilities, either at a public or private institution, for the care, keeping and treatment of such persons within the county, may, with the consent of the board of control, provide for their care at the expense of said county at any convenient private or county institution having proper facilities for the care of the same, and which will care for them to the satisfaction of the said board of control, and which will comply with the rules and regulations that may be prescribed by the board of control, relative to the care and keeping of insane persons. [28 G. A., ch. 144, § 8.]

SEC. 2727-a66. Authority of private asylums. No person shall be confined and restrained in any private institution or hospital for the care or treatment of the insane, except upon the certificate of a board of commissioners of insanity of some county in the state, or of two reputable physicians, at least one of whom shall be a bona fide resident of the state of Iowa, who shall certify that such person is a fit subject for treatment and restraint in said institution or hospital, which certificate shall be the authority of the owners and officers of said hospital or institution for receiving and confining said patient or person therein. [28 G. A., ch. 144, § 9.]

SEC. 2727-a67. Appropriation. To provide for the expenses of the inspection herein required and the per diem, there is hereby appropriated the sum of three thousand dollars, or so much thereof as may be necessary, from any funds of the state treasury not otherwise appropriated. [28 G. A., ch. 144, § 10.]

SEC. 2727-a68. Difference of opinion—how adjudicated. When a difference of opinion exists between the board of control and the authorities in charge of any private or county asylum in regard to the removal of a patient or patients as herein provided, the matter shall be submitted to the district court, or judge thereof, of the proper county and shall be summarily tried as an equitable action, and the judgment of the district court or judge shall be final. [28 G. A., ch. 144, § 11.]

SEC. 2727-a69. Annual appropriation — purpose. That there is hereby appropriated out of any money in the state treasury not otherwise appropriated the sum of two hundred fifty dollars annually for the payment of the actual and necessary expenses of persons who shall, at the solicitation of the board of control of state institutions, read papers at the quarterly conferences of the chief executive officers of the state institutions under the management of said board. The papers so read shall have especial application to the objects and work of one or more of said institutions. [30 G. A., ch. 110, § 1.]

SEC. 2727-a70. How and when payable. The money hereby appropriated shall be payable on the first day of July of each year and shall be paid from the state treasury as the expenses of the members of the board of control are paid. [30 G. A., ch. 110, § 2.]

SEC. 2727-a71. Special policemen. That upon the application and recommendation of the board of control of state institutions the governor shall commission any number of employes of any institution under the control of said board, not exceeding three, to be designated by the chief executive officer, to be special policemen thereof; and such officer or officers shall take an oath of office and shall have power to protect the property of such institution, to suppress riots, disturbances and breaches of the peace, and to enforce all laws for the preservation of good order, and may, upon view or information, without warrant, arrest any person trespassing upon the grounds or destroying the property of such institution, or violating any of the existing laws of the state, and bring such person so offending before the mayor or any justice of the peace within such township, to be dealt with according to law. This act shall not be construed to authorize any additional employes in any institution, or any increase of compensation to any employe so designated. [30 G. A., ch. 111.]

SEC. 2727-a72. Personal property of deceased inmates—collection—disposition—record. That when an inmate of any institution under the control of the board of control of state institutions dies intestate, leaving money, certificate of deposit, promissory note, or other evidence of indebtedness in writing on deposit with the chief executive or other officer, or shall leave in the possession of such institution or of any officer or employe thereof any personal property, it shall be the duty of the chief executive officer of said institution to take into his possession, if he does not already have it, such money, certificate of deposit, promissory note or other evidence of indebtedness in writing, and to receive any money which may have been due, or property which may have been owned by the decedent, and to dispose of the same as follows:

(a) To deliver such money or other property to the legal representative of the decedent so soon as he shall have qualified and become authorized to receive it.

(b) If administration be not granted within one year from the date of the death of the decedent, and the value of the estate of decedent is so small as to make the granting of administration under the general law inadvisable, then delivery of the money and other property left by the decedent may be made to the surviving spouse and heirs, if known, of the decedent.

(c) If administration be not granted within one year from the date of the death of the decedent and no surviving spouse or heir is known to the institution, although diligent search for them shall have been made, the chief executive officer of the institution shall be authorized to collect the certificate of deposit, promissory note or other evidence of indebtedness, and for that purpose is authorized to indorse the name of decedent as made by himself in his official capacity, and such indorsement shall have the same effect as though actually made by the decedent in his lifetime; and said chief executive officer shall be authorized to sell at either public or private sale, as shall be approved in writing by the said board of control, all personal property of the decedent which shall have come into his possession. The money which shall be received by said chief executive officer as aforesaid shall be transmitted to the treasurer of state at the end of one year from the death of the intestate, or as soon thereafter as is practicable, and shall be credited to the support fund of the institution from which it was sent. A complete permanent record of the money so sent, showing by whom and with whom it was left, its amount, the date of the death of the owner, his reputed place of residence before he became an inmate of the institution, the date on which it was sent to the state treasurer and any other facts which may tend to identify the intestate and explain the case shall be kept by the chief executive officer of the institution and a transcript thereof shall be sent to and kept by the treasurer of state. [33 G. A., ch. 178, § 1.] [30 G. A., ch. 112, § 1.]

SEC. 2727-a73. Payment to party entitled thereto. The money so sent to treasurer of state, or any part thereof, shall be paid at any time within ten years from the death of the intestate to any person who is shown to be entitled thereto by evidence satisfactory to the board of control or to the district court of the county in which the institution from which the money was sent is located. Payment shall be made from the state treasury out of the support fund of such institution in the manner provided for the payment of other claims from that fund. [30 G. A., ch. 112, § 2.]

SEC. 2727-a74. Applicable to money now held. The provision of this act shall also apply to all money left by inmates of institutions who have heretofore died intestate and which is now held by the chief executive or other officer of the institutions. [30 G. A., ch. 112, § 3.]

SEC. 2727-a74a. Contract for making butter tubs—limitation. The state board of control is hereby authorized to enter into a contract for the employment of not to exceed fifty inmates of the reformatory at Anamosa in the making of butter tubs. Such employment shall end not later than January first, nineteen hundred fifteen. [33 G. A., ch. 179, § 1.]

[See also §§ 5702-b and 5718-a11. EDITOR.]

SEC. 2727-a74b. Charges against officers or employes of private and county institutions—investigation. That the board of control of state institutions may investigate charges of abuse, neglect or other misconduct made against the management or any officer or employe of any county or private institution in which insane persons are kept, and against any association or society coming within the provisions of the law as it appears in section thirty-two hundred sixty-j of the supplement to the code, 1907. In aid of such investigations all of the provisions of the law as it appears in section twenty-seven hundred twenty-seven-a ten of the supplement to the code, 1907, in regard to the power of the board of control and of its members, the rights, duties, liabilities and privileges of witnesses and others, shall apply and be in full force. [33 G. A., ch. 180, § 1.]

SEC. 2727-a74c. Annual vacations—officers—employes. That each officer and employe of the state institutions under the control of the board of control of state institutions who shall have been in the service of said state not less than one year continuously, giving all his or her time to said service, shall be entitled to a vacation each year on full pay as follows: after having served one year, to seven days; and after having served two years, to ten days; and after having served three years, to fourteen days. Provided, however, that the vacations authorized by this act shall not be taken by any person in any institution unless the executive officer thereof shall have given to that person a permit in writing to take such vacation, specifying in the permit the days on which the vacation may be taken. A copy of such permit shall be attached to the pay roll of the institution for the month during which the vacation was taken, and the pay roll shall show the number of days the person was absent under the permit. [33 G. A., ch. 232, § 1.]

SEC. 2727-a74d. When granted. It shall be the duty of the chief executive officer of each institution to arrange for the vacations hereby authorized to be taken at such times as will interfere as little as possible with the work of the institution, and be just to the employes. [33 G. A., ch. 232, § 2.]

SEC. 2727-a74e. Not applicable to certain employes. This act shall not apply to any officer or other employe who is not required to render service for twelve months each year. [33 G. A., ch. 232, § 3.]

CHAPTER 11-C.

OF THE STATE SANATORIUM FOR THE TREATMENT OF TUBERCULOSIS.

SECTION 2727-a75. Establishment—incipient stages. There is hereby established a state sanatorium for the care and treatment of persons afflicted with incipient pulmonary tuberculosis which shall be called the state sanatorium for the treatment of tuberculosis. [32 G. A., ch. 147, § 1; 31 G. A., ch. 120, § 1.]

SEC. 2727-a76. Superintendent, officers and employes. The officers and employes of said sanatorium shall consist of a superintendent and such other officers and employes to be appointed as the board of control of state institutions shall deem necessary for the proper operation of said institution, including examining physicians. Said superintendent shall be a well-educated physician with an experience of at least five years in actual practice of medicine. Said superintendent shall be appointed by the board of control of state institutions for the term of four years and shall receive such salary as the said board may fix, not exceeding twenty-five hundred dollars per annum. [32 G. A., ch. 147, § 1; 31 G. A., ch. 120, § 2.]

SEC. 2727-a77. Control. The board of control of state institutions shall have the same power and control over said institutions as is now given it with reference to the several institutions mentioned in chapter one hundred eighteen of the acts of the twenty-seventh general assembly and all amendments thereto, and said acts and amendments shall apply to and govern said sanatorium in every respect in so far as they are not in conflict with the provisions of this act. [32 G. A., ch. 147, § 1; 31 G. A., ch. 120, § 3.]

SEC. 2727-a78. Appropriation. There is hereby appropriated fifty thousand dollars for the purpose of carrying out the provisions of this act to be expended by the board of control, as herein provided for. [31 G. A., ch. 120, § 4.]

SEC. 2727-a79. Purchase of land—erection and equipment of buildings. As soon as practicable after the passage and publication of this act, and when the funds are available therefor, said board of control shall proceed to purchase the necessary land for said sanatorium, and erect, furnish and equip the needed buildings. In locating said sanatorium, it shall take into consideration climate, healthfulness, water supply, drainage, quality of soil, facility of access, timber protection to buildings and a suitable building site. Said site shall contain not less than one hundred sixty acres or whatever may be deemed necessary by the board of control. The buildings shall be planned to accommodate at least one hundred patients and necessary officers and employes. [32 G. A., ch. 147, § 1; 31 G. A., ch. 120, § 5.]

SEC. 2727-a80. Proclamation of the opening. When said sanatorium buildings are erected, furnished, equipped and ready for use, said board of control shall notify the governor of the fact, who shall thereupon issue his proclamation of the opening of said sanatorium. [32 G. A., ch. 147, § 1; 31 G. A., ch. 120, § 6.]

SEC. 2727-a81. Duties of superintendent. In addition to the duties which may now be imposed by law, the superintendent shall oversee and secure the individual treatment and professional care of each and every patient residing in the sanatorium. He shall prescribe rules subject to the approval of the board of control and not inconsistent with the statutes for the application, examination, reception and government of patients and their discharge, and shall keep a full record of their condition and prospects. He shall endeavor to stimulate the organization and assist in the establishment of [1]hospital, dispensaries, in various counties or large centers of population, for the treatment of patients with advanced tuberculosis. He shall reside at the institution. [32 G. A., ch. 147, § 1; 31 G. A., ch. 120, § 7.]

[1]Probably should be "hospitals or dispensaries" as in § 2727-a89. EDITOR.]

SEC. 2727-a82. What patients received—applications—examination. No patients shall be received except those afflicted with pulmonary tuberculosis in the incipient stage, and who show a reasonable probability of satisfactory improvement by treatment in the sanatorium. Any person wishing to become a patient in the institution shall first make application and if it shall appear to the superintendent from the answers to the questions therein that the applicant has been and is a bona fide resident of this state and is in all other respects entitled under the law to admission, said applicant shall be sent by the superintendent to the examining physician living nearest to the residence of the applicant, and said applicant directed to report to said examining physician for an examination. Said examining physician shall examine said applicant fully with a view of ascertaining whether he is afflicted with incipient tuberculosis, and shall so far as possible fill out the blanks which may be furnished him for that purpose and shall mail the same to the superintendent of the sanatorium, who shall examine the same and if he finds that the applicant as shown by the answers, or by the examination of the examining physician, has been and is a bona fide resident of this state and is in all other respects under the law entitled to admission, he shall receive the applicant as a patient providing there is room, and if no room be then available, he shall enter the name on a book in the order in which the application is made, and the applicant shall be admitted in said order whenever there is room. In case it shall appear from the application itself, or from the report of the examining physician, that the applicant does not come within the provisions of the law, or in case the superintendent shall be in possession of reliable information which convinces him that the applicant is not entitled to the benefits of this act, he shall forthwith notify the applicant that he cannot be admitted as a patient. If, however, the superintendent, after receiving the report of the examining physician, is in doubt as to whether it is a case of incipient pulmonary tuberculosis, he shall personally examine the applicant in case he presents himself at the institution for that purpose. [32 G. A., ch. 147, § 1; 31 G. A., ch. 120, § 8.]

SEC. 2727-a83. Examining physicians. The board of control of state institutions shall on the recommendation of the superintendent, and on the approval of the said board, appoint physicians in such localities in the state as they may deem proper, whose duty shall be to examine all persons who apply to them, and who have previously made application to the superintendent to be admitted as patients[1] in the sanatorium; provided, however, that the applicant shall in each case pay said examining physician the sum of three dollars which shall be in full for such examination. He shall carefully fill out the blanks in the examination paper and shall also give any additional information he may possess which may aid in determining the eligibility of the person so examined for admission as a patient in the institution. Said examining physicians shall be graduates of a medical school in good standing under the laws of Iowa, and shall be selected, so far as it is practicable, because of their[2] experience with and[3] knowledge of pulmonary diseases. [32 G. A., ch. 147, § 1; 31 G. A., ch. 120, § 9.]

SEC. 2727-a84. Transportation and other expenses—how paid. In case an applicant who has been authorized to be received as a patient in the sanatorium is without means to pay for the transportation and other necessary expenses to and from, including treatment at the institution, and such fact is duly certified to by the board of health of the city or incorporated town where the applicant resides, or by the majority of the township trustees in case the applicant resides outside of a city or incorporated town, and the superintendent is satisfied that such is the fact, then such expense shall be paid by the state out of any funds in the state treasury not otherwise appropriated after the same is certified by said superintendent and approved by the board of control. [32 G. A., ch. 147, § 1; 31 G. A., ch. 120, § 10.]

SEC. 2727-a85. Per capita allowance. That the law as it appears in section twenty-seven hundred twenty-seven-a eighty-five of the supplement to the code, 1907, is hereby repealed and in lieu thereof is enacted the following:

"The board of control of state institutions shall fix the per capita allowance which may be charged by the said institution for the care, treatment and maintenance of each patient therein, which shall not exceed the sum of forty-five dollars per capita per month, which shall be certified by the superintendent to said board of control and paid out as provided by the law as it appears in this chapter of the supplement to the code, 1907; provided that if the aggregate per capita allowance for the patients shall not equal the sum of four thousand dollars for any month, the auditor of state and treasurer of state shall credit the institution with that sum for that month." [35 G. A., ch. 237, § 1.] [32 G. A., ch. 147, §§ 1, 2; 31 G. A., ch. 120, § 11.]

SEC. 2727-a86. Charges for care, treatment and maintenance—liability of counties. The law as it appears in section twenty-seven hundred twenty-seven-a eighty-six of the supplement to the code, 1907, is hereby repealed and in lieu thereof is hereby enacted the following:

"Each county shall be liable to the state for the support of all patients from that county in the state sanatorium and the amounts due shall be certified by the superintendent to the auditor of state, and by him be collected from the counties liable, at the times and in the manner required for the certification and collection of money from counties for the support of insane patients and patients in the sanatorium, and persons legally bound for their support shall be liable for the maintenance of patients in the sanatorium. The provisions of law for the collection by boards of supervisors of amounts paid by their respective counties from the estates of insane patients and from persons legally bound for their support shall apply in cases of patients cared for in the sanatorium." [35 G. A., ch. 238, § 2.] [32 G. A., ch. 147, § 1; 31 G. A., ch. 120, § 12.]

SEC. 2727-a87. Support for first month. For the purpose of the maintenance of the sanatorium during the first month of its operation, the superintendent thereof may estimate, in advance of said opening and on the basis of a population of two hundred patients at twenty dollars per capita per month, for the supplies to operate the sanatorium, to furnish and equip the same, and to purchase tools, animals, implements and other articles so far as then necessary, for the first month, and the aggregate of said per capita shall be credited to said institution by the auditor of state and the treasurer of state and may be drawn against as provided in chapter one hundred eighteen of the acts of the twenty-seventh general assembly. [32 G. A., ch. 147, §§ 1, 3; 31 G. A., ch. 120, § 13.]

SEC. 2727-a88. Acts in conflict repealed. All acts and parts of acts in conflict with this act are hereby repealed. [32 G. A., ch. 147, § 4; 31 G. A., ch. 120, § 14.]

SEC. 2727-a89. Appropriation for collection and dissemination of information. There is hereby appropriated out of any funds in the state treasury not otherwise appropriated the sum of five thousand dollars annually, or so much thereof as may be necessary, to be used by the board of control of state institutions for the collection and dissemination of information regarding tuberculosis. Said board of control may arrange exhibits, employ lecturers, coöperate with other institutions or organizations or use any means necessary to give to the people of the state a practical knowledge of tuberculosis. Said board of control shall, with the superintendent or such assistance as it may deem advisable, stimulate the organization of, and assist in establishing hospitals or dispensaries or make other provisions, in the various counties or large centers of population, for the treatment of patients in the advanced stages of tuberculosis. [32 G. A., ch. 147, § 4.]

SEC. 2727-a90. Appropriation for completion and equipment. There is hereby further appropriated the sum of fifty thousand dollars for the purpose of completing and equipping said sanatorium and in making it ready for use. [32 G. A., ch. 147, § 5.]

SEC. 2727-a91. Advanced stages—additional department. That a department for persons afflicted with pulmonary tuberculosis in advanced stages is hereby established at the state sanatorium for the treatment of tuberculosis. The board of control of state institutions shall adopt rules and regulations for receiving patients and managing said department. Whenever there shall not be sufficient room to accommodate all applicants qualified for admission preference shall be given to those most in need of the care of the institution and whose condition is most dangerous to the public. Patients may be transferred from the department for incipient cases to the department for advanced cases and from the department for advanced cases to the department for incipient cases, as may be deemed advisable by the superintendent. [35 G. A., ch. 238, § 1.]

SEC. 2727-a92. Appropriation. For the purpose of constructing and equipping the necessary buildings, making connections and improving grounds for the department for advanced cases, there is hereby appropriated out of any money in the state treasury not otherwise appropriated, the sum of five thousand dollars. [35 G. A., ch. 238, § 3.]

CHAPTER 11-D.

OF THE STATE COLONY FOR EPILEPTICS.

SECTION 2727-a93. Establishment — object — government. That there is hereby established the state colony for epileptics. The object of the colony shall be the custody, care and treatment of epileptics and the scientific study of epilepsy. The board of control of state institutions shall have the same power and control over said colony as is now given it by the law as it appears in sections twenty-seven hundred twenty-seven-a one to section twenty-seven hundred twenty-seven-a fifty-one inclusive, of the supplement to the code, 1907, and all amendments thereto, and said acts and amendments shall apply to and govern said colony in every respect in so far as they are not in conflict with the provisions of this act. [35 G. A., ch. 236, § 1.]

SEC. 2727-a94. Location. Whenever the state by a levy or otherwise shall have provided funds for the purchase of land and for the erection of buildings for a state colony for epileptics, the land shall be selected by the board of control of state institutions. It shall be conveniently located with respect to railways and with regard to water supply and proper drainage, and shall be suitable for an institution on the colony plan for both male and female inmates. The land and buildings shall be paid for on vouchers executed by the person or persons entitled to the purchase or contract price and approved by said board. [35 G. A., ch. 236, § 2.]

SEC. 2727-a95. Admission. All adults afflicted with epilepsy who have been residents of Iowa for at least one year preceding the application for admission and all children so afflicted whose parents or guardians have been residents of Iowa for a like period shall be eligible for admission. [35 G. A., ch. 236, § 3.]

OF COUNTY HIGH SCHOOLS.

SECTION 2728. How established. Any county may establish a high school in the following manner: When the board of supervisors shall be presented with a petition signed by one third of the electors of the county as shown by the returns of the last preceding election, requesting the establishment of a county high school at a place in the county named therein, it shall submit the question together with the amount of tax to be levied to erect the necessary buildings, at the next general election to be held in the county, or at a special one called for that purpose, first giving twenty days' notice thereof in one or more newspapers published in the county, if any be published therein, and by posting such notice, written or printed, in each township of the county, at which election the vote shall be by ballot, for or against establishing the high school, and for or against the levying of the tax, the vote to be canvassed in the same manner as that for county officers. Should a majority of all the votes cast upon the question be in favor of establishing such school, and the levying of such tax, the board of supervisors shall at once appoint six trustees, residents of the county, not more than two from the same township, who, with the county superintendent of common schools as president, shall constitute a board of trustees for said high school. [27 G. A., ch. 84, § 1; C. '73, §§ 1697–9, 1701.]

The provisions of code § 2803 relating to tuition for pupils attending school in another district than that in which they reside, have no application to county high schools organized under this section. Boggs v. School Township, 128–15, 102 N. W. 796.

SEC. 2729. Trustees—officers. The trustees, within ten days after appointment, shall qualify by taking the oath of civil officers, and giving bond in such sum as the board of supervisors may require, with sureties to be approved by it, and shall hold office until their successors are elected and qualified, who shall be elected at the general election following. The trustees then elected shall be divided into two classes of three each and hold their office two and four years respectively, their several terms to be decided by lot; and in all county high schools heretofore established the terms of all trustees therefor shall expire on the first day of January, nineteen hundred and seven, and at the general election in nineteen hundred and six there shall be six trustees elected for each of said county high schools, three of whom shall be elected for two years, and three of whom for four years, and at each general election thereafter three trustees shall be elected for the term of four years, the trustees so elected to qualify in the same manner and at the same time as other county officers and all vacancies occurring to be filled by appointment by the board of supervisors, the appointee to hold the office until the next general election, and a majority of which trustees shall constitute a quorum for the transaction of business. At the first meeting held in each year, the board shall appoint a secretary and treasurer from their own number, who shall perform the usual duties devolving upon like officers. The treasurer, in addition to his bond as trustee, shall give one as treasurer, in such sum and with such sureties as may be fixed by the board, and receive all moneys from all sources belonging to the funds of the school, and pay them out as directed by the board of trustees, upon orders drawn by the president and countersigned by the secretary; both of which officers shall keep an accurate account of all moneys received and paid out, and at the close of each year, and whenever required by the board, shall make a full itemized and detailed report. [31 G. A., ch. 135; C. '73, §§ 1699, 1700, 1704, 1711.]

SEC. 2730. Site—tax—approval of electors. As soon as convenient after the organization of the board, it shall proceed to select the best site that can be obtained without expense to the county, at the place named in the petition upon which the vote was taken, for the erection of the necessary school buildings, the title to be taken in the name of the county, and shall procure plans and specifications for the erection of such buildings, and make all necessary contracts for the erection of the same, the cost of which, when completed, shall not exceed the amount of the tax so levied therefor. They shall also annually make and certify to the board of supervisors on or before the first Monday of September of each year, an estimate of the amount of funds needed for improvements, teachers' wages and contingent expenses for the ensuing year, designating the amount for each, which, in the aggregate shall not exceed in any one year, two mills on the dollar, upon the taxable property of the county. No expenditures for buildings or other improvements shall be made, or contract entered into therefor, by said board, involving an outlay of to exceed five hundred dollars in any one year, without the same first being submitted to the electors of the county in which said school be located, for their approval; the tax to be levied and collected in the same manner as other county taxes, and paid over by the county treasurer in the same manner as school funds are paid to district treasurers. [27 G. A., ch. 84, § 2; C. '73, §§ 1702–3, 1705.]

SEC. 2731. Management. Said board shall make no purchases, nor enter into any contracts in any year, in excess of the funds on hand and to be raised by the levy of that year. It shall employ, when suitable buildings have been furnished, a competent principal teacher to take charge of the school, and such assistant teachers as may be necessary, and fix the salaries to be paid them, and in the conduct of the school may employ advanced students to assist in the work. Annual reports shall be made by the secretary to the board of supervisors, which report shall give the number of students, with the sex of each, who have been in attendance during the year, the branches taught, the textbooks used, number of teachers employed, salary paid to each, amount expended for library, apparatus, buildings, and all other expenses, the amount of funds on hand, debts contracted, and such other information as may be deemed important, and this report shall be printed in at least one newspaper in the county, if any is published therein, and a copy forwarded to the superintendent of public instruction. And for their services the trustees shall each receive the sum of two dollars per day for the time actually employed in the discharge of official duties, claims for services to be presented, audited, and paid out of the county treasury, in the same manner as other accounts against the county. [27 G. A., ch. 84, § 3; C. '73, §§ 1705–6, 1710, 1712.]

SEC. 2732. Regulations. The principal of any such high school, with the approval of the board of trustees, shall make such rules and regulations as is deemed proper in regard to the studies, conduct and government of the pupils, and such rules and regulations shall prohibit the use of tobacco in any form by any student of such school; and any pupil who will not conform to and obey such rules may be suspended or expelled therefrom by the board of trustees. Said board of trustees shall make all necessary rules and regulations in regard to the age and grade of attainments necessary to entitle pupils to admission into the school, and shall on or before the tenth day of July of each year make an apportionment between the different school corporations of the county, of the pupils that shall attend said school, and shall apportion to each of said school corporations its proportionate number, based upon the number of pupils that can be reasonably accommodated in said school, and the number of pupils of school age, actual residents of such school corporations, as shown by the county superintendent's report last filed with the county auditor of said county; said apportionment shall be published in the official papers of such county, to be paid for as other county printing; pupils from the said school corporations to the number so designated in such apportionment shall be entitled to admission into said school, tuition free, and none others, and it shall be unlawful to accredit pupils so attending to any other school corporation than the one in which they are enumerated for school purposes. Should there be more applicants for such admission from any school corporation than its proportionate number, so determined, then the board of directors of such school corporation shall designate which of said applicants shall be entitled to so attend. If the school shall be capable of accommodating more pupils than those attending under such apportionment, others may be admitted by the board of trustees, preference at all times being given to pupils desiring such admission, who are residents of the county. The board of trustees shall fix reasonable tuition for such pupils. If such pupils are residents of the county the school corporation from which they attend shall pay their tuition out of its contingent fund. The principal of such high school shall report to the said board of trustees under oath, at the close of each term, the names and number of pupils attending such school during said term, from what school corporation they attended, and the amount of tuition, if any, paid by each, the same to be included in the annual report of the secretary of the board of trustees to the board of supervisors, provided for in section twenty-seven hundred thirty-one of the code, the tuition so paid to be turned over to the treasurer of the board of trustees to be used in paying the expense of said school under the direction of said board. [35 G. A., ch. 241, § 1.] [27 G. A., ch. 84, § 4; C. '73, § 1709.]

The legislature may provide for the establishment and maintenance of county high schools and require the payment of tuition for pupils attending from any one district in excess of the number allotted to such district. Boggs v. School Township, 128–15, 102 N. W. 796.

SEC. 2733-1a. Attendance at schools outside home district—tuition. That chapter one hundred forty-six of the acts of the thirty-fourth general assembly is hereby repealed and the following is enacted in lieu thereof:

Any person of school age who is a resident of a school corporation which does not offer a four-year high school course and who has completed the course as approved by the department of public instruction for such corporation shall be permitted to attend any public high school or county high school in the state approved in like manner, that will receive him. Any person applying for admission to any high school under the provisions of this act shall present the officials of said high school the affidavit of his or her father, mother or guardian that such applicant is of school age and a resident of a school district of this state, specifying the district. He shall also present a certificate signed by the county superintendent showing proficiency in the common school branches, reading, orthography, arithmetic, physiology, grammar, civics of Iowa, geography, United States history, penmanship and music. The school corporation in which such student resides shall pay to the secretary of the corporation in which such student shall be permitted to enter a tuition fee equal to the average cost of tuition and the average proportion of contingent expenses in the high school department in the latter corporation during the time he so attends, not exceeding, however, a total period of four school years; such payment to be made out of the teachers' fund and the contingent fund or out of the general fund of the debtor corporation and such tuition fee as collected by the secretary shall be turned over by him with an itemized statement, to the treasurer of the school funds on or before February fifteenth and June fifteenth of each year, provided the maximum fee collected from any district for each pupil shall not exceed the sum of three and one-half dollars per month except in high schools where free textbooks are provided by the district such additional amount may[1] be charged as will cover the cost of the textbooks furnished to such pupil. If payment is refused or neglected the board of the creditor corporation shall file with the auditor of the county of the pupil's residence a statement certified by its president specifying the amount due for tuition and for contingent expenses respectively, and the time for which the same is claimed; and the auditor shall transmit to the county treasurer an order directing such treasurer to transfer the amount of such account from the debtor corporation to the creditor corporation, and the treasurer shall pay the same in accordance therewith. No school corporation situated in a county maintaining a county high school shall be required to pay the tuition of pupils at any high school other than such county high school, but this shall not apply to pupils who, while residing at home, attend some high school other than that of the school corporation in which they reside; and the tuition to be paid by school corporations in such county shall be two dollars per pupil per month. [35 G. A., ch. 239, § 1; 35 G. A., ch. 240, § 1; 34 G. A., ch. 146, §§ 1–4.]

SEC. 2733-a. Petitions to abolish—election. That section twenty-seven hundred thirty-three of the code be repealed and the following substituted:

"Whenever citizens of any county having a county high school desire to abolish the same or to dispose of any part of the buildings or property thereof, they may petition the board of supervisors at any regular session thereof in relation thereto, and sections three hundred ninety-seven, three hundred ninety-eight, three hundred ninety-nine and four hundred of the code shall apply to and govern the whole matter, including the manner of presenting and determining the sufficiency of such petitions and remonstrances thereto, so far as applicable. If an election is ordered the same shall be held at the time of the general election or at a special election called for that purpose and the proposition shall be submitted and the election conducted in the manner provided in title six of the code. If any proposition as herein provided be legally submitted and adopted, the board of supervisors is hereby empowered to carry the same into effect." [27 G. A., ch. 84, § 5.]

CHAPTER 13.

OF COUNTY SUPERINTENDENT.

SEC. 2734-a. Repeal. There is hereby repealed sections twenty-six hundred thirty-two, twenty-seven hundred thirty-four, twenty-seven hundred thirty-five, twenty-seven hundred thirty-six, twenty-seven hundred thirty-seven of the code, and sections twenty-seven hundred thirty-four, twenty-seven hundred thirty-six, twenty-seven hundred thirty-seven of the supplement to the code, [1902] and the following enacted in lieu thereof: [31 G. A., ch. 122, § 1.]

SEC. 2734-b. Qualifications—powers and duties—deputy. That the law as it appears in section twenty-seven hundred thirty-four-b, supplement to the code, 1907, be and the same is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

The county superintendent, who may be of either sex, shall be the holder of a regular five-year state certificate or a life diploma, and shall have had at least five years' experience in teaching or superintending, but this provision as to certification and experience shall not apply until September first, nineteen hundred eighteen, provided that any county superintendent of schools now serving shall be deemed eligible to reappointment under this act. The county superintendent shall, under the direction of the superintendent of public instruction, serve as the organ of communication between the department of public instruction and the various officers and instructors in his county, and shall transmit or deliver to them all books, pamphlets, circulars or communications designed for them. He shall visit the different schools in his county at least once during the school year and also when requested by a majority of the directors of any school corporation. He shall also, at the request of the superintendent of public instruction, visit and report upon such schools as may be designated. He may appoint a deputy, for whose acts he shall be responsible, and who may act in his stead except in visiting schools and trying appeals, the salary of such deputy to be fixed by the representatives in convention assembled. He shall, on the first Monday of each month, file with the county auditor an itemized and verified statement of his actual and necessary expenses incurred during the previous month in the performance of his official duties within his county, and such expenses shall be paid by the county board of supervisors out of the county fund, but the total amount so paid for any one year for such purposes shall not exceed the sum of two hundred fifty dollars. [35 G. A., ch. 107, § 3.] [31 G. A., ch. 122, § 2; 27 G. A., ch. 85, § 1; 16 G. A., ch. 136, § 2; C. '73, §§ 1765, 1770; R. § 2069.]

One who had secured a first grade certificate from a county superintendent between the time of the passage of 31 G. A., ch. 122, and the time it took effect, but had not secured a first grade certificate under the provisions of that act, held not qualified to hold the office of county superintendent. State v. Huegle, 135–100, 112 N. W. 234.

SEC. 2734-b1. Term—vacancy. The term of office of the county superintendent of schools shall be for three years and until his successor is elected and qualified and such term shall begin on the first secular day of September after his election; and the terms[1] of county superintendents now in office are hereby extended until the first day of September, nineteen hundred fifteen, and until their successors are elected and qualified. Should a vacancy in such office occur, by death, removal, resignation, or otherwise, the county auditor shall at once call a special meeting for the purpose of filling such vacancy. [35 G. A., ch. 107, § 4.]

["term" in enrolled bill. EDITOR.]

SEC. 2734-b2. Acts in conflict repealed. All acts or parts of acts in conflict herewith are, so far as in conflict, hereby repealed. [35 G. A., ch. 107, § 5.]

SEC. 2734-c. Examinations. On the last Friday, and Wednesday and Thursday preceding, in the months of January, June, July and October, the county superintendent shall meet and, with such assistants as may be necessary, examine all applicants for a teachers' certificate. Such examinations shall be held at the county seat, in a suitable room which shall be provided for that purpose by the board of supervisors; but the county superintendent may at his discretion cause to be held at the time of any regular examination an additional examination at some other place in the county. The questions used in such examinations shall be furnished by the educational board of examiners, who shall cause the same to be printed, and the examinations shall be conducted strictly under rules prescribed by the board. [31 G. A., ch. 122, § 3; 19 G. A., ch. 161, § 2; 17 G. A., ch. 143; C. '73, §§ 1766, 1768, 1774; R. §§ 2066, 2068, 2073; C. '51, § 1148.]

SEC. 2734-d. Subjects. The examination for the first grade certificate shall include competency in and ability to teach orthography, reading, writing, arithmetic, geography, grammar, history of the United States, didactics, elementary civics, elementary algebra, political economy, elementary economics, elementary physics, elements of vocal music, physiology and hygiene, which in each division of the subject shall include special reference to the effects of alcohol, stimulants and narcotics upon the human system. [31 G. A., ch. 122, § 4; 27 G. A., ch. 86, § 1; 21 G. A., ch. 1, §§ 1, 3; 17 G. A., ch. 143; C. '73, §§ 1766, 1768; R. §§ 2066, 2068; C. '51, § 1148.]

SEC. 2734-e. Special certificates. That a special certificate may be issued for any subject, or any group of subjects, taught in the public schools of Iowa, upon examination in such special subject or group of subjects and per cents. therein such as are required for the issue of a first grade county certificate. A special certificate shall be issued for a term of three years and shall be renewable under the same conditions as apply to the renewal of first grade certificates. It shall state the names of the subjects for which it is issued, and shall not be valid for the teaching of any other subjects. [34 G. A., ch. 130, § 4.] [31 G. A., ch. 122, § 5.]

SEC. 2734-f. Record kept. A record shall be kept by the county superintendent of all examinations taken within his county, with the name, age and residence of each applicant and the date of examination. [31 G. A., ch. 122, § 6.]

SEC. 2734-g. First grade certificate—renewal. Applicants who have taught successfully for at least thirty-six weeks and whose examination entitles them to the first grade certificate, shall receive the same for a term of three years from the date thereof, and such certificates shall be renewable without examination provided the applicants shall show by testimonials from superintendents or principals who had immediate supervision of their professional study that at least one line of professional inquiry has been successfully conducted during the life of the certificate, it being made the duty of the board to forward with each certificate subject to renewal, outlines setting forth various lines of professional study. It is provided further that each application for renewal shall be accompanied by such proof of successful experience and professional spirit as the educational board of examiners may require. [34 G. A., ch. 130, § 5; 33 G. A., ch. 181, §1.] [31 G. A., ch. 122, § 7; 27 G. A., ch. 86, § 2; 26 G. A., ch. 39; 21 G. A., ch. 1, § 3; C. '73, §§ 1767, 1771; R. §§ 2067, 2070.]

A certificate issued by a county superintendent prior to the taking effect of 31 G. A., ch. 122, does not qualify the holder to fill the office of county superintendent under provisions of § 2 of the act. State v. Huegle, 135–100, 112 N. W. 234.

SEC. 2734-h. Second grade certificate—renewal. That section twenty-seven hundred thirty-four-h of the supplement to the code, 1907, as amended by chapter one hundred eighty-one of the acts of the thirty-third general assembly, is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"Applicants whose examination entitles them to second grade certificates only, shall receive the same for not to exceed two years with the privilege of renewal of the same without further examination under the same conditions as govern the renewal of first grade certificates. The holder of a second grade certificate may at any of the examinations provided for in section twenty-seven hundred thirty-four-c of the supplement to the code, 1907, take an examination in any one or more of the additional branches, required for the issue of a first grade certificate, or he may at any such time be reëxamined in any branch or branches in which he desires to raise his grade, and in each case the new per cent. shall be placed on his certificate, and when he has thus successfully passed in all the branches required for the issue of a first grade certificate, such certificate shall then be issued to him, provided he has had at least thirty-six weeks' successful experience in teaching; if not, then at the conclusion of such experience. In like manner third grade certificates may be changed into those of the second or first grade, and in all cases whether the certificate be of the first, second or third grade, credit shall be given for all examinations taken under the auspices of the board, it being the intention of the law that an examination once taken shall be final unless the certificate holder desires to be reëxamined in any one or more branches with a view of raising his per cent. in such branches or his general average." [34 G. A., ch. 130, § 6; 33 G. A., ch. 181, § 2.] [31 G. A., ch. 122, § 8.]

SEC. 2734-i. Third grade certificate—renewal. That section twenty-seven hundred thirty-four-i of the supplement to the code, 1907, is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"Applicants whose examination entitles them to third grade certificates only, shall receive the same for one year, at the end of which time upon proof of successful teaching and the payment of a fee of one dollar, one renewal shall be granted." [34 G. A., ch. 130, § 8.] [31 G. A., ch. 122, § 9.]

SEC. 2734-j. Applicants without experience. Applicants who have had no experience in teaching, but whose examination entitles them to the first grade, shall receive a second grade certificate for two years, provided that when they have taught successfully under such certificate for not less than thirty-six weeks, they shall be entitled to receive a first grade certificate on the conditions herein provided for a renewal of a certificate. [31 G. A., ch. 122, § 10.]

SEC. 2734-k. Certificates renewed—conditions—repeal. That section twenty-seven hundred thirty-four-k of the supplement to the code,

SEC. 2734-l. Proof of good character. Before admitting anyone to the examination, the county superintendent must be satisfied that the person seeking a certificate is of good moral character, of which fact he may require proof, and is in all respects other than in scholarship possessed of the necessary qualifications as an instructor. [31 G. A., ch. 122, § 12; 27 G. A., ch. 86, § 2; 26 G. A., ch. 39; 21 G. A., ch. 1, § 3; C. '73, §§ 1767, 1771; R. §§ 2067, 2070.]

SEC. 2734-m. Examination papers graded—certificates issued. As soon as the examination is completed the county superintendent shall forward to the superintendent of public instruction a list of all applicants examined, with the standings of each in didactics and oral reading, and his estimate of each applicant's personality and general fitness, other than scholarship, for the work of teaching. He shall at the same time forward to the superintendent of public instruction the answer papers written, with the exception of those in didactics. Under the supervision of the educational board of examiners, the papers[1] shall be graded and the scholastic qualifications determined. The result of such examination of persons who pass the same shall be entered upon a certificate provided by such board, and shall be transmitted to the county superintendent of the county in which the person entitled thereto resides. [31 G. A., ch. 122, § 13.]

SEC. 2734-n. Readers—clerical help—compensation. Immediately following each examination authorized by this act, the board of examiners shall call to their assistance a sufficient number of competent readers previously selected by the board, ten of whom shall be county superintendents. The county superintendents so chosen shall be known as head readers and shall also constitute a review board in cases of doubt. They shall also make a list of applicants from each county, nearest the passing mark for a third grade certificate. The head readers shall receive necessary traveling expenses only. All other readers shall receive actual traveling expenses to and from the capitol and not to exceed fifty cents an hour for time actually employed in reading and marking answer papers. Such additional clerical help as may be required may be employed by the board at not to exceed thirty cents per hour for time actually employed. [31 G. A., ch. 122, § 14.]

SEC. 2734-o. Expenditures certified and paid. All expenditures authorized by this act shall be certified by the superintendent of public instruction to the executive council, who shall cause the auditor of the state to draw warrants therefor upon the treasurer of state, but not to exceed the fees paid into the treasury under the provisions of this act. [31 G. A., ch. 122, § 15.]

SEC. 2734-p. Qualifications of applicants—fee. Each applicant for a certificate shall pay a fee of one dollar, one half of which shall be paid into the state treasury on or before the first day of the succeeding month, and one half shall be paid into the county institute fund. Provided, however, that applicants for teachers' certificates after July first, nineteen hundred fifteen, shall have had at least twelve weeks of normal training, and shall at the time of making such application furnish a certificate in writing from the institution where such training was received, showing such fact. It is further provided, that this act shall not apply to the regular graduates of the state university, state college of agriculture and mechanic arts, state teachers college, any accredited[1] college of the state, or of any other college of like character outside of the state. [35 G. A., ch. 243, § 1.] [31 G. A., ch. 122, § 16.]

SEC. 2734-p1. Experience as qualification. The provisions of this act shall in no way bar any teacher who can furnish evidence of at least six months' successful teaching experience. [35 G. A., ch. 243, § 2.]

SEC. 2734-p2. Provisional certificates. If there should be schools without teachers and teachers cannot be secured with qualifications as provided in sections one or two of this act, then provisional certificates may be issued regardless of qualifications as provided in said sections to so many teachers as shall be required to supply such schools. [35 G. A., ch. 243, § 3.]

SEC. 2734-q. Registration fee. No person shall teach in any public school in this state whose certificate has not been registered with the county superintendent of the county in which such school is located. [34 G. A., ch. 130, § 12.] [31 G. A., ch. 122, § 17.]

SEC. 2734-r. Third grade certificates, when not to be registered. In case a sufficient number of life diplomas, state certificates, first grade certificates, special certificates and second grade certificates are held in any county to supply the schools thereof, it shall not be incumbent on the county superintendent to register third grade certificates. [31 G. A., ch. 122, § 18.]

SEC. 2734-s. Special examination—provisional certificates. When a sufficient number of licensed teachers cannot be secured to fill the schools of any county, the board of examiners may, upon the request of the county superintendent, appoint a special examination for such county to be conducted in all respects as a regular examination and the answer papers to be forwarded to the president of the board as required in regular examinations, and thereupon provisional certificates may be issued by the educational board of examiners. [31 G. A., ch. 122, § 19.]

SEC. 2734-t. Certificates, where valid—revocation. All certificates provided for in this act shall be valid in any county within the state, when registered in such county, but a provisional certificate shall be valid, upon registration, only in the county in which it is issued and shall be issued for the same time and subject to the same extension as a third grade certificate, but no person shall be entitled to receive more than one provisional certificate, except upon the approval of the county superintendent. Any certificate or diploma issued by the board may be revoked for any cause which would have authorized or required a refusal to grant the same, or in case the holder thereof violates any of the provisions of this act. [31 G. A., ch. 122, § 20.]

SEC. 2734-u. Revocation of certificate — charges — trial — appeal. When in the judgment of the county superintendent there is probable cause for the revocation of a certificate or diploma held by any teacher employed in his county, or when charges are preferred, supported by affidavits charging incompetency, immorality, intemperance, cruelty or general neglect of the business of the school, the county superintendent shall within ten days transmit to such person a written statement of the charges preferred and set the time and place for the hearing of the same, at which trial the teacher shall be privileged to be present and make defense. If in the judgment of the county superintendent there is sufficient grounds for the revocation of the certificate or diploma, he shall at once issue in duplicate an order revoking the certificate or diploma, and the same shall become operative and of full force and effect ten days after the date of its issue, one copy of the order to be mailed to the holder of the certificate and the other to be mailed to the superintendent of public instruction. Provided that the person aggrieved by such order shall have the right to appeal to the superintendent of public instruction within ten days from the date of such mailing and in case of appeal the revocation shall not be effective until the same is affirmed, after full hearing, by the superintendent of public instruction. Provided further, that in the case of life diplomas or state certificates of whatever class, the revocation shall not be effective until affirmed by the educational board of examiners after full review by said board. [31 G. A., ch. 122, § 21.]

SEC. 2734-v. List of persons holding certificates and attending normal institute. The county superintendent shall annually, on the first Monday of September, file with the president of the educational board of examiners a list of all persons who for the preceding year have held certificates and have attended the normal institute, with the number of days' attendance of each. A similar report of summer school attendance shall be secured by the president of the board. In any subsequent examination or renewal the board may give such credit for institute or summer school attendance as it may determine, any rule adopted to apply equally to all similar cases. [31 G. A., ch. 122, § 22.]

SEC. 2738. Normal institutes—adjournment of schools—attendance—lectures—funds—reports—summer schools—fees. That the law as it appears in section twenty-seven hundred thirty-eight, supplement to the code, 1907, as amended by chapter one hundred thirty of the acts of the thirty-fourth general assembly, be and the same is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

The county superintendent shall hold annually at least one, but not more than two, county teachers' institutes at such times as the schools of the county are generally in session; and shall, with the concurrence of the superintendent of public instruction, procure such assistance as may be necessary to conduct the same.

The school board of every school district except in city independent school districts where twenty-five or more teachers are regularly employed, shall adjourn the school or schools of said district for not less than two days in each school year in order to allow teachers to attend county teachers' institutes held in the county, without loss of salary. The county superintendent shall issue a certificate of attendance to each teacher showing number of days of attendance at said institute, and any teacher failing to attend said teachers' institute two days shall forfeit his or her average daily salary for each day of nonattendance, except when excused by the county superintendent for physical disability to perform his or her duties in the schoolroom.

In city independent districts where twenty-five or more teachers are regularly employed, the county superintendent shall coöperate with the city superintendent in arranging for educational lectures relating to the professional work of the teacher and to such matters of public education as may best meet the needs of the teachers in such districts and at such times as may be approved by the city superintendent and city board of education, in so far as the condition of the county institute fund shall permit. All arrangements concerning plans for professional teachers' meetings in said city districts shall be subject to final approval by the superintendent of public instruction. It shall be the duty of teachers in said districts to attend said lectures and the county superintendent shall issue a certificate of attendance showing number of lectures attended as provided by this act.

To defray the expenses of said teachers' institutes, in addition to the fifty dollars received annually from the state and one half of all examination fees collected in the county, one hundred fifty dollars from the general county fund shall be available for that purpose in counties having a population of thirty thousand or less, which amount shall be appropriated by the board of supervisors of such county at their January session in each year, and in counties of over thirty thousand, two hundred dollars shall be thus appropriated for such purpose.

No part of the county teachers' institute fund received from the aforesaid sources may be used for any other purpose than to pay instructors, for special supplies needed in order to properly conduct said teachers' institutes, for janitor service, and rent for building in which to conduct said institute if necessary.

On the first secular day of each month, the county superintendent shall transmit to the county treasurer all moneys received for examination fees and the state appropriation for institutes, which, together with the county appropriation, shall be designated as the county teachers' institute fund; he shall also report monthly the names of all applicants for teachers' certificates to the county auditor. All disbursements of the institute fund shall be by warrants drawn by the county auditor, who shall draw said warrants upon the written order of the county superintendent, and said written order must be accompanied by an itemized bill for services rendered or expenses incurred in connection with the institute, which bill must be signed and sworn to by the party in whose favor the order is made and must be verified by the county superintendent. All said orders and bills shall be kept on file in the auditor's office until the final settlement of the county superintendent with the board of supervisors at the close of his term of office. No warrant shall be drawn by the auditor in excess of [the] institute fund then in the county treasury. The county superintendent shall furnish to the county board of supervisors a certified itemized account of the receipts and disbursements of all moneys collected and paid out by him for teachers' institutes and summer schools, which account they shall examine, audit and publish a summary thereof with the proceedings of the regular June meeting of the board. The county superintendent shall report to the board of supervisors on the first of January annually a summary of his official financial transactions for the previous year.

County superintendents are hereby authorized by law to conduct from four to six weeks summer school where it may be deemed advisable, for the purpose of giving teachers and prospective teachers academic instruction. A fee shall be collected from each attendant sufficient in the aggregate to meet all necessary expenses for the support of said summer school. The fee so collected shall be paid into the county institute fund and a list of the names of all attendants shall be filed with the county auditor. Warrants for the purpose of paying instructors employed in summer schools shall be drawn by the county auditor, who shall draw said warrant upon written order of the county superintendent, and said written order must be accompanied by a certified itemized bill for services rendered or expenses incurred in connection with said summer school, but no warrant shall be issued in excess of the fees received from the summer school and deposited with the county treasurer. This act shall not take effect until July first, nineteen hundred fourteen. [35 G. A., ch. 225, § 2; 34 G. A., ch. 130, § 11.] [30 G. A., ch. 113; 29 G. A., ch. 123, § 1; 27 G. A., ch. 87, § 1; 17 G. A., ch. 54; 15 G. A., ch. 57; C. '73, § 1769.]

SEC. 2739. Reports. The county superintendent shall annually, on the last Tuesday in August, make a report to the superintendent of public instruction, giving a full abstract of the several reports made to him by the secretaries and treasurers of school boards, stating the manner in and extent to which the requirements of the law regarding instruction in physiology and hygiene are observed, and such other matters as he may be directed by the state superintendent to include therein, or he may think important in showing the actual condition of the schools in his county. At the same time, he shall file with the county auditor a statement of the number of persons of school age in each school township and independent district in the county. He shall also report, as provided by law, to the superintendent of the college for the blind, the name, age, residence and post-office address of every person, resident of the county, so blind as to be unable to acquire an education in the common schools; to the superintendent of the institution for the deaf and dumb, with the same detail, all persons of school age whose faculties in respect to hearing or speaking are so deficient as to prevent them from acquiring an education in such schools; and to the institution for the feeble-minded, all persons of like age who, because of mental defects, are entitled to admission therein. [31 G. A., ch. 136, § 1; 21 G. A., ch. 1, § 2; C. '73, §§ 1772, 1775; R. § 2071.]

SEC. 2742. Compensation. He shall receive a salary of twelve hundred fifty dollars a year, the expenses of necessary office stationery and postage, and those incurred in attendance upon meetings called by the superintendent of public instruction; claims therefor to be made by verified statements filed with the county auditor, who shall draw his warrant upon the county treasurer therefor; and the board of supervisors may allow him such further sum by way of compensation as may be just and proper. Provided, however, that from and after the first day of September, nineteen hundred fifteen, county superintendents shall receive the following salary, payable monthly, and the representatives of the school corporations in session may allow them such further sum by way of compensation as may be just and proper. He shall receive a salary of fifteen hundred dollars a year, the expenses of necessary office stationery and postage, and those incurred in attendance upon meetings called by the superintendent of public instruction; claims therefor to be made by verified statements filed with the county auditor, who shall draw his warrant upon the county treasurer therefor; and the board of supervisors may allow him such further sum by way of compensation as may be just and proper. [35 G. A., ch. 107, § 2.] [29 G. A., ch. 124, § 1; 19 G. A., ch. 161, § 1; C. '73, § 1776; R. § 2074.]

CHAPTER 14.

OF THE SYSTEM OF COMMON SCHOOLS.

SECTION 2743. School districts—corporate powers.

While it is not essential that contracts made by the board be limited to the term of office of the individual members, yet it is evidently the legislative intention that contracts with teachers shall not be made for more than one year. Burkhead v. Independent Sch. Dist., 107–29, 77 N. W. 491.

A school township may maintain an action in equity to enjoin persons from assuming without authority to act as officers of a district within such township. School Township v. Wiggins, 122–602, 98 N. W. 490.

While the district has power to hold property for any purpose for which property is authorized to be acquired by it, yet if it has by action of the board taken a conveyance of property for a new site and the action of the board in establishing such site is reversed on appeal to the county superintendent, the conveyance becomes invalid and inoperative without any action on the part of the board for rescission. Ind. School Dist. v. McClure, 136–122, 113 N. W. 554.

SEC. 2744. Names. District townships now existing shall hereafter be called school townships, subdivisions of which shall be called subdistricts. School corporations shall be designated as follows: The school township of (naming civil township), in the county of (naming county), state of Iowa; or, the independent school district of (naming city, town, or village, and if there are two or more districts therein, including some appropriate name or number), in the county of (naming county), state of Iowa; or, the rural independent school district of (some appropriate name or number), township of (naming township), in the county of (naming county), state of Iowa. [27 G. A., ch. 91, § 1; C. '73, § 1716; R. § 2026; C. '51, § 1108.]

SEC. 2745. Directors.

The management of school affairs is left to the discretion of the board of directors, and such discretion will not be interfered with by the courts so far as it is exercised within the scope of the powers conferred upon the board. Kinzer v. Independent School Dist., 129–441, 105 N. W. 686.

The board of directors being given exclusive control over the affairs of the school corporation subject to appeal to the county superintendent, an action of mandamus will lie to compel the board to comply with the orders of the superintendent in a matter as to which the board has exclusive jurisdiction. State v. Thomas, 152–500, 132 N. W. 842.

SEC. 2745-a. Duty of boards of school directors—fence. It shall be the duty of all boards of school directors in school districts where the schoolhouse site adjoins the cultivated or improved lands of another to build and maintain a lawful fence between said site and cultivated or improved lands. [27 G. A., ch. 88, § 1.]

SEC. 2745-b. Rights of owner of adjoining lands. The owner of lands adjoining any schoolhouse site shall have the right to connect the fence on his lands with the fences around any schoolhouse site, but he shall not be liable to contribute to the maintenance of the fence around said site. [27 G. A., ch. 88, § 2.]

SEC. 2746. Annual meeting of corporation.

By reason of the provisions of this section as to giving notice of propositions to be submitted to and determined by the voters at school meetings, and code § 2749, that the board may, or under certain conditions shall, provide in the notice for the annual meeting for submitting any proposition authorized by law to the voters, notice of the proposition to be submitted at such meeting is essential to the validity of their adoption, the statutory provision as to notice being construed as mandatory. Goerdt v. Trumm, 118–207, 91 N. W. 1067.

The board may provide in the notice of a school meeting for the submission of the question as to voting a schoolhouse tax. Kinney v. Howard, 133–94, 110 N. W. 282.

Unless there has been a valid order of the board of directors for the submission of a proposition, the adoption thereof by the electors is of no validity, even though notice of the submission of the proposition has been given. McNees v. School Township, 133–120, 110 N. W. 325.

The law presumes that the officer charged with the posting of the notices has performed his duty. Calahan v. Handsaker, 133–622, 111 N. W. 22.

Although school elections are referred to in this chapter as school meetings, a meeting of the voters at which officers are chosen in school corporations is an election. Therefore held that sale of liquors under the mulct law is prohibited on the days of school elections. Hammond v. King, 137–548, 114 N. W. 1062.

SEC. 2747. Electors.

Women are expressly authorized to vote on the proposition whether a tax shall be levied for the erection of a schoolhouse. Kinney v. Howard, 133–94, 110 N. W. 282.

SEC. 2749. Powers.

Irregularity in recording the acts of the electors will not prevent such action being recognized and taken into account in a court of equity. Locker v. Keiler, 110–707, 80 N. W. 433.

It is not necessary that the ballot contain a recital of every preliminary step necessary to render the election valid. Calahan v. Handsaker, 133–622, 111 N. W. 22.

No specific form of ballot is prescribed; all that is necessary is that the ballot fairly and intelligently present the question that is to be voted upon. A substantial compliance with the statute is sufficient. So held where the question was as to the validity of bonds issued on a vote of the electors. Ibid.

Where the ballot prepared and used by the electors was in the form of the Australian ballot with reference to the submission of propositions, and not in strict conformity with the statutory provision as to submission of propositions at school elections, held that the irregularity would not defeat the result of the election. Kinney v. Howard, 133–94, 110 N. W. 282.

The vote of the electors on a proposition of which notice of submission is given is of no validity unless the submission of such proposition has been duly authorized by the board of directors. McNees v. School Township, 133–120, 110 N. W. 325.

This provision does not take away the power previously existing in the board of directors to change the schoolhouse site without such vote. James v. Gettinger, 123–199, 98 N. W. 723.

The electors of a district township having the power to vote a tax may rescind such vote unless, by so doing, they interfere with vested rights; and held that where the board and its officers had failed to certify a schoolhouse tax for collection, and the persons desiring to secure the schoolhouse for which the tax was levied had no interest except the right to bring action to compel the certification of the tax, they had no such vested interest as to authorize them to object to the rescission of the tax. Hibbs v. Board of Directors, 110–306, 81 N. W. 584.

While a tax voted without the necessary notice is ultra vires as to the school district, yet if schoolhouses have been built in reliance on such tax, and a portion of the tax has been paid, taxpayers who have allowed the secretary to certify such tax to the board of supervisors cannot be heard to question the validity of such tax. Loesche v. Goerdt, 123–55, 98 N. W. 571.

A schoolhouse tax voted by the electors at their regular meeting is enforceable against property which is brought into the school district by extension of its limits prior to the levy of such tax, although at the time the tax was voted the owner was not a resident and could not participate in the election, and notwithstanding the fact that the tax had been certified to the county board for levy before such annexation took place. Grout v. Illingworth, 131–281, 108 N. W. 528.

In the absence of a written request for the submission at the annual meeting of any proposition authorized by law, it is discretionary with the board to provide in the notice of the meeting for such proposition to be submitted. Kirchner v. Board of Directors, 141–43, 118 N. W. 51.

Electors may vote a fund for the erection of a schoolhouse in excess of the amount that can be realized by the statutory levy and in such case the board of supervisors should make the legal levy notwithstanding the excessive amount voted by the electors. The vote of the electors in such case is not void although larger in amount than can be legally levied in any one year. Ibid.

The taxpayers have no such vested right in a schoolhouse built in accordance with the vote of the electors as to justify a court of equity in enjoining the sale thereof as ordered at an annual meeting or a special meeting duly called. Barclay v. School Township, 157–181, 138 N. W. 395.

SEC. 2750. Special meeting. The board of directors may call a special meeting of the voters of any school corporation by giving notice in the same manner as for the annual meeting, which shall have the powers given to a regular meeting with reference to the sale of school property and the application to be made of the proceeds, and to vote a schoolhouse tax for the purchase of a site and the construction of a necessary schoolhouse, and for obtaining roads thereto. [28 G. A., ch. 104, § 1; 24 G. A., ch. 21; 18 G. A., ch. 84.]

The submission of a proposition to a special meeting, even though requested by the electors, is discretionary with the board and its action will not be interfered with by mandamus. Kirchner v. Board of Directors, 141–43, 118 N. W. 51.

SEC. 2751. Subdistrict meeting.

The failure to make a record of an election at an annual school meeting will not deprive the officer selected of his right to office. The statute does not declare that the record shall be the sole and exclusive evidence, and if the record be not kept as required, or if it does not contain evidence of the fact sought to be proved, parol evidence is admissible. State v. Cahill, 131–155, 105 N. W. 691.

SEC. 2752. Number of directors. The board of directors of a school township shall be composed of one director from each subdistrict. But when there is an even number of subdistricts another member shall be elected at large by all the voters of the school township. When the school township is not divided into subdistricts, a board of three directors shall be elected at large, on the second Monday in March, by all the voters of the school township. [27 G. A., ch. 92, § 1; 15 G. A., ch. 27; C. '73, §§ 1720–1; R. §§ 2031, 2035, 2075–6; C. '51, § 1112.]

SEC. 2754. Elections in independent districts—tie vote—nominations—ballot. At the annual meeting in all independent districts members of the board shall be chosen by ballot. In any district including all or part of a city of the first class, or a city under special charter, the board shall consist of seven members, three of whom shall be chosen on the second Monday in March, eighteen hundred ninety-eight, two on the second Monday in March, eighteen hundred ninety-nine, and two on the second Monday in March, nineteen hundred. In all other independent city, town, or village districts, and in all rural independent districts where the board now consists of six members, the board shall consist of five members, one of whom shall be chosen on the second Monday in March, eighteen hundred ninety-eight, two on the second Monday in March, eighteen hundred ninety-nine, and two on the second Monday in March, nineteen hundred. In all independent city, town, or village districts where the board now consists of three members such board shall hereafter consist of five members, three of whom shall be elected on the second Monday in March, eighteen hundred ninety-eight, one for one year, one for two years, and one for three years. In all other rural independent districts the board shall consist of three members, one of whom shall be chosen on the second Monday in March, eighteen hundred ninety-eight, and one each year thereafter. In districts composed in whole or in part of cities or towns, a treasurer shall be chosen in like manner, whose term shall begin on the first day of July, unless that date falls on Sunday, in which case on the day following, and continue for two years, or until his successor is elected and qualified. The term of office of the incumbent treasurer in said district shall expire on the third Monday in March, eighteen hundred ninety-eight. In such districts the polls must remain open not less than five hours, and in rural independent districts and school townships not less than two hours. In each case the polls shall open at one o'clock p. m., except as provided in section twenty-seven hundred fifty-six of this chapter. A tie vote for any elective school office shall be publicly determined by lot forthwith, under the direction of the judges. The names of all persons nominated as candidates for office in all independent city or town districts shall be filed with the secretary of the school board not later than seven days previous to the day on which the annual school election is to be held, each candidate to be nominated by a petition signed by not less than ten qualified electors of the district. The secretary of the school board shall cause to be printed, ballots upon which shall appear in alphabetical order the names of all candidates for each office, filed as herein provided, and a blank line for each such officer to be elected, and there shall be at the left of each name and each blank line a square and there shall also be a direction to the voter as to the number of candidates to be voted for at said school election. Ballots shall be printed upon plain substantial paper of uniform quality and shall have no party designation or mark whatever. The secretary of the board shall cause to be delivered at the several polling places a sufficient number of ballots. In all other respects the said school election in independent city or town districts shall be conducted under the general election laws of the state of Iowa, so far as same may be applicable. [35 G. A., ch. 245, § 1.] [31 G. A., ch. 136, § 2; 27 G. A., ch. 93, § 1; 27 G. A., ch. 91, § 2; 22 G. A., ch. 51; 18 G. A., ch. 7, § 2; C. '73, §§ 1789, 1808.]

A deviation from the statutory provision as to the time for keeping the polls open will not invalidate the election where it appears that no one was thereby deprived of the opportunity to cast his ballot. District Twp. v. Independent Dist., 112-321, 83 N. W. 1068.

SEC. 2755. Election precincts—register of voters—notice. Each school corporation having five thousand or more inhabitants may be divided into such number of precincts as the board of directors shall determine, in each of which a poll shall be held at a convenient place, fixed by the board of directors, for the reception of the ballots of voters residing in such precinct. A separate register of the voters of each precinct shall be prepared by the board from the register of the electors of any city included within such school corporation, and for that purpose a copy of such register of electors shall be furnished by the clerk of the city to the board of directors. Before each annual meeting these registers shall be revised and corrected by comparison with the last register of elections of such cities, and shall have the same force and effect at school meetings held under this section, in respect to the reception of votes thereat, as the register of election has by law at general elections. The board of directors of such school corporation, on or before the last Monday preceding such election shall appoint two suitable persons to be registrars in each of the election precincts of such school corporation for the registration of voters therein, who shall have the same qualifications as registrars appointed for general elections and shall qualify in the same manner, and receive the same compensation to be paid by the school corporation. The registrars shall meet on the day of election at the voting place in the precinct in which they have been appointed and shall hold continuous session from nine o'clock in the forenoon until seven o'clock in the afternoon. Any person claiming to be a voter, and who is not already registered in the proper precinct, may appear before them in the election precinct where he claims he is entitled to vote and make and subscribe under oath a statement in the registry book, which oath and statement shall be of the same general character as that prescribed by section ten hundred seventy-seven of the code, and shall thereupon be granted a certificate of registration. Nothing in this section shall be construed to prohibit women from voting at all elections at which they are entitled to vote. The secretary must post a notice of the meeting in a public place in each precinct at least ten days before the meeting, and by publication once each week for two consecutive weeks preceding the same in some newspaper, published in the corporation, such notice to state the time, respective voting precincts and the polling place in each precinct, and also to specify what questions authorized by law, in addition to the election of director or directors, shall be voted upon and determined by the voters of the several precincts. [31 G. A., ch. 9, § 3; 29 G. A., ch. 125, §§ 1, 2; 28 G. A., ch. 105, § 1; 18 G. A., ch. 8, §§ 1–4.]

[The amendment by the 31 G. A., ch. 9, § 3, ignored the code supplement, 1902, where the same section is found. The amendment was by inserting matter in line 17 of the code section, while the same words, after which the matter should be inserted, appear in line 32 of the code supplement, where the change has been made.]

The register of voters for school elections is admissible in evidence as tending to show the number of voters in the district. State v. Grefe, 139–18, 117 N. W. 13.

SEC. 2756. Conduct of elections. As judges of the election referred to in the preceding section, the board shall appoint three voters of the precinct, one of whom shall act as clerk, who shall be sworn as provided in case of a general election. Such judges may or may not be members of the board, as the board may determine, provided that not more than one member of the school board shall act as such judge at any one voting precinct. If any person so appointed fails to attend, the judge or judges attending shall fill the place by the appointment of any voter present, and like action shall follow a refusal to serve or to be sworn. Should all of the appointees fail to attend, their places shall be filled by the voters from those in attendance. The board shall provide the necessary ballot box and poll book for each precinct, and the judges shall make and certify a return to the secretary of the corporation of the canvass of the votes for office and upon each question submitted. On the next Monday after the meeting the board shall canvass the returns made to the secretary, ascertain the result of the voting with regard to every matter voted upon, declare the same, cause a record to be made thereof, and at once issue a certificate to each person elected. At all meetings held under this and the next preceding section, the polls shall be kept open from nine o'clock a. m. until seven o'clock p. m. [35 G. A., ch. 245, § 2.] [18 G. A., ch. 8, §§ 5, 6.]

SEC. 2757. Meetings of directors—election of officers. That section twenty-seven hundred fifty-seven of the code be and the same is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"The board of directors of all independent city, town and village corporations shall organize on the third Monday in March, and those of all other school corporations on the first day of July, unless that date falls on Sunday, in which case the day following. Such organization shall be effected by the election of a president from the members of the board, who shall be entitled to vote as a member. Such special meetings may be held as may be determined by the board, or called by the president, or by the secretary upon the written request of a majority of the members of the board, upon notice specifying the time and place, delivered to each member in person, but attendance shall be a waiver of notice. Such meetings shall be held at any place within the civil township in which the corporation is situated. On the first day of July, unless that date falls on Sunday, in which case on the day following, the board of all independent city, town and village corporations and the retiring board in all other school corporations shall meet, examine the books of, and settle with the secretary and treasurer for the year ending on the thirtieth day of June preceding, and for the transaction of such other business as may properly come before it. On the same day the board of each independent city, town and village corporation, except as provided in section twenty-seven hundred fifty-four of this chapter, and the new board of every other school corporation, shall elect from outside the board a secretary and treasurer, but in independent districts no teacher or other employe of the board shall be eligible as secretary. All officers shall be elected by ballot and the vote shall be recorded by the secretary. Should the secretary or treasurer fail to report as provided in sections twenty-seven hundred sixty-five and twenty-seven hundred sixty-nine of this chapter, it shall be the duty of the new board to take any action necessary to secure a proper settlement." [31 G. A., ch. 136, § 3; 18 G. A., ch. 176; 15 G. A., ch. 27; C. '73, §§ 1721–2; R. §§ 2035–6, 2076; C. '51, § 1121.]

The provision as to notice of special meetings of the board contemplates some form of specific personal notice on each member. It does not authorize the mailing of such notice. Personal delivery of some form of notice is required. On failure to give proper notice to a member, a special meeting of the board is not lawfully called and it cannot lawfully act. Barclay v. School Township, 157–181, 138 N. W. 395.

SEC. 2758. Qualification of directors—vacancies. Any member of the board may administer the oath of qualification to any member elect, and to the president of the board. Each director elected in March, nineteen hundred and six, or at any regular election thereafter, shall qualify on or before the date for the organization of the board of the corporation in which he was elected, by taking an oath to support the constitution of the United States and that of the state of Iowa, and that he will faithfully discharge the duties of his office; and shall hold the office for the term to which he is elected, and until a successor is elected and qualified. In case of a vacancy, the office shall be filled by appointment by the board until the next annual meeting. In all rural school corporations, the term of office of directors whose terms expire on the third Monday in March, nineteen hundred and six, is hereby extended to July first, nineteen hundred and six. [31 G. A., ch. 137; C. '73, §§ 1752, 1790; R. §§ 2032, 2079; C. '51, §§ 1113, 1120.]

Where a board of directors, in the absence of the election of a new director to succeed one holding office, permitted the director then in office to qualify as his own successor, held that the director thus qualified was at least a de facto officer. District Twp. v. Myles, 109–541, 80 N. W. 544.

The term of a director does not begin at the time of his election, but at the time when by statute the regular meeting of the board of directors following the election is to be held, at which the board is to be organized; and if the director elected is ineligible and is therefore unable to qualify, the vacancy is not caused by failure to elect, but by the failure to qualify, and the old director will hold over if he qualifies within ten days from that time. State v. Cahill, 131–155, 105 N. W. 691.

SEC. 2759. President—employment of counsel.

The president has no authority to represent that at the time of settlement with the treasurer the funds called for by his accounts were produced, counted and found to be correct. Independent Sch. Dist. v. Hubbard, 110–58, 81 N. W. 241.

SEC. 2760. Bonds of secretary and treasurer.

Where the treasurer about to succeed himself in office makes a settlement with the board as by statute provided, producing in some tangible form the money which he should have on hand, the sureties on his new bond are conclusively bound thereby and they will be estopped from pleading or proving that the funds so exhibited were borrowed or otherwise temporarily or fraudulently procured and never in fact went into the public treasury. But where the money is not produced in any form and the board charged by law with making the settlement accepts a mere book account or personal statement of the treasurer that he has the funds in his possession, then the liability on the bond is prima facie only and the sureties will be relieved if it be fairly established that the shortage originated during the prior term. Independent School Dist. v. Herkenrath, 155–275, 135 N. W. 1086.

The treasurer is not guilty of any breach of official duty in depositing funds of the district in a bank if he acts in good faith and without negligence in making such deposit. Hansen v. Independent School Dist., 155–264, 135 N. W. 1090.

Further, see notes to code § 2768 in this supplement.

SEC. 2761. Duties of secretary. The secretary shall file and preserve copies of all reports made to the county superintendent, and all papers transmitted to him pertaining to the business of the corporation; keep a complete record of all the proceedings of the meetings of the board and the voters of the corporation in separate books; keep an accurate, separate account of each fund with the treasurer, charge him with all warrants and drafts drawn in his favor, and credit him with all orders drawn on each fund; and he shall keep an accurate account of all expenses incurred by the corporation, and present the same to the board for audit and payment. At the annual meeting he shall record, in a book provided for that purpose, the names of all persons voting thereat, the number of votes cast for each candidate, and for and against each proposition submitted. The secretary of each independent town or city district shall file monthly, on or before the tenth day of each month, with the board of directors, a complete statement of all receipts and disbursements from the various funds during the preceding month, and also the balance remaining on hand in the various funds at the close of the period covered by said statement, which monthly statements shall be open to public inspection. [35 G. A., ch. 246, § 1.] [C. '73, §§ 1741, 1743; R. §§ 2041–2; C. '51, §§ 1126, 1128.]

Informality in the records kept by the secretary of the action of the board will not defeat subsequent proceedings based on such action if in fact taken. Kinney v. Howard, 133–94, 110 N. W. 282.

SEC. 2762. Warrants. He shall countersign all warrants and drafts upon the county treasurer drawn or signed by the president; draw each order on the treasurer, specify the fund on which it is drawn and the use for which the money is appropriated; countersign and keep a register of the same, showing the number, date, to whom drawn, the fund upon which it is drawn, the purpose and the amount; and at each regular annual meeting furnish the board with a copy of the same. [31 G. A., ch. 136, § 4; 19 G. A., ch. 46; C. '73, §§ 1739, 1782; R. §§ 2039, 2061; C. '51, §§ 1122–3.]

SEC. 2763. Notice of meetings—repeal. That section twenty-seven hundred sixty-three of the code be and the same is hereby repealed, and the following enacted in lieu thereof: [31 G. A., ch. 138, § 1.]

SEC. 2763-a. Notice of special meetings in school corporations—divided into precincts. The secretary of the board of directors of any school corporation which is divided into precincts, shall give notice of all special meetings of the voters, as provided by section twenty-seven hundred fifty-five of the supplement to the code [1902]. Each notice shall state the date, place and hours during which the meeting will be in session, and the object of the meeting. [31 G. A., ch. 138, § 2.]

Under this section before its repeal by 31 G. A., ch. 138, held that it had no application to submission of propositions to the electors. Kinney v. Howard, 133–94, 110 N. W. 282.

It will be presumed that the secretary has posted the notices as required by statute, in the absence of a showing to the contrary. Calahan v. Handsaker, 133–622, 111 N. W. 22.

SEC. 2763-b. Incorporations of certain cities and towns. The secretary of the board of directors for any school corporation, located wholly within or partly within the corporate limits of cities of the first class, cities of the second class, or incorporated towns, which may not have adopted the provisions of section twenty-seven hundred fifty-five of the supplement to the code [1902] and divided into precincts, shall give notice of special meeting of the voters in the same manner as for the annual meeting, by posting at least five notices in five public places within said corporation, for not less than ten days next preceding the day of special meeting. Each notice shall state the date, place and hours during which the meeting will be in session, and the object of the meeting. [31 G. A., ch. 138, § 3.]

SEC. 2763-c. In other school corporations. The secretary of the board of directors for any school township or for any school corporation not included in the preceding section shall give ten days' printed or written notice of special meeting to the voters, posted in at least five public places within the corporation. The notice shall be posted at the door of each schoolhouse, and also at or near the last place of meeting, and each notice shall state the date, place and hours during which the meeting will be in session, and the object of the meeting. [31 G. A., ch. 138, § 4.]

SEC. 2764. Register of persons of school age. He shall, between the first day of June and the first day of July of each year, enter in a book made for that purpose, the name, sex and age of every person between five and twenty-one residing in the corporation, together with the name of the parent or guardian. [31 G. A., ch. 136, § 5.]

SEC. 2765. Reports. He shall notify the county superintendent when each school is to begin and its length of term, and, within five days after the regular July meeting in each year, file with the county superintendent a report which shall give the number of persons in the corporation, male or female, of school age, the number of schools and branches taught, the number of scholars enrolled and average attendance in each school, the number of teachers employed and the average compensation paid per month, distinguishing the sexes, the length of school in days, and the average cost of tuition per month for each scholar, the textbooks used, number of volumes in library, the value of apparatus belonging to the corporation, the number of schoolhouses and their estimated value, the name, age and post-office address of each deaf and dumb or blind person in the corporation between the ages of five and twenty-one years, and this shall include those who are so blind or deaf as to be unable to obtain an education in the common schools, a like report as to all feeble-minded children of and between such ages, and the number of trees set out and in a thrifty condition on each schoolhouse ground. [31 G. A., ch. 136, § 6; 19 G. A., ch. 23, § 3; 16 G. A., ch. 112, § 1; C. '73, §§ 1744–5; R. § 2046; C. '51, § 1127.]

The auditor in apportioning school taxes has no authority to review the school census reported to him by the secretaries of school townships, and cannot be restrained by injunction from acting on the census as thus reported because of the misconduct of a district secretary in taking the census of his township. Judson v. Agan, 134–557, 111 N. W. 943.

SEC. 2767. Certifying tax.

After the voting of a tax for a schoolhouse on a proposition submitted to the electors, and the certification of such tax to the board of supervisors, nothing remains to be done before the board proceeds to the erection of the schoolhouse. Kinney v. Howard, 133–94, 110 N. W. 282.

After the electors have voted a tax it is the imperative duty of the secretary of the board to certify the same to the board of supervisors unless the vote has subsequently been rescinded. Kirchner v. Board of Directors. 141–43, 118 N. W. 51.

SEC. 2768. Duties of treasurer—payment of warrants—deposit of funds—interest. The treasurer shall receive all moneys belonging to the corporation, pay the same out only upon the order of the president countersigned by the secretary, keeping an accurate account of all receipts and expenditures in a book provided for that purpose. He shall register all orders drawn and reported to him by the secretary, showing the number, date, to whom drawn, the fund upon which drawn, the purpose and amount. The money collected by tax for the erection of schoolhouses and the payment of debts contracted therefor shall be called the schoolhouse fund; that collected for the payment of school buildings bonds shall be called the school building bond fund; that for rent, fuel, repairs, and other contingent expenses necessary for keeping the school in operation, the contingent fund; and that received for the payment of teachers, the teachers' fund; and he shall keep a separate account with each fund, paying no order that fails to state the fund upon which it is drawn and the specific use to which it is to be applied. Whenever an order cannot be paid in full out of the fund upon which it is drawn, partial payment may be made. All school orders shall draw lawful interest after being presented to the treasurer and by him indorsed as not paid for want of funds. It is hereby made the duty of the treasurer of each school corporation to deposit all funds in his hands as such treasurer in some bank or banks in the state at interest at the rate of at least two per cent. per annum on ninety per cent. of the daily balances payable at the end of each month, all of which shall accrue to the benefit of the contingent fund of such school corporation; but before such deposit is made, such bank shall file a bond with sureties to be approved by the treasurer and the board of directors of such corporation in double the amount deposited, conditioned to hold the school corporation harmless from all loss by reason of such deposit or deposits; provided that in cases where an approved surety company's bond is furnished, said bond may be accepted in an amount equal to ten per cent. more than the amount deposited. Said bond shall be filed with the president of the school board and action may be brought thereon either by the treasurer or the school corporation as the board may elect. [35 G. A., ch. 247, § 2.] [31 G. A., ch. 139; C. '73, §§ 1747–50; R. §§ 2048–50; C. '51, §§ 1138–40.]

Officers are presumed, in the absence of any showing to the contrary, to have properly discharged their duties, and the treasurer's book of account is rightly received in evidence in an action against the sureties on his bond to show the true statement of his accounts at the time such report was rendered. Independent School Dist. v. Hubbard, 110–58, 81 N. W. 241.

A school treasurer may lawfully deposit the funds of the school district in a bank, under a contract between such treasurer and the bank, by which the bank agrees to furnish security to the treasurer for funds so deposited, and such contract is not contrary to public policy. Hunt v. Hopley, 120–695, 95 N. W. 205.

On the deposit of school funds in a private bank, the banker does not become a trustee ex maleficio. Hanson v. Roush, 139–58, 116 N. W. 1061.

Since the change of this statutory provision by the substitution of the word "receive" for the word "hold," as formerly used, the early cases making the treasurer responsible for money deposited in a bank, although in the exercise of reasonable care, are no longer applicable, and a general deposit of the school funds in a bank to the separate account of the treasurer as such is not a technical conversion. School Township v. Stevens, 157– —, 138 N. W. 927.

Where a treasurer had without negligence deposited funds in a bank which had been placed in the hands of a receiver and had advanced from his own personal funds money for the payment of school warrants in the expectation that the funds would be ultimately realized for the township in the receivership proceedings, held that he was entitled to reimbursement. Ibid.

Further held that intervening settlements in which the funds on deposit in the insolvent bank were treated as money on hand did not bar the right of the treasurer to recover the amount advanced by him in payment of warrants. Ibid.

See also notes to code § 2760 in this supplement.

SEC. 2769. Financial statement. He shall render a statement of the finances of the corporation whenever required by the board, and his books shall always be open for inspection. He shall make an annual report to the board at its regular July meeting, which shall show the amount of the teachers' fund, the contingent fund, and the schoolhouse fund held over, received, paid out, and on hand, the several funds to be separately stated, and he shall immediately file a copy of this report with the county superintendent. [31 G. A., ch. 136, § 7; 16 G. A., ch. 112, § 2; C. '73, § 1751; R. § 2051; C. '51, § 1141.]

SEC. 2771. Quorum of board—filling vacancies. A majority of the board of directors of any school corporation shall constitute a quorum for the transaction of business, but a less number may adjourn from time to time. Vacancies occurring among the officers or members shall be filled by the board by ballot, and the person receiving the highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and shall qualify as if originally elected or appointed. When the board is reduced below a quorum, by resignation or otherwise, the secretary of the board, or if there be no secretary, the county superintendent, shall call a special election to fill the vacancies, giving notice in the same manner as for the annual meeting on the second Monday in March. [32 G. A., ch. 150; 28 G. A., ch. 106, § 1; 24 G. A., ch. 19; C. '73, §§ 1730, 1738; R. §§ 2037–8.]

SEC. 2772. Temporary officers—course of study—regulations—use of tobacco prohibited. The board shall appoint a temporary president and secretary, or either of them, in the absence of the regular officers, and shall prescribe a course of study for the schools of the corporation, make rules and regulations for its own government and that of the directors, officers, teachers and pupils, and the care of the schoolhouse, grounds and property of the school corporation, and aid in the enforcement of the same, and require the performance of duty by said persons not in conflict with law and said rules and regulations, and such rules and regulations shall prohibit the use of tobacco in any form by any student of such schools and such board may suspend or expel such student for any violation of such rule. [35 G. A., ch. 241, § 2.] [C. '73, §§ 1730, 1737; R. § 2037.]

The board has power to make rules and regulations as to the conduct of pupils, and a court will interfere with the making and enforcement of such rules only where the board has plainly exceeded its authority. Kinzer v. Independent School Dist., 129–441, 105 N. W. 686.

But a rule may be so far unreasonable or beyond the exercise of discretion that the courts can say it is made without authority. Ibid.

The general character of the school and the conduct of its pupils as affecting the efficiency of the work to be done in the schoolroom and the discipline of the school are matters to be taken into account by the school board in making rules for the government of the school. While the board has no concern with the individual conduct of the pupils wholly outside of the schoolrooms and school grounds while they are presumed to be under the control of their parents, yet the conduct of pupils which directly relates to and affects the management of the school and its efficiency is within the scope of proper regulation. Ibid.

Therefore held that a rule prohibiting the playing of football by pupils under the auspices of the school, or in a team purporting to represent the school, was valid. Ibid.

SEC. 2773. Schoolhouse site—division of district—length of school. It may fix the site for each schoolhouse, taking into consideration the geographical position, number and convenience of the scholars, provide for the fencing of schoolhouse sites, determine the number of schools to be taught, divide the corporation into such wards or other divisions for school purposes as may be proper, determine the particular school which each child shall attend, and designate the period each school shall be held beyond the time required by law. Every school shall be free of tuition to all actual residents between the ages of five and twenty-one years, and each school regularly established shall continue for at least twenty-four weeks of five school days each, in each school year commencing the first of July, unless the county superintendent shall authorize the board to shorten this period in any one or more schools, when in his judgment there are sufficient reasons for so doing. No school shall be in session during the time of holding a teachers' institute except by written permission of the county superintendent. [31 G. A., ch. 136, § 8; 19 G. A., ch. 172, § 21; 17 G. A., ch. 54; 15 G. A., ch. 57; C. '73, §§ 1724, 1727, 1769; R. §§ 2023, 2037.]

The directors of a school township have power to change the site of a schoolhouse without a vote of the electors. James v. Gettinger, 123–199, 98 N. W. 723.

The matter of the relocation of the schoolhouse site is for the determination of the school board, subject to appeal to the county superintendent, and the action of the board cannot be questioned by injunction. Kinney v. Howard, 133–94, 110 N. W. 282.

Primarily the location of a schoolhouse site is within the exclusive jurisdiction of the school board, subject to review on appeal to the county superintendent and from him to the state superintendent. After final decision on appeal to the state superintendent he has no authority to change such decision on account of subsequent change of conditions. Doubet v. Board of Directors, 135–95, 111 N. W. 326.

In selecting the site of a schoolhouse the board is controlled by the provision of code § 2814 as to the acquisition of a site within thirty rods of the residence of an owner who objects to such location. Mendenhall v. Board of Directors, 137–554, 115 N. W. 11.

The action of the board of directors in fixing a new schoolhouse site is subject to the review of the county superintendent; and if the action of the board is reversed on such appeal the district has no longer authority to hold or use the site purchased for the purpose, and a conveyance of property for such new site becomes invalid and inoperative without any action for rescission on the part of the board. Ind. School Dist. v. McClure, 136–122, 113 N. W. 554.

SEC. 2774. Renting room—instruction in other schools—transportation of children.

The remedy against a school board for failing to provide school accommodations is not by certiorari. Molyneaux v. Molyneaux, 130–100, 106 N. W. 370.

An arrangement for transportation of children is to be made only when it will result in a saving of expense and increased advantage to the children. These needs involve an investigation and determination by the board of directors and the remedy upon its refusal to make such arrangement is by appeal and not by mandamus. Queeny v. Higgins, 136–573, 114 N. W. 51.

In determining whether a school shall be maintained in a district or the attendance of the pupils provided for in another district, the board is given a discretion which can only be reviewed by appeal to the county superintendent and from him to the state superintendent. In such a case, mandamus will not lie to control the action of the board. Templer v. School Township, 141 N. W. 1054.

SEC. 2775-a. Elementary agriculture—domestic science—manual training—instruction—teachers' examination. The teaching of elementary agriculture, domestic science, and manual training shall, after the first day of July, nineteen hundred fifteen, be required in the public schools of the state; and the state superintendent of public instruction shall prescribe the extent of such instruction in the public schools. And after the date aforesaid elementary agriculture and domestic science shall be included among the subjects required in the examination of those applicants for teachers' certificates who are required by the provisions of this act to teach agriculture and domestic science. [35 G. A., ch. 248, § 1.]

from the annual meeting upon matters within the control of the voters, and shall elect all teachers and make all contracts necessary or proper for exercising the powers granted and performing the duties required by law. But the board may authorize any subdirector to employ teachers for the schools in his subdistrict. Contracts with teachers must be in writing, and shall state the length of time the school is to be taught, the compensation per week of five days or month of four weeks, and such other matters as may be agreed upon, signed by the president and teacher, and filed with the secretary before the teacher commences to teach under such contract. [28 G. A., ch. 107, § 1; 22 G. A., ch. 60; C. '73, §§ 1723, 1757; R. §§ 2037, 2055.]

In general: Under this section as amended by 28 G. A., ch. 107, the board of directors is authorized to carry into effect instructions from the annual meeting upon matters which are within the control of the voters and have properly been submitted to them for action. The recording of the action of the electors is immaterial. Kinney v. Howard, 133–94, 110 N. W. 282.

A court of equity will not, at the suit of a resident taxpayer of a school district brought against its officers, enforce repayment of money expended under an executed contract of which the school district retains the benefit, although the contract is invalid, there being no claim that the officers acted corruptly or fraudulently or paid an unreasonable amount. Kagy v. Independent Dist., 117–694, 89 N. W. 972.

Where the directors sign a contract in behalf of the district, although not in pursuance of any action of the board, they are not individually liable. Hanna v. Wright, 116–275, 89 N. W. 1108.

Where directors individually signed a contract for apparatus purporting to bind the board of directors and not indicating an assumption of personal liability, held that they were not individually liable thereon and that the school district having through the board of directors accepted and received the benefit of the apparatus was bound by the contract. Johnson v. School Corporation, 117–319, 90 N. W. 713.

It is the vote of the directors which is binding on the district, and not the record thereof. And where no record of the action of the directors was made it may be proven by oral testimony. German Ins. Co. v. Independent Sch. Dist., 80 Fed. 366.

A contract or order given by members of the board of directors acting individually is not binding on the district, but such a contract may be ratified by the acceptance, retention and use by the school district of the property thus contracted or paid for. Richards v. School Township, 132–612, 109 N. W. 1093.

Where contracts made by a board of directors with persons occupying a fiduciary or official relation to the school corporation have been carried out, a taxpayer will not be allowed to maintain a suit in the name of the corporation against the contractor to recover the money paid to him under such contract, the benefits of which are retained by the school corporation. Kagy v. Independent Dist., 117–694, 89 N. W. 972.

Contracts with teachers: The rules and regulations of the district fixing the time for opening the schools are part of the contract. Burkhead v. Independent Sch. Dist., 107–29, 77 N. W. 491.

Such a contract cannot be made for a longer time than one year. Ibid.

Where a teacher offered by way of tender of resignation to renounce his contract, but this offer was not accepted by the board of directors until after they were notified of its withdrawal, held that a discharge of the teacher, not in accordance with the provisions of code § 2782, was not authorized. Also held that the fact that the teacher after such unauthorized discharge drew the balance of pay due him and delivered the key of the schoolhouse on demand of the board did not show an abandonment of the contract. Curtright v. Independent Sch. Dist., 111–20, 82 N. W. 444.

When a contract with a teacher is disregarded by the school board and the teacher is denied the right to perform, the teacher is not required by way of diminution of damages to seek employment in a different grade of the service or in a different locality. Byrne v. Ind. School Dist., 139–618, 117 N. W. 983.

SEC. 2778-a. Minimum teachers' wage—based on certificate grade. That all teachers in the public schools of this state shall be paid for their services a minimum wage of not less than the amounts hereinafter set forth, all fractions in average grades to be figured at the nearest whole number:

1. Teachers holding a first grade uniform county certificate or higher, shall be paid a daily wage of not less than a sum obtained by multiplying three cents by the general average grade shown on such certificate.

2. Teachers holding a second grade uniform county certificate shall be paid a daily wage of not less than a sum obtained by multiplying two and three-quarters cents by the general average grade shown on such certificate up to and including a general average grade of eighty-five per cent.

3. Teachers holding a third grade uniform county certificate shall be paid a daily wage of not less than a sum obtained by multiplying two and one-half cents by the general average [grade] shown on such certificate.

Provided that a teacher having contracted on a second or third grade certificate in conformity with this act, shall fulfill such contract at the wage fixed at the time of signing same, plus any additional credit earned under section two hereof. [35 G. A., ch. 249, § 1.]

SEC. 2778-b. Credits for attending training school. Every teacher holding either a second or third grade certificate who has taught successfully for one year and attended an approved teachers' training school for a period of six weeks following, shall, upon proper certification of such attendance, receive a credit of three points in estimating the salary due, and to be paid, but such credit shall not operate to raise the grade of such certificate. [35 G. A., ch. 249, § 2.]

SEC. 2778-c. Contracts for less than minimum wage prohibited. It shall be unlawful for any school board or any school officer to contract for or pay a less wage to any teacher in the public schools of this state than the minimum amounts herein fixed for the grade certificate held by such public school teacher. But nothing herein shall be construed as limiting the right to make a lawful contract for a higher wage than herein specified as a minimum. [35 G. A., ch. 249, § 3.]

SEC. 2778-d. Violation—penalty. Any school officer violating the provisions of this act shall be fined a sum of not less than twenty-five dollars, nor more than one hundred dollars, in the discretion of the court, and shall be suspended from office. [35 G. A., ch. 249, § 4.]

SEC. 2779. Erection or repair of schoolhouse.

The board of directors may delegate to a committee the ministerial duty of carrying out a contract for the erection of a schoolhouse, but the duty of selecting the site, adopting the plans and awarding the contract cannot thus be delegated. Kinney v. Howard, 133–94, 110 N. W. 282.

Upon refusal of the lowest bidder to enter into a contract for the construction of a schoolhouse, the board cannot disregard all the bids submitted and enter into a contract with a nonbidder and hold the lowest bidder liable under his deposit for the difference between his proposition and the price fixed in such subsequent contract. Cedar Rapids Lumber Co. v. Fisher, 129–332, 105 N. W. 595.

A telegram to one whose bid was found to be the lowest, advising him that his was the lowest bid, held not to be such acceptance of his bid as to render the contract binding upon him. Ibid.

SEC. 2780. Allowance of claims—settlements—compensation of officers—treasurer. It shall audit and allow all just claims against the corporation, and no order shall be drawn upon the treasury until the claim therefor has been audited and allowed; it shall from time to time examine the accounts of the treasurer and make settlements with him; shall present at each regular meeting of the electors a full statement of the receipts had and expenditures made since the preceding meeting, with such other information as may be considered important; and shall fix the compensation to be paid the secretary. But no member of the board or treasurer shall receive compensation for official services. [35 G. A., ch. 247, § 1.] [C. '73, §§ 1732–3, 1738, 1813; R. §§ 2037–8; C. '51, §§ 1146, 1149.]

Claims against the school district must be audited and allowed by the board of directors and not by the president, and until such claim has been presented to the board and the board has had an opportunity to act upon it, no suit can be maintained. Pierson v. Independent Sch. Dist., 106–695, 77 N. W. 494.

SEC. 2782. Visiting schools—regulations—discharge of teachers—expulsion of scholars.

Where the validity of a teacher's contract is in question he is not limited to an appeal, but may sue in the courts. Burkhead v. Independent Sch. Dist., 107–29, 77 N. W. 491.

While a teacher who has been discharged cannot sue for breach of contract on the ground that the discharge is wrongful without first appealing to the county superintendent, yet, where such an appeal has been taken and decided in the teacher's favor, the action for the wrongful discharge may be maintained, although the decision of the county superintendent was not on the merits. Jackson v. Independent Sch. Dist., 110–313, 81 N. W. 596.

Where a teacher tendered his resignation, which was not accepted by the board until after it was withdrawn, held that the discharge of the teacher, which was not in accordance with the provisions of this section, was not authorized. Curtright v. Independent Sch. Dist., 111–20, 82 N. W. 444.

Where the action of the board in discharging a teacher was reversed on appeal to the county superintendent on the ground that the teacher had been given no notice or opportunity to be heard, held that the teacher might be tried on new charges, with due notice and a time fixed for the hearing, without reinstating such teacher in charge of the school, and that such action of the directors would not be enjoined. White v. Wohlenberg, 113–236, 84 N. W. 1026.

The hearing having by reason of a temporary injunction been postponed until a time when the teacher's contract had expired, held that on dissolution of the temporary injunction the hearing to be had would relate back to the time when the further action of the board had been prevented by such temporary injunction. Ibid.

The board has authority to expel pupils who violate the reasonable regulations made for the government and conduct of such pupils in matters within the jurisdiction of the board. Kinzer v. Independent School District, 129–441, 105 N. W. 686.

SEC. 2782-a. Secret societies and fraternities prohibited in schools. That from and after the passage of this act it shall be unlawful for any pupil, registered as such, and attending any public high school, district, primary, or graded school, which is partially or wholly maintained by public funds, to join, become a member of, or to solicit any other pupil of any such school to join, or become a member of any secret fraternity or society wholly or partially formed from the membership of pupils attending any such schools or to take part in the organization or formation of any such fraternity or society, except such societies or associations as are sanctioned by the directors of such schools. [33 G. A., ch. 185, § 1.]

SEC. 2782-b. Enforcement. The directors of all such schools shall enforce the provisions of section one of this act, and shall have full power and authority to make, adopt, and modify all rules and regulations which, in their judgment and discretion, may be necessary for the proper governing of such schools and enforcing all the provisions of section one of this act. [33 G. A., ch. 185, § 2.]

SEC. 2782-c. Suspension or dismissal. The directors of such schools shall have full power and authority, pursuant to the adoption of such rules and regulations made and adopted by them, to suspend, or dismiss any pupil or pupils of such schools therefrom, or to prevent them, or any of them, from graduating or participating in school honors when, after investigation, in the judgment of such directors, or a majority of them, such pupil or pupils are guilty of violating any of the provisions of section one of this act, or who are guilty of violating any rule, rules, or regulations adopted by such directors for the purpose of governing such schools or enforcing section one of this act. [33 G. A., ch. 185, § 3.]

SEC. 2782-d. Rushing or soliciting to join prohibited—jurisdiction—penalty. It is hereby made a misdemeanor for any person, not a pupil of such schools, to be upon the school grounds, or to enter any school building for the purpose of "rushing" or soliciting, while there, any pupil or pupils of such schools to join any fraternity, society, or association organized outside of said schools. All municipal courts and justice courts in this state shall have jurisdiction of all offenses committed under this section, and all persons found guilty of such offenses shall be fined not less than two dollars nor more than ten dollars, to be paid to the city or village treasurer, when such schools are situated inside of the corporate limits of any city or village, and to the county treasurer, when situated outside of the corporate limits of any such city or village, or upon failure to pay such fine, to be imprisoned for not more than ten days. [33 G. A., ch. 185, § 4.]

SEC. 2783. Use of contingent fund—free textbooks. It may provide and pay out of the contingent fund to insure school property such sum as may be necessary, and may purchase dictionaries, library books, including books for the purpose of teaching vocal music, maps, charts and apparatus for the use of the schools thereof to an amount not exceeding twenty-five dollars in any one year for each schoolroom under its charge; and may furnish schoolbooks to indigent children when they are likely to be deprived of the proper benefits of the school unless so aided; and shall, when directed by a vote of the district, purchase and loan books to scholars, and shall provide by levy of contingent fund therefor. [30 G. A., ch. 115; 26 G. A., ch. 37; 25 G. A., ch. 34; 21 G. A., ch. 107; 19 G. A., ch. 149, § 1; C. '73, § 1729.]

Under this section, which differs from the corresponding section of the code of '73, the board of directors may contract an indebtedness for books, payable out of the contingent fund, although no funds are on hand at the time from which the indebtedness may be paid. Hanna v. Wright, 116–275, 89 N. W. 1108; Johnson v. School Corporation, 117–319, 90 N. W. 713.

The school board may charge the contingent fund beyond the unappropriated money on hand to an extent not exceeding twenty-five dollars for each schoolroom under its control, and in an action against the school district for an indebtedness thus contracted, the burden is on the district to show that the indebtedness was contracted in excess of the amount which the school board might contract for that purpose. Farmers' & Merchants' State Bank v. School Township, 118–540, 92 N. W. 676.

SEC. 2785. Duties of directors—contracts. The board of directors of a school township may authorize the director of each subdistrict, subject to its regulations, to make contracts for the purchase of fuel, the repairing or furnishing of schoolhouses, and all other matters necessary for the convenience and prosperity of the schools in his subdistrict. Such contracts shall be binding upon the school township only when approved by the president of the board, and must be reported to the board. Each director shall, between the first and fifteenth days of June in each year, prepare a list of the heads of families in his subdistrict, the number and sex of all children of school age, and by the twentieth day of said month report this list to the secretary of the school township, who shall make full record thereof. The powers specified in this section cannot be exercised by individual directors of independent districts. [31 G. A., ch. 136, § 9; C. '73, §§ 1753–5; R. §§ 2052–3; C. '51, §§ 1124, 1142.]

SEC. 2791. Attaching territory to adjoining corporation.

In a particular case held that what was done by the superintendent and the board of directors was sufficient to make an effectual change of the boundary attempted, notwithstanding some irregularities in the way in which it was done. Newlon v. Independent Dist., 109–169, 80 N. W. 316.

Under statutory provisions prior to the present code, held that boundaries of independent districts might be changed under the same provisions as applied to the change of boundaries of district townships. Ibid.

Where it appears that the change has been made on grounds which are sufficient to authorize such change it will be presumed, until the contrary is shown, that the proceedings were regular and the grounds sufficient. Ibid.

Where a property owner has acquiesced in the attempted change of boundary and recognized it as valid, he cannot afterwards, nor can his grantee, question its validity. Ibid.

Where no natural obstacles exist there is nothing on which the county superintendent may base an order, and an action of his with reference to change of boundaries is without jurisdiction. School Twp. v. Independent School Dist., 110–30, 81 N. W. 184.

By virtue of the provisions of this section it is possible that an independent district may be reduced in size to less than four sections of land. Rural Ind. School Dist. v. New Ind. School Dist., 120–119, 94 N. W. 284.

SEC. 2792. Restoration.

This provision has no application to the severance of a portion of the territory originally included in such district. Williams v. Core, 124–213, 99 N. W. 732.

SEC. 2793. Boundary lines changed. That section twenty-seven hundred ninety-three of the code be and the same is hereby repealed, and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

The boundary lines of contiguous school corporations may be changed by the concurrent action of the respective boards of directors at their regular meetings in July, or at special meetings thereafter, called for that purpose. The corporation from which territory is detached shall, after the change, contain not less than four government sections of land, and its boundary lines must conform to the lines of congressional divisions of land. In the same manner, the boundary lines of contiguous school corporations may be so changed that one corporation shall be included in and consolidated with the other as a single corporation. [34 G. A., ch. 142, § 1.] [31 G. A., ch. 136, § 10; 22 G. A., ch. 62, § 1.]

This section provides for extending the limits of the school district with the expansion of the city limits. State v. Grefe, 139–18, 117 N. W. 13.

SEC. 2793-a. Corporation limits changed. When the boundary line between a school township and an independent city or town district is not also the line between civil townships, such boundary may be changed at any time by the concurrence of the boards of directors; but in no case shall a forty-acre tract of land, by the government survey, be divided; and such subdivisions shall be excluded or included as entire forties. The boundaries of the school township or the independent district may in the same manner be extended to the line between civil townships, even though by such change one of the districts shall be included within and consolidated with the other as a single district. When the corporate limits of any city or town are extended outside the existing independent district or districts, the boundaries of said independent district or districts shall be also correspondingly extended. But in no case shall the boundaries of an independent district be affected by the reduction of the corporate limits of a city or town. [27 G. A., ch. 89, § 1.]

Property brought into a school district by annexation after the voting and certification of a schoolhouse tax, but before the levy of such tax, is subject to the tax, although the owner was not a resident of the district at the time the election was held. Grout v. Illingworth, 131–281, 108 N. W. 528.

This section has no application to the original incorporation of a town embracing territory of two or more school districts. Ind. School Dist. v. Jones, 142–8, 120 N. W. 315.

SEC. 2794. Formation of independent district. Upon the written petition of any ten voters of a city, town or village of over one hundred residents, to the board of the school corporation in which the portion of the town plat having the largest number of voters is situated, such board shall establish the boundaries of a proposed independent district, including therein all of the city, town or village, and also such contiguous territory as is authorized by a written petition of a majority of the resident electors of the contiguous territory proposed to be included in said district, in not smaller subdivisions than entire forties of land, in the same or any adjoining school corporations, as may best subserve the convenience of the people for school purposes, and shall give the same notices of a meeting as required in other cases, at which meeting all voters upon the territory included within the contemplated independent district shall be allowed to vote by ballot for or against such separate organization. When it is proposed to include territory outside the town, city or village, the voters residing upon such outside territory shall be entitled to vote separately upon the proposition for the formation of such new district, by presenting a petition of at least twenty-five per cent. of the voters residing upon such outside territory, and if a majority of the votes so cast is against including such outside territory, then the proposed independent district shall not be formed. [29 G. A., ch. 126, § 1; 19 G. A., ch. 118, § 1; 18 G. A., ch. 139; C. '73, §§ 1800–1; R. §§ 2097, 2105.]

A written petition of ten voters is essential before the board acquires jurisdiction to act. The territory with reference to which there is no petition cannot be included, but the proposed district need not necessarily contain all the territory for which the petition is presented. Munn v. School Twp., 110–652, 82 N. W. 323.

The desirability or necessity for the independent district is for the determination of the electors. The board is to say whether the village contains one hundred residents and whether the requisite number of electors have signed the respective petitions, and having so found, no option is left save to fix the boundaries of the proposed district and order the election. Ibid.

On appeal from the action of the board to the county superintendent, the latter determines the question de novo, and may enter such order as ought to have been entered by the board. Ibid.

Although the language of this section before its amendment by 29 G. A., ch. 126, and the enactment of 27 G. A., ch. 89, did not in specific language authorize the formation of an independent district coextensive with the territory of a city or town out of territory in part belonging to a school township and in part to an independent district, nevertheless the manifest purpose of the legislature was to authorize such action. Rural Ind. School Dist. v. New Ind. School Dist., 120–119, 94 N. W. 284.

Although, under the language of sections of the code relating to the division of independent districts, it is provided in some cases that such districts shall not be reduced to a size less than four sections of land, nevertheless there is no provision in the code that an independent district cannot exist containing less than that amount of territory. Ibid.

While the assent of the voters, outside of the corporate limits, to the annexation of territory to an independent district embracing a city or town is to be separately ascertained, yet when the acquiescence of the majority of the outside voters is given and acted upon, a portion of such voters cannot have their land severed from the independent district by proceedings in accordance with code § 2792. Williams v. Core, 124–213, 99 N. W. 732.

Where a petition is presented to the proper board for the formation of an independent district to correspond with a town plat, an independent district may be formed which includes territory theretofore a part of a school township, and it is not essential that the board of directors of the township out of which the new district is formed shall concur in the formation thereof. School Township v. Independent School Dist., 134–349, 112 N. W. 5.

The original incorporation of territory as a town embracing parts of several independent school districts does not affect the boundaries of such school districts. Ind. School Dist. v. Jones, 142–8, 120 N. W. 315.

This section as amended was not superseded or impliedly repealed by the enactment of code supp. § 2794-a. This section authorizes proceedings which would not be sufficient under the other and the latter contains limitations not found in this. School Dist. Township v. Independent School Dist., 149–480, 128 N. W. 848.

The existence of an independent district including a city, town, or village and adjoining territory, does not prevent the formation of a new independent district including other territory than that of the independent district already formed. Ibid.

The question whether the inclusion of contiguous territory subserves the convenience of the people for school purposes is one to be determined by the board to which the petition is directed and, on appeal, by the county superintendent. It is not a matter for determination by the court in passing upon the validity of the consolidation. Ibid.

Proceedings in a particular case in the organization of an independent school district held to be sufficient as against the contention that such proceedings were ineffectual. Independent School Dist. v. Independent School Dist., 153-598, 134 N. W. 75.

SEC. 2794-a. Consolidated independent districts—organization—dissolution. (a) Organization—petition—election—board of directors. When a petition describing the boundaries of contiguous territory containing not less than sixteen sections within one or more counties is signed by one third of the electors residing on such territory, and approved by the county superintendent, if of one county, and the superintendent of each if of more than one county, and by the state superintendent of public instruction if the county superintendents do not agree, and filed with the board of the school corporation in which the portion of the proposed district having the largest number of voters is situated, requesting the establishment of a consolidated independent district, it shall be the duty of said board, within ten days, to call an election in the proposed consolidated district, for which they shall give the same notices as are required in section twenty-seven hundred forty-six of the code, and twenty-seven hundred fifty of the supplement to the code, 1907, at which election all voters residing in the proposed consolidated district shall be entitled to vote by ballot for or against such separate organization. When it is proposed to include in such district a city, or town or village, the voters residing upon the territory outside the incorporated limits of such city, town or village shall vote separately upon the proposition for the creating of such new district. The judges of said election shall provide separate ballot boxes in which shall be deposited the votes cast by the voters from their respective territory, and if a majority of the votes cast by the electors residing either within or without the limits of such city, town or village, is against the proposition to form a consolidated independent corporation, then the proposed corporation shall not be formed. If a majority of the votes so cast in each territory shall be in favor of such independent organization, the organization of the proposed consolidated independent school corporation shall be completed by the election of a board of directors for said school corporation, as provided in section twenty-seven hundred ninety-five of the code, and when so organized shall not be reduced to less than sixteen sections unless dissolved as provided by this act. No school corporation from which territory is taken to form such a consolidated independent corporation shall, after the change, contain less than four government sections, which territory shall be contiguous and so situated as to form a suitable corporation.

(b) Organization of board—taxes previously certified—levy for general fund. The organization of the school board in consolidated independent school corporations shall be effected on or before the first day of July following their election, and when completed, all taxes previously certified shall be void so far as the property within the limits of the consolidated independent school corporation is concerned, and the board of said consolidated independent school corporation shall at a regular meeting or a special meeting called for the purpose, at any time prior to the third Monday in August of each year, levy for the general fund of said school the amount of all necessary taxes for all school purposes, which, including the amount received from the semiannual apportionment, shall not exceed thirty-two dollars for each person of school age, the amount so levied to be certified by them to the county board of supervisors on or before the first Monday of September in each year, and the board of supervisors shall levy said tax at the same time, and in the same manner that other school taxes are required to be levied.

(c) Central school—transportation. It shall be the duty of the school board of any consolidated independent school corporation and school townships maintaining a central school to provide suitable transportation to and from school, for every child of school age living within said district, and outside the limits of any city, town or village, but the board shall not be required to cause the vehicle of transportation to leave the public highway to receive or discharge occupants thereof. The board shall from time to time, by resolution regularly adopted, number and designate the route to be traveled by each conveyance in transporting children to and from school. The school board may require that children living an unreasonable distance from school shall be transported by the parent, or guardian, a distance of not to exceed two miles, to connect with any vehicle of transportation to and from school; or may, in the discretion of the board, contract with an adjoining school corporation for the instruction of any child living an unreasonable distance from school, and they shall allow a reasonable amount of compensation for the transportation of children to and from the point where they are taken over, or discharged from, the vehicle used to convey them to and from school, or for transporting to an adjoining district. In determining what an unreasonable distance would be, consideration shall be given to the number and age of the children, the condition of the roads, and the number of miles to be traveled in going to and from school. The board shall have the right on account of inclemency of the weather to suspend the transportation of any route upon any day or days when in the judgment of the said board it would be a hardship on the children, or when the roads to be traveled are unfit or impassable.

(d) Contracts for transportation—rules and regulations. The school board of any consolidated independent school corporation shall contract with as many suitable persons as they deem necessary for the transportation of children of school age to and from school, such contract to be in writing and shall state the number of the route, the length of time contracted for, the compensation to be allowed per week of five school days, or per month of four school weeks, and may provide that two weeks' salary shall be retained by the board pending full compliance therewith by the party contracted with, and shall always provide that any party or parties to said contract and every person in charge of vehicles conveying children to and from school, shall be at all times subject to any rules or regulations said board shall adopt for the protection of the children, or to govern the conduct of the person in charge of said conveyance.

(e) School building—tax levy—location. It shall be the duty of the school board of any consolidated independent district to provide a suitable school building within such district, and shall at any regular meeting or at a special meeting called for that purpose submit the question of levying a tax for the building of any school building suitable for the needs of the district, or for the repairing of any school building where the cost of such repairs exceeds the sum of two thousand dollars to the qualified voters of said district, and all moneys received from such source to be placed in the schoolhouse fund of said corporation and to be used for such purposes only. In locating said building they shall take into consideration the geographical position, number and convenience of the scholars, and may submit the question of location to the voters of the district at any regular meeting or special meeting called for that purpose; providing that whenever a city, town or village containing a school population of twenty-five or more, is included within any consolidated independent district, then said building shall be located within the incorporated limits of said city, town or village, on such a site as the school board may determine.

(f) Dissolution—petition—election—boards of directors—division of assets and liabilities. Whenever a petition signed by one third of the electors in a consolidated independent school corporation asking that said district be dissolved and describing the boundaries of the district or districts proposed to be organized out of the territory then included in such consolidated independent school corporation and having the approval of the county superintendent, if one county, and the superintendent of each if more than one county, and by the state superintendent of public instruction if the county superintendents do not agree, is[1] filed with the board of said consolidated independent district, it shall be the duty of said board within ten days to call an election for which they shall give the same notices as are required in section twenty-seven hundred forty-six of the code, and twenty-seven hundred fifty of the supplement to the code, 1907, at which election all voters residing within the district shall be allowed to vote by ballot for or against such dissolution. If a majority of all votes cast at said election be in favor of dissolving the consolidated district, same shall be dissolved and the organization of a new district or districts be forthwith completed by the election of a board of directors as provided by statute; provided, however, that such dissolution shall become effective only when the reorganization of the territory included in the original consolidated district is completed. The assets and liabilities of any such school corporation thus dissolved shall be equitably divided as provided in section twenty-eight hundred and two of the supplement to the code, 1907.

(g) Violation of transportation rules and regulations—penalty. Any person driving, managing, or in charge of any vehicle used in transporting children to and from school, in any consolidated independent school corporation, who shall be found guilty of violating any of the rules and regulations adopted by the board of said school for the guidance of any person in charge of such conveyance, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and for the first offense shall be fined not less than five dollars or more than ten dollars and for a subsequent offense shall be fined not less than twenty-five dollars or more than fifty dollars and shall be dismissed from the service. [34 G. A., ch. 143, § 1.] [31 G. A., ch. 141.]

SEC. 2794-b. State aid to consolidated schools—equipment and maintenance—two-room building—agriculture and home economics. That all consolidated schools organized in accordance with the provisions of the code supplement section twenty-seven hundred ninety-four-a as amended by chapter one hundred forty-three of the acts of the thirty-fourth general assembly, which are now or hereafter established with suitable grounds and a two-room school building and the necessary departments and equipment for teaching agriculture and home economics, or other industrial and vocational subjects, and employing teachers holding a certificate showing their qualifications to teach said subjects, and in which said subjects are provided as a part of the regular course in such schools, subject to the approval of the superintendent of public instruction, shall be awarded and paid from the state treasury from moneys not otherwise appropriated, the sum of two hundred fifty dollars towards the equipment required, and the further sum of two hundred dollars annually. [35 G. A., ch. 250, § 1.]

SEC. 2794-c. Same—three-room building—manual training. That all such schools established with a three-room school building and suitable grounds and the necessary departments and equipment for teaching agriculture, home economics and manual training, or other industrial and vocational subjects, and employing teachers holding a certificate showing their qualification to teach said subjects, and in which said subjects are provided as a part of the regular course in such schools, subject to the approval of the superintendent of public instruction, shall be awarded and paid from the state treasury from moneys not otherwise appropriated, the sum of three hundred fifty dollars towards the equipment required, and the further sum of five hundred dollars annually. [35 G. A., ch. 250, § 2.]

SEC. 2794-d. Same—four-room building. That all such schools established with four rooms or more and suitable grounds and the necessary departments and equipment for teaching agriculture, home economics and manual training, or other industrial and vocational subjects, and employing teachers holding a certificate showing their qualifications to teach said subjects, and in which said subjects are provided as a part of the regular course in such schools, subject to the approval of the superintendent of public instruction, shall be awarded and paid from the state treasury from moneys not otherwise appropriated the sum of five hundred dollars towards the equipment required, and the further sum of seven hundred fifty dollars annually. [35 G. A., ch. 250, § 3.]

SEC. 2794-e. Report by secretary—requisition—warrant. The secretary of each school corporation shall, at the close of each school year, report to the superintendent of public instruction as said officer may require; upon receipt of a satisfactory report, the superintendent of public instruction shall issue a requisition upon the auditor of state for the amount due such school corporation for said year; whereupon the auditor of state shall draw a warrant on the state treasury payable to such school corporation for the amount of said requisition, and forward the same to the secretary of such school corporation. [35 G. A., ch. 250, § 4.]

SEC. 2794-f. No additional aid for normal course in high school. No consolidated school having a high school department shall receive additional aid for maintaining the normal training course in high schools as provided in chapter one hundred thirty-one,[1] acts of the thirty-fourth general assembly. [35 G. A., ch. 250, § 5.]

SEC. 2794-g. Annual appropriation. For the purpose of carrying out the provisions of this act there is hereby appropriated out of any money in the state treasury not otherwise appropriated, the sum of thirty thousand dollars or so much thereof as may be necessary, for the period ending June thirtieth, nineteen hundred fourteen, and the sum of fifty thousand dollars, or so much thereof as may be necessary, annually thereafter, for a period of four years. SEC. 2800. Rural independent districts united into school township. A township which has been divided into rural independent districts may be erected into a school township by a vote of the electors, to be taken upon the written request of one third of the legal voters residing in such civil township. Upon presentation of such written request to the township trustees, they shall call a meeting of the electors at the usual place or places of holding the township election, upon giving at least ten days' notice thereof by posting three written notices in each rural independent district in the township, and by publication in a newspaper, if one be published in such township, at which meeting the said electors shall vote by ballot for or against a school township organization. If a majority of the votes cast at such election be in favor of such organization, each rural independent district shall become a subdistrict of the school township, and shall organize as such on the first Monday in March following by the election of a director, notice of which shall be given as in other cases by the secretary of each of the rural independent districts, and the directors so elected shall organize as a board of directors of the school township on the first day of July following, unless that date falls on Sunday, in which case on the day following. [31 G. A., ch. 136, § 11; 16 G. A., ch. 155; C. '73, §§ 1815-20.]

SEC. 2801. Division of school township into subdistricts. The board of any school township may by a vote of a majority of all the members thereof, at the regular meeting in July, or at any special meeting called thereafter for that purpose, divide the school township into subdistricts such as justice, equity and the interests of the people require, and may make such alterations of the boundaries of subdistricts heretofore formed as may be deemed necessary, and shall designate such subdistricts and all subsequent alterations in a distinct and legible manner upon a plat of the school township provided for that purpose, and shall cause a written description of the same to be recorded in the records of the school township, a copy of which shall be delivered by the secretary to the county treasurer and also to the county auditor, who shall record the same in his office. The boundaries of subdistricts shall conform to the lines of congressional divisions of land, and the formation or alteration of subdistricts as contemplated in this section shall not take effect until the first Monday in March thereafter, at which time a director shall be elected for any subdistrict newly formed. [31 G. A., ch. 136, § 12; 21 G. A., ch. 124; 16 G. A., ch. 109; C. '73, §§ 1725, 1738, 1796; R. § 2038.]

After portions of an independent district have been taken away in the formation of a new consolidated district, the board may readjust subdistricts so as to obviate inconveniences resulting from some of the subdistricts being left with inadequate territory. School Dist. Township v. Independent School Dist., 149–480, 128 N. W. 848.

SEC. 2802. Changes of boundaries—division of assets and liabilities. That section twenty-eight hundred and two of the code be and the same is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"When any changes are made in the boundaries of any school corporations the new corporation shall elect a board of directors in accordance with the new boundaries, and such new boards shall organize as provided in section twenty-seven hundred fifty-seven of this chapter. The boards of directors in office at the time the changes are made in the boundaries of the school corporations shall continue to act until the boards of directors representing the newly formed districts have been duly organized, whereupon the new boards shall make an equitable division of all assets and liabilities of the corporations affected; and, if they cannot agree, the matters upon which they differ shall be decided by disinterested arbitrators, one selected by each board having an interest therein, and if the number thus selected is even then one shall be added by the county superintendent, and the decision of the arbitrators shall be made in writing, either party having the right to appeal therefrom to the district court." [31 G. A., ch. 136, § 13; C. '73, § 1715.]

In making the division of assets and liabilities here contemplated the arbitrators are limited to those existing between the parties at the time the new district was organized. Independent Dist. v. District Twp., 107–73, 77 N. W. 525.

In a suit by the holder of bonds of a district which has ceased to exist by reason of subdivision of its territory into new districts, a court of equity may enforce payment by the new districts in accordance with an equitable apportionment of the liability on the basis of taxable property and population. Gamble v. Rural Ind. School Dist., 146 Fed. 113.

The schoolhouse and all its belongings are the property of the original district until awarded to the newly formed independent district. Such division must be made by the board, and not by the courts. District Twp. v. Wiggins, 110–702, 80 N. W. 432.

The division of assets on the severance of the territory from an independent district necessitates either the sale of the schoolhouse and grounds of such district or the payment to the district to which the severed territory should be attached of a portion of the value of such property. Williams v. Core, 124–213, 99 N. W. 732.

A district which is created from another district is liable for its proportion of the indebtedness of the parent district regardless of whether such indebtedness is in excess of the constitutional limitation of indebtedness which the new district might create. Taylor v. School Dist., 97 Fed. 753.

The holder of bonds against the original district may maintain an action in equity against the new districts created out of the original district to enforce the payment of his bonds. Everett v. Independent Sch. Dist., 109 Fed. 697.

SEC. 2803. Attending school in another corporation.

One district may become liable to another for children of the former attending school in the latter under implied contract. Therefore a settlement between the districts for tuition in such cases may be made after the attendance on which it is based has ceased. Weldon Ind. Sch. Dist. v. Shelby Ind. Sch. Dist., 113–549, 85 N. W. 794.

The provisions for paying tuition for pupils attending in another district do not relate to high schools which are established under code § 2728, and as to which special provision is made. Boggs v. School Township, 128–15, 102 N. W. 796.

SEC. 2804. School age—nonresidents.

The fact question as to the residence of the pupil who is required to pay tuition on that account is for the determination of the board, and its finding and judgment on that question cannot be reviewed in an action of mandamus. The remedy is by appeal to the county superintendent. Preston v. Board of Education, 124–355, 100 N. W. 54.

SEC. 2804-a. Display of United States flag—duty of board—flagstaff. That it shall be the duty of the board of directors of each school corporation of this state to provide a suitable flagstaff on each public school building maintained under the authority of such board of directors and to provide each of such school buildings with a suitable flag, and such flag shall be raised over such building on all days when weather suitable therefor shall prevail. [35 G. A., ch. 244, § 1.]

SEC. 2804-b. Services for raising of flag. That at the commencement of each school day the teacher, superintendent, principal or whoever has the general supervision of the school administration within any such building, may arrange for the raising of such flag, as herein provided for, over the said building, with appropriate services, when weather conditions will permit, at the beginning of each school day. [35 G. A., ch. 244, § 2.]

SEC. 2804-c. Flag upon all public buildings. That it shall be the duty of the custodians of all public buildings of the state of Iowa to raise over such building the flag of the United States of America, upon each secular day when weather conditions are favorable, and it shall be the duty of any board of public officers charged with the duty of providing for the supplies of any such public building, to provide in connection with other supplies for any such building of the state of Iowa, a suitable flag for the purposes herein provided. [35 G. A., ch. 244, § 3.]

SEC. 2806. School taxes—transportation fund—contract for use of library. The board of each school corporation shall at its regular meeting in July, or at a special meeting called for that purpose between the time designated for such regular meeting and the third Monday in August, estimate the amount required for the contingent fund, not exceeding ten dollars for each person of school age, but each school corporation may estimate not exceeding seventy-five dollars for each school thereof, and such additional sum as may be necessary not exceeding five dollars for each person of school age for transporting children to and from school; and also such additional sum as may be authorized in the chapter on uniformity of textbooks; also such sum as may be required for the teachers' fund, which shall not exceed thirty dollars for each person of school age therein, but each corporation may estimate not exceeding two hundred seventy dollars, for each regular school therein. No tax shall be estimated by the board after the third Monday in August, in each year. School corporations containing territory in adjoining counties may vote and estimate all taxes for school purposes in mills. The board shall apportion any tax voted by the annual meeting for schoolhouse fund among the several subdistricts in such a manner as justice and equity may require, taking as the basis of such apportionment the respective amounts previously levied upon said subdistricts for the use of such fund. The board of directors of any school corporation in which there is no free public library shall have power to contract with any free public library for the free use of such library by the residents of such school district as provided in section one[1] of this act and to pay such library the amount agreed therefor, and to certify annually a tax not exceeding one mill on the dollar of the taxable property of such district, to be used exclusively therefor; and during the existence of such contract a tax sufficient to pay such library the consideration agreed upon, not exceeding one mill on the dollar, shall be certified annually by such board. Each school corporation making such contract shall, during the existence of such contract, be relieved from the requirements of section twenty-eight hundred twenty-three-n of the supplement to the code, 1907. This section shall not be construed to apply in townships where a contract is in existence under the provisions of section two[2] of this act. [35 G. A., ch. 251, §§ 1, 2; 35 G. A., ch. 70, § 5; 33 G. A., ch. 182, § 1.] [31 G. A., ch. 136, § 14; 28 G. A., ch. 108, § 1; 15 G. A., ch. 67, § 1; C. '73, §§ 1738, 1777–8; R. §§ 2033–4, 2037–44, 2088.]

Property which is within the limits of the school district at the time school taxes are determined and certified by the board of directors and levied by the board of supervisors, is subject to such taxes, although annexed to the district after the election of the board of directors imposing such taxes. Grout v. Illingworth, 131–281, 108 N. W. 528.

Approximation of the amount of the tax to be levied is all that is called for from the board of directors in its estimate and from the board of supervisors in levying the tax. Giliman v. Talley, 140–718, 119 N. W. 144.

SEC. 2807. Levy by board of supervisors.

The board of supervisors should make a levy to the legal limit for the purpose of carrying out a vote of the electors although such vote is for a tax in excess of the amount which can be legally levied. Kirchner v. Board of Directors, 141–43, 118 N. W. 51.

Further, see notes to last preceding section.

SEC. 2808. Apportionment. The county auditor shall, on the first Monday in April and the first Monday in October of each year, apportion the school tax, together with the interest of the permanent school fund and rents on unsold school lands to which the county is entitled as shown in notice from the auditor of state, and all other money in the hands of the county treasurer belonging in common to the schools of the county and not included in any previous apportionment, among the several corporations therein, in proportion to the number of persons of school age, as shown by the report of the county superintendent filed with him for the year immediately preceding. He shall immediately notify the county treasurer of such apportionment and of the amount due thereby to each corporation. The county treasurer shall thereupon give notice to the president of each corporation, and shall pay out such apportionment moneys in the same manner that he is authorized to pay other school moneys to the treasurers of the several school districts. [32 G. A., ch. 151, § 3; 27 G. A., ch. 94, § 1; C. '73, §§ 1781–2, 1841; R. §§ 1966, 2060–1.]

[The amendment by 32 G. A. was by adding matter after the word "fund" in the fourth line. The word "fund" occurs only in line three and the change has been made there.]

An action by one independent district against another to recover money collected as taxes on property in the plaintiff district and erroneously paid by the county treasurer to the defendant is one for money had and received, and the statute of limitations will commence to run at the time of payment and not from the discovery of the mistake. Independent School Dist. v. Independent School Dist., 123–455, 99 N. W. 106.

The school census as reported to the auditor is conclusive as to the apportionment of taxes by him. Judson v. Agan, 134–557, 111 N. W. 943.

SEC. 2809. County auditor to report. That section twenty-eight hundred and nine of the code, relating to the school fund, be and the same is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"The county auditor shall, on the first Monday in January of each year, forward to the superintendent of public instruction a certificate of the election or appointment and qualification of the county superintendent, and shall also on the first day of January of each year make out and transmit to the auditor of state, in accordance with such forms as said auditor may prescribe, a report of the amount of permanent school fund held by the county and also the amount of interest due prior to January first, still remaining unpaid, and shall file said report with the auditor of state on or before the first day of February." [32 G. A., ch. 151, § 2; C. '73, § 1783.]

Recital in the bonds that they are not in excess of the constitutional limitation cannot be relied on by the purchaser. Fairfield v. Rural Ind. Sch. Dist., 111 Fed. 453.

SEC. 2812-a. Repeal. That section twenty-eight hundred twelve of the code, section one of chapter ninety-five of the acts of the twenty-seventh general assembly and chapter one hundred forty-two of the acts of the twenty-eighth general assembly be and the same are hereby repealed. [29 G. A., ch. 127, § 1; 28 G. A., ch. 142; 27 G. A., ch. 95, § 1.]

SEC. 2812-b. Repeal. That chapter one hundred forty, laws of the thirty-first general assembly, be and the same is hereby repealed and the following sections enacted in lieu thereof: [32 G. A., ch. 152, § 1; 31 G. A., ch. 140, §§ 1, 2; 29 G. A., ch. 127, § 2.]

SEC. 2812-c. School funding bonds. The board of directors of any school corporation may issue the bonds of said school corporation to pay any judgment against said school corporation or any indebtedness represented by bonds heretofore lawfully issued. Said bonds shall be known as school funding bonds and shall be authorized by resolution of the board. The proceeds derived from said bonds shall be applied in payment of any such outstanding judgment or bonded indebtedness, or said bonds may be exchanged for outstanding judgments or bonds, par for par. [32 G. A., ch. 152, § 2.]

It is not provided how the authority to issue bonds shall be given by the voters, and the sufficiency of the ballots on such a vote is to be determined under the provisions relating to annual meetings of the electors. Calahan v. Handsaker, 133–622, 111 N. W. 22.

SEC. 2812-d. School building bonds. For the purpose of borrowing money necessary to erect, complete, equip, furnish or improve a schoolhouse, or to purchase sites therefor, the board of directors of any school corporation, when they have been heretofore, or when they may hereafter be authorized by the voters at the annual meeting or at a special meeting called for that purpose, may issue the negotiable interest-bearing bonds of said school corporation, said bonds to be known as school building bonds. [32 G. A., ch. 152, § 3.]

SEC. 2812-e. Form—duration—rate of interest—where registered. All of said bonds shall be substantially in the form provided for county bonds, but subject to changes that will conform them to the action of the board providing therefor, shall run not more than ten years, except that in independent districts having, at the time of issuance of any bonds, other bonds outstanding amounting to not less than four hundred thousand dollars, any bonds in excess of such amount may in the discretion of the board be made to run for any period or periods not exceeding twenty years, and may be sooner paid if so nominated in the bond; be in denomination of not more than one thousand dollars or less than one hundred dollars each, to bear a rate of interest not exceeding five per centum per annum, payable semiannually, to be signed by the president and countersigned by the secretary of the board of directors, and shall not be disposed of for less than par value, nor issued for other purposes than this chapter provides. All of said bonds shall be registered in the office of the county auditor. The expenses of engraving and printing of bonds may be paid out of the contingent fund. [33 G. A., ch. 183, § 1.] [32 G. A., ch. 152, § 4.]

SEC. 2812-f. Redemption—treasurer to keep record. Whenever the amount in the hands of the treasurer, belonging to the funds set aside to pay bonds, is sufficient to redeem one or more of the bonds which by their terms are subject to redemption, he shall give the owner of said bonds thirty days' written notice of the readiness of the district to pay and the amount it desires to pay. If not presented for payment or redemption within thirty days after the date of such notice, the interest on such bonds shall cease and the amount due thereon shall be set aside for its payment whenever it is presented. All redemptions shall be made in the order of their numbers. The treasurer shall keep a record of the parties to whom the bonds are sold, together with their post-office addresses, and notice mailed to the address as shown by such record shall be sufficient. [32 G. A., ch. 152, § 5.]

SEC. 2813. Tax to pay bonds. That section twenty-eight hundred thirteen, supplement to the code, 1907, be and the same is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"The board of each school corporation shall, when estimating and certifying the amount of money required for general purposes, estimate and certify to the board of supervisors of the proper county, the amount required to pay interest due or that may become due for the year beginning January first thereafter, upon lawful bonded indebtedness and in addition thereto such amount as the board may deem necessary to apply on the principal; but the amount estimated and certified to apply on principal and interest for any one year shall not exceed five mills on the dollar of the actual valuation of the taxable property of the school corporation. [35 G. A., ch. 252, § 1.] [27 G. A., ch. 95, § 2; 18 G. A., ch. 51, § 2; 18 G. A., ch. 132, § 6; C. '73, § 1823.]

SEC. 2813-a. Tax levy. "The board of supervisors of the county to which the certificate is addressed within the contemplation of this act shall levy the necessary tax to raise the amount estimated, or so much thereof as may be lawful and within the limitation of this act, which levy shall be made as other taxes for school purposes. [35 G. A., ch. 252, § 2.]

SEC. 2813-b. To what applicable. "This act shall apply to estimates heretofore made, certificates furnished, or taxes levied, together with such as may hereafter be made, furnished or levied for the purposes contemplated by this act; but this act shall not apply to pending litigation." [35 G. A., ch. 252, § 3.]

SEC. 2814. Schoolhouse sites—acquisition. That section twenty-eight hundred fourteen of the code be and the same is hereby repealed and the following enacted as a substitute therefor:

Any school corporation may take and hold so much real estate as may be required for schoolhouse sites, for the location or construction thereon of schoolhouses, and the convenient use thereof, but not to exceed one acre, exclusive of public highway, except in a city, town or village it may include one block exclusive of the street or highway as the case may be, and may take and hold such additional real estate, not exceeding five acres, as may be required for school playground or other purposes; (provided nothing in this act shall affect pending litigation;)[1] or in districts consolidated under the provisions of section twenty-seven hundred ninety-nine of the code, or chapter one hundred forty-one of the laws of the thirty-first general assembly, or in school townships holding not more than two school sites, may consist of not to exceed four acres, for any one site, unless by the owner's consent, which site must be upon some public road already established or procured by the board of directors and shall, except in cities, towns, or villages, be at least thirty rods from the residence of any owner who objects to its being placed nearer, and not in any orchard, garden or public park. [35 G. A., ch. 253, § 1.] [32 G. A., ch. 153; C. '73, §§ 1825–6.]

[1This cause has been placed within parenthesis by the editor. It refers to the amendment made by ch. 253, 35 G. A., as follows: "and may take and hold such additional real estate, not exceeding five acres, as may be required for school playground or other purposes,". EDITOR.]

Ample grounds are essential for the exercise or recreation of the children and land may be condemned for the purpose of providing such grounds in addition to grounds for a site already secured. Independent Sch. Dist. v. Hewitt, 105–663, 75 N. W. 497.

Any owner of property may object to the procurement of a site for a schoolhouse within thirty rods of his residence. The objection is not limited to owners of land a portion of which is taken for such site. Mendenhall v. Board of Directors, 137–554, 115 N. W. 11.

SEC. 2815. Condemnation.

Inconvenience due to the taking of property for school purposes and naturally resulting from such appropriation, by which the market value of the premises is unfavorably affected, should be considered in determining the damages resulting from such taking. Haggard v. Independent Sch. Dist., 113–486, 85 N. W. 777.

Benefits will not be taken into account in determining the damage to be assessed. Ibid.

Notice of appeal is to be given to the county superintendent in such cases instead of to the sheriff, as directed in code § 1999. Ibid.

Judgment for the damage to property should not be rendered against the school district on appeal where the property has not been actually appropriated. Ibid.

The power to obtain the opening of public roads for better access to a schoolhouse having been conferred upon the district, it is fairly to be implied that the district may accomplish that purpose by purchase or by any of the usual and appropriate methods by which a public way may be established. The district may through its board of directors and electors petition the board of supervisors for a road for the benefit of the district, and the funds of the district may be lawfully appropriated for the payment of damages assessed in such proceeding. Certiorari will not lie to review the action of the board of supervisors in establishing such a road. Brockway v. Board of Supervisors, 133–293, 110 N. W. 844.

The provisions of this section do not so far incorporate the provisions of code § 2007 as to authorize the allowance of attorney's fees as costs. Jones v. School Board, 140–179, 118 N. W. 265.

SEC. 2816. Reversion. Section twenty-eight hundred sixteen of the code is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"In any school district wholly outside any city or incorporated town, in the case of nonuser for school purposes for two years continuously of any real estate acquired for a schoolhouse site it shall revert, with improvements thereon, to the owner of the tract from which it was taken, upon repayment of the purchase price without interest, together with the value of the improvements, to be determined by arbitration, and upon such payment the school corporation shall make formal conveyance to such owner. During its use the owner of the right of reversion shall have no interest in or control over the premises." [34 G. A., ch. 144, § 1.] [C. '73, § 1828.]

Where the school board has taken conveyance of property for a new site and its action in establishing such site is reversed on appeal to the county superintendent, the conveyance becomes inoperative without any action on the part of the board for a rescission. Independent School Dist. v. McClure, 136–122, 113 N. W. 554.

SEC. 2818. Appeal to county superintendent.

A teacher seeking to recover for the breach of his contract may sue thereon and is not limited to an appeal. Burkhead v. Independent Sch. Dist., 107–29, 77 N. W. 491.

Where a teacher sued for a breach of contract, claiming that an attempted discharge was not in accordance with the requirements of code § 2782, and therefore invalid, held that he was not to be denied relief because he had not appealed from the illegal action of the board in attempting to discharge him. Curttright v. Independent Sch. Dist., 111–20, 82 N. W. 444.

The right of appeal to the county superintendent does not exclude the courts from considering on an application for mandamus whether in the matter complained of the board acted within the scope of its powers as defined by statute. Kinzer v. Independent School Dist., 129–441, 105 N. W. 686.

The action of a school board in determining that a pupil is a nonresident and therefore must pay tuition, cannot be reviewed by mandamus, but only by appeal to the county superintendent. Preston v. Board of Education, 124–355, 100 N. W. 54.

The legality of the incorporation of an independent school district may be questioned in an action of quo warranto. Appeal to the county superintendent is not the exclusive remedy. State v. Alexander, 129–538, 105 N. W. 1021.

The action of a school board with reference to a matter vested in their discretion with the right of appeal to the county superintendent cannot be controlled by injunction. Kinney v. Howard, 133–94, 110 N. W. 282.

The expediency of the formation of a consolidated district out of portions of the territory of other districts with reference to the effect on such other districts is to be determined by the county superintendent on appeal and not by the court which is asked to pass upon the validity of the action of the board to which the petition is directed. School Dist. Township v. Independent School Dist., 149–480, 128 N. W. 848.

Where a discretion is vested in the school board subject only to appeal to the county superintendent and from him to the state superintendent, the courts will not interfere with the exercise of such discretion by mandamus. Templer v. School Township, 141 N. W. 1054.

SEC. 2820. Appeal to state superintendent—no money judgment.

Where a county superintendent acts without jurisdiction, an appeal to the state superintendent cannot confer such jurisdiction, and the correctness of an order made can be contested in the courts. School Twp. v. Independent Dist., 110–30, 81 N. W. 184.

The state superintendent does not have authority to change his decision as to the proper location of a schoolhouse site on account of change of conditions after the rendering of his decision. Doubet v. Board of Directors, 135–95, 111 N. W. 326.

The decision of the state superintendent on an appeal involving the action of a board of directors on a matter as to which such board has exclusive jurisdiction, may be enforced as against the board by mandamus. State v. Thomas, 152–500, 132 N. W. 842.

The change of the law as to the limit of indebtedness for schoolhouse purposes may be taken into account by the board of directors in changing their action with reference to the establishment of a schoolhouse site. Doubet v. Board of Directors, 135–95, 111 N. W. 326.

SEC. 2820-d1. Indebtedness authorized in certain districts.

That sections twenty-eight hundred twenty-a, twenty-eight hundred twenty-b, twenty-eight hundred twenty-c, and twenty-eight hundred twenty-d of the supplement to the code, 1907, be and the same are hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:[1]

Any independent district containing or contained in any city, town or village, or any consolidated independent district shall be allowed to become indebted, for the purpose of building and furnishing a schoolhouse or houses and procuring a site therefor, or for the purpose of purchasing land to add to a site already owned, to an amount not to exceed in the aggregate, including all other indebtedness, five per centum of the actual value of the taxable property within such independent school district, such value to be ascertained by the last county tax list previous to the incurring of such indebtedness, anything contained in section thirteen hundred and six-b of the supplement to the code, 1907, to the contrary notwithstanding. [35 G. A., ch. 254, § 1; 35 G. A., ch. 10, § 1; 34 G. A., ch. 145, § 1; 33 G. A., ch. 184, § 1.]

[1Substitute continues to § 2820-d5 inclusive. EDITOR.]

SEC. 2820-d2. Petition for election. Provided, that before such indebtedness can be contracted in excess of one and one-quarter per centum of the actual value of the taxable property ascertained as provided in this act, a petition signed by a number equal to twenty-five per cent. of those voting at the last school election shall be filed with the president of the board of directors, asking that an election shall be called, stating the purpose for which the money is to be used, and that the necessary schoolhouse or houses cannot be built and furnished, or that sufficient land cannot be purchased to add to a site already owned, within the limit of one and one-quarter per centum of the valuation. [35 G. A., ch. 254, § 2; 34 G. A., ch. 145, § 2; 33 G. A., ch. 184, § 2.]

SEC. 2820-d3. Submission of question—notice—ballot. The president of the board of directors, on receipt of such petition shall, within ten days, call a meeting of the board who shall call such election, fixing the time and place thereof, which may be at the time and place of holding the regular school election. Four weeks' notice of such election shall be given by publication once each week, in some newspaper published in the said town or city, or if none be published therein, in the next nearest town or city in the county. At such election the ballot shall be prepared and used in substantially the following form:

	Yes
	No

Shall the (naming the independent district) issue bonds in the sum of ..... dollars ($.....) for the purpose of constructing or equipping schoolhouses? [33 G. A., ch. 184, § 3.]

SEC. 2820-d4. Bonds. If a majority of all the electors voting at such election vote in favor of the issuance of such bonds, the board of directors shall issue the same and make provision for the payment of the same and the interest thereon as provided in sections twenty-eight hundred twelve-d, twenty-eight hundred twelve-e, twenty-eight hundred twelve-f and twenty-eight hundred thirteen of the supplement to the code, 1907. [33 G. A., ch. 184, § 4.]

SEC. 2820-d5. To what applicable. But this act shall in no wise affect pending litigation nor act or acts of any school board under the statute or statutes herein repealed; but the transaction, if any, may be completed with the same force and effect as if the statute were not repealed. [33 G. A., ch. 184, § 5.]

SEC. 2820-e. Consolidation authorized. That in all cities of the first class containing a population of fifty thousand or over, according to any census taken by the authority or under the direction of the state of Iowa or of the United States, all the territory embraced within the corporate limits of any such city may be consolidated into and become one independent school district, known as the independent school district of (naming the city), state of Iowa, in the manner following: [32 G. A., ch. 155, § 1.]

Several school districts may exist wholly or in part within a city or town. Independent School Dist. v. Jones, 142–8, 120 N. W. 315.

SEC. 2820-f. Petition—question submitted—consolidation effected—board of directors—officers. When a written petition, requesting the establishment of a consolidated independent district whose territory shall be coëxtensive with that of such city, signed by one hundred voters of such city, is filed with the board of the school corporation therein having the largest number of voters, it shall be the duty of said board within ten days, to call an election, at which all the voters residing in the proposed district shall be allowed to vote by ballot for or against the proposition, "Shall all the territory within the city of (naming it) be united into one school district"? The board calling said election shall divide the territory within the proposed district into such number of precincts as the board shall determine, and the judges of election shall make and certify a return of the vote to the secretary of the same board which shall, on the next Monday after the election, canvass the returns made to the secretary, ascertain the result of the election, declare the same and cause a record to be made thereof, and in all other respects, except as inconsistent with the provisions of this act, the election shall be conducted as provided by law for elections in independent school districts in cities of the first class. If a majority of the votes cast at such election is favorable to the proposition, the consolidation and formation of said independent district shall thereby be effected, and the board of directors, treasurer, and other officers of the school corporation then holding office in the district affected by such consolidation having the largest number of voters, shall become the board of directors, treasurer and other officers of such consolidated district, and shall continue to hold their respective offices until the terms for which they were originally elected shall expire. The terms of office of all directors, treasurers and officers of boards in all the other districts affected by this act, lying wholly within such consolidated district and holding office at the time of such consolidation, shall cease and determine, and in case of districts lying partly without such consolidated district, the directors, officers and treasurers shall continue to have authority only over the territory lying within their districts, and without the consolidated district; provided that nothing herein contained shall affect the terms of employment of superintendents, principals, or teachers for the current school year, in which such consolidation may be effected. [32 G. A., ch. 155, § 2.]

In determining the population of the different districts to be consolidated, the last state census is admissible in evidence, and also the school register prepared under code § 2755. State v. Grefe, 139–18, 117 N. W. 13.

This statute does not repeal by implication code supp. § 2793, which relates to consolidation effected by the concurrent action of the several boards. Ibid.

The provision as to officers of the consolidated district simply indicates those who are to be temporarily in authority, leaving the succession to office as regulated by code supp. § 2802. The new board of directors alone can act in equitably apportioning assets and liabilities. Ibid.

SEC. 2820-g. Taxes. All taxes previously certified during that year shall be void so far as the property within the limits of the consolidated independent district is concerned. And all taxes necessary for the new corporation for that year shall be certified and levied as provided in section twenty-seven hundred ninety-six of the code. All property belonging to districts affected by such consolidation shall become the property of the consolidated district, except that in case of districts lying partly without such city, the liabilities and assets of such districts shall be equitably apportioned in accordance with chapter one hundred thirty-six, section thirteen, acts of the thirty-first general assembly, but nothing herein contained shall affect the rights of existing creditors. [32 G. A., ch. 155, § 3.]

SEC. 2820-h. Election expense. The expense of such election shall be borne by the consolidated district, in case such district shall be formed, otherwise by the separate districts in proportion to the assessed valuation therein within the proposed consolidated district. [32 G. A., ch. 155, § 4.]

OF COMPULSORY EDUCATION.

SECTION 2823-a. Duties of parents and guardians—penalty—exceptions. Any person having control of any child of the age of seven to sixteen years inclusive, in proper physical and mental condition to attend school, shall cause such child to attend some public, private, or parochial school, where the common school branches of reading, writing, spelling, arithmetic, grammar, geography, physiology, and United States history are taught, or to attend upon equivalent instruction by a competent teacher elsewhere than school, for at least twenty-four consecutive school weeks in each school year, commencing with the first week of school after the first day of September, unless the board of school directors shall determine upon a later date which date shall not be later than the first Monday in December; but the board of school directors in any city of the first or second class may require attendance for the entire time the schools are in session in any school year. Provided that this section shall not apply to any child who lives more than two miles from any school by the nearest traveled road except in those districts in which the pupils are transported at public expense, or who is over the age of fourteen and is regularly employed; or has educational qualifications equal to those[1] of pupils who have completed the eighth grade; or who is excused for sufficient reasons by any court of record or judge thereof; or while attending religious service or receiving religious instructions. Any person who shall violate the provisions of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall pay a fine of not less than three dollars nor more than twenty dollars, for each offense. [35 G. A., ch. 255, § 1; 33 G. A., ch. 187, § 1; 33 G. A., ch. 186, § 1.] [30 G. A., ch. 116, § 1; 29 G. A., ch. 128, § 1.]

This section has no bearing on the question under code § 2774 as to the provisions for transportation of children to school. Queeny v. Higgins, 136–573, 114 N. W. 51.

SEC. 2823-b. Reports to secretary. Upon notice from the secretary of the school corporation within which such school is conducted, it shall be the duty of each principal of each private or parochial school, once during each school year, and at any time when requested in individual cases, and within ten days from the receipt of such notice, to furnish to such secretary a certificate and report of the names, ages and attendance of the pupils in attendance at such school during the preceding year and from the time of the last preceding report to the time at which a report is required; and any person having the control of any child between seven and fourteen years of age inclusive, who shall place the same under private instruction, not in a regularly conducted school, upon receiving notice from the secretary of the school corporation, shall furnish a like certificate stating the name and age of such child and the period of time during which said child has been under said private instruction; and any person having the control of such child who is physically and mentally unable to attend school, public or private, shall furnish proofs by affidavit or affidavits as to the physical or mental condition of such child. All such certificates, reports and proofs shall be filed and preserved in the office of the secretary of the school corporation as a part of the records of his office. [29 G. A., ch. 128, § 2.]

SEC. 2823-c. Certified copies. It shall be the duty of the secretary of the school corporation to furnish to any person interested, where so requested, certified copies of all certificates contemplated by this act, on file in his office. [29 G. A., ch. 128, § 3.]

SEC. 2823-d. Truant schools. The board of directors of any school corporation may establish truant schools, or set apart separate rooms in any public school building, for the instruction of children who are habitually truant from instruction, as contemplated by this act. Such directors may provide for the confinement, maintenance, and instruction of such children in such schools, under such reasonable rules and regulations as they may prescribe. If any child, committed or sent to the truant school shall prove insubordinate and escape from such school during school hours, or absent himself or herself therefrom without the consent of the persons in charge thereof, then it shall be the duty of the person in charge of said school with the consent of the parent or guardian to file information before the judge of a court of record, who may, if the charge be found to be true and the said child be habitually vagrant, disorderly, or incorrigible, commit such child to one of the industrial schools of the state, under the same proceeding as is provided by section twenty-seven hundred and eight of the code, so far as the same may be applicable. [29 G. A., ch. 128, § 4.]

SEC. 2823-e. Truant officers. The board of directors of each school corporation may, and in school corporations having a population of twenty thousand or more shall, at their annual meeting in each year, appoint one or more truant officers, who shall serve for one year, and who may be a constable or a member of the police force, whose duty it shall be to report violations of this act to the secretary of the school corporation, and see to the enforcement of the provisions of this act. It shall be the duty of said truant officer or officers to apprehend and take into custody without warrant any child of the age of seven to fourteen years inclusive, who habitually frequents or loiters about public places during school hours without lawful occupation, or cannot produce a certificate as provided in section two hereof, also any truant child who absents himself or herself from school, and place him or her in charge of the teacher having charge of any school which said child is entitled to attend, and which school may be designated to said officers by the person having legal control of such child. Provided, however, in case the school so designated by the parent or person having the care and control of said child be a public school it shall be such as directed by the rules and regulations of the school board and the statutes of the state, and if other than a public school, the maintenance of said child in such school shall be without expense to the school corporation or state. Upon failure of such child to properly attend, or when, on report of the teacher having the custody of such child, said child is shown to not properly conduct itself in the school where placed as herein provided, the child may be removed therefrom by the board of directors and placed either in a public school or a truant school conducted in said district. The truant officer or officers shall be entitled to such compensation for service rendered under this act, as shall be fixed by the board of directors appointing him or them, which compensation shall be paid from the contingent fund of said district. In towns and cities of the second class, the independent school district may employ the marshal or other police officer of such city or town to act as truant officer, and pay him a salary in addition to that received from such city or town of not to exceed five dollars per month. [33 G. A., ch. 188, § 1.] [30 G. A., ch. 116, § 2; 29 G. A., ch. 128, § 5.]

SEC. 2823-f. Enforcement. It shall be the duty of the director or president of any board of directors, or any truant officers appointed by such board of directors, to enforce the provisions of this act, to sue for and recover the penalties herein provided, and to institute criminal prosecution against any person violating the provisions of this act, and any such officers neglecting to do so within thirty days after a written notice has been served upon him by any citizen of said district, or the county superintendent of the county within which the offending person shall reside, shall himself be liable for a fine of not less than ten dollars nor more than twenty dollars for each offense. [32 G. A., ch. 154; 29 G. A., ch. 128, § 6.]

SEC. 2823-g. Teachers and school officers—duties. All teachers of the public schools of the state and county superintendents and school officers and employes shall promptly report to the secretary of the school corporation any violations of the provisions of this act, of which they have knowledge or information, and he shall promptly inform the president of the board of directors thereof and such president shall, if necessary, call a meeting of the board of directors to take such action thereon as the facts shall justify, and any child placed in any truant school may be discharged therefrom at the discretion of the board, upon sufficient assurance of the future good conduct of such child. [29 G. A., ch. 128, § 7.]

SEC. 2823-h. Provisions for punishment. The board of directors of every school corporation is hereby authorized to provide such reasonable methods of punishment of children who are habitually truant from school, or who habitually frequent or loiter about public places during school hours without lawful occupation, as may be necessary to carry out and make effectual the provisions of this act. [29 G. A., ch. 128, § 8.]

SEC. 2823-i. School census. It shall be the duty of all officers, empowered to take the school census, to ascertain the number of children of the ages of seven to sixteen years, inclusive, in their respective districts, the number of such children who do not attend school, and so far as possible the cause of failure to attend school. [35 G. A., ch. 255, § 2.] [29 G. A., ch. 128, § 9.]

OF THE PUBLICATION AND DISTRIBUTION OF THE SCHOOL LAWS OF IOWA.

SECTION 2823-j. Compilation — number — distribution. That sections twenty-eight hundred twenty-three-j, twenty-eight hundred twenty-three-k, twenty-eight hundred twenty-three-l and twenty-eight hundred twenty-three-m, supplement to the code, 1907, be and the same are hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"The superintendent of public instruction shall every four years, if deemed necessary, cause to be printed, bound and distributed all school laws in force up to that time, the number to be determined by the executive council. Each county superintendent shall be furnished a sufficient number of copies to supply the school officers of the state and such others as may request them." [35 G. A., ch. 256, § 1.] [27 G. A., ch. 90, § 1.]

SEC. 2823-k. Sale—price—repealed. [35 G. A., ch. 256, § 1.] [27 G. A., ch. 90, § 2.]

SEC. 2823-l. Statement of copies sold—repealed. [35 G. A., ch. 256, § 1.] [27 G. A., ch. 90, § 3.]

SEC. 2823-m. Copies delivered to successor—repealed. [35 G. A., ch. 256, § 1.] [27 G. A., ch. 90, § 4.]

CHAPTER 14-C.

LIBRARIES FOR THE USE OF TEACHERS, PUPILS AND OTHER RESIDENTS IN SCHOOL DISTRICTS.

SECTION 2823-n. Library fund. The treasurer of each school township and each rural independent district in this state shall withhold annually, from the money received from the apportionment for the several school districts, not less than five nor more than fifteen cents, as may be ordered by the board, for each person of school age residing in each school corporation, as shown by the annual report of the secretary, for the purchase of books as hereinafter provided. When so ordered by the board of directors, the provisions of this section shall apply to any independent district. [28 G. A., ch. 110, § 1.]

A library is considered to be within the proper range of school apparatus, and held that a public library, though privately endowed, is an educational institution within the provisions of code § 1304 as amended, exempting the endowment fund of educational institutions from taxation. Webster City v. Wright County, 144–502, 123 N. W. 193.

SEC. 2823-o. Purchase of books—distribution. Between the third Monday of September and the first day of December in each year the president and secretary of the board, with the assistance of the county superintendent of schools, shall expend all money withheld by the treasurer as provided in section one of this act, in the purchase of books selected from the lists prepared by the state board of educational examiners as hereinafter provided, for the use of the school district; in school townships the secretary shall distribute the books thus selected to the librarians among the several subdistricts, and at least semiannually collect the same and distribute others. [28 G. A., ch. 110, § 2.]

SEC. 2823-p. State board of educational examiners to prepare lists of books. It is hereby made the duty of the state board of educational examiners to prepare at its discretion lists of books suitable for use in school district libraries, and furnish copies of such lists to each president, secretary, and each county superintendent, as often as the same shall be published or revised, from which lists the several presidents and secretaries and county superintendents shall select and purchase books. [33 G. A., ch. 189, § 1.] [28 G. A., ch. 110, § 3.]

SEC. 2823-q. Record book. It shall be the duty of each secretary to keep in a record book, furnished by the board of directors, a complete record of the books purchased and distributed by him. [28 G. A., ch. 110, § 4.]

SEC. 2823-r. Librarian. Unless the board of directors shall elect some other person, the secretary in independent districts and director in subdistricts in school townships shall act as librarian and shall receive and have the care and custody of the books, and shall loan them to teachers, pupils, and other residents of the district, in accordance with the rules and regulations prescribed by the state board of educational examiners and board of directors. Each librarian shall keep a complete record of the books in a record book furnished by the board of directors. During the periods that the school is in session the library shall be placed in the schoolhouse, and the teacher shall be responsible to the district for its proper care and protection. The board of directors shall have supervision of all books and shall make an equitable distribution thereof among the schools of the corporation. [28 G. A., ch. 110, § 5.]

CHAPTER 14-D.

OF THE TEACHING OF THE ELEMENTS OF VOCAL MUSIC IN THE PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

SECTION 2823-s. Instruction authorized. That the elements of vocal music, including when practical the singing of simple music by note, be taught in all of the public schools of Iowa, and that all teachers teaching in schools where such instruction is not given by special teachers be required to satisfy the county superintendent of their ability to teach the elements of vocal music in a proper manner. Provided, however, that no teacher shall be refused a certificate or the grade of his or her certificate lowered on account of lack of ability to sing. [28 G. A., ch. 109, § 1.]

SEC. 2823-t. Normal institute. That it shall be the duty of each county superintendent to have taught annually in the normal institute the elements of vocal music. [28 G. A., ch. 109, § 2.]

CHAPTER 14-E.

OF PUBLIC RECREATION AND PLAY GROUNDS.

SECTION 2823-u. Establishment — maintenance — supervision. Boards of school directors in school districts containing or contained in cities of the first or second class, cities under special charter, or cities under the commission plan of government, are hereby authorized to establish and maintain for children in the public school buildings and on the public school grounds under the custody and management of such boards, public recreation places and playgrounds and necessary accommodations for same, without charge to the residents of said school district; also to coöperate with the commissioners or boards having the custody and management in such cities of public parks and public buildings and grounds of whatever sort, and by making arrangements satisfactory to such boards controlling public parks and grounds to provide for the supervision, instruction and oversight necessary to carry on public educational and recreational activities, as described in this section in buildings and upon grounds in the custody and under the management of such commissioners or boards having charge of public parks and public buildings on grounds of whatever sort, in such cities of the first or second class, cities under special charter, or cities under commission plan of government. [35 G. A., ch. 257, § 1.]

SEC. 2823-u1. Tax levy—petition—submission. The board of directors of any school district containing, or contained in, any city of the first or second class, city under special charter, or city under the commission plan of government, may, and upon petition to that effect signed by legally qualified voters aggregating not less than twenty-five per cent. of the number voting at the last preceding school election, shall, submit to the electors of such school district the question of levying a tax as in this act provided; and if a majority of the votes cast upon such proposition be in favor thereof, then the board of school directors shall proceed to organize the work as authorized in this act and levy a tax therefor at the time and in the manner provided in section three of this act. If at the time of filing said petition it shall be more than three months till the next regular school election, then the board of school directors shall submit said question at a special election within sixty days. [35 G. A., ch. 257, § 2.]

SEC. 2823-u2. Certification to board of supervisors—collection—limitation. Boards of school directors in such districts shall fix and certify to the board of supervisors on or before the first Monday of September the amount of money required for the next fiscal year for the support of the aforementioned activities, in the same manner as the amount of necessary taxes for other school purposes is certified and said board of supervisors shall levy and collect a tax upon all the property subject to taxation in said school district at the same time and in the same manner as other taxes are levied and collected by law which shall be equal to the amount of money so required for such purposes by the said board of school directors as provided in this act; provided that the tax so levied upon each dollar of the assessed valuation of all property, real and personal in said district, subject to taxation, shall not in any one year exceed two mills for the purpose of the activities hereinbefore mentioned in this act; the said tax shall not be used or appropriated directly or indirectly for any other purpose than provided in this act. [35 G. A., ch. 257, § 3.]

SEC. 2823-u3. Duties of school treasurer. All moneys received by, or raised in such city for the aforementioned purpose shall be paid over to the treasurer of the school district, to be disbursed by him on orders of such board of school directors in such district in the same manner as other funds of said school district are disbursed by him, but the tax provided for in this act shall not be levied or collected nor shall the board of school directors, as provided in this act, have authority to certify the amount of taxes necessary for this purpose until after the question of the levy of such tax shall have been authorized by a majority vote at a regular or special election. [35 G. A., ch. 257, § 4.]

SEC. 2823-u4. Annual levy. After the question of the levy of such special tax has been submitted to and approved by the voters as provided in this act, the authority shall remain, and such tax shall be levied and collected annually until such time as the voters of the school district of such city shall by majority vote order the discontinuance of the levy and collection of such tax. [35 G. A., ch. 257, § 5.]

SEC. 2823-u5. Discontinuance of levy—submission of question. The board of school directors in any district governed by this act, may, and on petition to that effect signed by legally qualified voters aggregating not less than twenty-five per cent. of the number voting at the last preceding school election, shall submit to the electors of such school district the question of discontinuing the levying of such tax as may have been previously authorized under the provisions of this act, and if a majority of the votes cast upon such proposition be in favor thereof, then the levying of such tax shall be discontinued and shall not be resumed unless again authorized under the provisions of section two of this act. [35 G. A., ch. 257, § 6.]

SEC. 2823-u6. Appropriation by city. The board of school directors in any district governed by this act is also empowered to receive and expend for the purpose of this act, any sums of money appropriated and turned over to them by the city council or commissioners of such city for such purposes; and the city council or commissioners of such city, shall have authority to appropriate and turn over to the board of school directors of the school district containing or contained in such city, any reasonable sums of money which the said council or commissioners may desire to appropriate out of the general funds of such city and turn over to the said board of school directors for the purposes herein set forth. [35 G. A., ch. 257, § 7.]

CHAPTER 15.

OF THE UNIFORMITY, PURCHASE AND LOANING OF TEXTBOOKS.

SECTION 2824. Adoption—contract—agent.

The school board has no authority to contract with a book seller and pay him out of the contingent fund for handling schoolbooks when the district has not adopted the plan of purchasing the books for sale to pupils, and payment under such an arrangement may be restrained at the suit of a taxpayer. Ries v. Hemmer, 127–408, 103 N. W. 346.

The provision as to adoption of textbooks by the board of directors merely empowers the board to adopt and purchase, without indicating the manner of doing so, and is subject to the requirement of code § 2828 relating to the purchase of textbooks. McNees v. School Township, 133–120, 110 N. W. 325.

SEC. 2828. Bids. Before purchasing textbooks under the provisions of this chapter, it shall be the duty of the board of directors, or county board of education, to advertise, by publishing a notice, once each week, for three consecutive weeks in one or more newspapers published in the county; said notice shall state the time up to which all bids will be received, the classes and grades for which textbooks and other necessary supplies are to be bought, and the approximate quantity needed; and said board shall award the contract for said textbooks and supplies to any responsible bidder or bidders offering suitable textbooks and supplies at the lowest prices, taking into consideration the quality of material used, illustrations, binding, and all other things that go to make up a desirable textbook; and may, to the end that they may be fully advised, consult the county superintendent, or, in case of city independent districts, with city superintendent or other competent person, with reference to the selection of textbooks; provided that the board may reject any and all bids, or any part thereof, and readvertise therefor as above provided. [31 G. A., ch. 9, § 4; 23 G. A., ch. 24, § 5.]

SEC. 2829. Change—question submitted.

The statute prohibits any change in the textbooks adopted by the board of directors except as authorized at a regular meeting of the electors, upon notice of the submission of such proposition. McNees v. School Township, 133–120, 110 N. W. 325.

SEC. 2831. County board of education—question as to county uniformity. The county superintendent, the county auditor and the members of the board of supervisors shall constitute a county board of education. When petitions shall have been signed by one third the school directors in any county, other than those in cities and towns, and filed in the office of the county superintendent of such county at least thirty days before the annual school elections, asking for a uniform series of textbooks in the county, then such county superintendent shall immediately notify the other members of the county board of education in writing, and within fifteen days after the filing of the petitions said board of education shall meet and provide for submitting to the electors at the next annual meeting the question of county uniformity of school textbooks. [28 G. A., ch. 111, § 1; 23 G. A., ch. 24, §§ 8, 9.]

SEC. 2832. Selection of books—depositories—distribution—itemized accounts. Should a majority of the electors voting at such elections favor a uniform series of textbooks for use in said county, then the county board of education shall meet and select the school textbooks for the entire county, and contract for the same under such rules and regulations as the said board of education may adopt. When a list of textbooks has been so selected, they shall be used by all the public schools of said county, except as hereinafter provided, and the board of education may arrange for such depositories as it may deem best, and may pay for said schoolbooks out of the county funds, and sell them to the school districts at the same price as provided for in section twenty-eight hundred twenty-four of this chapter, and the money received from said sales shall be returned to the county funds by said board of education monthly. The boards of school officers, who are hereby made the judges of the school meetings, shall certify to the board of supervisors the full returns of the votes cast at said meetings the next day after the holding of said meetings, who shall, at their next regular meeting, proceed to canvass said votes and declare the result. Unless otherwise ordered by the board of education, the county superintendent shall have charge of such textbooks and of the distribution thereof among the depositories selected by the board; he shall render to the board at each meeting thereof itemized accounts of his doings, and shall be liable on his official bond therefor. [28 G. A., ch. 112, § 1; 23 G. A., ch. 24, § 9.]

SEC. 2834. Officers not to be agents.

The statute prohibits any school director from engaging on his own account in the sale of schoolbooks and supplies to pupils, and the prohibition is not limited to directors acting as agents of the board under code § 2824. State v. Wick, 130–31, 106 N. W. 268.

CHAPTER 16.

OF THE SCHOOL FUND.

SECTION 2838. Permanent fund.

While the school fund belongs in a sense to the state, that portion which is apportioned to a particular county may be referred to as the permanent school fund of that county; and held that a bequest to the permanent school fund of a county specified was not void for uncertainty. Chapman v. Newell, 146–415, 125 N. W. 324.

SEC. 2839. Temporary fund.

Fines for contempt in violating a liquor injunction are not "collected for violation of the penal laws." Gunn v. Mahaska County, 155–527, 136 N. W. 929.

While the board of supervisors has authority to appertion the proceeds of fines after payment into the county treasury, it has no authority to contract for the payment of a portion of such fines to the person who collects them. Ibid.

SEC. 2841. Notice—sale. When the board of supervisors shall offer for sale the sixteenth section or lands selected in lieu thereof, or any portion of the same, or any part of the five hundred thousand acre grant, the county auditor shall give at least forty days' notice, by written or printed notices posted in five public places in the county, two of which shall be in the township in which the land to be sold is situated, and also publish a notice of said sale, once each week, for four weeks preceding the same in a newspaper published in the county, describing the land to be sold and the time and place of such sale. At such time and place, or at such other time and place as the sale may be adjourned to, he shall offer to the highest bidder, subject to the provisions of this chapter, and sell, either for cash, or one third cash and the balance on a credit not exceeding ten years, with interest on the same at the rate of not less than six per cent. per annum, to be paid at the office of the county treasurer of said county on the first day of January in each year, delinquent interest to bear the same rate as the principal. [31 G. A., ch. 9, § 5; 23 G. A., ch. 23; 18 G. A., ch. 12, § 4; C. '73, § 1846; R. § 1971.]

SEC. 2849. Loans. The permanent school fund shall be loaned out by the county auditor, as it comes into the hands of the county treasurer, in sums of five thousand dollars or less to one person or company, in case it is found impracticable to keep the whole amount of funds loaned in sums of five hundred dollars or less to one person or company. In the event it can be kept loaned out in sums of five hundred dollars or less to one person or company, then no loan shall exceed five hundred dollars, nor shall a loan of said fund be made to or be carried by the county auditor, treasurer or member of the board of supervisors. Each loan shall be made for at least one and not more than five years, evidenced by promissory notes bearing not less than five per cent. per annum, payable annually, and delinquent interest to draw the same rate, to be secured by a mortgage on unincumbered real estate, situated in the county in which the loan is made, and appraised, as hereinafter provided, for at least double the sum borrowed; the appraisement to be made by three persons under oath, selected by the county auditor, who shall not in making the valuation take into consideration the buildings upon the lands, for which service each shall be allowed fifty cents, to be paid by the borrower, who shall also pay for recording the mortgage. [35 G. A., ch. 258, § 1.] [28 G. A., ch. 113, § 1; 23 G. A., ch. 23; 19 G. A., ch. 174, § 2; 18 G. A., chs. 1, 2, 6; C. '73, §§ 1861–3; R. §§ 1981–3.]

SEC. 2850. Applications—taking up incumbrances. All applications to borrow from the permanent school fund shall be made to the auditor of the county in which the land is situated which it is proposed to mortgage as security, who shall cause the proper appraisement to be made, and, if satisfactory, shall examine any abstract of title which the proposed borrower may submit, or he may cause an abstract to be prepared at such proposed borrower's expense. If the title is found to be perfect, and the lands unincumbered, he shall certify this fact and submit the application and all the papers connected therewith to the board of supervisors at its next meeting, regular or called, at which meeting the loan shall be approved or disapproved. If the application is accepted, the auditor shall complete the contract by taking a note payable to the county, and a mortgage upon the lands securing the same, and certify the same to the treasurer, who shall pay over to the borrower the amount named in the note, less a fee of two dollars to be paid to the auditor for his services in addition to his salary. The board may reject the application for any good cause. And if it shall happen that a loan is made upon real estate which is in fact incumbered other than for taxes, the board of supervisors may, when necessary for the safety of the loan, appropriate out of any school fund on hand, if such incumbrance does not exceed one half of the real value of the lands, so much as may be needed to take up and purchase the same, and may also at any meeting, by resolution, assign without recourse, upon payment of the amount due, any school fund note and mortgage to one holding a subsequent lien upon the mortgaged real estate. [32 G. A., ch. 151, § 4; C. '73, §§ 1864, 1868–9, 1875; R. § 1984.]

SEC. 2853. Payments—accounts—settlements.

Failure of the county auditor to report a foreclosure sale to the state auditor, or to keep the account of the school funds in a separate book, or withholding the proceeds of the sale for a time before turning them over to the county treasurer, will not impair the title acquired under the deed in the foreclosure proceeding. Mahaska County v. Bennett, 150–216, 129 N. W. 838.

SEC. 2855. Lands bid in — losses — interest — rents. That section twenty-eight hundred fifty-five of the code supplement, [1902] relating to the permanent school fund, be and the same is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"When lands have been bid in by the county for the state under foreclosure of school fund mortgages and the time for redemption has expired a sheriff's deed shall be issued to the state for the use and benefit of the permanent school fund. The county auditor shall thereupon notify the auditor of state who shall give the county credit for the amount of principal in the original notes remaining unpaid. All lands hereafter acquired by the state under foreclosure proceedings shall be resold within two years from date of foreclosure and all such lands heretofore acquired shall be resold on or before January first, nineteen hundred and nine. Such lands shall be appraised, advertised and sold in the manner provided for the appraisement, advertisement and sale of the sixteenth section or lands selected in lieu thereof. When a resale is made the county auditor shall notify the auditor of state, who shall thereupon charge the county with the full amount of the resale, except that when the lands are sold for more than the unpaid portion of the principal, the excess shall be applied to reimburse the county for the costs of foreclosure and the interest paid by the county to the state by reason of default of payment of same by the makers of the notes, previous to the time when the right of redemption has expired, not, however, to exceed three years. Any excess over and above the amount of the unpaid portion of the principal, costs of foreclosure and interest on the principal as above provided, shall inure to the state and be credited to the permanent school fund account. If the lands shall be sold for a less amount than the unpaid portion of the principal, the loss shall be sustained by the county and the board of supervisors shall at once order the amount of such loss transferred from the general fund of the county to the permanent school fund account. County auditors shall, on or before the first day of January of each year, report to the auditor of state the amount of all sales and resales made during the year previous, of the sixteenth section, five hundred thousand acres grant, escheat estates, and lands taken under foreclosure of school fund mortgages, and the auditor of state shall charge the same to the counties with interest from the date of such sale or resale to January first, at the rate of four and one-half per cent. per annum. The auditor of state shall, also, on the first day of January, charge to each county having permanent school funds under its control, interest thereon at the rate of four and one-half per cent. per annum for the preceding year, or such part thereof as such funds shall have been in the control of the county, which shall be taken as the whole amount of interest due from each county. All interest collected above the four and one-half per cent. charged by the state shall be transferred to the general county fund. If any county fails or refuses to collect the amount of interest due the state, the deficiency shall be paid to the state from the general county fund. Any county delinquent in the payment of interest due the state shall be charged one per cent. per month on the amount delinquent until paid. County auditors shall, upon the first day of January of each year, report to the auditor of state the amount of rents collected during the preceding year on unsold school lands and lands taken under foreclosure of school fund mortgages then in the hands of the county treasurer, and the auditor of state shall include the amount so reported in his semiannual apportionment of interest." [32 G. A., ch. 151, § 1; 28 G. A., ch. 113, § 2; 23 G. A., ch. 23, § 3; 18 G. A., ch. 12, § 3; C. '73, §§ 1881–2, 1884.]

CHAPTER 17-A.

CONSOLIDATION OF THE MISCELLANEOUS PORTION OF STATE LIBRARY WITH THE HISTORICAL DEPARTMENT.

SECTION 2881-a. Authorized—board of trustees. That the board of trustees of the Iowa state library and the board of trustees of the Iowa historical department be and the same are hereby empowered and directed to consolidate the miscellaneous portion of the Iowa state library (exclusive of the law section), or so much thereof as shall be regarded by said board as advisable, with the historical department; the aforesaid consolidation to take effect on the first day of January, nineteen hundred and one, or at any such later date as said trustees may direct; and that on and after January first, nineteen hundred and one, the board of trustees of the Iowa state library and the board of trustees of the Iowa state historical department shall cease to exist as such, and the aforesaid boards shall, by this act, become the board of trustees of the state library and the historical department of Iowa, and the newly constituted board shall thereafter be charged with all the duties and responsibilities imposed upon the boards aforementioned and possess all the powers thereof. [28 G. A., ch. 114, § 1.]

SEC. 2881-b. State librarian—curator—assistant librarian—reports. That after such consolidation the state librarian shall have general charge of the historical department and of the consolidated and law libraries. The curator of the museum and art gallery shall have charge of the museum, the art gallery, the newspapers, and historical periodicals. The assistant to librarian shall have charge of the law library, under the direction of the state librarian. The above officers shall serve out the terms for which they shall have been appointed, at the expiration of which their successors shall be appointed by the board of trustees, and shall hold their respective offices for the term of six years. The state librarian shall submit to the governor biennially a report giving the history of said consolidated libraries for the preceding two years, accompanied by a like report by the curator of the museum and art gallery. [28 G. A., ch. 114, § 2.]

SEC. 2881-c. Furniture and fixtures. The executive council is authorized to procure the furniture and fixtures made necessary by such consolidation and pay for the same out of any money in the state treasury not otherwise appropriated. [28 G. A., ch. 114, § 3.]

SEC. 2881-d. Assignment of rooms. The board of trustees shall have the control of the respective departments above named, and shall assign rooms to be occupied by each of said officers. [28 G. A., ch. 114, § 4.]

SEC. 2881-e. Appropriations. That section twenty-eight hundred eighty-one-e of the supplement to the code, 1907, be and the same is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"There shall be annually appropriated from any money in the state treasury not otherwise appropriated the sum of six thousand dollars for the use of the law department and legislative reference bureau; six thousand dollars for the use of the miscellaneous department, and six thousand dollars for the historical department, the money to be expended under the direction of the board of trustees of the state library and historical department." [34 G. A., ch. 147, § 1.] [31 G. A., ch. 143; 28 G. A., ch. 114, § 5.]

SEC. 2881-f. State librarian—curator—law librarian—salaries. That section twenty-eight hundred eighty-one-f of the supplement to the code, 1907, be and the same is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"From and after the taking effect of this act the salary of the state librarian shall be the sum of twenty-four hundred dollars per annum; of the curator of the museum and art gallery, the sum of eighteen hundred dollars per annum; and [of] the law librarian, the sum of eighteen hundred dollars per annum." [34 G. A., ch. 147, § 2.] [32 G. A., ch. 156, § 2; 28 G. A., ch. 114, § 6.]

SEC. 2881-g. Other assistants—salaries. That section twenty-eight hundred eighty-one-g of the supplement to the code, 1907, be and the same is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"As assistants (in addition to the curator of the museum and art gallery and the law librarian), the state librarian may employ one first assistant at an annual salary of eleven hundred dollars; and one second assistant at an annual salary of ten hundred dollars; and one third assistant at an annual salary of nine hundred dollars." [34 G. A., ch. 147, § 3.] [32 G. A., ch. 156, § 3.]

SEC. 2881-h. Bonds. The state librarian shall give bond in the sum of five thousand dollars, and the curator of the museum and art gallery and the assistant to librarian shall each give bond in the sum of one thousand dollars, conditioned upon the faithful performance of their respective duties and a full and accurate accounting of all moneys coming into their hands in virtue of their respective offices. Said bonds shall be approved by the board of trustees of the state library and historical department. [32 G. A., ch. 156, § 4.]

SEC. 2881-i. Salaries—how paid. The salaries provided for in this act shall be paid in monthly installments out of any money in the state treasury not otherwise appropriated. [32 G. A., ch. 156, § 5.]

SEC. 2881-j. Custody of public archives. That for the care and preservation of the public archives the state library and historical department of Iowa are hereby given the custody of all the original public documents, papers, letters, records and other official manuscripts of the state executive and administrative departments, offices or officers, councils, boards, bureaus and commissions, ten years after the date or current use of such public documents, papers, letters, records or other official manuscripts. Provided that the executive council shall have the power and authority to order the transfer of such records or any part thereof at any time prior to the expiration of the limit of ten years hereinbefore provided or to retain the same in the respective offices beyond such limit according as in the judgment of the council the public interest or convenience may require. [31 G. A., ch. 142, § 1.]

SEC. 2881-k. Transfer and delivery of public archives. That section two of said act be repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"That the several executive and administrative departments, officers or offices, councils, boards, bureaus and commissioners are hereby authorized to transfer and deliver to the executive council for arrangement, classification, labeling, filing and calendaring, and then to the state library and historical department for preservation, such of the public archives as are designated in section one of this act except such as in the judgment of the executive council should be longer retained in the respective offices." [32 G. A., ch. 157, § 1; 31 G. A., ch. 142, § 2.]

SEC. 2881-l. State library and historical department authorized to receive archives—certification. That section three of said act is hereby repealed, and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

That the state library and historical department is hereby authorized and directed to receive from the executive council such of the public archives as are designated in section one of this act as rapidly as the same are properly arranged, classified, labeled, filed and calendared. Upon and after said receipt from the executive council of any of such public archives copies thereof may be made, certified and authenticated by the curator of the historical collections in the same manner and with the same validity as the officer or officers from whom they were received. Said curator shall charge and collect for certified copies the same fees as are allowed by law to the secretary of state for certified copies, which fees shall be turned into the state treasury. [34 G. A., ch. 148, § 1.] [32 G. A., ch. 157, § 2; 31 G. A., ch. 142, § 3.]

SEC. 2881-m. Hall of public archives. That for the care and permanent preservation by the state library and historical department of the public archives hereinbefore designated, the executive council is hereby authorized and directed to provide, furnish and equip such room or rooms in the historical memorial and art building (now in process of erection) as may be deemed necessary for the purposes of this act, and the room or rooms thus provided for shall be known as the hall of public archives. [31 G. A., ch. 142, § 4.]

SEC. 2881-n. Appropriation—how expended. That section five of said act is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"That for carrying out the purposes of this act there is hereby appropriated out of any moneys in the state treasury not otherwise appropriated the sum of six thousand dollars annually for two years beginning July first, nineteen hundred and seven, to be expended under the direction of said executive council." [32 G. A., ch. 157, § 3; 31 G. A., ch. 142, § 5.]

OF THE STATE HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

SECTION 2882-a. Annual appropriation—purposes. That there be and is hereby appropriated to the state historical society of Iowa, out of any money in the state treasury not otherwise appropriated, the sum of seventy-five hundred dollars, annually hereafter as permanent support: For the continued publication of The Iowa Journal of History and Politics; for the continuation of the compilation and publication of the messages and proclamations of the governors of Iowa; for the collection, compilation and publication of documentary materials, relating to the history of Iowa, including such of the archives of the state and territory of Iowa as are of historical importance; for the publication of historical monographs, biographies, essays, lectures, bibliographs and indexes; for the proper maintenance of the library of the society, the collection and purchase of publications bearing upon Iowa and American history, and the proper classifying, cataloging and indexing of such material; for the carrying out of a systematic and scientific anthropological survey of the state; for conducting public lectures of an historical character; and for meeting the incidental and other necessary expenses incurred in connection with the prosecution of the work of the said state historical society of Iowa, as indicated in this act and title thirteen, chapter eighteen, section twenty-eight hundred eighty-two of the code. [30 G. A., ch. 117, § 1.]

SEC. 2882-b. How paid. That the permanent annual appropriation herein provided for shall take the place and be in lieu of all other permanent annual appropriations heretofore made to the state historical society of Iowa, and the same shall be paid in quarterly installments on the order of the board of curators of the said state historical society of Iowa, the first installments to be paid July first, nineteen hundred and four. [30 G. A., ch. 117, § 2.]

SEC. 2882-c. Additional support. That there is hereby appropriated to the state historical society of Iowa, out of any money in the state treasury not otherwise appropriated, the sum of four thousand dollars annually hereafter as additional permanent support for historical research and publication. [34 G. A., ch. 149, § 1.]

SEC. 2882-d. Quarterly installments. That the said sum shall be paid in quarterly installments on the order of the board of curators of the said state historical society of Iowa, the first installment to be paid July, nineteen hundred eleven. [34 G. A., ch. 149, § 2.]

CHAPTER 18-A.

LIBRARY COMMISSION AND FREE PUBLIC SCHOOL LIBRARIES.

SECTION 2888-a. State library commission—term—chairman. The governor shall appoint four persons, at least two of whom shall be women, who, with the state librarian and superintendent of public instruction and president of the state university, shall constitute a state library commission. The first members appointed by the governor shall be appointed for terms of two, three, four and five years from the first day of July, nineteen hundred, and all subsequent appointments shall be for terms of five years, except appointments to fill vacancies. The commission shall annually elect a chairman. [28 G. A., ch. 116, § 1.]

SEC. 2888-b. Repeal. That sections two, three, four and five of chapter one hundred sixteen, acts of the twenty-eighth general assembly, be and the same are hereby repealed, and that the following be substituted therefor: [29 G. A., ch. 173, § 1; 28 G. A., ch. 116, §§ 2–5.]

SEC. 2888-c. Duties. The commission shall give advice and counsel to all free and other public libraries, and to all communities which may propose to establish them, as to the best means of establishing and maintaining such libraries, the selection of books, cataloging, and other details of library management. It may print such lists and circulars of information as it shall deem necessary and as approved by the executive council. It may also conduct a summer school of library instruction, a clearing house for periodicals for free gift to local libraries and perform such other public service as may seem to it for the best interests of the state. [29 G. A., ch. 173, § 2.]

SEC. 2888-d. Traveling libraries. The state library board shall transfer to the Iowa library commission all associate and traveling libraries belonging to the state, and the said library commission is authorized to accept the same; and it shall be the duty of said commission to operate the said associate and traveling libraries, also to properly equip and circulate the books thus acquired, or subsequently purchased to be loaned within the state to libraries, schools, colleges, universities, library associations, farmers' institutes, granges, study clubs, charitable and penal institutions and individuals, free of cost except for transportation, under such conditions and rules as shall protect the interests of the state and best increase the efficiency of the service it is expected to render the public. [29 G. A., ch. 173, § 3.]

SEC. 2888-e. Secretary — assistants — duties — expenses — office. Said commission shall employ a secretary not of its own number, who shall serve at the will of the commission, and under such conditions as it shall determine. It may also employ such other assistants as shall be requisite in the performance of the work of the commission as set forth in sections two and three, and number of assistants and their salaries and the salary of the secretary shall be fixed by the committee on retrenchment and reform. It shall be the duty of said secretary to keep a record of the proceedings of the commission, to keep accurate accounts of its financial transactions, and to act under the direction of the commission in supervising the work of the traveling libraries, in organizing new libraries and improving those already established, and in general to perform such other duties as may be assigned him by the commission. In addition to their salaries the necessary traveling expenses shall be allowed the secretary and assistants while absent from the office in the service of the commission, the same to be verified and certified and paid in the same manner as other expenses incurred by the commission. [33 G. A., ch. 190, § 1.] [29 G. A., ch. 173, § 4.]

SEC. 2888-f. Biennial report. The secretary of the commission shall make a full report to the governor on library conditions and progress in Iowa on July first, nineteen hundred and three, with sketches of the free public libraries and illustrations of such library buildings as said commission may deem expedient; two thousand copies of this report shall be printed, one thousand of which shall be bound in cloth; and biennially thereafter a like report shall be made to the governor, two thousand copies of which shall be printed, one thousand of the same to be bound in cloth; these reports to be printed and bound by the state the same as other public documents, and to be distributed under the direction of the commission, and such other printing and binding provided by this act shall be done by the state when allowed by the executive council. [29 G. A., ch. 173, § 5.]

SEC. 2888-g. Reports from libraries. The commission shall each year obtain from all free public libraries reports showing condition, growth, development and manner of conducting said libraries, and shall obtain reports from other libraries in the state at their discretion, and shall furnish annually to the secretary of state such information for publication in the Iowa official register as may be deemed of public interest. [29 G. A., ch. 173, § 6.]

SEC. 2888-h. Expenses—appropriation. That section twenty-eight hundred eighty-eight-h [of the supplement to the code, 1907,] be and the same is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

No member of the commission shall ever receive any compensation for services as a member, but the traveling expenses of members in attending meetings of the commission, or in visiting or establishing libraries and other incidental and necessary expenses connected with the work of the commission, shall be paid including the necessary expense in the maintenance and extension of the traveling library system, provided that the whole amount of said expense and salaries shall not exceed the sum of eleven thousand dollars in any one year, not more than seventy-six hundred dollars of said sum to be used in the payment of salaries. All bills and accounts incurred by the commission or by its members under the law, and all expenses of the members of the commission, and its secretary and its assistants shall be itemized, verified and certified by the chairman and secretary of the commission, and be audited and allowed by the executive council before being paid. The state auditor shall issue warrants therefor upon the state treasurer; and there is hereby annually appropriated from any funds in the state treasury, not otherwise appropriated, the sum of eleven thousand dollars to carry into effect the provisions of this act, and any balance not expended in any one year may be added by the commission to the expenditure for any ensuing year. [35 G. A., ch. 259, § 1; 33 G. A., ch. 190, § 2.] [29 G. A., ch. 173, § 7.]

PART SECOND.

PRIVATE LAW.

TITLE XIV.

OF RIGHTS OF PROPERTY.

CHAPTER 1.

OF THE RIGHTS OF ALIENS.

SECTION 2889. Nonresident aliens—acquiring and holding real estate.

A right to inherit cannot be derived from a parent who has died a nonresident alien and who would on that account not have been entitled to the property if living. Meier v. Lee, 106–303, 76 N. W. 712.

Where nonresident aliens acquired an interest in land in this state in 1860 by descent but remained nonresident until after the enactment of the statute of 1868 removing the disqualification to inherit on that ground, held that by the statute their rights had been forfeited so that the resident heirs had the complete title to the property notwithstanding a treaty between the United States and the country of the residence of such nonresident heirs that its citizens should have a reasonable time in which to sell the land which they would otherwise have been entitled to inherit and withdraw the proceeds. Ahrens v. Ahrens, 144–486, 123 N. W. 164.

The supreme court has never had occasion to pass directly upon the question whether under §§ 1908 and 1909 of the code of '73 a nonresident alien may take real estate by mere descent. Hughes v. Wyatt, 146–392, 125 N. W. 334.

Alienage of those who are heirs of a deceased owner of property according to the rules of descent does not render others lawful heirs who would have been heirs if the alien heirs had been dead. Hanson v Gallagher, 154–192, 134 N. W. 421.

One who cannot take as heir by descent on account of alienage is not a legal heir within the language of a will. Mitchell v. Vest, 157– —, 136 N. W. 1054.

SEC. 2889-a. Real property. That all corporations organized under the laws of any foreign country, and corporations organized under the laws of any state of the United States, one half of whose stock is owned and controlled by nonresident aliens, shall have the right to own, hold, and dispose of any real property owned or held by any such corporations on the fourth day of July, eighteen hundred eighty-eight, or any real property acquired by any such corporations under the provisions of section six of chapter eighty-five of the laws of the twenty-second general assembly, or section twenty-eight hundred ninety of the code. Provided, however, that any such corporation shall sell or dispose of any such property now owned by it within ten years from the taking effect of this act, and in default of such sale or disposition the provisions of sections twenty-eight hundred ninety-one, twenty-eight hundred ninety-two and twenty-eight hundred ninety-three of the code shall be applied thereto. [28 G. A., ch. 117, § 1.]

SEC. 2889-b. Bona fide contract. A bona fide contract for the sale of any such lands owned by any such corporation shall be held and considered as a sale within the provisions of the preceding section, and a good and valid deed of conveyance may be made by such corporation at any time upon the fulfillment of such contract by the purchaser of any such lands. [28 G. A., ch. 117, § 2.]

SEC. 2889-c. Sales, contracts, deeds, and conveyances legalized. All sales, contracts, deeds, or conveyances of lands owned by any such corporation on the fourth day of July, eighteen hundred eighty-eight, or acquired by any such corporation under the provisions of section six of chapter eighty-five of the laws of the twenty-second general assembly or section twenty-eight hundred ninety of the code, bearing date on or after the fourth day of July, eighteen hundred eighty-eight, are hereby legalized and rendered of full force and effect, according to their terms, in so far as their validity or the validity of the titles conveyed thereby may be affected by chapter eighty-five of the laws of the twenty-second general assembly, or any amendments thereto, or by chapter one, title fourteen, of the code. [28 G. A., ch. 117, § 3.]

OF SALE OF ABANDONED RIVER CHANNELS, SAND BARS OR ISLANDS—BOUNDARY COMMISSION.

SECTION 2900-a1. Repeal. That chapter one hundred eighty-five of the acts of the thirtieth general assembly be and the same is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof: [31 G. A., ch. 212, § 1.]

SEC. 2900-a2. Sale authorized. That all land between high-water mark and the center of the former channel of any navigable stream, where such channel has been abandoned, so that it is no longer capable of use, and is not likely again to be used for the purposes of navigation, and all land within such abandoned river channels, and all bars or islands in the channels of navigable streams not heretofore surveyed or platted by the United States or the state of Iowa, and all within the jurisdiction of the state of Iowa shall be sold and disposed of in the manner hereinafter provided. [31 G. A., ch. 212, § 1.]

The statutory provision as to surveying abandoned river channels has no application to the portion of a channel which is beyond the boundaries of the state. Coulthard v. McIntosh, 143–389, 122 N. W. 233.

SEC. 2900-a3. Written applications—by whom made. It shall be the duty of the county auditor to file written application with the secretary of state, asking that certain land located within the county be surveyed, appraised and sold, whenever he is satisfied that such land is of the character contemplated by section one of this act. If the county auditor fails or neglects to make such application, then any person desiring to purchase such land may file a written application with the secretary of state, asking that the said land be surveyed, appraised and sold. The said application whether made by the county auditor or by a person desiring to purchase the land, shall contain an accurate description thereof, stating whether the land is abandoned river channel, or land within such abandoned river channel, or an island or a sand bar in a navigable stream, and giving the number of township and range in which it is located, and the section numbers if possible, and also the estimated acreage. [31 G. A., ch. 212, § 2.]

SEC. 2900-a4. Survey. Upon receiving such application, it shall be the duty of the secretary of state to order a complete survey of such land to be made by the county surveyor of the county wherein the land is situated, and in case of the refusal or inability of such county surveyor to make such survey then the secretary of state shall appoint some other competent surveyor to make such survey. When such survey is made, a full report thereof, with field notes, shall be filed with the clerk of the state land office, which report and field notes shall constitute the official survey of such land. [31 G. A., ch. 212, § 3.]

SEC. 2900-a5. Appraisement. Upon the filing of such report, with the accompanying field notes, the secretary of state shall thereupon appoint a commission of three disinterested freeholders of the county wherein the land is situated, to view the land and make appraisement of the value thereof, which appraisement shall be returned and filed with the clerk of the state land office in the office of the secretary of state. The secretary of state, if he deems it necessary, may either go in person or send the clerk of the state land office into the county to make proper selection of the said commissioners, and the necessary expenses of such trip shall be paid in the manner hereinbefore provided. [31 G. A., ch. 212, § 4.]

SEC. 2900-a6. Fees. The surveyor making such survey shall be entitled to receive the sum of five dollars per day for his services as such surveyor and such additional amount as may be agreed upon and necessary for the services of chainmen and other attendants and other necessary expenses; the commissioners, for their services in making such appraisement shall each be entitled to receive five dollars per day, for the actual time employed. [31 G. A., ch. 212, § 5.]

SEC. 2900-a7. Sale—how effected—rights of bona fide occupants. Such lands shall be sold in the following manner: Any person who has in fact lived upon any such land and occupied the same, as a home, continuously for a period of three or more years immediately prior to the time of the appraisement thereof, and such occupancy has been in good faith for the purpose of procuring title thereto whenever by law such title could be vested in him by purchase from the proper authority, or any person who has acquired possession of such land by inheritance, or by purchase made in good faith from a former occupant, or occupants, whose occupancy dates back over a period of three years prior to the date of appraisement of the land, shall have first right to purchase such land at the appraised value; provided such bona fide occupant shall file his application for the purchase thereof at the appraised value with the secretary of state within sixty days after the day the appraisement is made, and shall accompany such application with affidavits showing proof of such bona fide occupancy. If no application has been filed with such bona fide occupant within the sixty-day period above provided, then the secretary of state shall advertise the sale of such land once each week for four consecutive weeks in two newspapers of general circulation published in the county wherein the land is situated, and proof of publication shall be filed with the secretary of state. The sale shall be made upon written bids addressed to the secretary of state and the advertisements shall fix the time when such bids will be received and opened. All bids shall be opened by the secretary of state or by the clerk of the state land office at the time fixed, and the land thereupon may be sold to the highest bidder and at not less than the appraised value. [31 G. A., ch. 212, § 6.]

SEC. 2900-a8. Lease authorized—lands readvertised—sale. If no application is filed for the purchase of the land within the sixty-day period by a bona fide occupant, and if no bids are received for the purchase thereof, on or before the date of the sale as advertised, then the secretary of state is authorized to lease the land for a period of from one to five years, upon as favorable terms as he can obtain. At the expiration of such lease he shall readvertise the land for sale in the manner provided in section six hereof. If no bids for the purchase of the land are received on the date of the second advertised sale, then the secretary of state shall submit the matter to the executive council, and they may either order the land reappraised in the manner provided in section four hereof, and then advertised and sold in the manner provided in section six hereof, or if they deem it advisable, they may authorize the secretary of state to sell the land for less than the appraised value. In such event the secretary of state shall readvertise the land for sale in the manner provided in section six hereof, and such advertisement shall also state that the land will be sold to the highest bidder without restrictions as to the appraised value. [31 G. A., ch. 212, § 7.]

SEC. 2900-a9. Deed or patent. When, upon full compliance with the conditions of this act, any person shall become entitled to a deed or patent for any land, a deed or patent shall thereupon be executed and delivered to such person by the governor, on behalf of the state, duly attested with the seal of the state attached thereto, which deed shall, in addition to the usual formalities, also recite the name of the party making application to have the land surveyed, appraised and sold, the date and the amount of the appraisement, the name of the party making final payment and entitled to a deed therefor, whether as bona fide occupant or as highest bidder, and also that such deed is given for the purpose of conveying such title and interest in the land as the state may at the time own and possess, and has the right to convey. A record of such conveyance shall be made and kept by the clerk of the state land office of the secretary of state. [31 G. A., ch. 212, § 8.]

SEC. 2900-a10. Previous survey. Whenever any such land shall be found to have been previously surveyed under and by virtue of any order of a court of record, and the record of such survey has been duly made and preserved, then and in that event, in the discretion of the secretary of state, a duly certified transcript of such record, together with the field notes accompanying the same, if obtainable, may be filed with the clerk of the state land office in the office of secretary of state, and when so filed shall obviate the necessity for any further survey of such land except when such survey becomes necessary for the purpose of execution of conveyance thereof, and the record of such transcript, when filed, shall constitute the official survey of such land. [31 G. A., ch. 212, § 9.]

SEC. 2900-a11. Boundary commission. If in any proceeding contemplated by the provisions of this act, it shall become necessary to determine the boundary line between the state of Iowa and either of the states adjoining, the matter shall then be at once referred to the executive council, who shall thereupon proceed to confer with the proper authority of such adjoining state, and if the coöperation of the proper authority of such adjoining state shall be obtained, then the executive council shall appoint a commission of three disinterested, competent persons, who shall, in conjunction with the parties acting for such adjoining state, have authority to ascertain and locate the true boundary line between the state of Iowa and such adjoining state, so far as the particular land under consideration at the time is concerned. The report of the commissioners with a statement of their findings shall be submitted to the executive council, who shall file the same with the clerk of the state land office in the office of the secretary of state. The line so ascertained and located shall constitute the true and permanent boundary line between the state of Iowa and such other state to the extent such line shall be so ascertainable and located. [31 G. A., ch. 212, § 10.]

SEC. 2900-a12. How constituted—compensation. The members of the commission shall be selected with reference to their fitness for the duties required and at least one of them shall be a competent surveyor and civil engineer. They shall receive for their services such amount as the executive council may deem reasonable, to be certified by the executive council to the auditor of state, who shall draw his warrant for the amount, and the same shall be paid out of the general fund. [31 G. A., ch. 212, § 11.]

SEC. 2900-a13. Purchase money refunded on failure of title. If the grantee of the state, or his successors, administrators, or assigns, shall be deprived of the land conveyed by the state under this act by the final decree of a court of record for the reason that the conveyance by the state passed no title whatever to the land therein described, because title thereto had previously for any reason been vested in others, then the money so paid the state for the said land shall be refunded by the state to the person or persons entitled thereto, provided the said grantee, or his successors, administrators or assigns, shall file a certified copy of the transcript of the said final decree with the executive council within one year from the date of the issuance of such decree, and shall also file satisfactory proof with the executive council that the action over the title to the land was commenced within ten years from the date of the issuance of patent or deed by the state. The amount of money to be refunded under the provisions of this section shall be certified by the executive council to the auditor of state, who shall draw his warrant therefor, and the same shall be paid out of the general fund. [31 G. A., ch. 212, § 12.]

SEC. 2900-a14. Sales and leases for cash. All sales and leases of land under the provisions of this act shall be for cash. All money received for such sales and leases shall be paid into the state treasury by the secretary of state. [31 G. A., ch. 212, § 13.]

SEC. 2900-a15. Expenses of survey, appraisement and advertising—how paid. The expenses of the survey and the appraisement, the expenses of the secretary of state or the clerk of the state land office in making the trip into the county to select the commissioners to appraise the land, the expenses of advertising and readvertising for sale of the land, and the expenses of reappraising whenever such reappraisement is deemed necessary, shall be certified by the secretary of state to the auditor of state, who shall draw his warrant for the amount, and the same shall be paid out of the general fund. [31 G. A., ch. 212, § 14.]

SEC. 2900-a16. Lands in possession of person or corporation for ten or more years—how sold. Provided, however, if any lands in the present or in any former channel of any navigable river, or island therein, or any lands formed by accretion or avulsion in consequence of the changes of the channel of any such river, have been for ten years or more in the possession of any person, company or corporation, or of his or its grantors or predecessors in interest under a bona fide claim of ownership, and the person, company or corporation so in possession, or his or its grantors or predecessors in interest, have paid state or county taxes upon said lands for a period of five years, and have in good faith and under bona fide claim of title made valuable improvements thereon, and also in any other case where, in the judgment of the executive council, the person in possession of any land subject to the provisions of this act, has, in equity and good conscience, a substantial interest therein, then the said lands shall be sold to the person, company or corporation so in possession thereof as hereinafter provided. [31 G. A., ch. 212, § 15.]

SEC. 2900-a17. Notice — action to determine title and value — patent. When any person, company or corporation so in possession of any such lands shall give to the secretary of state written notice of his or its claim, or whenever the executive council shall deem it advisable, it shall be the duty of the attorney-general to bring an action in equity, in the district court of the county in which said lands are situated, against the party in possession thereof to determine the title of the state to such lands, and the value thereof, exclusive of improvements made thereon by the occupant or by his or its grantors or predecessors in interest. If the person, company or corporation in possession of such land shall, after the court has determined the value thereof as herein provided, tender to the secretary of state the amount adjudged to be the value of said lands, exclusive of improvements made thereon by the occupant or by his or its grantors or predecessors in interest, a deed or patent of such land shall be executed by the governor, attested by the secretary of state, and delivered to the person, company or corporation making such tender, as provided by law. If the person, company or corporation so in possession shall fail to pay to the state the amount so adjudged within six months after the final determination of the action so brought by the state, then said lands shall be subject to the other provisions of this act. [31 G. A., ch. 212, § 16.]

SEC. 2900-a18. Applications under former law — deposit money refunded. All applications for the purchase of any such lands, filed under the provisions of chapter one hundred eighty-five of the acts of the thirtieth general assembly, shall, if the applicants so desire, stand as applications under this act, and such land shall, unless the same fall within the provisions of sections fifteen and sixteen hereof, be appraised and sold as herein provided. If the land described in any application is covered by the provisions of sections fifteen and sixteen of this act, and notice thereof is given to the secretary of state as provided in section sixteen hereof, no deed or patent of such land, or any part thereof, shall be executed or issued until the title thereto shall have been established by the court as herein provided. If the party making such application, or his assignee, does not desire to prosecute his application, or if he does not purchase the land under this act, then all of the money deposited by him with the secretary of state under the provisions of chapter one hundred eighty-five of the acts of the thirtieth general assembly shall be repaid to said applicant by the secretary of state; and if any part of the money so deposited has been expended by the secretary of state, then the amount so expended shall be certified by the secretary of state to the auditor of state, who shall draw his warrant upon the general fund in favor of the person entitled thereto. [31 G. A., ch. 212, § 17.]

CHAPTER 2-B.

OF MEANDERED LAKES AND LAKE BEDS.

SECTION 2900-a19. Survey and sale authorized—canals. The executive council of the state is hereby authorized and empowered to survey the meandered lakes and lake beds within this state, and sell the same as hereinafter provided, and to determine what lakes shall be maintained as the property of the state and what meandered lake beds belonging to the state may be drained, improved, demised or sold, and to grant authority to construct, equip and maintain canals between any of such lakes so maintained, where the public convenience requires it, said grant to be for such time and upon such terms as it may determine. [32 G. A., ch. 196; 30 G. A., ch. 186, § 1.]

The purchaser of a lake bed from the state may be assessed for the benefits accruing to his property included within a drainage district. Jackson v. Board of Supervisors, 140 N. W. 849.

SEC. 2900-a20. Signed statements—survey—report. Upon the presentation to the executive council of a statement signed by not less than fifty freeholders, twenty of whom shall be actual residents of the township or townships in which said lake or lake beds are situated, of any county that any meandered lake or lake bed in such county is detrimental to the public health or the general welfare of the citizens of the county, and that it is unwise to maintain such meandered lake or lake bed as a permanent body of water, and that the interest of the state will be subserved by draining and improving such lake bed, the governor shall, within thirty days after the receipt of such statement, appoint a competent engineer who shall at once examine the situation and condition of such lake or lake bed, make a survey and plat thereof, and ascertain whether its location is such that it can be drained and improved, and make a full report to the executive council of the area and depth of water in the lake and of its general physical condition, which report shall be accompanied by his plat, field notes and profile of his survey. [30 G. A., ch. 186, § 2.]

SEC. 2900-a21. Hearing—commissioner—notice. Upon receipt of the report of the engineer, the executive council shall determine whether such lake or lake bed shall be maintained and preserved as the property of the state, or whether the same shall be drained, improved and the land included within the meander lines thereof sold in the manner hereinafter specified; and to that end they may hear evidence upon any question involved in such determination at such time and place within the county, or within the counties if more than one, as may be fixed by the council, and may appoint a commissioner to take evidence in the county or counties, if more than one, in which the lake or lake bed is located, or at such other place or places within the state as may be directed by the executive council; and notice of the time and place of hearing by the council or by such commissioner shall be published once each week for four consecutive weeks in some newspaper within the county, or in a newspaper within each of the counties if more than one, where the lake or lake bed is located, the last publication being at least ten days prior to the day fixed for such hearing. The compensation of such commissioner shall be fixed by the executive council, which compensation and the cost of the publication of such notice shall be paid from the state treasury upon the order of the council. [30 G. A., ch. 186, § 3.]

SEC. 2900-a22. Preservation or sale—drainage. If the executive council shall determine that such lake or lake bed ought not to be drained, demised or sold, the same shall be kept and maintained as the property of the state for the benefit of the general public. If the executive council shall determine that it is to the interest of the state and the general public that the lake or lake bed, as to which the statement is presented, be drained, improved, demised or sold, it may permit the same to be drained under the provisions of the drainage law of the state, and the land included within the meander lines of such lake, which belongs to the state, shall bear its just proportion of the expense of draining such lake and shall be assessed for such expense in the same manner as the lands of private individuals are permitted to be assessed under the drainage laws of the state. [30 G. A., ch. 186, § 4.]

SEC. 2900-a23. Power to lease, sell and convey—deed or patent. Whenever the executive council shall determine that any lake or lake bed within the state should be drained, improved, demised or sold, it shall have the right, either before or after such lake or lake bed is drained, to sell and convey by deed or patent the land lying within the meander lines of such lake or lake bed and which belongs to the state; and express authority is hereby given to the executive council to make such sale or sales for and in behalf of the state and to execute and deliver to the purchaser of such land the necessary deed or patent to insure to him title thereto, which deed or patent shall be executed by the governor in behalf of the state, and have the seal of the state attached thereto. But no sale of any of the lands composing any of the lake beds of the state shall be made by the executive council until a complete survey thereof has been made and the same subdivided to correspond with the government subdivisions of public land. Any land owned by the state of Iowa within the high-water lines of any nonnavigable stream or lake and also any lands within the bed of any lake bed authorized to be drained under the provisions of this chapter may be leased by the executive council in its discretion, until otherwise disposed of, the rental to be paid into the general funds of the state. [35 G. A., ch. 260, § 1.] [30 G. A., ch. 186, § 5.]

SEC. 2900-a24. Appraisement. After such lake or lake bed has been surveyed and the land composing the same subdivided as hereinbefore required, and a plat of such survey filed with the secretary of state, and the county auditor of the county in which said lake or lake bed is situated, the lands belonging to the state which lie within the meander lines of the original government survey, and composing the lake beds, shall be appraised by a commission appointed by the governor, consisting of three disinterested freeholders of the state, one of whom shall be a resident of the county in which the land is situated, who shall examine and appraise said land, and return a written report of such appraisement to the governor, which report shall be filed in the office of the secretary of state. [30 G. A., ch. 186, § 6.]

SEC. 2900-a25. Sale—rights of abutting landowners. That the law as it appears in section twenty-nine hundred-a twenty-five of the supplement to the code, 1907, be and the same is hereby repealed, and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"After the report of the appraisers has been received and filed in the office of the secretary of state, the executive council shall offer the land belonging to the state and composing such lake bed, and included in such survey and appraisement, for sale, and the persons owning lands abutting upon such lake bed and contiguous to lands owned by the state therein, shall have the first right to purchase the lands offered for sale by the state, in an amount sufficient to make the lands owned by them which abut upon the lake or lake bed and are contiguous to lands of the state, conform to the smallest government subdivision of public lands, at the price fixed by the appraisers. The option to purchase by abutting landowners shall terminate ninety days after the date of filing the appraisers' report in the office of the secretary of state. All other lands included in such survey and composing the lake bed belonging to the state, which may be sold under the provisions hereof, shall be sold for the highest price obtainable; but no sale of any of said land shall be made at less than the appraised value thereof, and the land within no lake bed shall be sold, under the provisions of this section, for an amount less than the aggregate expense incurred or authorized by the state for surveying, appraising, draining and other expenses on account of said lake or lake bed." [33 G. A., ch. 191, § 1.] [32 G. A., ch. 197; 30 G. A., ch. 186, § 7.]

SEC. 2900-a26. Cash sales—expenses. All sales of land under this act, except as otherwise provided in section seven[1] of this act, shall be for cash, and the purchase price thereof shall be paid to the secretary of state and by him paid over to the state treasurer. All expenses of the survey of the lakes and lake beds herein provided for and the appraisement thereof, and all assessments made against the lands belonging to the state for draining such lakes or lake beds, shall be audited by the executive council and by it certified to the auditor of state and paid out of the general fund of the state treasury upon the warrant of the auditor of state. [30 G. A., ch. 186, § 8.]

SEC. 2900-a27. Net proceeds. After deducting all costs and expenses connected with the survey, appraisement, drainage and sale of said lands, the net proceeds derived from the sale thereof shall be transmitted by the treasurer of state to the county treasurer of the county in which the land is situated, and the county treasurer to whom such proceeds are transmitted shall execute his receipt in duplicate for the same to the treasurer of state, and one of such receipts shall be filed in the office of the county auditor in the county where the land is located. The money received by the county treasurer shall be placed to the credit of the county road fund and expended under the direction of the board of supervisors in the same manner as other road funds. [30 G. A., ch. 186, § 9.]

CHAPTER 2-C.

OF ISLANDS IN THE WATERS OF THE STATE.

SECTION 2900-a28. Sale or lease authorized. That the executive council of the state be, and it is hereby, authorized and empowered to sell, convey, lease or demise any of the islands belonging to the state which are within the meandered banks of rivers in the state, and to execute and deliver a patent or lease thereof. Provided that nothing in this act shall be construed to apply to islands in the Mississippi or Missouri rivers. [30 G. A., ch. 187, § 1.]

SEC. 2900-a29. Survey—appraisement—sale advertised—written bids. Before a sale of any island is made under the provisions of section one hereof, the executive council shall cause a survey and plat of such island to be made, showing its location and area, and the plat and notes of such survey shall be filed with the secretary of state. The land composing the island shall then be appraised by a commission appointed by the governor, consisting of three disinterested freeholders of the state, who shall report their appraisement to the executive council. The sale of the island shall then be advertised once each week for four consecutive weeks in some newspaper of general circulation published in the county where the island is located, and proof of such publication filed with the executive council. The sale shall be made upon written bids addressed to the executive council of the state, and the advertisement shall fix the time when such bids will be received and opened. All bids shall be opened by the executive council at the time fixed, and the island may thereupon be sold to the highest bidder and at not less than its appraised value. [30 G. A., ch. 187, § 2.]

SEC. 2900-a30. Lease—written bids. If it shall be deemed expedient to lease any such island, a lease thereof may be made upon written bids addressed to the executive council, and the island proposed to be leased shall be surveyed and platted, and notice of the leasing thereof and of the receiving and opening of bids shall be published, in the manner provided in section two hereof, but no appraisement shall be necessary. Upon the opening of the bids received by the executive council it may make a lease of such island to the highest bidder for such term as is deemed advisable. [30 G. A., ch. 187, § 3.]

SEC. 2900-a31. Sales and leases for cash—expenses. All sales and leases must be for cash, and the money received therefor shall be paid into the state treasury. All expenses incurred in making the survey, plat, appraisement, sale or lease of any such island shall be certified by the executive council to the auditor of state, who shall draw his warrant upon the state treasury for the amount, and the same shall be paid from the general fund. [30 G. A., ch. 187, § 4.]

SEC. 2900-a32. Patent or lease. When any sale or lease of any island belonging to the state is made by the executive council as herein provided, the governor shall execute and deliver to the purchaser or lessee a patent or a lease thereof, as the case may be, duly attested by the seal of the state of Iowa. [30 G. A., ch. 187, § 5.]

CHAPTER 3.

OF PERPETUITIES AND GIFTS.

SECTION 2901. Disposition of property.

A railroad lease for a long term of years is not void under the statutory provisions against perpetuities. Sioux City Terminal R. & W. Co. v. Trust Co., 82 Fed. 124; First Nat. Bank v. Sioux City Terminal R. & W. Co., 69 Fed. 441.

A restraint on alienation in violation of the statutory provision is invalid; but the language relied on as imposing such condition will be so construed if possible as to make it consistent with the grant. Hubbird v. Goin, 137 Fed. 822.

A lease for any number of years is not in violation of the statute of perpetuities, for the lessor is not thereby precluded from disposing of the property, nor the lessee from assigning the lease, and by uniting in a conveyance the lessor and lessee may convey both the fee and the leasehold interest. In re Hubbell Trust, 135–637, 113 N. W. 512.

Where real property is devised in fee simple and without condition, a restraint on alienation thereof is invalid. In re Estate of Ogle, 146–33, 124 N. W. 758.

SEC. 2903. Property in trust.

A bequest to the permanent school fund of a particular county held valid. Chapman v. Newell, 146–415, 125 N. W. 324.

SEC. 2904-a. Acceptance of gifts, devises, or bequests authorized. Gifts, devises or bequests of property, real or personal, made to any state institution for purposes not inconsistent with the objects of such institution, may be accepted by its governing board, and such board may exercise such powers with reference to the management, sale, disposition, investment or control of property so given, devised or bequeathed, as may be deemed essential to its preservation and the purposes for which the gift, devise or bequest was made. [31 G. A., ch. 144.]

CHAPTER 4.

OF THE TRANSFER OF PERSONAL PROPERTY.

SECTION 2905. Conditional sales—recording.

Where a cash register was sold with a condition that the title should not pass to the purchaser until payment therefor was made, and there was no recorded instrument evidencing such sale, held that an attachment levied on the register and other property of the purchaser took priority over the title of the seller. National Cash Register Co. v. Broeksmit, 103–271, 72 N. W. 526.

A reservation of the title to the property by the vendor without recording is not valid as against a subsequent mortgagee without notice, although the subsequent mortgage is not recorded. Union Bank v. Creamery Package Mfg. Co., 105–136, 74 N. W. 921.

Prior to the enactment of this statutory provision, it was held that an innocent purchaser of the property from one in possession under a contract for conditional sale acquired no title thereto as against the original owner, unless the transaction was fraudulent. And under the statute, if the instrument is duly acknowledged and recorded, the purchaser acquires no title as against the original vendor, although the vendee has made an absolute contract to pay for the property, and has given notes for part of the purchase price. National Cash Register Co. v. Zangs, 127–710, 104 N. W. 360.

The instrument should be signed by the vendor or lessor; this is the plain provision of the statute. National Cash Register Co. v. Schwab, 111–605, 82 N. W. 1011.

This section refers to sales which are to take effect on a condition to be performed by the vendee, and not to those conditioned on performance of some agreement by the vendor. Davis Gasoline Engine Works Co. v. McHugh, 115–415, 88 N. W. 948.

A conditional sale, such as is referred to in this section, involves delivery to the vendee as owner with reservation to the vendor of the title only for the purpose of security. Where the contract provides that there shall be no delivery until payment, the mere fact that the agent of the seller gives possession to the buyer for a temporary purpose does not bring the case within the provisions of the statute. Possession cannot be relied on as sufficient evidence of title. Gaar v. Nichols, 115–223, 88 N. W. 382.

To constitute a conditional sale, within the terms of the statute as to recording instruments evidencing such sale, there must be a delivery of possession to the purchaser with the intention of passing immediate ownership, subject only to the reservation of title to the seller as security for the purchase money. If the contract is conditional as to the transfer of ownership to the vendee, so that, on his failure to perform the condition no right as owner has passed to him, and no definite obligation to pay the purchase price has accrued, then the transaction is not a conditional sale, within the meaning of the statute. In such a case the vendee has only an executory and conditional agreement for purchase, and until he exercises his right under such agreement, he remains merely a bailee. Donnelly v. Mitchell, 119–432, 93 N. W. 369.

The fact that the purchaser from the conditional vendee is at the time of advancing the money already in possession will not defeat his right to protection as against an unrecorded conditional sale. Rock Island Plow Co. v. Maynard Sav. Bank, 123–640, 99 N. W. 298.

The seller of goods under a contract of conditional sale, reserving the title until the goods are paid for, may by intervention reclaim the goods before the performance of the condition from an assignee for the benefit of creditors, without previous demand. In re Assignment of Wise, 121–359, 96 N. W. 872.

In such case, if a note has been given to the seller for the purchase price, the value of the goods reclaimed by him should be credited thereon, and the balance may be proved as a claim against the insolvent estate. Under such circumstances the recording of the instrument of conditional sale is immaterial. Ibid.

An unrecorded instrument of conditional sale being void as against the creditors of the buyer without notice, the property sold passes to the buyer's trustees in bankruptcy. In re Tweed, 131 Fed. 355.

While a general creditor having no lien upon the property is not protected by the recording act, the assignee in bankruptcy may assert the claims of such creditor against the mortgagee. The provisions of the bankrupt act preserve for the equal benefit of all the creditors of the bankrupt the same rights in and to property held by him that any one of them might have acquired therein by purchase from, or seizure and sale under, judicial process against him if bankruptcy proceedings had not ensued. In re Smith, 132 Fed. 301.

The seller of personal property under an unrecorded contract of conditional sale cannot, by seizure of the property for non-payment prior to the recording of a mortgage given by the purchaser, put himself into the position of a subsequent purchaser without notice. Swayne v. Tillotson, 148–501, 127 N. W. 667.

A trustee in bankruptcy succeeds only to the right of the bankrupt in the property owned or claimed by him at the time of the bankruptcy, and in cases unaffected by fraud, takes subject to the conditions of sale to the bankrupt, although the instrument is not recorded. In re Hager, (D. C.) 166 Fed. 972.

The word "creditors" means lien creditors, and knowledge of the unrecorded instrument before a lien is obtained defeats any preferential rights thereunder. Nauman Co. v. Bradshaw, (C. C. A.) 193 Fed. 350.

Therefore, an unrecorded instrument of conditional sale is valid as against the trustee in bankruptcy of the conditional vendee. Ibid.

Section applied. Thomson v. Smith, 111–718, 83 N. W. 789.

Before a subsequent purchaser can be heard to question the validity of an unrecorded instrument of sale, he must show not only that he is a subsequent purchaser but that he became so without notice of the conditional sale. The burden is on him to prove such facts. Zacharia v. Cohen Co., 140–682, 119 N. W. 136.

SEC. 2906. Sales or mortgages—recording.

Change of possession: It is the retention of actual possession by the vendor or mortgagor without the recording of the written instrument evidencing the transaction which renders it invalid as to subsequent levy of attachment or execution, and in case of property not capable of immediate actual delivery the question is not to what extent there has been a manual act of transfer from the vendor to the vendee, but whether, at the time of the levy, the vendor still retains the possession which had previously been in him as owner of the property. Peycke v. Hazen, 119–641, 93 N. W. 568.

Where there has been a change of possession a recorded instrument of sale is not necessary to defeat a subsequent levy on the property as belonging to the vendor. Leader v. Farmers' Loan & Trust Co., 144–180, 122 N. W. 833.

Change in possession to constitute such notice as will obviate the necessity of recording must be such as to indicate a change of ownership. Brown-Camp Hdw. Co. v. Hawthorne, 154–456, 135 N. W. 75.

Possession in third person: This section does not apply where the property at the time of sale or mortgage is not in the possession of the vendor or mortgagor. Possession may be taken by symbolical delivery, as by the turning over of the key to the premises where the property is kept. Frank v. Levi, 110–267, 81 N. W. 459.

Where the vendor of household goods who resided in another state, the bill of sale not being recorded, rented a room in the place in this state where she intended to reside and stored the goods therein, held that the goods were in her possession and therefore subject to attachment by an officer levying execution thereon under a judgment against her, and not in the possession of the person from whom the room was rented so as to render recording unnecessary. Young v. Evans, 118–144, 92 N. W. 111.

Fraud: Under the circumstances of a particular case, held that mortgagees used reasonable dispatch in causing their mortgages to be filed for record and that therefore they were not guilty of fraud, although the mortgages were not recorded before credit was extended to the mortgagor. Spencer Co. v. Papach, 103–513, 70 N. W. 748, 72 N. W. 665.

Withholding from record does not alone render the mortgage fraudulent, nor is it fraudulent to provide in the mortgage that the mortgagor shall retain possession, sell at retail and keep up the stock. Ward v. Parker, 128–124, 103 N. W. 104.

The taking of a mortgage upon property worth much more than the amount of the debt secured does not of itself render the mortgage void. Ibid.

The act of a creditor in withholding from record a chattel mortgage securing his debt, by agreement with the mortgagor, until the bankruptcy of the latter, while it may render the mortgage invalid as a lien as against subsequent creditors without notice, does not of itself affect his right to prove his debt in bankruptcy nor subordinate it to the claims of subsequent creditors. In re Ewald, 135 Fed. 168.

Who protected: A mortgagee under a mortgage to secure a preëxisting debt is not protected against one who has an equitable interest or right in the property anterior to the mortgage. Flannigan v. Althouse, 56–513, 9 N. W. 381; Meyer v. Evans, 66–179, 23 N. W. 386.

Where the mortgagee on the execution of the mortgage to secure an antecedent debt grants an extension of time on the debt secured he becomes entitled to protection under the recording laws. Union Bank v. Creamery Package Mfg. Co., 105–136, 74 N. W. 921.

A person cannot unlawfully seize the mortgaged property and then transform himself into an innocent purchaser thereof by an ex parte cancellation of a debt due him from the owner. Iowa Loan Co. v. Kimball Piano Co., 124–150, 99 N. W. 576.

Levy of attachment or execution gives priority over unrecorded chattel mortgages. The rule is otherwise as to real property. Albia State Bank v. Smith, 141–255, 119 N. W. 608.

One who acquires a lien on property by an equitable levy under code § 4089 is protected against a prior sale of the property of which he has no notice by record or otherwise. Rankin v. Schultz, 141–681, 118 N. W. 383.

The owner of an invalid or unrecorded first mortgage cannot by seizure of the property thereunder put himself in the position of a subsequent purchaser without notice as against an unrecorded second mortgage. Swayne v. Tillotson, 148–501, 127 N. W. 667.

As between the parties and against those who are not protected by the recording laws, the property intended to be mortgaged may be identified by parol evidence notwithstanding the description is so imperfect as not to impart record notice. Ibid.

An assignee for the benefit of creditors is not a subsequent purchaser entitled to protection against an unrecorded chattel mortgage. Gluck Co. v. Therme, 154–201, 134 N. W. 438.

A bill of sale, in effect a mortgage, executed four months before an act of bankruptcy, must be recorded to be effectual as against the trustee in bankruptcy of the vendor. In re Burlage, (D. C.) 169 Fed. 1006.

Existing creditors: Failure to record a mortgage will not render it invalid as to a creditor whose claim antedates the giving of the mortgage. Garner v. Fry, 104–515, 73 N. W. 1079.

A mortgagee whose mortgage is not recorded until after the death of the mortgagor is postponed to the claims of the prior creditors, and the administrator of the mortgagor in the interest of such creditors whose claims have been filed with him, may subject the property to the payment of such claims in priority to the lien of the mortgagee. Blackman v. Baxter, 125–118, 100 N. W. 75.

To entitle a creditor to protection against an unrecorded sale it must appear that he acquired a lien by attachment or execution levy or otherwise without notice of such sale. Orr v. Kenworthy, 143–6, 121 N. W. 539.

Notice to the sheriff before levy is sufficient to charge the creditor with knowledge. Ibid.

The recording statute has no application where the actual possession passes to the person who claims title under sale. Ibid.

Actual notice: Notice to an agent, even though by information brought to his knowledge before the beginning of his agency, will be presumed to have been retained for a reasonable time. McClelland v. Saul, 113–208, 84 N. W. 1034.

Priority in recording is not material. The question under the recording act is whether the mortgage prior in time is recorded before rights of others without notice thereof have accrued. Nicholson v. Aney, 127–278, 103 N. W. 201.

An attaching creditor taking with actual notice is not protected against an unrecorded mortgage. Notice is sufficient if such as to put a reasonable man upon inquiry which would certainly lead to the knowledge or discovery of the rights of the mortgagee. Aultman & Taylor Mach. Co. v. Kennedy, 114–444, 87 N. W. 435.

The burden is on the party claiming as against an unrecorded chattel mortgage to show that he took without notice. Diemer v. Guernsey, 112–393, 83 N. W. 1047.

One who takes a mortgage from one in possession acquires priority over a vendee of the property under a prior sale which is not recorded, in the absence of actual notice of such sale. Martin v. Lesan, 129–573, 105 N. W. 996.

The burden is upon the vendee in such case to show actual notice to the mortgagee. Ibid.

A creditor whose claim antedates the execution of the mortgage must obtain a lien as by attachment or other levy upon the mortgaged property before notice actual or constructive of the mortgage in order to be protected against it on account of failure to record. Murphy v. Murphy, 126–57, 101 N. W. 486.

A mortgagee accepting his mortgage with knowledge of a condition imposed for the benefit of other mortgagees is bound by such condition and cannot question the validity of the prior mortgage. First National Bank v. Reid, 122–280, 98 N. W. 107.

Description: A defective description may be cured by a subsequent delivery of the property to the mortgagee as against persons who have not acquired any right or interest before such delivery. Kelley v. Andrews, 102–119, 71 N. W. 251.

Where the chattel mortgage described several mares "and all increase of said mares and the increase of the increase," held that such description included future increase of the animals described and not merely the increase in existence at the time of the execution of the mortgage. Hopkins Fine Stock Co. v. Reid, 106–78, 75 N. W. 656.

In determining whether particular articles are covered by a chattel mortgage on a stock of goods under the head of furniture and fixtures, the situation of the parties and all the surrounding circumstances may be considered in determining the intent. Brody v. Chittenden, 106–524, 76 N. W. 1009.

In such case held that jewelers might be asked as witnesses to state whether regulators were regarded by the trade as part of the stock or as fixtures or as tools. Ibid.

The term "furniture" used in a chattel mortgage of a stock of jewelry may cover implements and instruments used in the business. Ibid.

For the purpose of sufficiently describing certain animals to be selected from a large number, it is not sufficient to allege merely characteristics common to the animals to be described and others, and if the essential distinction, such as a peculiar mark or brand, is not established, the description is not sufficient. Packers' National Bank v. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co., 122–503, 98 N. W. 310.

Therefore held that a general description accompanied with the designation of a particular brand was not sufficient to constitute notice, it appearing that the brand had not been placed upon the animals at the time when it was important for the purchaser to know which animals were covered by such mortgage. Ibid.

No sufficient description is afforded by the sweeping statement to the effect that the instrument is intended as a conveyance to the mortgagee of all the property that the mortgagor has, or all that he ever expects to have, and the record of such conveyance does not impart notice to a purchaser of the property. Farmers' & Merchants' Bank v. Stockdale, 121–748, 96 N. W. 732.

The description of property in a chattel mortgage to be sufficient as against third persons having constructive notice only must be such as that the property can be identified by reference to the instrument itself, aided by such inquiries as may be indicated or directed thereby. Ibid.

Where there is no statement as to possession, ownership or location of the property, but only an enumeration of items, the description is insufficient to impart constructive notice. Iowa Lumber Co. v. Cassidy, 107–564, 78 N. W. 210.

Where the mortgage described certain items of property and indicated by its provisions that the mortgagor was the owner of an interest in the property and that it was located in the county where it was recorded, held that the description was sufficient to impart record notice. Preston v. Caul, 109–443, 80 N. W. 522.

In order that the record of a chattel mortgage be constructive notice, the description of the property must be sufficiently definite so that one examining the record may be able from such description to ascertain the property with reasonable certainty. Westinghouse Co. v. McGrath, 131–226, 108 N. W. 449.

And held that a description which gave only the location of the property as within the county and the name of the owner of the property and its general character, but did not specify the particular location nor the possession of such property, was not sufficient. Ibid.

The description in a chattel mortgage of "twenty-five acres of corn hereafter to be grown in Franklin county" held not to be sufficient as against a purchaser without actual notice. Farmers' & Merchants' Bank v. Stockdale, 121–748, 96 N. W. 732.

A description in a chattel mortgage of "one hundred and one yearlings and two-year-olds, branded with the letter F on left hip," held sufficient to warrant the introduction of parol evidence to show that the description was used with reference to certain animals intended by the parties to be covered by the mortgage. Frick v. Fritz, 115–438, 88 N. W. 961.

Whether or not the instrument on its face contains sufficient description to identify any property is always a question for the court; but whether or not, being sufficient in law, it is sufficient to cover the property in dispute where extrinsic evidence shows some mistake in the description is a question for the jury under proper instructions. Livingston v. Stevens, 122–62, 94 N. W. 925.

Whether certain property, corresponding to the description in the mortgage, was intended to be included is for the jury, while it is for the court to say whether the description is sufficient to impart notice of such an intention to third persons. Chipman v. Weiny, 112–702, 84 N. W. 905.

The whole description should be considered in determining whether or not a third person aided by the inquiry which the instrument itself suggests would be enabled to identify the property. It is error for the court to instruct that a defect or inaccuracy in the description is immaterial. Packers' National Bank v. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co., 114–621, 87 N. W. 653.

If the description of animals covered by chattel mortgage does not point out the particular animals with such definiteness that they may be identified, it will be invalid as to a subsequent mortgagee or purchaser who has no actual knowledge of the property intended to be covered. Casady v. German Sav. Bank, 140 N. W. 401.

In such case, the prior mortgagee has no lien upon the funds derived from the sale of the animals intended to be described. Ibid.

Priority: Where sale of machinery was made to a tenant on condition that it should be set up on the premises, and a chattel mortgage given for the purchase price when accepted, held that the chattel mortgage took priority over the landlord's lien, although not recorded until some days after the machinery was set up and accepted. Davis Gasoline Engine Works Co. v. McHugh, 115–415, 88 N. W. 948.

The rights of a chattel mortgagee without notice of a prior unrecorded mortgage are superior to those of the holder of the prior mortgage, although possession thereunder was taken before the recording of the subsequent mortgage, and the prior mortgagee will not be given preference on the ground that he was a creditor. Sheets v. Poff, 123–714, 99 N. W. 573.

Books of account: No record is required of the assignment of books of account which are turned over to the assignee. Preston v. Peterson, 107–244, 77 N. W. 864.

Where possession in such case was delivered to the assignee, held that subsequent possession by the assignor for a temporary purpose would not render the sale invalid for want of recording. Ibid.

When recording necessary: An unrecorded mortgage is not invalid as between the parties. Aultman & Taylor Mach. Co. v. Kennedy, 114–444, 87 N. W. 435.

A contract with reference to a stock of goods which did not provide for any lien thereon or transfer of title thereto, held not to be within the terms of the recording law. Clement v. Swanson, 110–106, 81 N W. 233.

An unrecorded assignment of a chattel mortgage will be held invalid as to subsequent purchasers or mortgagees without notice. Central Trust Co. v. Stepanek, 138–131, 115 N. W. 891.

Waiver of lien: Parol evidence is competent to establish as against the mortgagee in favor of the purchaser of the mortgaged property a system or course of dealing authorized by the mortgagee inconsistent with the provisions of the mortgage, and waiving the mortgagee's lien. Livingston v. Stevens, 122–62, 94 N. W. 925; Livingston v. Heck, 122–74, 94 N. W. 1098.

The assignee of an unrecorded mortgage cannot maintain an action for conversion against one claiming under the mortgagor through a sale made in good faith with consent of the mortgagee and without notice, actual or constructive, of the assignment. Farmer v. Bank of Graettinger, 130–469, 107 N. W. 170.

Residence: The residence of the mortgagor where the chattel mortgage is to be recorded may be different from his legal domicile. Therefore held that a mortgage given by a railroad contractor on property in his possession in a county where he was at work, and in which he actually resided with his family while engaged in performing his contract, was properly recorded in such county, although his residence there was only for a temporary purpose. In re Brannock, 131 Fed. 819.

Recording in another state: Recording of a chattel mortgage in North Dakota, where the mortgagor resides, held to be of no effect with reference to property covered by the mortgage situated in this state. Aultman & Taylor Mach. Co. v. Kennedy, 114–444, 87 N. W. 435.

As a general rule the law of the place where the property is situated at the time of the transfer governs the validity of the mortgage under the recording acts. Ibid.

Wife joining: A mortgage on one of three teams of horses, any one of which might be claimed as exempt from execution, is valid without the joinder of the wife therein. The acts of the husband in executing the mortgage constitute an election to claim one of the other teams rather than the team mortgaged as exempt. Grover v. Younie, 110–446, 81 N. W. 684.

A chattel mortgage on exempt property is not valid unless signed both by the owner and his wife. Nicholson v. Aney, 127–278, 103 N. W. 201.

Conceding that a mortgage of exempt property signed by the husband alone may afterwards be ratified and confirmed by the wife, such ratification will not relate back to the prejudice of intervening credits, lien holders or purchasers. Ibid.

Whether an assignment of wages exempt from execution for a debt of the assignor must be in writing concurred in and signed by the wife of the assignor under the provision of code § 2906 requiring incumbrances of exempt personal property to be so executed, quaere. Peterson v. Ball, 121–544, 97 N. W. 79.

An assignment of exempt earnings without the wife's consent is not prohibited by the requirement that she shall join in chattel mortgage of exempt property. Dowling v. Wood, 125–244, 101 N. W. 113.

SEC. 2911. Mortgagee entitled to possession.

As the mortgagee does not have legal title to the property mortgaged he does not waive his right to foreclose by levying an attachment on the property. Stein v. McAuley, 147–630, 125 N. W. 336.

SEC. 2911-a. Bulk sales of merchandise—notice to creditors. No person, firm, or corporation engaged in the retail or wholesale business of buying and selling merchandise for profit shall at a single transaction, and not in the regular course of business, sell, assign, or deliver the whole, or a major part of his stock in trade unless he shall, not less than three days previous to such sale, assignment, or delivery, send or cause to be sent to his creditors by registered mail, a notice of his intention to make such transfer, assignment or delivery, which notice shall be in writing describing in general terms the property to be sold, assigned, or delivered, and the parties thereto. [34 G. A., ch. 150, § 1.]

SEC. 2911-b. Violation—presumption of fraud. All such sales, assignments, or deliveries of commodities which shall be made without the formalities required by the provisions of section one hereof, will be presumed to be fraudulent and void as against all persons who were creditors of the vendor at the time of such transaction. [34 G. A., ch. 150, § 2.]

SEC. 2911-c. Not applicable to certain transfers. Transfers under this act shall include sales, exchanges and assignments, but nothing in this act shall apply to transfers by or to executors, administrators, receivers, assignees under voluntary assignment for the benefit of the creditors, trustees in bankruptcy or any public officer under judicial process. [34 G. A., ch. 150, § 3.]

CHAPTER 5.

OF REAL ESTATE.

SECTION 2912. Who deemed seized.

The owner of real property is presumed to be in possession thereof until adverse possession has been taken by another. Britt v. Gordon, 132–431, 108 N. W. 319.

The devisee of land of which testator shall die seized acquires no interest in land which the testator before his death has contracted to convey, the vendee having taken possession and not being in default. In such case the vendee has the real title and the testator's interest passing to the devisee is personalty only. In re Estate of Miller, 142–563, 119 N. W. 977.

SEC. 2913. Estate in fee simple.

A fee may be created without the use of the word "heirs," and where a conveyance was made to the wife without limitation in the granting clause, but with a subsequent condition that the property was for her sole use and that she was not to have the privilege of deeding or mortgaging it, held that the granting clause vested in the wife a fee title, and that the condition was void as a restraint upon alienation. Teany v. Mains, 113–53, 84 N. W. 953.

The fact that words of inheritance are not used does not affect the rights of the grantee where the habendum clause expressly describes such right as one which is to exist forever. Baker v. Kenney, 145–638, 124 N. W. 901.

It is not necessary in order to convey an estate in fee simple that the word "heirs" appear in the granting clause. Husted v. Rollins, 156–546, 137 N. W. 462.

Nevertheless, the absence of words of inheritance may be significant, for although under the following section every conveyance is presumed to pass all the interest of the grantor, it is not therein provided that every conveyance shall create an estate in fee simple. Ibid.

SEC. 2914. Conveyance passes grantor's interest.

A remainderman who has a possibility coupled with an interest which may at some future time ripen into an estate, has such interest as will support a conveyance by him to another. McDonald v. Bayard Sav. Bank, 123–413, 98 N. W. 1025.

It will be presumed that every conveyance passes all the interest of the grantor therein unless the contrary intent can reasonably be inferred from the terms used. Husted v. Rollins, 156–546, 137 N. W. 462.

SEC. 2915. After-acquired interest.

Under a warranty deed a title subsequently acquired by the grantor inures to the grantee. Hays v. Marsh, 123–81, 98 N. W. 604.

The grantor subsequently acquiring an outstanding title cannot question the conveyance which purports to convey the entire title to the property. So held where the owner of a life estate gave a mortgage purporting to cover the fee and subsequently by inheritance acquired a fee title to the property. Whitley v. Johnson, 135–620, 113 N. W. 550.

The grantor in a deed purporting to convey a fee simple title is estopped from subsequently asserting any interest in the property as heir. Irish v. Steeves, 154–286, 134 N. W. 634.

SEC. 2916. Adverse possession.

Possession is not essential to the validity of a lease. Beck v. Minnesota & Western Grain Co., 131–62, 107 N. W. 1032.

SEC. 2917. Future estates.

An estate may be created to begin in the future, and the grant of such an estate, while it passes no present title, does pass a present interest. Lewis v. Curnutt, 130–423, 106 N. W. 914.

While estates may be created to commence at a future day, the title is and must be in someone at all times. Wales v. Sammis, 120–293, 94 N. W. 840.

Estates may be created by devise to commence at a future day, and a vested remainder may be supported by an estate for years. Shafer v. Tereso, 133–342, 110 N. W. 846.

SEC. 2918. Declarations of trust.

Express trusts: An express trust cannot be shown by parol evidence. Hays v. Marsh, 123–81, 98 N. W. 604; Ostenson v. Severson, 126–197, 101 N. W. 789.

In the absence of documentary evidence of an express trust it cannot be established. Hoon v. Hoon, 126–391, 102 N. W. 105.

Deeds which recite consideration as paid cannot be shown by parol to create a trust in favor of the grantor as against the grantee. Byerly v. Sherman, 126–447, 102 N. W. 157.

A deed reciting a consideration in hand paid cannot by parol evidence be converted into an instrument creating a trust. Willis v. Robertson, 121–380, 96 N. W. 900.

The requirement that an express trust must be evidenced in writing has no reference to trusts in personal property. In re Estate of Fisher, 128–18, 102 N. W. 797.

A trust of personal property may be established by parol. Merrit v. Torrance, 129–310, 105 N. W. 585.

An agreement by a mortgagee taking title to the property at foreclosure sale that he will reconvey on payment of the amount due under the mortgage amounts to the creation of an express trust which cannot be established by parol. Donaldson v. Empire Loan & Inv. Co., 130–467, 106 N. W. 192.

An agreement to take title by sheriff's deed by way of security for an indebtedness is not an agreement for an express trust which must be in writing, but it gives rise to a resulting or constructive trust. McElroy v. Allfree, 131–112, 108 N. W. 116.

Section applied. Gregory v. Bowlsby, 115–327, 88 N. W. 822.

If the trustee admits the trust or if the parol trust has been fully carried out and executed the statute does not apply. Johnston v. Jickling, 141–444, 119 N. W. 746.

This section does not prevent proof by parol that a conveyance absolute in form was intended between the parties to be a mortgage; and this rule is applicable to one acquiring a legal title from a third person under an arrangement with another who undertakes to pay the purchase price, and for whom the purchase money is advanced by way of a loan. Jones v. Gillett, 142–506, 118 N. W. 314, 121 N. W. 5.

Parol evidence is not admissible to impose a trust upon the title to property transferred by a written instrument. Schurz v. Schurz, 153–187, 128 N. W. 944, 133 N. W. 683.

It is not essential to the validity of a conveyance in trust that it be acknowledged or recorded, or that it be based upon a consideration. Schumacher v. Dolan, 154–207, 134 N. W. 624.

An alleged express oral agreement of the wife to take and hold title to property in trust for the husband is not a trust which arises by operation of law and it is not provable except by writing duly executed. Mullong v. Schneider, 155–12, 134 N. W. 957.

Resulting trust: The theory of a resulting trust is that he who supplies the purchase money intends it to be for his own benefit and not for that of another and that the conveyance is taken in the name of another as a matter of convenience or arrangement between them. If two or more advance the price and the deed is taken in the name of one only, a trust will result in favor of the other for a share proportionate to the part of the price paid. Payment to raise a trust pro tanto must be for an aliquot part of the property. The burden being on the party alleging the trust to clearly establish it, the evidence must show that payment for an aliquot part was intended. Culp v. Price, 107–133, 77 N. W. 848.

A father paying the purchase price of land, the title being taken in his son's name, has a resulting trust therein unless the money paid is by way of advancement. But before the legal title will be disturbed, the resulting trust must be established by clear and satisfactory evidence, and the presumption that the law raises that the conveyance is by way of advancement must be overcome by proof to the contrary intention. Ibid.

The father's testimony as to his intention is competent in such a case as are also his declarations made at the time. The fact that the son has already been provided for and that the father and other children are left unprovided for may also be taken into account. Ibid.

Evidence that the consideration for a conveyance was to be furnished after it was delivered will not show a resulting trust. Burkhardt v. Burkhardt, 107–369, 77 N. W. 1069.

Where the trustee or other fiduciary buys property in his own name, but with trust funds, a resulting trust arises under the operation or construction of law. Williams v. Williams, 108–91, 78 N. W. 792.

Constructive trusts: An express agreement creating a trust cannot be proven by parol evidence, and the breach of an express promise to hold title for another will not constitute fraud on which a court of equity will build up a constructive trust. Andrew v. Andrew, 114–524, 87 N. W. 494.

An express trust in real estate cannot be established by parol evidence, and the breach of an express trust created by parol as to real estate will not of itself constitute fraud on which a court of equity will build up a constructive trust. Heddleston v. Stoner, 128–525, 105 N. W. 56.

Mere breach of an express promise or refusal on the part of an alleged trustee to execute the trust reposed in him, however reprehensible, will not be sufficient to remove the bar of the statute and allow a trust in realty to be established by parol evidence. Newis v. Topfer, 121–433, 96 N. W. 905.

But this rule does not apply where it is made to appear that fraud has entered into the transaction. Ibid.

While an express trust cannot be established by oral evidence, it is competent to show fraud in a conveyance by taking advantage of confidential relations existing between members of a family so as to give rise to a constructive trust. Gregory v. Bowlsby, 126–588, 102 N. W. 517.

A family arrangement in the settlement of an estate may be established by parol proof to charge the property with a trust in the hands of a member of the family to whom it has been conveyed by other members; but in the absence of confidential relations between the members of the family, it must be made to appear that the grantors were led by fraudulent practices or deception into parting with the title to their respective shares. Burch v. Nicholson, 157– —, 137 N. W. 1066.

Further as to parol evidence to establish a trust in land, see notes to code § 4625 in this supplement.

Testamentary transactions: This provision appears to relate to transactions other than those of a testamentary nature. Moran v. Moran, 104–216, 73 N. W. 617.

Parol evidence is admissible to affix a trust to an unconditional devise only where it shows that the devisee by fraud induced the testator to make the devise on the representation that the devisee would take in trust for another who was the real object of the bounty. Ibid.

SEC. 2919. Conveyances by married women.

This section does not authorize the execution by the wife to the husband of a power of attorney, authorizing him to convey her contingent dower interest in his property. Sawyer v. Biggart, 114–489, 87 N. W. 426.

The wife may control or contract with reference to her property in the same manner as other persons, and held that a quitclaim by the wife to the grantee of her husband claiming under a deed in which the wife did not join was effectual to cut off the wife's contingent right of dower. Fowler v. Chadima, 134–210, 111 N. W. 808.

SEC. 2921. Covenants.

Neither recitals in the granting clause nor covenants of title are binding upon a husband or wife of the owner joining with such owner in the execution of the deed. Irish v. Steeves, 154–286, 134 N. W. 634.

SEC. 2922. Title and possession of mortgagor.

Lawful possession of the premises by the mortgagee can only be obtained by the consent, express or implied, of the mortgagor who is deemed to hold the legal title. Boggs v. Douglass, 105–344, 75 N. W. 185.

The grantor in a conveyance which is found to be a mortgage is entitled to possession and ownership of the crops until the expiration of the statutory period for redemption, after a decree determining the nature of his rights. Harrington v. Foley, 108–287, 79 N. W. 64.

In this state a mortgage does not create an estate, but simply a lien or charge upon the land to secure the debt. Adams v. Holden, 111–54, 82 N. W. 468.

The fact that the mortgagee collects rents at the request of the mortgagor which he applies to the maintenance of the property and the diminution of the mortgage debt, does not charge him with the debts and liabilities of a mortgagee in possession, if his possession is not under contract with or by the consent of the mortgagor. Whitley v. Barnett, 151–487, 131 N. W. 704.

SEC. 2923. Tenancy in common.

Conveyances or devises to two or more create a tenancy in common unless a contrary intent is expressed. Gilmore v. Jenkins, 129–686, 106 N. W. 193.

A conveyance to two or more gives rise to a tenancy in common and not to a general tenancy. Anderson v. Acheson, 132–744, 110 N. W. 335.

A conveyance to husband and wife creates a tenancy in common. Bader v. Dyer, 106–715, 77 N. W. 469.

One of several tenants in common can maintain an action of forcible entry and detainer against a lessee. The possession of one tenant is presumed to be in support of the common title of all. Willis v. Weeks, 129–525, 105 N. W. 1012.

Whether the provisions of this section are applicable to transfers of personal property, quaere. Abegg v. Hirst, 144–196, 122 N. W. 838.

SEC. 2924. Vendor's lien.

The mere taking of a note for the purchase price does not waive the vendor's lien. In order to so operate it must be shown by a clear preponderance of the evidence that such was the express agreement of the vendor. Zook v. Thompson, 111–463, 82 N. W. 930.

The vendor executing a voluntary conveyance without any agreement for a consideration, is not entitled to a vendor's lien for the purchase price. Ostenson v. Severson, 126–197, 101 N. W. 789.

This section has no reference to one who takes property subject to a vendor's lien. Owen v. Higgins, 113–735, 84 N. W. 713.

Under the language of this section as it now stands, the vendor's lien may be enforced against the purchaser of the vendee with notice that the purchase money has not been paid. Hodgson v. Smith, 136–515, 114 N. W. 39.

While there is no specific lien until the right of the vendor to the purchase money is judicially established, yet the right to have a lien established is one which may be enforced against the purchaser with notice. Ibid.

The vendor has an implied lien on the property sold by him and such lien passes to the assignee of the vendor as an incident to the debt. State Bank v. Brown, 142–190, 119 N. W. 81.

SEC. 2924-a. Rule in Shelley's case abolished. The rule or principle of the common law known as the Rule in Shelley's Case is hereby abolished and is declared not to be a part of the law of this state. [32 G. A., ch. 159, § 1.]

SEC. 2924-b. Estate not enlarged. No express devise, bequest or conveyance of an estate for life or other limited estate in real or personal property shall be enlarged or construed to pass any greater estate to the devisee, legatee, or grantee thereof by reason of any devise, bequest or conveyance to the heirs, heirs of the body, children, or issue of such devisee, legatee or grantee, provided that the passage of this act shall not in any manner or under any circumstances be so construed as to impair or affect the vested rights of any person in or to any lands or estates acquired prior to the taking effect hereof. [32 G. A., ch. 159, § 2.]

SEC. 2924-c. Registration of farm names—certificate. Any owner of a farm in the state of Iowa may have the name of his farm, together with a description of his lands to which said name applies, recorded in a register kept for that purpose in the office of the county recorder of the county in which said farm is located, and such recorder shall furnish to such landowner a proper certificate setting forth said name and a description of such lands. That when any name shall have been recorded as the name of any farm in such county, such name shall not be recorded as the name of any other farm in the same county. [34 G. A., ch. 153, § 1.]

SEC 2924-d. Fee. Any person having the name of his farm recorded as provided in this act shall first pay to the county recorder a fee of one dollar, which fee shall be paid to the county treasurer as other fees are paid to the county treasurer by such recorder. [34 G. A., ch. 153, § 2.]

SEC. 2924-e. Transfer of farm may include name. When any owner of a farm, the name of which has been recorded as provided in this act, transfers by deed or otherwise, the whole of such farm, such transfer may include the registered name thereof; but if the owner shall transfer only a portion of such farm, then in that event, the registered name thereof shall not be transferred to the purchaser unless so stated in the deed of conveyance. [34 G. A., ch. 153, § 3.]

SEC. 2924-f. Cancellation—fee. When any owner of a registered farm desires to cancel the registered name thereof, he shall state on the margin of the record of the register of such name the following: "This name is canceled and I hereby release all rights thereunder," which shall be signed by the person canceling such name and attested by the county recorder. That for such latter service the county recorder shall charge a fee of twenty-five cents, which shall be paid to the county treasurer as other fees are paid to the county treasurer by him. [34 G. A., ch. 153, § 4.]

CHAPTER 6.

OF THE CONVEYANCE OF REAL ESTATE.

SECTION 2925. Recording.

Effect of recording: An instrument which is not in fact signed by the grantor nor acknowledged by him is not properly or lawfully recorded and imparts no notice and no one has a right to rely upon the fact that he apparently signed such instrument. Sherod v. Ewell, 104–253, 73 N. W. 493.

In searching the records of titles the searcher should go back of the day and hour at which the evidence of title in the holder in question was filed for record and examine the title with reference to any conveyance and incumbrance by such holder after the date of the conveyance under which he holds title. Higgins v. Dennis, 104–605, 74 N. W. 9.

Therefore, the searcher of title is charged with notice of an incumbrance recorded on the same day as and prior to the record of the conveyance by which title was acquired by the person executing such incumbrance, provided the incumbrance was executed after the actual execution of the conveyance. Ibid.

The law takes no notice of fractions of days with reference to the execution of deeds and mortgages where the order of their execution does not appear. Ibid.

The recordation statutes do not apply to the inchoate right of dower. Smith v. Fuller, 138–91, 115 N. W. 912.

It is not essential to the validity of a deed as between the parties thereto that it be acknowledged or recorded. Schumacher v. Dolan, 154–207, 134 N. W. 624.

Assignments of mortgages: While there is no express provision for recording the assignments of mortgages, an unrecorded assignment will be avoided in favor of subsequent purchasers and existing creditors without notice. Central Trust Co. v. Stepanek, 138–131, 115 N. W. 891.

In general the ownership of an outstanding mortgage of record is immaterial for the purpose of charging a subsequent purchaser of the property; but to protect himself against a subsequent wrongful conveyance of the property by the mortgagor to the mortgagee and by the mortgagee to an innocent purchaser without notice of the assignment, the assignee should have his assignment recorded. James v. Newman, 147–574, 126 N. W. 781.

Memorandum of assignment on the margin of the record of the mortgage is not sufficient to defeat the rights of such subsequent purchaser. To affect him with notice of such assignment it must be duly acknowledged, recorded and indexed as any other instrument of conveyance. Ibid.

While the rights of the mortgagee follow the assignment of the debt secured, the purchaser of paper transferable by indorsement secured by mortgage is not protected by the recording acts. Bunker v. International Harv. Co., 148–708, 127 N. W. 1016.

Subsequent purchasers: An attaching creditor is not a subsequent purchaser for value. An unrecorded deed or other instrument creating a lien will take precedence over a subsequent attachment and a purchaser at judicial sale is bound to take notice of all instruments recorded up to the date of the same. Rea v. Wilson, 112–517, 84 N. W. 539.

Even though an unrecorded mortgage by mistake does not describe the land intended to be covered thereby, still the judgment lien is not entitled to priority over the unrecorded mortgage. Such priority accrues only in favor of the purchaser at judicial sale without notice of the mortgage. Ibid.

An attaching creditor is not a purchaser, but takes only the interest which his debtor had in the land at the time of attachment. Consequently an unrecorded deed or prior equity takes precedence over his attachment. But a purchaser at judicial or sheriff's sale, whether he be the judgment creditor or a stranger, is a purchaser, and is generally protected from prior unrecorded deeds or equities. Bush v. Herring, 113–158, 84 N. W. 1036.

While the recording of a deed is not essential as against an attaching creditor, its delivery is. Parlin, O. & M. Co. v. Daniels, 111–640, 82 N. W. 1015.

An execution purchaser of an heir's interest in realty does not acquire priority over the right existing against the heir to deduct advancements from such interest. Pinckney v. Collie, 114–441, 87 N. W. 406.

A subsequent purchaser is not bound to look beyond the property index for information as to conveyances, and if the index shows none, there is no constructive notice. Koch v. West, 118–468, 92 N. W. 663.

One who pays money for a sheriff's certificate of sale becomes a purchaser entitled to protection under the recording acts. Ibid.

Inadequacy of consideration alone is not sufficient to defeat the claim of one who is otherwise entitled to protection as a purchaser. Ibid.

The term "subsequent purchasers" is used to describe purchasers claiming under a common grantor. One who has commenced an action affecting the title is not, by reason of the provision of code § 3543 relating to lis pendens, entitled to protection as a subsequent purchaser as against an unrecorded deed. Noyes v. Crawford, 118–15, 91 N. W. 799.

A judgment creditor is not a purchaser under the recording act. Foster v. Hobson, 131–58, 107 N. W. 1101.

The assignee of an ordinary judgment stands, as a rule, in no better position than his assignor with reference to unrecorded instruments. But an assignee of a mortgage which has gone to foreclosure may stand in a better position. Raymond v. Whitehouse, 119–132, 93 N. W. 292.

A purchaser from an heir, after a court having jurisdiction has refused probate of a will devising the property purchased to another, takes subject to the subsequent reversal on appeal of the judgment in which probate of the will is refused, and as against the devisee of the will is not a purchaser without notice. Rine v. Wagner, 135–626, 113 N. W. 471.

A wife who has taken a conveyance of property from her husband with knowledge of his fraudulent intent, no matter what her purpose, cannot be taken to be a good faith purchaser, and in such case her right is subject to that of creditors. Carr v. Way, 141–245, 119 N. W. 700.

A decree establishing the right of a party to subject property to his judgment does not render him a purchaser in such sense as to be protected against a prior mortgage. One who claims protection as a subsequent purchaser of real property must have proceeded further than merely to levy an attachment or execution upon the property. Albia State Bank v. Smith, 141–255, 119 N. W. 608.

A person must have become the purchaser of some apparent or real interest of the owner to be protected against the effect of an unrecorded instrument of which he has had no notice. Witmer v. Shreves, 141–496, 120 N. W. 86.

In the absence of notice, the person to whom a purchaser, taking by a conveyance blank as to the grantee, subsequently disposes of the land so held, and with whose name the blank is filled, will hold the title against any equities of the grantor arising out of the failure of the first purchaser to perform the agreement of purchase. Augustine v. Schmitz, 145–591, 124 N. W. 607.

Even if fraud in the original conveyance is shown, an innocent purchaser from the grantee will be preferred in equity to the grantor. Ibid.

Where mortgages are executed on the same day by and to the same parties and filed for record without agreement express or implied as to which is to be superior, the two are to be deemed simultaneous and of equal rank as liens, not only as to the mortgagee but also as to one who claims by assignment of either of such mortgages. Dahlstrom v. Ablieter, 156–187, 135 N. W. 567.

A purchaser at an executor's or administrator's sale takes nothing more than the title held by the deceased and is not entitled to protection as a good faith purchaser under the recording acts. Stephens v. Boyd, 157– —, 138 N. W. 389.

For valuable consideration: A mortgagee in a mortgage executed to secure a preëxisting debt is not a bona fide purchaser entitled to priority of lien over a prior unrecorded mortgage on the property. Smith v. Moore, 112–60, 83 N. W. 813.

The mere fact of failure to record can only be taken advantage of by a creditor who has changed position or extended credit on the strength of apparent ownership in the grantor. Atkinson v. McNider, 130–281, 105 N. W. 504.

Without notice: Although one who takes by quitclaim deed is not an innocent purchaser and is charged with notice of equities, yet one who takes from such purchaser by warranty deed for value is not affected by outstanding equities of which he had no notice. Hannan v. Seidentopf, 113–658, 86 N. W. 44.

The burden of proof is upon the purchaser claiming in hostility to an unrecorded deed to show that he was a purchaser for value without notice. Ibid.

Possession by a tenant is notice, not only of his own rights, but of the rights of the landlord. Ibid.

One who acquires title to property is bound to know not only the rights of those in possession, but also the fact of such possession. Ibid.

A claim of a tenant in common for contribution on account of expenses with reference to the common property is not chargeable against a purchaser of the cotenant's interest without notice, unless by reason of the possession of the tenant who has incurred such expense, notice is implied. Rippe v. Badger, 125–725, 101 N. W. 642.

By acquiescence and silent admission the mortgagee whose mortgage is not recorded tacitly represents to anyone acquiring an interest in the property that the mortgagor is the owner of the title, free from incumbrance, and a subsequent purchaser for a consideration does not have the burden of proving want of actual notice Under such circumstances it is for the mortgagee to show notice to the subsequent purchaser of the prior unrecorded mortgage. Walter v. Brown, 115–360, 88 N. W. 832.

The rule that a person holding a conveyance by quitclaim is bound to take notice of defects in his grantor's title does not apply to a purchaser in good faith from one who takes by conveyance in fraud of creditors. Klay, Admr., v. McKellar, 122–163, 97 N. W. 1091.

SEC. 2926. Acknowledgment.

The unsupported testimony of the person whose acknowledgment is duly certified by a proper officer, that no such acknowledgment was made, is not sufficient to overcome the presumption in favor of the certificate. Swett v. Large, 122–267, 97 N. W. 1104.

Where the grantee takes with record notice of a prior conveyance which he insists was, in fact, only a mortgage, he takes subject to whatever rights in fact passed to the grantee in such prior conveyance, but he is not thereby charged with notice of the unrecorded assignment of the rights of such grantee to another. Lindberg v. Thomas, 137–48, 114 N. W. 562.

In view of the provisions of the recording acts which authorize a vendee to rely upon the public records without production of the grantor's deeds, the creation of an equitable mortgage by deposit of title deeds is not recognized in this state. But as between parties having knowledge, a lien may be created by the deposit of title deeds under an agreement that the person with whom they are deposited shall hold them as security. In re Assignment of Snyder, 138–553, 114 N. W. 615.

A description in a prior mortgage will be sufficient to put a subsequent purchaser of property on inquiry if it is such as to point out to him, by application to existing facts and conditions which are ascertainable on reasonable inquiry, the specific tract intended. Albia State Bank v. Smith, 141–255, 119 N. W. 608.

A subsequent purchaser is bound with knowledge of facts as to which he is put on inquiry by the records. Ibid.

An instrument properly made of record is notice to the world not only of the facts and claims therein expressly set forth but also of all other material facts which an inquiry thereby reasonably suggested would have developed, and such notice is not affected or avoided by variations in names which do not mislead a subsequent purchaser or are of such character as ought not to mislead a purchaser of ordinary prudence and intelligence. Loser v. Plainfield Sav. Bank, 149–672, 128 N. W. 1101.

Subsequent purchasers are charged with notice of recitals in a properly recorded lease which creates an incumbrance in favor of the landlord. Maine v. Constantine, 157– —, 138 N. W. 702.

Constructive notice of a contract creating a lien on the property operates only against a subsequent purchaser in favor of the beneficiary of such contract. It does not charge such subsequent purchaser with notice that he cannot rely upon a covenant of warranty. Schimmelpfenning v. Brunk, 153–177, 132 N. W. 838.

Under the evidence in a particular case, held that one claiming under a deed was charged with notice of a prior conflicting interest. John v Penegar, 139 N. W. 915.

SEC. 2927. Transfer and index books.

The statute makes the transfer book conclusive and it is not necessary to refer to other books where information might be had as to interest of other persons in the property. Berger v. Tracy, 135–597, 113 N. W. 465.

SEC. 2930. Entries of transfers—certificate of council's approval of plats or additions. That section twenty-nine hundred thirty, supplement to the code, 1907, be and the same is hereby repealed and the following is enacted in lieu thereof:

"Whenever a deed of unconditional conveyance of real estate or transcript as provided in section forty-two hundred fifty-nine of the supplement to the code, 1907, is presented, the auditor shall enter in the index book, in alphabetical order, the name of the grantee, and opposite thereto the number of the page of the transfer book on which such transfer is made; and upon the transfer book he shall enter in the proper columns the name of the grantee, the grantor, date and character of the instrument, the description of the real estate, and the number or letter of the plat on which the same is marked; provided, however, no conveyances or plats of additions to any city or town or subdivisions of any part or parcels of lands lying within or adjacent to any city or town in which streets and alleys and other public grounds are sought to be dedicated to public use, or other conveyances in which streets and alleys are sought to be conveyed to such city or town, shall be so entered, unless such conveyances, plats or other instruments have endorsed thereon the approval of the council of such city or town, the certificate of such approval to be made by the city clerk." [35 G. A., ch. 263, § 1.] [27 G. A., ch. 106, § 2; C. '73, § 1951.]

SEC. 2935. Indexes. That section twenty-nine hundred thirty-five of the code be and the same is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

The recorder must keep index books, the pages of which are so divided as to show in parallel columns:

1. Each grantor;
2. Each grantee;
3. The time when the instrument was filed;
4. The date of the instrument;
5. The nature of the instrument;
6. The book and page where the record thereof may be found;
7. The description of the real estate conveyed.

Separate index books shall be kept for mortgages and satisfactions or releases of same, one for those containing descriptions of lots, and one for those containing lands; and separate books for other conveyances of real estate, one for lots, and one for lands. Also he shall keep an index book for powers of attorney and affidavits as provided for in section twenty-nine hundred fifty-seven of the code; all of above indexes to be arranged alphabetically in accordance with section twenty-nine hundred thirty-seven and indexed inversely in name of grantee, and in case of affidavits each and every affidavit filed for record shall be indexed in appropriately ruled columns as follows:

Affidavit.	Concerning Whom.	Concerning Lands in.							Remarks.
		Lot	Blk.	Addition	Town	Sec.	Twp	Rng.

Affiant.	Date of Filing.					Date of Instrument.			Where Recorded.
				Hour
	Month	Day	Year	A. M.	P. M.	Month	Day	Year	Book	Page

SEC. 2936. Indorsement—entries.

A subsequent purchaser is not bound to look beyond the property index for information as to conveyances, and if the index shows none, there is no constructive notice. Koch v. West, 118–468, 92 N. W. 663.

In order to impart constructive notice to third parties of any instrument of transfer by one person to another, the statute contemplates and requires that it be properly acknowledged, recorded and indexed. Therefore an assignment of a mortgage noted on the margin of the record of such mortgage does not constitute constructive notice to a subsequent purchaser from the mortgagee who has taken a conveyance from the mortgagor that such conveyance is in fraud of the rights of an assignee whose assignment is not duly acknowledged and indexed. James v. Newman, 147–574, 126 N. W. 781.

The index gives to the investigator of a title a double check or protection against prior liens,—one by tracing the succession of grantors and grantees or mortgagors and mortgagees by name, and another by the description of the property which appears to have been conveyed or mortgaged. If the name of the mortgagor or mortgagee described be such as to suggest any reasonable possibility of his identity with the person who is tendering another conveyance or mortgage of the same property, the investigator, as a reasonably prudent man, is thereby put on inquiry and bound by notice of every fact which that inquiry, pursued with reasonable diligence, would have brought to his attention. Loser v. Plainfield Sav. Bank, 149–672, 128 N. W. 1101.

SEC. 2938. How recorded.

In matters relating to the record of title one may rely upon the public records as written, and the doctrine of idem sonans is not applicable where the initial letters which govern the indexing are not the same; but that doctrine may be relied on to overcome a difference of spelling in other portions of the name. Boyd v. Boyd, 128–699, 104 N. W. 798.

SEC. 2938-a. Transcript of instruments—certified transcript may be recorded same as original. Any person interested therein may procure from any recorder in this state a transcript of any instrument affecting real estate which is of record in his office. Such transcript shall be certified by the recorder, and the clerk of the district court shall certify under the seal of his office to the signature of such recorder and that he is such officer. A transcript of the record of any instrument affecting real estate, certified as herein provided, shall be entitled to record in the office of the recorder of any other county in this state in which is situated any

SEC. 2938-b. Legalizing release and satisfaction of mortgages. That any release or satisfaction of any mortgage or trust deed or of any instrument in writing creating a lien upon real estate where such release or satisfaction has been recorded in the recorder's office of the county in this state, or upon the margin of the record where such original instrument was recorded and which release or satisfaction was made by any individual, association, copartnership, assignee, corporation or by a resident or foreign executor, administrator, referee, receiver, trustee, guardian or commissioner and which release or satisfaction was executed, filed and recorded prior to January first, nineteen hundred and two, be and the same is hereby legalized, declared valid, legal and binding and of full force and effect, any defects in the execution, acknowledgment, recording, filing or otherwise of such releases or satisfactions to the contrary notwithstanding. [35 G. A., ch. 264, § 1.]

SEC. 2938-c. Not applicable to pending actions. This act shall not affect the rights of parties in any action or suit now pending in any court in this state, nor be applied to or affect any release or satisfaction that has heretofore been passed upon by any court of this state and determined unauthorized, insufficient or invalid. [35 G. A., ch. 264, § 2.]

SEC. 2941. Town lots. The recorder shall index and record all deeds, mortgages and other instruments affecting lots in cities, towns or villages, the plats whereof are recorded, in separate books from those in which other conveyances of real estate are recorded. Where any instrument contains a description of both land, and lots in cities, towns or villages, the plats whereof are recorded, he shall record such instruments in but one record and charge but one fee, but shall index in both land and town lot indexes. [31 G. A., ch. 145; C. '73, § 1947; R. § 2241.]

SEC. 2942. Acknowledgment of conveyances or incumbrances. The acknowledgment of any deed, conveyance or other instrument in writing by which real estate in this state shall be conveyed or incumbered, if made within this state, must be before some court having a seal, or some judge or clerk thereof, or some county auditor or his deputy, or justice of the peace within the county, or notary public within the county of his appointment or in an adjoining county in which he has filed with the clerk of the district court a certified copy of his certificate of appointment. And each of the officers above named is authorized to take and certify acknowledgements of all written instruments, authorized or required by law to be acknowledged. [27 G. A., ch. 96, § 1; 25 G. A., ch. 52; 22 G. A., ch. 99; C. '73, § 1955; R. § 2226; C. '51, § 1217.]

What sufficient: Under statutory provisions prior to the present code, an acknowledgment by a deputy clerk of the district court was valid. Hilpire v. Claude, 109–159, 80 N. W. 332.

One having an interest, direct or contingent, in a conveyance, or its subject matter, cannot take and certify an acknowledgment, and the record of an instrument so acknowledged does not impart notice to third persons of the mortgagee's interest thereunder. But the mere fact that one is an officer of a corporation, or an agent of a copartnership, does not disqualify him from taking an acknowledgment of an instrument made to his principal. Bardsley v. German-American Bank, 113–216, 84 N. W. 1041.

Neither party to the conveyance can take his own acknowledgment of it before himself so as to entitle it to be recorded. Blackman v. Henderson, 116–578, 87 N. W. 655.

It is not competent for the cashier of a private bank as a notary public to acknowledge a mortgage executed to the bank. Farmers' & Merchants' Bank v. Stockdale, 121–748, 96 N. W. 732.

An interested party cannot as notary or magistrate take the acknowledgment of the grantor to a conveyance. Empire Real Est. & Mtg. Co. v. Beechley, 137–7, 114 N. W. 556.

The authentication of the notary's seal to the certificate of acknowledgment is just as essential as his signature, and when the certificate lacks this the instrument cannot properly be recorded. Koch v. West, 118–468, 92 N. W. 663.

If the certificate of acknowledgment is false or untrue and a subsequent purchaser takes title without knowledge and without being legally charged with notice of the instrument acknowledged, one who is thus defeated in his rights by the falsity of the acknowledgment is entitled to recover against the notary on his bond. Wilson v. Gribben, 152–379, 132 N. W. 849.

Legalizing acts: In a legalizing act declaring valid instruments defectively acknowledged but duly recorded, held that the words "duly recorded" meant "actually recorded." Bresser v. Saarman, 112–720, 84 N. W. 920.

Such a legalizing act, relating in general to the recording of instruments defectively acknowledged, held applicable to an instrument of adoption. Ibid.

An act legalizing the recording of conveyances defectively acknowledged is not effective as against a purchaser in good faith without notice before the taking effect of the act. Blackman v. Henderson, 116–578, 87 N. W. 655.

Defects in the acknowledgment are cured by a subsequent legalizing act. Therefore held that a city plat defectively acknowledged became effectual upon the adoption of a subsequent legalizing act and that from the time the legalizing act took effect the plat was acknowledged and recorded as required by law. Parriott v. Hampton, 134–157, 111 N. W. 440.

SEC. 2942-a. Acknowledgments legalized — deeds — mortgages — stockholder or officer of corporation. That the acknowledgments of all deeds, mortgages, or other instruments in writing heretofore taken or certified, and which instruments have been recorded in the recorder's office of any county of this state, including acknowledgments of instruments made by any private or other corporation, or to which such corporation was a party, or under which such corporation was a beneficiary, and which have been acknowledged before or certified by any notary public who was at the time of such acknowledgment or certifying a stockholder or officer in such corporation, be and the same are hereby declared to be legal and valid official acts of such notaries public, and to entitle such instruments to be recorded, anything in the laws of the state of Iowa in regard to acknowledgments to the contrary notwithstanding. [34 G. A., ch. 151, § 1.] [31 G. A., ch. 146, § 1; 26 G. A., Ext. Ses., ch. 23, § 1.]

SEC. 2942-b. Not applicable to pending litigation. This act shall not affect the rights of parties in any action or suit now pending in any court of this state. [34 G. A., ch. 151, § 2.] [26 G. A., Ext. Ses., ch. 23, § 2.]

SEC. 2942-c. Acknowledgments legalized — under provisions of code of 1873. That all acknowledgments of instruments in writing taken and certified according to the provisions and form prescribed by the code of 1873, which were taken and certified after the twenty-ninth day of September, eighteen hundred ninety-seven, and prior to the passage of this act, by officers having authority under the provisions of the code of 1873 to take and certify acknowledgments, are here declared to be legal and valid, and of the same force and effect as though the same were taken and certified according to the form and provisions of the code; and as though the officers taking and certifying the same were authorized to take and certify acknowledgments. [27 G. A., ch. 165, § 1.]

When one pays a valuable consideration for a sheriff's certificate of sale he acquires such vested right as to protect him against an instrument defectively recorded, notwithstanding a legalizing act subsequently passed. Koch v. West, 118–468, 92 N. W. 663.

SEC. 2942-d. Acknowledgments legalized—interested stockholders of corporations. That all deeds and conveyances of lands within this state heretofore executed but which have been acknowledged or proved according to and in compliance with the laws of this state before a notary public or other official authorized by law to take acknowledgments who was, at the time of such acknowledgment, an officer or stockholder of a corporation interested in any such deed or conveyance, or otherwise interested therein, are, if otherwise valid, hereby declared effectual and valid in law to all intents and purposes as though acknowledged or proved before an officer not interested therein; and if heretofore recorded in the respective counties in which such lands may be, the records thereof are hereby confirmed and declared effectual and valid in law to all intents and purposes as though said deeds and conveyances, so acknowledged or proved and recorded, had (prior to being recorded) been acknowledged or proved before an officer having no interest therein. [27 G. A., ch. 166, § 1.]

SEC. 2942-e. Acknowledgments legalized—defective in form—unqualified official. That the acknowledgments of all deeds, mortgages or other instruments in writing, taken and certified previous to the passage of this act, and which have been duly recorded in the proper counties in this state, and which are defective only in the form of the certificate of the officer taking the same, or by reason of such acknowledgment having been made before an official not qualified to take the same, but who was at the time qualified to take acknowledgments generally, be and are hereby declared to be as legal and valid for all purposes as if the form of the certificate had been made in accordance with law, and the official taking such acknowledgments duly qualified therefor. [29 G. A., ch. 249, § 1.]

SEC. 2942-f. Conveyances legalized—dower—power of attorney to spouse. No conveyance of real estate heretofore made, wherein the husband or wife conveyed or contracted to convey the inchoate right of dower to the other spouse, acting as the attorney in fact, by virtue of a power of attorney executed by such spouse, such power of attorney not having been executed as a part of a contract of separation, shall be held invalid as contravening the provisions of section thirty-one hundred fifty-four of the code, but all such conveyances are hereby legalized and made effective. [30 G. A., ch. 118; 29 G. A., ch. 237, § 1.]

[See § 2942-a which is exactly the same provision. EDITOR.]

SEC. 2942-h. Acknowledgments legalized—seal not affixed. All deeds, mortgages, or other instruments in writing, for the conveyance of lands which have heretofore been made and executed, and the officer taking the acknowledgment has not affixed his seal to the acknowledgment, such acknowledgment shall, nevertheless, be good and valid in law and equity, anything in any law heretofore passed to the contrary notwithstanding. [31 G. A., ch. 146, § 2.]

SEC. 2942-i. Not applicable to pending litigation. This act shall not affect the rights of parties in any action or suit now pending in any court of this state. [31 G. A., ch. 146, § 3.]

SEC. 2942-j. Conveyances legalized — administrators, trustees, guardians or referees—defective proceedings—prior to 1890. That chapter one hundred ninety-two of the acts of the thirty-third general assembly be repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"In all cases where, prior to the year A. D. eighteen hundred ninety, an executor, administrator, trustee, guardian, referee or commissioner, duly appointed and qualified, and acting as such in this or any other state, has conveyed in such trust capacity, real estate lying in this state, and such conveyance has been of record since prior to the first day of January, A. D.

eighteen hundred ninety, in the county where the real estate so conveyed is located, and the possession of said real estate since said date has rested in the grantee thereunder, or parties claiming by, through or under him, such conveyance shall not be held void or insufficient by reason of the fact that due and legal notice of all proceedings with reference to the making of any such conveyance was not served upon all interested or necessary parties, or that such executor, administrator, trustee, guardian, referee, or commissioner is not shown to have been duly authorized by an order of court to make and execute such conveyance, or that a bond was not given therefor; or that no report of the sale was made; or such sale or deed of conveyance was not approved by order of court, or that any such foreign executor, administrator, trustee, guardian, referee, or commissioner was not appointed or qualified in the state of Iowa, prior to the making of such conveyance, and all such conveyances are hereby legalized and declared valid, legal and binding and of full force and effect." [34 G. A., ch. 152, § 1; 33 G. A., ch. 192, § 1.] [32 G. A., ch. 248.]

SEC. 2942-k. Acknowledgments and affidavits legalized—mayors and notaries public.

WHEREAS certain mayors, under section six hundred ninety-one of the code of 1897, have taken the acknowledgments of written instruments and administered oaths in proceedings not connected with the administration of their offices; and,

WHEREAS certain notaries public, whose commissions expired July fourth, nineteen hundred and six, and who continued to act as such notaries public and who have since qualified as notaries public, desire to have their acts as such notaries public legalized. Now, therefore, be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa:

All acknowledgments and taking of affidavits made by the mayors and notaries public, as described in the preamble hereof, be and the same are hereby legalized and made of full effect, the same as though said mayors and notaries public had been originally empowered to take said acknowledgments and administer said oaths. [32 G. A., ch. 249.]

SEC. 2942-l. Official acts of notaries public legalized. That all of the official acts of all notaries public holding their office during the term ending July fourth, nineteen hundred and three, who continued to act as such notaries public after July fourth, nineteen hundred and three, before qualifying as such, but have since qualified as provided by law, be and the same are hereby legalized and made valid to the same extent as though they had become duly qualified to act as notaries public immediately upon the expiration of the term ending July fourth, nineteen hundred and three. Provided, however, that nothing in this act shall affect any pending litigation. [31 G. A., ch. 223, § 1.]

SEC. 2943. Out of state. When made out of the state but within the United States, it shall be before a judge of some court of record, or officer holding the seal thereof, or some commissioner appointed by the governor of this state to take the acknowledgment of deeds, or some notary public or justice of the peace; and when made before a judge, or justice of the peace, a certificate, under the official seal of the clerk or other proper certifying officer of a court of record of the county or district, or of the secretary of state of the state or territory within which such acknowledgment was taken, under the seal of his office, of the official character of said judge, or justice, and of the genuineness of his signature, shall accompany said certificate of acknowledgment. [27 G. A., ch. 97, § 1; C. '73, § 1956; R. § 2245.]

SEC. 2943-a. Notarial seals of nonresidents. That the notarial seal which purports to have been affixed to any instrument in writing, by any notary public residing elsewhere than in the state of Iowa, shall be prima-facie evidence that the words thereon engraved conform to the requirements of the law of the place where such certificate purports to have been made. [28 G. A., ch. 118, § 1.]

SEC. 2948. Certificate of acknowledgment.

The requirement of this section as to stating the full title of the person before whom the acknowledgment is made is not applicable to acknowledgments of other instruments with reference to which there is no such specific requirement, and in the acknowledgment of articles of incorporation it is sufficient that the venue is stated at the beginning of the certificate, and the notary subscribes as a "notary public" without specifically reciting that he is a notary public in and for said county, it being presumed that an officer acts only within the limits of his authority. Smith v. Sherman, 113–601, 85 N. W. 747.

The fact that the certificate of acknowledgment is left blank as to the name of the party who makes the acknowledgment does not render such certificate invalid. Tennis v. Gifford, 133–372, 110 N. W. 586.

SEC. 2957. Power of attorney—recording—revocation.

The statutory provision authorizing the recording of affidavits explaining defects in a chain of title does not enable one claiming title by adverse possession to make out a title of record on which an abstract showing good title can be founded. Fagan v. Hook, 134–381, 105 N. W. 155, 111 N. W. 981.

Affidavits are admissible to identify the land referred to in the provisions of a will. Hantz v. May, 137–267, 114 N. W. 1042.

A showing as to descent of property to heirs and that the debts of the estate of a deceased owner have all been paid may be made by affidavits for the purpose of making out a clear title taken by descent. Prichard v. Mulhall, 140–1, 118 N. W. 43.

SEC. 2958. Forms of conveyances.

In the absence of warranty or of fraud inducing the conveyance there is no liability of the grantor for failure of title. Harrison v. Palo Alto County, 104–383, 73 N. W. 872.

The omission of words of inheritance does not warrant the limitation of the right conveyed to less than a right in perpetuity. Baker v. Kenney, 145–638, 124 N. W. 901.

SEC. 2963-a. Acknowledgments legalized—instruments recorded prior to 1890. That all instruments in writing affecting the title to real estate located within the state of Iowa which have been on record since prior to the first day of January, A. D. eighteen hundred ninety, in the county where the real estate is located, and the possession of said real estate since said date has rested in the grantee thereunder, or parties claiming by, through or under him, such instruments shall not be held insufficient by reason of the fact that they were not acknowledged, nor by reason of any defect in the certificate of acknowledgment, and all such instruments in writing are hereby legalized and declared valid, legal and binding and of full force and effect, the same as if properly acknowledged. [35 G. A., ch. 265, § 1.]

SEC. 2963-b. Not applicable to pending litigation. This act shall not affect the rights of parties in any way to suits now pending in any court of this state. [35 G. A., ch. 265, § 2.]

SEC. 2963-c. Conveyances legalized—defective execution—tax deeds—sheriffs' deeds—instruments recorded prior to 1890. That any deed of conveyance, or other instrument purporting to convey real estate within the state of Iowa, where such deed or instrument has been recorded in the office of the recorder of any county wherein such real estate is situated, and which said deed or instrument was executed by a county treasurer under a tax sale, a sheriff under execution sale, or by a resident or foreign executor, administrator, referee, receiver, trustee, guardian, commissioner, individual, copartnership, association or corporation, and was executed and recorded prior to the first day of January A. D. eighteen hundred ninety, and where the grantee or grantees named in such deed or conveyance, or other instrument, his, her, their or its grantees, heirs or devisees, by direct line of title or conveyance have been in the actual, open adverse possession of such premises since said date, be and the same is hereby legalized, declared valid, legal, and binding, and of full force and effect, notwithstanding any defects in the execution of said deed or instrument. [35 G. A., ch. 261, § 1.]

SEC. 2963-d. Not applicable to pending actions. This act shall not affect the rights of the parties in any action or suit now pending in any court of this state, or instituted or commenced on or before the first day of September, nineteen hundred thirteen, nor be applied to or affect any conveyance that has heretofore been passed upon by any court of this state and determined insufficient or invalid. [35 G. A., ch. 261, § 2.]

SEC. 2963-e. Conveyances by heirs or spouse of deceased prior to 1900—conclusive evidence of right to convey. That all conveyances of real estate executed prior to January first, nineteen hundred, wherein the grantor or grantors described herself, himself or themselves as the surviving spouse, heir at law, heirs at law, surviving spouse and heir at law, or surviving spouse and heirs at law of some person deceased in whom the record title or ownership of said real estate previously vested, shall be conclusive evidence of the facts purported to be so recited as far as they relate to the right of the grantor or grantors to convey, and said conveyance or the records thereof shall be conclusive evidence of the facts purported to be recited so far as they relate to the right of said grantor or grantors to convey and the said conveyance or the records thereof shall be conclusive evidence of his, her or their rights to convey the entire estate, title or interest of such purported deceased person as fully as though the record title of said grantor or grantors had been established by due probate proceedings in the county where the real estate is situated; provided, however, that where any such conveyance in express terms purports to convey less than the entire estate or a limited estate, the recitals above referred to shall be conclusive evidence of the facts purported to be recited so far as they relate to the right of said grantor or grantors to convey and said conveyance or the records thereof shall be conclusive evidence of his, her or their right to convey that portion, title or interest which said conveyance purports to convey as fully as though the record title of said grantor or grantors had been established by due probate proceedings in the county where the real estate is located. [35 G. A., ch. 272, § 1.]

SEC. 2963-f. Judgment or decree quieting title legalized—defects prior to 1900. No existing judgment or decree quieting title to real estate as against defects arising prior to January first, nineteen hundred, and purporting to sustain the record title shall be held ineffectual because of the failure to properly set out in the petition or notice the derivation or devolution of the interest of the unknown defendants or on account of the failure of the record to show that such notice was approved by the court or that the same was published as directed by the court or because of the failure of the record to show that an affidavit was filed by plaintiff showing that personal service could not be made on any defendant in the state of Iowa, or because of the failure of defense by a guardian ad litem for any defendant under legal disability, or where there was more than one tract of real estate described in the same petition and decree, or where the plaintiffs have no joint or common interest in the property or defects of title or because of failure to comply with any other provision of law, but all such decrees are hereby made legal and effectual the same as if all provisions of law had been complied with in obtaining them. [35 G. A., ch. 272, § 2.]

SEC. 2963-g. Same—limitation of action. No action shall be brought to set aside a judgment or decree quieting title to real estate unless the same shall be commenced within ten years from and after the rendition thereof. [35 G. A., ch. 272, § 3.]

SEC. 2963-h. Sheriffs' deeds prior to 1900 legalized. No foreclosure proceeding or sale of real estate on execution prior to January first, nineteen hundred, wherein a sheriff's deed was executed and which purports to sustain the record title shall be held ineffectual on account of the failure of the record to show that any of the steps in obtaining said judgments or in the sale of said property were complied with, that such proceedings are hereby legalized and made valid as if the record showed that all the provisions of the law had been complied with. [35 G. A., ch. 272, § 4.]

SEC. 2963-i. Affidavits of defects prior to 1900 conclusive evidence—later affidavits prima-facie evidence. Affidavits on record in the office of any county recorder at the time of taking effect of this act explaining any defect in the chain of title to real estate arising prior to January first, nineteen hundred, or the records thereof made under section twenty-nine hundred fifty-seven of the code shall be conclusive evidence of the facts purported to be stated therein in all actions involving the title to said real estate and affidavits thereafter made and recorded as provided in section twenty-nine hundred fifty-seven of the code shall be prima-facie evidence of the facts therein contained for three years next succeeding the recording thereof and thereafter the same shall be conclusive evidence of the facts therein contained. [35 G. A., ch. 272, § 5.]

SEC. 2963-j. Contract or bond for deed prior to 1900—deemed abandoned. In all cases where the record shows that a contract or bond for a deed has been given prior to January first, nineteen hundred, and the record discloses no performance of the same and that more than ten years have elapsed since the contract by its terms was to be performed, that such contract shall be deemed abandoned and of no effect and the land freed from any lien or defect on account of such contract. [35 G. A., ch. 272, § 6.]

SEC. 2963-k. Conveyances prior to 1900—Christian names and initials—conclusive evidence. In the proof of title to real estate derived from deeds or other conveyances or instruments affecting real estate, executed prior to January first, nineteen hundred, wherein there is a difference between the Christian name, names, initial or initials in which title is taken, and the Christian name, names, initial or initials of the grantor or grantors in a succeeding conveyance, the surname in both instances being written the same or sounding the same, such conveyances or the records thereof shall be conclusive evidence that the same surname refers to the same person in the several conveyances and instruments. [35 G. A., ch. 272, § 7.]

SEC. 2963-l. Conveyances legalized—by foreign administrators, trustees, guardians or commissioners prior to 1900. In all cases where, prior to the year A. D. nineteen hundred, an executor, administrator, trustee, guardian, referee or commissioner, acting as such in this or any state, has conveyed in such trust capacity real estate lying in this state and such conveyance has been of record since prior to the first day of January, A. D. nineteen hundred, in the county where the real estate so conveyed is located and which conveyance purports to sustain the title in the present record owner or owners thereof, such conveyance shall not be held void or insufficient by reason of the fact that due and legal notice of all proceedings with reference to the making of any such conveyance was not served upon all interested or necessary parties or that such executor, administrator, trustee, guardian, referee or commissioner[1] is not shown to have been duly authorized by an order of court to make and execute such conveyance, that a bond was not given therefor, or that no report of the sale was made; or such sale or deed of conveyance was not approved by order of court or that any such foreign executor, administrator, trustee, guardian, referee or commissioner was not appointed or qualified in the state of Iowa prior to the making of such conveyance or that the record thereof fails to disclose compliance with any other provisions of law, and all such conveyances are hereby legalized and declared valid, legal and binding and of full force and effect. [35 G. A., ch. 272, § 8.]

SEC. 2963-m. Judgments or decrees respecting wills legalized after ten years. No judgment or decree purporting to set aside any will, or the provisions of any will, or to place any construction upon any will or terms of any will, or to aid in carrying out the provisions of any will and no contract or agreement purporting to be a settlement of any suit or action to set aside any will or the terms of any will or to place any construction upon any will or any of the terms thereof shall be held ineffectual, void or insufficient because the records fail to show proper service of notice on all parties interested, that persons under disability affected by the action were not properly served with notice or represented by guardian or guardian ad litem, either in suit, action or in a settlement thereof, that all persons interested participated in the settlement, or that any other provisions of law had been complied with which are necessary to make a valid decree, judgment or settlement, provided more than ten years have elapsed since the judgment, decree, contract or agreement was filed, entered or placed on record in the county where the real estate affected thereby is situated. And said decree, judgment, contract or agreement shall be conclusive evidence of the right, title or interest it purports to establish or adjudicate in so far as it affects the title to such real estate, and said proceedings therein are hereby made legal and effectual the same as though all provisions of law had been complied with in the obtaining of said decree, judgment or execution of said contract or agreement; and that any judgment, decree, contract or agreement such as above described which is now of record less than ten years in the county in which the real estate is situated, shall, at the expiration of ten years from date of filing, entering or recording thereof, have the same force and effect as is above given to those now in effect more than ten years. [35 G. A., ch. 272, § 9.]

SEC. 2963-n. Assignment of original entry or certificate of entry —deemed conveyance. That in the event the record title to any parcel of real estate discloses that the original entry, certificate of entry, receipt or duplicate thereof has been assigned, that prior to such assignment or thereafter, the United States or state issued a patent or conveyance to the assignor, that no deed of conveyance appears on record from the original entryman or assignor to the assignee, that the present record owner holds title by, through or under such assignment, such assignment shall have the same force and effect as a deed of conveyance and shall be conclusively presumed to carry all right, title, and interest of the patentee of said real estate, the same as though a deed of conveyance had been subsequently executed by the patentee or assignor to a subsequent grantor. [35 G. A., ch. 272, § 10.]

SEC. 2963-o. Tax sales prior to 1895—proceedings legalized. No sale of real property for taxes made prior to January first, eighteen hundred ninety-five, wherein the tax deed was executed and which deed purports to sustain the record title, shall be held ineffectual on account of the failure of the record to show that any of the steps in the sale and deeding of said property were complied with; that said proceedings are hereby legalized and made valid and effectual as if the record showed that all the provisions of law had been complied with. [35 G. A., ch. 272, § 11.]

[For § 12 of this act see § 3295-b. EDITOR.]

SEC. 2963-p. Rights terminated by this act—limitation of action. Any grantee, grantor, surviving spouse, heirs, legatees, devisees, assignees, assignors, personal representative or any other person or persons having or claiming any right, title or interest in any real estate, which right, title or interest may be terminated, divested or cut off by the terms of this act, or whose right, title or interest this act purports to terminate, divest or cut off, but for any reason it would not be thereby terminated, divested or cut off, shall have one year from and after the taking effect of this act in which to commence actions to establish any right, title or interest claimed. But after one year from the taking effect of this act no action shall be maintained and in all matters of evidence made conclusive by this act shall, in actions commenced under this section, be presumptive evidence.[1] [35 G. A., ch. 272, § 13.]

[1]This sentence conforms with the enrolled bill but manifestly is incomplete. EDITOR.]

SEC. 2963-q. Limitations of actions by minors and insane not applicable. That the provisions of section thirty-four hundred fifty-three of the code extending the period of limitations in favor of minors and insane persons shall not be applicable to any of the provisions of this act. [35 G. A., ch. 272, § 14.]

SEC. 2963-r. Not applicable to pending litigation. This act shall not affect pending litigation. [35 G. A., ch. 272, § 15.]

SEC. 2963-s. Sheriff's deed executed by deputy and recorded prior to 1885 legalized. That all conveyances executed prior to the year eighteen hundred eighty-five in the state of Iowa by deputy sheriffs, wherein such deputy sheriff executed a sheriff's deed to real estate in the state of Iowa, and which conveyances have been of record in the office of the county recorder of the county wherein the real estate is located since prior to the first day of January, eighteen hundred eighty-five, be and the same are hereby legalized and made of full force and effect, the same as though deputy sheriffs had been originally empowered and authorized to execute sheriff's deeds. [34 G. A., ch. 226, § 1.]

SEC. 2963-t. Not applicable to pending litigation. This act shall not affect any pending litigation. [34 G. A., ch. 226, § 2.]

SEC. 2963-u. Assignment of mortgage or lien on margin of record—deemed same as separate instrument—evidence. In any case where an assignment of a mortgage or other recorded lien on real estate has heretofore been made by written assignment thereof on the margin of the record where such mortgage or other lien is recorded or entered, such assignment shall be deemed to have passed all the right, title and interest therein which the assignor at the time had, with like force and effect as if such assignment had been made by separate instrument duly acknowledged and recorded, and any such assignment, or a duly authenticated copy thereof when accompanied by a duly authenticated copy of the record of the instrument or lien it purports to assign, shall be admissible in evidence as is provided by law for the admission of the records of deeds and mortgages. [34 G. A., ch. 227, § 1.]

CHAPTER 7.

OF OCCUPYING CLAIMANTS.

SECTION 2964. Proceedings.

This section has no application where the action is purely personal, seeking only a money judgment and not attempting to disturb either title to or possession of real property. Central Trust Co. v. Hubinger, 87 Fed. 3.

Loss or surrender of possession terminates the right to be regarded as an occupying claimant and to have relief as such under these statutory provisions. Lindt v. Uihlein, 116–48, 89 N. W. 214.

An occupying claimant is entitled to have his petition considered and passed upon in the usual method before being put out of possession. Jefferson v. Rust, 155–133, 135 N. W. 613.

An occupying claimant is practically the owner of his improvements and not a mere trespasser. It does not necessarily follow therefore that because a portion of a building of one owner is on land belonging to another, the former is not the owner even of such portion as is on the other's land, for the purpose of establishing a right of recovery for destruction of the building by fire. Petty v. Minneapolis & St. L. R. Co., 136 N. W. 1044.

SEC. 2966. Payment—tenants in common.

After the amount of the interest of the claimant has been established, it is optional with the owner of the property to pay the amount of such claim or take the property. Therefore the attorney for such claimant has no lien upon the interest which he seeks to have established in his client. McCormick v. Dumbarton Realty Co., 156–692, 137 N. W. 943.

SEC. 2967. Color of title.

One who acquires title to real property in consideration of the illegal sale of intoxicating liquors, in violation of code § 2423, and whose title is declared void on that account, cannot assert the rights of an occupying claimant with reference to improvements placed by him upon the premises. Lindt v. Uihlein, 116–48, 89 N. W. 214.

The statutory provisions as to occupying claimants furnish a special remedy, and one who seeks to avail himself of those provisions must bring himself within the statute and pursue the course indicated. Ibid.

The proceeding contemplated does not involve recovery of a personal judgment against the landowner, but is in the nature of the assertion of a lien on the property by the party in possession, accompanied by the right to retain such possession until the lien is satisfied. Ibid.

CHAPTER 8.

OF THE HOMESTEAD.

SECTION 2972. Exempt.

In general: Statutes are to be liberally construed in favor of homestead rights. Merchants' Nat. Bank v. Eyre, 107–13, 77 N. W. 498; Edmonds v. Davis, 122–561, 98 N. W. 375.

Application of property to the payment of debts should be so made as to preserve, so far as possible, the homestead of the debtor. Shaffer v. Chernyk, 130–686, 107 N. W. 801.

The homestead exemption is not merely for the benefit of the husband or wife alone but for the family of which they are a part. The statute clothes the family homestead with absolute exemption from the claims of creditors save only as such exemption may be specifically limited by statute as is done under code §§ 2974-2976 and such provisions constitute and include every statutory exception to the exempt character of the homestead so long as the owner lives and does not abandon it. Swisher v. Swisher, 157–55, 137 N. W. 1076.

In what property: A leasehold interest may be sufficient to support a homestead right. White v. Danforth, 122–403, 98 N. W. 136; In re Estate of Ring, 132–216, 109 N. W. 710.

A homestead right may exist as to property held by an equitable title as effectually as though it were held by a legal title. Foster v. Rice, 126–190, 101 N. W. 771.

An existing homestead right is not lost and a new one created by a conveyance absolute in form, but which is in fact a mortgage only. Ibid.

Matured crops raised on the homestead are not within the statutory exemption. (Affirming S. C., 142 Fed. 620.) In re Sullivan, 148 Fed. 815.

Evidence in a particular case held not sufficient to show that certain property claimed as a homestead was exempt because the money used in its purchase was obtained from the sale of a former homestead. Johnson County Sav. Bank v. Carroll, 109–564, 80 N. W. 683.

Purchase money: The homestead is not exempt from a claim for the purchase money. Clifton Land Co. v. Davenport, 130–94, 106 N. W. 365.

Disposal of homestead: The owner may dispose of the homestead without regard to the claims of creditors as to which the homestead is exempt. Dettmer v. Behrens, 106–585, 76 N. W. 853.

A mortgagor may convey the homestead to a mortgagee who has a lien on the homestead and other property, without giving to a junior lienholder on such other property the right to have the senior mortgage first satisfied out of the homestead. The homestead may be conveyed free from claims of creditors which are not liens thereon. Bankers' Life Assn. v. Engelson, 148–594, 126 N. W. 951.

The owner of the title to the homestead has a right to convey it to his wife free from any claim of creditors. In re Estate of Crocker, Jamison v. Crocker, 148–104, 126 N. W. 962.

Where the wife became the owner of the homestead by decree of court in a divorce proceeding before a judgment against the husband had become a lien by reason of his abandonment, held that such judgment could not become a lien subsequently on the sale of the homestead by the wife. Vittengl v. Vittengl, 156–41, 135 N. W. 63.

The owner may devise the homestead owned by him to his wife free from his debts and by accepting such devise she does not subject it, to any extent, to the satisfaction of such debts save as is expressly provided by statute. Swisher v. Swisher, 157–55, 137 N. W. 1076.

Rights of spouse: Both husband and wife are entitled to live upon and enjoy the homestead. But so long as the wife of the owner chooses to live elsewhere, she is not entitled to any benefit from it and the owner is entitled to have the full right to farm and cultivate it so long as he continues to live upon and occupy it as a homestead. Ehrck v. Ehrck, 106–614, 76 N. W. 793.

Failure to make the wife a party defendant in proceedings to foreclose a mortgage executed prior to the marriage will not entitle the wife to relief in an independent action. Her rights in the homestead are not in any way superior to the lien of such a mortgage. Browneller v. Wells, 109–230, 80 N. W. 351.

The husband is presumed to be the head of the family and the homestead premises to be under his control, although the legal title is in the wife. Burch v. Lowary, 131–719, 109 N. W. 282.

Where the wife is in possession of the homestead under an independent right and not subject to the control of her husband, her right cannot be taken away by an unauthorized act of her husband. King v. Bolt, 151–1, 130 N. W. 818.

When the husband or wife holding the title to the homestead is adjudged bankrupt, the other may have such homestead set apart, even if not claimed by the bankrupt. The owner cannot waive the homestead right of the other. In re Maxson, (D. C.) 170 Fed. 356.

Trustee in bankruptcy: A trustee in bankruptcy may maintain an action to require the setting off of the homestead of the bankrupt and subjecting the remainder of his property to the payment of claims of creditors. Duffield v. Dosh, 124–286, 99 N. W. 1074.

An insolvent debtor cannot use nonexempt assets for the purchase of a homestead and thus put it beyond the reach of the trustee in bankruptcy. Clarke v. Sherman, 128–353, 103 N. W. 982.

SEC. 2973. Family defined.

After the death of both the father and mother, the children or any number of them continuing to reside on the homestead property as members of the same family constitute a family, entitled to the homestead exemption. In re Rafferty, 112 Fed. 512.

To constitute one or more persons with another living together in the same house a family, it must appear that they are being supported by that other in whole or in part, and are dependent upon him therefor, and that he is under a natural or moral obligation to render such support. But the fact that the person thus dependent for support is an adult son does not prevent his being a member of the family of his mother. Sheehy v. Scott, 128–551, 104 N. W. 1139.

The homestead statutes should be liberally construed, but to entitle the occupancy by a widow or widower to the homestead protection there must be a natural or moral obligation of support, and a condition of dependence and actual support between such occupant and some person or persons residing with him or her on his premises is sufficient. Therefore, held that a widower occupying premises and having residing with him an adult daughter was entitled to a homestead in such premises. Fox v. Waterloo Nat. Bank, 126–481, 102 N. W. 424.

Under this section as it stood in the code of '73, which did not include the provision as to a party to whom the homestead is adjudged in a decree of divorce, held that such person did not have the homestead right while continuing to occupy the premises. Clemans v. Penfield, 111–511, 82 N. W. 947.

The provision as to cases of divorce is intended to apply to cases wherein the title to the homestead is in one of the parties to the divorce proceeding, and the court deems it proper to assign the homestead to the other so that the decree is the basis upon which the right to occupy the premises after the divorce is founded. In re Pope, 98 Fed. 722.

Where a married woman, after her adjudication as a bankrupt, was granted a divorce and awarded the homestead and the custody of a child, held that the homestead could not be subjected to the payment of her debts in the bankruptcy proceeding. In re Le Claire, 124 Fed. 654.

The provision that the divorced husband or wife to whom the homestead is awarded in the decree is entitled to retain it as exempt during continual personal occupancy was first inserted in the code of 1897; whether it is retroactive, quaere. Fox v. Waterloo Nat. Bank, 126–481, 102 N. W. 424.

The primary object of the exemption is the protection of the family, and as a general rule, when the family ceases to exist the exemption also ceases. Therefore, held that where a widow with children acquired a homestead, her homestead rights in the premises terminated when the children ceased to reside with her. The exception as to continuance of the homestead right to the survivor remaining in possession of a homestead acquired during the existence of the marriage does not apply to such a case. Fullerton v. Sherrill, 114–511, 87 N. W. 419.

A woman who has procured a decree of dissolution of a pretended marriage is not under this section entitled to homestead rights. Floyd County v. Wolfe, 138–749, 117 N. W. 32.

Where a widower acquired property and occupied it as a home with his three children, one of whom was a minor, held that his homestead right was established and under the evidence had not been abandoned by temporary absence. Tyrell v. Shannon, 147–184, 123 N. W. 325.

The clear intention of the statute is to continue the homestead right in case of divorce to whichever party is finally found to be entitled to the property. Roberts v. Playle, 150–279, 129 N. W. 945.

SEC. 2974. Conveyance or incumbrance.

In general: The homestead right is a favorite of the law, and the purpose of the statute is to require the utmost solemnity in the matter of its alienation. Such alienation must be by one instrument in the execution of which the husband and wife concur. Such conveyance cannot be effected by the action of the husband alone signing the instrument in his own right and under a power of attorney for his wife. Keeline v. Clark, 132–360, 106 N. W. 257.

Actual occupation by the family of the owner is sufficient declaration of the homestead character of the premises so that conveyance thereof can only be made by joint action of husband and wife. Hostetler v. Eddy, 128–401, 104 N. W. 485.

As by code § 3157 conveyances between husband and wife are authorized, such a conveyance by one to the other of the homestead will be valid, although not executed by both. Beedy v. Finney, 118–276, 91 N. W. 1069.

It seems that a sale by the husband alone of the fee title to the homestead, in which he reserves the right to use and occupy the property during the life of himself and wife, is valid and binding. Allbright v. Hannah, 103–98, 72 N. W. 421.

An agreement by the holder of the title as to the disposition to be made of the property after the homestead right in the premises has terminated is valid without the joinder of the wife. Reilly v. Reilly, 135–440, 110 N. W. 445.

The owner of the homestead may grant an easement therein without joinder by the husband or wife of such owner. Stokes v. Maxson, 113–122, 84 N. W. 949.

One who has acquired a homestead in premises for which he has a contract of purchase cannot transfer his rights under such contract without joinder of his wife in a joint written instrument and a subsequent acceptance of a lease of the property from one purchasing the legal title thereto subject to the contract will not enlarge the rights of creditors nor constitute an abandonment of the homestead. Duffield v. Dosh, 124–286, 99 N. W. 1074.

A husband having title to the homestead may convey an easement therein without the wife joining. Maxwell v. McCall, 145–687, 124 N. W. 760.

A transaction between a husband and wife by which she joins in a conveyance of the homestead on condition of receiving other property in exchange which is to constitute a homestead, is not fraudulent as to creditors. First Nat. Bank v. Eichmeier, 153–154, 133 N. W. 454.

In the absence of fraud or unfair dealing, antenuptial contracts cutting off a prospective homestead right are valid. And the owner may make conveyance without joinder of the spouse of property which, but for the antenuptial contract, would have been subject to homestead rights. Weis v. Bach, 146–320, 125 N. W. 211.

An antenuptial contract is not effectual so far as it includes a waiver of homestead rights, but after the death of her husband, and after accepting the provisions of his will, she may be estopped by the antenuptial contract from objecting to his disposition of the homestead. In re Adams' Estate, 140 N. W. 872.

Conveyance void: Failure of the wife to join in a conveyance of the homestead renders the conveyance invalid for any purpose. Goodwin v. Goodwin, 113–319, 85 N. W. 31.

Where persons have been living together as husband and wife under a claimed marriage which is invalid because the pretended husband has a former wife living undivorced, of which fact the pretended wife has no knowledge, a conveyance by the pretended husband of premises owned by him and used by the two as a home will not be invalid on account of failure of the pretended wife to join therein. Ibid.

A mortgage on the homestead in which the wife does not join is void, and the purchaser of the premises under foreclosure of such mortgage acquires no right thereto. Way v. Scott, 118–197, 91 N. W. 1034.

Where the wife, joining with her husband in a mortgage of the homestead as additional security for notes of the husband, was fraudulently misled by the creditor as to the extent of the liability thus assumed, held that she was entitled to relief. Lingenfelter v. Bowman, 156–649, 137 N. W. 946.

Contract to convey: Where, under a contract by the husband, having the legal title to convey the homestead, possession is given to the purchaser, such contract is binding upon the wife upon the theory that by giving possession to the purchaser there is an abandonment of the homestead right. But in the absence of such delivery of possession as to constitute an abandonment, the contract of the husband without the assent of the wife is of no validity and the contract cannot be ratified so as to constitute an effectual conveyance save by the execution of a joint instrument in substantial compliance with the statute. Alvis v. Alvis, 123–546, 99 N. W. 166.

To constitute a valid conveyance there must be the concurrence of each with the knowledge of the other. Ibid.

The husband and wife must join in the execution of an instrument containing a granting clause applicable to each. It is not sufficient that one of them signs and acknowledges an instrument purporting to convey only the title of the other. Ibid.

A parol agreement to convey is not binding even though based upon good consideration and the payment of the consideration does not operate to create a trust in the homestead property in favor of the person making payment. Ibid.

A contract to convey a homestead in which the wife does not join is void as to both husband and wife, and no action for specific performance or for damages will lie as against either. Hostetler v. Eddy, 128–401, 104 N. W. 485.

No action for damages for breach of contract to convey a homestead, the wife not having joined in such contract, can be maintained as against the husband. Wheelock v. Countryman, 133–289, 110 N. W. 598.

A contract to convey the homestead is void if not signed by both husband and wife. Ibid.

An oral contract of husband and wife to convey the homestead, under which the grantee takes and holds possession, is effectual to pass title. Caldwell v. Drummond, 127–134, 102 N. W. 842.

Where husband and wife join in a contract to convey the homestead and the wife agrees that upon the performance of the contract she will execute a conveyance, relinquishing her statutory rights in and to the land, the contract may be enforced as against her. Cone v. Cone, 118–458, 92 N. W. 665.

Foreclosure may be had on a bond for a deed although the premises have been occupied as a homestead and the wife has not joined in the contract. Clifton Land Co. v. Davenport, 130–94, 106 N. W. 365.

Where the husband has received money under a contract to convey the homestead in which the wife does not join, an action may be maintained against him to recover the amount so paid. DeKalb v. Hingston, 104–23, 73 N. W. 350.

The statute does not require that the husband and wife sign the instrument at the same time; and where it appeared that when the instrument was executed by the husband, the wife was willing to sign it and that she did join with the husband in the execution of a deed tendered in the performance of the contract but it was objected to, the statute was sufficiently complied with. Luttschwager v. Fank, 151–55, 130 N. W. 170.

Ratification: Where a contract to convey the homestead was consented to by the wife, but the written contract was not signed by her until some time after its execution by her husband, and she then united with her husband in the execution of a deed in pursuance of the terms of the contract, held that there was such ratification of the contract by the wife that a suit for specific performance could be based thereon. Epperly v. Ferguson, 118–47, 91 N. W. 816.

While the wife may ratify a sale of the homestead by her husband in which she has not joined, she cannot do so after the rights of third parties have intervened and her ratification would prejudice such rights. Stickley v. Widle, 122–400, 98 N. W. 135.

If the wife joins in a contract to convey the homestead after its execution by the husband and before the time for performance by delivery of a deed, and joins with her husband in executing the deed which is tendered in performance of the contract, the vendee cannot rely upon the invalidity of the contract as excusing performance on his part. Kettering v. Eastlack, 130–498, 107 N. W. 177.

Estoppel: The husband or wife of the owner may by conduct be estopped from setting up a homestead right as against one taking possession and making improvements under an oral contract of which the husband or wife has knowledge. Eastwood v. Crane, 125–707, 101 N. W. 481.

Other property included: A deed covering other property together with the homestead may be valid as to the property not included in the homestead. Pryne v. Pryne, 116–82, 89 N. W. 108.

Where the owner of premises, a portion of which is used as a homestead, contracts to sell a part thereof, not including the improvements, and leaving enough property in extent and value to constitute the full homestead exemption, such contract is not invalid because of the failure of the husband or wife to join therein, though the portion sold might have been included in the homestead, had the owner elected to do so. The owner may select the homestead without the consent of the husband or wife. Hall v. Gottsche, 114–147, 86 N. W. 257.

Prior to the adoption of the provision it was held that a contract by the husband to convey land including the homestead would not be specifically enforced in the whole or in part. Ormsby v. Graham, 123–202, 98 N. W. 724.

Under the last clause of this section, which is first found in the present code, the vendee under a contract to convey premises including a homestead may enforce his contract as to the portion not embraced in the homestead, the price to be paid being abated by deduction of the value of the portion embraced in the homestead. Townsend v. Blanchard, 117–36, 90 N. W. 519.

Where the vendee under contract to convey premises including the homestead, in which the wife has not joined, makes no demand for a conveyance of the portion not included in the homestead, he cannot recover damages in an action for a breach of the entire contract on account of the failure of the vendor to convey the portion not included within the homestead. Lamb v. Cooper, 150–18, 129 N. W. 323.

SEC. 2976. Liable for debts antedating purchase—by written contract.

Debts prior to acquisition: Where it is claimed that the homestead is liable for money borrowed to be used in paying therefor, it is not enough to show that the borrowed money was so used, but in order to confer a right to the lien it must also appear that it was a part of the contract that this should be done. Johnson County Sav. Bank v. Carroll, 109-564, 80 N. W. 683.

To render the homestead liable for money borrowed to pay the purchase price it must appear that the indebtedness was incurred at the time the homestead right attached. Ibid.

Where at the time the homestead was taken possession of the indebtedness which was subsequently attempted to be enforced against it had not been incurred, held that the homestead was not liable for such indebtedness. Ibid.

The previously contracted debt for which a homestead may be sold on execution is one which has become a fixed obligation enforceable prior to the acquisition of the homestead. Anderson v. Kyle, 126–666, 102 N. W. 527.

In a particular case, held that the evidence did not show that a note was executed in renewal of a prior note antedating the homestead so as to make the indebtedness a claim against the homestead. In re Gardner's Estate, 103–738, 72 N. W. 652.

The owner may make expenditures on the homestead and improvements thereto necessary to its preservation and suitableness for homestead occupation, and the expenditures therefor are protected as a part of the homestead right, even as against indebtedness contracted before the making of the improvements, though after the acquisition of the homestead Ebersole v. Moot, 112–596, 84 N. W. 696.

The homestead law has always received liberal construction in favor of the homestead occupant out of consideration of public policy and the very humane and beneficent purpose that inspired the enactment of the law. Ibid.

As against a judgment on a note dated subsequent to the acquisition of the homestead, the homestead is, prima facie, exempt. And where it was contended that the note was executed for a debt previously existing, by reason of conversion by the owner of the homestead of money belonging to the payee of the note, held that the burden was on the payee of the note not only to show conversion, but that it occurred before the acquisition of the homestead. Walker v. Walker, 117–609, 91 N. W. 908.

Where husband and wife occupied as a homestead property acquired by the husband with pension money and conveyed to the wife at his direction, held that the title in the wife was subject to sale for her antecedent debts. Whinery v. McLeod, 127–11, 102 N. W. 132.

As the homestead is liable for preëxisting debts, an insolvent debtor cannot use nonexempt property for the acquisition of a homestead which will be preserved to him in bankruptcy proceedings. Clarke v. Sherman, 128–353, 103 N. W. 982.

A homestead acquired with the husband's pension money, title being taken in the wife, is subject to the antecedent debts of the wife if she is in fact the owner of the property. Ratliff v. Elwell, 141–312, 119 N. W. 740.

The liability of the homestead for debts contracted prior to its acquisition does not destroy its homestead character in a proceeding of bankruptcy. The creditor entitled to subject the homestead to the payment of his claim must do so by the proper proceeding in the state court. In re Maxon, (D. C.) 170 Fed. 356.

Exhausting other property: It is not necessary to provide in a decree of foreclosure that the other real property covered by the lien shall be exhausted before resorting to the homestead. The statutes relating to homesteads make ample provision for the protection of homestead rights from sale on execution until other property of the judgment debtor is exhausted. Kilmer v. Gallaher, 107–676, 78 N. W. 685.

One who buys premises not constituting the homestead and assumes the payment of a mortgage covering such premises and also the homestead, cannot afterwards enforce the mortgage as against the homestead. Moore v. Olive, 114–650, 87 N. W. 720.

The homestead is only secondarily liable for incumbrances to which it is subject with other property. Bissell v. Bissell, 120–127, 94 N. W. 465.

Where the entire property to be sold by the sheriff is included within the homestead right, there is no occasion for setting off or reserving from the sale any portion as constituting the homestead; and if the property is subject to execution sale, a sale in gross may be proper. Edinger v. Bain, 125–391, 98 N. W. 568, 101 N. W. 119.

The homestead exemption takes precedence of a claim of a surety to have the homestead subjected to the payment of a debt secured by mortgage covering such homestead and also property of the surety. But where the mortgage was to secure the repayment of money advanced to extinguish a debt for the purchase of the homestead, held that the homestead should be first exhausted before resorting to the property of the surety. Guiher v. Huffman, 136–509, 109 N. W. 469.

As the homestead is to be subjected to mortgage claims thereon only to the extent of the deficiency remaining after subjecting to the payment of such liens all other property covered by such mortgages, the homestead in the hands of the grantee of a mortgagor cannot be subjected primarily to the satisfaction of the mortgage in order to preserve other property covered by the mortgage for the satisfaction of mortgages on such other property exclusively. Bankers Life Assn. v. Engelson, 148–594, 126 N. W. 951.

The fact that in a bankruptcy proceeding the mortgage covering the homestead and other property is held to be invalid as against other creditors does not prevent the mortgagee from enforcing the mortgage to its full extent against the homestead, all the other property having been exhausted in the bankruptcy proceeding for the benefit of the mortgagee pro rata with other creditors. Huttig Mfg. Co. v. Burhans, 148–657, 127 N. W. 991.

The provision that the homestead shall only be liable for a deficiency remaining after exhausting all other property is mandatory, and is applied in a bankruptcy proceeding in the marshaling of liens between different mortgages, some of which include the homestead, while others do not. Failure of the debtor to insist on the statute is immaterial. Century Savings Bank v. Moody, (C. C. A.) 204 Fed. 963.

Lien of judgments: A judgment becoming a lien upon premises before the occupancy of such premises as a homestead may be enforced and the grantee does not have priority over the judgment lien. Therme v. Bethenoid, 106–697, 77 N. W. 497.

SEC. 2977. What constitutes.

Separate tracts: The homestead must embrace the house used as a home, and none other can be selected, but if there are two so used, either may be retained. Knorr v. Lohr, 108–181, 78 N. W. 904.

Under the provisions of the code of '73, a homestead might consist of lots or tracts not contiguous, but in such case it must be shown that such lots or tracts were habitually and in good faith used as a part of the same homestead. Kelley v. Williams, 110–153, 81 N. W. 230.

While the homestead may consist of one or more contiguous lots or tracts, yet by changing the actual place of residence to other premises, a lot which had previously been a part of the homestead by contiguity may cease to be homestead property. White v. Danforth, 122–403, 98 N. W. 136.

The homestead may be selected at any time before judicial sale, and no portion of the tract from which it may be selected is to be regarded as relinquished from the homestead rights, so long as the ownership and occupancy of the person claiming a homestead continues. Lutz v. Ristine, 136–684, 112 N. W. 818.

Abandonment: An oral contract for the sale of the homestead, followed by possession taken thereunder, amounts to an abandonment of the homestead. Allbright v. Hannah, 103–98, 72 N. W. 421.

The homestead right is purely statutory, and for the benefit of the family, and it may be waived or abandoned. The right of occupancy as a homestead does not affect the legal title, and when such right ceases by the death of the occupant, title descends to the issue of the owner, unless otherwise directed by will. Reilly v. Reilly, 135–440, 110 N. W. 445.

The question of the existence of a homestead right does not rest merely in intention. It arises from the fact of occupancy as a home and ends only with abandonment in fact. Hostetler v. Eddy, 128–401, 104 N. W. 485.

An intention by the occupant of premises formed before his marriage to abandon the same as his residence is immaterial with reference to a homestead right arising on subsequent marriage. Ibid.

One who conveys his homestead loses the homestead right although he afterwards acquires title to the property. Jasper County v. Sparham, 125–464, 101 N. W. 134.

While there may be a homestead right in premises held under a contract to convey, yet where husband and wife consented that the vendor should treat the contract as forfeited by reason of provisions therein for forfeiture on nonpayment of the purchase price, and the husband accepted a lease of the premises under which husband and wife continued to occupy, held that the homestead right under the contract was abandoned. Anderson v. Cosman, 103–266, 72 N. W. 523.

Whether absence from the homestead shall be deemed an abandonment, or to have been with animus revertendi, depends on the facts of each particular case. Wapello County v. Brady, 118–482, 92 N. W. 717.

Occupancy of other property which could be claimed as a homestead is a strong circumstance tending to show an abandonment of the previous homestead. Ibid.

The owner of the homestead cannot have the option of choosing between two homes when either is seized by creditors. One or the other must be shown to have had that character prior to such seizure. Ibid.

When only verbal evidence of the animus revertendi is relied upon, the temptation opened to the witnesses interested is such as to call for careful scrutiny. Ibid.

After selecting and occupying a new homestead, the owner cannot claim the old homestead as exempt while being held for exchange or sale. Stickley v. Widle, 122–400, 98 N. W. 135.

When a person removes from his homestead for a temporary cause with the definite and settled purpose of returning, and that purpose is continuously held in good faith, there is no abandonment of the homestead right. Maguire v. Hanson, 105–215, 74 N. W. 776.

To constitute a homestead it is not sufficient that the claimant is supported by the cultivation and use of the property. Actual occupation of the premises as a home for the owner and his family is required, excepting in a few cases, where a temporary absence from the home for authorized purposes will not affect its homestead character, or where the proceeds of one homestead are invested in property to be used for another homestead, in which case a reasonable time is allowed in which to make a change. But a mere intent to erect upon a lot or tract of land a house to be occupied as a home at some indefinite time is not sufficient to give the property the homestead character. Ibid.

Where there is no dwelling house to be occupied, the premises cannot constitute a homestead. Blue v. Heilprin, 105–608, 75 N. W. 642.

Where the homestead was abandoned by the owner without intention to return thereto, and two days later he made a conveyance of the premises, held that the purchaser did not acquire the property free from debts which would have attached to it had it not been a homestead. Chambers v. Jackson, 106–6, 75 N. W. 663.

Removal from the homestead with intention to return only in a contingency which the owner wishes to avoid, as for instance if he intends "to go back to the place provided he cannot sell it," will constitute an abandonment. Conway v. Nichols, 106–358, 76 N. W. 681.

Where the evidence shows an intent to return, the period of absence alone being conditional, there is no abandonment. Rand

Lumber Co. v. Atkins, 116–242, 89 N. W. 1104.

A temporary removal from the premises with the intent of returning does not constitute an abandonment of the homestead. Lutz v. Ristine, 136–684, 112 N. W. 818.

A temporary removal from the homestead and renting it to third parties will not be deemed an abandonment if the party having the homestead right intends to return and resume the occupancy thereof. In re Pope, 98 Fed. 722.

Although the husband who has a legal title to the homestead abandons it, nevertheless the wife is entitled to the same right therein until cut off by proper proceedings, and the fact that she is in an insane asylum will not deprive her of such homestead right. Way v. Scott, 118–197, 91 N. W. 1034.

Where the homestead character of the land is established, the burden of proof to show that it is liable for debts by reason of abandonment is upon the person making such claim. Robinson v. Charleton, 104–296, 73 N. W. 616.

Mere absence from the alleged homestead for more than four years with no definite time for returning, without other evidence of abandonment, is not sufficient to show that the homestead has, in fact, been abandoned. Boyer v. Dague, 154–67, 134 N. W. 542.

Where the widow having a right of occupancy of the homestead for life intermarries with the resident of another state and goes to reside with him in such other state, she thereby loses her right of occupancy by abandonment, and her subsequent return and reoccupancy of the property will not clothe her anew with the rights that she has thus abandoned. Anderson v. Blakesly, 155–430, 136 N. W. 210.

In order to preserve the homestead character in the absence of actual occupancy there must be a continuing, definite and fixed purpose to return. When such purpose ceases, the abandonment becomes complete. Vittengl v. Vittengl, 156–41, 135 N. W. 63.

A contract of sale of the homestead premises entered into by the owner when not in actual occupancy is inconsistent with a definite and fixed purpose to return; but such sale may be shown to have been with the intention of acquiring a new homestead. Ibid.

The facts in a particular case considered as tending to show an abandonment of the homestead. Hoger v. Hart, 140 N. W. 356.

Use: Where it appears that a room is used as a place of residence the owner should not be deprived of his statutory exemption because in the prosecution of his ordinary business the front windows and a portion of the room are devoted to that business. Edmonds v. Davis, 122–561, 98 N. W. 375.

Mere intention to occupy as a homestead in the future does not impress premises with the character of a homestead. White v. Danforth, 122–403, 98 N. W. 136.

Merely sleeping in a roofless house as a matter of convenience is not alone sufficient occupancy of the premises to constitute them a homestead. Gaston v. Horn, 157– —, 138 N. W. 925.

SEC. 2978. Extent—dwelling—appurtenances—value. If within a city or town plat, it must not exceed one-half acre in extent, otherwise it must not contain in the aggregate more than forty acres, but if, in either case, its value is less than five hundred dollars, it may be enlarged until it reaches that amount. It must not embrace more than one dwelling house, or any other buildings except such as are properly appurtenant thereto, but a shop or other building situated thereon, actually used and occupied by the owner in the prosecution of his ordinary business, and not exceeding three hundred dollars in value, is appurtenant thereto. [28 G. A., ch. 119, § 1; C. '73, §§ 1996–7; R. §§ 2284–5; C. '51, §§ 1252–3.]

So far as this section restricts the extent of a homestead within a town plat, it is not applicable to homesteads already existing. Sayers v. Childers, 112–677, 84 N. W. 938.

The homestead is limited to one-half acre only when within a city or town plat. The fact that it is within the corporate limits of a city, if not within a platted portion thereof, does not bring it within such limitation as to extent. Foster v. Rice, 126–190, 101 N. W. 771.

To limit the homestead to one-half acre, under the provisions of § 1996, code of '73, differing in language from this section, it was necessary that it lie not only within the limits of the municipality, but within a platted portion thereof, and held that such limitation did not apply where a tract of land not within the municipality was platted, and then the municipality was extended to include it. Parrott v. Thiel, 117–392, 90 N. W. 745.

The owner of a homestead is allowed but one shop or other building in which to prosecute his ordinary business. Shaffer v. Chernyk, 130–686, 107 N. W. 801.

The homestead being limited to forty acres, if the tract in which the homestead right exists exceeds forty acres in extent, the balance descends on the death of the owner like any other property, subject to the debts of the owner. Porter v. Perkins, 125–55, 99 N. W. 160.

The forty acres which may be claimed exempt as a homestead may be selected from any greater number of acres occupied by the owner, the only condition being that the tract selected shall include that forty of the whole on which is situated the house used by the owner as a home. Lutz v. Ristine, 136–684, 112 N. W. 818.

SEC. 2979. Selecting — platting — notice to plat and record. The owner, husband or wife, may select the homestead and cause it to be platted, but a failure to do so shall not render the same liable when it otherwise would not be, and a selection by the owner shall control. When selected, it shall be marked off by permanent, visible monuments, and the description thereof shall give the direction and distance of the starting point from some corner of the dwelling, which description, with the plat, shall be filed and recorded by the recorder of the proper county in the homestead book, which shall be, as nearly as may be, in the form of the record books for deeds, with an index kept in the same manner. Should the homestead not be platted and recorded at the time levy is made upon real property in which a homestead is included the officer having the execution shall give notice in writing to said owner, and the husband or wife of such owner, if found within the county to plat and record the same within ten days after service thereof; after which time said officer shall cause said homestead to be platted and recorded as above, and the expense thereof shall be added to the costs in the case. [27 G. A., ch. 98, § 1; C. '73, §§ 1998–9; R. §§ 2286–7; C. '51, §§ 1254–5.]

Where a tract of eighty acres was occupied as a homestead, and a contract to convey forty acres of it was made to a son-in-law of the owner on condition that he should build a house and live thereon, which he did, held that such contract constituted an election to regard the other forty acres of the tract as a homestead and was an abandonment of any homestead right in the tract referred to. Allbright v. Hannah, 103–98, 72 N. W. 421.

The selection of the homestead by the owner must control. Ehrck v. Ehrck, 106–614, 76 N. W. 793.

The owner may select the homestead without the consent of the husband or wife, and by a conveyance, incumbrance or contract may limit the selection by excluding from the homestead a portion of premises which might be included therein, but not necessary to its existence to the full extent allowed by law. Hall v. Gottsche, 114–147, 86 N. W. 257.

Where the owners gave notice to the sheriff as to the portion of the premises claimed as a homestead and he offers the portion not included before selling the whole, the sale is not void, although the sheriff does not plat the homestead as here required. Ackerman v. Hendricks, 117–106, 90 N. W. 522.

Where the portions of the premises not included within the homestead were offered in forty-acre tracts without bids being made, held that the sheriff was not bound to offer the entire portion of the premises not included within the homestead before proceeding to sell the entire premises. Ibid.

An execution sale of any portion of the premises which the owner might have claimed as his homestead is not valid without a platting of the homestead either by the owner or the officer making the sale. Lutz v. Ristine, 136–684, 112 N. W. 818.

The provisions as to platting are directory only, and the failure to plat does not defeat the exemption of the proceeds in the hands of the heir. In re Eash, (D. C.) 157 Fed. 996.

SEC. 2981. Changes.

The proceeds of the homestead, held by the owner for the purpose of investment in another homestead, are exempt to him under the bankrupt law. In re Johnson, 118 Fed. 312.

The proceeds of a homestead are only exempt for a reasonable time, during which they are held for the purpose of investing them in another homestead, and held that where one had sold his homestead in another state and brought the proceeds with him to this state in the shape of notes and mortgages, not being entitled under the circumstances to acquire a homestead in this state, the proceeds of the former homestead were subject to the claims of creditors. Campbell v. Campbell, 129–317, 105 N. W. 583.

What will be a reasonable time during which the homestead may be held for the purpose of exchanging it or selling it and investing the proceeds in another home, must depend on the facts of each particular case. Robinson v. Charleton, 104–296, 73 N. W. 616.

The owner of the homestead may convert it into money and hold the proceeds exempt for the purpose of procuring a new homestead, and with such proceeds may procure other property to be conveyed to his wife, although exceeding in extent that which he might retain as a homestead. The homestead being exempt from claims of creditors, no fraud upon creditors is committed if it is exchanged for other property which is taken in the name of the wife. Richards v. Orr, 118–724, 92 N. W. 655.

While the right of homestead will not attach to vacant land acquired by purchase, independently of a change of homestead, it will attach to vacant land taken in exchange for the homestead, or bought with the proceeds of the homestead, when held in good faith for use as a home. Blue v. Heilprin, 105–608, 75 N. W. 642.

The property acquired for a new homestead will not be exempt from antecedent debts except to the extent in value of the old homestead. Ibid.

A lot purchased with money previously realized by the execution of a mortgage on the homestead is not exempt under this section. Boettger v. Galloway, 115–353, 88 N. W. 831.

Creditors are not prejudiced by the exchange of a homestead which is exempt from their claims for another homestead of greater value, being entitled to subject the new homestead to the extent of the increased value to the payment of the owner's debts. Shaffer v. Chernyk, 130–686, 107 N. W. 801.

The creditors are not entitled to subject the homestead to the extent to which it has been improved after the creation of the owner's obligations to them where such improvement does not result in substantial increase in value, but consists only in rendering the premises more convenient and suitable for homestead occupation. Ibid.

Where the widow claims one third of the proceeds of her husband's estate sold for the purpose of paying debts, she cannot hold it as exempt for investment in a new homestead even though the property sold includes the homestead of her husband. Edinger v. Bain, 125–391, 98 N. W. 568, 101 N. W. 119.

One who selects a new homestead, retaining the old homestead for purpose of exchange or sale, thereby abandons the homestead exemption as to such old homestead. Stickley v. Widle, 122–400, 98 N. W. 135.

The owner who is not in the actual occupancy of premises as a homestead, but has a purpose to resume such occupancy, may show that a contract of sale is with the intention of acquiring a new homestead. Vittengl v. Vittengl, 156–41, 135 N. W. 63.

This section has no application where the question is as to when the homestead character first attached to premises in view of the nature of the occupancy thereof. Gaston v. Horn, 157– —, 138 N. W. 925.

The proceeds of the sale of a homestead are not exempt from execution unless the sale is for the purpose of procuring a new homestead and the burden of proof is upon the party claiming the exemption to show an intention to reinvest in another homestead. Clay County v. Meyers, 140 N. W. 889.

Where the owner of the homestead has invested the proceeds of the sale thereof in property situated in another state, he cannot afterwards claim an exemption in property acquired in this state by exchange for such property in another state. Dickinson v. Johnson, 142 N. W. 407.

SEC. 2985. Occupancy by surviving spouse—descent.

Election by widow: Where it does not appear that the widow has elected to take a homestead right in lieu of dower, the presumption is that she takes the dower right. Peebles v. Bunting, 103–489, 73 N. W. 882.

The fact that the widow continues to reside upon a portion of the land belonging to her husband does not constitute an election to occupy the homestead for life in lieu of dower, where it does not appear that the premises occupied by her constituted the homestead of her husband at the time of his death. Ibid.

If the widow elects to take one third in fee she cannot assert any homestead right in the portion thus set apart to her. Edinger v. Bain, 125–391, 98 N. W. 568, 101 N. W. 119.

The right to the distributive share is primary, and an election is necessary in order to retain the homestead for life. Wold v. Berkholtz, 105–370, 75 N. W. 329.

Continuance in possession for more than ten years, but under an arrangement by which the wife was asserting her right to a distributive share and not a claim to the homestead, held not sufficient to show an election of the homestead right. Ibid.

The primary right of the widow is the distributive share, and unless she does something which in law amounts to an election to take the homestead in lieu thereof, the court will award her the distributive share provided by statute. Occupancy for less than a year before commencing proceedings to recover her distributive share held not to bar her right. In re Estate of Lund, 107–264, 77 N. W. 1048.

The answer of the widow setting up the homestead character of the premises in another case in which she was not called upon to make an election between occupancy of the homestead and a distributive share held not to bar her right to the distributive share. The mere contention of the widow that she has elected to take the homestead, made before the time when she is required to make the election, will not deprive her of her distributive share. Ibid.

The primary right of the surviving spouse is to the distributive share. An election is called for when such survivor desires to take the homestead right. In a particular case held that the occupancy of the homestead was not such as to show an election to retain it in lieu of dower. The presumption of election to take the homestead, which might arise from continuance of occupancy, may be rebutted otherwise than by the actual setting apart of the distributive share. McDonald v. Young, 109–704, 81 N. W. 155.

The election of the surviving husband or wife to take the homestead in lieu of a distributive share may be found from occupancy alone, or from other testimony tending to show such purpose. Deere v. Meyer, 131–172, 108 N. W. 236.

There is no presumption that the continued occupancy of the homestead is by virtue of an election to retain the homestead for life, unless it appears that such occupancy is inconsistent with any other right to thus occupy. Percifield v. Aumick, 116–383, 89 N. W. 1101.

Long continued occupancy by a widow of her husband's homestead raises a presumption of her election to take a life interest therein rather than a distributive share of the estate, and such possession is not adverse to the heirs. Huit v. Huit, 122–338, 98 N. W. 123.

As to election between homestead and distributive share, see also notes in this supplement to code, § 3377.

The right of the survivor to elect to take the homestead for life is personal and the exercise of such right cannot be complained of by creditors, nor set aside on their application. Piekenbrock v. Knoer, 136–534, 114 N. W. 200.

The right to thus occupy the homestead is not a right which may be sold under execution. Ibid.

Upon the death of the husband the widow is entitled to possession and occupation of the homestead until it is otherwise disposed of according to law, and the probate of the will of the husband making other disposition of the homestead does not deprive her of that right. Fehd v. Oskaloosa, 139–621, 117 N. W. 989.

Under the facts of a particular case, held that retention of possession of the homestead by the widow for two and one-half years, without administration and without written notice upon her by the heirs requiring her to elect, was sufficient to show an election to retain the homestead for life in lieu of dower. Stoddard v. Kendall, 140–688, 119 N. W. 138.

While continued possession of the homestead by the widow is evidence tending to show an election to take homestead rights instead of a distributive share, it is not conclusive; and if the testimony as a whole makes it reasonably clear that while remaining in possession she continues to assert an interest in the title as distinguished from the mere right of life occupancy and use, the presumption or inference derived from the fact of continued possession is overcome. Gray v. Wright, 142–225, 119 N. W. 612.

The right of the widow in the homestead, title to which was in her deceased husband, is lost by abandonment and the person entitled to the fee of the property can at once proceed to enforce his right to its use and enjoyment unincumbered by any homestead claim. Anderson v. Blakesly, 155–430, 136 N. W. 210.

This section has special reference to cases where the spouse holding title to the homestead dies without a will, while §§ 2987 and 3270 deal more particularly with cases where the situation is affected by the existence of a will. Swisher v. Swisher, 157–55, 137 N. W. 1076.

Descent—exemption: The taking of a distributive share in the estate devests the homestead right, and the widow does not hold the distributive share thus taken exempt from liability for her debts. Benjamin v. Doerscher, 105–391, 75 N. W. 330.

The fact that the widow proposes to invest the proceeds of such distributive share in a new homestead will not exempt such proceeds from liability. Ibid.

On the death of the owner, the homestead passes to the widow and she is entitled to use and occupy it at least for one year. In re Estate of Ring, 132–216, 109 N. W. 710.

If there be no survivor of husband or wife the homestead is to descend to the issue of either according to the rules of descent and is to be held by the issue exempt from the antecedent debts of their parents and their own. Fox v. Waterloo Nat. Bank, 126–481, 102 N. W. 424.

The right of heirs to inherit the homestead free from liability for the debts of the ancestor is not dependent on any homestead right in them. If the widow continues to occupy the homestead for life the debts of the deceased owner cannot be enforced against it either as to her or as to the heirs. But if she takes a one third in fee, then so far as this one third does not include the homestead, or a portion of it, the homestead or the portion of it not so included descends to the heirs in fee free from the debts of the owner. Porter v. Perkins, 125–55, 99 N. W. 160.

Any attempted change in boundary by the surviving husband or wife after the death of the owner will not affect the interest of the heirs therein and is thus declared to be exempt from liability for debts of the owner. Ibid.

An existing obligation of the heir is an indebtedness in such sense that the heir takes the homestead exempt therefrom. Merchants' Nat. Bank v. Eyre, 107–13, 77 N. W. 498.

Where the testator devised all his property to his widow for life, with the stipulation that after her death whatever remained should be divided among certain, but not all, of his children, held that the share of the proceeds of the homestead received by each child was not exempt from execution under this section. First Nat. Bank v. Willie, 115–77, 87 N. W. 734.

The proceeds of a voluntary sale by an heir of his interest in his ancestor's homestead, in the absence of a showing of intention to reinvest such proceeds in another homestead, are not exempt from execution for his debts. Kinzer v. Stephens, 121–347, 96 N. W. 858.

The homestead exemption, being in derogation of common law, does not inure to the benefit of the heirs to whom the homestead descends, except as provided by statute. Beatty v. Wardell, 130–651, 105 N. W. 357.

Devisees of the homestead taking otherwise than in accordance with the law of descent do not hold the homestead exempt from their antecedent debts. Rice v. Burkhart, 130–520, 107 N. W. 308.

Where the owner of the homestead dies, leaving no surviving husband or wife, the heir is entitled to have his portion of the proceeds of the homestead set off for him in bankruptcy proceedings as exempt, unless such exemption has been waived. In re Eash, (D. C.) 157 Fed. 996.

Estoppel: Adjudication in a proceeding to which the wife is a party, that the property in which she claims an interest did not constitute a homestead, will estop her from asserting a homestead right in her interest therein. Atlee v. Bullard, 123–274, 98 N. W. 889.

On the death of those entitled to occupy the premises as a homestead, the title descends to the issue of the owner according to the statutory rules of descent unless otherwise directed by will, and the owner may make such disposition of the title, subject to the right of occupancy as a homestead, as he sees fit. Reilly v. Reilly, 135–440, 110 N. W. 445.

SEC. 2986. Sale for debts.

The only statutory authority for subjecting the homestead of a deceased person to the payment of general creditors is where the deceased leaves no surviving spouse and there is a failure of issue. Swisher v. Swisher, 157–55, 137 N. W. 1076.

SEC. 2987. Devise.

On the death of the owner, the homestead remains exempt from being taken for the debts of the owner save as by statute provided. Swisher v. Swisher, 157–55, 137 N. W. 1076.

This section does no more than provide that, subject to the claims of a surviving spouse, a homestead may be devised like other real estate, and such devise does not affect the exempted character of the property. Ibid.

CHAPTER 9.

OF LANDLORD AND TENANT.

SECTION 2988. Apportionment of rent.

This section relates to an apportionment of rent between the executor and the reversioner pro rata as to time and with reference to rent not accrued, that is, not due at the time of the death of the life tenant. Gudgel v. Southerland, 117–309, 90 N. W. 623.

SEC. 2991. Tenant at will—notice to quit.

One in possession with the assent of the owner, in the absence of further proof, is presumed to be a tenant at will. Fischer v. Johnson, 106–181, 76 N. W. 658.

One who goes into possession simply of the real estate of another is presumed to be a tenant in the absence of any proof to rebut such presumption. Heddleston v. Stoner, 128–525, 105 N. W. 56.

Where a tenant continues to occupy the premises with the assent of the landlord, such occupancy will be deemed to have been under the terms and conditions of the lease creating the tenancy. Kennedy v. Iowa State Ins. Co., 119–29, 91 N. W. 831.

A tenant holding over after the expiration of his term is presumed to do so as tenant at will, and not under a covenant for renewal, unless the circumstances indicate an affirmative election to renew, rather than to hold as tenant at will. Andrews v. Marshall Creamery Co., 118–595, 92 N. W. 706.

The thirty days' notice in writing to terminate a tenancy at will is not required where the tenant does not occupy the premises with the assent of the landlord after the termination of the written lease. McClelland v. Wiggins, 109–673, 81 N. W. 156.

While at common law a tenancy from year to year might be implied from a holding over under a written lease which had expired, held that the provision of this section as to termination of a tenancy at will is applicable in such case, and while the tenant was bound to make payments according to the provisions of the written lease, the landlord did not have a lien for a longer time than that required for the termination of the tenancy by notice. German State Bank v. Herron, 111–25, 82 N. W. 430.

Under an executed contract of sale entitling the purchaser to possession, a notice to quit to a tenant in possession may properly be given by the purchaser. Willis v. Weeks, 129–525, 105 N. W. 1012.

The parties to a tenancy may by mutual consent terminate the same at pleasure, and consent may be implied from conduct. If the lessor, with knowledge of the assignment of the lease, so deals with the parties that his consent to the assignment may properly be implied, it is sufficient to terminate the liability of the assignor. Brayton v. Boomer, 131–28, 107 N. W. 1099.

Without regard to the remedy provided by forcible entry and detainer, the landlord may maintain an action in a proper case for recovery of possession. Denecke v. Miller, 142–486, 119 N. W. 380.

One who acquires title to land on the death of the owner, with knowledge that the land is in the possession of a tenant whose tenancy expires on the death of such previous owner, has the election to allow him to remain as tenant at will or by proper steps to oust him from such possession. If the tenant is allowed to remain for thirty days the owner is not entitled to his remedy to recover possession nor to an action for forcible entry and detainer without thirty days' notice to quit, or if the land be agricultural land, until March first following. Hall v. Henninger, 145–230, 121 N. W. 6.

Such owner cannot deprive the tenant of his possession without the statutory notice by instituting an action in equity for injunction. Ibid.

In the absence of any express agreement as to the time when rent should be paid, the termination of the term gives the landlord only the right to make demand for payment and does not fix the time of performance. Warner v. Shaffer, 152–565, 132 N. W. 964.

The duration of a tenancy at will at any moment is the period in which it may be terminated on notice. Wixom v. Hoar, 139 N. W. 890.

One in possession with the consent of the owner is presumptively a tenant at will, but he may show that he is a tenant for years. Halligan v. Frey, 141 N. W. 944.

SEC. 2992. Landlord's lien.

Rent payable: When no time for payment of rent is fixed, it is not payable until the end of the term. Ingram v. Dailey, 123–188, 98 N. W. 627.

Nature and extent: The lien attaches to crops grown upon the leased premises, whether they are exempt from execution or not. The provision that the lien does not apply to property exempt from execution relates only to "any other personal property of the tenant which has been used on the premises during the term." Hipsley v. Price, 104–282, 73 N. W. 584.

The lien commences as soon as the property intended to be kept on the premises as a part of the business of the tenant is brought thereon, and attaches to the property so brought as security for the payment of the rent for the entire term. Des Moines Nat. Bank v. Council Bluffs Sav. Bank, 150 Fed. 301.

Where the tenant, who subsequently became a bankrupt, retained possession after the termination of the lease under a contract to purchase, held that the landlord thereafter had no lien on the tenant's personal property for subsequently accruing rent on nonperformance of the contract of sale, which was enforceable against the bankrupt's assets. Ibid.

Where the landlord seeks to establish a lien as to property owned by the lessee and used on the demised premises, the burden is not on him to show also that such property is not exempt from execution for the debts of the tenant, the grantee of such property relying upon the exemption. Hays v. Berry, 104–455, 73 N. W. 1028.

The lien attaches for the rent of the entire term, although it can only be enforced for the rent due, but as to the entire rent provided for by the lease the indebtedness is absolute, though not yet due. Brown v. Cairns, 107–727, 77 N. W. 478.

The fact that the landlord reserves the right to sell the entire premises, or a part thereof, with the condition that the rent shall be abated accordingly, does not prevent the entire rent being an indebtedness when the lease is entered into. Ibid.

A landlord cannot assert a lien for other indebtedness than that arising from the renting of the premises for the time covered by the lease, and if he attempts to do so in such a way as to render it impracticable to determine what amount is due for the leased premises, he forfeits his entire lien. First Nat. Bank v. Flynn, 117–493, 91 N. W. 784.

The landlord has no right to the possession of the tenant's property under his lien until some part of the rent is actually due. Hilman v. Brigham, 117–70, 90 N. W. 491.

The lien for rent under an occupancy at will resulting from possession after the termination of a written lease attaches only for the length of time necessary to end a tenancy by notice, and not for an entire year, although the tenant has been holding over for more than a year, and the landlord's lien in such case is therefore inferior to a chattel mortgage executed on the tenant's property after the termination of the written lease and prior to the accrual of the rent for which the landlord's lien is claimed. German State Bank v. Herron, 111–25, 82 N. W. 430.

The landlord having a lien on the tenant's property may sue for its conversion. Church v. Bloom, 111–319, 82 N. W. 794.

The landlord will not be estopped from asserting his lien as against a purchaser from the tenant by reason of having previously failed to object to similar sales during the existence of prior leases, at least without knowledge of such previous sales being brought home to him. Ibid.

The landlord following the proceeds of the property on which he has a lien is confined to his remedy against the person receiving such proceeds and cannot recover for conversion as against one for whose benefit as surety such proceeds have been used. Overholser v. Christensen, 133–129, 110 N. W. 321.

The landlord may by his conduct estop himself by relying on his lien as against a purchaser from the tenant, but to constitute such estoppel it must appear that the purchaser has by payment, or otherwise, put himself in such a position as to suffer damage or injury from the action of the landlord in attempting to enforce his lien. Gardner v. Roach, 111–413, 82 N. W. 897.

The individual property of one member of a firm, which property is used and kept on the leased premises, is not subject to a landlord's lien for rent due from the firm. The lien and the remedy given the landlord are purely statutory, and the landlord must avail himself of them just as they are given. Ward v. Walker, 111–611, 82 N. W. 1028.

Creditors claiming a lien upon a stock of goods of the tenant by a bill of sale and who do not take possession of the stock under such sale, are not personally liable to the landlord for rent as to which he has a lien on such stock. Hartwig v. Iles, 131–501, 109 N. W. 18.

The landlord's lien does not include the right to possession of personal property as against either the tenant or one claiming through him, and he cannot maintain replevin against an attaching creditor. Remington Typewriter Co. v. McArthur, 145–57, 123 N. W. 760.

The lien for rent attaches, as between landlord and tenant, under a tenancy at will, and in case of the bankruptcy of the tenant, the landlord has a preferred claim, under such lien, against the bankrupt's goods not exempt from execution. In re Hersey, (D. C.) 171 Fed. 1001.

A claim for rent accruing after the bankruptcy of the lessee, under a lease authorizing the lessor to reënter on default of rent and to recover possession by statutory action, is not a "debt absolutely owing" to the lessor at the time of such bankruptcy, and the lessor is not entitled to a lien for the rent thus to accrue. In re Abrams, (D. C.) 200 Fed. 1005.

Priority: A purchaser from the tenant of property used on the premises during the term takes subject to the lien of the landlord and cannot claim protection as a purchaser without notice. Hays v. Berry, 104–455, 73 N. W. 1028.

One purchasing products of the farm from a subtenant takes subject to the landlord's lien against the original tenant. Beck v. Minnesota & Western Grain Co., 131–62, 107 N. W. 1032.

Demand by the landlord against such purchaser is necessary before maintaining action against him for conversion. But such demand may be made by an agent. Ibid.

The period within which suit must be brought to enforce the landlord's lien as against a purchaser from the subtenant is to be determined by the terms of the landlord's contract with the original tenant. Ibid.

Where, in a proceeding to enforce a landlord's lien by attachment, employes of the tenant properly file their claims, under the provisions of code § 4022, such claims take priority over the landlord's lien. Stuart v. Twining, 112–154, 83 N. W. 891.

Where exempt property covered by a chattel mortgage was left on the premises by the tenant at the end of his term, held that the landlord acquired no lien thereon as against the mortgagee. Bacon v. Carr, 112–193, 83 N. W. 957.

A valid mortgage on personal property of a tenant, executed before the commencement of the term, creates a lien superior to that of the landlord. Gasnick v. Steffensen, 112–688, 84 N. W. 945.

Where a chattel mortgage on the property of the tenant is foreclosed, the landlord's lien may be satisfied out of the proceeds of the sale. Dowie v. Christen, 115–364, 88 N. W. 830.

Where machinery was sold to the tenant and set up on the premises under an agreement that a chattel mortgage should be executed for the purchase price when the machinery was set up and accepted, held that such chattel mortgage took priority over the landlord's lien. Davis Gasoline Engine Works Co. v. McHugh, 115–415, 88 N. W. 948.

A purchase money mortgage given by a tenant as a part of the transaction for purchase by him of property taken onto the leased premises, is a prior lien to the landlord's claim for future accruing rent. Arnold v. Hewitt, 128–671, 104 N. W. 843.

Injunction: A landlord is entitled to an injunction to restrain the removal from the premises of property thereon to the prejudice of his lien, without a showing that the tenant is insolvent. Wallin v. Murphy, 117–640, 91 N. W. 930.

The landlord is entitled to an injunction to protect his lien only as against some threatened interference therewith which impairs his security. Stoaks v. Stoaks, 146–61, 124 N. W. 757.

Attachment: Where rent has accrued, the landlord may resort to his remedy by attachment, following the procedure prescribed for ordinary attachments, and is not liable for wrongfully suing out an attachment, even though by reason of a counterclaim, which is subsequently pleaded, no judgment for rent is secured. Smeaton v. Cole, 120–368, 94 N. W. 909.

In an action to enforce the landlord's lien by attachment, the tenant cannot interpose by way of counterclaim a claim for wrongful and malicious suing out of attachment. Ingram v. Dailey, 123–188, 98 N. W. 627.

The remedy by attachment is not compulsory. The landlord does not owe the tenant the duty of enforcing his lien against any specific portion of the property subject thereto nor does he deprive himself of the right to enforce his lien against property on which there is a junior incumbrance by omitting to enforce it against property not subject to such incumbrance. The doctrine of marshaling assets has no application in such case. Citizens Savings Bank v. Wood, 134–232, 111 N. W. 929.

Although the lien of the landlord is prior to the lien of a subsequent attachment as to property not exempt from execution, yet if the attachment claim can be satisfied without impairing the security of the landlord under his lien the court may properly order the sale of the property under the attachment notwithstanding the intervention of the landlord, asserting his lien. Stoaks v. Stoaks, 146–61, 124 N. W. 757.

In an attachment proceeding to enforce the landlord's lien, labor claims as provided in code § 4022 take priority over the landlord's lien. Snyder v. Carson, 155–552, 136 N. W. 653.

Waiver: If the landlord takes a mortgage on the property as a security for rent and other indebtedness, he waives his statutory lien for rent, and will not be entitled to enforce such lien against the property in the hands of the tenant's trustee in bankruptcy. In re Wolf, 98 Fed. 74.

But the fact that there is a stipulation in the lease giving the landlord a lien in the nature of a mortgage upon exempt property of the tenant as security for the rent will not constitute a waiver of the statutory lien. Ladner v. Balsley, 103–674, 72 N. W. 787.

While the landlord may enforce his lien as against a purchaser from the tenant without notice, yet this right may be waived by an agent having apparent authority to represent him with reference to his interest in the property. Fishbaugh v. Spunaugle, 118–337, 92 N. W. 58.

No consideration for such waiver is necessary to support it as to a third party who acts in reliance thereon. Ibid.

SEC. 2993. Attachment.

The landlord's lien gives a right to the landlord to resort to appropriate proceedings to the property of the tenant subject to such lien to satisfy his demand for rent due, but the landlord is not bound to resort to an attachment for the preservation or enforcement of his lien. Staber v. Collins, 124–543, 100 N. W. 527.

No attachment can issue for the enforcement of the landlord's lien for rent not due. Gray v. Bremer, 122–110, 97 N. W. 991.

Where the landlord has several distinct causes of action against his tenant, only one of which is for rent, and he has blended his claims into one, he thereby waives the right to attachment. Ladner v. Balsley, 103–674, 72 N. W. 787.

While another action cannot be joined in a petition to enforce a landlord's lien for rent, yet where the tenant interposes a counterclaim, plaintiff may in reply set up other demands against the tenant which could not have been joined with the original cause of action. Illsly v. Grayson, 105–685, 75 N. W. 518.

A counterclaim for wrongful and malicious suing out of a landlord's attachment cannot be interposed in the action in which the attachment is sought. Ingram v. Dailey, 123–188, 98 N. W. 627.

One who takes a mortgage on chattel property which is subject to a landlord's lien may take possession of the property under his mortgage so long as the landlord has not proceeded to enforce his lien by attachment of the property, but such attachment entitles the landlord to possession as against such mortgagee and he may under the attachment proceedings seize the property although the mortgagee has taken possession under the mortgage. Brody v. Cohen, 106–309, 76 N. W. 682.

An allegation that the sale of property by a tenant was fraudulent is immaterial, inasmuch as even a bona fide sale would not defeat the lien of the landlord's attachment. The landlord is not entitled to remedy by landlord's attachment as to property not subject to the landlord's lien. Hillman v. Brigham, 110–220, 81 N. W. 451.

Actual damages suffered by reason of the levy of a landlord's writ of attachment sued out when nothing is owing as rent may be recovered as against the landlord suing out the attachment. Sigler v. Murphy, 107–128, 77 N. W. 577.

The limitation of the lien which is sought to be enforced is applicable to an action for damages against a third party for the appropriation of the property which is subject to the lien. The action by the landlord against the purchaser of the property from the tenant is regarded as a method of enforcement of the landlord's lien. Boyd v. Stipp, 151–276, 131 N. W. 22.

CHAPTER 10.

OF WALLS IN COMMON.

SECTION 2994. Resting wall on neighbor's land.

The terms "wall in common" and "party wall" are used synonymously, and neither term is of particular value in determining the meaning of the statutes relating to party walls. The words "party wall" may mean a wall of which the adjoining owners are tenants in common, and the words "wall in common" may mean a wall possessed in severalty by such owners. Primarily either term means a wall for the common benefit and convenience of both tenements which it separates. Lederer v. Colonial Investment Co., 130–157, 106 N. W. 357.

The statutory provisions as a whole are not to be construed so as to entitle either of the adjoining owners to extend his joists or timbers into the common wall beyond its center. Ibid.

Where the entire party wall erected by one owner is covered by and contributes to the support of a building subsequently erected by the adjoining owner, the latter is bound to pay for his share of the wall erected by the former. Monroe Lodge v. Albia State Bank, 112–487, 84 N. W. 682.

Where the first owner builds his wall of the material and dimensions required by the statute, and sufficient to carry his own and a similar building that may be erected by the adjoining proprietor, he is entitled to compensation for the share of the wall so erected, even though a cheaper wall would have been sufficient for the purpose of the adjoining owner. Ibid.

The fact that the wall stands on the boundary line between owners is of itself sufficient to put all parties on inquiry as to the rights of the respective owners, and neither is required to notify the grantees of the other that he claims an interest in the wall. Howell v. Goss, 128–569, 105 N. W. 61.

When a party wall is destroyed as the natural result of the action of the elements, and without fault of one owner, he is under no obligation to contribute to the rebuilding of the wall. There is no implication of a mutual easement of perpetual support applicable to future structures. Jackson v. Bruns, 129–616, 106 N. W. 1.

Under the provision that an adjoining owner may have the wall erected on the boundary line made a party wall by paying half of the present value, the right to an accounting for the use of such party wall accrues at the time such use commences. Pier v. Salot, 134–357, 111 N. W. 989.

Where one owning a building sells to an adjoining owner the right to use the wall of such building as a party wall, it is to be presumed that the grantor acquiesced in the wall as the boundary line between the two premises. Younker v. White, 136–23, 111 N. W. 824.

The burden of a party wall resting in part on the property of an owner who does not make use thereof is one imposed by law for the general public benefit and incident to the ownership of the property. It is not an incumbrance but a public burden subject to which the owner acquires his rights. Percival v. Colonial Inv. Co., 140–275, 115 N. W. 941.

The building of a wall on the boundary line is not only indicative of the intent to hold title at least to the center of the wall, but, when erected without complaint of the owner, is strong evidence that it was on the true line. Capital City Inv. Co. v. Burnham, 143–134, 121 N. W. 708.

SEC. 2995. Contribution by adjoining owner.

It is one half of the appraised value of the wall at the time the adjoining proprietor uses it that is to be charged to him, not its value to him, but its value as a common wall. Ordinarily such value is arrived at by ascertaining the reasonable cost of the wall and deducting for any depreciation that may have occurred before the same is used by the contiguous owner. Monroe Lodge v. Albia State Bank, 112–487, 84 N. W. 682.

SEC. 2996. Openings—presumption.

This section does not prohibit the construction of a party wall with a view to an opening therein in the future. Schoemaker v. Wallace, 154–236, 134 N. W. 740.

SEC. 2997. Repairs—expense apportioned.

Where the wall is torn down and rebuilt by one of the owners, not because of its defective condition, but in order to extend it to a greater height, the other owner is not bound to contribute to the expense unless he makes use of the additional height to his own advantage. Howell v. Goss, 128–569, 105 N. W. 61.

SEC. 2998. Beams, joists and flues.

The right to build a wall in part upon adjoining property and the right of the adjoining owner to make it a wall in common by paying a portion of the value thereof are both acquired by statute and cannot be controlled by contract. If the adjoining owner does not request flues to be constructed for his use he cannot insist upon using the flues which the builder of the wall has provided for his own use. Koolbeck v. Baughn, 126–194, 101 N. W. 860.

Neither owner has the right to so weaken the wall as to render it insufficient or unsafe for the other's use. Lederer v. Colonial Investment Co., 130–157, 106 N. W. 357.

SEC. 2999. Height of wall—rebuilding.

Neither of the adjoining owners has a right to extend his joists or timbers beyond the center line of the common wall. Lederer v. Colonial Investment Co., 130–157, 106 N. W. 357.

Where only one of the joint owners desires to add to the height of his building, and to do this it is necessary to rebuild and enlarge the existing wall, he must do this at his own expense; but if the other joint owner subsequently desires to use the added portion of the new wall he must pay his fair proportion of the entire cost of raising and repairing. Howell v. Goss, 128–569, 105 N. W. 61.

SEC. 3000. Paying for share of adjoining wall.

An adjoining proprietor may make a wall built entirely on the other party's lands a wall in common, by complying with the statutory provisions. Lederer v. Colonial Investment Co., 130–157, 106 N. W. 357.

The grantee who first avails himself of the benefit of a party wall becomes bound to pay his share to the owner who has erected the wall, and there is no liability of the covenanting grantor who has made no use of the wall to pay the expense, either to the adjoining owner or to the grantee who has first availed himself of such benefit. Percival v. Colonial Inv. Co., 140–275, 115 N. W. 941.

A wall in common standing partly on the premises of a grantor for which payment must be made by the owner of the premises before he may avail himself of its benefits, but which has not been so used by the grantor as that he becomes liable to pay for his share thereof, does not constitute an incumbrance. Ibid.

SEC. 3001. Openings—fixtures.

The adjoining owner who subsequently asserts the right to use the party wall on payment of a portion of the cost, cannot make use of the flues which were not constructed at his request and the use of which will be detrimental to the owner who first constructed the wall. Koolbeck v. Baughn, 126–194, 101 N. W. 860.

This section recognizes the right of the adjoining owner to make openings in the party wall upon taking the necessary precautions. Schoemaker v. Wallace, 154–236, 134 N. W. 740.

SEC. 3002. Disputes—delay—bonds.

Where the parties have been unable to agree upon the value of the wall and a bond has been filed as provided in this section, one party cannot maintain an action by injunction to restrain the adjoining owner from constructing a building on his lot. Schoemaker v. Wallace, 154–236, 134 N. W. 740.

CHAPTER 11.

OF EASEMENTS IN REAL ESTATE.

SECTION 3004. Adverse possession—use.

This section relates to titles by prescription, and not to those by dedication. Hanger v. Des Moines, 109–480, 80 N. W. 549.

The adverse possession of an easement cannot be predicated on proof merely of use. It must be established by evidence independent of use that the party claimed the easement as a right. Brown v. Peck, 125–624, 101 N. W. 443.

The fact of adverse possession must be established by evidence distinct from and independent of the use of the easement, and it must also appear that the person against whom the claim is made had express notice thereof. Friday v. Henah, 113–425, 85 N. W. 768.

The mere use of a right of way over another's land with knowledge thereof on the part of the latter, but without claim of right or title, is insufficient to establish a right of way by prescription. McBride v. Bair, 134–661, 112 N. W. 169.

The provision of this section does not prevent parol evidence of an intent by the grantor to create an easement and knowledge of such intent by the grantee. O'Reagan v. Duggan, 117–612, 91 N. W. 909.

The provisions of this section are not applicable to cases where dedication is claimed, and the use of the property may be shown as indicating such dedication. Dodge v. Hart, 113–685, 83 N. W. 1063.

To establish a highway by prescription the use must be general, uninterrupted and continuous for the full period of the statutory limitation, and something more than user must be shown. Davis v. Bonaparte, 137–196, 114 N. W. 896.

By dedication or prescription the public acquires its rights subject to such use as the property is being put to at the time. Ibid.

The mere use of a way by the public, however long continued, cannot be construed as adverse to the owner of the title. O'Malley v. Dillenbeck Lumber Co., 141–186, 119 N. W. 601.

TITLE XV.

OF TRADE AND COMMERCE.

CHAPTER 1.

OF WEIGHTS, MEASURES AND INSPECTION.

[See § 3009-t. EDITOR.]

SEC. 3009-a. Dairy and food commissioner—duties—chief inspector of weights and measures—salary—expenses. The state dairy and food commissioner is hereby charged with the duty of carrying into effect the provisions of this act and wherever the word "commissioner" is used, in this act, it shall refer to the dairy and food commissioner. The commissioner shall appoint a chief inspector of weights and measures upon approval of the executive council. The chief inspector of weights and measures shall receive a salary of not to exceed eighteen hundred dollars per annum. His salary shall be paid in the same manner as the salaries of other state officers. All inspectors shall be allowed the expenses necessarily incurred by them in the discharge of their duties. All accounts shall be itemized and sworn to and when approved by the commissioner and the executive council, shall be paid by warrant of the auditor upon the treasurer out of a sum appropriated for carrying on the work of the dairy and food commissioner. The chief inspector and all inspectors appointed under this act shall perform such duties as may be assigned by the commissioner. [35 G. A., ch. 266, § 1.]

SEC. 3009-b. State sealer of weights and measures—custodian state standards—seal—duties—assistance by state university. The commissioner shall appoint an employe of the dairy and food commission to be state sealer of weights and measures. The state sealer shall take charge of the standards of the state, causing them to be kept at the capitol in a fireproof building belonging to the state, from which they shall not be removed except for repairs or for certification, and take all other necessary precautions for their safe keeping. He shall maintain the state standards in good order, and shall submit them once in ten years to the national bureau of standards for certification. He shall keep a seal which shall be so formed as to impress the letters "Iowa" upon the weights and measures sealed by him. He shall have and keep a general supervision of the weights and measures, and the weighing and measuring devices of the state in use in the state. He shall, upon a written request of any citizen, firm or corporation, city, town or county, or educational institution of the state, test or calibrate weights, measures, weighing or measuring devices, and instruments or apparatus used as standards in this state. It is hereby made the duty of the department of physics at the state university of Iowa upon the request of the commissioner to assist the commissioner, the state sealer and all inspectors, in all such matters as may require the facilities of that laboratory or technical knowledge relating to physical measurements. [35 G. A., ch. 266, § 2.]

SEC. 3009-c. Standards shall conform to those of U. S. government. The standard weights and measures received from the United States under a resolution of congress and approved June fourteenth, eighteen hundred thirty-six, and such new weights, measures, and other apparatus in addition thereto or in renewal thereof, and such as shall be made under the direction of the commissioner in conformity therewith and certified to by the national bureau of standards, shall be the state standards. [35 G. A., ch. 266, § 3.]

SEC. 3009-d. Standard measures of length and surface. The units or standard measures of length and surface from which all other measures of extension, whether lineal, superficial or solid, shall be derived and ascertained, are the standards of length designated in this act. For measures of cloth and other commodities commonly sold by the yard, the yard may be divided into halves, quarters, eighths, and sixteenths. The rod, pole, or perch contains five and one-half yards; the mile, one thousand seven hundred sixty yards. A chain for measuring land is twenty-two yards long and is divided into one hundred equal parts called links. The acre for land[1] measure shall be measured horizontally and contain ten square chains, equivalent in area to a rectangle sixteen rods in length and ten rods in breadth; six hundred forty acres being contained in a square mile. [35 G. A., ch. 266, § 4.]

SEC. 3009-e. Standards of weight. The units or standards of weight, from which all other weights shall be derived and ascertained, shall be the standard weights designated in this act. The hundred-weight consists of one hundred avoirdupois pounds and twenty hundred-weight are a ton. Whenever, hereafter, in this act, the word "pound" is used, it shall mean the avoirdupois pound unless otherwise distinctly specified. [35 G. A., ch. 266, § 5.]

SEC. 3009-f. Standards for commodities not liquid. The units or standards or measure of capacity for commodities not liquids, from which all other measures shall be derived and ascertained, shall be the standards for such commodities designated in this act. The peck, half-peck, quarter-peck, quart, pint, and half-pint, measures for measuring commodities which are not liquids, shall be derived from the half-bushel by successively dividing the cubic inch capacity of that measure by two. [35 G. A., ch. 266, § 6.]

SEC. 3009-g. Liquid measures. The units or standards of measure of capacity for liquids, from which all other measures shall be derived and ascertained, shall be the standard liquid measures designated in this act. The gallon shall be divided by continual division by the number two, so as to make half-gallons, quarts, pints, half-pints and gills. [35 G. A., ch. 266, § 7.]

SEC. 3009-h. Bushel measured by avoirdupois weight. Wherever any of the articles or commodities mentioned in this section shall be sold by the bushel or fractional part thereof, and no special agreement shall be made in writing, the measure thereof shall be ascertained by avoirdupois weight, and shall be computed as follows:

Apples ..... forty-eight pounds;
Apples, dried ..... twenty-four pounds;
Alfalfa seed ..... sixty pounds;

Barley ..... forty-eight pounds;
Beans, green, unshelled ..... fifty-six pounds;
Beans, dried ..... sixty pounds;
Beans, Lima ..... fifty-six pounds;

SEC. 3009-i. Small fruit—onion sets—capacity of boxes. All sales of blackberries, blueberries, cranberries, currants, gooseberries, raspberries, cherries, strawberries, and similar berries, also onion sets, in packages of one peck or less, may be sold by the quart, pint, or half-pint, dry measure; and all berry boxes sold, used, or offered for sale, within the state shall be of an interior capacity of not less than one quart, pint, or half-pint, dry measure. Any berry boxes or measures not conforming to this section shall be confiscated by the inspector. The provisions of this section shall not be applicable until October first, nineteen hundred thirteen. [35 G. A., ch. 266, § 9.]

SEC. 3009-j. Violations—exceptions permitted—written statement of weight and price—bottomless measures. All dry commodities, weighing ten ounces or more, except drugs, section comb honey and those specified in section nine, shall be bought or sold only by standard weight or numerical count, lineal measure or surface measure, except where parties otherwise agree in writing. Whenever any product is sold and the selling price is determined other than by numerical count, lineal or surface measure, and the product does not have the net weight plainly written, stamped or printed thereon, the seller shall at the time of delivery, upon the request of the purchaser, furnish a plainly written or printed statement showing the name of the article sold, the quantity in net weight thereof, and the price paid for each item. Any person, firm or corporation, who sells, barters or trades, a less weight or amount to a purchaser than that which is asked for or agreed upon, of any article or commodity, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be punished as herein provided. Provided, however, that reasonable variations shall be permitted, and tolerances and exemptions as to small packages shall be established, by rules and regulations made by the state dairy and food commissioner. The use of bottomless measures is hereby declared a violation of this act, unless they conform in shape to the United States standard measure. [35 G. A., ch. 266, § 10.]

SEC. 3009-k. Milk bottles—capacity—how marked. Bottles used for the sale of milk and cream shall be of a capacity of one half-gallon, three pints, one quart, one pint, one half-pint, one gill, filled full to the bottom of the lip. Bottles or jars used for the sale of milk shall have clearly blown or otherwise permanently marked in the side of the bottle, the capacity of the bottle, and, on the bottom of the bottle, the name, initials, or trade-mark of the manufacturer, and designating number, which designating number shall be different for each manufacturer and may be used in identifying bottles. The designating number shall be furnished by the commissioner on request. The state sealer shall not be required to seal bottles or jars for milk or cream, marked as in this section provided, but[1] the inspectors shall from time to time make tests of individual bottles in use, in order to ascertain whether the above provisions are being complied with. [35 G. A., ch. 266, § 11.]

SEC. 3009-l. Coal—charcoal—coke—sale and delivery tickets. It shall be unlawful to sell or offer to sell in this state any coal, charcoal, or coke in any other manner than by weight. No person, firm or corporation shall deliver any coal, charcoal, or coke, without each such delivery being accompanied by a delivery ticket and a duplicate thereof, on each of which shall be in ink or other indelible substance, distinctly expressed in pounds, the gross weight of the load, the tare of the delivering vehicle, and the net amount in weight of coal, charcoal or coke contained in the cart, wagon, or other vehicle used in such deliveries, with the name of the purchaser thereof and the name of the dealer from whom purchased. One of these tickets shall be surrendered by the person in charge of the load to the inspector upon demand, for his inspection, and a ticket or weight slip issued by the inspector, when the inspector desires to retain the original, shall be delivered to said purchaser of said coal, charcoal, or coke, or his agent or representative, at the time of the delivery of the fuel; and the other ticket shall be retained by the seller of the fuel. When the buyer carries away the purchase, a delivery ticket, showing the actual number of pounds delivered must be given to the purchaser at the time delivery is made. The commissioner or any of his assistants, or inspectors, are hereby empowered to compel the party or parties having charge of such coal, charcoal or coke to bring same on demand to a scale designated by the said commissioner or his assistant or inspector and weighed for the purpose of proving the true net weight of the article or commodity. [35 G. A., ch. 266, § 12.]

SEC. 3009-m. Slot or automatic weighing devices—license tag and fee. It shall be unlawful for any person, firm or corporation by himself, or as the officer, servant, agent, or employe of any person, firm or corporation to operate or use or display for use any scale or scales, known as money in the slot or automatic scale or scales or any weighing device, apparatus, or machine, which is used or intended for use to determine the weight of[1] any person or persons, where compensation is derived, or any public or custom scale for which a fee is charged or accepted for weighing, unless said scale or device is licensed by the commissioner. Upon payment of the license fee of three dollars, the commissioner shall issue a metal license tag bearing the words "Licensed by the Dairy and Food Commissioner, State of Iowa, No.....," each tag to be numbered consecutively and bear the year for which license is valid. The tag shall be displayed prominently on the front of the weighing device. Absence of the license tag shall be prima-facie evidence that the weighing device is being operated contrary to law. No license shall be issued until the annual fee of three dollars is paid to the commissioner for each scale or weighing device operated or used. Any person desiring to secure said license shall make application therefor upon blanks to be furnished by the commissioner. The commissioner may withhold or revoke any license for cause. All licenses issued under this act shall expire December thirty-first, nineteen hundred fourteen, and on December thirty-first of each year thereafter.

All license and inspection fees collected under this act shall be paid into the state treasury by the commissioner. [35 G. A., ch. 266, § 13.]

SEC. 3009-n. Inspection of scales, weights and measures—jurisdiction—fee. The commissioner and his assistants are each hereby empowered and it is hereby made their duty to make an inspection of scales, weights and measures wherever the same are kept for use in connection with the sale of merchandise or other commodities sold by weight or measurement, or where the price to be paid for producing or manufacturing any article or commodity is based upon the weight or measurement thereof, within this state. The commissioner and his assistants may, for the enforcement of this act and in the performance of their official duties, with or without formal warrant, enter or go in or upon any stand, place, building or premises; or may stop vendor, peddler, junk dealer, coal wagon, ice wagon, or any dealer whatsoever, for the purpose of making the proper tests. An inspection fee of five dollars shall be charged the person owning or operating the scales so inspected, but he shall not be required to pay more than two inspection fees in any one year. Whenever such inspection shall be made upon the complaint of any person other than the owner of the scale and upon examination the scale is found by the inspector to be in proper condition for weighing, the inspection fee of five dollars shall be paid by the person making complaint. Provided, however, no inspection fee shall be charged for the inspection of any scale of[1] less than two thousand pounds capacity. [35 G. A., ch. 266, § 14.]

SEC. 3009-o. Upon complaint. Whenever complaint shall be made to the commissioner that any false or incorrect scales, weights or measures are being made use of by any person, firm or corporation in the purchase or sale of merchandise or other commodities or in weighing any article or commodity, the piece price paid for producing which is determined by weight or measure, it shall be his duty to cause the same to be inspected as soon as the duties of his office will permit, and he shall make such other inspection of weights and measures as in his judgment is necessary or proper to be made. [35 G. A., ch. 266, § 15.]

SEC. 3009-p. Possession of false scales or measures—penalty. If any person engaged in the purchase or sale of merchandise or other commodities by weight or measurement or in the employment of labor where the price thereof is to be determined by weight or measurement of the articles or thing upon which such labor is bestowed, be found having in his place of business any scales, weights, measures or other apparatus for determining the quantity of any commodity, which do[1] not conform to the standards of weight and measurement of this state, [he] shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction shall be punished as provided in this chapter. SEC. 3009-q. Confiscation—condemnation. The inspector may confiscate and seize without warrant any incorrect scales, weights or measures or any weighing apparatus or part thereof which do[1] not conform to the state standards or upon which the license fee has not been paid. If any weighing or measuring apparatus or part thereof be found out of order the same may be tagged by the inspector "Condemned until repaired" which tag shall not be altered or removed until said apparatus is properly repaired. [35 G. A., ch. 266, § 17.]

["does" in enrolled bill. EDITOR.]

SEC. 3009-r. Violation—penalty. Any person, firm or corporation, or agent thereof, who refuses to comply on demand, with any of the requirements of this act or who shall violate any of its provisions, or who shall obstruct or hinder the commissioner, or any of his assistants, in the discharge of any duty imposed by this act, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof, shall be punished by a fine of not less than five dollars nor more than one hundred dollars, or by imprisonment in the county jail not to exceed thirty days or by both such fine and imprisonment, at the discretion of the court. [35 G. A., ch. 266, § 18.]

CHAPTER 2.

OF MONEY OF ACCOUNT AND INTEREST.

SECTION 3038. Rate of interest.

In the absence of contract to the contrary, money, after the same becomes due, bears interest at the legal rate. Kellenberger v. Oskaloosa Nat. B., L. & I. Assn., 129–582, 105 N. W. 836.

A judgment may provide for interest on costs and attorney's fees as well as on the principal sum for which the judgment is rendered. Hoyt v. Beach, 104–257, 73 N. W. 492.

In recovering judgment under a policy of accident insurance providing for the payment of a fixed sum in the event of a specified loss, and also a weekly indemnity during disability, held that judgment should not include any allowance of interest on the amount which it should be found the company was liable to pay. Hart v. National Masonic Acc. Assn., 105–717, 75 N. W. 508.

Where treble damages are allowed to be recovered by way of penalty they should not be increased by adding interest on the amount of the recovery. Blair v. Sioux City & P. R. Co., 109–369, 80 N. W. 673.

Where a claim is for unliquidated damages, interest may be taken into account as an element of damage in arriving at the sum which will be a just and lawful compensation for the injury sustained. Christie v. Iowa Life Ins. Co., 111–177, 82 N. W. 499.

Interest may be allowed on unliquidated claims wherever it appears that the damage was complete at a given time and in such case it may be proper to instruct that such interest may be allowed. Collins v. Gleason Coal Co., 140–114, 115 N. W. 497, 118 N. W. 36.

Where the instructions are such as to exclude the allowance of interest by the jury the court may add interest to the amount found by the jury as damages. Ibid.

It is erroneous for the court to direct the jury in an action to recover damages for personal injuries, that they shall allow interest upon the amount of damages awarded. Jacobson v. United States Gypsum Co., 150–330, 130 N. W. 122.

Interest does not accrue on a continuous open account without any settlement or balance being ascertained. McFarland v. McCormick, 114–368, 86 N. W. 369.

The receipt of a bank pass book, showing balance due, without objection to charges therein, amounts to an account stated. Schoonover v. Osborne, 108–453, 79 N. W. 263.

Where defendant pleaded an open account as a counterclaim in an action on a note, held that the items of the account should be credited on the note as of their respective dates, so as to obviate the accrual of interest on the note for the time during which the account would not bear interest. Tuttle v. Bisbee, 144–53, 120 N. W. 699.

In an action for money due by express contract, interest should be allowed from the time the money was due and not from a date six months after due, as in case of an open account. Enslow v. Ennis, 155–266, 135 N. W. 1105.

In an action on an administrator's bond the sureties are liable for interest from the time the administrator fails to account in accordance with the order of the court. Ellyson v. Lord, 124–125, 99 N. W. 582.

SEC. 3039. On judgments and decrees.

The rate of interest named in a contract applies after maturity as well as before without express stipulation to that effect, but a provision for semiannual rests is not applicable to interest thus allowed after the maturity of the contract in the absence of express agreement. Rew v. Independent School District, 125–28, 98 N. W. 802.

SEC. 3040. Illegal rate prohibited.

Where the agent of the lender, under the authority of his principal, receives for the benefit of the principal commission in addition to the lawful rate of interest, the contract is usurious. McNeely v. Ford, 103–508, 72 N. W. 672.

Payment by the borrower of the necessary expenses of making the loan in addition to lawful interest will not constitute usury. Iowa Sav. & L. Assn. v. Heidt, 107–297, 77 N. W. 1050.

Whether or not the contract is usurious does not depend upon the form the transaction is made to assume. Courts always look beyond the mere form and search diligently for the substance and intent, and where the lender was to have the legal rate of interest for the money loaned, and in addition thereto one half the discount which the borrower was able to secure on paying another debt by the use of the money borrowed, held that the contract was usurious. Weaver v. Burnett, 110–567, 81 N. W. 771.

Where renewal notes are given for the same debt, usury in the first or any intermediate note may be pleaded as against the last note. Polk County Sav. Bank v. Harding, 113–511, 85 N. W. 775.

Where on the renewal of a loan there is no express agreement or suggestion of any kind that the transaction is to be a settlement or composition of the borrower's claim for usury, but the net result of the transaction is to perpetuate the usurious nature of the contract, the right of the borrower to plead usury is not cut off. Hyland v. Phoenix Loan Assn., 118–401, 92 N. W. 63.

Any consideration exacted by the agent of the lender in excess of eight per cent. interest renders the contract usurious. Griswold v. Dugane, 148–504, 127 N. W. 664.

In case of fraudulent attempt to evade the usury laws, parol evidence is admissible to vary the terms of a written contract. France v. Munro, 138–1, 115 N. W. 577.

SEC. 3041. Usury—penalty.

The defense of usury is personal to the debtor and cannot be maintained by a stranger to the contract. Pardoe v. Iowa State Nat. Bank, 106–345, 76 N. W. 800.

Accordingly held that the right of action given against a national bank to recover usury paid and the penalty thereon (U. S. Rev. Stat. §§ 5197, 5198) was not available except to a party who had personally or out of his own means paid usurious interest. Ibid.

The plea of usury cannot be interposed by one who is neither a party to the contract nor authorized by the debtor to avail himself of such plea. Bacon v. Iowa Savings & Loan Assn., 121–449, 96 N. W. 977.

The defense of usury can be pleaded only by the borrower. Therefore the creditors of a bankrupt cannot set up the defense of usury against the claim of another creditor. In re Worth, 130 Fed. 927.

The defense of usury is as available to the debtor's trustee in bankruptcy as to the debtor himself. In re Stern, 144 Fed. 956.

Interest which has not been paid but only contracted for (covered for instance by notes not yet paid) cannot be recovered. Talbot v. First Nat. Bank, 106–361, 76 N. W. 726.

SEC. 3042. Assignee.

The assignee whose right is saved to plead usury under this section is one who takes in good faith and holds with no knowledge of the taint. Spinney v. Miller, 114–210, 86 N. W. 317.

CHAPTER 3.

OF NOTES AND BILLS.

SECTION 3043. Promissory notes negotiable—repealed. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 197.]

The assignment of a negotiable instrument not transferable by delivery does not make the assignee a holder in due course who is entitled to take free from defenses available against the assignor. Hecker v. Boylan, 126–162, 101 N. W. 755.

An indorser is a party to the instrument indorsed in such sense that he may be joined with the maker in an action thereon. Darling v. Blazek, 142–355, 120 N. W. 961.

SEC. 3044. Assignment of nonnegotiable instruments.

The assignee gains no better rights by reason of the assignment than his assignor had at the time the assignment was made. Miller Brewing Co. v. Hansen, 104–307, 73 N. W. 827.

The assignee of a contract has no greater rights under the assignment than his assignor would have had if he had brought the action in his own name and right. Quarton v. American Law Book Co., 143–517, 121 N. W. 1009.

Personal contracts executory in their nature and involving relations of trust and confidence are not assignable by one party to the contract without the consent of the other. Davis v. Bremer County Farmers' Mut. F. Ins. Assn., 154–326, 134 N. W. 860; Bartling v. German Mut. L. & T. Ins. Co., 154–335, 134 N. W. 864.

SEC. 3045. Payable in money or labor—duebills—repealed. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 197.]

SEC. 3046. When assignment prohibited.

This section does not apply where plaintiff is not in possession of the note on which suit is brought and the burden is upon him to show that it was transferred by the indorser while the owner thereof with intent to transfer title. Moehn v. Moehn, 105–710, 75 N. W. 521.

One who purchases a note and mortgage after maturity takes the same subject to all defenses or counterclaims of the mortgagor held against the mortgagee existing before notice of the transfer. While it is a general rule that the assignee of a mortgage securing paper overdue takes subject to all equities between the original parties, this rule does not apply to latent equities of third parties. Gibson v. McIntire, 110–417, 81 N. W. 699.

A verbal assignment of a chose in action is valid. Seymour v. Aultman, 109–297, 80 N. W. 401.

The assignee is subject to all defenses which would have been available against the assignor. Thomassen v. De Goey, 133–278, 110 N. W. 581.

A certificate of a mutual benefit association cannot be transferred to a creditor so as to give him a right to the benefit fund if it is expressly provided in the certificate that it shall be nonassignable. Crocker v. Hogin, 103–243, 72 N. W. 411.

A cause of action arising under a policy of insurance is assignable after it has accrued. McCombs v. Travelers' Ins. Co., 141 N. W. 327.

A policy in a mutual fire insurance association is not assignable before loss without the consent of the association. Davis v. Bremer County Farmers' Mut. F. Ins. Assn., 154–326, 134 N. W. 860; Bartling v. German Mut. L. & T. Ins. Co., 154–335, 134 N. W. 864.

Section applied. Spinney v. Miller, 114–210, 86 N. W. 317.

SEC. 3047. Open account assignable. An open account of sums of money due on contract may be assigned, and the assignee will have a right of action thereon in his own name, subject to such defenses and counterclaims as are allowed against the instruments mentioned in the preceding section, before notice of such assignment is given to the debtor in writing by the assignee. But no sale or assignment, by the head of a family, of wages, whether the same be exempt from execution or not, shall be of any validity whatever unless the same be evidenced by a written instrument, and if married, unless the husband and wife sign and acknowledge the same joint instrument before an officer authorized to take acknowledgments; and assignments of wages shall have priority and precedence in the order in which notice in writing of such assignments shall be given to the employer, and not otherwise. [31 G. A., ch. 148; 20 G. A., ch. 183, § 2; C. '73, § 2087; R. § 1799; C. '51, § 952.]

These provisions are not applicable to the assignment of a chose in action. See code §§ 3443, 3461. Peterson v. Ball, 121–544, 97 N. W. 79.

This section as amended does not give precedence to a garnishment notice over a previous assignment of which the plaintiff had no knowledge. It is sufficient to protect the assignee if the garnishee has notice of the assignment in time to interpose that fact in his answer. Steltzer v. Condon, 139–754, 118 N. W. 39.

SEC. 3049. Blank indorsement by one not party—repealed. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 197.]

A note bearing a blank indorsement by one not a party is notice to anyone discounting it that the indorser is presumably an accommodation indorser, without consideration, and hence a mere guarantor. This presumption can, however, be rebutted. Lyon v. First Nat. Bank, 85 Fed. 120.

SEC. 3050. Grace—notice—repealed. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 197.]

SEC. 3051. What entitled to grace—repealed. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 197.]

Under code § 3051 grace was allowed only on negotiable paper. Kilmer v. Gallaher, 116–666, 88 N. W. 959.

Days of grace are now abolished by the negotiable instruments act. See supp. § 3060-a85.

SEC. 3053. Holidays. The first day of the week, called Sunday, the first day of January, the twelfth day of February, the twenty-second day of February, the thirtieth day of May, the fourth day of July, the first Monday in September, the twenty-fifth day of December, the day of general election, and any day appointed or recommended by the governor of this state or by the president of the United States as a day of fasting or thanksgiving, shall be regarded as holidays for all purposes relating to the presentation for payment or acceptance, and for the protesting and giving notice of the dishonor of bills of exchange, drafts, bank checks, orders and promissory notes, and any blank or mercantile paper falling due on any of the days above named shall be considered as falling due on the succeeding business day. [33 G. A., ch. 193, § 1.] [23 G. A., ch. 45; 18 G. A., ch. 31; C. '73, § 2094.]

Sunday or any other day mentioned by this section as a holiday should not be excluded in estimating the three days within which a motion for new trial is to be filed. German Sav. Bank v. Cady, 114–228, 86 N. W. 277.

The days enumerated in this section as holidays with reference to presentation and dishonor of negotiable paper are also holidays within the provisions of code § 2448, par. 9, forbidding sales of intoxicating liquors to be made on any legal holiday. See also code § 3541, relating to appearance in an action. Brennan v. Roberts, 125–615, 101 N. W. 460.

Although the statute permits notice by mail to indorsers, the law requires presentment and demand in person, and letters written to the maker before the day of maturity demanding payment will not constitute sufficient demand to hold an indorser. Closz v. Miracle, 103–198, 72 N. W. 502.

SEC. 3055. Damages—exchange—repealed. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 197.]

SEC. 3056. When demand necessary.

This provision has no reference to the question as to admissibility of parol evidence to fix the time for performance of such contract. Ingram v. Dailey, 123–188, 98 N. W. 627.

In an action for failure to deliver property in compliance with a contract providing for payment to be made in property, demand for the property must be proved. Newburn v. Hyde, 132–88, 107 N. W. 604.

A stipulation in a mortgage to keep the premises insured is not a promise to pay property in such sense that demand is essential to constitute a breach of the condition. Moore v. Crandall, 146–25, 124 N. W. 812.

A demand for rent is necessary where no time is fixed in the contract for its payment. Warner v. Shaffer, 152–565, 132 N. W. 964.

SEC. 3060-a. Repeal. The following enumerated sections of title fifteen, chapter three, of the code are hereby repealed: Sections three thousand and forty-three, three thousand and forty-five, three thousand and forty-nine, three thousand and fifty, three thousand and fifty-one, three thousand and fifty-two, three thousand and fifty-four, and three thousand and fifty-five. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 197.]

CHAPTER 3-A.

OF NEGOTIABLE INSTRUMENTS.

FORM AND INTERPRETATION.

SECTION 3060-a1. Form of negotiable instrument. An instrument to be negotiable must conform to the following requirements:

1. It must be in writing and signed by the maker or drawer.
2. Must contain an unconditional promise or order to pay a sum certain in money.
3. Must be payable on demand or at a fixed or determinable future time.
4. Must be payable to the order of a specified person or to bearer; and,
5. Where the instrument is addressed to a drawee, he must be named or otherwise indicated therein with reasonable certainty. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 1.]

Iowa: A certificate of deposit, payable on a day certain in the future, is negotiable. Bean v. Briggs, 1–488; likewise municipal bonds, Callahan v. Brown, 31–333; Clapp v. Cedar County, 5–15; Griffith v. Burden, 35–138; but a land warrant is not, Fort v. Wilson, 3–153; nor a school order, Nat. State Bk. v. Ind. Dist., 39–490; Shepard v. Dist. Twp., 22–595; Clark v. Des Moines, 19–199.

(1) Other states: The writing may be in pencil. Brown v. Butchers' Bank, 6 Hill, 443.

(2) See § 3060-a3.

May designate particular kind of money. See § 3060-a6, subdivision 5.

(Code § 3045, which permitted the instrument to be made payable in money or labor, is repealed.)

(3) As to when it is payable on demand, see § 3060-a7. When at a future time, see § 3060-a4.

(4) As to when it is payable to order, see § 3060-a8.

For additional citation of authorities see Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (3 Ed.), § 20.

(5) See § 3060-a126.

SEC. 3060-a2. Certainty as to sum—what constitutes. The sum payable is a sum certain within the meaning of this act although it is to be paid:

1. With interest; or
2. By stated installments; or
3. By stated installments, with a provision that upon default in payment of any installment, the whole shall become due; or
4. With exchange, whether at a fixed rate or at the current rate; or
5. With costs of collection or an attorney's fee, in case payment shall not be made at maturity. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 2.]

(2) Other states: Markey v. Corey, 108 Mich. 184; Wright v. Irwin, 33 Mich. 32.

(4) Iowa: This changes the rule in Iowa. Culbertson v. Nelson, 93–187.

Other states: In support of the rule adopted by the act, see Second Nat. Bk. v. Basuier, 65 Fed. 58; Hastings v. Thompson, 54 Minn. 184; Flagg v. School Dist., 4 N. D. 30.

(5) Iowa: See Bank v. Marsh, 89–273; Sperry v. Horr, 32–184. Amount is not rendered uncertain by stipulation that it may be reduced by showing overcharge. Green v. Austin, 7–521.

Other states: The rule adopted by the act is sustained by a great weight of authority outside of the decisions of this state. For some of them, supporting the rule, see Bank v. Sutton Mfg. Co., 6 U. S. App. 312, 331; Dorsey v. Wolff, 142 Ill. 589; Stoneman v. Pyle, 35 Ind. 103; Heard v. Dubuque Bk., 8 Neb. 10; Stark v. Olson, 44 Neb. 646.

For other authorities see Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (3 Ed.), § 21.

An instrument is not rendered nonnegotiable by being made payable in "New York or Chicago Exchange." Security Trust Co. v. Des Moines County, (C. C.) 198 Fed. 331.

SEC. 3060-a3. When promise is unconditional. An unqualified order or promise to pay is unconditional within the meaning of this act, though coupled with:

1. An indication of a particular fund out of which reimbursement is to be made, or a particular account to be debited with the amount; or

2. A statement of the transaction which gives rise to the instrument. But an order or promise to pay out of a particular fund is not unconditional. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 3.]

(1) For authorities see Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (3 Ed.), § 22.

(2) Iowa: Changes the rule in Iowa. Charlton v. Reed, 61–166; Knepper v. Chase, 7–145. See Miller v. Poage, 56–96.

Other states: In Mott v. Havana Nat. Bk., 22 Hun. 354, it is held that the clause, "in part payment for a portable engine, which engine shall be and remain the property of the owner of this note until the amount hereby secured is paid" did not destroy its negotiable character. The same as to a note containing provision "given in consideration of a certain patent right." Hereth v. Meyer, 33 Ind. 511.

For additional citation of authorities see Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (3 Ed.), § 22.

A provision in an insurance premium note that in case of the death of the insured before its maturity, the amount thereof with interest shall be deducted from the amount payable under the policy, held not to render the note nonnegotiable. Union Bank v. Spies, 151–178, 130 N. W. 928.

SEC. 3060-a4. Determinable future time—what constitutes. An instrument is payable at a determinable future time, within the meaning of this act, which is expressed to be payable:

1. At a fixed period after date or sight; or

2. On or before a fixed or determinable future time specified therein; or

3. On or at[1] a fixed period after the occurrence of a specified event, which is certain to happen, though the time of happening be uncertain.

An instrument payable upon a contingency is not negotiable, and the happening of the event does not cure the defect. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 4.]

(2) Other states: See Mattison v. Marks, 31 Mich. 421; Buchanan v. Wren (Tex.), 30 S. W. 1077; Albertson v. Laughlin, 173 Pa. St. 525.

(3) Iowa: A note is not negotiable if made to mature when convenient. Works v. Hershey, 35–340; or at the option of the maker, Woodbury v. Roberts, 58–348.

Other states: A note payable in a certain number of days after the death of the maker, or upon demand after the death of the maker, is a good promissory note, because the event is sure to happen. Carnwright v. Gray, 127 N. Y. 92; Hegeman v. Moon, 131 N. Y. 462; Shaw v. Camp, 160 Ill. 425. But one payable when, or in a certain number of days after, "A shall become of age" is not negotiable, because uncertain as to whether A will live so long. Goss v. Nelson, 1 Burr, 226. Likewise one payable when a certain ship shall arrive. Coolidge v. Ruggles, 15 Mass. 387.

For other authorities see Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (3 Ed.), § 23.

(4) Iowa: No time of payment being specified, it is presumptively payable on demand. Bank v. Price, 52–570.

The provisions of this section recognize the right of the parties to an instrument to contract for their mutual benefit so that if the contract made is certainly to be performed at some definite time in the future its negotiability is not destroyed. The contingency which will render a note nonnegotiable under the last clause of this section clearly means an event which may or may not happen. State Bank v. Bilstad, 136 N. W. 204.

A note given in connection with a chattel mortgage securing it which provides that the whole amount shall become due in case of the removal of the property from the county without the consent of the mortgagee or in case the mortgagee deems himself insecure, is an instrument payable on a contingency and is not negotiable. Iowa National Bank v. Carter, 144–715, 123 N. W. 237.

SEC. 3060-a5. Additional provisions not affecting negotiability. An instrument which contains an order or promise to do an act in addition to the payment of money is not negotiable. But the negotiable character of an instrument otherwise negotiable is not affected by a provision which:

1. Authorizes the sale of collateral securities in case the instrument be not paid at maturity; or
2. Authorizes a confession of judgment if the instrument be not paid at maturity; or
3. Waives the benefit of any law intended for the advantage or protection of the obligor; or
4. Gives the holder an election to require something to be done in lieu of payment of money.

But nothing in this section shall validate any provision or stipulation otherwise illegal. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 5.]

(1) Iowa: Coupling mortgage with a negotiable note, authorizing mortgagee to take possession of chattel, but not to sell until after maturity of note, does not destroy negotiability. Bank v. Taylor, 67–572; distinguishing Smith v. Marlin, 59–645, holding provision by which debt was liable to be diminished before maturity destroyed negotiability.

Other states: A mere statement that collateral security has been deposited for the performance of the promise contained in the note does not affect its negotiability. Wise v. Charlton, 4 A. & E. 486; Fancourt v. Thorne, 9 Q. B. 312. And so with a provision authorizing sale of collateral if note be dishonored. Perry v. Bigelow, 128 Mass. 129; Towne v. Rice, 122 Mass. 67; Biegler v. Merchants' L. & T. C., 62 Ill. App. 560. The contrary is held as to this clause, "given as collateral security with agreement." Costello v. Crowell, 127 Mass. 293.

(2) Iowa: Provision authorizing attorney to confess judgment is illegal and no part of note, and therefore does not destroy negotiability. Tolman v. Janson, 106–455.

This provision meets the requirements of some of the states where judgment notes are in use.

(3) Other states: This provision is designed to meet the practice in some states of inserting waiver of the benefits of homestead and exemption laws. See Zimmerman v. Anderson, 67 Pa. St. 421.

(4) Other states: If the obligation to the maker to pay in money is certain, the right of the holder to elect to take payment in something other than money will not destroy its negotiable character. Hodges v. Shuler, 22 N. Y. 114.

See notes Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (3 Ed.), § 24.

An insurance premium note may be made payable, in the event of the death of the insured, out of the insurance, without affecting its negotiability. Union Bank v. Spies, 151–178, 130 N. W. 928.

SEC. 3060-a6. Omissions — seal — particular money. The validity and negotiable character of an instrument are not affected by the fact that:

1. It is not dated; or
2. Does not specify the value given, or that any value has been given therefor; or
3. Does not specify the place where it is drawn or the place where it is payable; or
4. Bears a seal; or
5. Designates a particular kind of current money in which payment is to be made.

But nothing in this section shall alter or repeal any statute requiring in certain cases the nature of the consideration to be stated in the instrument. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 6.]

(1) Other states: See § 3060-a17, subdiv. 3. True date may be shown by parol evidence between the immediate parties. Bigge v. Piper, 86 Tenn., 589.

(2) Other states: "Value received" not necessary. Daniel on Neg. Insts., § 108.

(3) See §§ 3060-a3, 3060-a28, 3060-a77.

(4) Iowa: See Temple v. Hayes, Morris, 9.

Other states: Corporate seal does not destroy negotiable character. Chase Nat. Bk. v. Faurot, 149 N. Y. 532; Weeks v. Esler, 143 N. Y. 374. Same as to municipal bonds. Bank v. Village of Rome, 19 N. Y. 20; Mercer County v. Hacket, 1 Wall, 83.

For other authorities see Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (3 Ed.), § 25, note (d).

(5) Iowa: Note made payable in property destroys negotiability. McCartney v. Smalley, 11–85. So with one payable in currency. Rindskoff v. Barrett, 11–172; otherwise if shown that money was intended and so understood. Haddock v. Wood, 46–433; see Culbertson v. Nelson, 93–187.

Other states: A note made payable in gold coin is negotiable. Chrysler v. Griswold, 43 N. Y. 209. So one payable "in bank notes current in the city of New York." Keith v. Jones, 9 Johns, 120. One payable "in current funds at Pittsburg" held not negotiable. Wright v. Hart's Admr., 44 Pa. St. 454.

For other authorities see Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (3 Ed.), § 25, note (e).

A check payable in current funds is not a negotiable instrument. Dille v. White, 132–327, 109 N. W. 909.

SEC. 3060-a7. When payable on demand. An instrument is payable on demand:

1. Where it is expressed to be payable on demand, or at sight, or on presentation; or
2. In which no time for payment is expressed.

Where an instrument is issued, accepted or indorsed when overdue, it is, as regards the person so issuing, accepting or indorsing it, payable on demand. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 7.]

(1) For the distinctions between instruments payable on demand and those payable at sight, see Daniel on Neg. Insts., §§ 617–619, and authorities there cited.

See notes to Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (3 Ed.), § 26, note (a).

(2) Iowa: A negotiable note transferred by indorsement after maturity is, as regards the person so issuing, accepting or indorsing, payable on demand and must be presented to all the makers in person, or at their usual places of residence or business within a reasonable time after transfer, and notice of nonpayment immediately given to bind the indorser. Graul v. Strutzel, 53–712; McKewer v. Kirtland, 33–348; Pryor v. Bowman, 38–92; Blake v. McMillen, 33–150; Bank v. Orvis, 40–332; Closz & Mickelson v. Miracle, 103–198.

A draft or bill in which no time of payment is mentioned is, under the statutes, drawn payable on demand just as effectually as though the words "payable on demand" had been incorporated into it. Blank v. Price, 52–570.

Other states: As bearing on the text, see Messmore v. Morrison, 172 Pa. St. 300; James v. Brown, 11 Ohio St. 601; Libby v. Mekelborg, 28 Minn. 38; Roberts v. Snow, 28 Neb. 425.

For other authorities see Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (3 Ed.), § 26, note (b).

For other authorities relating to instruments issued, accepted or indorsed after maturity, see Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (3 Ed.), § 26, note (c).

An ordinary bank certificate of deposit is an instrument payable on demand. Anderson v. First Nat. Bank, 144–251, 122 N. W. 918.

SEC. 3060-a8. When payable to order. The instrument is payable to order where it is drawn payable to the order of a specified person or to him or his order. It may be drawn payable to the order of:

1. A payee who is not maker, drawer or drawee; or
2. The drawer or maker; or
3. The drawee; or
4. Two or more payees jointly; or
5. One or some of several payees; or
6. The holder of an office for the time being.

Where the instrument is payable to order, the payee must be named or otherwise indicated therein with reasonable certainty. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 8.]

Other states: The first clause of this section states the rule of the law merchant requiring the word "order" or other word of similar import to render the instrument negotiable. Smith v. Kendall, 6 T. R. 123; Carnwright v. Gray, 127 N. Y. 92.

See Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (3 Ed.), § 27, note (a).

(2) See § 3060-a184. A note payable to the order of the maker requires the maker's indorsement to complete the same.

(5) For illustration see Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (3 Ed.), § 27, note (c).

(6) Iowa: A collateral agreement referred to in an indorsement and specified therein does not destroy negotiability. Leland v. Parriott, 35–454; the words "et al. or order" following name of payee destroy negotiability. Gordon v. Anderson, 83–224.

Other states: A note payable to certain persons as trustees of an incorporated association, or their successors in office, is negotiable. Davis v. Gore, 6 N. Y. 124. If the identity of the payee can be ascertained with certainty it is sufficient, though not designated by name. United States v. White, 2 Hill, 59; Blackman v. Lehman, 63 Ala. 547.

Where an instrument is made payable to either one of two payees, its indorsement by either one of the payees named therein will pass title. Union Bank v. Spies, 151–178, 130 N. W. 928.

SEC. 3060-a9. When payable to bearer. The instrument is payable to bearer:

1. When it is expressed to be so payable; or
2. When it is payable to a person named therein or bearer; or
3. When it is payable to the order of a fictitious or nonexisting person, and such fact was known to the person making it so payable; or
4. When the name of the payee does not purport to be the name of any person; or
5. When the only or last indorsement is an indorsement in blank. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 9.]

(2) Iowa: A note payable to "the bearer, M. C. Murdough," is not negotiable. Warren v. Scott, 32–22.

See § 3060-a30.

(3) For a discussion and a criticism of the authorities bearing upon this division of the section by Mr. Crawford, the author of the original negotiable instruments law, see Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (3 Ed.), § 28, note (b).

(4) Other states: A check payable to "cash" or to "sundries." Willets v. Phoenix Bank, 2 Duer, 121; Mechanics' Bank v. Stratton, 2 Keyes, 365.

SEC. 3060-a10. Terms—when sufficient. The negotiable instrument need not follow the language of this act, but any terms are sufficient which clearly indicate an intention to conform to the requirements thereof.[1] [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 10.]

[1]The word "thereof" doubtless should be "hereof" to conform with the New York act, but it is "thereof" in the enrolled bill. EDITOR.]

Other states: It is not necessary that the instrument be written in the English language but it may be in a foreign language. Debebian v. Gala, 64 Md. 262, 265; and may be in pencil as well as in ink. Brown v. Butchers' Bank, 6 Hill, 443. For rule governing construction of ambiguous instruments, see § 3060-a17.

SEC. 3060-a11. Date—presumption as to. When the instrument or an acceptance or any indorsement thereon is dated, such date is deemed prima facie to be the true date of the making, drawing, acceptance or indorsement, as the case may be. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 11.]

Other states: Mistake in date may be shown between the immediate parties. Cowing v. Altman, 71 N. Y. 441. Where date is an impossible one, the law will adopt the nearest date. If dated Sept. 31, true date will be deemed to be Sept. 30. Wagner v. Kenner, 2 Rob. (La.) 120.

SEC. 3060-a12. Antedated and postdated. The instrument is not invalid for the reason only that it is antedated or postdated, provided this is not done for an illegal or fraudulent purpose. The person to whom an instrument so dated is delivered acquires the title thereto as of the date of delivery. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 12.]

Other states: A postdated bill or check may be negotiated before the day of its date. Brewster v. McCardle, 8 Wend. 478.

For other authorities see Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (3 Ed.), § 31.

SEC. 3060-a13. When date may be inserted. When an instrument expressed to be payable at a fixed period after date is issued undated, or where the acceptance of an instrument payable at a fixed period after sight is undated, any holder may insert therein the true date of issue or acceptance, and the instrument shall be payable accordingly. The insertion of a wrong date does not avoid the instrument in the hands of a subsequent holder in due course; but as to him, the date so inserted is to be regarded as the true date. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 13.]

Other states: See the following section; also see Redlich v. Doll, 54 N. Y. 238.
For other authorities see Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (3 Ed.), § 32, note (b).

SEC. 3060-a14. Blanks—when may be filled. Where the instrument is wanting in any material particular, the person in possession thereof has a prima-facie authority to complete it by filling up the blanks therein. And a signature on a blank paper delivered by the person making the signature in order that the paper may be converted into a negotiable instrument operates as a prima-facie authority to fill it up as such for any amount. In order, however, that any such instrument when completed may be enforced against any person who became a party thereto prior to its completion, it must be filled up strictly in accordance with the authority given and within a reasonable time. But if any such instrument, after completion, is negotiated to a holder in due course it is valid and effectual for all purposes in his hands, and he may enforce it as if it had been filled up strictly in accordance with the authority given and within a reasonable time. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 14.]

Other states: The leading authority upon the right of a person in possession to fill blanks when necessary to complete the instrument in a material particular is Russell v. Langstaffe, 2 Doug. 514. See Androscoggin Bank v. Kimball, 10 Cush. 373. If blank space is left for name of payee holder may fill with his own name. Boyd v. McCann, 10 Md. 118. The authority to complete the instrument, however, will not authorize the insertion of matter not essential to its completeness. Weyerhauser v. Dunn, 100 N. Y. 150.

The rule contained in the second clause of the section operates only where the instrument has been delivered; see the following section. As to rights of bona fide holder for value of such an instrument filled up contrary to agreement, see Redlich v. Doll, 54 N. Y. 234, 238.

For other authorities and a discussion of the rules adopted by this section, see Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (3 Ed.), § 33, notes (a), (b), (c) and (d).

Where one person signs a note in blank and delivers it to another for a specific purpose and the person to whom it is delivered with authority to fill the blanks for a specified amount fills out the blanks for an unauthorized amount and uses the instrument for an unauthorized purpose, the person whose name is inserted as payee is not a holder in due course and cannot recover against the original signer. Vander Ploeg v. Van Zuuk, 135–350, 112 N. W. 807.

The designation of a place of payment is a matter material to the note and the holder has authority under this section to fill in a blank left for such designation. Johnston v. Hoover, 139–143, 117 N. W. 277.

SEC. 3060-a15. Incomplete instrument not delivered. Where an incomplete instrument has not been delivered it will not, if completed and negotiated, without authority, be a valid contract in the hands of any holder, as against any person whose signature was placed thereon before delivery. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 15.]

Iowa: Delivery to payee by third party without authority is not binding. Ware v. Smith, 62–159; but delivery by third party in violation of agreement is not a defense as against an innocent purchaser. Graff v. Logue, 61–704.

Other states: The instrument must be complete and perfect when issued, or there must be authority reposed in someone to supply the part required to complete it afterwards. Sedgwick v. McKim, 53 N. Y. 307, 313; Davis Sewing Mach. Co. v. Best, 105 N. Y. 59, 67.

For other authorities see Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (3 Ed.), § 34.

SEC. 3060-a16. Delivery—when effectual—when presumed. Every contract on a negotiable instrument is incomplete and revocable until delivery of the instrument for the purpose of giving effect thereto. As between immediate parties, and as regards a remote party other than a holder in due course, the delivery, in order to be effectual, must be made either by or under the authority of the party making, drawing, accepting or indorsing, as the case may be; and in such case the delivery may be shown to have been conditional or for a special purpose only, and not for the purpose of transferring the property in the instrument. But where the instrument is in the hands of a holder in due course, a valid delivery thereof by all parties prior to him so as to make them liable to him, is conclusively presumed. And where the instrument is no longer in the possession of a party whose signature appears thereon, a valid and intentional delivery by him is presumed until the contrary is proved. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 16.]

Iowa: An alteration made after execution, before delivery without knowledge of surety, discharges surety from liability upon the note. Marsh v. Griffin, 42–403.

Other states: Delivery according to the purpose and intent of the parties is essential to its existence. Burson v. Huntington, 21 Mich. 416.

For other authorities see Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (3 Ed.), § 35, notes (c) and (d).

SEC. 3060-a17. Construction where instrument is ambiguous. Where the language of the instrument is ambiguous, or there are omissions therein, the following rules of construction apply:

1. Where the sum payable is expressed in words and also in figures and there is a discrepancy between the two, the sum denoted by the words is the sum payable; but if the words are ambiguous or uncertain, references may be had to the figures to fix the amount.
2. Where the instrument provides for the payment of interest, without specifying the date from which interest is to run, the interest runs from the date of the instrument, and if the instrument is undated, from the issue thereof.
3. Where the instrument is not dated, it will be considered to be dated as of the time it was issued.
4. Where there is conflict between the written and printed provisions of the instrument, the written provisions prevail.
5. Where the instrument is so ambiguous that there is doubt whether it is a bill or a note, the holder may treat it as either, at his election.
6. Where a signature is so placed upon the instrument that it is not clear in what capacity the person making the same intended to sign, he is to be deemed an indorser.
7. Where an instrument containing the words "I promise to pay," is signed by two or more persons, they are deemed to be jointly and severally liable thereon. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 17.]

(1) Iowa: No recovery at law can be had on a note which fails to state, in the body of it, the amount for which it is given. Marginal figures are no part of it, but a mere memorandum. Hollen v. Davis, 59–444.

Other states: Marginal figures are regarded as mere memoranda and no part of the instrument. Smith v. Smith, 1 R. I. 388.

(3) Other states: Kingsley v. Sampson, 100 Ill. 54.

(4) Other states: But this rule does not permit of the rejection of any of the printed matter which, by any reasonable construction, may be reconciled with the written part. Miller v. Hannibal & St. J. R. R. Co., 90 N. Y. 430.

(7) Other states: Monson v. Drakeley, 40 Conn. 559; Dart v. Sherwood, 7 Wis. 523.

Parol evidence tending to vary the liability of the blank indorser so as to render him liable as guarantor and relieve the holder of the obligation to make demand and give notice of dishonor, is not admissible. Porter v. Moles, 151–279, 131 N. W. 23.

SEC. 3060-a18. Liability of person signing in trade or assumed name. No person is liable on the instrument whose signature does not appear thereon, except as herein otherwise expressly provided. But one who signs in a trade or assumed name will be liable to the same extent as if he had signed in his own name. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 18.]

Other states: Presumption is that party takes instrument on the credit of the parties whose names appear thereon. Briggs v. Partridge, 64 N. Y. 363. A person may become a party to a bill or note by any mark or designation he chooses to adopt, provided it be used as a substitute for his name and he intends to be bound by it. DeWitt v. Walton, 9 N. Y. 574. See Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (3 Ed.), § 37, where other authorities are cited.

SEC. 3060-a19. Signature by agent—authority—how shown. The signature of any party may be made by a duly authorized agent. No particular form of appointment is necessary for this purpose; and the authority of the agent may be established as in other cases of agency. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 19.]

See Conroe v. Case, 74 Wis. 85. As to ratification of unauthorized signature see Bartlett v. Tucker, 104 Mass. 336; Paul v. Berry, 78 Ill. 158; Bank v. Marine Bank, 16 Wis. 120.

SEC. 3060-a20. Liability of person signing as agent, etc. Where the instrument contains, or a person adds to his signature, words indicating that he signs for or on behalf of the principal, or in a representative capacity, he is not liable on the instrument if he was duly authorized; but the mere addition of [1] words describing him as an agent, or as filling a representative character without disclosing his principal, does not exempt him from personal liability. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 20.]

[1]The word "the" appears here in the prior supplement but is not in the enrolled bill or the New York act. EDITOR.]

Iowa: For the rule in Iowa in cases where the makers attempt to sign in representative capacity, merely adding, however, after their own signature, the words "President," "Secretary," "Trustee," etc., see the following cases: Wing v. Glick, 4–73; Am. Ins. Co. v. Stratton, 59–697; Scraper Co. v. Tuttle, 61–423; Lewis v. Tilton, 64–220; Hefner v. Brownell, 70–591; McCandless v. Belle Plaine Canning Co., 78–162; Lee v. Percival, 85–639; Matthews v. Dubuque Mattress Co., 87–246; Day v. Ramsdell, 90–731; Savings Bank & Trust Co. v. Swan, 100–718.

Other states: But if the principal is plainly disclosed in the body of the instrument, one signing in a representative capacity, or as agent, is not personally liable. Whitney v. Inhabitants of Stow, 111 Mass. 368; Haskell v. Cornish, 13 Cal. 45; Little v. Bailey, 87 Ill. 239. And this would seem to be the rule adopted by this section of the act.

See Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (3 Ed.), § 39, and notes thereto. See also Neg. Inst. Law, by Selover, § 24, and authorities cited.

Mr. Crawford, the author of the original draft of the act, in a note to § 39 of his work, says:

"In the original draft submitted to the Conference of Commissioners on Uniformity of Laws this section read as follows: 'Where a person adds to his signature words indicating that he signs for or on behalf of a principal, or in a representative capacity, he is not liable on the instrument; but the mere addition of words describing him as an agent, or as filling a representative character, does not exempt him from personal liability. In determining whether a signature is that of the principal or of the agent by whose hand it is written, that construction is to be adopted which is most favorable to the validity of the instrument.' This is the English rule, and was the rule in New York prior to the statute. Under that rule a person signing for or on behalf of a principal was not liable on the instrument, notwithstanding he had no authority to bind his principal. There was an implied warranty on his part that he possessed such authority, and if he did not, he became liable upon such warranty for the damages resulting from the breach. Miller v. Reynolds, 92 Hun, 400. But no action could be maintained against him on the instrument, when by its terms it did not purport to bind him. And his liability upon the implied warranty did not accompany the transfer of the instrument, unless the claim founded upon the warranty was also assigned to the person to whom the instrument was transferred. (Id.) The effect of the section, as it now stands, is, probably, to permit the holder to sue the agent on the instrument, if he was not duly authorized to sign the same on behalf of the principal."

The addition of descriptive words to the name of the signer of an instrument does not relieve such signer of personal liability. Schumacher v. Dolan, 154–207, 134 N. W. 624.

SEC. 3060-a21. Signature by procuration—effect of. A signature by "procuration" operates as notice that the agent has but a limited authority to sign, and the principal is bound only in case the agent in so signing acted within the actual limits of his authority. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 21.]

See notes to Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (3 Ed.), § 40.

SEC. 3060-a22. Effect of indorsement by infant or corporation. The indorsement or assignment of the instrument by a corporation or by an infant passes the property therein, notwithstanding that from want of capacity the corporation or infant may incur[1] no liability thereon. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 22.]

["occur" in the prior supplement but "incur" in the enrolled bill and the New York act. EDITOR.]

For authorities see Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (3 Ed.), § 41, notes (a) and (b).

SEC. 3060-a23. Forged signature—effect of. Where a signature is forged or made without the authority of the person whose signature it purports to be, it is wholly inoperative, and no right to retain the instrument, or to give a discharge therefor, or to enforce payment thereof against any party thereto, can be acquired through or under such signature, unless the party against whom it is sought to enforce such right is precluded from setting up the forgery or want of authority. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 23.]

Other states: Buckley v. Sec. Nat. Bk. of Jersey City, 35 N. J. Law, 400; Whiteford v. Monroe, 17 Md. 135.

In the absence of an estoppel or of an adoption or ratification of the signature, no rights can be acquired by a bona fide or other holder under a forged signature, against the person whose name is forged. Mersman v. Werges, 3 Fed. 378; Butler v. Carns, 37 Wis. 61; Bank v. Adams, 91 Ind. 280; Bank v. Crafts, 4 Allen, 447; Wellington v. Jackson, 121 Mass. 157.

See also Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (3 Ed.), § 42, note (b).

Proof of one forged signature to a note does not in all cases have the effect of rendering the instrument void as to those whose signatures thereto are found to be genuine. If the addition of a forged signature does not constitute a material alteration of the instrument, recovery thereon may be had against those whose signatures are genuine. Beem v. Farrell, 135–670, 113 N. W. 509.

The fact that the instrument is a forgery as to the maker does not defeat the liability of the indorser to the indorsee. State v. Corning Sav. Bank, 139–338, 115 N. W. 937.

If the holder has been misled to his prejudice by the conduct of the person whose name has been forged, the latter will be estopped from alleging that the note was a forgery. First State Bank v. Williams, 143–177, 121 N. W. 702.

If a payee surrenders a note signed by a principal and surety to the principal in consideration of a note on which the surety's name is forged, the surrender of the original note is equivalent to a declaration that it has been paid and satisfied; and if the fact of such surrender comes to the knowledge of the surety and in reliance thereon, he is lulled into security and the principal becomes insolvent before demand is made on the surety for payment of the original note, such note cannot be enforced against such surety. Reints v. Uhlenhopp, 149–284, 128 N. W. 400.

If the note is, in fact, surrendered to the principal marked paid, this is a declaration by the creditor that it is paid and an authorization to the principal to so state to the surety. In order that the surety may be released, it is not necessary that the canceled note be, in fact, exhibited to the surety. Ibid.

CONSIDERATION OF NEGOTIABLE INSTRUMENTS.

SEC. 3060-a24. Presumption of consideration. Every negotiable instrument is deemed prima facie to have been issued for a valuable consideration, and every person whose signature appears thereon to have become a party thereto for value. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 24.]

Iowa: A blank indorsement by a person not the payee or indorsee thereof imports a sufficient consideration to sustain his contract of guaranty. Veach v. Thompson, 15–380.

See code § 3069. Jones v. Berryhill, 25–289; Bank v. Hurford & Bro., 29–579.

For other authorities see Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (3 Ed.), § 50, note (a).

See also Neg. Inst. Law by Selover, §§ 87, 117, 145, 150 and 179, and authorities there cited.

SEC. 3060-a25. Consideration—what constitutes. Value is any consideration sufficient to support a simple contract. An antecedent or pre-existing debt constitutes value, and is deemed such, whether the instrument is payable on demand or at a future time. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 25.]

Iowa: An antecedent indebtedness is a sufficient consideration and a bona fide holder for value before maturity of such a note is protected against latent equities. Robinson v. Lair, 31–9.

Other states: Railroad Co. v. Nat. Bank, 102 U. S. 14; Swift v. Tyson, 16 Pet. 1. These cases support the rule that a bona fide holder taking a negotiable instrument in payment of, or as security for, an antecedent debt is a holder for a valuable consideration, entitled to protection against all the equities between the antecedent parties. See also Bank v. Morse, 163 Mass. 381; Roberts v. Hall, 37 Conn. 205; Harold v. Kays, 64 Mich. 439; Spencer v. Sloan, 108 Ind. 183.

For other authorities and a discussion of the rule adopted by the act, giving the states in which the rule is changed, see notes to § 51 of Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (3 Ed.).

A transferee of a note who takes it as collateral in lieu of other collateral surrendered becomes a holder for value. Voss v. Chamberlain, 139–569, 117 N. W. 269.

The surrender of a note to the maker who claims it to be a forgery is a sufficient consideration by way of compromise for a new note of a different amount. First State Bank v. Williams, 143–177, 121 N. W. 702.

One is not protected as a holder for value where the debt on account of which the note was given was created after the holder had notice of the defense to the instrument. Iowa Nat. Bank v. Carter, 144–715, 123 N. W. 237.

A bank taking by indorsement a note as security for a debt is a holder for value. State Bank v. Bilstad, 136 N. W. 204.

SEC. 3060-a26. What constitutes holder for value. Where value has at any time been given for the instrument, the holder is deemed a holder for value in respect to all parties who became such prior to that time. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 26.]

In a note to the section of the New York act, the author of the act says: "If a party become a bona fide holder for value of a bill before its acceptance, it is not essential to his right to enforce it against a subsequent acceptor that an additional consideration should proceed from him to the drawee. The bill itself implies a representation by the drawer that the drawee is already in receipt of funds to pay, and his contract is that the drawee shall accept and pay according to the terms of the draft. The drawee can, of course, upon presentment, refuse to accept, and in that event, the only recourse of the holder is against the prior parties thereto; but in case the drawee does accept the bill, he becomes primarily liable for its payment, not only to the indorsees, but also to the drawer himself." Citing Heuertematte v. Morris, 101 N. Y. 70.

SEC. 3060-a27. When lien on instrument constitutes holder for value. Where the holder has a lien on the instrument, arising either from contract or by implication of law, he is deemed a holder for value to the extent of his lien. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 27.]

Other states: Continental Nat. Bk. v. Bell, 125 N. Y. 38, 42; Rogers v. Squires, 98 N. Y. 49.

For other authorities see Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (3 Ed.), § 53.

SEC. 3060-a28. Effect of want of consideration. Absence or[1] failure of consideration is[2] matter of defense as against any person not a holder in due course, and partial failure of consideration is a defense pro tanto, whether the failure is an ascertained and liquidated amount or otherwise. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 28.]

[1,2]"Absence of failure of consideration is a matter of defense * * *" in the prior supplement. "Absence 'of' failure" follows the enrolled bill, but "is 'a' matter" seems to have been an error. EDITOR.]

Other states: While the note itself is prima-facie evidence of consideration, still as between the immediate parties, it is competent to show want or failure thereof. Corlies v. Howe, 11 Gray, 125; Breneman v. Furniss, 90 Pa. St. 186. But burden of proof is on party alleging. Jennison v. Stafford, 1 Cush. 168. Failure of consideration does not affect the negotiability of the instrument. Dingman v. Amsink, 77 Pa. St. 114. The defense of want of consideration is governed by the lex loci. Herdic v. Roessler, 109 N. Y. 127, 133, 134. As to the matter of defense for partial failure of consideration, see Black v. Rigway, 131 Mass. 80.

See Daniel on Neg. Insts., § 210.

For other authorities see Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (3 Ed.), § 54, notes (a), (b) and (c).

As to when one is a holder in due course, see §§ 3060-a26–3060-a29.

SEC. 3060-a29. Liability of accommodation party. An accommodation party is one who has signed the instrument as maker, drawer, acceptor, or indorser, without receiving value therefor, and for the purpose of lending his name to some other person. Such a person is liable on the instrument to a holder for value, notwithstanding such holder at the time of taking the instrument knew him to be only an accommodation party. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 29.]

Other states: The maker of an accommodation note lends his credit without instructions as to the manner of its use. Lenheim v. Wilmarding, 55 Pa. St. 73. He cannot set up want of consideration. Carpenter v. Bank, 106 Pa. St. 170–172. In respect to third persons, he is held to the character which he has assumed. Stephen v. Bank, 88 Pa. St. 157, 162–63. A mutual exchange of notes will not make them accommodation notes. Rice v. Grange, 131 N. Y. 149; Woman v. Frost, 52 N. Y. 422. But he may retract his indorsement, if he is an accommodation indorser, at any time before the paper is negotiated. Berkely v. Tinsley, 88 Va. 1001, 1004. The provision of the statute probably does not apply to corporations, which as a general rule are without power to bind themselves as accommodation parties. Bank v. Atkinson, 55 Fed. 465; Bank v. Bank, 13 N. Y. 309; Bank v. Globe Works, 101 Mass. 57.

For other authorities see Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (3 Ed.), § 55, notes (a) and (b).

NEGOTIATION.

SEC. 3060-a30. What constitutes negotiation. An instrument is negotiated when it is transferred from one person to another in such manner as to constitute the transferee the holder thereof.[1] If payable to bearer, it is negotiated by delivery; if payable to order, it is negotiated by the indorsement of the holder, completed by delivery. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 30.]

[1]A period does not appear here in the enrolled bill but does in the New York act. A period seems necessary to convey the meaning which was evidently intended. EDITOR.]

Iowa: A note made payable to bearer is negotiable by delivery and needs no indorsement. Elliott v. Corbin, 4–564; Shelton v. Sherfey, 3 G. Gr. 108. A note payable to J. S. or order, and endorsed by payee to S. T. or bearer, becomes, in the hands of subsequent holders, the same as a note payable to bearer. (Id.) A note payable to order cannot be transferred by mere delivery, but should be indorsed by the payee or sued in his name or the name of his legal representative. Dawson v. Jewett, 4 G. Gr. 157.

See Pearson v. Cummings, 28–344. A provision that a note is negotiable and payable at a certain place designated, does not affect its negotiability nor prevent its negotiability elsewhere. Schoharie Co. Bk. v. Bevard, 51–257. Wrongful, unauthorized indorsement confers no rights upon transferee. Thorpe v. Dickey, 51–676.

As to what instruments are payable to bearer, see § 3060-a9. As to what instruments are payable to order, see § 3060-a8.

Other states: Indorsement is usually made by writing name on the back of the instrument, but the place is not essential. Haines v. Dubois, 29 N. J. Law, 259. Indorsement alone without delivery conveys no title. Dann v. Norris, 24 Conn. 337; Middleton v. Griffith, 57 N. J. Law, 442.

For citation of other authorities, see Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (3 Ed.), § 60.

SEC. 3060-a31. Indorsement—how made. The indorsement must be written on the instrument itself or upon a paper attached thereto. The signature of the indorser, without additional words, is a sufficient indorsement. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 31.]

Iowa: The assignee of a promissory note, under a transfer made in the body of a separate instrument, executed for an independent purpose, is not the holder of a legal title, discharged of prior equities, within the meaning of the law merchant. Franklin v. Twogood, 18–515. A holder of negotiable paper, to be protected against equities existing between the original parties, must have acquired it by indorsement before maturity. A transfer, except by indorsement, even before maturity, carries no such consequences. Grimm v. Warner, 45–106. The prevailing rule in this state is, that indorsements of negotiable paper shall be made thereon under the hand of the indorser. Bettis v. Bristol, 56–41. An assignee, as distinguished from an indorsee, acquires no greater rights than the assignor had. Johnson v. Walker, 60–315.

Other states: Crosby v. Roub, 16 Wis. 616; Folger v. Chase, 18 Pick. 63; French v. Turner, 15 Ind. 59.

For citation of other authorities, see Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (3 Ed.), § 61, notes (a) and (b).

SEC. 3060-a32. Indorsement must be of entire instrument. The indorsement must be an indorsement of the entire instrument. An indorsement which purports to transfer to the indorsee a part only of the amount payable, or which purports to transfer the instrument to two or more indorsees severally, does not operate as a negotiation of the instrument. But where the instrument has been paid in part, it may be indorsed as to the residue. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 32.]

Iowa: Prior to the act, an assignee of a note might sue in his own name, although only part of the amount was assigned to him. Cochran v. Glover, Morris, 151.

Other states: Lindsay v. Price, 33 Tex. 282. Indorsement of a partial payment on the instrument does not render it nonnegotiable. Smith v. Shippey, 182 Pa. St. 24.

SEC. 3060-a33. Kinds of indorsement. An indorsement may be either in blank or special; and it may also be either restrictive or qualified, or conditional. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 33.]

Other states: As to what is a special indorsement, see Rice v. Stearns, 3 Mass. 225; Reamer v. Bell, 79 Pa. St. 292. A blank indorsement may be converted into a special or full indorsement by the holder. See § 3060-a35. As to what are restrictive indorsements, see Power v. Finnie, 4 Call (Va.), 411; White v. Nat. Bank, 102 U. S. 658; Hook v. Pratt, 78 N. Y. 371.

SEC. 3060-a34. Special indorsement—indorsement in blank. A special indorsement specifies the person to whom or to whose order the instrument is to be payable; and the indorsement of such indorsee is necessary to the further negotiation of the instrument. An indorsement in blank specifies no indorsee, and an instrument so indorsed is payable to bearer, and may be negotiated by delivery. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 34.]

The signing of a guaranty of payment, combined with waiver of demand, notice and protest, constitutes the signers of such an indorsement who are payees of the note indorsers and not guarantors. Voss v. Chamberlain, 139–569, 117 N. W. 269.

SEC. 3060-a35. Blank indorsement—how changed to special indorsement. The holder may convert a blank indorsement into a special indorsement by writing over the signature of the indorser in blank any contract consistent with the character of the indorsement. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 35.]

Iowa: The holder of a note indorsed in blank may fill up the blank indorsement to himself, and thus recover as indorsee thereunder. Leland v. Parriott, 35–454. It then becomes a contract duly signed by the indorser. Bernard v. Barry, 1 G. Gr. 388; but the indorser of a note in blank cannot be bound by a contract of guaranty written over his indorsement. Belden v. Hann, 61–42.

Other states: Beckwith v. Angell, 6 Conn. 317.

SEC. 3060-a36. When indorsement restrictive. An indorsement is restrictive which either:

1. Prohibits the further negotiation of the instrument; or
2. Constitutes the indorsee the agent of the indorser; or
3. Vests the title in the indorsee in trust for or to the use of some other person. But the mere absence of words implying power to negotiate does not make an indorsement restrictive. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 36.]

Other states: Commercial Nat. Bk. v. Armstrong, 148 U. S. 50; Nat. Butchers' & Drovers' Bk. v. Hubbell, 117 N. Y. 384; Freeman's Bk. v. Nat. Tube Works, 151 Mass. 413; Commercial Nat. Bk. v. Hamilton Nat. Bk., 42 Fed. 880; Bank of Metropolis v. First Nat. Bk. of Jersey City, 19 Fed. 658.

For other authorities, see Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (3 Ed.), § 66.

SEC. 3060-a37. Effect of restrictive indorsement—rights of indorsee. A restrictive indorsement confers upon the indorsee the right:

1. To receive payment of the instrument.
2. To bring any action thereon that the indorser could bring.
3. To transfer his rights as such indorsee, where the form of the indorsement authorizes him to do so.

But all subsequent indorsees acquire only the title of the first indorsee under the restrictive indorsement. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 37.]

(2) Other states: The holder of negotiable paper may sue in his own name, though but an agent for others. Ward v. Tyler, 52 Pa. St. 393. The right of a bank to sue in its own name on paper indorsed to it "for collection" is sustained by Wintermute v. Torrent, 83 Mich. 555; Regina Flour Mill Co. v. Holmes, 156 Mass. 11; Spofford v. Norton, 126 Mass. 333. Contra; Rock County Nat. Bk. v. Hollister, 21 Minn. 385.

For other authorities see Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (3 Ed.), § 67.

SEC. 3060-a38. Qualified indorsement. A qualified indorsement constitutes the indorser a mere assignor of the title to the instrument. It may be made by adding to the indorser's signature the words "without recourse" or any words of similar import. Such an indorsement does not impair the negotiable character of the instrument. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 38.]

Iowa: But an indorsement without recourse, as when transferred by delivery only, makes the transferer liable upon implied warranty only to the extent that the paper so transferred is genuine and not forged or fictitious; that it is of the kind or description which it purports to be; that the transferer has done nothing and will do nothing to prevent its collection; that the parties to the instrument are sui juris, and capable of contracting; that it has not been paid, and that he has practiced no fraud upon the transferee in the matter of said transfer. Watson v. Cheshire, 18–202; Allen v. Pegram, 16–163; Miller v. Dugan, 36–433; but such indorser is liable if he knew at the time of transfer that the note was worthless. Brown v. Zachary, 102–433.

Other states: An indorsement may be qualified by adding the words "without recourse" or similar words. Grant v. Fleming, 46 Pa. St. 140. A qualified indorsement, however, does not put the transferee on inquiry as to the equities between the original parties. Bisbing v. Graham, 14 Pa. St. 14.

See Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (3 Ed.), § 68.

SEC. 3060-a39. Conditional indorsement. Where an indorsement is conditional, a party required to pay the instrument may disregard the condition, and make payment to the indorsee or his transferee, whether the conditions have been fulfilled or not. But any person to whom an instrument so indorsed is negotiated, will hold the same, or the proceeds thereof, subject to the rights of the person indorsing conditionally. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 39.]

For note discussing this section and authorities, see Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (3 Ed.), § 69.

SEC. 3060-a40. Indorsement of instrument payable to bearer. Where an instrument, payable to bearer, is indorsed specially, it may nevertheless be further negotiated by delivery; but the person indorsing specially is liable as indorser to only such holders as[1] make title through his indorsement. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 40.]

SEC. 3060-a41. Indorsement where payable to two or more persons. Where an instrument is payable to the order of two or more payees or indorsees[1] who are not partners, all must indorse unless the one indorsing has authority to indorse for the others. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 41.]

[1"indorsers" in prior supplements but "indorsees" in the enrolled bill and New York act. EDITOR.]

Other states: Rhyner v. Feickert, 92 Ill. 305. A partner may indorse for the firm. Childress v. Emory, 8 Wheat. 642.

An instrument payable to one of two payees does not fall within the provisions of this section and an indorsement by one of such alternative payees is sufficient. Union Bank v. Spies, 151–178, 130 N. W. 928.

SEC. 3060-a42. Effect of instrument drawn or indorsed to a person as cashier. Where an instrument is drawn or indorsed to a person, as "cashier" or other fiscal officer of a bank or corporation, it is deemed prima facie to be payable to the bank or corporation of which he is such officer; and may be negotiated by either the indorsement of the bank or corporation, or the indorsement of the officer. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 42.]

Other states: The rule stated in the text is supported by the following authorities: Bank v. Muskingum Bank, 29 N. Y. 619; Bank v. Hall, 44 N. Y. 395; Folger v. Chase, 18 Pick. 63. The extension of the rule to fiscal officers was deemed wise by the commissioners. See statement of Mr. Crawford in his work, Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (3 Ed.), § 72.

In an action on a certificate of deposit made payable to the cashier of the bank issuing the certificate named as such and indorsed by him as cashier to the plaintiff, parol evidence is admissible to show that such person was the cashier of the defendant bank when such indorsement was made, and that he was acting in that capacity in transferring the certificate. Johnson v. Buffalo Center State Bank, 134–731, 112 N. W. 165.

In such an action it is not competent for the defendant to show that the cashier was making use of his official title and authority in his own individual interest. Ibid.

The fact that the certificate thus issued and indorsed bore eight per cent. interest and that the plaintiff to whom it was indorsed transferred it instead of presenting it for payment, held insufficient to impute notice that it was not negotiated in the regular course of business. Ibid.

Where an instrument is drawn or indorsed to a person as cashier or president of a bank it is prima facie payable to the bank, and may be negotiated by either the indorsement of the bank or the indorsement of the officer. Griffin v. Erskine, 131–444, 109 N. W. 13.

SEC. 3060-a43. Indorsement where name is misspelled, et cetera. Where the name[1] of a payee or indorsee is wrongly designated or misspelled, he may indorse the instrument as therein described adding, if he thinks fit, his proper signature. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 43.]

["names" in enrolled bill, but manifestly an error. EDITOR.]

Other states: Thus one who, while carrying on business on his own account in the name of a company, receives a note payable to the order of the company in the course of such business, may transfer the note by indorsing it in his own name. Bryant v. Eastman, 7 Cush. 111.

SEC. 3060-a44. Indorsement in representative capacity. Where any person is under obligation to indorse in a representative capacity, he may indorse in such terms as to negative personal liability. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 44.]

Other states: As to liability of executors and administrators who accept or indorse, see Schmittler v. Simon, 101 N. Y. 554.

SEC. 3060-a45. Time of indorsement—presumption. Except where an indorsement bears date after the maturity of the instrument, every negotiation is deemed prima facie to have been effected before the instrument was overdue. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 45.]

Other states: Mason v. Noonan, 7 Wis. 609. See § 3060-a52.
See also Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (3 Ed.), § 75.

SEC. 3060-a46. Place of indorsement—presumption. Except where the contrary appears every indorsement is presumed prima facie to have been made at the place where the instrument is dated. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 46.]

Other states: An indorsement in Massachusetts of a note executed and payable in New York is a Massachusetts contract and governed by the law of that state. Glidden v. Chamberlain, 167 Mass. 486.
See Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (3 Ed.), § 76.

SEC. 3060-a47. Continuation of negotiable character. An instrument negotiable in its origin continues to be negotiable until it has been restrictively indorsed or discharged by payment or otherwise. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 47.]

Other states: The law is well settled that a note or bill negotiable in form is negotiable as well after as before it becomes due. Nat. Bk. v. Texas, 20 Wall. 72; French v. Jarvis, 29 Conn. 347. But by indorsement after maturity, the instrument becomes according to legal effect, payable on demand, so far as the indorser is concerned; and presentment for payment must be made within a reasonable time, and due notice of dishonor given the indorser. Berry v. Robinson, 9 Johns, 121; Van Hoosen v. Van Alstyne, 3 Wend. 79; Patterson v. Todd, 18 Pa. St. 426.
Other authorities are cited in Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (3 Ed.), § 77. See §§ 3060-a119 to 3060-a125.

SEC. 3060-a48. Striking out indorsement. The owner may at any time strike out any indorsement which is not necessary to his title. The indorser whose indorsement is struck out, and all indorsers subsequent to him, are thereby relieved from liability on the instrument. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 48.]

Iowa: The holder of a negotiable note is presumed to have the beneficial interest in it and being the payee, may strike out any indorsement on it. Gordon v. Pitt, 3-385. The possession of a note by plaintiff, the payee thereof, is presumed to be rightful, and the erasure of an indorsement thereon will be deemed to have been made by due authority. Goddard v. Cunningham, 6-400; to the same effect, Palmer v. State Bank, 19-112. See also Veach v. Thompson, 15-380.
Other states: The holder may strike out all intervening indorsements and aver that the first blank indorser indorsed immediately to himself. Byles on Bills, 149; Preston v. Mann, 25 Conn. 127. This may be done at the trial and after the plaintiff has finished his case. Vanarsdale v. Hax, 107 Fed. 878.
Other authorities are cited in Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (3 Ed.), § 78.

SEC. 3060-a49. Transfer without indorsement—effect of. Where the holder of an instrument payable to his order transfers it for value without indorsing it, the transfer vests in the transferee such title as the transferee had therein, and the transferee acquires, in addition, the right to have the indorsement of the transferer. But for the purpose of determining whether the transferee is a holder in due course, the negotiation takes effect as of the time when the indorsement is actually made. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 49.]

Iowa: A transferer by delivery for value of a note impliedly warrants it to have received no material alteration prior to such transfer. Snyder v. Reno, 38–329; see Miller v. Dugan, 36–433.

Other states: See Simpson v. Hall, 47 Conn. 417; Bank v. Bingham, 118 N. Y. 349. See note to Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (3 Ed.), § 79.

SEC. 3060-a50. When prior party may negotiate instrument. Where an instrument is negotiated back to a prior party, such party may, subject to the provisions of this act, reissue and further negotiate the same, but he is not entitled to enforce payment thereof against any intervening party to whom he was personally liable. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 50.]

Iowa: The signer of a note as security, who subsequently takes it up, may reissue the note as often as he takes it up. Wilkerson v. Daniels, 1 G. Gr. 180. An accommodation note, having once been discounted and taken up by accommodated party, does not become void, but may be transferred to a third party before maturity, discharged of equities existing between original parties, notwithstanding second indorser's knowledge of its character, and that it has once been indorsed and taken up. Washington Bank v. Crum, 15–53.

Other states: See Scott v. First Nat. Bank, 71 Ind. 445.

RIGHTS OF HOLDER.

SEC. 3060-a51. Right of holder to sue—payment. The holder of a negotiable instrument may sue thereon in his own name and payment to him in due course discharges the instrument. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 51.]

Other states: This rule holds good even when restrictively indorsed. See § 3060-a37. Where plaintiff is the payee the production of the paper is sufficient. Williams v. Holt, 170 Mass. 351.

For other authorities see Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (3 Ed.), § 90.

SEC. 3060-a52. What constitutes a holder in due course. A holder in due course is a holder who has taken the instrument under the following conditions:

1. That the instrument is complete and regular upon its face.
2. That he became the holder of it before it was overdue, and without notice that it had been previously dishonored, if such was the fact.
3. That he took it in good faith and for value.
4. That at the time it was negotiated to him he had no notice of any infirmity in the instrument or defect in the title of the person negotiating it. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 52.]

(1) Other states: To determine the character of an indorsee as a bona fide holder for value without notice, the point of time at which he parts with his money is the important fact. If the paper was then on its face irregular—out of the usual course of business—the effect of that knowledge on the indorsee could not be prevented by subsequently putting it in regular shape. Losee v. Bissell, 76 Pa. St. 459, 462.

As to incomplete instruments and authority to fill up blanks therein, see § 3060-a14, supra.

(2) Iowa: A transfer by indorsement is presumed to have been for a valuable consideration and before maturity. Rea v. Owens, 37–262. An assignee of a note and mortgage who takes without notice subsequent to an agreement for extension, and subsequent to the original date of maturity, takes it "after due" in such sense that he acquires no right which his assignor could not have claimed and enforced. Duncan v. Finn, 79–658.

Other states: Marsh v. Marshall, 53 Pa. St. 396. A promissory note matures when, by its terms, the principal becomes due; and one who purchases it in good faith, for value, before maturity, is within the protection of the law merchant, although interest is overdue at the time of such purchase. Kelly v. Whitney, 45 Wis. 110. But see Hart v. Stickney, 41 Wis. 630; Newell v. Gregg, 51 Barb. 253. But a note payable in installments is overdue when the first installment is overdue and unpaid, and one who takes it afterwards takes it subject to all equities between the original parties. Vinton v. King, 4 Allen, 562. A transfer upon the day of maturity is before the instrument is overdue; for the principal debtor has the whole of that day in which to pay. Continental Nat. Bank v. Townsend, 87 N. Y. 8. But see Sargent v. Southgate, 5 Pick. 312; Pine v. Smith, 11 Gray, 38. A check deposited with a bank on the day of its date cannot be considered overdue when so deposited. Bank v. Manson, 168 Mass. 425.

(3) Iowa: A holder of a note as collateral security for an antecedent indebtedness, and with no extension of time, is not a holder for value. Noteboom v. Watkins, 103–580; neither is one a bona fide holder who received it as further security for a preëxisting debt without giving any new consideration or incurring any additional responsibility. Bank v. Hall, 106–540. See Johnson v. Barney, 1–531; Stotts v. Byers, 17–303. That a promissory note was obtained by fraud will not affect the right of a bona fide holder thereof to whom it was indorsed before maturity, nor that such holder purchased it for a considerably less amount than its face. Sully v. Goldsmith, 32–397.

Other states: See Steckel v. Steckel, 28 Pa. St. 233, 235. As to what constitutes value, see § 3060-a25, supra.

(4) Iowa: A bona fide holder of a note made payable to a fictitious payee may recover of the maker. Lane v. Krekle, 22–399. One not a bona fide holder for value before maturity, but merely holding for the payee and not in his own right, is not protected. Bank v. McNulty, 36–229; nor is an assignee in insolvency. Roberts v. Corbin, 26–315; and one who holds under a transfer made in the body of a separate instrument executed for an independent purpose is not the holder of a legal title discharged of prior equities, within the meaning of the law merchant. Franklin v. Truegood, 18–515. But the holder of a note under purchase at judicial sale and without a notice is a bona fide purchaser. Allison & Crane v. King, 21–302.

Other states: As to what constitutes notice, see § 3060-a56, infra.

For other authorities under each of these propositions, see Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (3 Ed.), § 91.

One whose name is inserted in a blank instrument as payee without authority of the original signer is not a holder in due course. A holder in due course is one to whom the instrument is transferred after it has become effectual as a negotiable instrument. Vander Ploeg v. Van Zuuk, 135–350, 112 N. W. 807.

Bad faith in the holder is not proven by evidence of negligence or of circumstances which would put an ordinarily prudent man on inquiry; but such evidence may be sufficient to take the case to the jury on the question as to a good faith purchase. Positive testimony that a purchase or transfer was in due course does not necessarily destroy the force and effect of facts and circumstances tending to show otherwise. Montrose Sav. Bank v. Claussen, 137–73, 114 N. W. 547.

A holder who takes by way of security for a preëxisting debt becomes a holder for value. Voss v. Chamberlain, 139–569, 117 N. W. 269.

Where it appears from the instrument itself that there has been an extension of time of payment, the note is not dishonored by failure to pay at the original date of maturity and a purchaser before the time of payment as extended and without notice is protected. Conkling v. Young, 141–676, 120 N. W. 353.

Even a thief of negotiable paper transferable by delivery may give an innocent purchaser a good title as against the true owner. Irwin v. Deming, 142–299, 120 N. W. 645.

Where a defense is shown which would be good against the payee, the burden of proof is on the holder to show that he acquired the instrument in due course of business. Iowa National Bank v. Carter, 144–715, 123 N. W. 237.

To justify the court in directing a verdict in favor of the holder as against a defense to the instrument, the showing of the bona fides of the holder must not only be without substantial evidence tending to impeach it, but it must be so clear and unequivocal as to leave no room for difference of opinion concerning it among fair-minded men. Arnd v. Aylesworth, 145–185, 123 N. W. 1000.

Under the evidence in a particular case, held that the plaintiff was properly found not to be a holder in due course and not entitled to protection against equities in favor of the maker of the instrument. Hoyt v. Starr, 150–616, 130 N. W. 161.

A bank taking a note by indorsement as security for a debt is a holder in due course. State Bank v. Bilstad, 136 N. W. 204.

SEC. 3060-a53. When person not deemed holder in due course. Where an instrument payable on demand is negotiated an unreasonable length of time after its issue, the holder is not deemed a holder in due course. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 53.]

Other states: As to what constitutes reasonable time, see § 3060-a193. No absolute measure can be fixed. A day or two, Field v. Nickerson, 13 Mass. 131, 137; seven days, Thurston v. McKenn, 6 Mass. 428; and even a month, Ranger v. Corey, 1 Metc. 369, is not too long; while eight months, Bank v. Jenness, 2 Metc. 288; Ayres v. Hutchins, 4 Mass. 370; three months and a half, Stevens v. Brice, 21 Pick. 193; and even two months and a half, Losee v. Durkin, 7 J. R. 70, have been deemed sufficient to discredit a note.

See Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (3 Ed.), § 92.

SEC. 3060-a54. Notice before full amount paid. Where the transferee receives notice of any infirmity in the instrument or defect in the title of the person negotiating the same before he has paid the full amount agreed to be paid therefor, he will be deemed a holder in due course only to the extent of the amount theretofore paid by him. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 54.]

Other states: Dresser v. Missouri, etc. R. R. Construction Co., 93 U. S. 93.

SEC. 3060-a55. When title defective. The title of a person who negotiates an instrument is defective within the meaning of this act when he obtained the instrument, or any signature thereto, by fraud, duress, or force and fear, or other unlawful means, or for an illegal consideration, or when he negotiates it in breach of faith, or under such circumstances as amount to a fraud. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 55.]

Other states: Commercial paper executed under duress is void, even though there may be some consideration to support it. Magoon v. Reber, 76 Wis. 392. The fraud in putting the paper in circulation must be a fraud against the defendant. Kinney v. Kruse, 28 Wis. 189.

For other authorities see note to Crawford's Annoted Neg. Inst. Law (3 Ed.), § 94.

There may be duress of goods or duress of person affecting the validity of a negotiable instrument; and in neither case is the display of firearms necessary to the establishment of the charge. Callendar Sav. Bank v. Loos, 142–1, 120 N. W. 317.

SEC. 3060-a56. What constitutes notice of defect. To constitute notice of an infirmity in the instrument or defect in the title of the person negotiating the same, the person to whom it is negotiated must have had actual knowledge of the infirmity or defect, or knowledge of such facts that his action in taking the instrument amounted to bad faith. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 56.]

Iowa: Certain facts held not to constitute notice of infirmity. Pond v. Agricultural Works, 50–596; the rule stated to be that the circumstances coming to the knowledge of the purchaser before the purchase must be such as to require that he shall in good faith inquire as to the validity of the note, and it is only where the failure to inquire evinces actual bad faith that such notice is sufficient. Merrill v. Hole, 85–66; Cook v. Weirman, 51–561; Lake v. Reed, 29–258. Circumstances and inference therefrom may be sufficient to charge purchaser with notice. Trustee, etc. v. Hill, 12–462; Hoffman v. Leibfarth, 51–711. See Hawkins v. Wilson, 71–762. Knowledge of the transferer is not imputable or chargeable to the purchaser. Stutzman v. Payne, 23–17.

Other states: In a note to the corresponding section Mr. Crawford says: "The holder is not bound at his peril to be on the alert for circumstances which might possibly excite the suspicion of wary vigilance; he does not owe to the party who puts the paper afloat the duty of active inquiry in order to avert the imputation of bad faith. The rights of the holder are to be determined by the simple test of honesty and good faith, and not by a speculative issue as to his diligence or negligence. The holder's rights cannot be defeated without proof of actual notice of the defect in title or bad faith on his part evidenced by circumstances. Though he may have been negligent in taking the paper, and omitted precautions which a prudent man would have taken, nevertheless, unless he acted mala fide, his title, according to settled doctrines, will prevail. Cheever v. Pittsburgh, Shenango & Lake Erie R. R. Co., 150 N. Y. 59, 65;

Bank v. New York Belting, etc. Co., 148 N. Y. 705; Knox v. Eden Musee Am. Co., 148 N. Y. 454; Bank v. Diefendorf, 123 N Y. 202; Vosburgh v. Diefendorf, 119 N. Y. 357; Jarvis v. Manhattan Beach Co., 148 N. Y. 652; Murray v. Lardner, 2 Wall. 110; Swift v. Smith, 102 U. S. 442; Belmont v. Hoge, 35 N. Y. 65; Welsh v. Sage, 47 N. Y. 143; Bank v. Young, 41 N. J. Eq. 531; Bank v. Bank, 48 N. J. Law, 513; Phelan v. Moss, 67 Pa. St. 59; Moorehead v. Gilmore, 77 Pa. St. 118; Bank v. Morgan, 165 Pa. St. 199. While gross carelessness will not, as a matter of law, defeat title in purchaser for value, it may constitute evidence of bad faith. Bank v. Diefendorf, 123 N. Y. 191. The payment of value is a circumstance to be taken into account with other facts in determining the good faith of the purchaser, but it is not conclusive. Cunningham v. Scott, 90 Hun. 410, 411. The mere fact that the holder for value of a promissory note made by a third party receives it from a person engaged in the note-brokerage business, as collateral security for a loan to such broker, is not sufficient to raise a doubt as to the authority of the broker to so deal with the note. Bank v. New York Belting, etc. Co., 148 N. Y. 698. And a bank has a right to assume, as to notes offered to it, whether for discount or as collateral security, by a customer who has an account with it, and who is in the habit of borrowing money from it, that the customer is acting in good faith, and within his lawful rights. (Id.)

"The fraudulent misappropriation by the broker of the proceeds of the discount is not sufficient to put the holder to the proof of his bona fides. Sloan v. The Union Banking Co., 67 Pa. St. 470.

"One who receives the notes of a corporation from one of its officers in payment of, or as security for, a personal debt of such officer, does so at his peril. Prima facie the act is unlawful, and, unless actually authorized, the purchaser will be deemed to have taken them with notice of the rights of the corporation. Wilson v. Metropolitan Ry. Co., 120 N. Y. 145, 150. And where the maker of a note which is payable to his order and purports to be indorsed by a corporation, procures it to be discounted for his own benefit, this of itself, if unexplained, is notice that the indorsement is not made in the usual course of business, but is for the accommodation of the maker. Bank v. German-Am. Mut. Warehousing & Security Co., 116 N. Y. 281."

As the holder has the burden of proving that he received the paper without notice of defects, if the facts shown have any fair tendency to establish bad faith on the part of the holder, then the question as to whether he is a holder in good faith is for the jury. McNight v. Parsons, 136–390, 113 N. W. 858.

This provision simply puts in statutory form a rule of the common law previously recognized. Mere ground of suspicion as to possible defects in the title of the indorser, or of the existence of defenses, is not sufficient to show that the holder is not entitled to protection; but if negligence on the part of the holder in failing to make inquiries as to title or defenses is marked or of gross character, it may be sufficient to sustain a finding of bad faith. Arnd v. Aylesworth, 145–185, 123 N. W. 1000.

If there is evidence of bad faith the burden is on the holder to establish his good faith. Mere denial by the holder as a witness of notice of defects of title, uncontradicted by any other witness, may not be sufficient to justify a directed verdict in his favor. Ibid.

SEC. 3060-a57. Rights of holder in due course. A holder in due course holds the instrument free from any defect of title of prior parties, and free from defenses available to prior parties among themselves, and may enforce payment of the instrument for the full amount thereof against all parties liable thereon. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 57.]

Iowa: That defendants were accommodation makers is no defense to an action by an indorsee, though received by plaintiff with knowledge of that fact, if note was taken in good faith for value in the usual course of business. Winters v. Home Ins. Co., 30–172; nor is the rule changed by the fact that it was negotiated by one of the makers, the real debtor instead of the payee. (Id.) In the absence of statutes permitting same, fraud cannot be set up against a note in the hands of an innocent purchaser. Temple v. Hayes & Hendershott, Morris, 9; Lake v. Reed, 29–258; Lehman v. Press, 106–389; Wright, Dryden & Co. v. Flynn, 33–159. Duress not a defense against a bona fide holder for value. Veach v. Thomson, 15–380. Latent infirmities no defense against bona fide holder. Gage v. Sharp, 24–15. County bonds issued without authority are invalid in hands of purchaser. Hull & Argalls v. County of Marshall, 12–142. Forgery, in its execution, renders paper invalid even in the hands of an innocent holder for value before maturity. Caulkins v. Whisler, 29–495; First Nat. Bk. v. Zeins, 93–140.

Other states: In a case construing this section of the negotiable instruments law it has been held that under this law a bona fide holder may enforce a promissory note against the maker, even though the note was given for a gambling debt, and that this statute has repealed the English statutes which were formerly in force in the District of Columbia. In the opinion Alvey, C. J., says: "We know, moreover, that the great and leading object of the act, not only with Congress, but also with the large number of the principal commercial states of the Union that have adopted it, has been to establish a uniform system of law to govern negotiable instruments wherever they might circulate or be negotiated. It was not only uniformity of rules and principles that was designed, but to embody in a codified form, as fully as possible, all the law upon the subject, to avoid conflict of decisions, and the effect of mere local laws and usages that have heretofore prevailed. The great object sought to be accomplished by the enactment of the statute, was to free the negotiable instrument, as far as possible, from all latent or local infirmities that would otherwise inhere in it to the prejudice and disappointment of innocent holders as against all parties to the instrument professedly bound thereby. This clearly could not be effected so long as the instrument was rendered absolutely null and void by local statutes, as against the original maker or acceptor, as is the case by the operation, indeed, by the express provision, of the statutes of Charles and Anne." Wirt v. Stubblefield, 17 App. Cas. D. C. 283.

See Cromwell v. County of Sac, 96 U. S. 60.

For other authorities see Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (3 Ed.), § 96.

The title of the holder is not dependent on the person from whom the instrument is obtained, providing he is a holder in good faith before maturity and for value. Voss v. Chamberlain, 139–569, 117 N. W. 269.

In a controversy between an indorser and transferee of a note as to the right of the transferee to recover as a bona fide holder for value, the amount of the consideration is immaterial. Code § 3070 has no application in such a case. Ibid.

The indorsee of a negotiable instrument without notice or knowledge that it has been given in a gambling transaction is protected as a bona fide holder. Kushner v. Abbott, 156–598, 137 N. W. 913.

SEC. 3060-a58. When subject to original defenses. In the hands of any holder other than a holder in due course, a negotiable instrument is subject to the same defenses as if it were nonnegotiable. But a holder who derives his title through a holder in due course, and who is not himself a party to any fraud or illegality affecting the instrument, has all the rights of such former holder in respect of all parties prior to the latter. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 58.]

Mr. Crawford says in a note to § 97 of his work: "It was not deemed expedient to make provision as to what equities the transferee will be subject to; for the matter may be affected by the statutes of the various states relating to set-off and counterclaim. In an act designed to be uniform in the various states, no more can be done than fix the rights of holders in due course. On the question whether only such equities may be asserted as attach to the paper, or whether equities arising out of collateral matters may also be asserted, the decisions are conflicting. In England it was decided in Burroughs v. Moss, 10 Barn. & Cress. 558, that the indorsee of an overdue bill is liable to such equities only as attach on the bill or note itself, and not to claims arising out of collateral matters, such as a general set-off is. This is a leading case, and has since been uniformly followed in that country."

Other states: See also Long v. Rhawn, 75 Pa. St. 128; Young v. Shriner, 80 Pa. St. 463; Robinson v. Lymon, 10 Conn. 31. A person to whom the instrument is transferred as a gift takes it subject to all the equities then existing between the original parties, but not subject to those which arise thereafter. Bank v. Wood, 128 N. Y. 35; Baxter v. Little, 6 Met. 7.

Negotiability is not necessary to the validity of a promissory note, and the mere fact that it is negotiable in form does not, as between the maker and payee, deprive the former of any defense that he would otherwise have. Fullerton Lumber Co. v. Snouffer, 139–176, 117 N. W. 50.

SEC. 3060-a59. Who deemed holder in due course. Every holder is deemed prima facie to be a holder in due course; but when it is shown that the title of any person who has negotiated the instrument was defective, the burden is on the holder to prove that he or some person under whom he claims acquired the title as a holder in due course. But the last mentioned rule does not apply in favor of a party who became bound on the instrument prior to the acquisition of such defective title. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 59.]

Other states: The presumption is that the indorsee of negotiable paper receives it bona fide and for value. Gray's Admr. v. Bank, 29 Pa. St. 365. The holder may make out his title by presumption until it is impeached by evidence showing that the paper had a fraudulent or illegal inception. This being done, however, it devolves upon him to show the circumstances under which it came into his possession, and that he has acted in good faith. Bank v. Diefendorf, 123 N. Y. 191; Joy v. Diefendorf, 130 N. Y. 6; Sullivan v. Langley, 120 Mass. 437; Bank v. Iron Works, 159 Mass. 158; Hutchinson v. Boggs & Kirk, 28 Pa. St. 294; and other authorities cited in Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (3 Ed.), § 98.

One claiming to be the holder in due course and protected against the defense of fraud in the execution of the instrument has the burden of proving that he acquired title as such holder in due course, i. e., in good faith and for value, without notice. Keegan v. Rock, 128–39, 102 N. W. 805.

By this statute the title of any person who negotiates an instrument in breach of faith or under circumstances amounting to fraud is defective, and the burden is cast upon the holder to show that he or some person through whom he claims acquired the paper innocently. McNight v. Parsons, 136–390, 113 N. W. 858.

The burden is on the holder to prove that he or some other person under whom he claims acquired the title as a holder in due course. Hawkins v. Young, 137–281, 114 N. W. 1041.

Until the defendant offers evidence of fraud, the plaintiff is under no obligation to negative it or to assume the burden of proving that he is a holder in good faith and without notice. Cox v. Cline, 139–128, 117 N. W. 48.

As against the defense by the maker that the instrument was negotiated through fraud, the holder must affirmatively establish that he or some person under whom he claims acquired the title as a holder in due course. Voss v. Chamberlain, 139–569, 117 N. W. 269.

Where it appears that the instrument is tainted with fraud in its inception, the presumption of good faith which ordinarily attaches to a purchase of negotiable paper before due no longer obtains, and the burden is on the owner to show the receipt of the paper in due course and without notice of defenses. City Nat. Bank v. Jordan, 139–499, 117 N. W. 758.

If a note is given for an illegal consideration the burden shifts to the plaintiff to prove that he is the holder in due course. O'Conner v. Kleiman, 143–435, 121 N. W. 1088.

Where it appears that the maker has a defense as against the payee, the burden is upon one claiming as bona fide holder to prove that he is a holder for value and without notice. Iowa Nat. Bank v. Carter, 144–715, 123 N. W. 237.

Where a defense to the note as against the payee is shown, the burden is on the holder claiming to be a purchaser in good faith for value without notice to show these facts and his own testimony with reference thereto is not conclusive as against circumstances indicating bad faith or notice. Arnd v. Aylesworth, 145–185, 123 N. W. 1000.

LIABILITIES OF PARTIES.

SEC. 3060-a60. Liability of maker. The maker of a negotiable instrument by making it engages that he will pay it according to its tenor, and admits the existence of the payee and his then capacity to indorse. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 60.]

Other states: The fact that the holder had other collateral securities for the same debt more than sufficient to cover it, from which, however, the debt had not been realized, is not a ground of defense on the part of the maker. Lord v. Bank, 20 Pa. St. 384.

SEC. 3060-a61. Liability of drawer. The drawer by drawing the instrument admits the existence of the payee and his then capacity to indorse, and engages that on due presentment the instrument will be accepted or paid, or both, according to its tenor, and that if it be dishonored, and the necessary proceedings on dishonor be duly taken, he will pay the amount thereof to the holder, or to any subsequent indorser who may be compelled to pay it. But the drawer may insert in the instrument an express stipulation negativing or limiting his own liability to the holder. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 61.]

Other states: The transmission of a draft by mail by payee and his failure to discover its loss for six months discharges drawer. Bank v. Farnsworth (N. D.), 72 N. W. 901. But a knowledge of the facts and a new promise to pay by drawer waive his right to a discharge. Id.

SEC. 3060-a62. Liability of acceptor. The acceptor by accepting the instrument engages that he will pay it according to the tenor of his acceptance, and admits:

1. The existence of the drawer, the genuineness of his signature, and his capacity and authority to draw the instrument; and
2. The existence of the payee and his then capacity to indorse. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 62.]

(1) Other states: The discounting of a bill by the drawee who has not accepted it is neither payment nor a promise to pay according to its tenor and effect, but puts him in the position of an indorsee for value, with the right of action against drawer and indorser. Swope v. Ross, 40 Pa. St. 186; Bank v. Bank, 46 N. Y. 77; Bank v. Bank, 59 N. Y. 67; Bank v. Bank, 10 Wheat., 333.

Numerous other authorities are cited by Mr. Crawford in his work on the Negotiable Inst. Law (3 Ed.), § 112.

SEC. 3060-a63. When person deemed indorser. A person placing his signature upon an instrument otherwise than as maker, drawer or acceptor is deemed to be an indorser, unless he clearly indicates by appropriate words his intention to be bound in some other capacity. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 63.]

See § 3060-a17, subdiv. 6, supra.

The liability of a blank indorser cannot be varied by parol evidence. Porter v. Moles, 151–279, 131 N. W. 23.

SEC. 3060-a64. Liability of irregular indorser. Where a person, not otherwise a party to an instrument, places thereon his signature in blank before delivery, he is liable as indorser in accordance with the following rules:

1. If the instrument is payable to the order of a third person, he is liable to the payee and to all subsequent parties.
2. If the instrument is payable to the order of the maker or drawer, or is payable to bearer, he is liable to all parties subsequent to the maker or drawer.
3. If he signs for the accommodation of the payee, he is liable to all parties subsequent to the payee. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 64.]

Other states: This section is intended to cover irregular indorsements. The decisions upon this subject are very conflicting. In some jurisdictions the person placing his signature on the back of a note before the payee has indorsed it was deemed a joint maker. Good v. Martin, 95 U. S. 93. In other jurisdictions he was regarded as a guarantor and in still others an indorser.

For a discussion of the question and citation of additional authorities, see Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (3 Ed.), § 114.

SEC. 3060-a65. Warranty where negotiation by delivery, et cetera. Every person negotiating an instrument by delivery or by a qualified indorsement, warrants:

1. That the instrument is genuine and in all respects what it purports to be.
2. That he has a good title to it.
3. That all prior parties had capacity to contract.
4. That he has no knowledge of any fact which would impair the validity of the instrument or render it valueless.

But when the negotiation is by delivery only, the warranty extends in favor of no holder other than the immediate transferee. The provisions of subdivision three of this section do not apply to persons negotiating public or corporate securities, other than bills and notes. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 65.]

Other states: This, of course, refers only to the implied warranty. An express warranty may be so framed as to exclude all other warranties which would otherwise be implied by the law. Giffert v. West, 37 Wis. 115.

(1) Other states: Littauer v. Goldman, 72 N. Y. 506; Herrick v. Whitney, 15 Johns, 240; Coolidge v. Brigham, 5 Metc. 68; McConeghy v. Kirk, 68 Pa. St. 200; Bank v. Caverly, 7 Gray, 216, 220. See the following section.

As to implied warranty as to the identity of the thing sold, see Meyer v. Richards, 163 U. S. 385.

(2) Other states: Meriden Nat. Bk. v. Gallaudet, 120 N. Y. 298, 303.

(3) Other states: One who indorses a promissory note, purporting to be executed by a firm, thereby impliedly contracts that the note was made by the firm in whose name it is executed, and he cannot dispute the fact in an action upon the indorsement. Dalrymple v. Hillenbrand, 62 N. Y. 5. And a second indorser cannot dispute the legal capacity of the payee to indorse on the ground that she was a married woman. Bank v. Caverly, 7 Gray, 216, 217. And one indorsing a note of a corporation admits its capacity to execute the note. Glidden v. Chamberlain, 167 Mass. 486.

(4) Other states: As to implied warranty that the note is unpaid, see Daskman v. Ullman, 74 Wis. 474. Where an instrument void for usury is transferred without indorsement or representation as to its legality, action cannot be sustained against the vendor without alleging and proving scienter. Littauer v. Goldman, 72 N. Y. 506; Meyer v. Richards, 163 U. S. 385.

Otis v. Cullum, 92 U. S. 448, is an action against the vendor of municipal bonds payable to bearer, afterward held void because the legislature had no power to pass the acts under which they were issued. It was held no recovery could be had in the absence of an express warranty.

For other authorities see Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (3 Ed.), § 115.

The statutory provision as to the warranty implied in negotiating an instrument by delivery or qualified indorsement has no application where the question is as to whether the instrument has been accepted in satisfaction of an indebtedness. Dille v. White, 132–327, 109 N. W. 909.

By the indorsement of negotiable paper the indorser warrants that the instrument is genuine and what it purports to be, that he has good title, and that the amount called for will be paid, and further, that, if dishonored, upon proper proceedings being taken he will pay the amount called for to the indorsee. State v. Corning Sav. Bank, 139–338, 115 N. W. 937.

Under an indorsement without recourse, the warranty is that the paper is genuine and that the indorser has title. Ibid.

SEC. 3060-a66. Liability of general indorser. Every indorser who indorses without qualification, warrants to all subsequent holders in due course:

1. The[1] matters and things mentioned in subdivisions one, two and three of the next preceding section; and

2. That the instrument is at the time of his indorsement valid and subsisting. And, in addition, he engages that on due presentment, it shall be accepted or paid, or both, as the case may be, according to its tenor, and that if it be dishonored, and the necessary proceedings on dishonor be duly taken, he will pay the amount thereof to the holder, or to any subsequent indorser who may be compelled to pay it. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 66.]

[1"That" in the prior supplement. "The" in the enrolled bill and New York act. EDITOR.]

(1) Other states: United States v. American Exchange Nat. Bk., 70 Fed. 232.

(2) Other states: Parol evidence of an agreement which would vary the legal liability of the indorser under his indorsement is inadmissible. Eaton v. McMahon, 42 Wis. 484. And while there has been some conflict in the decisions, the sounder doctrine puts all indorsements on substantially the same footing. The contract by a blank indorsement is fixed by law, and should not be rendered uncertain by parol, any more than when written out in full. Charles v. Denis, 42 Wis. 56, 58. This is the rule adopted in the statute, which makes the indorser's obligation absolute.

Other authorities are to be found in note to § 116, Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (3 Ed.).

There is no authority for holding the blank indorser of a nonnegotiable note liable thereon except in accordance with the terms of the instrument as to the amount to be paid and conditions on which it is to be paid. Allison v. Hollembeak, 138–479, 114 N. W. 1059.

When notified of the dishonor of the note, it is the indorser's duty to pay and he cannot complain that, by failure to sue the maker, the holder has prejudiced the rights of the indorser. Darling v. Blazek, 142–355, 120 N. W. 961.

Parol evidence is not admissible to vary the liability of a blank indorser. Porter v. Moles, 151–279, 131 N. W. 23.

Further as to liability of indorser, see notes to preceding section.

SEC. 3060-a67. Liability of indorser where paper negotiable by delivery. Where a person places his indorsement on an instrument negotiable by delivery he incurs all the liabilities of an indorser. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 67.]

Other states: The holder of paper payable to bearer and indorsed may sue upon it as bearer or indorsee at his election. Daniel on Neg. Insts., § 663-a; 3 Kent's Comm. 44.

Formerly in some states a note payable to a designated payee or bearer could not be negotiated except by the indorsement of such person. See Garvin v. Wiswell, 83 Ill. 218; Blackman v. Lehman, 63 Ala. 547.

SEC. 3060-a68. Order in which indorsers are liable. As respects one another, indorsers are liable prima facie in the order in which they indorse; but evidence is admissible to show that as between or among themselves they have agreed otherwise. Joint payees or joint indorsees who indorse are deemed to indorse jointly and severally. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 68.]

Other states: This rule is general and applies to accommodation indorsers as well as to others. Such indorsements import, not a joint, but a several and successive liability, each indorser being responsible to all who succeed him. Easterly v. Barber, 66 N. Y. 433; Kelly v. Borroughs, 102 N. Y. 93; McCarty v. Roots, 21 How. (U. S.), 432; Shaw v. Knox, 98 Mass. 214; Howe v. Merrill, 15 Cush. 88; Russ v. Sadler, 197 Pa. St. 51.

See Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (3 Ed.), § 118.

SEC. 3060-a69. Liability of agent or broker. Where a broker or other agent negotiates an instrument without indorsement, he incurs all the liabilities prescribed by section sixty-five of this act, unless he discloses the name of his principal, and the fact that he is acting only as agent. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 69.]

Other states: Meriden Nat. Bk. v. Gallaudet, 120 N. Y. 289; Cabot Bk. v. Morton, 4 Gray, 156; Worthington v. Cowles, 12 Mass. 30.

PRESENTMENT FOR PAYMENT.

SEC. 3060-a70. Effect of want of demand on principal debtor. Presentment for payment is not necessary in order to charge the person primarily on the instrument; but if the instrument is, by its terms, payable at a special place, and he is able and willing to pay it there at maturity, such ability and willingness are equivalent to a tender of payment upon his part. But, except as herein otherwise provided, presentment for payment is necessary in order to charge the drawer and indorsers. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 70.]

Iowa: The failure of the plaintiff to demand payment at the specified place will not excuse the defendant or maker from providing for its payment. Myers v. Byington, 34–205; Games v. Manning, 2 G. Gr. 251; Barker v. Brink, 4 G. Gr. 59. To charge an indorser, presentment, demand and notice must be given and shown by affirmative proof. Bank of Red Oak v. Orvis, 40–332. If there are joint makers, presentment and demand must be made upon all. Id. In absence of notice of dishonor, the institution of suit against makers is not sufficient to charge indorser. Keater & Skinner v. Hock, Musser & Co., 11–536. In case of transfer after maturity, demand and notice must be given within reasonable time to charge indorser. Jones v. Middleton, 29–188; Pryor v. Bowman, 38–92.

Other states: As to there being no necessity for presentment to charge person primarily liable, see Howard v. Boorman, 17 Wis. 459; Hills v. Place, 48 N. Y. 520.

The rule adopted generally in the United States is that where a note is made payable at a particular bank or place, or a bill of exchange is drawn or accepted payable in like manner, it is not necessary in order to recover of the maker or acceptor to aver or prove presentment or demand of payment at such place on the day the instrument became due or afterward. The only consequence of a failure to make such presentment is that the maker or acceptor, if he was ready at the time and place to make the payment, may plead the matter in bar of damages and costs. Parker v. Stroud, 98 N. Y. 379, 384; Cox v. Nat. Bk., 100 U. S. 713.

A draft drawn in another state, by one residing there, upon a party residing in this state, legal questions in reference to presentation and demand are to be determined by the laws of this state. Sylvester v. Crohan, 138 N. Y. 494; Bank v. Lacomb, 84 N. Y. 367.

SEC. 3060-a71. Presentment where instrument is not payable on demand. Where the instrument is not payable on demand, presentment must be made on the day it falls due. Where it is payable on demand, presentment must be made within a reasonable time after its issue, except that in the case of a bill of exchange, presentment for payment will be sufficient if made within a reasonable time after the last negotiation thereof. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 71.]

Iowa: Protest and notice of dishonor given on the day following expiration of days of grace too late to charge indorser. Barker & Griffith v. Webster & Wells, 10–593. A presentment for payment before the last day of grace is premature, the note not being due until then. Edgar v. Greer, 8–394.

As to date of maturity, see § 3060-a85.

For citation of authorities under this section, see Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (3 Ed.), § 131.

While the court may sometimes determine the reasonableness or unreasonableness of delay in presentment of a negotiable instrument as a matter of law, the question is ordinarily one of fact. If the drawer knows that the payee desires to make use of the draft for a particular purpose involving some delay in presentation for payment, he cannot complain of the delay reasonably contemplated. West Branch State Bank v. Haines, 135–313, 112 N. W. 552.

Where the draft passes through the hands of several indorsees, no one of whom is guilty of unreasonable delay, the fact that it is not presented within the time allowed for presentation by the original payee does not defeat recovery against the drawer. Ibid.

Where a bank check has been transferred, demand of payment is within a reasonable time if made through an intermediate bank, according to a general custom with reference to the collection of checks on small banks through other banks. Plover Savings Bank v. Moodie, 135–685, 110 N. W. 29, 113 N. W. 476.

Whether the provisions of § 3060-a186 exclude bank checks from the provisions of this section, quaere. Ibid.

In order to charge the indorser of a bank certificate of deposit, presentment must be made within a reasonable time after it is issued. Anderson v. First Nat. Bank, 144–251, 122 N. W. 918.

SEC. 3060-a72. What constitutes a sufficient presentment. Presentment for payment, to be sufficient, must be made:

1. By the holder, or by some person authorized to receive payment on his behalf.
2. At a reasonable hour on a business day.
3. At a proper place as herein defined.
4. To the person primarily liable on the instrument, or if he is absent or inaccessible, to any person found at the place where the presentment is made. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 72.]

(1) Iowa: Agent under parol authority may make demand. Bank v. McLeran, 26–306.

Other states: As to when possession of a negotiable instrument is sufficient evidence of a right to present and demand payment, see Shedd v. Brett, 1 Pick. 401. And payment to such person will always be valid unless he is known to the payer to have acquired possession wrongfully. Daniel on Neg. Insts., § 574.

(2) Other states: Except in cases where the instrument is payable at a bank, the holder has the whole day in which to present the same, the only limitation being that he must present it at a reasonable hour, and this may depend upon the circumstances of the case. Bank v. Burton, 58 N. Y. 430; Farnsworth v. Allen, 4 Gray, 453.

(3) See the following section.
(4) Iowa: Presentment for payment must be made to all the makers in person or at their usual places of residence or business. Graul v. Strutzel, 53–712; Closz v. Miracle, 103–198.
Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (3 Ed.), § 132.

SEC. 3060-a73. Place of presentment. Presentment for payment is made at the proper place:
1. Where a place of payment is specified in the instrument and it is there presented.
2. Where no place of payment is specified and the address of the person to make payment is given in the instrument and it is there presented.
3. Where no place of payment is specified and no address is given and the instrument is presented at the usual place of business or residence of the person to make payment.
4. In any other case if presented to the person to make payment wherever he can be found, or if presented at his last known place of business or residence. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 73.]

(3) Iowa: A demand made at a maker's residence, if he has no place of business, when he is not at home, is sufficient. Bank v. Orvis, 42–691.
Other states: Gates v. Beecher, 60 N. Y. 518, 522. Presentment at the maker's usual place of business during business hours, there being no one there to answer, is a sufficient demand to charge the indorser. Baumgardner v. Reeves, 35 Pa. St. 250; Wallace v. Crilly, 46 Wis. 577. When addressed to the drawee at a particular house and accepted generally by him, see Pierce v. Struthers, 27 Pa. St. 249, 254; Struthers v. Blake, 30 Pa. St. 139.
For other authorities see Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (3 Ed.), § 133.

SEC. 3060-a74. Instrument must be exhibited. The instrument must be exhibited to the person from whom payment is demanded, and when it is paid must be delivered up to the party paying it. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 74.]

Iowa: Presentment to the maker personally or at his place of permanent residence or business is necessary to charge an indorser. Bank v. Green, Thomas & Co., 11–476.
Other states: Ocean Nat. Bk. v. Fant, 50 N. Y. 474, 476; Musson v. Lake, 4 How. 262; Freeman v. Boynton, 7 Mass. 483.
See Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (3 Ed.), § 134.

SEC. 3060-a75. Presentment where instrument payable at bank. Where the instrument is payable at a bank, presentment for payment must be made during banking hours, unless the person to make payment has no funds there to meet it at any time during the day, in which case presentment at any hour before the bank is closed on that day is sufficient. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 75.]

Other states: Salt Springs Nat. Bk. v. Burton, 58 N. Y. 430; Reed v. Wilson, 41 N. J. Law, 29; Shepard v. Chamberlain, 8 Gray, 225. There seems to be a conflict of authorities as to the precise time as to when suit may be brought on a dishonored note payable at a bank. See Church v. Clark, 21 Pick. 309; Blackman v. Nearing, 43 Conn. 60; Humphreys v. Sutcliffe, 192 Pa. St. 336.
See Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (3 Ed.), § 135.

SEC. 3060-a76. Presentment where principal debtor is dead. Where the person primarily liable on the instrument is dead, and no place of payment is specified, presentment for payment must be made to his personal representative, if such there be, and if with the exercise of reasonable diligence he can be found. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 76.]

Iowa: In case of partners, after dissolution of the firm, see Mt. Pleasant Branch of State Bk. v. McLeran, 26–306.
Other states: But there must be competent and legal proof of his death. Weems v. Farmers' Bk., 15 Md. 231.

SEC. 3060-a77. Presentment to persons liable as partners. Where the persons primarily liable on the instrument are liable as partners, and no place of payment is specified, presentment for payment may be made to any one of them, even though there has been a dissolution of the firm. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 77.]

Iowa: In case of partners after dissolution of the firm, see Mt. Pleasant Branch of State Bank v. McLeran, 26–306.
Other states: Gates v. Beecher, 60 N. Y. 518; Bank v. Hunt, 2 Hill, 635.

SEC. 3060-a78. Presentment to joint debtors. Where there are several persons, not partners, primarily liable on the instrument, and no place of payment is specified, presentment must be made to them all. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 78.]

Iowa: That presentment and demand must be made upon all the makers, see Bank v. Orvis, 40–332; Graul v. Strutzel, 53–712; Closz v. Miracle, 103–198.
Other states: Gates v. Beecher, 60 N. Y. 518; Arnold v. Dresser, 8 Allen, 435. In some cases this might be impracticable, but such cases are covered by § 3060-a82, infra.

SEC. 3060-a79. When presentment not required to charge the drawer. Presentment for payment is not required in order to charge the drawer where he has no right to expect or require that the drawee or acceptor will pay the instrument. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 79.]

Iowa: Kimball v. Bryan, 56–632.
Other states: Presentment is not dispensed with merely because the drawer has no funds in the hands of the drawee. Life Ins. Co. v. Pendleton, 112 U. S. 708; Dickens v. Beal, 10 Pet. 572.

Presentment for payment is not required to charge the drawer where he has no right to expect or require the drawee to pay the draft. West Branch State Bank v. Haines, 135–313, 112 N. W. 552.

SEC. 3060-a80. When presentment not required to charge the indorser. Presentment for payment is not required in order to charge an indorser where the instrument was made or accepted for his accommodation, and he has no reason to expect that the instrument will be paid if presented. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 80.]

SEC. 3060-a81. When delay in making the presentment is excused. Delay in making presentment for payment is excused when the delay is caused by circumstances beyond the control of the holder, and not imputable to his default, misconduct or negligence. When the cause of delay ceases to operate, presentment must be made with reasonable diligence. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 81.]

Other states: Windham Bk. v. Norton, 22 Conn. 213. In case of sickness of holder see Wilson v. Senier, 14 Wis. 380. If the facts are not disputed, the question of due diligence is one of law for the court; otherwise for the jury. Belden v. Lamb, 17 Conn. 451.

SEC. 3060-a82. When presentment may be dispensed with. Presentment for payment is dispensed with:

1. Where after the exercise of reasonable diligence presentment as required by this act cannot be made.
2. Where the drawee is a fictitious person.
3. By waiver of presentment, express or implied. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 82.]

(1) Iowa: Demand of payment is unnecessary to charge indorser if the maker of the note has removed from the state before its maturity. Whitely v. Allen, 56–224. While the removal of the maker from the state dispenses with demand, notice of that fact and the fact of nonpayment must still be given the indorser in order to charge him. Leonard v. Olson, 99–162. Mere insolvency of maker will not excuse demand on him in order to charge indorser. Id.

(3) Iowa: A promise to pay after maturity by an indorser with knowledge that note has not been presented and protested, will operate as a waiver of these requirements. Hughes v. Bowen, 15–446; Campbell v. Varney, 12–13; Lomax v. Smyth & Co., 50–223. Certain facts considered and held not to be a waiver of demand. Freeman v. O'Brien, 38–406. Written promises to pay if maker does not, made by indorser after maturity and with knowledge of protest for nonpayment, amounts to waiver and renders him liable. Davis v. Miller, 88–114. An indorser in blank is bound, however, by waiver of presentation, protest and notice of nonpayment contained in the body of the note, distinguishing. Davis v. Miller, supra.

Other states: Burden is on plaintiff to show due diligence. Eaton v. McMahon, 42 Wis. 484. It is the holder's duty to give the notary information as to the residence of the drawer and indorser. Smith v. Fisher, 24 Pa. St. 222. Presentment is not dispensed with by the insolvency of the maker or drawee. Reinke v. Wright (Wis.), 67 N. W. 737; Bensonhurst v. Wilby, 45 Ohio St. 340. As to when waiver may be made, see Power v. Mitchell, 7 Wis. 161. Waiver may result from implication and usage or from any understanding between the parties which is of a character to satisfy the mind that a waiver is intended. Cady v. Bradshaw, 116 N. Y. 188–191.

SEC. 3060-a83. When instrument is dishonored by nonpayment. The instrument is dishonored by nonpayment when:

1. It is duly presented for payment and payment is refused or cannot be obtained; or

2. Presentment is excused and the instrument is overdue and unpaid. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 83.]

SEC. 3060-a84. Liability of person secondarily liable, when instrument is dishonored. Subject to the provisions of this act, when the instrument is dishonored by nonpayment, an immediate right of recourse to all parties secondarily liable thereon, accrues to the holder. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 84.]

Other states: The indorser's liability having been fixed by demand and notice of dishonor, he becomes an independent and principal debtor and does not stand in the capacity of a mere surety. First Nat. Bk. v. Wood, 71 N. Y. 405, 411.

Other authorities are cited in Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (3 Ed.), § 144.

SEC. 3060-a85. Time of maturity. Every negotiable instrument is payable at the time fixed therein without grace. When the day of maturity falls upon Sunday, or a holiday, the instrument is payable on the next succeeding business day. Instruments falling due on Saturday are to be presented for payment on the next succeeding business day, except that instruments payable on demand may, at the option of the holder, be presented for payment before twelve o'clock noon on Saturday, when that entire day is not a holiday. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 85.]

SEC. 3060-a86. Time—how computed. Where the instrument is payable at a fixed period after date, after sight, or after the happening of a specified event, the time of payment is determined by excluding the day from which the time is to begin to run, and by including the date of payment. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 86.]

SEC. 3060-a87. Rule where instrument payable at bank. Where the instrument is made payable at a bank it is equivalent to an order to the bank to pay the same for the account of the principal debtor thereon. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 87.]

Other states: There has been some conflict in the decisions as to the authority of a bank to pay a note or acceptance made payable there. The rule adopted in the statute is the one sustained by the weight of authority; and is also the rule which is most convenient in practice. It is supported by the following decisions: Bank v. Bank, 46 N. Y. 82; Bank v. Hughes, 17 Wend. 94; Bank v. Henninger, 105 Pa. St. 496; Bedford Bk. v. Acoarn, 125 Ind. 582.

The authorities holding the contrary are cited in Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (3 Ed.), § 147.

SEC. 3060-a88. What constitutes payment in due course. Payment is made in due course when it is made at or after maturity of the instrument to the holder thereof in good faith and without notice that his title is defective. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 88.]

Other states: Payment before the day of maturity is a defense which binds only the party receiving payment and those who stand in his shoes. Watson v. Wyman, 161 Mass. 96, 99.

For other authorities see Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (3 Ed.), § 148.

NOTICE OF DISHONOR.

SEC. 3060-a89. To whom notice of dishonor must be given. Except as herein otherwise provided, when a negotiable instrument has been dishonored by nonacceptance or nonpayment, notice of dishonor must be given to the drawer and to each indorser, and any drawer or indorser to whom such notice is not given is discharged. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 89.]

Iowa: Where there are several indorsers of a note, the holder may elect to hold any one or all of the prior indorsers. To hold all liable he must give all notice of protest; otherwise it is only necessary to give those whom he wishes to hold notice. Likewise an indorser thus notified, in order to charge his prior indorsers must give them notice; but when an indorser receives notice of nonpayment and protest either from a subsequent indorser or from the holder of the note, it inures to the benefit of all subsequent indorsees. Hamilton v. Veach, 19–419.

Other states: That this rule does not apply to guarantors, see Brown v. Curtiss, 2 N. Y. 225; Allen v. Rightmere, 20 Johns. 365; Roberts v. Hawkins, 70 Mich. 566.

SEC. 3060-a90. By whom given. The notice may be given by or on behalf of the holder, or by or on behalf of any party to the instrument who might be compelled to pay it to the holder, and who, upon taking it up, would have a right to reimbursement from the party to whom the notice is given. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 90.]

Iowa: Notices of protest to several indorsers residing in the same town may be mailed to one, and will be sufficient to charge them all with notice, provided the party to whom they are sent shall again mail to the proper parties. Van Brunt v. Vaughn, 47–145. See First Nat. Bk. v. Farneman, 93–161.

Other states: That notice cannot be given by a stranger, see Lawrence v. Miller, 16 N. Y. 235, 237; Chanoine v. Fowler, 3 Wend. 173. A drawee who refuses acceptance cannot give notice. Stanton v. Blossom, 14 Mass. 116.

SEC. 3060-a91. Notice given by agent. Notice of dishonor may be given by an agent either in his own name or in the name of any party entitled to give notice, whether that party be his principal or not. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 91.]

Other states: Drexler v. McGlynn, 99 Cal. 143. A notice made out by a notary public who signed by mistake the maker's name instead of his own, without authority of the maker, is insufficient. Cabot Bk. v. Warner, 92 Mass. 522. Banks as agents for collection have authority to receive and transmit notices on behalf of the owners of the paper. West River Bk. v. Taylor, 34 N. Y. 128, 130; Colt v. Noble, 5 Mass. 167. An agent in giving notice represents and acts on behalf of his principal, and this, though he may be a notary acting in his official character. Lawrence v. Miller, 16 N. Y. 235, 238.

SEC. 3060-a92. Effect of notice given on behalf of holder. Where notice is given by or on behalf of the holder, it inures for the benefit of all subsequent holders and all prior parties who have a right of recourse against the party to whom it is given. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 92.]

Other states: A holder is not bound to give notice to any one but his immediate indorser. West River Bank v. Taylor, 34 N. Y. 128, 131; Linn v. Horton, 17 Wis. 150, 153.

SEC. 3060-a93. Effect where notice is given by party entitled thereto. Where notice is given by or on behalf of a party entitled to give notice, it inures for the benefit of the holder and all parties subsequent to the party to whom the notice is given. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 93.]

SEC. 3060-a94. When agent may give notice. Where the instrument has been dishonored in the hands of an agent, he may either himself give notice to the parties liable thereon, or he may give notice to his principal. If he gives notice to his principal, he must do so within the same time as if he were the holder, and the principal, upon receipt of such notice, has himself the same time for giving notice as if the agent had been an independent holder. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 94.]

Other states: Rosson v. Carroll, 90 Tenn. 90.

SEC. 3060-a95. When notice is sufficient. A written notice need not be signed, and an insufficient written notice may be supplemented and validated by verbal communication. A misdescription of the instrument does not vitiate unless the party to whom the notice is given is in fact misled thereby. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 95.]

Other states: Kilgore v. Bulkley, 14 Conn. 362; Tobey v. Lenning, 14 Pa. St. 483; Aiken v. Marine Bk., 16 Wis. 679.

SEC. 3060-a96. Form of notice. The notice may be in writing or merely oral and may be given in any terms which sufficiently identify the instrument and indicate that it has been dishonored by nonacceptance or nonpayment. It may in all cases be given by delivering it personally or through the mails. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 96.]

Iowa: Notice of nonpayment may be verbal as well as in writing. First Nat. Bk. v. Ryerson, 23–508. Certificate of notary which fails to show that the residences of the several parties were at the places where the notices were addressed to them, held sufficient. Fuller & Warren v. Dingman, 41–506. Certificate of protest considered and held sufficient. Jones v. Berryhill, 25–289.

Other states: Brewster v. Arnold, 1 Wis. 264. A notice which omits an essential feature of the note or misdescribes it, is an imperfect one, but not necessarily invalid. It is invalid only where it fails to give that particular information which it would have given but for its particular imperfection; and even in case the notice in itself be defective, if, from evidence aliunde of the attendant circumstances, it is apparent that the indorser was not deceived or misled as to the identity of the dishonored instrument, he will be charged. Hodges v. Schuyler, 22 N. Y. 114; Artisans' Bk. v. Backus, 36 N. Y. 106; Gill v. Palmer, 29 Conn. 57. To render the notice defective it must fail to convey sufficient knowledge to disclose the identity of the particular instrument dishonored. Mills v. Bank of U. S., 11 Wheat. 431; Bank of Alexandria v. Swaim, 9 Pet. 33.

For numerous other authorities see Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (3 Ed.), § 167.

SEC. 3060-a97. To whom notice may be given. Notice of dishonor may be given either to the party himself or to his agent in that behalf. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 97.]

Other states: Fassin v. Hubbard, 55 N. Y. 465, 471; Bank v. Butler Colliery Co., 51 Hun. 63, 68.

SEC. 3060-a98. Notice where party is dead. Where any party is dead, and his death is known to the party giving notice, the notice must be given to a personal representative, if there be one, and if with reasonable diligence, he can be found. If there be no personal representative, notice may be sent to the last residence or[1] last place of business of the deceased. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 98.]

SEC. 3060-a99. Notice to partners. Where the parties to be notified are partners, notice to any one partner is notice to the firm, even though there has been a dissolution. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 99.]

Other states: Where partners give a promissory note with one of them as maker and the other as indorser, the latter is not liable on his indorsement unless he be duly notified of the dishonor of the note. Foland v. Boyd, 23 Pa. St. 476; Hubbard v. Matthews, 54 N. Y. 43, 50.

SEC. 3060-a100. Notice to persons jointly liable. Notice to joint parties who are not partners must be given to each of them, unless one of them has authority to receive such notice for the others. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 100.]

Other states: Shepard v. Hawley, 1 Conn. 367; Boyd v. Orton, 16 Wis. 495.
For distinction between parties who are partners and joint parties who are not partners, see Gates v. Beecher, 60 N. Y. 518, 526.

SEC. 3060-a101. Notice to bankrupt. Where a party has been adjudged a bankrupt or an insolvent, or has made an assignment for the benefit of creditors, notice may be given either to the party himself or to his trustee or assignee. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 101.]

Other states: Where the indorser has made a voluntary assignment for the benefit of creditors, notice to the assignee would bind the indorser and his estate. Callahan v. Kentucky Bank, 82 Ky. 231. To the same effect: American Nat. Bk. v. Junk Bros., 94 Tenn. 634. Contra: House v. Vinton, 43 Ohio St. 346.

SEC. 3060-a102. Time within which notice must be given. Notice may be given as soon as the instrument is dishonored, and unless delay is excused as hereinafter provided, must be given within the times fixed by this act. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 102.]

Other states: That the holder need not wait until the close of business hours, but may send notice at once, see Bank of Alexandria v. Swaim, 9 Pet. 33; Lenox v. Roberts, 2 Wheat. 373; Whitwell v. Brigham, 19 Pick. 117.
For other authorities see Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (3 Ed.), § 173.

Waiver of notice of dishonor may be implied from the declarations or acts of the indorser, made with knowledge of the situation and his rights. Porter v. Moles, 151–279, 131 N. W. 23.

SEC. 3060-a103. Where parties reside in same place. Where the person giving and the person to receive notice reside in same place, notice must be given within the following times:

1. If given at the place of business of the person to receive notice, it must be given before the close of business hours on the day following.
2. If given at his residence, it must be given before the usual hours of rest on the day following.
3. If sent by mail, it must be deposited in the post office in time to reach him in the usual course on the day following. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 103.]

Other states: Adams v. Wright, 14 Wis. 408; Daniel on Neg. Insts., § 1038; Phelps v. Stocking, 21 Neb. 444.
See also Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (3 Ed.), § 174.

The fixed rules of the negotiable instruments act relating to notice of dishonor are not applicable to presentment for payment of a bank check. Plover Savings Bank v. Moodie, 135–685, 110 N. W. 29, 113 N. W. 476.

It is not universally true that, even where the facts shown in evidence are without dispute, the question whether the presentment was in reasonable time is for the court. Citizens' Bank v. First Nat. Bank, 135–605, 113 N. W. 481.

SEC. 3060-a104. Where parties reside in different places. Where the person giving and the person to receive notice reside in different places, the notice must be given within the following times:

1. If sent by mail, it must be deposited in the post office in time to go by mail the day following the day of dishonor, or if there be no mail at a convenient hour on that day, by the next mail thereafter.

2. If given otherwise than through the post office, then within the time that notice would have been received in due course of mail, if it had been deposited in the post office within the time specified in the last subdivision. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 104.]

Other states: Stephenson v. Dickson, 24 Pa. St. 148; Whitwell v. Johnson, 17 Mass. 449. In Smith v. Poillon, 87 N. Y. 590, 597, it is said: "From a careful examination of all these authorities and many others, it is clear that the law is not precisely settled. It appears that at first it was supposed to be necessary that notice of dishonor should be given by the next post after dishonor, on the same day, if there was one. That rule was found inconveniently stringent, and then it was held that when the parties lived in different places between which there was a mail, the notice could be posted on the next day after the dishonor or notice of dishonor. Some of the authorities hold that the party required to give the notice may have the whole of the next day. Some of them hold that when there are several mails on the next day, it is sufficient to send the notice by any post of that day. Other authorities lay down the rule, in general terms, that the notice must be posted by the first practical and convenient mail of the next day; and that rule seems to be supported by the most authority in this state. What is a practical and convenient mail depends upon circumstances. It may be controlled by the usages of business and the customs of the people at the place of mailing, and the condition, situation and business engagements of the person required to give the notice. The rule should have a reasonable application in every case, and whether sufficient diligence has been used to mail the notice, the facts being undisputed, is a question of law."

See Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (3 Ed.), § 175.

SEC. 3060-a105. When sender deemed to have given due notice. Where notice of dishonor is duly addressed and deposited in the post office, the sender is deemed to have given due notice, notwithstanding any miscarriage in the mails. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 105.]

Other states: See Windham Bk. v. Norton, 22 Conn. 213; Cook v. Foraker, 193 Pa. St. 461.

SEC. 3060-a106. Deposit in post office—what constitutes. Notice is deemed to have been deposited in the post office when deposited in any branch post office or in any letter box under the control of the post-office department. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 106.]

Other states: See Pearce v. Langfit, 101 Pa. St. 507; Johnson v. Brown, 154 Mass. 105.

SEC. 3060-a107. Notice to antecedent[1] party—time of. Where a party receives notice of dishonor, he has, after the receipt of such notice, the same time for giving notice to antecedent parties that the holder has after the dishonor. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 107.]

SEC. 3060-a108. Where notice must be sent. Where a party has added an address to his signature, notice of dishonor must be sent to that address; but if he has[1] not given such address, then the notice must be sent as follows:

1. Either to the post office nearest to his place of residence, or to the post office where he is accustomed to receive his letters; or

2. If he lives in one place, and have his place of business in another, notice may be sent to either place; or

3. If he is sojourning in another place, notice may be sent to the place where he is sojourning. But where the notice is actually received by the party within the time specified in this act, it will be sufficient, though not sent in accordance with the requirements of this section. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 108.]

["is" in enrolled bill, which is manifestly erroneous. It appears as "has" in the New York act. EDITOR.]

Other states: That notice must be sent to the address given, see Bartlett v. Robinson, 39 N. Y. 187.

(1) Iowa: A notice of presentment, nonpayment and protest, to charge indorser, must be sent him at his proper post office, and when sent to wrong post office, held insufficient. Northwestern Coal Co. v. Bowman & Co., 69–150; but where notice is addressed to indorser at his former postoffice, but which had been discontinued and business transferred to another, held sufficient. Bank v. Owen, 23–185.

SEC. 3060-a109. Waiver of notice. Notice of dishonor may be waived, either before the time of giving notice has arrived, or after the omission to give due notice, and the waiver may be express[1] or implied. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 109.]

["expressed" in the prior supplements. The change made here conforms with the enrolled bill and the New York act. EDITOR.]

Other states: See Ross v. Hurd, 71 N. Y. 14, 18; Low v. Howard, 10 Cush. 159. But it must appear that the indorser had knowledge of the fact that the holder was in default. Thornton v. Wynn, 12 Wheat. 183; Schierl v. Baumel, 75 Wis. 75. And in Massachusetts it is held that knowledge on the part of the indorser that demand upon the maker has not been made, is material, and must be proved, notwithstanding the fact that he knew that the note had not been paid and that notice of nonpayment had not been given, and was aware that he was discharged from all liability. *Parks v. SEC. 3060-a110. Whom affected by waiver. Where the waiver is embodied in the instrument itself, it is binding upon all parties; but where it is written above the signature of an indorser, it binds him only. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 110.]

Iowa: A waiver of presentation, protest and notice of nonpayment contained in the body of the note is binding on one who indorses in blank. Phillips v. Dippo, 93–35; Bank v. Sigstadt, 96–491; Bank v. Wilka, 102–315.

SEC. 3060-a113. Delay in giving notice—how excused. Delay in giving notice of dishonor is excused when the delay is caused by circumstances beyond the control of the holder and not imputable to his default, misconduct or negligence. When the cause of delay ceases to operate, notice must be given with reasonable diligence. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 113.]

Other states: Martin v. Ingersoll, 8 Pick. 1.

SEC. 3060-a114. When notice need not be given to drawer. Notice of dishonor is not required to be given to the drawer in either of the following cases:

1. Where the drawer and drawee are the same person.
2. Where the drawee is a fictitious person or a person not having capacity to contract.
3. Where the drawer is the person to whom the instrument is presented for payment.
4. Where the drawer has no right to expect or require that the drawee or acceptor will honor the instrument.
5. Where the drawer has countermanded payment. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 114.]

1. Where the drawee is a fictitious person or a person not having capacity to contract and the indorser was aware of the fact at the time he indorsed the instrument.
2. Where the indorser is the person to whom the instrument is presented for payment.
3. Where the instrument was made or accepted for his accommodation. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 115.]

(2) Other states: In re Swift, 106 Fed. 65, is a case arising under this statute.

(3) Iowa: Possession by an indorser of a note at maturity waives demand and notice. Lomax v. Smyth, 50–223.

Other states: French v. Bank of Columbia, 4 Cranch, 141; Blenderman v. Price, 50 N. J. L. 296.

SEC. 3060-a116. Notice of nonpayment where acceptance refused. Where due notice of dishonor by nonacceptance has been given, notice of a subsequent dishonor by nonpayment is not necessary, unless in the meantime the instrument has been accepted. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 116.]

See Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (3 Ed.), § 187.

SEC. 3060-a117. Effect of omission to give notice of nonacceptance. An omission to give notice of dishonor by nonacceptance does not prejudice the rights of a holder in due course subsequent to the omission. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 117.]

SEC. 3060-a118. When protest need not be made—when must be made. Where any negotiable instrument has been dishonored it may be protested for nonacceptance or nonpayment as the case may be; but protest is not required, except in the case of foreign bills of exchange. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 118.]

Iowa: Unless the specified place of payment be at a bank, a deposit of money at such place to meet the note will not be a payment, the holder not being required to make presentment at that place. Callanan v. Williams, 71–363; Englert v. White, 92–97; Klindt v. Higgins, 95–529; Baumgartner v. Peterson, 93–572.

The rule is probably otherwise where the specified place of payment is at a bank. Bank v. Ingerson, 105–349. Payment to payee, who is a trustee, before maturity, with knowledge of assignment, is not a satisfaction of the indebtedness, and such payment will not protect the maker. Livermore v. Maxwell, 87–705. Payment to an agent not in possession of the instrument is done at the peril of the payer; so, too, is payment before maturity, the paper remaining outstanding. Security Co. v. Graybeal, 85–543; U. S. Bank v. Burson, 90–191. Where note is payable at a specified place, maker can only exonerate himself from payment of interest by showing that he had funds at the place for the discharge of the note. Robinson v. Lair, 31–9. Presumption of ownership arises from the possession of a note after maturity. Graff v. Adams, 100–481; Stoddard v. Burton, 41–582; and payment of a note before maturity, made payable "on or before" to the holder thereof will be upheld. Stoddard v. Burton, supra.

DISCHARGE OF NEGOTIABLE INSTRUMENTS.

SEC. 3060-a119. How instrument discharged.[1] A negotiable instrument is discharged:

1. By payment in due course by or on behalf of the principal debtor.
2. By payment in due course by the party accommodated, where the instrument is made or accepted for accommodation.
3. By the intentional cancellation thereof by the holder.
4. By any other act which will discharge a simple contract for the payment of money.
5. When the principal debtor becomes the holder of the instrument at or after maturity in his own right. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 119.]

[1]These catchwords are not exactly like the New York act but are as Mr. Crawford says they should be. EDITOR.]

(1) Other states: Possession of a bill by the acceptor after it has been in circulation, is prima-facie evidence that it has been paid by him. Baring v. Clark, 19 Pick. 220. So the possession of a promissory note by the maker. Bank v. Harris, 7 Wash. 139; Madison Square Bk. v. Pierce, 137 N. Y. 444.

For citation of other authorities see Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (3 Ed.), § 200.

SEC. 3060-a120. When persons secondarily liable on—discharged. A person secondarily liable on the instrument is discharged:

1. By an act which discharges the instrument.
2. By the intentional cancellation of his signature by the holder.
3. By the discharge of a prior party.
4. By the valid tender of payment made a prior party.
5. By a release of the principal debtor, unless the holder's right of recourse against the party secondarily liable is expressly reserved.
6. By an agreement binding upon the holder to extend the time of payment, or to postpone the holder's right to enforce the instrument, unless made with the assent of the party secondarily liable, or unless the right of recourse against such party is expressly reserved. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 120.]

(3) Other states: Shutts v. Fingar, 100 N. Y. 539; Couch v. Waring, 9 Conn. 261; Gennis v. Weighley, 114 Pa. St. 194.

(5) Other states: By an express reservation of the holder's rights against the drawer or indorser, their rights against the maker or acceptor are reserved by implication. Gloucester Bk. v. Worcester, 10 Pick. 528; Tombeckbe Bk. v. Stratton, 7 Wend. 429.

(6) For authorities under this head see Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (3 Ed.), § 201.

The provisions of this section are not applicable in an action between parties to the instrument when said action does not involve rights of ownership in due course. Fullerton Lumber Co. v. Snouffer, 139–176, 117 N. W. 50.

SEC. 3060-a121. Right of party who discharges instrument. Where the instrument is paid by a party secondarily liable thereon, it is not discharged; but the party so paying it is remitted to his former rights as regards all prior parties, and he may strike out his own and all subsequent indorsements, and again negotiate the instrument, except:

1. Where it is payable to the order of a third person, and has been paid by the drawer; and
2. Where it was made or accepted for accommodation, and has been paid by the party accommodated. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 121.]

(2) Iowa: Maker is not released by extension given to the indorser or the taking of security from the indorser. Whiting v. Western Stage Co., 20–554.

For a citation of authorities to this section see Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (3 Ed.), § 202.

SEC. 3060-a122. Renunciation by holder. The holder may expressly renounce his rights against any party to the instrument before, at or after its maturity. An absolute and unconditional renunciation of his rights against the principal debtor made at or after the maturity of the instrument discharges the instrument. But a renunciation does not affect the rights of a holder in due course without notice. A renunciation must be in writing, unless the instrument is delivered up to the person primarily liable thereon. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 122.]

SEC. 3060-a123. Cancellation—unintentional—burden of proof. A cancellation made unintentionally, or under a mistake, or without the authority of the holder, is inoperative; but where an instrument or any signature thereon appears to have been canceled, the burden of proof lies on the party who alleges that the cancellation was made unintentionally, or under a mistake or without authority. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 123.]

SEC. 3060-a124. Alteration of instrument—effect of. Where a negotiable instrument is materially altered without the assent of all parties liable thereon, it is avoided, except as against a party who has himself made, authorized or assented to the alteration and subsequent indorsers. But when an instrument has been materially altered and is in the hands of a holder in[1] due course, not a party to the alteration, he may enforce payment thereof[2] according to its original tenor. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 124.]

[1"If," 2"thereon" in the prior supplements. The above changes conform with the enrolled bill and the New York act. EDITOR.]

Iowa: The severance of one portion of a contract, which leaves one portion in the form of a negotiable promissory note, signed by one of the parties, constitutes such a material alteration that recovery cannot be had on the note, even in the hands of a bona fide purchaser for value before maturity, unless the maker is chargeable with gross negligence in its execution. Scofield v. Ford, 56–370. Proof of material alteration since acceptance by drawee casts the burden upon the holder of showing purchase in good faith without notice of alteration. Smith v. Eals, 81–235; Conger v. Crabtree, 88–536. See Nat. Bk. v. Zeims, 93–140.

Other states: See Jeffrey v. Rosenfeld (Mass.), 61 N. E. 49, where the effect of this provision was discussed, but not decided. The burden of explaining an apparent alteration is upon the party producing the paper. Town of Solon v. Williamsburgh Sav. Bk., 114 N. Y. 122, 135; Simpson v. Davis, 119 Mass. 269; Gettysburg Nat. Bk. v. Chisolm, 169 Pa. St. 564.

For other authorities see Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (3 Ed.), § 205.

SEC. 3060-a125. What constitutes a material alteration. Any alteration which changes:

1. The date.
2. The sum payable, either for principal or interest.
3. The time or place of payment.
4. The number or the relations of the parties.
5. The medium or currency in which payment is to be made.

Or which adds a place of payment where no place of payment is specified, or any other change or addition which alters the effect of the instrument in any respect, is a material alteration. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 125.]

BILLS OF EXCHANGE—FORM AND INTERPRETATION.

SEC. 3060-a126. Bill of exchange defined. A bill of exchange is an unconditional order in writing addressed by one person to another, signed by the person giving it, requiring the person to whom it is addressed to pay on demand, or at a fixed or determinable future time, a sum certain in money to order or to bearer. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 126.]

Other states: Jarvis v. Wilson, 46 Conn. 91.

SEC. 3060-a127. Bill not an assignment of funds in hands of drawee. A bill of itself does not operate as an assignment of the funds in the hands of the drawee available for the payment thereof, and the drawee is not liable on the bill unless and until he accepts the same. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 127.]

Other states: Harris v. Clark, 3 N. Y. 93; Mandeville v. Welch, 5 Wheat, 286; Brill v. Tuttle, 81 N. Y. 454; Throop Grain Cleaner Co. v. Smith, 110 N. Y. 83.

SEC. 3060-a128. Bill addressed to more than one drawee. A bill may be addressed to two or more drawees jointly, whether they are partners or not; but not to two or more drawees in the alternative or in succession. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 128.]

SEC. 3060-a129. Inland and foreign bills of exchange. An inland bill of exchange is a bill which is, or on its face purports to be, both drawn and payable within this state. Any other bill is a foreign bill. Unless the contrary appears on the face of the bill, the holder may treat it as an inland bill. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 129.]

Other states: Commercial Bk. of Ky. v. Varnum, 49 N. Y. 269; Life Ins. Co. v. Pendleton, 112 U. S. 696; Armstrong v. Am. Exch. Nat. Bk., 133 U. S. 433; Phoenix Bk. v. Hussey, 12 Pick. 483.

SEC. 3060-a130. When bill may be treated as promissory note. Where in a bill [the] drawer and drawee are the same person, or where the drawee is a fictitious person, or a person not having capacity to contract, the holder may treat the instrument, at his option, either as a bill of exchange or a promissory note. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 130.]

See § 3060-a17.

SEC. 3060-a131. Referee in case of need. The drawer of a bill and any indorser may insert thereon[1] the name of a person to whom the holder may resort in case of need, that is to say, in case the bill is dishonored by nonacceptance or nonpayment. Such person is called the referee in case of need. It is in the option of the holder to resort to the referee in case of need or not, as he may see fit. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 131.]

[1According to Mr. Crawford this word should have been "therein." EDITOR.]
The usual form is: "In case of need, apply to Messrs. C and D, at E." Chitty on Bills, 165.

ACCEPTANCE OF BILLS OF EXCHANGE.

SEC. 3060-a132. Acceptance—how made, et cetera. The acceptance of a bill is the signification by the drawee of his assent to the order of the drawer. The acceptance must be in writing and signed by the drawee. It must not express that the drawee will perform his promise by any other means than the payment of money. [31 G. A., ch. 149; 29 G. A., ch. 130, § 132.]

Iowa: A conditional acceptance cannot be held to charge an indorsee of the bill before maturity with equities arising out of original transaction between drawer and acceptor. Merritt v. Nihart, 11–57. Evidence tending to show either an express or implied promise of acceptance held admissible. Smith v. Clark & Whiting, 12–32.

Other states: This contract is regarded as a new contract. Superior City v. Ripley, 138 U. S. 93. The usual mode of making an acceptance is by writing the word "accepted" and subscribing the drawee's name. Byles on Bills, 190. Acceptance by telegraph may be made by the party and such an acceptance is within the terms of the statute requiring acceptances to be in writing. North Atchison Bk. v. Garretson, 51 Fed. 167. But to require the acceptance to be on the instrument itself would preclude the giving of an acceptance by telegraph.

SEC. 3060-a133. Holder entitled to acceptance on face of bill. The holder of a bill presenting the same for acceptance may require that the acceptance be written on the bill, and if such request is refused, may treat the bill as dishonored. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 133.]

SEC. 3060-a134. Acceptance by separate instrument. Where an acceptance is written on a paper other than the bill itself, it does not bind the acceptor except in favor of a person to whom it is shown and who, on the faith thereof, receives the bill for value. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 134.]

SEC. 3060-a135. Promise to accept—when equivalent to acceptance. An unconditional promise in writing to accept a bill before it is drawn is deemed an actual acceptance in favor of every person who, upon the faith thereof, receives the bill for value. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 135.]

Other states: An absolute authority to draw is equivalent to an unconditional promise to pay. Ruiz v. Renauld, 100 N. Y. 256; Merchants Bk. v. Griswold, 72 N. Y. 472, 479. At common law an oral promise was sufficient. Scudder v. Union Nat. Bk., 91 U. S. 406.

For a citation of other authorities see Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (3 Ed.), § 223.

SEC. 3060-a136. Time allowed drawee to accept. The drawee is allowed twenty-four hours after presentment[1] in which to decide whether or not he will accept the bill; but the acceptance, if given, dates as of the day of presentation. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 136.]

[1"presentation" in prior supplement. Changed here to conform with the enrolled bill and the New York act. EDITOR.]

SEC. 3060-a137. Liability of drawee retaining or destroying bill. Where a drawee to whom a bill is delivered for acceptance destroys the same, or refuses within twenty-four hours after such delivery, or within such other period as the holder may allow, to return the bill accepted or nonaccepted to the holder, he will be deemed to have accepted the same. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 137.]

Other states: Matteson v. Moulton, 79 N. Y. 627.

SEC. 3060-a138. Acceptance of incomplete bill. A bill may be accepted before it has been signed by the drawer,[1] or while otherwise incomplete, or when it is overdue, or after it has been dishonored by a previous refusal to accept, or by nonpayment. But when a bill payable after sight is dishonored by nonacceptance and the drawee subsequently accepts it, the holder, in the absence of any different agreement, is entitled to have the bill accepted as of the date of the first presentment. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 138.]

[1"drawee" in prior supplement. Changed here to conform with the enrolled bill and the New York act. EDITOR.]

SEC. 3060-a139. Kinds of acceptance. An acceptance is either general or qualified. A general acceptance assents without qualification to the order of the drawer. A qualified acceptance in express terms varies the effect of the bill as drawn. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 139.]

SEC. 3060-a140. What constitutes a general acceptance. An acceptance to pay at a particular place is a general acceptance unless it expressly states that the bill is to be paid there only and not elsewhere. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 140.]

Other states: Wallace v. McConnell, 13 Pet. 136. See note to § 3060-a70.

SEC. 3060-a141. Qualified acceptance. An acceptance is qualified, which is:

1. Conditional, that is to say, which makes payment by the acceptor dependent on the fulfillment of a condition therein stated.
2. Partial, that is to say, an acceptance to pay part only of the amount for which the bill is drawn.
3. Local, that is to say, an acceptance to pay only at a particular place.
4. Qualified as to time.
5. The acceptance of some one or more of the drawees, but not of all. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 141.]

(1) Other states: Such an acceptance does not become due until the happening of the contingency upon which the bill is accepted. Brockway v. Allen, 17 Wend. 40; Newhall v. Clark, 3 Cush. 376.

SEC. 3060-a142. Rights of parties to qualified acceptance. The holder may refuse to take a qualified acceptance, and if he does not obtain an unqualified acceptance, he may treat the bill as dishonored by nonacceptance. Where a qualified acceptance is taken, the drawer and indorsers are discharged from liability on the bill, unless they have expressly or impliedly authorized the holder to take a qualified acceptance, or subsequently assent thereto. When the drawer or an indorser receives notices of a qualified acceptance, he must within a reasonable time express his dissent to the holder, or he will be deemed to have assented thereto. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 142.]

Other states: Walker v. N. Y. St. Bk., 9 N. Y. 582.

PRESENTMENT OF BILLS OF EXCHANGE FOR ACCEPTANCE.

SEC. 3060-a143. When presentment for acceptance must be made. Presentment for[1] acceptance must be made:

1. When the bill is payable after sight, or in any other case where presentment for acceptance is necessary in order to fix the maturity of the instrument; or
2. Where the bill expressly stipulates that it shall be presented for acceptance; or

3. Where the bill is drawn payable elsewhere than at the residence or place of business of the drawee.

In no other case is presentment for acceptance necessary in order to render any party to the bill liable. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 143.]

["of" in prior supplements. The change here conforms with the enrolled bill and the New York act. EDITOR.]

Other states: Allen v. Suydam, 17 Wend. 368. A bill payable at a fixed period from its date may be presented for acceptance at any time. Bachellor v. Priest, 12 Pick. 399; Oxford Bk. v. Davis, 4 Cush. 188.

SEC. 3060-a144. When failure to present releases drawer and indorser. Except as herein otherwise provided, the holder of a bill which is required by the next preceding section to be presented for acceptance must either present it for acceptance or negotiate it within a reasonable time. If he fail to do so, the drawer and all indorsers are discharged. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 144.]

Other states: Robinson v. Ames, 20 Johns. 146; Prescott Bk. v. Coverly, 7 Gray, 217; Walsh v. Dort, 23 Wis. 334.

SEC. 3060-a145. Presentment—how made. Presentment for acceptance must be made by or on behalf of the holder at a reasonable hour, on a business day and before the bill is overdue, to the drawee[1] or some person authorized to accept or refuse acceptance on his behalf; and:

1. Where a bill is addressed to two or more drawees who are not partners, presentment must be made to them all, unless one has authority to accept or refuse acceptance for all, in which case presentment may be made to him only.

2. Where the drawee is dead, presentment may be made to his personal representative.

3. Where the drawee has been adjudged a bankrupt or an insolvent or has made an assignment for the benefit of creditors, presentment may be made to him or to his trustee or assignee. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 145.]

["drawer" in enrolled bill which was an error occurring also in the original New York act but which was corrected by laws N. Y. 1898 ch. 336 to read as set forth in the above section. EDITOR.]

The holder may require agent to show authority. Daniel on Neg. Insts., § 487.

(1) Other states: Smith v. Melton, 133 Mass. 369.

SEC. 3060-a146. On what days presentment may be made. A bill may be presented for acceptance on any day on which negotiable instruments may be presented for payment under the provisions of sections seventy-two and eighty-five of this act. When Saturday is not otherwise a holiday, presentment for acceptance may be made before twelve o'clock noon on that day. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 146.]

SEC. 3060-a147. Presentment where time is insufficient. Where the holder of a bill drawn payable elsewhere than at the place of business or the residence of the drawee has not time with the exercise of reasonable diligence to present the bill for acceptance before presenting it for payment on the day that it falls due, the delay caused by presenting the bill for acceptance before presenting it for payment is excused and does not discharge the drawers and indorsers. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 147.]

SEC. 3060-a148. Where presentment is excused. Presentment for acceptance is excused and a bill may be treated as dishonored by non-acceptance, in either of the following cases:

1. Where the drawee is dead, or has absconded, or is a fictitious person or a person not having capacity to contract by bill.

2. Where after the exercise of reasonable diligence, presentment cannot be made.

3. Where although presentment has been irregular, acceptance has been refused on some ground. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 148.]

Other states: Schmittler v. Simon, 101 N. Y. 554.

SEC. 3060-a149. When dishonored by nonacceptance. A bill is dishonored by nonacceptance:

1. When it is duly presented for acceptance and such an acceptance as is prescribed by this act is refused or cannot be obtained; or

2. When a presentment for acceptance is excused and the bill is not accepted. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 149.]

SEC. 3060-a150. Duty of holder where bill is not accepted. Where a bill is duly presented for acceptance and is not accepted within the prescribed time, the person presenting it must treat the bill as dishonored by nonacceptance or he loses the right of recourse against the drawer and indorsers. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 150.]

SEC. 3060-a151. Rights of holders where bill is not accepted. When a bill is dishonored by nonacceptance, an immediate right of recourse against the drawers and indorsers accrues to the holder and no presentment for payment is necessary. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 151.]

PROTEST OF BILLS OF EXCHANGE.

SEC. 3060-a152. In what cases protest necessary. Where a foreign bill appearing on its face to be such is dishonored by nonacceptance, it must be duly protested for nonacceptance, and where such a bill which has not previously been dishonored by nonacceptance is dishonored by nonpayment, it must be duly protested for nonpayment. If it is not so protested, the drawer and indorsers are discharged. Where a bill does not appear on its face to be a foreign bill, protest thereof in case of dishonor is unnecessary. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 152.]

Other states: Commercial Bank v. Varnum, 49 N. Y. 269, 275; Dennistoun v. Stuart, 17 How. (U. S.) 606; Bank v. Hussey, 12 Pick. 483.

See Byles on Bills, 256.

SEC. 3060-a153. Protest—how made. The protest must be annexed to the bill, or must contain a copy thereof, and must be under the hand and seal of the notary making it, and must specify:

1. The time and place of presentment.
2. The fact that presentment was made and the manner thereof.
3. The cause or reason for protesting the bill.
4. The demand made and the answer given, if any, or the fact that the drawee or acceptor could not be found. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 153.]

[For its competency as evidence of what it recites see § 4624 of the code. EDITOR.]

Iowa: The certificate of protest is only evidence of notice when it recites that notice was given. Sather v. Rogers, 10–231; Thorp v. Craig, 10–461. It is only evidence of the facts therein recited, and where it shows that the notice was directed to the indorser at a particular place it will not be presumed that such place was the residence of such indorser. Bradshaw v. Hedge, 10–402. But a certificate of protest stating that the notary notified the indorsers is sufficient although it does not show that the residence of the several parties are at the places to which the notices were addressed. Fuller v. Dingham, 41–506. It is not necessary to annex to, or set out in, the notary's certificate, the notice referred to therein, nor need the certificate, in words, formally refer to the seal. Jones v. Berryhill, 25–289. If the certificate states that notices of protest properly addressed were deposited in the post office, it will be presumed that the postage was prepaid. Brooks v. Day, 11–46.

When the certificate of protest states that the notary notified the proper parties in a certain manner, the credit due the certificate will generate the presumption that the mode adopted accomplished the result certified to, unless it affirmatively appear that the method adopted could not have done so; but if the notary only certifies as to the steps taken, then, to make out a prima-facie case, it must further appear that such steps would effectuate notice. Wamsley v. Rivers, 34–463. The fact that the certificate is dated at a time subsequent to that of the dishonor and protest will not render it incompetent. Chatham Bank v. Allison, 15–357.

The protest of a notary is not receivable without his seal, but such defect may be cured by the affixing of the seal by the notary at the trial. Rindskoff v. Malone, 9–540.

The certificate of a notary public as to the protest of a bill or note is not admissible against defendant in a criminal case, as he is entitled to be confronted with the witnesses against him. State v. Reidel, 26–430.

Other states: Signature of notary may be printed. Bank of Cooperstown v. Woods, 28 N. Y. 561.

(1) Other states: Duckert v. Von Lilienthal, 11 Wis. 56.

(4) Other states: Notarial certificate of protest is competent without further proof. Porter v. Judson, 1 Gray, 175; Pierce v. Indseth, 106 U. S. 546. And the different states of the Union are deemed foreign to each other so that the notarial certificate of protest under seal is good on mere production. Townsley v. Sumrall, 2 Pet. 170; Halliday v. McDougall, 20 Wend. 81; Johnson v. Brown, 154 Mass. 105, 106.

For a citation of other authorities see Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law, (3 Ed.), § 261.

SEC. 3060-a154. Protest—by whom made. Protest may be made by:

1. A notary public; or
2. By any reputable resident of the place where the bill is dishonored, in the presence of two or more credible witnesses. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 154.]

Other states: Notary must make presentment and demand in person. Commercial Bk. v. Varnum, 49 N. Y. 269, 275; Ocean Nat. Bk. v. Williams, 102 Mass. 141. Notary who is an officer of a bank may legally protest paper belonging to the bank. Nelson v. First Nat. Bk., 69 Fed. 798, 16 C. C. A. 425.

SEC. 3060-a155. Protest—when to be made. When a bill is protested, such protest must be made on the day of its dishonor, unless delay is excused as herein provided. When a bill has been duly noted, the protest may be subsequently extended as of the date of the noting. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 155.]

See Byles on Bills, 257.

SEC. 3060-a156. Protest—where made. A bill must be protested at the place where it is dishonored, except that when a bill drawn payable at the place of business or residence of some person other than the drawee, has been dishonored by nonacceptance, it must be protested for nonpayment at the place where it is expressed to be payable; and no other presentment for payment to, or demand on, the drawee is necessary. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 156.]

See Daniel on Neg. Insts., § 935; and Byles on Bills, 257.

SEC. 3060-a157. Protest both for nonacceptance and nonpayment. A bill which has been protested for nonacceptance may be subsequently protested for nonpayment. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 157.]

See Daniel on Neg. Insts., § 1464.

SEC. 3060-a158. Protest before maturity where acceptor insolvent. Where the acceptor has been adjudged a bankrupt or an insolvent or has made an assignment for the benefit of creditors, before the bill matures, the holder may cause the bill to be protested for better security against the drawer and indorsers. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 158.]

SEC. 3060-a159. Where protest dispensed with. Protest is dispensed with by any circumstances which would dispense with notice of dishonor. Delay in noting or protesting is excused when delay is caused by circumstances beyond the control of the holder and not imputable to his default, misconduct or negligence. When the cause of delay ceases to operate, the bill must be noted or protested with reasonable diligence. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 159.]

SEC. 3060-a160. Protest where bill is lost, et cetera. Where a bill is lost or destroyed, or is wrongfully[1] detained from the person entitled to hold it, protest may be made on a copy or written particulars thereof. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 160.]

[1"wrongly" in enrolled bill, but "wrongfully" in prior supplements and in the New York act. EDITOR.]

ACCEPTANCE OF BILLS OF EXCHANGE FOR HONOR.

SEC. 3060-a161. When bill may be accepted for honor. Where a bill of exchange has been protested for dishonor by nonacceptance, or protested for better security, and is not overdue, any person not being a party already liable thereon, may, with the consent of the holder, intervene and accept the bill supra protest for the honor of any[1] party liable thereon or for the honor of the person for whose account the bill is drawn. The acceptance for honor may be for part only of the sum for which the bill is drawn, and where there has been an acceptance for honor for one party, there may be a further acceptance by a different person for the honor of another party. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 161.]

[1"the" in the prior supplement. The change here conforms with the enrolled bill and the New York act. EDITOR.]

See Byles on Bills, 262–266.

SEC. 3060-a162. Acceptance for honor—how made. An acceptance for honor supra protest must be in writing and indicate that it is an acceptance for honor, and must be signed by the acceptor for honor. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 162.]

SEC. 3060-a163. When deemed to be an acceptance for honor of the drawer. Where an acceptance for honor does not expressly state for whose honor it is made, it is deemed to be an acceptance for the honor of the drawer. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 163.]

SEC. 3060-a164. Liability of acceptor for honor. The acceptor for honor is liable to the holder and to all parties to the bill subsequent to the party for whose honor he has accepted. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 164.]

Other states: Baring v. Clark, 19 Pick. 220.

SEC. 3060-a165. Agreement of acceptor for honor. The acceptor for honor by such acceptance engages that he will on due presentment pay the bill according to the terms of his acceptance, provided it shall not have been paid by the drawee, and provided also that it shall have been duly presented for payment and protested for nonpayment and notice of dishonor given to him. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 165.]

SEC. 3060-a166. Maturity of bill payable after sight—accepted for honor. When a bill payable after sight is accepted for honor its maturity is calculated from the date of the noting for nonacceptance and not from the date of the acceptance for honor. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 166.]

SEC. 3060-a167. Protest of bill accepted for honor, et cetera. Where a dishonored bill has been accepted for honor supra protest or contains a reference in case of need, it must be protested for nonpayment before it is presented for payment to the acceptor for honor or referee in case of need. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 167.]

SEC. 3060-a168. Presentment for payment to acceptor for honor—how made. Presentment for payment to the acceptor for honor must be made as follows:

1. If it is to be presented in the place where the protest for nonpayment was made, it must be presented not later than the day following its maturity.

2. If it is to be presented in some other place than the place where it was protested, then it must be forwarded within the time specified in section one hundred and four. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 168.]

See Byles on Bills, 263.

SEC. 3060-a169. When delay in making presentment is excused. The provisions of section eighty-one apply where there is delay in making presentment to the acceptor for honor or referee in case of need. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 169.]

SEC. 3060-a170. Dishonor of bill by acceptor for honor. When the bill is dishonored by the acceptor for honor it must be protested for nonpayment by him. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 170.]

PAYMENT OF BILLS OF EXCHANGE FOR HONOR.

SEC. 3060-a171. Who may make payment for honor. Where a bill has been protested for nonpayment, any person may intervene and pay it supra protest for the honor of any person liable thereon or for the honor of the person for whose account it was drawn. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 171.]

See Daniel on Neg. Insts., § 1254; Byles on Bills, 267–269.

SEC. 3060-a172. Payment for honor—how made. The payment for honor supra protest in order to operate as such and not as a mere voluntary payment must be attested by a notarial act of honor which may be appended to the protest or form an extension to it. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 172.]

See Daniel on Neg. Insts., § 1258; Byles on Bills, 267; Konig v. Bayard, 1 Pet. 250.

SEC. 3060-a173. Declaration before payment for honor. The notarial act of honor must be founded on a declaration made by the payer for honor or by his agent in that behalf declaring his intention to pay the bill for honor and for whose honor he pays. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 173.]

SEC. 3060-a174. Preference of parties offering to pay for honor. Where two or more persons offer to pay a bill for the honor of different parties, the person whose payment will discharge most parties to the bill is to be given the preference. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 174.]

SEC. 3060-a175. Effect on subsequent parties where bill is paid for honor. Where a bill has been paid for honor all parties subsequent to the party for whose honor it is paid are discharged, but the payer for honor is subrogated for, and succeeds to, both the rights and duties of the holder as regards the party for whose honor he pays and all parties liable to the latter. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 175.]

See Daniel on Neg. Insts., § 1255.

SEC. 3060-a176. Where holder refuses to receive payment supra protest. Where the holder of a bill refuses to receive payment supra protest, he loses his right of recourse against any party who would have been discharged by such payment. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 176.]

SEC. 3060-a177. Rights of payer for honor. The payer for honor on paying to the holder the amount of the bill and the notarial expenses incidental to its dishonor, is entitled to receive both the bill itself and the protest. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 177.]

BILLS IN A SET.

SEC. 3060-a178. Bills in sets constitute one bill. Where a bill is drawn in a set, each part of the set being numbered and containing a reference to the other parts, the whole of the parts constitute one bill. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 178.]

See Daniel on Neg. Insts., § 113; Byles on Bills, 387; Durkin v. Cranston, 7 Johns, 442.

SEC. 3060-a179. Rights of holders where different parts are negotiated. Where two or more parts of a set are negotiated to different holders in due course, the holder whose title first accrues is as between such holders the true owner of the bill. But nothing in this section affects the rights of a person who in due course accepts or pays the part first presented to him. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 179.]

Other states: Walsh v. Blatchley, 6 Wis. 422; Byles on Bills, 389.

SEC. 3060-a180. Liability of holder who indorses two or more parts of a set to different persons. Where the holder of a set indorses two or more parts to different persons he is liable on every such part, and every indorser subsequent to him is liable on the part he has himself indorsed, as if such parts were separate bills. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 180.]

See Byles on Bills, 389.

SEC. 3060-a181. Acceptance of bills drawn in sets. The acceptance may be written on any part and it must be written on one part only. If the drawee accepts more than one part, and such accepted parts are negotiated to different holders in due course, he is liable on every such part as if it were a separate bill. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 181.]

Other states: Dounes & Co. v. Church, 13 Pet. 205; Walsh v. Blatchley, 6 Wis. 422.

SEC. 3060-a182. Payment by acceptor of bills drawn in sets. When the acceptor of a bill drawn in a set pays it without requiring the part bearing his acceptance to be delivered up to him, and that part at maturity is outstanding in the hands of a holder in due course, he is liable to the holder thereon. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 182.]

See Byles on Bills, 389.

SEC. 3060-a183. Effect of discharging one of a set. Except as herein otherwise provided where any one part of a bill drawn in a set is discharged by payment or otherwise, the whole bill is discharged. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 183.]

PROMISSORY NOTES AND CHECKS.

SEC. 3060-a184. Promissory note defined. A negotiable promissory note within the meaning of this act is an unconditional promise in writing made by one person to another, signed by the maker engaging to pay on demand or at a fixed or determinable future time, a sum certain in money to order or to bearer. Where a note is drawn to the maker's own order, it is not complete until indorsed by him. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 184.]

Other states: Curran v. Witter, 68 Wis. 16. A note payable to the order of the maker is a negotiable one. Miller v. Weeks, 22 Pa. St. 89.

A note payable to the maker's own order and not indorsed by him is not negotiable, but it does not follow that such a note transferred by him to another for valuable consideration is void or unenforceable. Unterharnscheidt v. Missouri State L. Ins. Co., 138 N. W. 459.

SEC. 3060-a185. Check defined. A check is a bill of exchange drawn on a bank payable on demand. Except as herein otherwise provided, the provisions of this act[1] applicable to a bill of exchange payable on demand apply to a check. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 185.]

Iowa: N. W. Coal Co. v. Bowman, 69–152.

Other states: One of the characteristics which distinguishes a check from a bill of exchange is that a check is always drawn on a bank or banker. Harris v. Clark, 3 N. Y. 93, 115; Bull v. Bank of Kasson, 123 U. S. 105; Rogers v. Durant, 140 U. S. 298; Ridgeley Bk. v. Patton, 109 Ill. 484; Harrison v. Nicollet Nat. Bk., 41 Minn. 489.

That a draft upon a bank not payable immediately is a bill of exchange, see Bowen v. Newell, 8 N. Y. 190; Harrison v. Nicollet Nat. Bk., 41 Minn. 488.

For other authorities see Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (3 Ed.), § 321.

An ordinary bank check is classed as a bill of exchange, payable on demand. Plover Savings Bank v. Moodie, 135–685, 110 N. W. 29, 113 N. W. 476.

SEC. 3060-a186. Within what time a check must be presented. A check must be presented for payment within a reasonable time after its issue, or the drawer will be discharged from liability thereon to the extent of the loss caused by the delay. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 186.]

Other states: See Industrial Bk. of Chicago v. Bowes, 165 Ill. 70. For instances of unreasonable delay, see Gifford v. Hardell, 88 Wis. 538; First Nat. Bk. v. Miller, 43 Neb. 791; Grange v. Reigh, 93 Wis. 552; Western Wheeled Scraper Co. v. Sadilek, 50 Neb. 105; Holmes v. Roe, 62 Mich. 199. For a discussion of the question as to whether or not the death of the drawer operates as a revocation of the authority to pay a check, see Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (3 Ed.), § 322.

Although the specific provision as to presentment of checks for payment excludes the more general provision with regard to presentment of bills of exchange payable on demand, yet the provisions in other sections of the negotiable instruments act with reference to reasonable time, making it dependent to some extent on usage, are applicable also to the presentment of checks. Plover Savings Bank v. Moodie, 135–685, 110 N. W. 29, 113 N. W. 476.

Whether the provision of this section relating to presentation of checks excludes such instruments from the provisions of § 3060-a71, quaere. Ibid.

SEC. 3060-a187. Certification of check—effect of. Where a check is certified by the bank on which it is drawn, the certification is equivalent to an acceptance. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 187.]

Other states: Merchants' Bk. v. State Bk., 10 Wall. 604; Cooke v. State Nat. Bk., 52 N. Y. 96.

SEC. 3060-a188. Effect where the holder of check procures it to be certified. Where the holder of a check procures it to be accepted or certified, the drawer and all indorsers are discharged from liability thereon. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 188.]

Other states: Minot v. Russ, 156 Mass. 458; Metropolitan Bk. v. Jones, 137 Ill. 634; Meridian Nat. Bk. v. First Nat. Bk. (Ind.), 33 N. E. 247.

SEC. 3060-a189. Check not an assignment—when bank liable.[1] A check of itself does not operate as an assignment of any part of the funds to the credit of the drawer with the bank, and the bank is not liable to the holder, unless and until it accepts or certifies the check. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 189.]

[1]These catchwords do not follow the New York act. They are suggested in Mr. Crawford's work. EDITOR.]

Other states: Bank v. Millard, 10 Wall. 152; Bank v. Schuler, 120 U. S. 511; Florence Mills Co. v. Brown, 124 U. S. 385.

For the citation of numerous other authorities supporting the rule adopted by the text, see Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (3 Ed.), § 325.

The holder of an unaccepted check may bring action thereon in his own name against the bank. (Following earlier cases, but not referring to this section.) Bloom v. Winthrop State Bank, 121–101, 96 N. W. 733.

As against such right of action the bank may offset a note held by it against the deposit of the drawer of the check. Ibid.

This section was undoubtedly enacted for the purpose of protecting banks from loss which might be occasioned by the double payment of checks on general deposits and its intent and purpose is to protect banks only when they are acting in good faith and not to protect any particular persons in the collection of their debts to the exclusion of others who are equally as much entitled to protection. Hove v. Stanhope State Bank, 138–39, 115 N. W. 476.

Where parties are properly in court in an equitable action, one holding assignment of a fund by check or general deposit will be protected as against subsequent claimants. Ibid.

Where a special deposit has been made in a bank to meet checks already drawn upon it, a creditor of the depositor cannot by garnishment acquire a right to such fund as against the holders of the checks. Dolph v. Cross, 153–289, 133 N. W. 669.

GENERAL PROVISIONS.

SEC. 3060-a190. Short title. This act shall be known as the Negotiable Instruments Law. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 190.]

See Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (3 Ed.), § 1.

SEC. 3060-a191. Definitions and meaning of terms. In this act, unless the context otherwise requires:

"Acceptance" means an acceptance completed[1] by delivery or notification.

"Action" includes counterclaim and set-off.

"Bank" includes any person or association of persons carrying on the business of banking, whether incorporated or not.

"Bearer" means the person in possession of a bill or note which is payable to bearer.

"Bill" means bill of exchange, and "note" means negotiable promissory note.

"Delivery" means transfer of possession, actual or constructive, from one person to another.

"Holder" means the payee or indorsee of a bill or note, who is in possession of it, or the bearer thereof.

"Indorsement" means an indorsement completed by delivery.

"Instrument" means negotiable instrument.

"Issue" means the first delivery of the instrument, complete in form, to a person who takes it as a holder.

"Person" includes a body of persons, whether incorporated or not.

"Value" means valuable consideration.

"Written" includes printed, and "writing" includes print. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 191.]

[1"completely" in enrolled bill. The corresponding word in the New York act is "completed." EDITOR.]

SEC. 3060-a192. Person primarily liable on instrument. The person "primarily" liable on an instrument is the person who by the terms of the instrument is absolutely required to pay the same. All other parties are "secondarily" liable. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 192.]

See Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (3 Ed.), § 3.

Where the rights of the owner in due course are not involved, this section has no application. Fullerton Lumber Co. v. Snouffer, 139–176, 117 N. W. 50.

SEC. 3060-a193. Reasonable time—what constitutes. In determining what is a "reasonable time" or an "unreasonable time" regard is to be had to the nature of the instrument, the usage of trade or business (if any) with respect to such instruments, and the facts of the particular case. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 193.]

Iowa: Northwestern Coal Co. v. Bowman, 69–153.

The usage of trade or business with respect to the presentation of bank checks for payment is to be taken into account in determining whether such presentation is within a reasonable time. Plover Savings Bank v. Moodie, 135–685, 110 N. W. 29, 113 N. W. 476.

In determining the time for presentment of a bank certificate of deposit in order to hold the indorser, reasonable regard must be had not only to the nature of the instrument but also to the facts of the particular case. Anderson v. First Nat. Bank, 144–251, 122 N. W. 918.

SEC. 3060-a194. Time—how computed—when last day falls on holiday. When the day, or last day, for doing an act herein required or permitted to be done falls on Sunday or on a holiday, the act may be done on the next succeeding secular or business day. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 194.]

SEC. 3060-a195. Application of chapter. The provisions of this act do not apply to negotiable instruments made and delivered prior to the passage hereof. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 195.]

SEC. 3060-a196. Law merchant—when governs. In any case not provided for in this act, the rules of the law merchant shall govern. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 196.]

Other states: Prescott Bk. v. Coverly, 7 Gray, 217.
See note in Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (3 Ed.), § 7.
[§ 197 of the act is § 3060-a, supra. As the entire section relates only to the repeal of certain sections of the code, relating to bills and notes, it was deemed best to insert it in advance of the other sections of the act.]

SEC. 3060-a198. Days of grace—demand made on. A demand made on any one of the three days following the day of maturity of the instrument, except on Sunday or a holiday, shall be as effectual as though made on the day on which demand may be made under the provisions of this act, and the provisions of this act as to notice of nonpayment, nonacceptance, and as to protest shall be applicable with reference to such demand as though the demand were made in accordance with the terms of this act; but the provisions of this section shall not be construed as authorizing demand on any day after the third day from that on which the instrument falls due according to its face. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 198.]

[§§ 3050 and 3051 of the code, relating to grace, are repealed by § 3060-a, supra. The repeal of the statute allowing grace, while the above section permitting demand to be made on any of the three days following the maturity of the paper, for the purpose of fixing the liability of indorsers, would seem to make the instrument mature at different dates, as regards the maker and indorser, or indorsers, under some circumstances. This question might become important in bringing action against all parties under § 3465 of the code.—ED. Supp. '02.]

SEC. 3060-a199. Indemnifying bond to protect payer. That whenever a note, bond, bill of exchange, certificate of deposit, check or other evidence of indebtedness shall have been lost, stolen or destroyed, and the owner thereof desires payment to be made by the person, firm or corporation issuing the same, he shall execute and deliver if demanded to such person, firm or corporation, a good and sufficient bond agreeing to indemnify and save harmless the payer thereof. [31 G. A., ch. 150, § 1.]

SEC. 3060-a200. Indemnifying bond to protect defendants. When an action is brought on a lost note, bond, bill of exchange, draft, certificate of deposit, or other evidence of indebtedness, upon demand of any defendant therein, a good and sufficient bond shall be given to indemnify and save harmless the defendants in said cause. [31 G. A., ch. 150, § 2.]

CHAPTER 4.

OF TENDER.

SECTION 3061. Offer in writing.

A tender in writing is as effectual as an actual personal tender. Shay v. Callanan, 124–370, 100 N. W. 55.

Where a sufficient tender is made to authorize the rescission of a contract, such right to rescission is not lost by a failure to keep the tender good as required by the statutory provision relating to written tenders. Wisconsin Lumber Co. v. Greene & Western Tel. Co., 127–350, 101 N. W. 742.

While an offer of performance in general terms may be sufficient in equity, yet if the party making such tender specifies the exact sum offered he is bound to specify a sum sufficient to discharge the obligation of which performance is tendered. Wood v. Howland, 127–394, 101 N. W. 756.

SEC. 3062. When not accepted.

Where a party attempts to rescind a contract made by his agent, which he claims to have been without authority, he must offer to return any money received by the agent in pursuance of such contract and such offer to return must be made to the opposite party in person; and it is not sufficient to notify him that it is held subject to his order at another place. National Imp. & Const. Co. v. Maiken, 103–118, 72 N. W. 431.

A tender which is kept good relieves the debtor from liability to pay interest on the amount so tendered. Metropolitan Nat. Bank v. Commercial State Bank, 104–682, 74 N. W. 26.

Where one party proposes to pay to the other the amount of a claim, and is advised by the latter that it will not be accepted, such offer amounts to a tender, although the money is not at the time produced, if the person making the offer could and would have produced it had the other party been willing to accept. Steckel v. Standley, 107–694, 77 N. W. 489.

Tender in a law action must be kept good by deposit of the money in court West. v. Farmers' Mut. Ins. Co., 117–147, 90 N. W. 523.

An offer to deliver, with ability to do so, which is met with a demand for a largely increased sum, releases the person making the tender from the necessity of producing the money in order to constitute a good tender. Porter v. Farmers & Merchants Sav. Bank, 143–629, 120 N. W. 633.

SEC. 3063. Receipt—objection.

The provision that the person to whom a tender is made must at the time make any objections which he may have to the money, etc., tendered, refers to the character or kind of money and not to the amount, and does not prevent him from afterwards insisting that the amount was not sufficient. McWhirter v. Crawford, 104–550, 72 N. W. 505, 73 N. W. 1021.

One who makes a tender may not couple it with a demand for a receipt in full for the claim. West v. Farmers' Mut. Ins. Co., 117–147, 90 N. W. 523.

A tender by transmitting a draft for the amount is as effectual as a personal tender in currency, if no objection is made thereto. Shay v. Callanan, 124–370, 100 N. W. 55.

CHAPTER 5.

OF SURETIES.

SECTION 3064. May require creditor to sue.

In the absence of any special statute requiring a creditor to proceed against the principal debtor or any act of the creditor releasing the lien held by him the surety is not relieved by a failure of the creditor to enforce his claim against the debtor. Whitehouse v. American Surety Co., 117–328, 90 N. W. 727.

CHAPTER 6.

OF PRIVATE SEALS.

SECTION 3068. Abolished—use of seal adopted by corporation—release of incumbrance. Section three thousand and sixty-eight of the code is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"The use of private seals in written contracts, or other instruments in writing, by individuals, firms, or corporations that have not adopted a corporate seal, is hereby abolished; and the addition of a seal to any such instrument shall not affect its character or validity in any respect; but in the execution of any written instrument conveying, incumbering or affecting real estate by a corporation that has adopted a corporate seal, the seal of such corporation shall be attached or affixed to such written instrument, or if the corporation has not adopted a corporate seal such fact shall be stated in such written instrument, except that it shall not hereafter be necessary to attach or affix the corporate seal to any release or satisfaction of any mortgage, judgment or other lien, that is made or entered by any corporation on the page or pages of the official record where any such lien appears recorded or entered, but the officer executing such release or satisfaction shall therein certify that same is executed with authority of the board of directors of such corporation, and the county recorder or deputy shall attach thereto a statement showing the relation such officer then bears to the corporation." [33 G. A., ch. 194, § 1.] [C. '73, § 2112; R. § 1823; C. '51, § 974.]

Notwithstanding the statutory provision abolishing the effect of a sealed instrument at common law, a release under seal of one joint tort feasor is a release as to all; but parol testimony is permissible to show that the release was of one not in fact liable, and did not constitute a satisfaction of the liability. Ryan v. Becker, 136 N. W. 273, 111 N. W. 426.

SEC. 3068-a. Certain corporation instruments prior to 1909 legalized. All instruments in writing executed by any corporation prior to July fourth, nineteen hundred and nine, conveying, encumbering, or affecting real estate, including releases, satisfaction of mortgages, judgments, or any other liens by entry of such release or satisfaction upon the page or pages where such lien appears recorded or entered, where the corporate seal of such corporation has not been affixed or attached thereto, and which are otherwise legally and properly executed, are hereby declared legal, valid and binding, the same as though the corporate seal had been attached or affixed thereto; provided this act shall not abate, or in any manner affect actions pending prior to the taking effect hereof. [34 G. A., ch. 225, § 1.]

[Substantially the same provision as the above was enacted by 33 G. A. (S. F. No. 397) and the records show that said S. F. No. 397 passed both houses and was sent to the governor on April 8, 1909. Same did not appear in 33 G. A. session laws and the enrolled bill cannot be found. EDITOR.]

SEC. 3069. Consideration implied.

The statutory provision that contracts in writing, signed by the parties to be bound, import a consideration was enacted for the purpose of giving to instruments in writing the same effect as instruments under seal had under the common law, and not to supply proof that the contract was based upon a particular consideration. No particular consideration is presumed, and where a wife sues her husband under a contract made during coverture, which would be valid only so far as it affected her separate property, the burden is upon the wife to show that the contract was with reference to such separate property. Heacock v. Heacock, 108–540, 79 N. W. 353.

Under the provisions of this section the burden is upon the defendant in an action on a promissory note to show that the note was without consideration. Luke v. Koenen, 120–103, 94 N. W. 278.

Where an agreement is reduced to writing, the writing of itself imports a consideration. Cone v. Cone, 118–458, 92 N. W. 665.

The provision that all contracts in writing signed by the party to be bound shall import a consideration, has no application to a case where the consideration is recited in the instrument and it is shown that the consideration thus recited does not exist. An express consideration clearly named in a written contract cannot be altered by parol. Lane v. Richards, 119–24, 91 N. W. 786.

A written contract implies a consideration for its execution. This rule is applicable to a contract of indemnity. Kenigsberg v. Reininger, 141 N. W. 407.

SEC. 3070. Failure of—fraud.

While a consideration is presumed in a written contract, it is competent to show that in fact the instrument was without consideration, and parol evidence is competent for that purpose. Want or failure, in whole or in part, of the consideration of a written contract may be shown as a defense, entire or partial as the case may be, except in the case of negotiable paper. Beaty v. Carr, 109–183, 80 N. W. 326.

Want or failure, in whole or in part, of the consideration of a written instrument may be shown as a defense, total or partial, as the case may be. Oakland Cemetery Assn. v. Lakins, 126–121, 101 N. W. 778.

Want or failure of consideration in whole or in part may be shown by parol, but must be pleaded. Mosnat v. Uchtyil, 129–274, 105 N. W. 519.

As against the express recital of consideration in a written instrument, parol evidence is not admissible to show a different consideration from that expressed. Ibid.

Under the statutory provision that if in an action on negotiable paper by a holder for value before maturity and in good faith, it appears that the instrument was procured by fraud upon the maker, the holder shall recover as against the maker no greater sum than he has paid therefor, held that a purchaser of negotiable school bonds acquiring the same after maturity and after the statutory provision had taken effect, from one who became the holder thereof before maturity in good faith and for value, and before the taking effect of the statute, was not subject to the statutory limitation as to the amount of recovery. (Reversing S. C., 132 Fed. 514.) Gamble v. Rural Ind. School Dist., 146 Fed. 113.

An assignee of a note, although not a good faith holder in the usual course of business, may recover whatever his assignor would have been entitled to under a suit upon the note. Arnd v. Aylesworth, 136–297, 111 N. W. 407.

Partial failure of consideration may be pleaded as a defense to a note in the hands of a purchaser with notice. City Deposit Bank v. Green, 138–156, 115 N. W. 893.

Where the controversy is not between the maker and the holder with reference to any defense on the part of the maker, this section has no application. Voss v. Chamberlain, 139–569, 117 N. W. 269.

The effect of this and the preceding section is to put the burden upon the defendant of both pleading and proving a want or failure of consideration for a written contract. Gould v. Gunn, 140 N. W. 380.

One taking commercial paper without notice, in payment of a debt, can only recover the amount of such debt from the maker if the paper was procured by fraud. Scherer v. Everest, (C. C. A.) 168 Fed. 822.

Section applied. Plano Mfg. Co. v. Farrell, 110–577, 81 N. W. 772.

CHAPTER 7.

OF ASSIGNMENTS FOR CREDITORS.

SECTION 3071. Must be without preferences.

What valid: Where a general assignment is made, and as a part of the same transaction and for the purpose of giving a preference, a mortgage is executed by the same party, the assignment and mortgage will both be void. Groetzinger v. Wyman, 105–574, 75 N. W. 512.

Mortgages made to the creditors, not with the intention of disposing of the mortgagor's business, but in the hope of being able to continue the business, do not constitute an assignment and therefore are not necessarily fraudulent because of preferences thereby given. Ibid.

A debtor has a legal right to prefer some creditors to others, if he sees fit. Steinke v. Yetzer, 108–512, 79 N. W. 286.

In a particular case held that chattel mortgages executed separately and prior to the time of making a general assignment and without intention at the time to make such assignment were valid. Diemer v. Guernsey, 112–393, 83 N. W. 1047.

A chattel mortgage given by an insolvent to secure one creditor in preference to others is not rendered invalid by a failure to record it, unless the withholding it from record was by reason of agreement, or resulted in some prejudice to other creditors. Deland v. Miller & Cheney Bank, 119–368, 93 N. W. 304.

An insolvent corporation may make payment of its debts or give property in security thereof, just as a natural person may do, and may prefer one of its creditors over another. First Nat. Bank v. Garretson, 107–196, 77 N. W. 856.

Intention: One who takes a mortgage in good faith to secure a valid indebtedness is not affected by the intention of the debtor to make an assignment. Ibid; Manton v. Seiberling, 107–534, 78 N. W. 194; Groetzinger v. Wyman, 105–574, 75 N. W. 512.

One who takes security from an insolvent for a debt, with knowledge of the insolvency, is not to be deprived of the advantage thus secured, unless he took such security with intent to hinder, delay or defraud other creditors. Deland v. Miller & Cheney Bank, 119–368, 93 N. W. 304.

A mortgagee who takes a mortgage without knowledge of an intent to make an assignment for the benefit of creditors is protected. Mills v. Miller, 109–688, 81 N. W. 169.

The burden is on the creditor attacking the mortgage to show that at the time it was executed there was also an intent to make a general assignment. Ibid.

Several mortgages are not to be taken together as constituting a general assignment where they do not include all the property of the debtor. Ibid.

Where a mortgage is executed in pursuance of a prior agreement to give security, and comes to the knowledge of the mortgagee before the assignee under the assignment has accepted the trust, the mortgage will be valid. Ibid.

Aside from the provisions of the national bankruptcy law a creditor acting in good faith can take security from his debtor even though he knows there are other creditors and that the effect of his action will be to defeat them. But under the bankrupt law knowledge of such fact will render the preference fraudulent. Boudinot v. Hamann, 117–22, 90 N. W. 497.

Partial assignments: The statutory provision as to assignment for benefit of creditors does not prevent partial assignments with preferences or sales or mortgages of any or all of the party's property in payment or security of indebtedness. Rothschild v. Hasbrouck, 72 Fed. 813.

An assignment of substantially all a debtor's property to be applied in satisfaction of his debts, by settlement and composition with creditors, is in effect an assignment for the benefit of creditors. In re Hersey, (D. C.) 171 Fed. 998.

Conditions: As an assignment would be subject to all prior valid liens, it is not invalidated by a provision that it is subject to a particular lien described, and such a provision does not estop the assignee from asserting the fraudulent character of the lien thus recognized. Ringen Stove Co. v. Bowers, 109–175, 80 N. W. 318.

What law governs: In proceedings under an assignment for benefit of creditors the validity of a mortgage to a creditor executed in another state upon real estate situated in this state, will be determined by the laws of this state. Manton v. Seiberling, 107–534, 78 N. W. 194.

Effect of bankrupt law: State insolvent laws are not suspended by the enactment of the national bankruptcy act. In re Scholtz, 106 Fed. 834.

SEC. 3072. How made—inventory—effect—recording.

The purchaser from an assignee cannot claim title to property which never passed through the hands of the assignee, and which was not intended to be covered by the instrument of assignment. Gevers v. Farmer, 109–468, 80 N. W. 535.

Where an assignment was made by one partner, and the other partner was within reach so that he might be consulted, held that the assignment did not become effectual until confirmed by such other partner. Mills v. Miller, 109–688, 81 N. W. 169.

Where the assignee took possession of notes and book accounts belonging to the debtor firm, and was garnished therefor under an attachment issued at the suit of creditors, before the assignment which had been executed by one partner only had become valid by confirmation by the other partner, held that the garnishment took priority over the assignment. Ibid.

The assignee stands in the shoes of the insolvent as to liability with reference to contracts made by him. In re Assignment of Jenks, 129–139, 105 N. W. 396.

The assignee acquires no better title to the property than the assignor had, and one who has sold goods to the insolvent, retaining title until the goods have been paid for, may by intervention in the assignment proceeding assert his title to the goods as against the assignee. In re Assignment of Wise, 121–359, 96 N. W. 872.

The inventory is not conclusive as to the property passing by the assignment. Turrill v. McCarthy, 114–681, 87 N. W. 667.

An assignee for the benefit of creditors is not a purchaser in such sense as to be entitled to protection against a prior unrecorded chattel mortgage. Gluck Co. v. Therme, 154–201, 134 N. W. 438.

An assignee for the benefit of creditors takes a cause of action in favor of the assignor subject to the contingencies which attach to it in the hands of the assignor. Therefore held that a contractor having a claim against a public corporation for an improvement could not, by an assignment for the benefit of creditors, cut off the right of a subcontractor to avail himself of statutory provisions against such public corporation for the payment of his claim. Wackerbarth & Blamer Co. v. Independent School Dist., 157– —, 138 N. W. 470.

SEC. 3074. Notice. The assignee shall forthwith give notice of such assignment by publication in some newspaper in the county, which shall be continued, once each week, at least six weeks, and forthwith send a notice by mail to each creditor of whom he shall be informed, directed to his usual place of residence, requiring him to present to him within three months thereafter his claims under oath. [30 G. A., ch. 2, § 8; C. '73, § 2119; R. § 1829.]

SEC. 3075. Claims filed.

Where the creditor having security files his claim with the assignee, he is entitled to dividends only on that portion of his claim which is not satisfied by resorting to the security. He is subject to the equitable rule that where one creditor has security on two funds, on one of which other creditors have security, the former must first exhaust the fund on which he has an exclusive claim before resorting to that which is subject to the claims of other creditors. Therefore, where a creditor having security on property of the insolvent received payment on his claim from the proceeds of such property, held that he could only participate in dividends on the basis of the balance of his claim. Doolittle v. Smith, 104–403, 73 N. W. 867.

It is optional with the mortgagee whether he will enforce his lien against the property or file his claim with the assignee, but if he chooses the latter remedy he cannot thereafter foreclose his mortgage and is deemed to have waived his right to do so. Garner v. Fry, 104–515, 73 N. W. 1079.

Sale by an assignee under assignment for the benefit of creditors of goods which are subject to chattel mortgage does not defeat the lien of the mortgagee. In re Windhorst, 107–58, 77 N. W. 513.

SEC. 3077. Claims contested.

Where the assignee seeks to enforce a claim belonging to the insolvent estate the debtor may set off any claim he has against the estate. Little v. Sturgis, 127–298, 103 N. W. 205.

A creditor who has filed his claim and received a dividend thereon may afterwards proceed to enforce payment of the balance against the debtor by judgment or other lawful means. Ibid.

SEC. 3078. Priority of taxes.

The assignee for the benefit of creditors cannot complain of a tax regularly levied on the insolvent's property on the ground that the insolvent failed to claim an offset for indebtedness. Carpenter v. Jones County, 130–494, 107 N. W. 435.

SEC. 3080. Settlement.

Where an assignee does not include in his report a considerable amount of money received from the sale of goods under the assignment, and there is a discrepancy between the inventory and the property accounted for, he should not be discharged until such discrepancy in his account is adjusted. A creditor entitled to share in the distribution of the proceeds of the estate may file exceptions to the assignee's report and be heard thereon. In re Assignment of Mansfield, 113–104, 84 N. W. 967.

The mere failure of the assignee to keep a complete and satisfactory system of accounts does not necessarily debar him from being allowed a reasonable compensation for his services. Merrit v. Torrance, 129–310, 105 N. W. 585.

The assignee for the benefit of creditors is an officer of the court and may apply thereto for any order which should be made in the administration of his trust. Cuddy v. Becker, 146–250, 124 N. W. 1071.

If the court finds that the property is not sufficient in value to satisfy a previous mortgage it may order such property turned over to the mortgagee. Ibid.

The assignee, though designated by the assignor, acts under the supervision of the court, and the property, upon the due execution of the assignment, passes into the custody of the court. Mahaska County State Bank v. Brown, 141 N. W. 459.

SEC. 3084. Sale of property.

The order of sale should be entered of record, but a deed executed by the assignee without notice or order of court is not absolutely void, but will at least pass the naked legal title. Bristol Sav. Bank v. Judd, 116–26, 89 N. W. 93.

The assignee has the same rights and remedies relating to the estate as were possessed by the assignor, and may maintain action on an attachment bond given in favor of the assignor, either by original suit or by intervention in an action already brought against the assignor. Ringen Stove Co. v. Bowers, 109–175, 80 N. W. 318.

CHAPTER 8.

OF MECHANICS' LIENS.

SECTION 3089. Who may have lien.

Under contract with owner: Material furnished for improvements on land under a contract with one who is not the owner thereof and a bare licensee, does not entitle the person furnishing the material under such contract to a lien on the land nor upon the improvements, which became the property of the owner of the land when made. Hoag v. Hay, 103–291, 72 N. W. 525.

Where a party is led to believe that one has a title or interest to which a mechanic's lien will attach, and he has no such title, but obtains it while the contract is being performed, the lien attaches thereto. Floete v. Brown, 104–154, 73 N. W. 483.

An owner of a limited estate erecting buildings on the land in pursuance of his interest therein has such an interest that a mechanic's lien may attach thereto. Smith v. St. Paul F. & M. Ins. Co., 106–225, 76 N. W. 676.

Where premises were sold with an agreement on the part of the grantor to make improvements thereon which were subsequently made under a contract with him, held that the person making such improvements had not a mechanic's lien on the premises as against the grantee. Des Moines Sav. Bank v. Goode, 106–568, 76 N. W. 825.

An equitable title to real property held by contract for a deed is a title to which a mechanic's lien will attach. Sheppard v. Messenger, 107–717, 77 N. W. 515.

The statutory definition of the term "owner" (see code § 3096) extends it so as to include persons who would not ordinarily be held to come within its meaning. The term includes a vendee who acts as agent of the vendor, in a certain sense, in putting improvements on the premises. Janes v. Osborne, 108–409, 79 N. W. 143.

A property owner who contracts with the builder to furnish labor and material at reasonable prices for making certain improvements constitutes the builder his agent and authorizes him to contract for labor and material for such owner. Mineah v. Stotts, 130–530, 107 N. W. 425.

An essential predicate for a lien is a contract with the owner or his agent under which the materials or machinery are to be furnished. Webster City Steel Rad. Co. v. Chamberlin, 137–717, 115 N. W. 504.

A tenant in common cannot impose a lien on the interest of his coöwner. Cooper v. Brown, 143–482, 122 N. W. 144.

If the plaintiff relies upon an express contract for the making of the improvements, he must show substantial compliance therewith; if he seeks to recover upon a quantum meruit, he can only recover for benefits conferred. Keys v. Garben, 149–394, 128 N. W. 337.

Improvements on wife's land: Where a wife knows that improvements are being placed on her property under a contract with her husband, but protests against such improvements, her property is not subject to lien therefor. James v. Dalbey, 107–463, 78 N. W. 51.

For what improvements or materials: Where a lien is claimed under a contract involving matters for which a lien is not allowed, and it is not possible to determine under the contract what amount is due for matters for which a lien may be had, no lien whatever can be established. Peatman v. Centerville Light, H. & P. Co., 105–1, 74 N. W. 689.

A well, designed, sunk and completed for permanent use on the premises, is an improvement for which a mechanic's lien may be had. Hoppes v. Baie, 105–648, 75 N. W. 495.

Lumber furnished, not merely for the purposes of replacing worn out parts of a building, but for the improvement of the building, will furnish the basis for a mechanic's lien. National L. Ins. Co. v. Ayres, 111–200, 82 N. W. 607.

It is the furnishing of material for a building which entitles a party to a lien and its actual use in the construction thereof need not be shown. Frudden Lumber Co. v. Kinnan, 117–93, 90 N. W. 515.

It seems that by agreement charges for drayage may be a proper item in the account on which a lien is asked. Page v. Grant, 127–249, 103 N. W. 124.

Material furnished to supply the loss of other material which has been incorporated into the building and before the building has been accepted by the owner is properly included in the statement for a lien. Nancolas v. Hitaffer, 136–341, 112 N. W. 382.

Subcontractor: The subcontractor must have furnished material for the particular building in order to entitle him to a lien thereon, but it is not necessary that the material shall have been actually used in the building. Hobson v. Townsend, 126–453, 102 N. W. 413.

A materialman does not have the right to a mechanic's lien for material and appliances furnished the contractor to enable him to carry on his work but not actually used in the completion of the improvement. Empire State Surety Co. v. Des Moines, 152–531, 131 N. W. 870, 132 N. W. 837.

SEC. 3090. Extent of lien—leasehold interest.

Consent of the landlord that the tenant shall erect a building on the leased premises does not subject the landlord to the lien for material furnished. Oregon Lumber Co. v. Beckleen, 130–42, 106 N. W. 260.

SEC. 3092. Filing statement.

What statement sufficient: Where materials are furnished from time to time under separate and distinct contracts, the charges therefor cannot be treated as items of a continuous open running account and as furnished under an entire contract. Hoag v. Hay, 103–291, 72 N. W. 525.

An unintentional mistake in the statement which has caused no injury to anyone will not defeat a mechanic's lien. St. Croix Lumber Co. v. Davis, 105–27, 74 N. W. 756.

The fact that the statement as filed is for a greater sum than due will not defeat the right to a lien where such discrepancy is the result of an honest mistake which is not prejudicial. Simonson Bros. Mfg. Co. v. Citizens' State Bank, 105–264, 74 N. W. 905.

In the absence of any showing of bad faith it should not be held that the matter included in the statement of one or more items for which no lien can be had operates to invalidate an otherwise enforceable lien. Palmer v. McGinness, 127–118, 102 N. W. 802.

The fact that items are included in the statement for which a lien cannot properly be claimed will not defeat the right to a lien unless it be shown that the claimant was knowingly attempting by false charges to subject the property to an improper burden. Nancolas v. Hitaffer, 136–341, 112 N. W. 382.

Where the statement shows the essential facts, the lien will not be defeated by want of technical accuracy as to the time when the labor was performed or the material furnished. Johnson v. Otto, 105–605, 75 N. W. 492.

Where the statement for a mechanic's lien shows that a lien is claimed and is sufficiently definite as to the items for which the claim is made, it will not be defeated by indefiniteness as to the dates of items of materials and labor furnished and performed. Eggert v. Snoke, 122–582, 98 N. W. 372.

If the statement as a whole is just and true, the fact that the whole or part of the bill contracted for is furnished at an agreed price for a lot of items and it so shows instead of giving the price of each one separately, will not defeat the lien. Queal v. Stradley, 117–748, 90 N. W. 588.

As against the owner the filing of an insufficient statement or the failure to file any statement will not defeat the lien. Hoppes v. Baie, 105–648, 75 N. W. 495; Ewing v. Stockwell, 106–26, 75 N. W. 657.

The omission from the statement of credits to which the owner is entitled, if unintentional and without any purpose to defraud, will not defeat the lien. Ewing v. Stockwell, 106–26, 75 N. W. 657.

An honest mistake in making up the account will not deprive the claimant of the lien. Green Bay Lumber Co. v. Thomas, 106–420, 76 N. W. 749.

Delay of the subcontractor to file statement of his lien cannot affect his right to priority over the lien of another subcontractor whose statement is not filed and notice thereof given until after the filing of the statement of the first subcontractor. Lindsay & Phelps Co. v. Zoeckler, 128–558, 104 N. W. 802.

The fact that the contractor gives an order to one subcontractor on the owner for the amount of his bill does not operate as an equitable assignment of the contractor's claim which is to be treated as a payment in determining the amount in the hand of the owner when the statement of another subcontractor is filed. Ibid.

Material furnished for necessary repairs while the building is still in the process of construction and not accepted by the owner is proper to be included in the statement of the lien and in determining the date of the last item for the purpose of ascertaining whether the statement is filed within the statutory period. Nancolas v. Hitaffer, 136–341, 112 N. W. 382.

The affidavit for a mechanic's lien, setting forth the date of the contract for the material and labor and of furnishing the same, is admissible in evidence in an action to foreclose the lien and is to be considered in determining the priority of the lien over a conveyance of the property. Joyce Co. v. Carroll Light, H. & P. Co., 153–372, 133 N. W. 785.

A statement by a subcontractor or a materialman is not conclusive as against him and parol evidence is admissible to show the actual facts as to the dates on which work was performed or material furnished. Empire State Surety Co. v. Des Moines, 152–531, 131 N. W. 870, 132 N. W. 837.

Application of payments: Change in the application of payments will not be permitted to be made between the owner and the contractor when the effect will be to prejudice the interest of the subcontractor. Green Bay Lumber Co. v. Thomas, 106–420, 76 N. W. 749.

Verification: A statement not verified does not impart notice of a claim; and held that a verification signed in a firm name was not sufficient. McGillivary v. Case, 107–17, 77 N. W. 483.

The verification of a statement before the deputy clerk is sufficient without the official seal of the clerk being attached where it is filed in the office of the clerk. Wheelock v. Hull, 124–752, 100 N. W. 863.

Failure to file: The filing of the statement is not essential to the creation of the mechanic's lien, but only to preserve it against purchasers or incumbrancers in good faith without notice, whose rights accrue after the expiration of the time fixed for filing the statement. Peatman v. Centerville Light, H. & P. Co., 105–1, 74 N. W. 689.

One claiming under a mortgage executed after expiration of the time for filing statement is not chargeable with notice of the claim. McGillivary v. Case, 107–17, 77 N. W. 483.

Where the improvements were such that any person examining the building within the ninety days allowed for filing a lien would have been aware of them, held that they furnished sufficient foundation for a mechanic's lien. National L. Ins. Co. v. Ayres, 111–200, 82 N. W. 607.

Where lumber was furnished on two distinct occasions for successive improvements, held that the materialman could not assert a claim for the first lot of lumber furnished under his lien for the second, which was furnished more than ninety days after the first improvement. Ibid.

Until something is done looking towards the establishment of the lien, an assignment of the debt does not operate as a transfer of such lien. Kent v. Muscatine, N. & S. R. Co., 115–383, 88 N. W. 935.

A conveyance of the premises expressly subject to any claim for a mechanic's lien does not defeat the right to such lien. Eggert v. Snoke, 122–582, 98 N. W. 372.

SEC. 3093. Subcontractor's lien—liability of owner to original contractor—discharge of lien. That section three thousand and ninety-three of the code be and the same is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"No owner of any building or structure upon which a subcontractor's mechanics' lien may be filed under the provisions of section three thousand and ninety-two of the code shall be liable to an action by the original contractor for compensation for work done or materials, machinery or fixtures furnished for any building, structure or other improvement upon land until the expiration of thirty days from the completion of said building, structure or improvement, unless the original contractor shall furnish to the owner of said building, structure or improvement receipts and waivers of claims for mechanics' liens, signed by all persons who performed any labor or furnished any material, machinery or fixtures for said building, structure or improvement, provided there be such persons, or unless the original contractor shall furnish to the owner a good and sufficient bond to be approved by said owner, conditioned that said owner shall be held harmless from any loss which he may sustain by reason of the filing of subcontractor's mechanics' liens. Should the owner pay to the original contractor any part of the contract price of such building, structure or improvement before the lapse of the thirty days allowed by law for the filing of subcontractor's mechanics' liens, he will still be liable to said subcontractor for the full value of any material, machinery or fixtures furnished, or labor performed upon said building, structure or improvement, provided said subcontractor file his mechanics' lien within the time provided by law for the filing of subcontractor's mechanics' liens. The lien of a subcontractor may be vacated and discharged at any time by the owner, principal contractor or intermediate subcontractor filing with the clerk of the district court of the county in which the property is located a sufficient bond in twice the amount of the sum for which the claim for the lien is filed, with surety or sureties, to be approved by the clerk of the district court in which said lien is filed, conditioned for the payment of any sum for which the claimant may obtain judgment upon the demand for which such statement or account has been filed. Nothing in this act shall be construed to require the owner to pay a greater amount or at an earlier date than is provided in his contract with the principal contractor, unless said owner pays a part or all of the contract price to the original contractor before the expiration of the thirty days allowed by law for the filing of subcontractor's mechanics' lien." [35 G. A., ch. 267, § 1.] [16 G. A., ch. 100, § 7; 15 G. A., ch. 49; C. '73, § 2131.]

Liability of owner: An owner who agrees with the contractor to pay subcontractors and materialmen becomes personally liable to them for material used in the building. Shorthill Co. v. Bartlett, 131–259, 108 N. W. 308.

After the contractor abandons the work and compels the owner to complete the job the latter may pay for the work done out of any balance remaining due to the contractor, and the contractor cannot by giving an order on the owner create a claim against the owner upon the balance remaining out of the contract price which the owner is entitled to use in completing the contract. Page v. Grant, 127–249, 103 N. W. 124.

Where the owner makes payments to the contractor without regard to the terms of his contract and without withholding amounts which he is authorized to withhold by the terms of the contract, he renders himself liable to persons who furnish materials for the carrying out of the contract. Queal v. Stradley, 117–748, 90 N. W. 588.

Actual notice to owner: Where the owner has knowledge of the claims of a subcontractor, he should hold back from the principal contractor enough to pay the subcontractor's claim. Simonson Bros. Mfg. Co. v. Citizens' State Bank, 105–264, 74 N. W. 905.

The absconding of the principal contractor will not prevent the subcontractor from enforcing his claims against the property. A personal judgment against the principal contractor is not essential to the enforcement of such lien. The proceedings may properly be in rem where no personal judgment is sought. Ibid.

Where the owner knew that the subcontractor was furnishing the material and knew that his bill therefor had not been paid, held that the owner could not by settlement with the contractor cut off the rights of the subcontractor, especially where the payment was made in disregard of the terms of the contract. Green Bay Lumber Co. v. Thomas, 106–154, 76 N. W. 651.

But a subcontractor is not entitled to enforce his lien so far as payment has been made by the owner upon the strength of his statements and agreements. Under such circumstances the subcontractor is estopped from insisting upon repayment of the amount so paid. Ibid.

Where a subcontractor perfects his lien within the time required by law, and the owner has knowledge that the subcontractor is furnishing material for which he has not been paid, the owner is not justified in paying other subcontractors until the time has expired for the filing of liens. Green Bay Lumber Co. v. Adams, 107–672, 78 N. W. 699.

Payments made to the contractor in accordance with the terms of the contract will not constitute a defense against the claims of a subcontractor if the owner was aware of the existence of the subcontractor's claims at the time of making such payment. Chicago Lumber & Coal Co. v. Garmer, 132–282, 109 N. W. 780.

Whether knowledge of the architect will constitute notice to the owner of the existence of subcontractor's claims depends upon the terms of the contract. Ibid.

The owner knowing that a subcontractor or materialman is furnishing material and labor for the building which is necessary for its completion is bound to withhold payments from the contractors until the claims for material and labor are determined. But if the subcontractor fails to preserve the right to a lien and accepts an order on the owner, he abandons his claim against the property so far as it is necessary to satisfy the claims of other lien holders. Wheelock v. Hull, 124–752, 100 N. W. 863.

The owner is not justified in paying the principal contractor even in strict accordance with the terms of the contract, if he has knowledge that subcontractors are furnishing material for the building which has not been paid for. Page v. Grant, 127–249, 103 N. W. 124.

The owner cannot with knowledge that material or labor has been furnished by a subcontractor make settlement with the contractor and pay out reserve funds held in his hands to meet other claims for which no lien has been filed. Nancolas v. Hitaffer, 136–341, 112 N. W. 382.

The owner cannot, by using such reserve funds in completing the building after it has collapsed defeat the claims of a subcontractor for material and labor furnished before such collapse. Ibid.

If the owner after due notice still holds in his hands money enough out of the contract price to complete the building and pay the claim of the subcontractor he cannot disregard such claim and pay to the contractor the amount due him under his contract. Frudden Lumber Co. v. Kinnan, 117–93, 90 N. W. 515.

Where the owner is fully informed of the nature of the subcontractor's claim, by the bringing of suit, and is still indebted to the principal contractor beyond the amount of the subcontractor's claim, the failure of the subcontractor to file a claim is immaterial. Johnson v. Des Moines, I. F. & N. R. Co., 129–281, 105 N. W. 509.

Owners estopped: Where the owner had stated to the subcontractor before the furnishing of material that nothing was to be paid to the contractor on the building until its completion, held that the owner was thereby estopped, in an action by the subcontractor to enforce his lien, to say that the contract was otherwise than as he had stated as to payments. Rath v. Orr, 119–511, 93 N. W. 489.

Service of notice: An objection that the notice is not such as contemplated by the statute does not raise a question as to the service of such notice. Page v. Grant, 127–249, 103 N. W. 124.

Priority: It is not necessary for the subcontractor to file a statement of his lien in order to preserve his claim as against an order given by the contractor to another subcontractor upon the owner. Lindsay & Phelps Co. v. Zoeckler, 128–558, 104 N. W. 802.

For what material: The burden is upon the subcontractor before he can avail himself of the benefits of the provisions in his favor to show that the labor or material furnished by him was actually for the improvement against which the lien is claimed. And if as to that matter he is deceived by the contractor without the fault of the owner, he is not entitled to a lien as against the owner. Hobson v. Townsend, 126–453, 102 N. W. 413.

A subcontractor has a lien for material furnished for a building although as a matter of fact it is not used in the construction of such building but for another structure. Page v. Grant, 127–249, 103 N. W. 124.

The subcontractor's lien attaches to money due the contractor for extras, although the amount provided for under the contract as originally made has been fully paid. Shope v. Mitchell, 116–636, 88 N. W. 813.

The subcontractor's lien may properly cover material supplied to the contractor to replace other material lost or destroyed during the construction of the building. Nancolas v. Hitaffer, 136–341, 112 N. W. 382.

Waiver of lien: The giving to a subcontractor of an order for the amount of his claim, which is received by him, and the acceptance of such order by the drawee, amounting to only a recognition of a statement of the amount due, held not to deprive a subcontractor of his right to a lien. Beach v. Wakefield, 107–567, 76 N. W. 688, 78 N. W. 197.

Terms of contract: The subcontractor is bound to know the terms of the contract between the principal contractor and the owner, whether they are written or oral, and if the owner complies with the terms of such contract in good faith, and without knowledge or notice, which would require him to make inquiries as to the claims of the subcontractor, he will not be required to make a second payment. Iowa Stone Co. v. Crissman, 112–122, 83 N. W. 794.

SEC. 3094. Subcontractor's claim after thirty days.

A subcontractor failing to file his claim for a lien until after the expiration of thirty days is entitled only to such lien as to the amount unpaid on the contract when his statement is filed, without regard to the knowledge on the part of the owner before paying the contractor that material and labor had been furnished by the subcontractor. Empire Portland Cement Co. v. Payne, 128–730, 105 N. W. 331.

A subcontractor's claim, though not filed within the time specified by statute, takes priority over the claims of another subcontractor subsequently filed. Lindsay & Phelps Co. v. Zoeckler, 128–558, 104 N. W. 802.

SEC. 3095. Priority.

Lien covers entire property: The right to a mechanic's lien for work done upon a railroad dates from the beginning of the improvement, and is against the whole road. Beach v. Wakefield, 107–567, 76 N. W. 688, 78 N. W. 197.

A railroad depot may be an integral part of the construction of the road. Ibid.

Leasehold interest: A lessee taking his lease after the time when a statement should be filed and when no statement is already filed, and without actual notice of the mechanic's lien, has priority thereto, and the assignee of such lessee is entitled to the same priority, even though at the time of taking the assignment he has notice of the lien. Floete v. Brown, 104–154, 73 N. W. 483.

Judgment under a mechanic's lien will take priority over a landlord's lien for rent, but under particular circumstances, held that by reason of a contract by which the lessor was to advance the money to pay off improvements the mechanic's lien was not effectual as against him. Keys v. Whitlock Mfg. Co., 105–742, 75 N. W. 658.

Other subcontractors: The priority as between subcontractors is not affected by the fact that the contractor has given to one of them an order on the owner for the amount of his claim. Lindsay & Phelps Co. v. Zoeckler, 128–558, 104 N. W. 802.

Mortgages and other liens: A lien takes priority over any claim under an earlier mortgage which is satisfied on the record when the lien is filed. Sioux City Electrical Supply Co. v. Sioux City, etc., Electric R. Co., 106–573, 76 N. W. 838.

Where, by agreement between vendor and vendee, improvements were placed on the premises, held that a mechanic's lien for such improvements took priority over the vendor's lien for the purchase price. Janes v. Osborne, 108–409, 79 N. W. 143.

A mechanic's lien holder does not have priority over the claims of laborers under code § 4019, even though the mechanic's lien antedates the laborers' claims. Haw v. Burch, 110–234, 81 N. W. 460.

The provision as to priority of the subcontractor over a garnishment of the owner has no application to a materialman's claim against a public corporation under code § 3102. Swearingen Lumber Co. v. Washington School Township, 125–283, 99 N. W. 730.

Lien upon improvements: Under prior statutes held that the holder of a mechanic's lien for material furnished for an independent building took priority as to such building over a prior mortgage on the premises on which the building was erected, provided that it should be found by the court that the building could be removed without material injury to the security of an earlier lien holder; but where no such finding was made the land must be sold and the proceeds applied first in payment of prior incumbrances. Tower v. Moore, 104–345, 73 N. W. 823.

Where the building or other improvement becomes a part of the real estate so that it may not be separately sold and removed, prior mortgagees or lien holders are entitled to priority over subsequent lien holders for improvements or independent structures to the extent of such prior liens. Leach v. Minick, 106–437, 76 N. W. 751.

SEC. 3096. Definition of "owner."

The statute extends the definition of the term "owner" so as to include persons whose relation to the property is such that they would not ordinarily be held to come within the meaning of the term. Janes v. Osborne, 108–409, 79 N. W. 143. And see notes to code § 3089 in this supplement.

The term "owner" within the language of the mechanics' liens law is applicable to one having less than an absolute and unqualified title to the property. Getchell & Martin Lumber & Mfg. Co. v. Peterson, 124–599, 100 N. W. 550.

An owner within the meaning of the statute is any person for whose benefit any building, erection or other improvement is made. Webster City Steel Rad. Co. v. Chamberlin, 137–717, 115 N. W. 504.

SEC. 3098. Action to enforce lien.

It is not necessary to introduce any proof of the making and filing of the statement for lien of a subcontractor as against the contractor where the latter has admitted the filing of such statement and set out a copy thereof as a part of his pleading. The statement itself, however, is the best evidence. Wheelock v. Hull, 124–752, 100 N. W. 863.

In an action to enforce the lien of a subcontractor for an unliquidated demand, the principal contractor is a necessary party. Ibid.

The provision that action on a bond given in lieu of a mechanic's lien may be brought in the county where the property is situated is applicable to an action by a subcontractor against a public corporation on a bond given by the contractor to hold the public corporation harmless against claims of subcontractors. Thompson v. Stephens, 131–51, 107 N. W. 1095.

SEC. 3099. Demand for bringing suit—assignment.

A mechanic's lien may be assigned prior to the filing of the statement. Peatman v. Centerville Light, H. & P. Co., 105–1, 74 N. W. 689.

But until something is done looking to the establishment of the lien, an assignment of the debt does not transfer any lien. Kent v. Muscatine, N. & S. R. Co., 115–383, 88 N. W. 935.

Where one furnishes money to be applied in payment of the purchase price of the property by taking up mechanic's liens of record thereon, under an express agreement that said liens are not to be canceled by the holders thereof, but to be assigned and held for the benefit of the purchaser, he is entitled to subrogation to the claims of the mechanic's lien holders. National L. Ins. Co. v. Ayres, 111–200, 82 N. W. 607.

SEC. 3102. Public buildings or bridges—claim of subcontractor.

Where a school district in making a contract for the erection of a schoolhouse reserved the right to withhold payments from the principal contractor so long as the subcontractors were unpaid, held that as against the assignees of the contractor the district might maintain an action for distribution of the fund due the contractor among the subcontractors in proportion to their claims. Independent Sch. Dist. v. Mardis, 106–295, 76 N. W. 794.

Under such contract held that the claims which might be satisfied out of the fund were not limited to those which might be established under this section. (20 G. A., ch. 179.) Ibid.

A claim for money borrowed from a contractor and used in payment for labor and material is not a claim to be protected under such contract. Ibid.

In the case of a county building, the public officer to whom the claim should be submitted is the auditor and not the chairman of the building committee of the board of supervisors. Green Bay Lumber Co. v. Thomas, 106–420, 76 N. W. 749.

Where the subcontractor filed his itemized and sworn statement with the treasurer of a school district and served written notice of such filing upon the president and secretary of such district, held that he had taken the necessary steps to perfect his claim, the treasurer being the officer through whom payment was to be made. Wackerbarth & Blamer Co. v. Independent School Dist., 157– —, 138 N. W. 470.

The act of the principal contractor in making a general assignment for the benefit of creditors does not defeat the right of the subcontractor to avail himself of his statutory privilege. Ibid.

When the subcontractor avails himself of the provisions of the statute and complies with its formal requirements, a personal liability is created against the public corporation to the extent of the money then in its hands, preference being given to subcontractors in the order of their filing. Ibid.

Under the evidence in a particular case, held that a subcontractor might have relief under this statute, although as to prior work he was given security by the assignment of certificates which he had surrendered. Iowa Brick Co. v. Des Moines, 111–272, 82 N. W. 922.

The statutory provision in behalf of subcontractors furnishing material or labor for the construction of a public building is to be strictly construed, and the filing of an itemized statement as specified by the statute is essential to the establishment of such claim against a public corporation. Penn v. Northern Building Co., 140 Fed. 973.

The statute is intended to provide for one who furnishes labor or materials to a contractor upon a public work a remedy having some analogy to a mechanic's lien but it does not create a lien. It only provides that by taking the proper steps within due time the claimant may be substituted for the contractor and recover from the municipal corporation to the extent of the contractor's just demand, if there be found in the hands of the corporation any moneys due him. If the contractor has already been paid all that he is entitled to receive under his contract, the person furnishing labor or materials to him for the improvement has no redress against the corporation. Modern Steel Structural Co. v. Van Buren County, 126–606, 102 N. W. 536.

The subcontractor who intends to assert a claim under the statute must take notice of the terms and conditions of the principal contract. If the materials furnished are not such as called for by the contract and the contractor could not recover on account thereof, the subcontractor is in no better situation. Ibid.

If on account of fraud the contractor is without lawful claim against the corporation the contract which has been violated by the contractor cannot be effectual for the benefit of the subcontractor. Ibid.

A subcontractor furnishing material for a public building acquires no lien on the building or on the money which becomes due from the public corporation to the contractor. But such subcontractor having served notice of his claim upon the corporation may sue on the contractor's bond given to relieve the corporation from liability as to the distribution of the money due the contractor, and such action may be maintained in the county where the contract was to be performed, although the contractor and the sureties on his bond are residents of another county. Thompson v. Stephens, 131–51, 107 N. W. 1095.

No liens or claims can be asserted against a school district for material and labor furnished by a subcontractor in the construction of a schoolhouse and a bond in which the contractor obligates himself to deliver such schoolhouse free from liens or claims of any kind and to discharge any liens or claims against the building or which may be claimed against the district does not render the bondsmen liable for subcontractors' claims. Green Bay Lumber Co. v. Independent School District, 121–663, 97 N. W. 72.

This statute does not create a lien in favor of a laborer or materialman upon the funds due to the principal contractor nor is any lien created on the building or improvement itself. Whitehouse v. American Surety Co., 117–328, 90 N. W. 727.

Therefore a laborer or materialman who is protected by a bond given by the contractor to the public corporation to secure it against the claims of such persons does not release the surety on such bond by failing to pursue his remedy against the fund due the contractor in the hands of the corporation. Ibid; Read v. American Surety Co., 117–10, 90 N. W. 590.

This statute does not create any lien as against a public corporation constructing a work of public improvement in favor of a subcontractor or materialman. It merely provides a method by which the subcontractor or materialman may acquire a right to be paid by the public corporation out of such portion of the contract price as has not been paid to the contractor in accordance with the terms of the contract. The public corporation is under no obligation to protect the subcontractor or materialman until such a statement as is required by statute is filed within the time specified. Empire State Surety Co. v. Des Moines, 152–531, 131 N. W. 870, 132 N. W. 837.

This statute does not provide for a lien and no duty or obligation arises on the public corporation to protect the interests of a subcontractor unless an itemized sworn statement has been filed as required. Independent School Dist. v. Hall, 140 N. W. 855.

By failing to avail himself of the statutory provisions a subcontractor or materialman waives all rights which he would otherwise have to the fund. Ibid.

A contractor's bond given to secure a public corporation against claims by materialmen and laborers inures to the benefit of those who furnish material and labor in carrying out such contract. Hipwell v. National Surety Co., 130–656, 105 N. W. 318.

Subcontractors are not bound to perfect their claims against funds in the hands of the officers of the public corporation, but may rely directly on the security afforded by the bond. Ibid.

An assignee of the contract takes subject to the obligation of the contractor's bond to discharge the claim for such material and labor. Ibid.

Where a surety company becomes bound by its contract to pay claims of subcontractors and materialmen, no action of the municipal corporation taken after the accruing of such claims will release the surety from liability. Empire State Surety Co. v. Des Moines, 152–531, 131 N. W. 870, 132 N. W. 837.

Garnishment of a public corporation for funds due the contractor which is effected prior to service of a notice of a claim for material furnished, is a good defense to recovery against the corporation on such claim. The claim of the materialman against the corporation is personal and is not a lien on the property. Swearingen Lumber Co. v. Washington School Township, 125–283, 99 N. W. 730.

The municipal corporation, against which a claim is made for labor performed or material furnished for the contractor, is entitled to protection so far as it has relied upon the provisions of the contract made for its benefit and acted in accordance therewith. Until a claim is filed the corporation owes no duty to the subcontractors and the provisions of the mechanics' lien law for the benefit of such persons are not applicable. Green Bay Lumber Co. v. Independent School Dist., 125–227, 101 N. W. 84.

If the corporation has in good faith paid out money on certificates of work done, the correctness of such certificates can only be impeached for fraud or mistake, and even in such case no liability of the corporation would attach in favor of the subcontractor unless it appears that the actual cost of the work was in fact less than the amount given in the certificate on which the corporation has acted. Ibid.

Under a provision in the contract that on abandonment of the work by the contractor the corporation may take possession of all materials on the ground and apply them to finishing the work, the corporation is not bound to pay the materialman for materials furnished by him to the contractor and which have thus been appropriated. Ibid.

In an action by a materialman to enforce a claim against a corporation to which the contractor is a party, the materialman is entitled to a judgment against the contractor for any indebtedness due. Ibid.

A materialman is not protected under this statute as to material furnished the contractor to enable him to carry on his work but not actually used in the completion of the improvement. Empire State Surety Co. v. Des Moines, 152–531, 131 N. W. 870, 132 N. W. 837.

SEC. 3103. Adjudication of claims.

The unsuccessful party in a trial such as is provided for under this statute is required to pay an attorney's fees for the purpose of indemnifying the public corporation for the expense it is compelled to incur to protect itself. But where the claimant by bringing suit has secured the payment of a portion of his claim and then voluntarily dismissed his action before trial, he is not liable for attorney's fees. Fisher v. Independent School Dist., 154–125, 134 N. W. 545.

This section provides a means by which any party interested may procure an adjudication of the rights of parties claiming, under the preceding section, the fund therein referred to. The bringing of such an action is not an admission of any right to or in the fund on the part of contractors or subcontractors. Independent School Dist. v. Hall, 140 N. W. 855.

SEC. 3104. Release of claim.

A bond given by the contractor to hold the public corporation harmless from claims of subcontractors may be sued on by a subcontractor entitled to a lien in the county in which the work is done, although the contractor and his sureties are residents of another county. Thompson v. Stephens, 131–51, 107 N. W. 1095.

SEC. 3105. Liens of miners.

The lien of a miner provided for by this section is not limited to property of the operator of the mine which might be removed, or to improvements which he has made, but extends to the premises on which the mine is situated, and which have been leased for mining purposes, to the extent at least that the value of the property has been increased by the improvements made thereon by the mining lessee. Mitchell v. Burwell, 110–10, 81 N. W. 193.

The lessor cannot deduct from the value of such improvements, as a claim prior to that of the laborer, the amount due to such lessor for royalties. Ibid.

A laborer's lien does not attach to the property of the owner in favor of the employes of an operating lessee of the mine. Caster v. McClellan, 132–502, 109 N. W. 1020.

CHAPTER 9.

OF LIMITED PARTNERSHIP.

SECTION 3106. Authorized.

A contract by which a person contributed a specified sum to the common stock of a business, without any right to share in the profits, nor any responsibility for the losses, but with an agreement to have a per cent. of the sum invested payable annually and in any event, held not to constitute such a person either a general or a limited partner. Richardson v. Carlton, 109–515, 80 N. W. 532.

SEC. 3109. Publication. Upon filing the certificate and affidavit, a notice containing all the facts set out in the certificate shall be published, once each week, for[1] six weeks in two newspapers in the senatorial district in which the business is to be conducted, to be designated by the clerk of the court of the county in which such certificate is filed, proof of which publication may be made by the publishers in the same manner as original notices in ordinary actions, and filed with said clerk, which, when thus made, shall be presumptive evidence of the facts therein contained. If the required publication is not made, the partnership shall be general. [30 G. A., ch. 2, § 9; 19 G. A., ch. 8; C. '73, §§ 2155–6; R. §§ 1882–3.]

[1]The amendment by 30 G. A., ch. 2, § 9, provided for the insertion of the words "once each week for", after the word "published"; but the word "for" already appeared in the code section at this place. EDITOR.]

CHAPTER 10.

OF WAREHOUSEMEN, CARRIERS, HOTEL KEEPERS, LIVERY STABLE KEEPERS, AND HERDERS.

SECTION 3127. Damages.

This section refers to a wilful departure from duty by the warehouseman, and not to a mere failure to observe legal requirements in attempting to enforce his lien. Jeffries v. Snyder, 110–359, 81 N. W. 678.

SEC. 3129. Certificate as evidence—lien—repeal. Section thirty-one hundred twenty-nine of the code is hereby repealed. [32 G. A., ch. 160, § 60.]

SEC. 3130. Unclaimed property—lien for charges.

The warehouseman is not obliged to take any steps towards selling the goods, but if he does it is imperative that he observe the statutory requirements. The procedure provided for is not a privilege, but a duty of the warehouseman in case he undertakes to sell stored property. Jeffries v. Snyder, 110–359, 81 N. W. 678.

SEC. 3131. Sale—notice. If the property remains unclaimed and the charges unpaid, the person in possession, if the probable value does not exceed one hundred dollars, shall advertise the same for fourteen days, by posting notices in five of the most public places in the city or locality where said property is held, giving such description as will indicate what is to be sold; if the goods exceed the probable value of one hundred dollars, the length of notice shall be four weeks, and there shall be a publication thereof, once each week, for the same length of time in some newspaper of general circulation in the locality where the property is held, if there be one, and, if not, then in the next nearest newspaper published in that neighborhood, at the end of which period, if the property is still unclaimed or charges unpaid, it may be sold by him at public auction, between the hours of ten o'clock a. m. and four o'clock p. m., for the highest price the same will bring, which sale may be continued from day to day, by public announcement to that effect at the time of the adjournment, until all the property is sold; and from the proceeds thereof all charges, costs and expenses of the sale shall be paid, which sale shall be conducted after the manner of sheriff's sales, and like costs taxed for like services. [30 G. A., ch. 2, § 10; C. '73, § 2179.]

It is for the jury to say whether the value of the goods exceeds one hundred dollars, and if so, whether the warehouseman knew this fact or in the exercise of reasonable care should have known it, and whether the notices required were posted according to law and actual notice was given to the owner. Jeffries v. Snyder, 110–359, 81 N. W. 678.

SEC. 3136. Cannot limit liability.

As applicable under this section, see notes to code § 2074 in this supplement, relating to railroads.

SEC. 3137. Liens of livery stable keepers, etc.

The agistor's lien does not take priority over the lien of a prior recorded chattel mortgage, unless the mortgagee has consented to the agistment. Beh v. Moore, 124–564, 100 N. W. 502.

A livery man is not a common carrier and is not bound to let his horses to everyone who seeks to hire them. Valentine v. Echling, 155–138, 135 N. W. 621.

SEC. 3138. Hotel and innkeepers—liability—lien—satisfaction by sale—proceeds—deposit of surplus. Keepers of hotels, inns and eating houses and steamboat owners, who shall provide and keep therein a good and sufficient vault or safe for the deposit of money, jewels and other valuables, and shall provide a safe and commodious place for the baggage, clothing and other property belonging to their guests and patrons, and keep posted up in a conspicuous place in the office or other public room, and in the guests' apartments therein, printed notices, stating that such places for safe deposit are provided for the use and accommodation of the inmates thereof, shall not be liable for the loss of any money, jewels, valuables, baggage or other property not deposited with them, unless such loss shall occur through the fault or negligence of such landlord or keeper, or steamboat owner, his agent, servant or employe, but nothing herein contained shall apply to such reasonable amount of money, nor to such jewels, baggage, valuables or other property as is usual, fit and proper for any such guests to have and retain in their apartments or about their persons. Hotel, inn, rooming house or eating house keepers shall have a lien upon, and may take and retain possession of, all baggage and other property belonging to or under the control of their guests or patrons, which may be in such hotel, inn, rooming house or eating house, for the value of their accommodations and keep, and for all money paid for or advanced to, and for such extras and other things as shall be furnished such guest or patron, and such property so retained shall not be exempt from attachment or execution to the amount of the reasonable charges of such hotel, inn, rooming house or eating house keeper, against such guest or patron, and the costs of enforcing the lien thereon. The innkeeper or hotel keeper shall retain such baggage and other property upon which he has a lien for a period of ninety days, at the expiration of which time, if such lien is not satisfied, he may sell such baggage and other property at public auction after giving ten days' notice of the time and place of sale in a newspaper of general circulation in the county where the inn or hotel is situated, and also by mailing a copy of such notice addressed to said guest or boarder at the place of residence registered by him in the register of such inn or hotel. After satisfying the lien and any costs that may accrue, any residue remaining shall, on demand within six months, be paid to such guest or boarder, and if not so demanded within six months from date of such sale, such residue shall be deposited by such innkeeper or hotel keeper with the treasurer of the county in which the inn or hotel is situated, together with a statement of the innkeeper's claim and the costs of enforcing same, a copy of the published notice, and the amounts received for the goods sold at said sale; said residue shall by said county treasurer be credited to the general revenue fund of said county, subject to a right of said guest or boarder, or his representative, to reclaim at any time within three years of the date of deposit with the said treasurer. [35 G. A., ch. 268, § 1; 33 G. A., ch. 195, § 1.] [28 G. A., ch. 120, §§ 1, 2; 18 G. A., ch. 181.]

This section gives to the innkeeper a lien, not only upon the property in fact belonging to the guest and brought by him to the hotel or inn, but likewise upon property placed therein which was under the guest's control. Therefore, held that the innkeeper's lien attached to sample goods carried by a traveling salesman, though the innkeeper had knowledge when receiving the salesman that the goods belonged to his employer. Brown Shoe Co. v. Hunt, 103–586, 72 N. W. 765.

CHAPTER 10-A.

OF WAREHOUSEMEN AND WAREHOUSE RECEIPTS.

SECTION 3138-a1. Who may issue receipts. Warehouse receipts may be issued by any warehouseman. [32 G. A., ch. 160, § 1.]

SEC. 3138-a2. Form of receipts—essential terms. Warehouse receipts need not be in any particular form, but every such receipt must embody within its written or printed terms—

(a) The location of the warehouse where the goods are stored;

(b) The date of issue of the receipt;

(c) The consecutive number of the receipt;

(d) A statement whether the goods received will be delivered to the bearer, to a specified person, or to a specified person or his order;

(e) The rate of storage charges;

(f) A description of the goods or of the packages containing them;

(g) The signature of the warehouseman, which may be made by his authorized agent;

(h) If the receipt is issued for goods of which the warehouseman is owner, either solely or jointly or in common with others, the fact of such ownership; and

(i) A statement of the amount of advances made and of liabilities incurred for which the warehouseman claims a lien. If the precise amount of such advances made or of such liabilities incurred is, at the time of the issue of the receipt, unknown to the warehouseman or to his agent who issues it, a statement of the fact that advances have been made or liabilities incurred and the purpose thereof is sufficient.

A warehouseman shall be liable to any person injured thereby, for all damages caused by the omission from a negotiable receipt of any of the terms herein required. [32 G. A., ch. 160, § 2.]

SEC. 3138-a3. What terms may be inserted. A warehouseman may insert in a receipt, issued by him, any other terms and conditions, provided that such terms and conditions shall not—

(a) Be contrary to the provisions of this act;

(b) In any wise impair his obligation to exercise that degree of care in the safe-keeping of the goods entrusted to him which a reasonably careful man would exercise in regard to similar goods of his own. [32 G. A., ch. 160, § 3.]

SEC. 3138-a4. Nonnegotiable receipt defined. A receipt in which it is stated that the goods received will be delivered to the depositor, or to any other specified person, is a nonnegotiable receipt. [32 G. A., ch. 160, § 4.]

SEC. 3138-a5. Negotiable receipt defined. A receipt in which it is stated that the goods received will be delivered to the bearer, or to the order of any person named in such receipt, is a negotiable receipt. No provision shall be inserted in a negotiable receipt that it is nonnegotiable. Such provisions, if inserted, shall be void. [32 G. A., ch. 160, § 5.]

SEC. 3138-a6. Duplicate receipts must be so marked. When more than one negotiable receipt is issued for the same goods, the word "duplicate" shall be plainly placed upon the face of every such receipt, except the one first issued. A warehouseman shall be liable for all damage caused by his failure so to do to anyone who purchased the subsequent receipt for value supposing it to be an original, even though the purchase be after the delivery of the goods by the warehouseman to the holder of the original receipt. [32 G. A., ch. 160, § 6.]

SEC. 3138-a7. Failure to mark "not negotiable." A nonnegotiable receipt shall have plainly placed upon its face by the warehouseman issuing it "nonnegotiable," or "not negotiable." In case of the warehouseman's failure so to do, a holder of the receipt who purchased it for value supposing it to be negotiable, may, at his option, treat such receipt as imposing upon the warehouseman the same liabilities he would have incurred had the receipt been negotiable. This section shall not apply, however, to letters, memoranda, or written acknowledgments of an informal character. [32 G. A., ch. 160, § 7.]

SEC. 3138-a8. Obligation of warehouseman to deliver. A warehouseman, in the absence of some lawful excuse provided by this act, is bound to deliver the goods upon a demand made either by the holder of a receipt for the goods or by the depositor, if such demand is accompanied with—

(a) An offer to satisfy the warehouseman's lien;

(b) An offer to surrender the receipt if negotiable, with such indorsements as would be necessary for the negotiation of the receipt; and

(c) A readiness and willingness to sign, when the goods are delivered, an acknowledgment that they have been delivered, if such signature is requested by the warehouseman.

In case the warehouseman refuses or fails to deliver the goods in compliance with a demand by the holder or depositor so accompanied, the burden shall be upon the warehouseman to establish the existence of a lawful excuse for such refusal. [32 G. A., ch. 160, § 8.]

SEC. 3138-a9. Justification of warehouseman delivering. A warehouseman is justified in delivering the goods, subject to the provisions of the three following sections, to one who is—

(a) The person lawfully entitled to the possession of the goods, or his agent;

(b) A person who is either himself entitled to delivery by the terms of a nonnegotiable receipt issued for the goods, or who has written authority from the person so entitled either indorsed upon the receipt or written upon another paper; or

(c) A person in possession of a negotiable receipt by the terms of which the goods are deliverable to him or order or to bearer, or which has been indorsed to him or in blank by the person to whom delivery was promised by the terms of the receipt or by his mediate or immediate indorsee. [32 G. A., ch. 160, § 9.]

SEC. 3138-a10. Warehouseman's liability for misdelivery. Where a warehouseman delivers the goods to one who is not in fact lawfully entitled to the possession of them, the warehouseman shall be liable as for conversion to all having a right of property or possession in the goods if he delivered the goods otherwise than as authorized by subdivisions (b) and (c) of the preceding section and though he delivered the goods as authorized by said subdivisions he shall be so liable, if prior to such delivery he had either—

(a) Been requested, by or on behalf of the person lawfully entitled to a right of property or possession in the goods, not to make such delivery; or

(b) Had information that the delivery about to be made was to one not lawfully entitled to the possession of the goods. [32 G. A., ch. 160, § 10.]

SEC. 3138-a11. Negotiable receipt must be canceled when goods delivered. Except as provided in section thirty-six, where a warehouseman delivers goods for which he had issued a negotiable receipt, the negotiation of which would transfer the right to the possession of the goods, and fails to take up and cancel the receipt, he shall be liable to anyone who purchases for value in good faith such receipt, for failure to deliver goods to him, whether such purchaser acquired title to the receipt before or after the delivery of the goods by the warehouseman. [32 G. A., ch. 160, § 11.]

SEC. 3138-a12. Negotiable receipt must be canceled or marked when part of goods delivered. Except as provided in section thirty-six, where a warehouseman delivers part of the goods for which he had issued a negotiable receipt and fails either to take up and cancel such receipt, or to place plainly upon it a statement of what goods or packages have been delivered, he shall be liable, to anyone who purchases for value in good faith such receipt, for failure to deliver all the goods specified in the receipt, whether such purchaser acquired title to the receipt before or after the delivery of any portion of the goods by the warehouseman. [32 G. A., ch. 160, § 12.]

SEC. 3138-a13. Altered receipts. The alteration of a receipt shall not excuse the warehouseman who issued it from any liability if such alteration was—

(a) Immaterial,
(b) Authorized, or
(c) Made without fraudulent intent.

If the alteration was authorized, the warehouseman shall be liable according to the terms of the receipt as altered. If the alteration was unauthorized, but made without fraudulent intent, the warehouseman shall be liable according to the terms of the receipt, as they were before alteration. Material and fraudulent alteration of a receipt shall not excuse the warehouseman who issued it from liability to deliver, according to the terms of the receipt as originally issued, the goods for which it was issued, but shall excuse him from any other liability to the person who made the alteration and to any person who took with notice of the alteration. Any purchaser of the receipt for value without notice of the alteration shall acquire the same rights against the warehouseman which such purchaser would have acquired if the receipt had not been altered at the time of the purchase. [32 G. A., ch. 160, § 13.]

SEC. 3138-a14. Lost or destroyed receipts. Where a negotiable receipt has been lost or destroyed, a court of competent jurisdiction may order the delivery of the goods upon satisfactory proof of such loss or destruction and upon the giving of a bond with sufficient sureties to be approved by the court to protect the warehouseman from any liability or expense, which he or any person injured by such delivery may incur by reason of the original receipt remaining outstanding. The court may also in its discretion order the payment of the warehouseman's reasonable costs and counsel fees. The delivery of the goods under an order of the court as provided in this section, shall not relieve the warehouseman from liability to a person to whom the negotiable receipt has been or shall be negotiated for value without notice of the proceedings or of the delivery of the goods. [32 G. A., ch. 160, § 14.]

SEC. 3138-a15. Effect of duplicate receipt. A receipt upon the face of which the word "duplicate" is plainly placed is a representation and warranty by the warehouseman that such receipt is an accurate copy of an original receipt properly issued and uncanceled at the date of the issue of the duplicate, but shall impose upon him no other liability. [32 G. A., ch. 160, § 15.]

SEC. 3138-a16. Warehouseman cannot set up title in himself. No title or right to the possession of the goods, on the part of the warehouseman, unless such title or right is derived directly or indirectly from a transfer made by the depositor at the time of or subsequent to the deposit for storage, or from the warehouseman's lien, shall excuse the warehouseman from liability for refusing to deliver the goods according to the terms of the receipt. [32 G. A., ch. 160, § 16.]

SEC. 3138-a17. Interpleader of adverse claimants. If more than one person claims the title or possession of the goods, the warehouseman may, either as a defense to an action brought against him for nondelivery of the goods, or as an original suit, whichever is appropriate, require all known claimants to interplead. [32 G. A., ch. 160, § 17.]

SEC. 3138-a18. Warehouseman has reasonable time to determine validity of claims. If someone other than the depositor or person claiming under him has a claim to the title or possession of the goods, and the warehouseman has information of such claim, the warehouseman shall be excused from liability for refusing to deliver the goods, either to the depositor or person claiming under him or to adverse claimant, until the warehouseman has had a reasonable time to ascertain the validity of the adverse claim or to bring legal proceedings to compel all claimants to interplead. [32 G. A., ch. 160, § 18.]

SEC. 3138-a19. Adverse title no defense—exceptions. Except as provided in the two preceding sections and in sections nine and thirty-six, no right or title of a third person shall be a defense to an action brought by the depositor or person claiming under him against the warehouseman for failure to deliver the goods according to the terms of the receipt. [32 G. A., ch. 160, § 19.]

SEC. 3138-a20. Liability for nonexistence or misdescription of goods. A warehouseman shall be liable to the holder of a receipt for damages caused by the nonexistence of the goods or by the failure of the goods to correspond with the description thereof in the receipt at the time of its issue. If, however, the goods are described in a receipt merely by a statement of marks or labels upon them, or upon packages containing them, or by a statement that the goods are said to be goods of a certain kind, or that packages containing the goods are said to contain goods of a certain kind, or by words of like purport, such statements, if true, shall not make liable the warehouseman issuing the receipt, although the goods are not of the kind which the marks or labels upon them indicate or of the kind they were said to be by the depositor. [32 G. A., ch. 160, § 20.]

SEC. 3138-a21. Liability for care of goods. A warehouseman shall be liable for any loss or injury to the goods caused by his failure to exercise such care in regard to them as a reasonably careful owner of similar goods would exercise, but he shall not be liable, in the absence of an agreement to the contrary, for any loss or injury to the goods which could not have been avoided by the exercise of such care. [32 G. A., ch. 160, § 21.]

SEC. 3138-a22. Goods must be kept separate. Except as provided in the following section, a warehouseman shall keep the goods so far separate from goods of other depositors, and from other goods of the same depositor for which a separate receipt has been issued, as to permit at all times the identification and redelivery of the goods deposited. [32 G. A., ch. 160, § 22.]

SEC. 3138-a23. Fungible goods may be commingled, if warehouseman authorized. If authorized by agreement or by custom, a warehouseman may mingle fungible goods with other goods of the same kind and grade. In such case the various depositors of the mingled goods shall own the entire mass in common, and each depositor shall be entitled to such portion thereof as the amount deposited by him bears to the whole. [32 G. A., ch. 160, § 23.]

SEC. 3138-a24. Liability of warehouseman to depositors of commingled goods. The warehouseman shall be severally liable to each depositor for the care and redelivery of his share of such mass to the same extent and under the same circumstances as if the goods had been kept separate. [32 G. A., ch. 160, § 24.]

SEC. 3138-a25. Attachment or levy upon goods for which a negotiable receipt has been issued. If goods are delivered to a warehouseman by the owner or by a person whose act in conveying the title to them to a purchaser in good faith for value would bind the owner, and a negotiable receipt is issued for them, they cannot thereafter, while in the possession of the warehouseman, be attached by garnishing or otherwise, or be levied upon under an execution, unless the receipt be first surrendered to the warehouseman, or its negotiation enjoined. The warehouseman shall in no case be compelled to deliver up the actual possession of the goods until the receipt is surrendered to him or impounded by the court. [32 G. A., ch. 160, § 25.]

SEC. 3138-a26. Creditors' remedies to reach negotiable receipts. A creditor whose debtor is the owner of a negotiable receipt shall be entitled to such aid from courts of appropriate jurisdiction, by injunction and otherwise, in attaching such receipt or in satisfying the claim by means thereof as is allowed at law or in equity, in regard to property which cannot readily be attached or levied upon by ordinary legal process. [32 G. A., ch. 160, § 26.]

SEC. 3138-a27. What claims included in warehouseman's lien. Subject to the provisions of section thirty, a warehouseman shall have a lien on goods deposited or on the proceeds thereof in his hands, for all lawful charges for storage and preservation of the goods; also for all lawful claims for money advanced, interest, insurance, transportation, labor, weighing, coopering and other charges and expenses in relation to such goods; also for all reasonable charges and expenses for notice, and advertisements of sale, and for sale of the goods where default has been made in satisfying the warehouseman's lien. [32 G. A., ch. 160, § 27.]

SEC. 3138-a28. Against what property lien may be enforced. Subject to the provisions of section thirty, a warehouseman's lien may be enforced—

(a) Against all goods, whenever deposited, belonging to the person who is liable as debtor for the claims in regard to which the lien is asserted; and

(b) Against all goods belonging to others which have been deposited at any time by the person who is liable as debtor for the claims in regard to which the lien is asserted, if such person has been so intrusted with the possession of the goods that a pledge of the same by him at the time of the deposit to one who took the goods in good faith for value would have been valid. [32 G. A., ch. 160, § 28.]

SEC. 3138-a29. How lien may be lost. A warehouseman loses his lien upon goods—

(a) By surrendering possession thereof; or

(b) By refusing to deliver the goods when a demand is made with which he is bound to comply under the provisions of this act. [32 G. A., ch. 160, § 29.]

SEC. 3138-a30. Negotiable receipt must state charges for which lien is claimed. If a negotiable receipt is issued for goods, the warehouseman shall have no lien thereon, except for charges for storage of those goods subsequent to the date of the receipt, unless the receipt expressly enumerates other charges for which a lien is claimed. In such case there shall be a lien for the charges enumerated so far as they are within the terms of section twenty-seven, although the amount of the charges so enumerated is not stated in the receipt. [32 G. A., ch. 160, § 30.]

SEC. 3138-a31. Warehouseman need not deliver until lien is satisfied. A warehouseman having a lien valid against the person demanding the goods may refuse to deliver the goods to him until the lien is satisfied. [32 G. A., ch. 160, § 31.]

SEC. 3138-a32. Warehouseman's lien does not preclude other remedies. Whether a warehouseman has or has not a lien upon the goods, he is entitled to all remedies allowed by law to a creditor against his debtor, for the collection from the depositor of all charges and advances which the depositor has expressly or impliedly contracted with the warehouseman to pay. [32 G. A., ch. 160, § 32.]

SEC. 3138-a33. Satisfaction of lien by sale. A warehouseman's lien for a claim which has become due may be satisfied as follows:

The warehouseman shall give a written notice to the person on whose account the goods are held, and to any other person known by the warehouseman to claim an interest in the goods. Such notice shall be given by delivery in person or by registered letter addressed to the last known place of business or abode of the person to be notified. The notice shall contain—

(a) An itemized statement of the warehouseman's claim, showing the sum due at the time of the notice and the date or dates when it became due;

(b) A brief description of the goods against which the lien exists;

(c) A demand that the amount of the claim as stated in the notice, and of such further claim as shall accrue, shall be paid on or before a day mentioned, not less than ten days from the delivery of the notice if it is personally delivered, or from the time when the notice should reach its destination, according to the due course of post, if the notice is sent by mail; and

(d) A statement that unless the claim is paid within the time specified the goods will be advertised for sale and sold by auction at a specified time and place.

In accordance with the terms of a notice so given, a sale of the goods by auction may be had to satisfy any valid claim of the warehouseman for which he has a lien on the goods. The sale shall be had in the place where the lien was acquired, or, if such place is manifestly unsuitable for the purpose, at the nearest suitable place. After the time for the payment of the claim specified in the notice to the depositor has elapsed, an advertisement of the sale, describing the goods to be sold, and stating the name of the owner or person on whose account the goods are held, and the time and place of the sale, shall be published once a week for two consecutive weeks in a newspaper published in the place where such sale is to be held. The sale shall not be held less than fifteen days from the time of the first publication. If there is no newspaper published in such place, the advertisement shall be posted at least ten days before such sale in not less than six conspicuous places therein. From the proceeds of such sale the warehouseman shall satisfy his lien, including the reasonable charges of notice, advertisement, and sale. The balance, if any, of such proceeds shall be held by the warehouseman, and delivered on demand to the person to whom he would have been bound to deliver or justified in delivering the goods. At any time before the goods are so sold any person claiming a right of property or possession therein may pay the warehouseman the amount necessary to satisfy his lien and to pay the reasonable expenses and liabilities incurred in serving notices and advertising and preparing for the sale up to the time of such payment. The warehouseman shall deliver the goods to the person making such payment if he is a person entitled, under the provisions of this act, to the possession of the goods on payment of charges thereon. Otherwise the warehouseman shall retain possession of the goods according to the terms of the original contract of deposit. [32 G. A., ch. 160, § 33.]

SEC. 3138-a34. Perishable and hazardous goods. If goods are of a perishable nature, or by keeping will deteriorate greatly in value, or by their odor, leakage, inflammability, or explosive nature, will be liable to injure other property, the warehouseman may give such notice to the owner, or to the person in whose name the goods are stored, as is reasonable and possible under the circumstances, to satisfy the lien upon such goods and to remove them from the warehouse, and in the event of the failure of such person to satisfy the lien and to remove the goods within the time so specified, the warehouseman may sell the goods at public or private sale without advertising. If the warehouseman, after a reasonable effort, is unable to sell such goods, he may dispose of them in a lawful manner, and shall incur no liability by reason thereof. The proceeds of any sale made under the terms of this section shall be disposed of in the same way as the proceeds of sales made under the terms of the preceding section. [32 G. A., ch. 160, § 34.]

SEC. 3138-a35. Other methods of enforcing liens. The remedy for enforcing a lien herein provided does not preclude any other remedies allowed by law for the enforcement of a lien against personal property nor bar the right to recover so much of the warehouseman's claim as shall not be paid by the proceeds of the sale of the property. [32 G. A., ch. 160, § 35.]

SEC. 3138-a36. Effect of sale. After the goods have been lawfully sold to satisfy a warehouseman's lien, or have been lawfully sold or disposed of because of their perishable or hazardous nature, the warehouseman shall not thereafter be liable for failure to deliver the goods to the depositor, or owner of the goods, or to a holder of the receipt given for the goods when they were deposited, even if such receipt be negotiable. [32 G. A., ch. 160, § 36.]

SEC. 3138-a37. Negotiation of negotiable receipts by delivery. A negotiable receipt may be negotiated by delivery—

(a) Where, by the terms of the receipt, the warehouseman undertakes to deliver the goods to the bearer; or

(b) Where, by the terms of the receipt, the warehouseman undertakes to deliver the goods to the order of a specified person, and such person or a subsequent indorsee of the receipt has indorsed it in blank or to bearer.

Where, by the terms of a negotiable receipt, the goods are deliverable to bearer or where a negotiable receipt has been indorsed in blank or to bearer, any holder may indorse the same to himself or to any other specified person, and in such case the receipt shall thereafter be negotiated only by the indorsement of such indorsee. [32 G. A., ch. 160, § 37.]

SEC. 3138-a38. Negotiation of negotiable receipts by indorsement. A negotiable receipt may be negotiated by the indorsement of the person to whose order the goods are, by the terms of the receipt, deliverable. Such indorsement may be in blank, to bearer or to a specified person. If indorsed to a specified person, it may be again negotiated by the indorsement of such person in blank, to bearer or to another specified person. Subsequent negotiation may be made in like manner. [32 G. A., ch. 160, § 38.]

SEC. 3138-a39. Transfer of receipts. A receipt which is not in such form that it can be negotiated by delivery may be transferred by the holder by delivery to a purchaser or donee. A nonnegotiable receipt cannot be negotiated, and the indorsement of such a receipt gives the transferee no additional right. [32 G. A., ch. 160, § 39.]

SEC. 3138-a40. Who may negotiate a receipt. A negotiable receipt may be negotiated—

(a) By the owner thereof; or

(b) By any person to whom the possession or custody of the receipt has been entrusted by the owner, if, by the terms of the receipt, the warehouseman undertakes to deliver the goods to the order of the person to whom the possession or custody of the receipt has been entrusted, or if, at the time of such entrusting, the receipt is in such form that it may be negotiated by delivery. [32 G. A., ch. 160, § 40.]

SEC. 3138-a41. Rights of persons to whom receipt has been negotiated. A person to whom a negotiable receipt has been duly negotiated acquires[1] thereby—

(a) Such title to the goods as the person negotiating the receipt to him had or had ability to convey to a purchaser in good faith for value, and also such title to the goods as the depositor or person to whose order the goods were to be delivered by the terms of the receipt had or had ability to convey to a purchaser in good faith for value; and

(b) The direct obligation of the warehouseman to hold possession of the goods for him according to the terms of the receipt as fully as if the warehouseman had contracted directly with him. [32 G. A., ch. 160, § 41.]

[1]"requires" in 32 G. A. session laws. EDITOR.]

SEC. 3138-a42. Rights of persons to whom receipt has been transferred. A person to whom a receipt has been transferred but not negotiated, acquires thereby, as against the transferor, the title to the goods, subject to the terms of any agreement with the transferor. If the receipt is nonnegotiable such person also acquires the right to notify the warehouseman of the transfer to him of such receipt, and thereby to acquire the direct obligation of the warehouseman to hold possession of the goods for him according to the terms of the receipt. Prior to the notification of the warehouseman by the transferor or transferee of a nonnegotiable receipt, the title of the transferee to the goods and the right to acquire the obligation of the warehouseman may be defeated by the levy of an attachment or execution upon the goods by a creditor of the transferor, or by a notification to the warehouseman by the transferor or by a subsequent purchaser from the transferor of a subsequent sale of the goods by the transferor. [32 G. A., ch. 160, § 42.]

SEC. 3138-a43. Transfer of negotiable receipt without indorsement. Where a negotiable receipt is transferred for value by delivery, and the indorsement of the transferor is essential for negotiation, the transferee acquires a right against the transferor to compel him to indorse the receipt, unless a contrary intention appears. The negotiation shall take effect as of the time when the indorsement is actually made. [32 G. A., ch. 160, § 43.]

SEC. 3138-a44. Warranties on sale of receipt. A person who for value negotiates or transfers a receipt by indorsement or delivery, including one who assigns for value a claim secured by a receipt, unless a contrary intention appears, warrants—

(a) That the receipt is genuine;

(b) That he has a legal right to negotiate or transfer it;

(c) That he has knowledge of no fact which would impair the validity or worth of the receipt; and

(d) That he has a right to transfer the title to the goods, and that the goods are merchantable or fit for a particular purpose whenever such warranties would have been implied, if the contract of the parties had been to transfer without a receipt the goods represented thereby. [32 G. A., ch. 160, § 44.]

SEC. 3138-a45. Indorser not a guarantor. The indorsement of a receipt shall not make the indorser liable for any failure on the part of the warehouseman or previous indorsers of the receipt to fulfill their respective obligations. [32 G. A., ch. 160, § 45.]

SEC. 3138-a46. No warranty implied from accepting payment of debt. A mortgagee, pledgee or holder for security of a receipt who, in good faith, demands or receives payment of the debt for which such receipt is security, whether from a party to a draft drawn for such debt or from any other person, shall not by so doing be deemed to represent or to warrant the genuineness of such receipt or the quality or quantity of the goods therein described. [32 G. A., ch. 160, § 46.]

SEC. 3138-a47. When negotiation not impaired by fraud, mistake or duress. The validity of the negotiation of a receipt is not impaired by the fact that such negotiation was a breach of duty on the part of the person making the negotiation, or by the fact that the owner of the receipt was induced by fraud, mistake, or duress to entrust the possession or custody of the receipt to such person, if the person to whom the receipt was negotiated, or a person to whom the receipt was subsequently negotiated, paid value therefor, without notice of the breach of duty, or fraud, mistake, or duress. [32 G. A., ch. 160, § 47.]

SEC. 3138-a48. Subsequent negotiation. Where a person having sold, mortgaged, or pledged goods which are in a warehouse and for which a negotiable receipt has been issued, or having sold, mortgaged, or pledged the negotiable receipt representing such goods, continues in possession of the negotiable receipt, the subsequent negotiation thereof by that person under any sale, or other disposition thereof to any person receiving the same in good faith, for value and without notice of the previous sale, mortgage or pledge, shall have the same effect as if the first purchaser of the goods or receipt had expressly authorized the subsequent negotiation. [32 G. A., ch. 160, § 48.]

SEC. 3138-a49. Negotiation defeats vendor's lien. Where a negotiable receipt has been issued for goods, no seller's lien or right of stoppage in transitu shall defeat the rights of any purchaser for value in good faith to whom such receipt has been negotiated, whether such negotiation be prior or subsequent to the notification to the warehouseman who issued such receipt of the seller's claim to a lien or right of stoppage in transitu. Nor shall the warehouseman be obliged to deliver or justified in delivering the goods to an unpaid seller unless the receipt is first surrendered for cancellation. [32 G. A., ch. 160, § 49.]

SEC. 3138-a50. Issue of receipt for goods not received. A warehouseman or any officer, agent, or servant of a warehouseman, who issues or aids in issuing a receipt knowing that the goods for which such receipt is issued have not been actually received by such warehouseman, or are not under his actual control at the time of issuing such receipt, shall be guilty of felony, and upon conviction shall be punished for each offense by imprisonment in the penitentiary not exceeding five years, or by a fine not exceeding five thousand dollars, or by both. [32 G. A., ch. 160, § 50.]

SEC. 3138-a51. Issue of receipt containing false statement. A warehouseman, or any officer, agent or servant of a warehouseman, who fraudulently issues or aids in fraudulently issuing a receipt for goods, knowing that it contains any false statement, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be punished for each offense by imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding one year, or by a fine not exceeding one thousand dollars, or by both. [32 G. A., ch. 160, § 51.]

SEC. 3138-a52. Issue of duplicate receipts not so marked. A warehouseman, or any officer, agent or servant of a warehouseman, who issues or aids in issuing a duplicate or additional negotiable receipt for goods, knowing that a former negotiable receipt for the same goods or any part of them is outstanding and uncanceled, without plainly placing upon the face thereof the word "duplicate," except in the case of a lost or destroyed receipt after proceedings as provided for in section fourteen, shall be guilty of a felony, and upon conviction shall be punished for each offense by imprisonment in the penitentiary not exceeding five years, or by a fine not exceeding five thousand dollars, or by both. [32 G. A., ch. 160, § 52.]

SEC. 3138-a53. Issue for warehouseman's goods of receipts which do not state that fact. Where there are deposited with or held by a warehouseman goods of which he is owner, either solely or jointly or in common with others, such warehouseman, or any of his officers, agents, or servants who, knowing this ownership, issues or aids in issuing a negotiable receipt for such goods which does not state such ownership, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be punished for each offense by imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding one year, or by a fine not exceeding one thousand dollars, or by both. [32 G. A., ch. 160, § 53.]

SEC. 3138-a54. Delivery of goods without obtaining negotiable receipt. A warehouseman, or any officer, agent, or servant of a warehouseman who delivers goods out of the possession of such warehouseman, knowing that a negotiable receipt, the negotiating of which would transfer the right to the possession of such goods, is outstanding and uncanceled, without obtaining the possession of such receipt at or before the time of such delivery, shall, except in the cases provided for in sections fourteen and thirty-six, be found guilty of a misdemeanor and on conviction shall be punished for each offense by imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding one year, or by a fine not exceeding one thousand dollars, or by both. [32 G. A., ch. 160, § 54.]

SEC. 3138-a55. Negotiation of receipt for mortgaged goods. Any person who deposits goods to which he has no title, or upon which there is a lien or mortgage, and who takes for such goods a negotiable receipt which he afterwards negotiates for value with intent to deceive and without disclosing his want of title or the existence of the lien or mortgage, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be punished for each offense by imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding one year, or by a fine not exceeding one thousand dollars, or by both. [32 G. A., ch. 160, § 55.]

SEC. 3138-a56. When rules of common law still applicable. In any case not provided for in this act, the rules of law and equity, including the law merchant, and in particular the rules relating to the law of principal and agent and to the effect of fraud, misrepresentation, duress or coercion, mistake, bankruptcy, or other invalidating cause, shall govern. [32 G. A., ch. 160, § 56.]

SEC. 3138-a57. Interpretation shall give effect to purpose of uniformity. This act shall be so interpreted and construed as to effectuate its general purpose to make uniform the law of those states which enact it. [32 G. A., ch. 160, § 57.]

SEC. 3138-a58. Definitions. In this act, unless the context or subject matter otherwise requires—

"Action" includes the counterclaim, set-off, and suit in equity.

"Delivery" means voluntary transfer of possession from one person to another.

"Fungible goods" means goods of which any receipt is, from its nature or by mercantile custom, treated as the equivalent of any other unit.

"Goods" means chattels or merchandise in storage, or which has been or is about to be stored.

"Holder of a receipt" means a person who has both actual possession of such receipt and a right of property therein.

"Order" means an order by indorsement on the receipt.

"Owner" does not include mortgagee or pledgee.

"Person" includes a corporation or partnership or two or more persons having a joint or common interest.

To "purchase" includes to take as mortgagee or as pledgee.

"Purchaser" includes mortgagee and pledgee.

"Receipt" means a warehouse receipt.

"Value" is any consideration sufficient to support a simple contract. An antecedent or preëxisting obligation, whether for money or not, constitutes value where a receipt is taken either in satisfaction thereof or as security therefor.

"Warehouseman" means a person lawfully engaged in the business of storing goods for profit.

A thing is done "in good faith" within the meaning of this act, when it is in fact done honestly whether it be done negligently or not. [32 G. A., ch. 160, § 58.]

SEC. 3138-a59. Not applicable to existing receipts. The provisions of this act do not apply to receipts made and delivered prior to the taking effect of this act. [32 G. A., ch. 160, § 59.]

CHAPTER 10-B.

OF UNIFORM BILLS OF LADING.

SECTION 3138-b. Bills of lading. Bills of lading issued by any common carrier shall be governed by this act. [34 G. A., ch. 155, § 1.]

SEC. 3138-b1. Terms to be embodied in bill. Every bill must embody within its written or printed terms—

(a) The date of its issue,

(b) The name of the person from whom the goods have been received,

(c) The place where the goods have been received,

(d) The place to which the goods are to be transported,

(e) A statement whether the goods received will be delivered to a specified person, or to the order of a specified person,

(f) A description of the goods or of the packages containing them which may, however, be in such general terms as are referred to in section twenty-three, and

(g) The signature of the carrier.

A negotiable bill shall have the words "order of" printed thereon immediately before the name of the person upon whose order the goods received are deliverable.

A carrier shall be liable to any person injured thereby for the damage caused by the omission from a negotiable bill of any of the provisions required in this section. [34 G. A., ch. 155, § 2.]

SEC. 3138-b2. Certain terms may be inserted. A carrier may insert in a bill, issued by him, any other terms and conditions, provided that such terms and conditions shall not—

(a) Be contrary to law or public policy, or

(b) In any wise impair his obligation to exercise at least that degree of care in the transportation and safe-keeping of the goods intrusted to him which a reasonably careful man would exercise in regard to similar goods of his own. [34 G. A., ch. 155, § 3.]

SEC. 3138-b3. Nonnegotiable or straight bill. A bill in which it is stated that the goods are consigned or destined to a specified person, is a nonnegotiable or straight bill. [34 G. A., ch. 155, § 4.]

SEC. 3138-b4. Negotiable or order bill. A bill in which it is stated that the goods are consigned or destined to the order of any person named in such bill, is a negotiable or order bill. Any provision in such a bill that it is nonnegotiable shall not affect its negotiability within the meaning of this act. [34 G. A., ch. 155, § 5.]

SEC. 3138-b5. Negotiable bills not to be issued in parts or sets—liability for violation. Negotiable bills issued in this state for the transportation of goods to any place in the United States on the continent of North America, except Alaska, shall not be issued in parts or sets. If so issued the carrier issuing them shall be liable for failure to deliver the goods described therein to any one who purchases a part for value in good faith, even though the purchase be after the delivery of the goods by the carrier to a holder of one of the other parts. [34 G. A., ch. 155, § 6.]

SEC. 3138-b6. Duplicate bills to be so marked—liability for violation. When more than one negotiable bill is issued in this state for the same goods to be transported to any place in the United States on the continent of North America, except Alaska, the word "duplicate" or some other word or words indicating that the document is not an original bill shall be placed plainly upon the face of every such bill, except the one first issued. A carrier shall be liable for the damage caused by his failure so to do to anyone who has purchased the bill for value in good faith as an original, even though the purchase be after the delivery of the goods by the carrier to the holder of the original bill. [34 G. A., ch. 155, § 7.]

SEC. 3138-b7. Nonnegotiable bill to be so marked. A nonnegotiable bill shall have placed plainly upon its face by the carrier issuing it "nonnegotiable" or "not negotiable." This section shall not apply, however, to memoranda or acknowledgments of an informal character. [34 G. A., ch. 155, § 8.]

SEC. 3138-b8. Insertion of name of person to be notified not to limit negotiability. The insertion in a negotiable bill of the name of a person to be notified of the arrival of goods shall not limit the negotiability of the bill, or constitute notice to a purchaser thereof of any rights or equities of such person in the goods. [34 G. A., ch. 155, § 9.]

SEC. 3138-b9. Waiver of objections to terms—estoppel. Except as otherwise provided in this act, where a consignor receives[1] a bill and makes no objection to its terms or conditions at the time he receives it, neither the consignor nor any person who accepts delivery of the goods, nor any person who seeks to enforce any provision of the bill, shall be allowed to deny that he is bound by such terms and conditions, so far as they are not contrary to law or public policy. [34 G. A., ch. 155, § 10.]

[1"received" in enrolled bill. EDITOR.]

SEC. 3138-b10. Delivery of goods by carrier—refusal—burden of proof. A carrier, in the absence of some lawful excuse, is bound to deliver goods upon a demand made either by the consignee named in the bill for the goods, or if the bill is negotiable, by the holder thereof, if such demand is accompanied by—

(a) An offer in good faith to satisfy the carrier's lawful lien upon the goods,

(b) An offer in good faith to surrender, properly indorsed, the bill which was issued for the goods, if the bill is negotiable, and

(c) A readiness and willingness to sign, when the goods are delivered, an acknowledgment that they have been delivered, if such signature is requested by the carrier.

In case the carrier refuses or fails to deliver the goods in compliance with a demand by the consignee or holder so accompanied, the burden shall be upon the carrier to establish the existence of a lawful excuse for such refusal or failure. [34 G. A., ch. 155, § 11.]

SEC. 3138-b11. Carrier justified in delivering goods to certain persons. A carrier is justified, subject to the provisions of the three following sections, in delivering goods to one who is—

(a) A person lawfully entitled to the possession of the goods, or

(b) The consignee named in a nonnegotiable bill for the goods, or

(c) A person in possession of a negotiable bill for the goods by the terms of which the goods are deliverable to his order, or which has been indorsed to him or in blank by the consignee or by the mediate or immediate indorsee of the consignee. [34 G. A., ch. 155, § 12.]

SEC. 3138-b12. Liability of carrier in certain cases. Where a carrier delivers goods to one who is not lawfully entitled to the possession of them the carrier shall be liable to anyone having a right of property or possession in the goods if he delivered the goods otherwise than as authorized by subdivisions (b) and (c) of the preceding section; and, though he delivered the goods as authorized by either of said subdivisions, he shall be so liable if prior to such delivery he—

(a) Had been requested, by or on behalf of a person having a right of property or possession in the goods, not to make such delivery, or

(b) Had information at the time of the delivery that it was to a person not lawfully entitled to the possession of the goods.

A request or information to be effective within the meaning of this section must be given to an officer or agent of the carrier, the actual or apparent scope of whose duties includes action upon such a request or information, and must be given in time to enable the officer or agent to whom it is given, acting with reasonable diligence, to stop delivery of the goods. [34 G. A., ch. 155, § 13.]

SEC. 3138-b13. Failure of carrier to cancel negotiable bill—liability. Except as provided in section twenty-seven, and except when compelled by legal process, if a carrier delivers goods for which a negotiable bill had been issued, the negotiation of which would transfer the right to the possession of the goods, and fails to take up and cancel the bill, such carrier shall be liable for failure to deliver the goods to anyone who for value and in good faith purchases such bill, whether such purchaser acquired title to the bill before or after the delivery of the goods by the carrier, and notwithstanding delivery was made to the person entitled thereto. [34 G. A., ch. 155, § 14.]

SEC. 3138-b14. Same—delivery of part of goods. Except as provided in section twenty-seven, and except when compelled by legal process, if a carrier delivers part of the goods for which a negotiable bill had been issued and fails either—

(a) To take up and cancel the bill, or

(b) To place plainly upon it a statement that a portion of the goods has been delivered, with a description, which may be in general terms, either of the goods or packages that have been so delivered or of the goods or packages which still remain in the carrier's possession, he shall be liable for failure to deliver all the goods specified in the bill, to anyone who for value and in good faith purchases it, whether such purchaser acquired title to it before or after the delivery of any portion of the goods by the carrier, and notwithstanding such delivery was made to the person entitled thereto. [34 G. A., ch. 155, § 15.]

SEC. 3138-b15. Alterations without authority void. Any alteration, addition or erasure in a bill after its issue without authority from the carrier issuing the same either in writing or noted on the bill shall be void, whatever be the nature and purpose of the change, and the bill shall be enforceable according to its original tenor. [34 G. A., ch. 155, § 16.]

SEC. 3138-b16. Lost or destroyed negotiable bill—court may order delivery—bond—liability. Where a negotiable bill has been lost or destroyed, a court of competent jurisdiction may order the delivery of the goods upon satisfactory proof of such loss or destruction and upon the giving of a bond with sufficient surety to be approved by the court to protect the carrier or any person injured by such delivery from any liability or loss, incurred by reason of the original bill remaining outstanding. The court may also in its discretion order the payment of the carrier's reasonable costs and counsel fees. The delivery of the goods under an order of the court as provided in this section, shall not relieve the carrier from liability to a person to whom the negotiable bill has been or shall be negotiated for value without notice of the proceedings or of the delivery of the goods. [34 G. A., ch. 155, § 17.]

SEC. 3138-b17. Liability on duplicate bills. A bill upon the face of which the word "duplicate" or some other word or words indicating that the document is not an original bill is placed plainly shall impose upon the carrier issuing the same the liability of one who represents and warrants that such bill is an accurate copy of an original bill properly issued, but no other liability. [34 G. A., ch. 155, § 18.]

SEC. 3138-b18. Assertion of title by carrier—liability for refusal to deliver. No title to goods or right to their possession, asserted by a carrier for his own benefit, shall excuse him from liability for refusing to deliver the goods according to the terms of a bill issued for them, unless such title or right is derived directly or indirectly from a transfer made by the consignor or consignee after the shipment, or from the carrier's lien. [34 G. A., ch. 155, § 19.]

SEC. 3138-b19. Claimants required to interplead. If more than one person claims the title or possession of goods, the carrier may require all known claimants to interplead, either as a defense to an action brought against him for nondelivery of the goods, or as an original suit, whichever is appropriate. [34 G. A., ch. 155, § 20.]

SEC. 3138-b20. Disputed title or possession—delivery—liability for refusal to deliver excused—limitation. If someone other than the consignee or person in possession of the bill, has a claim to the title or possession of the goods, and the carrier has information of such claim, the carrier shall be excused from liability for refusing to deliver the goods either to the consignee or person in possession of the bill, or to the adverse claimant, until the carrier has had a reasonable time to ascertain the validity of the adverse claim or to bring legal proceedings to compel all claimants to interplead. [34 G. A., ch. 155, § 21.]

SEC. 3138-b21. Right or title of third person no defense to failure to deliver—exceptions. Except as provided in the two preceding sections and in section twelve, no right or title of a third person unless enforced by legal process shall be a defense to an action brought by the consignee of a nonnegotiable bill or by the holder of a negotiable bill against the carrier for failure to deliver the goods on demand. [34 G. A., ch. 155, § 22.]

SEC. 3138-b22. General liability of carrier. If a bill of lading has been issued by a carrier or on his behalf by an agent or employe the scope of whose actual or apparent authority includes the issuing of bills of lading, the carrier shall be liable to—

(a) The consignee named in a nonnegotiable bill, or

(b) The holder of a negotiable bill, who has given value in good faith relying upon the description therein of the goods, for damages caused by the nonreceipt by the carrier or a connecting carrier of all or part of the goods or their failure to correspond with the description thereof in the bill at the time of its issue.

If, however, the goods are described in the bill merely by a statement of marks or labels upon them or upon packages containing them, or by a statement that the goods are said to be goods of a certain kind or quantity, or in a certain condition, or it is stated in the bill that packages are said to contain goods of a certain kind or quantity or in a certain condition, or that the contents or the condition of contents of packages are unknown, or words of like purport are contained in the bill, such statements, if true, shall not make liable the carrier issuing the bill, although the goods are not of the kind or quantity or in the condition which the marks or labels upon them indicate, or of the kind or quantity or in the condition they were said to be by the consignor. The carrier may, also, by inserting in the bill the words "shipper's load and count" or other words of like purport, indicate that the goods were loaded by the shipper and the description of them made by him; and if such statement be true, the carrier shall not be liable for damages caused by the improper loading or by the nonreceipt or by the misdescription of the goods described in the bill. [34 G. A., ch. 155, § 23.]

SEC. 3138-b23. Attachment—surrender of bill—negotiation enjoined. If goods are delivered to a carrier by the owner or by a person whose act in conveying the title to them to a purchaser for value in good faith would bind the owner and a negotiable bill is issued for them, they cannot thereafter, while in the possession of the carrier, be attached by garnishment or otherwise, or be levied upon under an execution, unless the bill be first surrendered to the carrier or its negotiation enjoined. The carrier shall in no such case be compelled to deliver the actual possession of the goods until the bill is surrendered to him or impounded by the court. [34 G. A., ch. 155, § 24.]

SEC. 3138-b24. Rights of creditor. A creditor whose debtor is the owner of a negotiable bill shall be entitled to such aid from courts of appropriate jurisdiction by injunction and otherwise in attaching such bill, or in satisfying the claim by means thereof as is allowed at law or in equity in regard to property which cannot readily be attached or levied upon by ordinary legal process. [34 G. A., ch. 155, § 25.]

SEC. 3138-b25. Carrier's lien for certain charges. If a negotiable bill is issued the carrier shall have no lien on the goods therein mentioned, except for charges on those goods for freight, storage, demurrage and terminal charges, and expenses necessary for the preservation of the goods or incident to their transportation subsequent to the date of the bill, unless the bill expressly enumerates other charges for which a lien is claimed. In such case there shall also be a lien for the charges enumerated so far as they are allowed by law and the contract between the consignor and the carrier. [34 G. A., ch. 155, § 26.]

SEC. 3138-b26. Release from liability to deliver when goods are sold to satisfy lien—unclaimed, perishable or hazardous goods. After goods have been lawfully sold to satisfy a carrier's lien, or because they have not been claimed, or because they are perishable or hazardous, the carrier shall not thereafter be liable for failure to deliver the goods to the consignee or owner of the goods, or to a holder of the bill given for the goods when they were shipped, even if such bill be negotiable. [34 G. A., ch. 155, § 27.]

SEC. 3138-b27. Negotiation by delivery. A negotiable bill may be negotiated by delivery where, by the terms of the bill, the carrier undertakes to deliver the goods to the order of a specified person, and such person or a subsequent indorsee of the bill has indorsed it in blank. [34 G. A., ch. 155, § 28.]

SEC. 3138-b28. Negotiation by indorsement. A negotiable bill may be negotiated by the indorsement of the person to whose order the goods are deliverable by the tenor of the bill. Such indorsement may be in blank or to a specified person. If indorsed to a specified person, it may be negotiated again by the indorsement of such person in blank or to another specified person. Subsequent negotiation may be made in like manner. [34 G. A., ch. 155, § 29.]

SEC. 3138-b29. Transfer by delivery—indorsement of nonnegotiable bill. A bill may be transferred by the holder by delivery, accompanied with an agreement, express or implied, to transfer the title to the bill or to the goods represented thereby. A nonnegotiable bill cannot be negotiated, and the indorsement of such a bill gives the transferee no additional right. [34 G. A., ch. 155, § 30.]

SEC. 3138-b30. Negotiation by person in possession of bill. A negotiable bill may be negotiated by any person in possession of the same, however such possession may have been acquired if, by the terms of the bill, the carrier undertakes to deliver the goods to the order of such person, or if at the time of negotiation the bill is in such form that it may be negotiated by delivery. [34 G. A., ch. 155, § 31.]

SEC. 3138-b31. Rights acquired by negotiation. A person to whom a negotiable bill has been duly negotiated acquires thereby—

(a) Such title to the goods as the person negotiating the bill to him had or had ability to convey to a purchaser in good faith for value, and also such title to the goods as the consignee and consignor had or had power to convey to a purchaser in good faith for value, and

(b) The direct obligation of the carrier to hold possession of the goods for him according to the terms of the bill as fully as if the carrier had contracted directly with him. [34 G. A., ch. 155, § 32.]

SEC. 3138-b32. Rights acquired by transfer—garnishment, attachment or execution—notice. A person to whom a bill has been transferred but not negotiated acquires thereby as against the transferor, the title to the goods, subject to the terms of any agreement with the transferor. If the bill is nonnegotiable, such person also acquires the right to notify the carrier of the transfer to him of such bill, and thereby to become the direct obligee of whatever obligations the carrier owed to the transferor of the bill immediately before the notification. Prior to the notification of the carrier by the transferor or transferee of a nonnegotiable bill, the title of the transferee to the goods and the right to acquire the obligation of the carrier may be defeated by garnishment or by attachment or execution upon the goods by a creditor of the transferor, or by a notification to the carrier by the transferor or a subsequent purchaser from the transferor of a subsequent sale of the goods by the transferor. A carrier has not received notification within the meaning of this section unless an officer or agent of the carrier, the actual or apparent scope of whose duties includes action upon such notification, has been notified; and no notification shall be effective until the officer or agent to whom it is given has had time with the exercise of reasonable diligence to communicate with the agent or agents having actual possession or control of the goods. [34 G. A., ch. 155, § 33.]

SEC. 3138-b33. Right of transferee to compel indorsement. Where a negotiable bill is transferred for value by delivery, and the indorsement of the transferor is essential for negotiation, the transferee acquires a right against the transferor to compel him to indorse the bill, unless a contrary intention appears. The negotiation shall take effect as of the time when the indorsement is actually made. This obligation may be specifically enforced. [34 G. A., ch. 155, § 34.]

SEC. 3138-b34. Warranties of transferor. A person who negotiates or transfers for value a bill by indorsement or delivery, including one who assigns for value a claim secured by a bill, unless a contrary intention appears, warrants—

(a) That the bill is genuine,

(b) That he has a legal right to transfer it,

(c) That he has knowledge of no fact which would impair the validity or worth of the bill, and

(d) That he has a right to transfer the title to the goods, and that the goods are merchantable or fit for a particular purpose whenever such warranties would have been implied, if the contract of the parties had been to transfer without a bill the goods represented thereby.

In the case of an assignment of a claim secured by a bill, the liability of the assignor shall not exceed the amount of the claim. [34 G. A., ch. 155, § 35.]

SEC. 3138-b35. Liability of indorser limited. The indorsement of a bill shall not make the indorser liable for any failure on the part of the carrier or previous indorsers of the bill to fulfill their respective obligations. [34 G. A., ch. 155, § 36.]

SEC. 3138-b36. Holder of bill for security does not warrant genuineness. A mortgagee or pledgee, or other holder of a bill for security who in good faith demands or receives payment of the debt for which such bill is security, whether from a party to a draft drawn for such debt or from any other person, shall not be deemed by so doing to represent or to warrant the genuineness of such bill or the quantity or quality of the goods therein described. [34 G. A., ch. 155, § 37.]

SEC. 3138-b37. Validity of negotiation—not impaired by certain facts. The validity of the negotiation of a bill is not impaired by the fact that such negotiation was a breach of duty on the part of the person making the negotiation, or by the fact that the owner of the bill was deprived of the possession of the same by fraud, accident, mistake, duress or conversion, if the person to whom the bill was negotiated, or a person to whom the bill was subsequently negotiated, gave value therefor, in good faith, without notice of the breach of duty, or fraud, accident, mistake, duress or conversion. [34 G. A., ch. 155, § 38.]

SEC. 3138-b38. Holder in good faith after subsequent negotiation. Where a person having sold, mortgaged, or pledged goods which are in a carrier's possession and for which a negotiable bill has been issued, or having sold, mortgaged, or pledged the negotiable bill representing such goods, continues in possession of the negotiable bill, the subsequent negotiation thereof by that person under any sale, pledge, or other disposition thereof to any person receiving the same in good faith, for value and without notice of the previous sale, shall have the same effect as if the first purchaser of the goods or bill had expressly authorized the subsequent negotiation. [34 G. A., ch. 155, § 39.]

SEC. 3138-b39. Right to possession of goods—how indicated. Where goods are shipped by the consignor in accordance with a contract or order for their purchase, the form in which the bill is taken by the consignor shall indicate the transfer or retention of the property or right to the possession of the goods as follows:

(a) Where by the bill the goods are deliverable to the buyer or to his agent, or to the order of the buyer or of his agent, the consignor thereby transfers the property in the goods to the buyer.

(b) Where by the bill the goods are deliverable to the seller or to his agent, or to the order of the seller or of his agent, the seller thereby reserves the property in the goods. But if, except for the form of the bill, the property would have passed to the buyer on shipment of the goods, the seller's property in the goods shall be deemed to be only for the purpose of securing performance by the buyer of his obligation under the contract.

(c) Where by the bill the goods are deliverable to the order of the buyer or of his agent, but possession of the bill is retained by the seller or his agent, the seller thereby reserves a right to the possession of the goods, as against the buyer.

(d) Where the seller draws on the buyer for the price and transmits the draft and bill together to the buyer to secure acceptance or payment of the draft, the buyer is bound to return the bill if he does not honor the draft, and if he wrongfully retains the bill he acquires no added right thereby. If, however, the bill provides that the goods are deliverable to the buyer, or to the order of the buyer, or is indorsed in blank or to the buyer by the consignee named therein, one who purchases in good faith, for value, the bill or goods from the buyer, shall obtain the title to the goods, although the draft has not been honored, if such purchaser has received delivery of the bill indorsed by the consignee named therein, or of the goods, without notice of the facts making the transfer wrongful. [34 G. A., ch. 155, § 40.]

SEC. 3138-b40. Assumptions of buyer. Where the seller of goods draws on the buyer for the price of the goods and transmits the draft and a bill of lading for the goods either directly to the buyer or through a bank or other agency, unless a different intention on the part of the seller appears, the buyer and all other parties interested shall be justified in assuming:

(a) If the draft is by its terms or legal effect payable on demand or presentation or at sight, or not more than three days thereafter (whether such three days be termed days of grace or not), that the seller intended to require payment of the draft before the buyer should be entitled to receive or retain the bill.

(b) If the draft is by its terms payable on time, extending beyond three days after demand, presentation or sight (whether such three days be termed days of grace or not), that the seller intended to require acceptance, but not payment of the draft before the buyer should be entitled to receive or retain the bill.

The provisions of this section are applicable whether by the terms of the bill the goods are consigned to the seller, or to his order, or to the buyer, or to his order, or to a third person, or to his order. [34 G. A., ch. 155, § 41.]

SEC. 3138-b41. Rights of purchaser for value in good faith not to be defeated. Where a negotiable bill has been issued for goods, no seller's lien or right of stoppage in transitu shall defeat the rights of any purchaser for value in good faith to whom such bill has been negotiated, whether such negotiation be prior or subsequent to the notification to the carrier who issued such bill of the seller's claim to a lien or right of stoppage in transitu. Nor shall the carrier be obliged to deliver or justified in delivering the goods to an unpaid seller unless such bill is first surrendered for cancellation. [34 G. A., ch. 155, § 42.]

SEC. 3138-b42. Rights or remedies of mortgage or lien holder. Except as provided in section forty-two, nothing in this act shall limit the rights and remedies of a mortgagee or lien holder whose mortgage or lien on goods would be valid, apart from this act, as against one who for value and in good faith purchased from the owner, immediately prior to the time of their delivery to the carrier, the goods which are subject to the mortgage or lien and obtained possession of them. [34 G. A., ch. 155, § 43.]

SEC. 3138-b43. Issuance of bill when goods not received by carrier—penalty. Any officer, agent, or servant of a carrier, who with intent to defraud issues or aids in issuing a bill knowing that all or any part of the goods for which such bill is issued have not been received by such carrier, or by an agent of such carrier or by a connecting carrier, or are not under the carrier's control at the time of issuing such bill, shall be guilty of a crime, and upon conviction shall be punished for each offense by imprisonment not exceeding five years, or by a fine not exceeding five thousand dollars, or by both. [34 G. A., ch. 155, § 44.]

SEC. 3138-b44. False statement—penalty. Any officer, agent, or servant of a carrier, who with intent to defraud issues or aids in issuing a bill for goods knowing that it contains any false statement, shall be guilty of a crime, and upon conviction shall be punished for each offense by imprisonment not exceeding one year, or by a fine not exceeding one thousand dollars, or by both. [34 G. A., ch. 155, § 45.]

SEC. 3138-b45. Fraudulent duplicate negotiable bill—penalty. Any officer, agent, or servant of a carrier, who with intent to defraud issues or aids in issuing a duplicate or additional negotiable bill for goods in violation of the provisions of section seven, knowing that a former negotiable bill for the same goods or any part of them is outstanding and uncanceled, shall be guilty of a crime, and upon conviction shall be punished for each offense by imprisonment not exceeding five years, or by a fine not exceeding five thousand dollars, or by both. [34 G. A., ch. 155, § 46.]

SEC. 3138-b46. Shipping goods without title—penalty for negotiation of bill. Any person who ships goods to which he has not a title, or upon which there is a lien or mortgage, and who takes for such goods a negotiable bill which he afterwards negotiates for value with intent to deceive and without disclosing his want of title or the existence of the lien or mortgage, shall be guilty of a crime, and upon conviction shall be punished for each offense by imprisonment not exceeding one year, or by a fine not exceeding one thousand dollars, or by both. [34 G. A., ch. 155, § 47.]

SEC. 3138-b47. Negotiating bill with intent to deceive—penalty. Any person who with intent to deceive negotiates or transfers for value a bill knowing that any or all of the goods which by the terms of such bill appear to have been received for transportation by the carrier which issued the bill, are not in the possession or control of such carrier, or of a connecting carrier, without disclosing this fact, shall be guilty of a crime, and upon conviction shall be punished for each offense by imprisonment not exceeding five years, or by a fine not exceeding five thousand dollars, or by both. [34 G. A., ch. 155, § 48.]

SEC. 3138-b48. Securing issuance of bill with intent to defraud—penalty. Any person who with intent to defraud secures the issue by a carrier of a bill knowing that at the time of such issue, any or all of the goods described in such bill as received for transportation have not been received by such carrier, or an agent of such carrier or a connecting carrier, or are not under the carrier's control, by inducing an officer, agent, or servant of such carrier falsely to believe that such goods have been received by such carrier, or are under its control, shall be guilty of a crime, and upon conviction shall be punished for each offense by imprisonment not exceeding five years, or by a fine not exceeding five thousand dollars, or by both. [34 G. A., ch. 155, § 49.]

SEC. 3138-b49. Issuing nonnegotiable bill not so marked—penalty. Any person who with intent to defraud issues or aids in issuing a nonnegotiable bill without the words "not negotiable" placed plainly upon the face thereof, shall be guilty of a crime, and upon conviction shall be punished for each offense by imprisonment not exceeding five years or by a fine not exceeding five thousand dollars, or by both. [34 G. A., ch. 155, § 50.]

SEC. 3138-b50. Rules of law and equity to govern in cases not provided for. In any case not provided for in this act, the rules of law and equity including the law merchant, and in particular the rules relating to the law of principal and agent, executors, administrators and trustees, and to the effect of fraud, misrepresentation, duress or coercion, accident, mistake, bankruptcy, or other invalidating cause, shall govern. [34 G. A., ch. 155, § 51.]

SEC. 3138-b51. Interpretation and construction. This act shall be so interpreted and construed as to effectuate its general purpose to make uniform the law of those states which enact it. [34 G. A., ch. 155, § 52.]

SEC. 3138-b52. Terms defined. (1) In this act, unless the context or subject matter otherwise requires—

"Action" includes counterclaim, set-off, and suit in equity.

"Bill" means bill of lading.

"Consignee" means the person named in the bill as the person to whom delivery of the goods is to be made.

"Consignor" means the person named in the bill as the person from whom the goods have been received for shipment.

"Goods" means merchandise or chattels in course of transportation, or which have been or are about to be transported.

"Holder" of a bill means a person who has both actual possession of such bill and a right of property therein.

"Order" means an order by indorsement on the bill.

"Owner" does not include mortgagee or pledgee.

"Person" includes a corporation or partnership or two or more persons having a joint or common interest.

To "purchase" includes to take as mortgagee and to take as pledgee.

"Purchaser" includes mortgagee and pledgee.

"Value" is any consideration sufficient to support a simple contract. An antecedent or preëxisting obligation, whether for money or not, constitutes value where a bill is taken either in satisfaction thereof or as security therefor.

(2) A thing is done "in good faith," within the meaning of this act, when it is in fact done honestly, whether it be done negligently or not. [34 G. A., ch. 155, § 53.]

SEC. 3138-b53. When not applicable. The provisions of this act do not apply to bills made and delivered prior to the taking effect thereof. [34 G. A., ch. 155, § 54.]

SEC. 3138-b54. Acts in conflict repealed. All acts or parts of acts inconsistent with this act are hereby repealed. [34 G. A., ch. 155, § 55.]

SEC. 3138-b55. In effect. This act shall take effect on the fourth day of July, nineteen hundred eleven. [34 G. A., ch. 155, § 56.]

SEC. 3138-b56. How cited. This act may be cited as the Uniform Bills of Lading Act. [34 G. A., ch. 155, § 57.]

CHAPTER 10-C.

OF THE TRADE-MARK FOR IOWA-MANUFACTURED PRODUCTS.

SECTION 3138-c. Iowa state manufacturers' association — conditions of recognition under this act. Whenever the organization now existing in the state of Iowa, and known as the Iowa state manufacturers' association shall have filed with the secretary of state of Iowa verified proofs of its organization and the name of its president, vice president, secretary and treasurer, and that it has one hundred bona fide members, such association shall be recognized as the Iowa state manufacturers' association, and be entitled to the benefits of this act. [34 G. A., ch. 156, § 1.]

SEC. 3138-c1. Trade-mark "Made in Iowa"—registration. For the purpose of aiding in the promotion and development of manufacturing in Iowa, such association may adopt a label or trade-mark bearing the words "Made in Iowa," together with any other appropriate design or inscription, and this label or trade-mark shall be registered in the office of the secretary of state of Iowa. Said association shall have the right to register or file such label or trade-mark under the laws of the United States or any foreign country which permits such registration, making such registration as an association or through an individual for the use and benefit of the association. [34 G. A., ch. 156, § 2.]

SEC. 3138-c2. Board of awards — uniform regulations — powers. The said association shall by its articles of association provide for the election or appointment of a board of not less than fifteen manufacturers, who are residents of Iowa, which board shall be known as a board of awards. The said board of awards shall then establish uniform regulations and shall then grant to any manufacturer in the state of Iowa, who conforms to such regulations, the right to use said label or trade-mark. In making such regulations the said board of awards may make requirements as to good quality of such products, both as to materials and workmanship, and it may also fix a charge to be paid by such manufacturer for the use of such label. Upon failure to comply with any requirements established by the board of awards such privilege may be by them revoked. It being the purpose of this act to make the said label or trade-mark stand for Iowa-made goods, and also for goods of quality and merit. [34 G. A., ch. 156, § 3.]

SEC. 3138-c3. Use of trade-mark without permission—penalty. No person, firm or corporation shall use the said label or trade-mark or advertise the same, or attach, or stamp the same upon any article or product except under permission obtained in accordance with the provisions of this act. Any person or persons who shall use the said label or trade-mark except as herein authorized shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. [34 G. A., ch. 156, § 4.]

SEC. 3138-c4. Moneys collected—how expended. All moneys collected by the said association under the provisions of this act shall be expended by the said association in advertising and promoting the sale of Iowa-made goods bearing the said label or trade-mark in the state of Iowa. [34 G. A., ch. 156, § 5.]

SEC. 3138-c5. "Manufacturer" defined. Where the word "manufacturer" is used in this act it shall be construed to mean any person, firm, or corporation engaged in manufacturing in the state of Iowa. [34 G. A., ch. 156, § 6.]

TITLE XVI.

OF THE DOMESTIC RELATIONS.

CHAPTER 1.

OF MARRIAGE.

SECTION 3139. Contract.

No particular form or ceremony is necessary. All that is required is that the minds of the parties meet in mutual consent; but neither the intention to marry nor consent to such marriage can be inferred from cohabitation alone. Brisbin v. Huntington, 128–166, 103 N. W. 144.

A mere contract to marry does not constitute even a common-law marriage. The present agreement to be husband and wife must be followed by cohabitation as such. A written contract of marriage for the purpose of avoiding prosecution for illicit relations is not sufficient to constitute a marriage. Pegg v. Pegg, 138–572, 115 N. W. 1027.

If for any reason one or both of the parties to a marriage be incapable of giving the consent necessary to constitute a contract, the marriage is invalid, although in the interests of good order the courts are authorized to assume jurisdiction to decree an annulment. But such annulment is not necessary to preserve to the parties to such marriage all the rights of unmarried persons. Floyd County v. Wolfe, 138–749, 117 N. W. 32.

While cohabitation and the reputed relation of husband and wife may be shown as tending to give color to the relation of the parties and the recognition each by the other of the existence of a marriage between them, the fundamental question in determining whether such relation constitutes a common-law marriage is whether the minds of the parties have met in mutual consent to the status of marriage. Neither such intent nor consent can be inferred from cohabitation alone, and reputation is of no significance save as it has a bearing on the question of intent. In re Boyington's Estate, Jones v. Williams, 157– —, 137 N. W. 949.

A divided reputation in this respect has no probative force. Ibid.

Where cohabitation is in its beginning illicit, affirmative proof of a subsequent present intention to change that relation into the legitimate relation of husband and wife is essential to establish a common-law marriage. Ibid.

In law, marriage is a civil contract requiring the consent of parties capable of entering into other contracts, except as otherwise declared. The law of marriage, in so far as property interests are concerned, is founded on business principles in which the utmost good faith is required from all parties and the least fraud in connection therewith is the subject of judicial cognizance. Beach v. Beach, 141 N. W. 921.

A woman who is deceived into entering into a void marriage with a man already married may maintain an action against him for such deceit. Ibid.

But in an action brought by a married woman against the mother of her husband for fraudulent representations made before marriage as to his financial ability and his ownership of specific lands, held that it was error to give to the plaintiff the full one third of the market value of the land which had been falsely and fraudulently represented as belonging to him. Ibid.

The intent with which the misrepresentations are made being the material element in such a case, the defendant should be permitted to testify as to such intent. Ibid.

SEC. 3141. License—consent of parent. Previous to the solemnization of any marriage, a license for that purpose must be obtained from the clerk of the district court of the county wherein the marriage is to be solemnized. Such license must not be granted in any case where either party is under the age necessary to render the marriage valid, nor where either party is a minor, without the previous consent of the parents, or the survivor if one be dead, or the guardian of such minor if both parents are dead, nor where either party is disqualified from making any other civil contract, nor where the parties are first cousins. [33 G. A., ch. 196, § 1.] [C. '73, §§ 2187–8; R. §§ 2517–18; C. '51, §§ 1465–6.]

SEC. 3145. Who may solemnize.

Although the mayor of a city may not have the authority to perform the marriage ceremony outside the limits of his jurisdiction, a marriage solemnized by him with the consent of the parties beyond his jurisdiction is valid under code §3147. State v. McKay, 122–658, 98 N. W. 510.

A mere contract of marriage no matter how formal does not in itself constitute the solemnization of marriage. Pegg v. Pegg, 138–572, 115 N. W. 1027.

SEC. 3146. Certificate—return—record. After the marriage has been solemnized, the officiating minister or magistrate shall give each of the parties a certificate, and make return thereof within fifteen days to the clerk of the district court, who shall record the same in the book required to be kept in the chapter relating to the state board of health. [35 G. A., ch. 269, § 1.] [C. '73, §§ 2194, 2197; R. §§ 2525, 2528; C. '51, §§ 1473, 1476.]

The law will presume a legal marriage in the absence of other evidence where it is shown that the parties have held themselves out to the world as husband and wife and have lived and cohabited together as such. State v. Rocker, 130–239, 106 N. W. 645.

When the relation is once shown to exist it will be presumed to have continued in the absence of evidence of a dissolution by death or divorce. Ibid.

Record evidence of marriage is not necessary, and it may be proved by any kind of evidence, whether direct or circumstantial. Casley v. Mitchell, 121–96, 96 N. W. 725.

A parish register is competent evidence of a marriage. Ibid.

Proof of the last marriage alone makes out a prima-facie case as to its validity, and to overcome such prima-facie case proof of a former marriage is required, and also evidence from which it may be concluded that it had not been dissolved by death or divorce. In re Estate of Colton, 129–542, 105 N. W. 1008.

SEC. 3147. Forfeiture. Marriages solemnized, with the consent of parties, in any other manner than as herein prescribed, are valid; but the parties thereto, and all persons aiding or abetting them, shall forfeit to the school fund the sum of fifty dollars each; but this shall not apply to the person conducting the marriage ceremony, if within fifteen days thereafter he makes the required return to the clerk of the district court. [35 G. A., ch. 269, § 2.] [C. '73, §§ 2195–6; R. §§ 2526–7; C. '51, §§ 1474–5.]

A marriage solemnized by one of the officers named in code § 3145, but outside of his jurisdiction, will be valid under the provisions of this section. State v. McKay, 122–658, 98 N. W. 510.

SEC. 3150. Issue legitimatized.

Only by the subsequent marriage of the parents can an illegitimate child ever become legitimate. Such recognition of an illegitimate child as will enable him to inherit does not render him legitimate. Brisbin v. Huntington, 128–166, 103 N. W. 144.

SEC. 3151. Void marriages.

Cohabitation and repute, continuing after a prior husband is presumed by the length of his absence to be dead, constitute evidence of a lawful marriage. Smith v. Fuller, 138–91, 115 N. W. 912.

As to whether this section is applicable to the marriage in this state of a person who is prohibited by the statute of another state from remarrying on account of a decree of divorce, held that continuance in cohabitation under such marriage in this state after the expiration of the period of prohibition under the laws of the other state rendered the marriage valid. Lee v. Lee, 150–611, 130 N. W. 128.

CHAPTER 2.

OF HUSBAND AND WIFE.

SECTION 3153. Property rights of married women.

Although the family resides on premises owned by the wife and occupied as a homestead, the husband is presumed to be the head of the family. Burch v. Lowary, 131–719, 109 N. W. 282.

Property not specifically mentioned in a decree for divorce remains the property of the spouse to whom it previously belonged. Cole v. Cole, 139–609, 117 N. W. 988.

A married woman has full power to dispose of her separate estate by gift, sale or will. Vosburg v. Mallory, 155–165, 135 N. W. 577.

SEC. 3154. Interest of either spouse in other's property.

Husband and wife cannot enter into written contracts with each other in reference to the disposition of their property unless in pursuance of and in accordance with a valid contract entered into before marriage. Frazer v. Andrews, 134–621, 112 N. W. 92.

The contingent interest of the wife in her husband's property cannot be made the subject of contract as between them. Sharff v. Hayes, 132–609, 110 N. W. 24.

A contract by the husband to pay the wife a consideration for joining in a conveyance to cut off her dower right is invalid in view of the provisions of this section. Miller v. Miller, 104–186, 73 N. W. 484.

A contract between the wife and the husband for the payment to the wife of a share of the proceeds of property sold, on condition that she will join in the conveyance of the property for the purpose of releasing her dower interest, is not valid. Garner v. Fry, 104–515, 73 N. W. 1079.

But if a portion of the proceeds is immediately given to the wife it will be valid as a gift and may be afterward properly treated as her property. Ibid.

Either party may elect whether he or she will join in a conveyance, but cannot use the right for purposes of speculation or oppression. Ibid.

A contract between husband and wife as to the interest of the husband in the wife's property on her decease, is invalid, not only as to real property, but also as to personalty. Poole v. Burnham, 105–620, 75 N. W. 474.

Such contract is invalid as to property subsequently acquired. Ibid.

While the wife cannot convey her contingent right of dower to her husband, she may by quitclaim to her husband's grantee cut off her contingent rights in the property. Fowler v. Chadima, 134–210, 111 N. W. 808.

A power of attorney given by a wife to her husband, authorizing him to relinquish her right of dower in the husband's real property, is of no validity. Sawyer v. Biggart, 114–489, 87 N. W. 426.

Nor will the wife be bound by ratification of a conveyance to which her name is signed by the husband under such power of attorney. Ibid.

The provision that neither husband nor wife has such an interest in the property of the other that it can be the subject of contract between them is in effect a statute of descent and distribution, and an agreement of the wife upon separation to release for a consideration all interest in her husband's property is void, and will not preclude her from claiming her distributive share, although the agreement, made in another jurisdiction, was valid and enforceable where made. Caruth v. Caruth, 128–121, 103 N. W. 103.

This provision renders any contract invalid by which the wife releases to the husband her interest in his land, but it has no application to a property interest which husband or wife may have in the land of the other based upon contracts with third persons, or derived from sources other than the marriage relation. Baird v. Connell, 121–278, 96 N. W. 863.

Separation agreements are generally regarded as invalid so far as they relate to the future; but they have often been recognized and enforced so far as they relate to maintenance or other collateral engagements. Ibid.

An agreement of separation will be considered as rescinded if the parties afterwards cohabit as husband and wife; but such an agreement is only thus rescinded in so far as the consideration therefor consists in the arrangement that they shall live apart; there may be other conditions based on independent considerations which are not annulled by the resumption of conjugal relations. Ibid.

A contract between husband and wife as to the interest which the wife shall have in the husband's property, made in consideration of the abandonment by the wife of meritorious proceedings for divorce and the resumption of marital relations, is valid. Fisher v. Koontz, 110–498, 80 N. W. 551.

An antenuptial contract by which the prospective wife's inchoate distributive share in the husband's estate is surrendered will be valid. Therefore a postnuptial contract between the husband and wife with reference to the effect which shall be given to such antenuptial contract as to the interest which the wife shall acquire in the husband's property is valid. Ibid.

The courts will rigidly scrutinize a contract apparently unjust or unreasonable in its terms, and especially where it operates to deprive a wife of her interest in the husband's estate without provision for her in the event she survive him. In such a case the burden is upon the husband or those representing him to show that the contract was fairly procured in order to have it upheld. Ibid.

A contract between husband and wife in settlement of a suit for separate maintenance, by which she relinquishes all claims to his estate, except as provided for in such contract, is not effectual to defeat the wife's contingent right of dower in the husband's property subsequently conveyed. Newberry v. Newberry, 114–704, 87 N. W. 658.

This section prohibits the making of an interest which one spouse has in the land of the other the subject of contract between them, but they may contract with reference to an interest owned by one in the land of the other which does not grow out of the marital relation. Pieper v. Pieper, 145–373, 124 N. W. 181.

Husband and wife may freely deal with each other concerning the property of each, although the real or remote result of their dealing may be the loss of an inchoate right. Baker v. Syfritt, 147–49, 125 N. W. 998.

This statutory provision simply denies either husband or wife the right to contract with the other with regard to the dower interest which each has in the other's property; but where husband and wife living apart had made a division of their property by the execution of blank deeds relinquishing dower, held that each was estopped to assert title as against the grantee of the dower interest of the other. Manatt v. Griffith, 147–707, 124 N. W. 753.

A contract between a husband and wife evidently made for the purpose of depriving the wife of her distributive share is not valid. Pickler v. Wise, 152–644, 132 N. W. 815.

This section relates to descent and distribution, and a contract between husband and wife with reference to her interest in his estate is of no validity. The provision is not limited to contracts which are without consideration. In re Estate of Kennedy, 154–460, 135 N. W. 53.

The language of the legalizing act, 29 G. A., ch. 237, validating conveyances wherein the husband or wife has conveyed or contracted to convey the inchoate right of the other spouse, acting as attorney in fact by virtue of a power of attorney executed by each spouse, did not validate a conveyance in which one spouse acted under power of attorney executed by the other spouse who had attempted to authorize such conveyance. The legalizing act relates to a joint instrument purporting to involve mutual benefits and obligations. Swartz v. Andrews, 137–261, 114 N. W. 888.

SEC. 3155. Remedy by one against the other.

An agreement by the husband for a consideration proceeding from his wife's parents that he would reimburse the wife to the extent of the money and property which were advanced to him by her parents, gives to the wife a valid claim against her husband in satisfaction of which he may transfer property to her free from claims of his creditors. Clark v. Ford, 126–460, 102 N. W. 421.

A wife may maintain an action against her husband on a note for money loaned by her to him out of her separate estate. In re Estate of Deaner, 126–701, 102 N. W. 825.

The time within which such an action may be maintained by the wife is governed by the general provisions of the statute of limitations. Ibid.

The money thus received by the husband cannot be regarded as held by him in trust in the absence of a showing of such agreement on his part. Ibid.

A contract by the husband and wife by which it is agreed that the wife shall have a one-half interest in all property, real and personal, thereafter coming into their possession in consideration for money advanced to the husband from the wife's separate estate, may be enforced by her. McElhaney v. McElhaney, 125–279, 101 N. W. 90.

The legal fiction of the oneness of husband and wife has not been entirely effaced. All disabilities which the common law imposed upon husband and wife by reason of the marriage status still exist, except in so far as they have been modified or changed by express statutory enactment. Heacock v. Heacock, 108–540, 79 N. W. 353.

Therefore, held that a wife cannot sue a husband on his personal contract made during coverture. Ibid.

As express authority is given for a suit by the wife against her husband to recover her property, or any right growing out of the same, she might sue her husband with reference to property rights arising out of a partnership entered into between them. Hoaglin v. Henderson, 119–720, 94 N. W. 247.

Even before the enactment of the code of 1873, the wife had the right to sue her husband for a debt due to her. Rice v. Crozier, 139–629, 117 N. W. 984.

SEC. 3156. Husband not liable for wife's torts.

In an action against the parents of the husband for alienation of his affections, held that the father was not liable for improper influence exercised by the mother although it was in the father's presence and not objected to by him. Heisler v. Heisler, 151–503, 131 N. W. 676.

SEC. 3157. Conveyances to each other valid.

A postnuptial contract with reference to the wife's inchoate distributive share of the husband's estate which she would have been entitled to but for an antenuptial contract releasing such interest, may be valid. The hands of the husband and wife are not to be tied up forever by an understanding entered into before learning fully of the mutual trust and confidence engendered by and essential to well-being in the marriage relation. Fisher v. Koontz, 110–498, 80 N. W. 551.

A conveyance, transfer or lien executed by either husband or wife to or in favor of the other, is valid as to any interest which the one may have in the property of the other based upon contracts with third persons or derived from sources other than the marriage relation. Baird v. Connell, 121–278, 96 N. W. 863.

Conveyances between husband and wife will be valid, although the premises constitute the homestead, notwithstanding the general provisions of code § 2974 requiring that both join in a conveyance or incumbrance of the homestead. Beedy v. Finney, 118–276, 91 N. W. 1069.

The mere relationship of husband and wife is not enough to raise a presumption of undue influence in a conveyance of property by the one to the other. Stiles v. Breed, 151–86, 130 N. W. 376.

The wife cannot by conveyance to her husband extinguish her contingent right of dower in his property. See notes in this supplement to code § 3154.

SEC. 3161. Attorney in fact.

The wife cannot give the husband a power of attorney to dispose of her contingent dower interest in his property. Sawyer v. Biggart, 114–489, 87 N. W. 426.

And see notes in this supplement to code § 3154.

SEC. 3162. Wages of wife—actions by.

In an action by a married woman for damages resulting from personal injuries, no recovery should be allowed for her loss of time in the absence of evidence that she had any business or employment apart from her husband. Denton v. Ordway, 108–487, 79 N. W. 271.

The husband is entitled to the services and earnings of his wife when she is not engaged in business on her own account, and in such case she cannot recover in her own name under implied contract for services rendered to a third person in furnishing him board and lodging. McClintic v. McClintic, 111–615, 82 N. W. 1017.

But she may recover for board furnished under an express contract. Lindsey v. Lindsey, 116–480, 89 N. W. 1096.

Where by consent of the husband the wife keeps boarders on her own account and receives the board money and invests the fund thus accumulated in property in her own name, such property is exempt from any claim on the part of her husband's creditors. Ehlers v. Blumer, 129–168, 105 N. W. 406.

The husband may recover for services rendered by the wife to a third person where it does not appear that the wife rendered such services under any contract of her own or in pursuance of a separate calling. Broughton v. Nicholson, 150–119, 129 N. W. 814.

The earnings of the wife made in connection with her husband's property where she has no separate property and is not conducting an independent business, presumptively belong to her husband. Alexander v. Crosby, 150–239, 129 N. W. 959.

In an action by the husband as administrator of his deceased wife's estate for damages to such estate resulting from negligence causing her death, proof that the deceased wife was in any way engaged in an independent employment is sufficient to make out a case for the jury. Myers v. Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co., 152–330, 131 N. W. 770.

SEC. 3163. Liability for separate debts.

An attorney acting for the wife in the institution of divorce proceedings in which separate maintenance is asked and in which the husband interposes a cross bill for a divorce, may, on the dismissal of the proceedings, recover fees for his services from the husband if it appears that the services performed were necessary for the protection of the wife in the defense of her good name and reputation. Read v. Dickinson, 151–369, 130 N. W. 160.

And see notes to code § 3180 in this supplement.

SEC. 3164. Contracts of wife.

A husband may contribute by his labor and sagacity to the accumulation of property in the name of his wife, without rendering such property subject to his debts. Deere v. Bonne, 108–281, 79 N. W. 59.

This provision as to suits by or against a wife on contracts made by or with her has reference to contracts with persons other than her husband, and does not authorize a suit by a wife against the husband on a contract entered into between them during coverture, not relating to her separate property. Heacock v. Heacock, 108–540, 79 N. W. 353.

Common-law rules with reference to the oneness of husband and wife still so far exist that any capacity of a married woman to contract is regarded as exceptional, and the grounds therefor must be both alleged and proved by one seeking to recover. Ibid.

The wife, although not engaged in an occupation independent of her husband, may contract for furnishing board and maintain an action in her own name on such contract. Lindsey v. Lindsey, 116–480, 89 N. W. 1096.

A married woman having authority in this state to acquire, own and dispose of property and to make contracts and incur liabilities, may enter into a valid contract of partnership with her husband. Hoaglin v. Henderson, 119–720, 94 N. W. 247.

The keeping of boarders may be an independent occupation in which a married woman may engage on her own account. Bartholomew v. Adams, 143–354, 121 N. W. 1026.

SEC. 3165. Family expenses.

That the law as it appears in section thirty-one hundred sixty-five of the code be and the same is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"The reasonable and necessary expenses of the family and the education of the children are chargeable upon the property of both husband and wife, or either of them, and in relation thereto they may be sued jointly or separately." [35 G. A., ch. 271, § 1.] [C. '73, § 2214; R. § 2507; C. '51, § 1455.]

A diamond shirt stud worn by the husband for personal use and adornment is an expense of the family for which the wife may be liable. Neasham v. McNair, 103–695, 72 N. W. 773.

The cost of feed for a horse used by the husband in his business and not by the family does not constitute a family expense chargeable to the wife. Generally speaking, the thing for which the expense is incurred which may be charged to the wife must be used or kept for use in the family. Martin v. Vertres, 130–175, 106 N. W. 516.

The wife does not become liable under this section for the support of her husband in an insane hospital, under the provisions of code § 2297. Blackhawk County v. Scott, 111–190, 82 N. W. 492.

A creditor who has obtained judgment against the husband for family expenses may, in an equitable action, subject the property of the wife to the payment thereof without first recovering judgment at law against her. Boss v. Jordan, 118–204, 89 N. W. 1070, 92 N. W. 111.

In a suit to subject the property of the wife to the payment of a judgment against her husband for family expenses, the rights of one who purchased such property after the suit may be declared subject to plaintiff's claim. Ibid.

A note given by the husband for family expenses is not conclusive on the wife, either as to the existence of the debt or as to the amount thereof. The husband may as against the wife extend the time of payment or change the form of indebtedness, but cannot create as binding on the wife an indebtedness which does not exist. McCartney & Sons Co. v. Carter, 129–20, 105 N. W. 339.

Where the husband drives the wife from the home in which she has an equal right of possession with him, he impliedly obligates himself to pay for her support regardless of the cause of such expulsion. Baker v. Oughton, 130–35, 106 N. W. 272.

The wife is not chargeable with the expense of her husband's board while absent from the family home in contemplation of separation. Vose v. Myott, 141–506, 120 N. W. 58.

Aside from a question of family expense, as such, the wife is under no legal liability for her husband's support. Ibid.

The only criterion which the statute furnishes is that the account must be for items of goods furnished for and on account of the family. No limitation is put on the expense and it need not appear that it be for "necessaries." McDaniels v. McClure, 142–370, 120 N. W. 1031.

The expense for hospital and medical attendance on account of the sickness of either husband or wife constitutes a family expense. In re Estate of Skillman, 146–601, 125 N. W. 343.

The purchase of intoxicating liquors, unless it may be for strictly medicinal purposes, does not constitute a family expense although they are used by both husband and wife. O'Neil v. Cardina, 140 N. W. 196.

Neither husband nor wife is liable for the debts or liabilities of the other except as provided in this section. Indebtedness here provided for constitutes an obligation of both. In re Adams' Estate, 140 N. W. 872.

SEC. 3166. Removal from homestead—custody of children.

The wife is entitled to necessaries after being driven from the home by her husband, regardless of the cause of the expulsion. Baker v. Oughton, 130–35, 106 N. W. 272.

When the husband seeks to secure the return of his wife after she has left home on the ground of alleged improper conduct, the offer of reconciliation must be unconditional. Ibid.

SEC. 3167. Insanity of either spouse—conveyance of property. That section thirty-one hundred sixty-seven of the code be and the same is hereby repealed and there is hereby enacted in lieu thereof the following:

"Where either the husband or wife is insane and incapable of executing a deed or mortgage relinquishing, conveying or incumbering his or her right to the real property of the other, the other may petition the district court of the county of his or her residence or the county where the real estate to be conveyed or incumbered is situated, setting forth the facts and praying for an order authorizing the applicant or some other person to execute a deed or mortgage and relinquish or incumber the interest of the insane person in said real estate." [30 G. A., ch. 119, § 1; C. '73, § 2216; R. § 1500.]

SEC. 3169. Decree. That section thirty-one hundred sixty-nine of the code be and the same is hereby repealed and there is hereby enacted in lieu thereof the following:

"Upon the hearing of the petition the court, if satisfied that it is made in good faith by the petitioner and he is a proper person to exercise the power and make the conveyance or mortgage and it is necessary and proper, shall enter a decree authorizing the execution of the conveyance or mortgage for and in the name of such husband or wife by such person as the court may appoint." [30 G. A., ch. 119, § 2; C. '73, § 2218; R. § 1502.]

CHAPTER 3.

OF DIVORCE, ANNULLING MARRIAGES AND ALIMONY.

SECTION 3171. Jurisdiction.

Where a decree of divorce was rendered on a notice by publication which gave the name of defendant with a spelling not the same, nor indicating the same pronunciation as that of defendant's true name, held that there was no presumption in favor of the validity of such decree. Hubner v. Reickhoff, 103–368, 72 N. W. 540.

Mere length of time during which a person has lived in a particular locality is not controlling in determining the length of residence. Intention is the controlling consideration. Sylvester v. Sylvester, 109–401, 80 N. W. 547.

The general rule that the domicile of the husband is the domicile of the wife does not apply in proceedings for divorce. Ibid.

A decree procured by one not in good faith a resident of this state is of no validity. Lawrence v. Nelson, 113–277, 85 N. W. 84.

A proceeding for divorce so far as it affects the marital status of the parties is quasi in rem so that the decree is valid on service by publication. But as to alimony and the costs such a proceeding is in personam and not binding on the defendant who has not appeared nor been served with process in the state and has no property therein. Rea v. Rea, 123–241, 98 N. W. 787; Johnson v. Matthews, 124–255, 99 N. W. 1064.

A decree of divorce fraudulently obtained as a result of an action brought in a state of which the plaintiff is a nonresident and against a nonresident defendant not served within the jurisdiction and not appearing, is void and subject to collateral attack in any court wherein such pretended adjudication is pleaded. Beeman v. Kitzman, 124–86, 99 N. W. 171.

While proceedings for divorce or claims for alimony are abated by the death of either party, yet one who claims a property interest affected by such decree may question it on the ground of fraud, even after the death of one or both of the parties to the decree. Wood v. Wood, 136–128, 113 N. W. 492.

The provision as to jurisdiction by publication in divorce cases has no application in a proceeding for annulment of a marriage. Bisby v. Mould, 138–15, 115 N. W. 489.

Where the defendant served with notice by publication is actually residing in another state, the sufficiency of such service cannot be defeated by proof of a statement of an intention to return to reside in the state. Lewis v. Lewis, 138–593, 116 N. W. 698.

The court is without jurisdiction unless one of the parties resides in the county; but if the plaintiff is a resident of the county, jurisdiction of the subject matter is conferred on the district court in that county and the statutes relating to its exercise are to be interpreted and construed as others which relate to procedure and the failure of the petition to specify the township of his residence does not defeat the jurisdiction of the court. Gelwicks v. Gelwicks, 142 N. W. 409.

As the jurisdiction of the legislature to grant divorces is denied by the constitution, art. 3, § 27, such jurisdiction is vested generally in the courts. Ibid.

SEC. 3172. Petition.

Whether a decree of divorce rendered on a petition which does not allege that the application is in good faith and for the purpose set forth therein would be void as without jurisdiction, quaere; but such defect in the petition does not render void an order for the payment of temporary alimony. Mengel v. Mengel, 145–737, 120 N. W. 72, 122 N. W. 899.

In the absence of any claim of fraud or collusion, failure of the petition to allege the residence of the parties will not render the decree void, it appearing that defendant was in fact a resident of the county and personally served with notice in response to which there was an appearance in the case. Richardson v. King, 157– —, 135 N. W. 640.

Courts very properly manifest great reluctance in setting aside decrees of divorce after a second marriage of one of the parties has taken place, and will not do so save upon the most satisfactory showing. Ibid.

Neither a suit for a divorce nor to annul a marriage will lie after death of one of the parties. Ibid.

A decree of divorce is not subject to collateral attack for a defect in the proceedings unless it is such as to render the decree absolutely void. Ibid.

Failure of the petition to allege the township of plaintiff's residence is not a jurisdictional defect. Gelwicks v. Gelwicks, 142 N. W. 409.

SEC. 3173. Verification—evidence—hearing.

The court should be prompt to denounce collusion between parties in an action to secure a decree of divorce, but in a particular case held that the evidence did not show such collusion as to authorize the court to refuse to hear a case submitted on petition and cross-petition. Blinn v. Blinn, 113–83, 84 N. W. 957.

The testimony of the complaining party with reference to the grounds of divorce must be corroborated by other evidence. Shors v. Shors, 133–22, 110 N. W. 16.

Where the husband procured a decree of divorce from his wife by fraud, held that after his death the wife might maintain an action to set the decree aside in order to be entitled as his widow to draw a pension from the federal government. Lawrence v. Nelson, 113–277, 85 N. W. 84.

In a case involving property rights, the presumption arising from a pretended marriage will not be sufficient to overthrow the presumption of the continuing validity of a former marriage, in the absence of any other evidence of a divorce. Goodwin v. Goodwin, 113–319, 85 N. W. 31.

A divorce will not be presumed in order to sustain the validity of a subsequent marriage where the evidence affirmatively shows no record of such proceeding in the county in which it should have been instituted, and no grounds therefor. In re Estate of Colton, 129–542, 105 N. W. 1008.

The requirement that the petition be verified is not jurisdictional. Richardson v. King, 157– —, 135 N. W. 640.

SEC. 3174. Causes.

Adultery: A husband cannot have a divorce on account of the adultery of the wife with a third person who has such connection at the instigation of the husband for the purpose of securing evidence with a view to a divorce. May v. May, 108–1, 78 N. W. 703.

Under the evidence in a particular case, held that although the husband had declared his preference for the society of another woman to that of his wife, there was no evidence of illicit relations such as to sustain a divorce on the ground of adultery. Craig v. Craig, 129–192, 105 N. W. 446.

Mere ground of suspicion is not sufficient to justify a divorce on the ground of adultery. Snuoffer v. Snouffer, 150–58, 129 N. W. 326.

A wife who suspects her husband of having adulterous relations may take measures to secure proof of such relations without being guilty of connivance which will defeat her action for divorce on that ground. Engle v. Engle, 153–285, 133 N. W. 654.

As to sufficiency of evidence in particular cases to establish adultery see Bizer v. Bizer, 110–248, 81 N. W. 465; Wells v. Wells, 116–59, 89 N. W. 98.

Desertion: Four elements are essential to constitute such desertion as will be sufficient ground for a divorce: (1) the cessation of the marriage relation; (2) the intent to desert; (3) the continuance of the desertion during the statutory period; and (4) the absence of consent or misconduct of the deserted party. Separation does not constitute desertion unless accompanied with the intent to cease to live together as husband and wife, and on the part of the spouse charged with desertion such intent must be shown to have been wrongful, i. e., in disregard of the marital obligations. Kupka v. Kupka, 132–191, 109 N. W. 610.

The husband cannot accept the departure of his wife from the home as a desertion and demand a divorce on that ground when he refuses to invite her to return, makes no effort to induce her to resume her place in his house and rejects her overtures for reconciliation. Even though she be originally in fault in leaving him, he cannot shut the door against her return and then make her continued absence the ground of a charge of desertion. McElhaney v. McElhaney, 125–333, 101 N. W. 93.

A cessation of intercourse alone will not authorize a divorce. There must be an abandonment of all marital duties and complete separation to constitute desertion under the statute. Pfannebecker v. Pfannebecker, 133–425, 110 N. W. 618.

Under the evidence in a particular case held that desertion as a ground of divorce in an action by the wife against her husband was sufficiently established. Walker v Walker, 127–77, 102 N. W. 435.

Even though at the time the wife abandons her husband she is in such mental condition as to not understand the nature of her act, yet if after recovering consciousness she refuses to return, a desertion is made out. Seeds v. Seeds, 139-717, 117 N. W. 1069.

The party at fault in the original separation desiring to resume proper marital relations within two years so as to prevent the desertion from becoming a statutory ground for divorce must make a good faith offer to return without other conditions than those incident to the proper treatment of each other as husband and wife. The party not in fault need not solicit the return of the other who has left the home without good cause. It is sufficient to make out desertion in such case that such party has not refused an unconditional offer to return. Ibid.

Mere refusal to cohabit while continuing to live with the husband does not constitute desertion. Snouffer v. Snouffer, 150–58, 129 N. W. 326.

A qualified and conditional offer after desertion to resume marital relations does not prevent the allowance of a divorce on the ground of such desertion. Bohanan v. Bohanan, 150–182, 129 N. W. 819.

Where the husband has deserted his wife and remained separated from her for the statutory period, she is entitled to a divorce unless he can show that during such statutory period he endeavored in good faith to secure her return without imposing on such return improper qualifications and conditions. Arment v. Arment, 154–573, 134 N. W. 616.

Where without good cause the wife abandons the husband and remains separated from him for the statutory period, the husband is entitled to a divorce on the ground of desertion. Coffin v. Coffin, 155–574, 136 N. W. 539.

Habitual drunkenness: Occasional acts of intoxication are not sufficient to make one an habitual drunkard. There must be an involuntary tendency to become intoxicated as often as the temptation is presented, which comes from a fixed habit acquired from frequent and excessive indulgence. Bizer v. Bizer, 110–248, 81 N. W. 465.

Cruel and inhuman treatment: Divorce will only be granted on statutory grounds; and cruel and inhuman treatment will be a sufficient ground only where it is such as to endanger life. Whether a particular act or course of mistreatment is cruel and inhuman, and if so whether it is such as to endanger life, must be determined from the facts of each case, such as the temperament, disposition and mental and physical condition of the complaining party. Blair v. Blair, 106–269, 76 N. W. 700.

There may be cruel and inhuman treatment which will be a ground for divorce, although the life of the wife has not been imperiled by physical acts of violence. Berry v. Berry, 115–543, 88 N. W. 1075.

Inhuman treatment which would warrant a divorce must be such as to endanger life, and it must be treatment which has not been provoked or caused by the fault of the complaining party. Shors v. Shors, 133–22, 110 N. W. 16.

Unfounded charges by the husband against the wife of lewdness, unchastity and adultery may constitute such inhuman treatment as to endanger the life, although no physical injury be inflicted. Treatment which affects the mind to such a degree as to destroy health or endanger life is a cause for divorce. Ibid.

Cruelty provoked by the wrongful acts or unreasonable conduct of the wife will not entitle her to a divorce. May v. May, 108–1, 78 N. W. 703.

A divorce on the ground of cruel and inhuman treatment may be granted to the wife on account of conduct of the husband such as would tend to break down her nervous system and permanently impair her health. Shook v. Shook, 114–592, 87 N. W. 680.

Repeated false assertions by a husband in the presence of his family and to others that his wife is unchaste are calculated to impair her health and endanger life and may justify a divorce. Turner v. Turner, 122–113, 97 N. W. 997.

Accusations of infidelity by the wife against the husband do not in themselves constitute such cruel and inhuman treatment as to be likely to impair the health of the husband, and do not therefore constitute grounds for divorce. Pfannebecker v. Pfannebecker, 133–425, 110 N. W. 618.

Statements by the husband to the wife that he has lost his affection for her and prefers another woman to her may constitute such cruel and inhuman treatment as to authorize a divorce. Craig v. Craig, 129–192, 105 N. W. 446.

Where the evidence discloses a long continued course of ill treatment, even though with slight physical violence which would be likely to impair health and imperil the life of the wife, she is entitled to a divorce. Hullinger v. Hullinger, 133–269, 110 N. W. 470.

Incompatibility of temper is no ground for divorce; and while the courts cannot compel husband and wife to live together, they can make it so difficult to obtain a divorce as to encourage another effort at observance of the matrimonial vows. Olson v. Olson, 130–353, 106 N. W. 758.

In determining the existence of cruelty and inhumanity sufficient to justify a divorce of the wife from the husband on that ground, the general treatment accorded the wife by the husband should be considered; and if upon the whole record it appears that the life and health of the wife have been endangered by ill treatment, be it nothing more than abusive, insulting, profane and vulgar language, lack of affection or failure to furnish the necessaries of life, a divorce should be granted. Rader v. Rader, 136–223, 113 N. W. 817.

It is not necessary that blows be struck or that there be physical violence to entitle a wife to a divorce on the ground of cruel and inhuman treatment. Other things are quite as harmful to health and life as bodily assault. Luettjohann v. Luettjohann, 147–286, 126 N. W. 172.

Reprehensible conduct towards the wife seriously affecting her nervous condition and which, if continued, would endanger her life, would be sufficient to support a decree of divorce on the ground of cruel and inhuman treatment. Martin v. Martin, 150–223, 129 N. W. 816.

In view of the fact that the supreme court was not in as good position to weigh the testimony as to cruel and inhuman treatment as was the trial court by reason of the presence of the parties before it, held that it would not interfere with the findings of the lower court granting the divorce. Evans v. Evans, 140 N. W. 801.

As to sufficiency of evidence in particular cases to show such cruel and inhuman treatment as to authorize the granting of a divorce, see Schaffer v. Schaffer, 106–492, 76 N. W. 738; Sylvester v. Sylvester, 109–401, 80 N. W. 547; Wells v. Wells, 116–59, 89 N. W. 98; Luick v. Luick, 132–302, 109 N. W. 783; Caldwell v. Caldwell, 141–192, 119 N. W. 599; Snouffer v. Snouffer, 150–58, 129 N. W. 326; Parsons v. Parsons, 152–68, 131 N. W. 17; Felkner v. Felkner, 153–56, 133 N. W. 341; Coffin v. Coffin, 155–574, 136 N. W. 539; Barr v. Barr, 157–153, 138 N. W. 379; Goeldner v. Goeldner, 139 N. W. 889; Harris v. Harris, 139 N. W. 896.

Condonation: The wife, by continuing to live and cohabit with the husband, condones any previous acts of his which would have entitled her to a divorce. May v. May, 108–1, 78 N. W. 703.

A condonation based on the condition of future good conduct is destroyed as a ground of defense if the improper conduct which has been condoned is subsequently repeated. Shors v. Shors, 133–22, 110 N. W. 16.

Condonation is always conditional on the fact that the party forgiven will thereafter abstain from the commission of like offenses, and when the condition is broken the original cause of complaint revives. Craig v. Craig, 129–192, 105 N. W. 446.

Contract to procure: A contract having for its object the securing of the dissolution of the marriage contract as to one of the parties is against public policy and void, and one who renders services under such a contract cannot recover under quantum meruit. Barngrover v. Pettigrew, 128–533, 104 N. W. 904.

SEC. 3175. Husband from wife.

A husband may obtain a divorce from his wife because of her pregnancy by another before marriage, though the husband had also had intercourse with her before marriage, he having been induced by the wife to believe that her pregnancy had resulted from intercourse with him. Wallace v. Wallace, 137–37, 114 N. W. 527.

But declarations of the wife as to paternity of a child born within wedlock to show such child to be the result of intercourse with another than her husband are not admissible. Ibid.

SEC. 3177. Maintenance during litigation.

The statute does not expressly or by implication provide that temporary alimony shall be allowed only after answer. Hamilton v. Hamilton, 129–628, 106 N. W. 5.

The appearance of the defendant to object to the granting of temporary alimony constitutes an appearance to the action giving the court jurisdiction. Ibid.

After a trial on the merits and a judgment denying plaintiff a divorce, the court has no power to make an allowance to plaintiff of suit money. Wald v. Wald, 124–183, 99 N. W. 720.

A judge as such has no power to allow temporary alimony. The statute expressly limits this power to the court itself. Mengel v. Mengel, 157– —, 138 N. W. 495.

An allowance of suit money for appeal to the supreme court should be made on application to that court, and not by the district court after the case has been appealed. Shors v. Shors, 133–22, 110 N. W. 16.

The defendant should not be deprived of his right to defend the action because of his failure to comply with an order for the payment of temporary alimony, where there is no other showing than that on which the allowance of temporary alimony was made. Hancock v. Hancock, 134–475, 109 N. W. 1009.

The rules as to allowance of suit money are the same in a proceeding for separate maintenance as in a suit for divorce. Ibid.

An attorney's lien does not attach to an allowance for suit money. Hubbard v. Ellithorpe, 135–259, 112 N. W. 796.

The court may award suit money and attorney's fees pending the litigation, but after the petition of the wife for divorce has been dismissed in a trial on the merits, her attorney cannot recover attorney's fees from the husband. Stockman v. Whitmore, 140–378, 118 N. W. 403.

At a subsequent term, after the ruling on a motion as to temporary alimony and suit money, the court may, pending the proceeding, reopen the matter of such allowance on a new motion. Ricard v. Ricard, 143–182, 121 N. W. 525.

The court is acting within its jurisdiction in making an order for temporary alimony, though the petition may be insufficient in its allegations to warrant the granting of the relief asked. Mengel v. Mengel, 145–737, 120 N. W. 72, 122 N. W. 899.

In a proceeding for separate maintenance, there may be an intermediate allowance for suit money and for temporary support. Harlow v. Harlow, 150–173, 129 N. W. 833.

An allowance of temporary alimony will not be set aside on appeal on the ground that pending the appeal the wife to whom a divorce had been granted has remarried. Arment v. Arment, 154–573, 134 N. W. 616.

The court has power to make subsequent changes in an order for temporary alimony. Mengel v. Mengel, 157– —, 138 N. W. 495.

The court has inherent power to make an allowance to a wife of suit money for the purpose of resisting an appeal taken by her husband from an award of temporary alimony. But such allowance should be made in the court to which the appeal is taken. Ibid.

To justify the reversal of an allowance of suit money, it must be shown that the trial court had no power or authority to grant it. Ibid.

In an action for separate maintenance, the allowance of temporary alimony is largely a matter of discretion in the trial court. Eastman v. Eastman, 140 N. W. 400.

Although the court will look to the pleadings to ascertain if a meritorious claim is alleged and require a sufficient showing of facts to indicate that the allegations of the petition are made in apparent good faith, and may also inquire into the financial resources of the respective parties, it will not undertake on a preliminary motion for temporary allowance of separate maintenance and suit money to investigate and pass upon the merits of the controversy. Ibid.

SEC. 3180. Alimony—custody of children—changes.

Allowance of alimony: The court is not limited to a fixed allowance or proportion of the estate of the defendant which shall be given to the injured party as permanent alimony or for separate maintenance; such sum should be allowed by the court as is just in the light of all the facts before it. Goldie v. Goldie, 123–175, 98 N. W. 630, 99 N. W. 707.

An alternative decree giving to the successful plaintiff an option of receiving a lump sum less the aggregate of the sum paid by way of annual payments, on failure or refusal of the defendant to make the annual payments provided for, is not necessarily erroneous. Ibid.

Under our practice the property rights of the husband and wife in the property owned by each are ascertained in a divorce proceeding, and final distribution is made in order that the parties may forever remain independent of each other, and in making the allowance of alimony the court must estimate the property of both parties and adjudicate the claims that each has against the other. But the interests of either in the property of the other depending not on the marriage relation, but on contracts with third persons, or acquisition from sources other than the marriage relation are not necessarily involved. Baird v. Connell, 121–278, 96 N. W. 863.

Where a divorce was granted to the wife, held that, although under the circumstances a provision for alimony to the husband was not improper, the amount of such allowance was excessive. McDonald v. McDonald, 117–307, 90 N. W. 603.

On appeal from allowance of alimony it will be presumed that the appellant was guilty of misconduct justifying the decree of divorce, no appeal having been taken. Graves v. Graves, 138–17, 115 N. W. 488.

An agreement as to the amount of alimony, procured through imposition, and providing for a grossly inadequate allowance, will be disregarded. Parsons v. Parsons, 152–68, 131 N. W. 17.

In a particular case held that the wife to whom a divorce is granted should be allowed by way of alimony one half of the property accumulated by her husband and herself during their marriage relation. Vey v. Vey, 150–166, 129 N. W. 801.

Even where the wife is granted a decree of divorce from her husband and shows a meritorious claim for alimony, it is not proper to award her alimony in such measure as to dissipate practically the entire estate of the husband not accumulated by their joint efforts. Daly v. Daly, 154–486, 131 N. W. 758.

Where both husband and wife had by their labors contributed to the acquisition of property, title to which was in common, held that an allowance to the wife on divorce of substantially half the property in value with a further allowance for the support of the children was reasonable. Hartl v. Hartl, 155–329, 135 N. W. 1007.

Provisions as to alimony in particular cases sustained. Casey v. Casey, 116–655, 88 N. W. 937; Halley v. Halley, 130–683, 107 N. W. 807; Luick v. Luick, 132–302, 109 N. W. 783.

As to amount of alimony proper under the facts of particular cases, see Martin v. Martin, 150–223, 129 N. W. 816; Arment v. Arment, 154–573, 134 N. W. 616; Evans v. Evans, 140 N. W. 801.

Separate maintenance: A suit for separate maintenance cannot be sustained except for a cause which would warrant a decree of divorce. Shors v. Shors, 133–22, 110 N. W. 16.

While as a general rule a decree for separate maintenance will not be granted to a wife unless the husband's conduct has been such as to justify a divorce, it is also true that when a husband deserts or abandons his wife without just cause, he may be compelled to support her although the full period of two years necessary to secure a divorce has not elapsed. Russell v. Russell, 150–137, 129 N. W. 835; Harlow v. Harlow, 150–173, 129 N. W. 833.

Attorney's fees: In a decree for a divorce allowing the recovery of a specific sum against the defendant by way of alimony, the defendant appealing may be required in the supreme court on affirmance of decree to pay an additional sum by way of attorney's fees in the supreme court. Goldie v. Goldie, 123–175, 98 N. W. 630, 99 N. W. 707.

In an action for divorce by the wife in which alimony is allowed to her, the money or property thus given is subject to the lien of her attorney for fees. Hubbard v. Ellithorpe, 135–259, 112 N. W. 796.

In such case the wife cannot defeat the lien of her attorneys on an allegation of their negligence in not securing larger allowance in her favor, without showing such negligence on their part as would release her from primary liability to them for the payment of their fees. Ibid.

A contract with reference to procuring a divorce, or to facilitate its procurement, is void as against public policy; and where an attorney contracted with his client for a lump sum to be paid, out of which alimony for the client's wife was to be satfied by settlement with her and the balance was to be retained by the attorney, held that the contract was invalid. Donaldson v. Eaton, 136–650, 114 N. W. 19.

After the wife's petition for divorce has been dismissed on trial, the attorneys for the wife cannot recover fees for their services from the husband. Stockman v. Whitmore, 140–378, 118 N. W. 403; Gordon v. Brackey, 143–102, 120 N. W. 83.

Where the wife instituted an action for separate maintenance and the husband filed a cross bill for divorce, charging improper conduct, and the entire proceeding was then by agreement dismissed, held that the attorneys for the wife could recover fees from the husband as for necessaries furnished the wife, it appearing that the services were furnished in good faith in defending against the cross bill. Read v. Dickinson, 151–369, 130 N. W. 160.

Allowance of alimony in a particular case held not excessive; but in view of the allowance of attorney's fees by the trial court, held that under the circumstances no additional allowance on appeal would be made. Barr v. Barr, 157–153, 138 N. W. 379.

Custody and support of children: Where the wife, suing for divorce and alimony, was denied divorce but given the custody of a child and an allowance for its support, held that such allowance was without authority, as there appeared to be no reason why the child should not remain with and receive support from the father. Garrett v. Garrett, 114–439, 87 N. W. 282.

Where the wife, suing for divorce, is given the custody of the children it is not improper to award such alimony as will enable her to properly clothe, maintain and educate them. Walker v. Walker, 127–77, 102 N. W. 435.

In determining the reasonableness of a decree providing that the divorced husband may have the custody of the child only at stated periods, and with their consent, it is proper to take into account their dislike for the father. Hullinger v. Hullinger, 133–269, 110 N. W. 470.

Upon a divorce the custody of the children will be given to the mother when she is not the offending party and upon a showing that she is able to furnish them with a comfortable home, support and education. Caldwell v. Caldwell, 141–192, 119 N. W. 599.

Where by decree of divorce, the mother was awarded the custody of a child and the father prohibited from visiting such child except on payment of costs of the proceeding and the allowance for the child's support, held that the father failing to comply with the conditions could not recover damages against the parent of the mother with whom she resided for maliciously denying him the privilege of attending the child's funeral. Rader v. Davis, 154–306, 134 N. W. 849.

Effect of decree: A divorce and decree of alimony against the father does not terminate his obligation as a parent to further contribute to the support of his child. Foote v. De Poy, 126–366, 102 N. W. 112.

Where the wife was induced to go to a foreign country to visit relatives for the purpose of enabling the husband fraudulently to obtain a divorce against her by default, held that a court of equity had jurisdiction to set aside such divorce as fraudulently procured. Tollefson v. Tollefson, 137–151, 114 N. W. 631.

Where it was provided in a decree of divorce that a portion of the proceeds to be derived from an action by the husband for personal injury should be paid to the wife when the recovery should be secured, of which decree the defendant in the action had notice, held that such defendant could not, by settlement, relieve himself from the lien provided for in the decree. Kithcart v. Kithcart, 145–549, 124 N. W. 305.

The property rights of both parties are settled and adjudged by the decree in the divorce proceeding, and the party to whom the homestead is awarded by the decree has a continuing right of homestead under the provisions of code § 2973. Roberts v. Playle, 150–279, 129 N. W. 945.

Subsequent change: A decree requiring the defendant to contribute to the support of the minor children, the custody of whom is awarded to the plaintiff, may be modified so as to require a larger payment on a showing of increased financial ability of the defendant and increased necessities in support of the children on the part of the plaintiff. Ostheimer v. Ostheimer, 125–523, 101 N. W. 275.

The original decree is conclusive upon the parties as to their then circumstances, and the power to make changes in the decree is not a power to grant a new trial, or retry the same case, but only to adapt the decree to the newer circumstances of the parties. Ferguson v. Ferguson, 111–158, 82 N. W. 490.

The original decree is conclusive upon the parties upon the facts and circumstances then existing or which might have been proved. Fraud and false swearing in procuring the original decree is not sufficient ground for modification thereof, there being no evidence of change in the conditions or circumstances affecting the parties, unless the fraud be such as to require the setting aside of the original decree on that ground. Graves v. Graves, 132–199, 109 N. W. 707.

An order respecting the custody of children made in a decree of divorce is conclusive until it is subsequently made to appear that by reason of some changed circumstances or conditions the enforcement of the order would result in positive wrong or injustice. Crockett v. Crockett, 132–388, 106 N. W. 944.

The decree as to custody of children cannot be changed in the absence of a showing of circumstances making a change expedient. Youde v. Youde, 136–719, 114 N. W. 190.

While it is proper for a court to recognize stipulations of the parties as to alimony and custody of the children, it is not deprived of jurisdiction to modify the decree on proof of a substantial change of the conditions. Slattery v. Slattery, 139–419, 116 N. W. 608.

Where the custody of a child was awarded to the father as plaintiff, held that the change of circumstances of the mother as defendant, rendering her better able to care for the child, such change being principally in the fact that she had remarried, was not such as to require a modification of the decree. Daniels v. Daniels, 145–422, 124 N. W. 169.

Where a divorce has been granted and custody of a child awarded with alimony, such decree is final as to the alimony to be paid so long as the circumstances remain the same, and a supplemental proceeding for additional alimony cannot be maintained without showing a change of circumstances requiring an additional allowance. But held in a particular case that there had been such change of circumstances in the case of the wife to whom custody of the child and alimony had been awarded as to justify the allowance of additional alimony. Peitzman v. Peitzman, 147–704, 125 N. W. 218.

Generally speaking there can be modification of the provisions of the decree only where there has been a change in the circumstances or conditions of the parties. Lindquist v. Lindquist, 148–259, 126 N. W. 1109.

The alimony allowed where custody of the children is awarded to the successful party will be presumed to have been fixed with reference to the obligation thus assumed to support such children, and a change in the provisions of the decree in this respect will not be granted save on a showing of a change in the conditions existing at the time the decree was rendered. Kinney v. Kinney, 150–225, 129 N. W. 826.

A valid remarriage of one of the divorced parties does not constitute such change of circumstances as to authorize a modification of the decree as to the custody of the child. Dudley v. Dudley, 151–142, 130 N. W. 785.

Where the decree awards custody of children to the plaintiff and provides for periodical payments of alimony, the subsequent maturity of the children and inability of the defendant to longer make payments of the alimony adjudged may warrant a modification of the decree. Holm v. Holm, 151–159, 130 N. W. 912.

Setting aside decree: Where it appears that the testimony on which a decree for alimony in a proceeding for divorce, rendered on service by publication, was false and untrue, the decree should be set aside. Klaes v. Klaes, 103–689, 72 N. W. 777.

And held that an attorney who was to receive a share of the judgment in such a case for his services was not an innocent purchaser of property awarded to the plaintiff in such a decree except to the extent to which he had actually made advances of money for expenses. Ibid.

Enforcement: The wife, suing for divorce, may resort to proper proceedings to subject to the payment of her alimony property of the husband in which she has inchoate right of dower and to prevent a conveyance by him in fraud of her rights. Walker v. Walker, 127–77, 102 N. W. 435.

Defendant a nonresident: Where alimony has been granted in a suit for a divorce against a nonresident, an ex parte divorce fraudulently obtained by such nonresident in another jurisdiction will not bar the alimony awarded. Goldie v. Goldie, 123–175, 98 N. W. 630, 99 N. W. 707.

On service by publication: While a decree for alimony in a divorce proceeding where service is by publication only is not binding on defendant as a personal judgment, it may be enforced as to his property within the state. Rea v. Rea, 123–241, 98 N. W. 787.

As to a nonresident without property in this state served by publication and not appearing, a judgment for alimony and costs is without validity. Johnson v. Matthews, 124–255, 99 N. W. 1064.

Such a void judgment cannot be vitalized by an order confirming it in a proceeding to subject property of the defendant to the satisfaction thereof. Ibid.

SEC. 3181. Forfeiture of rights. When a divorce is decreed the guilty party forfeits all rights acquired by marriage. In every case in which a divorce is decreed, neither party shall marry again within a year from the date of the filing of said decree unless permission to do so is granted by the court in such decree; provided, however, that nothing herein contained shall prevent the persons divorced from remarrying each other. Any person marrying contrary to the provisions of this act shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and punished accordingly. [32 G. A., ch. 161; C. '73, § 2230; C. '51, § 1486.]

The guilty party forfeits all rights acquired by marriage, and this applies to the contingent dower interest in land conveyed either before or after divorce. Pollock v. Milburn, 112–528, 84 N. W. 521.

The husband against whom a decree of divorce has been granted cannot afterwards maintain an action for alienation of his wife's affections. The right to maintain such action is one "acquired by the marriage." Hamilton v. McNeill, 150–470, 129 N. W. 480.

The decree in such case is conclusive that the husband was at fault, although the defendant in the action was not a party to the proceeding for a divorce. Ibid.

Whether the same rules are applicable in an action for criminal conversation, quaere. Ibid.

The period of one year provided for in the statute is applicable only to those cases where the decree of divorce does not provide otherwise and without deciding the effect of a similar limitation in a divorce granted in another state having a similar statute as applied to the marriage of a person divorced in such state, held that such marriage in this state was not invalid under the provisions of code § 3151. Lee v. Lee, 150–611, 130 N. W. 128.

The statutory provision against the remarriage of a divorced person within a specified limited time is not applicable to a marriage consummated in another state. Dudley v. Dudley, 151–142, 130 N. W. 785.

SEC. 3182. Annulling illegal marriages—causes.

There are no provisions for service by publication in an act to annul a marriage. Bisby v. Mould, 138–15, 115 N. W. 489.

A woman who has procured a decree of annulment of marriage is not entitled to a homestead right under the provisions of code § 2973 relating to persons divorced. Floyd County v. Wolfe, 138–749, 117 N. W. 32.

The relationship between the parties which will render the marriage invalid is defined by code § 4936, prescribing a punishment for incest. And held that under that section a marriage between a man and the daughter of his deceased wife by a former marriage was not invalid. Back v. Back, 148–223, 125 N. W. 1009.

SEC. 3183. Petition.

Under this section the provisions relating to alimony and suit money in divorce cases are applicable in cases for annulment of marriage. Ricard v. Ricard, 143–182, 121 N. W. 525.

SEC. 3187. Alimony.

Temporary alimony and suit money may be awarded in an action for the annulment of a marriage. Ricard v. Ricard, 143–182, 121 N. W. 525.

SEC. 3187-a. Decrees annulling marriages when service by publication—legalized. That all decrees of the courts of this state made and entered of record in actions brought to annul a marriage and in which cases the service of the original notice was made by publication in the manner provided by law for actions for divorce, be and the same are hereby legalized and validated as fully and to the same extent as if the statute at the time such suit was instituted had provided for service of the original notice by publication in the time and manner aforesaid. [35 G. A., ch. 270, § 1.]

CHAPTER 4.

OF MINORS.

SECTION 3188. Majority.

A male becomes an adult at the age of twenty-one years, but the meaning of the term "adult" is to be determined by the laws of the country with reference to which that term is used. Banco De Sonora v. Bankers' Mut. Casualty Co., 124–576, 100 N. W. 532.

Although a minor attains his majority by marriage, nevertheless in a prosecution for sale of liquor to a minor, proof that he had not attained the age of majority is sufficient prima facie to establish such unlawful sale without proof that he had not attained majority by marriage. State v. Mulhern, 130–46, 106 N. W. 267.

SEC. 3189. Contracts—disaffirmance.

A minor may relieve himself from legal liability under his contract by a timely disaffirmance and a return or offer to return of the consideration received, and such disaffirmance relieves him from liability upon a note given by him in connection with such contract, even in the hands of an innocent purchaser. Seeley v. Seeley-Howe-LeVan Co., 128–294, 103 N. W. 961.

Such disaffirmance does not, however, release the obligation of the surety on such contract. Ibid.

The minor may disaffirm before he attains the age of majority, but he is only required by statute to restore the money or property which he has received by virtue of the contract which remains within his control after attaining majority. Beickler v. Guenther, 121–419, 96 N. W. 895.

Where a minor elected to disaffirm a rescission of a contract for the purchase of land which the vendor had disabled himself from performing, held that the minor might recover the market value of the land at the time of such disaffirmance, less the amount owing on the contract of purchase, with interest on the difference. Ibid.

There is a secondary liability of a minor for necessaries furnished to him, such as physicians' services, notwithstanding the primary liability of his parents therefor. Andrews v. Chicago, G. W. R. Co., 129–162, 105 N. W. 404.

A minor is only permitted to contract for necessaries because otherwise he might suffer for want of them, and he is not bound by the terms of an express contract for necessaries, but only for their reasonable value. Therefore the minor may disaffirm an unexecuted contract for necessaries. Wallin v. Highland Park College, 127–131, 102 N. W. 839.

A minor cannot be held liable for breach of promise, but may be held for seduction. Wise v. Schloesser, 111–16, 82 N. W. 439.

Although a minor cannot make a valid contract of marriage, nevertheless a promise of marriage by the defendant, a minor, may be shown in an action to recover damages for seduction. Hawk v. Harris, 112–543, 84 N. W. 664.

SEC. 3190. Misrepresentations—engaging in business.

If a minor engages in business as a merchant, and parties subsequently assume that he is of full age and deal with him in that belief, no inquiry or representation being made as to his minority, he becomes absolutely liable for the debts contracted in such business, and he may be adjudged a bankrupt on his own petition, though still an infant. In re Brice, 93 Fed. 942.

Occasional transaction of business which is usually transacted by an adult does not constitute the engaging in business contemplated by the statute as estopping a minor from disaffirmance of his contracts. Beickler v. Guenther, 121–419, 96 N. W. 895.

A minor is bound by his contracts, regardless of whether he is under guardianship, unless he disaffirms within a reasonable time after having attained his majority. But he cannot disaffirm if, by reason of misrepresentation of his age or having engaged in business as an adult, the other contracting party had good reason to believe him capable of contracting; and the question whether the other party had good reason to believe the minor an adult capable of contracting necessarily must depend on the circumstances of each particular case. First Nat. Bank v. Casey, 138 N. W. 897.

In an action against a minor on a contract where the other party contends that he was misled into contracting with the minor as an adult, the appearance of the minor in regard to maturity is a proper matter for the jury to consider. Ibid.

By interposing the defense during minority, the minor may disaffirm the contract on which he is sued, and need not return the money or property received under the contract if such money or property is not within his control. Ibid.

CHAPTER 5.

OF THE GUARDIANSHIP OF PERSONS AND PROPERTY.

SECTION 3192. Natural guardian.

Natural guardian: Parents are the natural guardians of their minor children, and as such may accept the delivery of deeds made to them where the deeds are beneficial in their nature. Hall v. Cardell, 111–206, 82 N. W. 503.

On the death of the parents, the grandfather or grandmother when next of kin succeeds to the natural guardianship and cannot be deprived of the rights incident thereto by a deed of adoption approved in an ex parte proceeding by the clerk of court on application of a collateral relative. Holmes v. Derrig, 127–625, 103 N. W. 973.

An acceptance by a collateral relative of the custody of the child in pursuance of the request of the deceased parent and a reasonable observance of the duty assumed by such acceptance are circumstances of much weight as between claimants otherwise equal in right as to the custody of the child, but are not in all circumstances controlling factors in the situation. Ibid.

A judgment rendered against a minor without appointment of or defense by a guardian is not void, but at most irregular. Reints v. Engle, 130–726, 107 N. W. 947. And see notes to § 3482.

While the parent is the natural guardian of the person of the minor child, he is not by virtue of that fact, the guardian of the child's property qualified to make defense for him in an action. State v. Stark, 149–749, 129 N. W. 331.

Custody of child: The parent's right to the custody of the child, while recognized and allowed strong weight, is not absolute, and will not be enforced against the serious interest of the child. The child's vital welfare, present and future, is not sacrificed to the parent's claim. Hadley v. Forrest, 112–125, 83 N. W. 822.

The right of the parent to the custody of his child should be denied with much hesitancy, and only upon satisfactory proof of a legal surrender thereof or unequivocal showing that the interest of the child demands such interposition by the court. Dunkin v. Seifert, 123–64, 98 N. W. 558.

The fact that one who has had the custody of a child is better able to give it the comforts and luxuries of life than the father who is surrendering or abandoning his legal right will not be a controlling consideration as against the claim of the father for its custody. Ibid.

While the best interest of the child should always be accepted as a matter of controlling importance in determining the right to its custody, yet this question is a relative one and can never be wholly divorced from the question of the rights and interests of the parents or those standing in loco parentis. The affection for the child of one who has had its custody will not necessarily outweigh other considerations in determining the right to future custody. Miller v. Miller, 123–165, 98 N. W. 631.

The parent may lawfully be deprived of the custody of his minor child and still be liable for its support. Guthrie County v. Conrad, 133–171, 110 N. W. 454.

One who takes and raises a child to which he has no relationship and which he does not adopt does not become liable for medical services rendered to such child without his request. Holmes v. McKim, 109–245, 80 N. W. 329.

The father has the primary right to the guardianship of his minor children as against all persons save the mother, and his right should be sustained by the court as against any other person than the mother claiming such custody, unless he is found to be an unsuitable person and the adverse claimant a suitable person so that the interests of the minor require that the natural and statutory right of the father should be disregarded. Brem v. Swander, 153–669, 132 N. W. 829.

The surviving parent has not the absolute right to the custody of the child as against the best interests of the child. Hall v. Wintermute, 154–520, 134 N. W. 425.

Under the circumstances of a particular case, held that the father of a child was not entitled to its custody as against the rights of the grandparent with whom she had been living separate from the father, and to whom the child had been intrusted, it appearing on the record that the father was at fault with reference to the separation. Ibid.

Where the father and mother are equally entitled to the possession of their minor child, the father does not commit the crime of kidnaping by taking possession of the child from the mother, pending a suit by her for a divorce and before any order affecting the custody of the child is made; nor is a person who assists the father under such circumstances guilty of the crime. State v. Dewey, 155–469, 136 N. W. 533.

Agreement as to custody: When a parent has voluntarily parted with the custody of his child and seeks to recover it from those who have had such custody by his consent, the welfare or wishes of the child will be consulted and, other things being equal, this consideration will be controlling. McDonald v. Stitt, 118–199, 91 N. W. 1031.

Where a mother had turned her child over, when only a few days old, to be disposed of to any proper person who would take it, and the child had been taken and kept for several years by one who had the right to believe that the parent would assert no further claims to the child, held that in an action by the mother against such person to recover possession, the interest of the child would be considered, and, under the facts in the particular case, held that the action of the lower court in denying the custody to the mother would be sustained. Ibid.

The mother, equally with the father, is entitled to exercise the authority of disciplining the child, and may delegate this authority to another. Therefore held that a child of eight years of age had no right of action against an aunt for corporal punishment administered under authority given to the aunt by the mother. Rowe v. Rugg, 117–606, 91 N. W. 903.

A parent may confer upon some other person the legal right to the custody of a minor child, but such an arrangement contemplating permanent custody will not be binding unless this is the intention of the parent. Miller v. Miller, 123–165, 98 N. W. 631.

The parent does not permanently forfeit his right to regain the custody of his child by an arrangement under which the child is to live with and be cared for by another for an annual consideration. The rights of the parent are not to be interfered with except under imperative necessity for the welfare of the child, growing out of gross misconduct of the parent. Van Auken v. Wieman, 128–476, 104 N. W. 464.

Generally speaking, the natural parents are entitled to the care, custody and control of their minor children; but they may by agreement or conduct deprive themselves of this natural right and confer it upon others, and when the scales are equally balanced, the courts are reluctant to make a change. The interests of the child are paramount. Smidt v. Benenga, 140–399, 118 N. W. 439.

Habeas corpus: In a habeas corpus proceeding brought by one claiming to be the guardian against one claiming to be the parent by adoption, the court may inquire not only into the legality of the adoption, but also to the best interests of the child. But the custody of the adopted parent, when found to be legal, will not be interfered with unless the best interests of the child require it. Smiley v. McIntosh, 129–337, 105 N. W. 577.

The issues in a habeas corpus proceeding for the custody of a child are not triable de novo on appeal, and if there is evidence to support the finding of the trial court, the supreme court will not reverse. Dunkin v. Seifert, 123–64, 98 N. W. 558.

Services: Clothing furnished by the father to a minor child remains the property of the father, and he may recover for injury thereto. He may also recover for any loss of services or for medical attendance occasioned directly by the wrongful acts of another with reference to the child. Shoemaker v. Jackson, 128–488, 104 N. W. 503.

Emancipation: The father's emancipation of his minor son may be in writing or parol, and may be proven by circumstantial evidence or implied from conduct. The mere fact that the son continues to make his home with the father and to assist him is not controlling in determining the question of emancipation. Bristor v. Chicago & N. W. R. Co., 128–479, 104 N. W. 487.

Emancipation means the voluntary freeing of the child so that he may manage and control his own time and affairs. Guthrie County v. Conrad, 133–171, 110 N. W. 454.

Where a son during infancy was allowed to manage his business in his own name, and to pay over his earnings to his mother, there was sufficient evidence of an emancipation by the father. Jacobs v. Jacobs, 130–10, 104 N. W. 489.

A mutual understanding between parent and child is sufficient to constitute emancipation, and such understanding may arise by implication from the acts and conduct of the parties. Kubic v. Zemke, 105–269, 74 N. W. 748.

If, however, the parent still claims the right to the child's services during minority, whether he exercises the right to have them or not, there is no such emancipation as to free the parent from the obligation the law creates to pay the necessary support furnished to the child by a third party. Ibid.

SEC. 3193. Surviving parent guardian of the person.

The right of the guardian to the custody of the ward may be interfered with by the court in the interests of the ward at least to the extent of making some other temporary disposition of such custody than that which would result from the fact of appointment alone. Smith v. Haas, 132–493, 109 N. W. 1075.

The appointment of another guardian on the tender of resignation of an existing guardian amounts to an acceptance of such resignation, and the failure of the guardian appointed to qualify does not restore the previous guardianship. Smiley v. McIntosh, 129–337, 105 N. W. 577.

SEC. 3194. Of property.

Under the corresponding section of the code of '73 which excepted property derived from either parent, held that property having its source and origin in the parents, as well as that descended from or through them, was intended. Ringstad v. Hanson, 150–324, 130 N. W. 145.

SEC. 3197. Bond and oath.

A court of equity has jurisdiction to set aside a settlement and release of the guardian and his sureties on account of fraud in procuring the settlement. Witt v. Day, 112–110, 83 N. W. 797.

Under the circumstances of a particular case, held that the bondsmen in making settlement with the ward after attaining majority had not exercised the good faith required, and that the settlement should be set aside. Ibid.

Trial of a claim filed in a guardianship proceeding is not required to be by jury. In re Guardianship of Buck, 140–355, 118 N. W. 530.

The court of the county of the minor's domicile has jurisdiction to appoint a guardian. Smidt v. Benenga, 140–399, 118 N. W. 439.

SEC. 3198. Removal—new bond.

In a proceeding to determine the right of a guardian to the custody of the ward, the court may remove such guardian as an unfit person and substitute another in his place. Smith v. Haas, 132–493, 109 N. W. 1075.

A contract for pecuniary consideration to resign the position of guardian is void as against public policy. Aughey v. Windrem, 137–315, 114 N. W. 1047.

SEC. 3200. Duties.

Powers: The guardian cannot excuse an unauthorized act on the ground that it was under the advice of a judge given orally outside of court. In re Guardianship of Kimble, 127–665, 103 N. W. 1009.

The signing of a contract by the guardian for the ward under the direction of the probate court makes the contract as binding and conclusive with reference to the ward as though the ward had been an adult and executed such contract in person. In re Harker's Estate, 113–584, 85 N. W. 786.

A guardian cannot loan the money of his ward, lease his land or invest his funds without an order of court. Such transactions are invalid, or at least voidable, until approved. Easton v. Somerville, 111–164, 82 N. W. 475.

Without direction of court, the guardian has no authority to loan his ward's money, and should keep the money and property of the ward separate from his own, and make investment thereof under the court's direction, as guardian only, and not in his own name. McIntire v. Bailey, 133–418, 110 N. W. 588.

While guardians are authorized to employ counsel for their wards, such employment must be under order of court entered on the record. In re Manning Estate, 134–165, 111 N. W. 409.

A guardian cannot dispose of his ward's property or change the investment thereof, except in pursuance of authority given by the court. McCutchen v. Roush, 139–351, 115 N. W. 903.

Authority may be given the guardian to make purchases of real estate with the funds of the ward and for his benefit, and the guardian should not be liable for mere errors of judgment in doing so where he has acted honestly and faithfully and in the exercise of the care and discretion which men of ordinary prudence and intelligence exercise in their own affairs. In re Estate of Wisner, 145–151, 123 N. W. 978.

On death of ward: After the death of the ward, the guardian still holds funds in his hands for the ward's administrator, and not for his heirs, and cannot be summoned as garnishee by judgment creditors of such heirs. Pugh v. Jones, 134–746, 112 N. W. 225.

Allowance for support: While in general a parent, or one standing in loco parentis to the ward, is not entitled to an allowance out of the ward's estate for support of the child, yet there may be circumstances under which such allowance is proper. In re Carter, 120–215, 94 N. W. 488.

While application for such allowance should be made to the probate court before any indebtedness therefor is contracted, yet, even though such application is not made until after the support has been furnished, if the claim therefor is reasonable and just, it may be allowed and payment ordered, the propriety of the allowance being passed upon when it is asked, and when such allowance is made the action of the probate court will be presumed to be correct, and will be sustained unless fraud is shown. Ibid.

But in a particular case held that the circumstances showed fraud and collusion on the part of the guardian in securing an allowance to the parent for the guardian's own personal advantage. Ibid.

Settlement: The court cannot in a guardianship proceeding settle the estate of the deceased ward, nor determine who is entitled to the proceeds of such estate, the heirs of the deceased ward not being parties to the proceeding. Nor is it competent to compel the heirs to become parties to a settlement of the guardianship. In re Guardianship of Lindsay, 132–119, 109 N. W. 473.

It is no defense to a guardian in a proceeding to require a settlement of his deceased ward's estate that by agreement of heirs or other persons having an interest in the estate the guardian is entitled to the proceeds of such estate. Ibid.

A settlement between the guardian and the ward made out of court should be closely scanned, and approval thereof should be withheld where it is made to appear that such settlement is clearly against the interests of the ward. In re Guardianship of Holscher, 127–369, 101 N. W. 759.

One who accepts the trust incident to guardianship should be held responsible for a fair and faithful exercise of his trust. Ibid.

The burden is upon the guardian claiming a settlement out of court with the ward after becoming of age, to establish the fact of such settlement. Robb's Estate v. Robb, 134–195, 111 N. W. 803.

The fact that the guardian has in a voluntary petition in bankruptcy stated indebtedness to his ward as among his liabilities does not estop him when called upon to account as guardian from denying the correctness of such statement with the explanation that the discharge of liability prior to bankruptcy had been questioned by the ward so as to give rise to an obligation of contingent liability. Ibid.

Under the facts of a particular case, held that there was such admission by the guardian of receipt of money of the ward as to render him liable to account therefor. In re Gray, 120–144, 94 N. W. 451.

Under the provisions of the statute the guardian is not relieved from liability for loss of funds invested, unless he acts under the direction of the court in making such investment. Van Rees v. Witzenburg, 112–30, 83 N. W. 787.

Settlements by a guardian with his ward out of court are not favored, and one who relies on such settlement must clearly show that he made full disclosure of everything, and that the ward knew and understood that he was making a full and final settlement. Every reasonable intendment is to be made in favor of the ward. Ibid.

In the absence of any actual accounting or settlement, the guardian is not discharged by a written release from the ward, and a discharge pursuant to such release is not an adjudication. Such discharge may be set aside without proof of actual fraud. Ellis v. Soper, 111–631, 82 N. W. 1041.

While the mother as guardian may not be bound in all events to support the child out of her own means in the absence of an allowance by the court from the property of the ward in her hands, nevertheless, where she has ample means she should not be allowed to encroach on the estate of the child, though she may set off the support of her child as against a claim for an accounting for interest. Ibid.

Defense by: Although the defense for a minor child is made in the trial court by a guardian ad litem, the court has authority to appoint a general guardian and direct that he prosecute the appeal in behalf of the minor. In re Estate of Strang, 131–583, 106 N. W. 631.

Claims against ward: One who has acquired a lien on the property of the ward by attachment proceedings is not by the subsequent appointment of a guardian compelled to look to the probate court for the enforcement of his rights. Hawk v. Harris, 112–543, 84 N. W. 664.

Action by guardian: A guardian suing to set aside a conveyance made by his ward has the burden of proving the ward's legal incapacity. But where the transaction complained of has taken place between persons standing in confidential relations, it will be closely scanned and the burden is on the party claiming the advantage of such transaction to show bona fides. Reese v. Shutte, 133–681, 108 N. W. 525.

SEC. 3201. Breach of bond—new guardian.

A failure to account to the ward when he reaches his majority is a breach of obligation under the guardian's bond, and a right of action then accrues to the ward, and the statute of limitation begins to run. The running of the statute cannot be postponed by failure of the ward to make demand for an accounting. Ackerman v. Hilpert, 108–247, 79 N. W. 90.

Where a guardian makes final report and his liability is adjudicated, such adjudication is binding on his sureties, and they are not entitled to relief on the ground that the guardian, under mistake as to his duties and liabilities, has made a report showing a greater liability than that actually existing. Steiner v. Lenz, 110–49, 81 N. W. 190.

SEC. 3202. Non-resident minors.

A guardian may be appointed for the property of a nonresident without judicial determination having been had in a court with jurisdiction of the person of such nonresident of his competency. Wallace v. Tinney, 145–478, 122 N. W. 936.

SEC. 3203. Account.

The accounting contemplated by the statute is not for the purpose of adjudicating the correctness of the accounts, but to indicate to the court and those interested the condition of the estate, its liabilities and resources, the propriety of orders for which application may be made and, generally, the care given and required in order to best conserve the interests of the ward. Such reports are ex parte and when approved are not to be given greater effect than prima-facie evidence of the accuracy of the account as stated. In re Guardianship of Kimble, 127–665, 103 N. W. 1009.

The report of the guardian should show that funds of the ward invested by direction of the court have been invested in his name as guardian and not in his own name, and the requirement as to annual reports should be construed as mandatory, although any reasonable explanation for failure to comply may be accepted by the court, provided the delay in making report is not unreasonable. McIntire v. Bailey, 133–418, 110 N. W. 588.

Default in failure to file yearly reports as required by this section will justify a removal; but the trial court is charged with a reasonable discretion as to whether it will, in view of particular circumstances, remove a guardian on that ground. In re Guardianship of Nelson, 148–118, 126 N. W. 973.

SEC. 3204. Penalty.

On the failure of the guardian to comply with the statutory requirements as to investment of his ward's funds and report thereof he should be removed, even though his bond is sufficient and the estate has not suffered loss. McIntire v. Bailey, 133–418, 110 N. W. 588.

It may be a sufficient ground for removal that a feeling of hostility between the guardian and his ward has arisen and such a situation exists that the guardian cannot properly represent the interests of the ward. Ibid.

SEC. 3205. Compensation.

Where the guardian does not do his full duty in notifying his wards of their right to moneys in his hands, and wrongfully mingles the trust fund with his own, he may be charged with interest thereon at six per cent., with annual rests. Blakeney v. Wyland, 115–607, 89 N. W. 16.

A guardian should be allowed reasonable attorney's fees actually paid out in defending a claim against his ward's estate. In re Guardianship of Kimble, 127–665, 103 N. W. 1009.

A guardian who has had an allowance for the care of a ward cannot, after the ward's death, recover from the estate additional compensation for the same services. Gibson v. Wild, 124–152, 99 N. W. 569.

Costs and expenses incurred in the litigation resulting in the appointment of a temporary guardian and attorney's fees contracted by the guardian after appointment to maintain himself as such guardian, are properly allowed out of the estate in the guardianship proceeding, and the guardian should not be required to file his claim for such costs and expenses in a probate proceeding for the administration of the estate of his deceased ward. In re Estate of Walker, 150–284, 128 N. W. 376, 129 N. W. 952.

Allowance in a particular case to the guardian and the attorney who represented him in attempting to maintain a guardianship, held to be proper. In re Deck's Guardianship, 139 N. W. 550.

While the party instituting an action for the appointment of a guardian may be held liable for attorney's fees in the event that suit fails, yet if he is successful in securing the appointment of a temporary guardian and this is followed by the appointment of a permanent guardian, the expense of the guardianship, including fees to counsel in prosecuting the action to a final conclusion, should ultimately come out of the ward's property and be charged against the funds coming into the guardian's hands. Ibid.

In the event of the death of the ward, pending the proceedings, it is proper to allow the expense of the guardianship in that proceeding, instead of requiring that the claim therefor be made against the administrator of the deceased's estate. Ibid.

SEC. 3206. Property sold.

Where notice has been served upon the ward and guardian ad litem appointed to act in his behalf, an order for the sale of the property is binding. In re Guardianship of Kimble, 127–665, 103 N. W. 1009.

In such case it is the duty of the guardian ad litem to make defense for the ward and, in submitting the case to the court, to raise every question involving the rights of the person under disability. Ibid.

SEC. 3212. Evidence—limitation.

After the time had expired for questioning the regularity of the proceedings for a guardianship sale, the ward who has already attained his majority cannot have relief on account of irregularities therein. Burch v. Nicholson, 157– —, 137 N. W. 1066.

DRUNKARDS, SPENDTHRIFTS AND LUNATICS.

SEC. 3219. Guardians of.

The proceeding for the appointment of a guardian is an adversary proceeding and not a proceeding in rem. The petitioner is plaintiff, and the person against whom the proceeding is instituted is defendant. A jury trial may be had, and an appeal is authorized. Brown v. Lambe, 119–404, 93 N. W. 486.

Jurisdiction in guardianship cases is not made to depend upon a strict construction of the word "inhabitant" as found in the statute. The proceeding may be instituted as to one living or being at the time within the state, regardless of his legal residence. Ibid.

The judge of the court in which the proceeding is instituted may appoint a temporary guardian and may in vacation entertain an application to set aside the appointment of such temporary guardian. Holly v. Holly, 157– —, 138 N. W. 445.

Where the court had acquired jurisdiction in a guardianship proceeding by reason of the domicile within the county of the insane ward, there is no right during the continuance of the insanity of the ward to have the jurisdiction of the guardianship transferred to another county. McIntire v. Bailey, 133–418, 110 N. W. 588.

The legal domicile of a minor child is presumed to be that of the father, regardless of the actual place of residence of such child; and a voluntary change of domicile being impossible on the part of a person of unsound mind, held that a guardian of an insane minor was properly appointed in the county of the residence of the father and was authorized to institute any action which the ward, if of age and sound mind, might have prosecuted in the county. Hindorff v. Sovereign Camp W. O. W., 150–185, 129 N. W. 831.

An allegation in the petition that the defendant in the proceeding is an inhabitant of the county is not essential to the jurisdiction of the court; and a judgment finding mental incapacity and appointing a guardian presumes a finding that the defendant is such inhabitant. Raher v. Raher, 150–511, 129 N. W. 494.

The proceeding is in personam and personal service as distinct from service by publication is essential to give the court jurisdiction. Therefore, held that personal service outside the state, although the defendant is a resident of the state, is not sufficient. Ibid.

On finding that the person for whom a temporary guardian has been appointed is not a resident of the county, the judge appointing such temporary guardian may, on motion, order his discharge. Holly v. Holly, 157– —, 138 N. W. 445.

The court has no jurisdiction to entertain a proceeding for the appointment of a permanent guardian of a nonresident. Ibid.

It seems that a person is of unsound mind when so weak and infirm mentally as not to be capable of exercising the judgment necessarily required in the management of his ordinary affairs. Garretson v. Hubbard, 110–7, 81 N. W. 174.

Where the person for whom it is sought to have a guardian of property appointed is not shown to be incapable of intelligently managing his property, the fact that it appears that he is a sexual pervert and may commit wrongs such as to render him liable to respond in damages will not be ground for appointing a guardian. Schick v. Stuhr, 120–396, 94 N. W. 915.

In determining the question as to whether a guardian should be appointed for a person of unsound mind, the ultimate question as to the extent of the capacity of the one for whom guardianship is sought is for the jury. McGibbons v. McGibbons, 119–140, 93 N. W. 55.

Under the facts in a particular case, held that there was not sufficient showing of mental incapacity to authorize the appointment of a guardian. Alvord v. Alvord, 109–113, 80 N. W. 306.

In a proceeding to procure the appointment of a guardian for an aged person, held that the evidence was insufficient to show such unsoundness of mind as to authorize such appointment. Wood v. Wood, 129–255, 105 N. W. 517.

Under the evidence in a particular case, held that the fact of a conveyance by a woman seventy-three years of age to her eldest son in consideration of his promise to maintain her during her lifetime was not sufficient to authorize the appointment of a guardian for her. Arment v. Arment, 134–199, 111 N. W. 812.

Under the evidence in a particular case, held that there was not sufficient proof of mental incompetency to authorize the granting of a guardianship of property. McDermott v. Rahely, 146–458, 125 N. W. 219.

A finding in proceedings to appoint a guardian of property that the owner is not incapable of transacting business is admissible in evidence as tending to show that at the time of the previous execution of a will he was not incapacitated by senile dementia, a progressive and incurable disease, from executing such will. In re Will of Van Houten, 147–725, 124 N. W. 886.

To authorize the appointment of a guardian for one who is enfeebled by age, his debility must be such as that he cannot intelligently manage his affairs, so that in consequence thereof his estate is liable to suffer loss or waste. McGuire v. Moorhead, 151–25, 130 N. W. 140.

One who has insufficient mental capacity for the just protection of his property and whose mental condition is such that he is guided by the will of others rather than his own in the disposition of his property, is properly subject to guardianship. Lang v. Lang, 135 N. W. 604, 139 N. W. 567.

Where it was made a condition by a divorced wife of the dismissal of a proceeding brought by her against her former husband to have a guardian appointed for him on the ground of insanity that he should settle property on their child, held that such settlement was invalid whether he was in fact insane or was by duress compelled in escaping an unwarranted proceeding for the appointment of a guardian to make a settlement. Foote v. De Poy, 126–366, 102 N. W. 112.

In the absence of any appointment of a temporary guardian pending the proceeding, the person for whom guardianship is asked is presumed competent to transact business until a judgment awarding guardianship is rendered; and one who surrenders property to such person pending the proceeding and with knowledge thereof, is not subsequently accountable to the guardian for such property. McCoy v. Nuese, 154–563, 134 N. W. 531.

An adjudication of incompetency in a guardianship proceeding is prima-facie evidence of incapacity to make a will. In re Cahill's Estate, 155–340, 136 N. W. 214.

Where the record does not expressly state the ground for the appointment of a guardian, parol testimony is admissible to show the reason therefor. Ibid.

The governing principle in the management of the estate of an insane person is the interest of such person and not that of those who may eventually have the right to succeed to such estate. The property of the lunatic may be converted from realty into personalty, or from personalty into realty, whenever it shall appear to be for the interest of the lunatic, without regard to the contingent interests of real and personal representatives. Clay County v. Meyers, 140 N. W. 889.

The court in authorizing the sale of the real property of a lunatic may provide that the proceeds shall be held and treated as exempt realty, until the death of the lunatic, or until such time as that there may be a recovery from the insanity and for a reasonable time thereafter. Ibid.

These provisions as to trial have no application to a motion made to a judge in vacation to set aside the appointment of a temporary guardian previously made by him. Holly v. Holly, 157– —, 138 N. W. 445.

SEC. 3221. Order of court—power of guardian—repealed. [30 G. A., ch. 80, § 22.]

SEC. 3222. Termination of guardianship.

These provisions as to discharge of a guardian have reference to a permanent guardianship and not to one which is temporary in its nature. A temporary guardian may be discharged without reference to the expiration of the six months referred to in this section. Holly v. Holly. 157– —, 138 N. W. 445.

SEC. 3224. Suits by guardian.

In an action brought by the guardian of a minor who was insane in the county of the residence of such minor, held that the location of the beneficiary fund which plaintiff sought to recover was immaterial, the proceeding being in personam. Hindorff v. Sovereign Camp W. O. W., 150–185, 129 N. W. 831.

SEC. 3225. Real estate sold—allowance to family. Whenever the sale or mortgage of the real estate of such ward is necessary for his support or for the support of his family or the payment of his debts, or will be for the interest of the estate or his children, the guardian may sell or mortgage the same under like proceedings as required by law to authorize the sale of real estate by the guardian of the minor. The court shall, if necessary, set off to the wife and minor children of the insane person, or to either, sufficient of his property, of such kind as it shall deem appropriate, to support them during the period such person is insane. [29 G. A., ch. 131, § 1; 26 G. A., ch. 54; 22 G. A., ch. 70; C. '73, § 2276; R. § 1453.]

SEC. 3227. When estate is insolvent.

Any control which the probate court acquires over property of the ward by the appointment of the guardian is subject to an attachment on such property already levied in another proceeding. Hawk v. Harris, 112–543, 84 N. W. 664.

ABSENTEES.

SEC. 3228-a. Petition for guardianship—notice. When any adult person owning property within the state and whose whereabouts are and have been unknown for a period of three months, and whose property is liable to become injured, lost or damaged by reason of such absence, and when there is no other provision of law, authorizing supervision and control over such property, any citizen of the county in which the property or any part thereof is situated may file a petition under oath in the district court of said county, setting forth the facts of such disappearance; the place where and with whom he last resided; the kind and value of his property; the necessity for care and supervision over the same; and asking that a guardian be appointed to take charge of, preserve and control such property. Whereupon, the court or judge shall prescribe a notice to be given to such absentee and order the same to be published in a newspaper published in said county, to be designated by the court or judge once each week for four successive weeks. Such notice shall also be served on the county attorney of the county and upon all the members of the family of the absentee residing within the county, for the length of time as is required for the service of original notices. Proof of the publication and service of such notice shall be filed with said cause. [33 G. A., ch. 197, § 1.]

SEC. 3228-b. Hearing—duty of county attorney—evidence reported. If at the time stated in such notice for hearing the absentee fails to appear, the court shall hear such petition and the proof offered, and all evidence given at such hearing shall be taken down by the official reporter and a verified transcript thereof filed in said cause, and at every such hearing the county attorney shall be present and represent the interests of the absentee, and shall be allowed reasonable compensation therefor to be fixed by the court. [33 G. A., ch. 197, § 2.]

SEC. 3228-c. Guardian appointed. If on such hearing the court is satisfied that the person has disappeared for the length of time herein required and that his whereabouts are unknown to his family or friends and that his property requires supervision and care, it may appoint some suitable person guardian of the estate of such absentee. [33 G. A., ch. 197, § 3.]

SEC. 3228-d. Qualifications—powers and duties. The person so appointed to act as such guardian shall qualify in the same manner as is required in the case of other guardians, and shall have the same powers and his duties shall be the same as is provided for guardians of the estates of minors, so far as applicable. [33 G. A., ch. 197, § 4.]

SEC. 3228-e. Termination of guardianship. If at any time the absentee shall return and claim his property, he shall file in said court his application to terminate such guardianship and, thereupon, the guardian shall make full and complete settlement with such absentee, and after paying the costs of the proceedings and the necessary expenses of the guardian in executing the trust, shall turn over to such absentee all money and property then in his hands as such guardian taking receipt therefor, and shall make a final report to the court of his doings as such guardian. [33 G. A., ch. 197, § 5.]

SEC. 3228-f. Costs chargeable to estate. The estate of such absentee shall be liable for the costs of the proceedings and the necessary expenses incurred by the guardian and allowed by the court. [33 G. A., ch. 197, § 6.]

SEC. 3228-g. Control of court—removal. Such guardian shall at all times be under the control and orders of the court and may at any time be removed for any cause making it apparent to the court that said guardianship should be terminated or the trust transferred to another person. [33 G. A., ch. 197, § 7.]

SEC. 3228-h. Discharge. When the final report of such guardian shall have been approved by the court he shall be discharged and the proceedings closed or the trust transferred, as the court may determine. [33 G. A., ch. 197, § 8.]

CHAPTER 6.

OF MASTER AND APPRENTICE.

SECTION 3229. Indenture.

The parents of a minor have no right to bind him out as an apprentice save during the years of minority. Walton v. Atchison, T. & S. F. R. Co., 131–423, 101 N. W. 506.

SEC. 3241. Complaint against apprentice.

Where the relation of master and servant continues after the majority of the apprentice, the question as to rightful discharge of the servant by the master is not determined by the statutory provisions relating to apprenticeship. Walton v. Atchison, T. & S. F. R. Co., 131–423, 101 N. W. 506.

The parents of a minor have no right to bind him out as an apprentice save during the years of minority. Ibid.

Where the relationship of master and servant continues after majority of the apprentice, the master has the right to discharge for breach of conditions in the contract of apprenticeship. Ibid.

SEC. 3246. Binding out by order of court.

In the absence of extreme neglect of a natural and legal duty courts will always be slow in refusing recognition to the paramount right of the parent or one who is by nature in loco parentis. Holmes v. Derrig, 127–625, 103 N. W. 973.

CHAPTER 7.

OF ADOPTION.

SECTION 3251. Consent of parents or officer.

So far as the statutory directions pertain to manifest essentials they are to be strictly construed, but the failure to observe nonessentials or mere matters of detail will not defeat the clear intention of the parties. Sires v. Melvin, 135–460, 113 N. W. 106.

Therefore held that an instrument of adoption signed by the mother who was in lawful charge of the child after a divorce granted to her from the father was not invalid because it did not give the name of the father of the child. Ibid.

An instrument of adoption consented to by the mayor of the town in which the child resides, instead of by the clerk of the courts of the county, is invalid. Anderson v. Blakesly, 155–430, 136 N. W. 210.

But such an instrument otherwise in due form and acted and relied upon by both the foster parents and the child constitutes an enforceable contract by which the child becomes entitled to a share in the property left by the foster parents in the proportion which would have been the child's had the articles of adoption been validly executed and recorded; and such contract right attaches also to the homestead where the widow's right of occupancy has terminated. Ibid.

SEC. 3252. Instrument acknowledged and recorded.

A parent may confer upon some other person the legal right to the custody of a minor child although such person does not become the adopted parent; but there must be such intent on the part of the parent as well as an assumption of obligation on the part of the person to whom custody is thus given, and it will be presumed that such surrender of custody is intended to be temporary unless the contrary is made to appear by proof clear, definite and certain. Miller v. Miller, 123–165, 98 N. W. 631.

A deed of adoption approved by the clerk of the court on application of a collateral relative in an ex parte proceeding is not binding as against the grandparents of the child with whom it was left on the death of its parents. Holmes v. Derrig, 127–625, 103 N. W. 973.

Where the father of a child joined in executing an instrument of adoption at a time when there was no legally appointed guardian for the child, held that such instrument of adoption was effectual although there had been a previous guardianship. The adopting parent should not be deprived of the custody of the child in a habeas corpus proceeding unless it appears that the best interests of the child require that its custody be given to some other person. Smiley v. McIntosh, 129–337, 105 N. W. 577.

Statutes of adoption are in derogation of the common law and are to be strictly construed. Bresser v. Saarman, 112–720, 84 N. W. 920.

The recital that the natural parent fully and voluntarily consents to the adoption of the children by husband and wife named as adopting parents is effectual. Ibid.

Where the acknowledgment of an instrument of adoption was by a justice of the peace of another state, without the genuineness of his signature being shown by an accompanying certificate, and the instrument thus defectively acknowledged was recorded, held that the recording thereof was legalized by a subsequent statute curing defects in the recording of instruments defectively acknowledged. Ibid.

The instrument of adoption must show the consent of the parent to the adoption and contain a statement that the child is given to the person adopting as his own child. Hopkins v. Antrobus, 120–21, 94 N. W. 251.

To render the instrument of adoption effectual, there must be substantial compliance with all the requirements of the statute on the subject. Ibid.

An agreement to adopt, although not executed in conformity with requirements of the statute, may constitute a binding obligation on the part of the adopting parent to confer upon the child attempted to be adopted the rights of inheritance. Chehak v. Battles, 133–107, 110 N. W. 330.

The surrender of the custody of the child by its parents to the adopting parents is a sufficient consideration to support an agreement to confer the rights of inheritance. Ibid.

Indexing an instrument for the adoption of a minor under the name of the adopting parents, and also that of the adopted child is sufficient. Indexing is not essential to the validity of the instrument, and the omission of the recorder to index it exactly as provided in the statute will not render it invalid. Hilpire v. Claude, 109–159, 80 N. W. 332.

Insufficient articles of adoption cannot be relied upon, even under equitable circumstances, for the purpose of escaping the application of the collateral inheritance tax. Lamb v. Morrow, 140–89, 117 N. W. 1118.

An agreement to adopt and confer upon the adopted child a right to inherit may be specifically enforced, although not fully executed in accordance with the statutory provisions. Stiles v. Breed, 151–86, 130 N. W. 376.

Evidence in a particular case reviewed and held insufficient to establish an agreement on the part of a decedent that the plaintiff, who was not legally adopted by him, should have a portion of his estate on his death. Finger v. Anken, 154–507, 131 N. W. 657.

SEC. 3253. Effect. Upon the execution, acknowledgment and filing for record of such instrument, the rights, duties and relations between the parent and child by adoption shall be the same that exist by law between parent and child by lawful birth, and the right of inheritance from each other shall be the same as between parent and children born in lawful wedlock. [29 G. A., ch. 132, § 1; C. '73, § 2310; R. § 2603.]

The adoption of a child operates like the subsequent birth of a legitimate child to revoke a will previously executed. It appears to be the legislative intention to place adopted children upon the same level as children of lawful birth. Hilpire v. Claude, 109–159, 80 N. W. 332.

The status and relation resulting from adoption are to be determined by the law of the place of the domicile of both parties. Shick v. Howe, 137–249, 114 N. W. 916.

The adopted child takes by descent through the foster parent. Ibid.

Valid articles of adoption do not in any manner restrict the right of the adopting parent to dispose of his estate by will to the exclusion of the adopted child. Warden v. Overman, 155–1, 135 N. W. 649.

On the death of an adopted child, unmarried and without issue (prior to the amendment of this section by 29 G. A., ch. 132), his real property passed to his natural parent and not to the heirs of his deceased parent by adoption. Baker v. Clowser, 138 N. W. 837.

The amendment to this section cannot be regarded as a statutory construction of the section as it previously stood. Ibid.

The general statutes of inheritance are modified and set aside by statutes regulating the effect of adoption only so far as there is some specific provision in the statutes for adoption inconsistent with the application in such cases of the general inheritance statutes. Ibid.

SEC. 3260. Religious instruction—repealed. [29 G. A., ch. 133, § 1.]
[See § 3260-a.]

CHAPTER 8-A.

OF THE CARE OF FRIENDLESS CHILDREN AND THE ESTABLISHMENT, REGULATION AND VISITATION OF HOMES FOR.

SECTION 3260-a. Repeal. That chapter eight of title sixteen of the code be and the same is hereby repealed, and the following enacted in lieu thereof: [29 G. A., ch. 133, § 1.]

SEC. 3260-b. Powers of societies. Any society legally incorporated under the laws of the state of Iowa for the purpose of receiving, caring for, placing out for adoption, or in any way improving the condition of abandoned, abused, illtreated, friendless, or orphan children, may receive, control and dispose of such minor children under the provisions of this act; and such corporation shall be the legal guardian of the persons of all children so surrendered to it, and may exercise all the rights and authority of the parents of such children in regulating the apprenticing and adoption thereof. [29 G. A., ch. 133, § 2.]

SEC. 3260-c. Surrender of children to. Children may be surrendered to such society by the father and mother jointly; by either father or mother, when the other is dead, or hopelessly insane, an habitual drunkard, has abandoned his family, is in prison for crime, or is an inmate or keeper of a house of ill fame; by the mother alone if the child is illegitimate and in her care and custody; by any court of record or judge thereof, or any mayor, or justice of the peace in the county of the residence of such children or their parents, upon complaint made and proceedings had thereon as hereinafter provided. [29 G. A., ch. 133, § 3.]

SEC. 3260-d. Commitment. Whenever it shall be made to appear to any court, judge, mayor or justice of the peace, as above provided, that any child within its jurisdiction, by reason of orphanage, or neglect, abuse, crime, drunkenness, or gross immorality of one or both of the parents, or other persons having custody of such child, is abandoned, illtreated, or friendless, or in circumstances tending to induce such child to lead a dissolute, immoral or vicious life, then it shall be the duty of such court or magistrate to take such child away from its parents or those having control thereof, and commit it to some society incorporated for that purpose, or to some other person or guardian, as may seem to be for the best interests of such child, and the society or person so adopting shall be required to keep such child, if over seven years of age and under fourteen years of age, in school during the school sessions of the school district in which said child is kept or in some parochial school for like period. [29 G. A., ch. 133, § 4.]

Where the children are produced in court in pursuance of an order, their names and ages ascertained and a finding made justifying their surrender to the home, the mother having appeared in the action, the father who did not have the custody of the children at the time the action was instituted cannot question the validity of the order on account of failure to serve him with notice. In re Minor Children of East, 143–370, 122 N. W. 153.

SEC. 3260-e. Written complaint—appeal. All proceedings under section four of this chapter shall be by written complaint duly verified, which complaint shall state the cause of action and the relief asked. If it shall appear that such child is in the custody and control of parents, guardians, or other persons, such parents, guardians or other persons shall be served with a copy of said complaint, and such notice of the time and place of the hearing thereof as may be ordered by the court or magistrate by whom the case is to be tried; which notice and copy shall be served in the same manner as is provided in the service of original notices. An appeal may be taken to the district court from the order of a magistrate at any time within twenty days thereafter, in the same manner as appeals are taken from judgments in justice courts, except that no bond shall be required to stay proceedings. [29 G. A., ch. 133, § 5.]

SEC. 3260-f. Custody of child during trial. Upon filing of proper complaint, the magistrate may, if thought best, issue a warrant directed to the sheriff or other peace officer, requiring such peace officer forthwith to take into his custody the child described in such complaint, and to retain possession of it subject to the order and direction of the court. [29 G. A., ch. 133, § 6.]

SEC. 3260-g. Religious faith. The court or magistrate in committing children shall place them as far as practicable in the care and custody of some individual holding the same religious belief as the parents of said child, or with some association which is controlled by persons of like religious faith as the parents of said child; and when any home or society shall dispose of the custody of any child, it shall be, as far as practicable, to some person of the same religious faith as its parents, unless the parents or former guardian otherwise consent. [29 G. A., ch. 133, § 7.]

SEC. 3260-h. Habeas corpus. Upon the hearing of any habeas corpus proceedings for the custody of any such child, if it appears that it has been surrendered to the home under the provisions of this chapter, such fact shall be presumptive evidence that it was done properly and that said home was entitled to the custody and guardianship thereof. [29 G. A., ch. 133, § 8.]

SEC. 3260-i. Proceedings—county attorney to prosecute—costs. Proceedings under this act may be brought by any citizen of the state, acting by himself or his attorney. It shall be the duty of the county attorney, when requested, to prepare complaints and prosecute all such cases in behalf of the complainants. Court costs shall be taxed the same as in criminal actions. [29 G. A., ch. 133, § 9.]

SEC. 3260-j. Board of control to have supervision—annual reports—financial statement. All associations or societies receiving children under this act shall be under supervision of the board of control of state institutions and shall be subject to visitation by the board of control, its members, or agents, which may require such information and statistics from such associations as the board shall deem necessary, in order to enable it to exercise proper supervision over them. Every such association shall file with the state board of control, during the month of January of each year, an annual written or printed report, which shall include a statement of the number of children cared for during the preceding year, the number of children received for the first time and the number returned from families, the number placed in homes, the number deceased, the number returned to friends, and the number placed in state institutions, the number and names and number of months of each of those attending school; also a financial statement showing the receipts and disbursements of such association. The statement of the disbursements shall show the amount expended for salaries and other expenses, specifying the same, and the amount expended for lands, buildings, and investments. And no child shall be committed to the care of any association which shall not have filed a satisfactory report for the calendar year last preceding with the state board of control, unless it be a society organized within the current year. [29 G. A., ch. 133, § 10.]

[See also § 2727-a74b. EDITOR.]

SEC. 3260-k. Jurisdiction to revoke. The district court of any county in which any society or home may be located shall have jurisdiction to revoke the powers herein granted upon a showing that any such society or person has abused the trust imposed in such society or person, or that the welfare of its wards demands that they be taken from the control of such society or person. It shall be the duty of the state board of control to institute such proceedings whenever, in its judgment, they are advisable. [29 G. A., ch. 133, § 11.]

SEC. 3260-l. Associations of other states. No association which is incorporated under the laws of any other state than the state of Iowa shall place any children in any family home within the boundaries of the state of Iowa, either with or without indentures, or for adoption, unless the said association shall have furnished the state board of control with such guarantee as it may require, including an indemnity bond in favor of the state of Iowa in the penal sum of one thousand dollars, that no child shall be brought into the state of Iowa by such society or its agents, having any contagious or incurable disease, or having any deformity, or being of feeble mind, or of vicious character, and that said association will promptly receive and remove from the state any child brought into the state of Iowa by its agents, which shall become a public charge within the period of five years after being brought into this state. Provided that this act shall not be construed as prohibiting any person residing in Iowa from receiving and adopting into his family any child or children from another state. [29 G. A., ch. 133, § 12.]

SEC. 3260-m. Appropriation. To provide for the expenses of the inspection herein required, there is hereby appropriated the sum of ten hundred dollars or so much thereof as may be necessary, from any funds of the state treasury not otherwise appropriated. [29 G. A., ch. 133, § 13.]

SEC. 3260-n. Expenses of inspection—appropriation to pay. That there is hereby appropriated out of any money in the state treasury not otherwise appropriated the sum of two thousand dollars annually for paying the expenses of inspecting county and private institutions in which insane persons are kept as required by sections twenty-seven hundred twenty-seven-a fifty-nine and twenty-seven hundred twenty-seven-a sixty of the supplement to the code, and associations, societies and homes receiving children as contemplated by section thirty-two hundred sixty-j of the supplement to the code [1902]. The expenses specified shall be paid as provided by section twenty-seven hundred twenty-seven-a sixty-one of the supplement to the code [1902]. At the end of each biennial period the board of control of state institutions shall cause to be transferred to the general funds of the treasury any balance of the sums hereby appropriated not required for the payment of the expenses of the period. [31 G. A., ch. 134.]

TITLE XVII.

OF THE ESTATES OF DECEDENTS.

CHAPTER 1.

OF THE PROBATE COURT.

SECTION 3261. Always open—hearing.

No provision is made for a jury trial on an application for an order as to the distribution of the estate. Duffy v. Duffy, 114-581, 87 N. W. 500.

An order in a matter of guardianship made by consent of parties in another county, but subsequently entered on the records of the county where the matter is pending, is valid and is binding on the guardian and the sureties on his bond. Steiner v. Lenz, 110-49, 81 N. W. 190.

SEC. 3265. Extent of jurisdiction.

If deceased is a resident of the state at the time of his death, jurisdiction over his estate is exclusively in the district court of the county of his residence; if a non-resident of the state, then in the court of any county where there was property of the estate subject to administration. In the latter case the jurisdiction of the court first assuming jurisdiction is exclusive, and in either case the jurisdiction acquired is coëxtensive with the state. McFarland v. Stewart, 109-561, 80 N. W. 657.

The court first exercising jurisdiction to appoint an administrator will retain such jurisdiction to the end of the proceeding unless want of jurisdiction appears of record. Nash v. Sawyer, 114-742, 87 N. W. 707.

In a proceeding to establish the right to a share in the estate, the amount of indebtedness of the same person to the estate may be adjudicated. Prouty v. Matheson, 107-259, 77 N. W. 1039.

The probate court is given jurisdiction over the estates of minors and the control of the guardians appointed by it to have the personal charge of such estates, and in the exercise of this jurisdiction the probate court may apply equitable principles. Mock v. Chalstrom, 121-411, 96 N. W. 909.

Although decedent's place of residence is a jurisdictional fact as affecting the right of the probate court to take jurisdiction, it is one of those jurisdictional facts which must be determined by the court from the evidence produced before admitting the will to probate, the determination of which is valid until set aside in some proper manner. Erwin v. Fillenwarth, 137 N. W. 502.

SEC. 3268. Clerk to approve. That section thirty-two hundred sixty-eight of the code be and the same is hereby repealed, and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"The clerk shall approve the bonds of all guardians, executors, administrators and trustees, and during the month of June in each year shall examine into the sufficiency of the sureties, and amount of penalty of all executors', administrators', guardians' and trustees' bonds in force in his office which have been executed more than six months prior thereto, and if he finds the same sufficient, shall note thereon his examination and reapproval, but if he finds the same insufficient, or the sureties shall not requalify on being required by him to do so he shall note his disapproval thereon, notifying the principal thereof by registered letter and place the matter upon the calendar of the court at the next term for the proper order." [33 G. A., ch. 198, § 1.] [21 G. A., ch. 51.]

The court may in the exercise of its authority under this section order a new bond by way of substitution and discharge of the old bond. Bankers' Surety Co. v. Wyman, 141-574, 120 N. W. 116.

CHAPTER 2.

OF WILLS AND LETTERS OF ADMINISTRATION.

SECTION 3270. Disposal of property by will.

Nature and operation: A valid testamentary provision is a provision made by will duly executed in substantial conformity to the law. It speaks and is intended to speak from the date of the death of the testator and not earlier. Until that time, the title, legal and equitable, of the property to which the provision relates, remains unchanged in the testator, and he may sell, convey and dispose of the same as fully and completely as if no will had been made by him. No right, title or interest of any kind in the thing devised or bequeathed passes to the devisee or legatee until the death of the testator, and not then if it appears that he has otherwise disposed of such property during his lifetime. Lewis v. Curnutt, 130–423, 106 N. W. 914.

A conveyance deposited in the hands of a third person to be delivered to the grantee only upon the death of the grantor, may be operative without the knowledge or express or formal consent or acceptance of the grantee, even though there is a reserved power to recall such conveyance if it is not exercised during the life of the grantor. Such a disposition is not testamentary. Ibid.

The characteristic distinction between a will and a trust is that while the former becomes operative only at the death of the testator, a trust passes an interest to the trustees and beneficiary instantly upon the execution and delivery of the writing by which it is created. Ibid.

As a will speaks from the death of the testator with respect to the distribution of all his property, both real and personal, any provision for the conversion of real estate into money and the division thereof among specified legatees is rendered ineffectual if the testator himself converts such real property into money before his death, and the proceeds of such property are to be distributed under a residuary clause governing the distribution of personalty. Upon sale of devised real property by the testator, the proceeds of such sale still remaining in his possession at the time of his death are not to be regarded as a substitute for the property itself, unless so directed in the will. In re Will of Miller, 128–612, 105 N. W. 105.

The benefit of the rule by which real estate is equitably transmuted into personalty for the purposes of distribution can be asserted by devisees only as to such lands as the testator was seized of at the time the will became effective by his death. Ibid.

Specific bequests of real property are ineffectual if at the time of the death of the testator there is no real property with which to discharge or satisfy them in whole or in part. Ibid.

A married woman is equally with her husband competent to dispose of her property by will. Baker v. Syfritt, 147–49, 125 N. W. 998.

Full power to dispose of property by will is conferred upon all persons, male and female, of full age and sound mind without distinction between the married and unmarried. The subsequent marriage of a woman does not revoke her will already executed. Hastings v. Day, 151–39, 130 N. W. 134.

Form and interpretation: No particular form is required for a will. The main object of the court is to learn the intention of the maker. The intention being known, all artificiality of language or looseness of construction must yield to and be governed by it. To ascertain whether the instrument was intended to create a testamentary gift, collateral evidence may be received if the terms of the writing are not clear. In re Estate of Longer, 108–34, 78 N. W. 834.

An unconditional devise of all of testator's property to his widow, with full power to sell and convey, vests in the widow a fee title, although the will contains subsequent directions as to the division of the property remaining at her death, or in case of her remarriage. Hambel v. Hambel, 109–459, 80 N. W. 528.

An instrument in a particular case in the form of a deed, granting land subject to occupancy and possession of grantor during life, with a provision that it should be of no force until after the death of the grantor, held to be a conveyance, and not an attempted will. Saunders v. Saunders, 115–275, 88 N. W. 329.

An instrument which operates to convey a present interest, although possession and enjoyment are reserved during the life of the grantor, may be effective as a conveyance, but if it passes no present interest and is to be operative only upon the grantor's death, then it is testamentary in character and of no effect unless executed with all the formalities of a will. Tuttle v Raish, 116–331, 90 N. W. 66.

Therefore, held that an instrument granting an interest in property, which was to vest at the grantor's death without children, and after payment of debts, funeral expenses, etc., was testamentary in character. Ibid.

The provision in a will that any legatee contesting the same shall thereby forfeit his right to any portion of the estate and benefit under the will is valid. Moran v. Moran, 144–451, 123 N. W. 202.

The institution of a suit by a legatee in which such legatee asserts in his own right the ownership of property which the testator assumes to own and dispose of by the will, is a contest of the will within such provision. Ibid.

A joint or mutual will is not in itself invalid and may properly be probated and enforced as the will of the one first dying, or the separate will of each, or the joint and mutual will of both, according to the terms and provisions therein. Baker v. Syfritt, 147–49, 125 N. W. 998.

When such a will is reciprocal merely, its probate as the will of the first deceased is all that is necessary to accomplish the intended purpose. But where the property devised is owned jointly or in common, it is said to be proper to await the death of the survivor and then probate it as the joint will of both. Ibid.

Where one maker of such a will dies before a revocation by either and the survivor accepts benefits thereunder, such survivor can no longer revoke, and any attempt to divert the property in any other direction than is indicated by the common or joint devise is nugatory. Ibid.

Testamentary capacity: The line between competency and incompetency is always drawn with uncertainty and the findings on that question in most cases are justified only as the best solution of a doubtful problem. In re Allison's Estate, 104–130, 73 N. W. 489.

A person may have an insane delusion but still be entirely sane on all other subjects, and capable of making a valid will. Hardenburgh v. Hardenburgh, 133–1, 109 N. W. 1014.

Testamentary incapacity does not necessarily require that a person shall actually be insane or of unsound mind. The testator may be incapable of making a valid will on account of weakness of mind not amounting to insanity. Manatt v. Scott, 106–203, 76 N. W. 717.

It seems that a person is of unsound mind when so weak and infirm mentally as not to be capable of exercising the judgment necessarily required in the management of his ordinary affairs. Garretson v. Hubbard, 110–7, 81 N. W. 174.

Although the testator's mind be clouded, if he is capable of comprehending his property interests and of determining what disposition he desires to make of his property, and of making such disposition, he has testamentary capacity. In re Evans' Estate, 114–240, 86 N. W. 283.

A finding that testator was not of sound mind at the time of executing the will was sufficient to sustain the action of the court in refusing to probate the will, the jury having been properly instructed with reference to what is sufficient unsoundness of mind to warrant such a finding. In re Will of Selleck, 125–678, 101 N. W. 453.

It is not error to instruct the jury that a person of sound mind—that is, one who has sufficient mental capacity to make a valid will—is one who has full and intelligent knowledge of the act he is engaged in, a full knowledge of the property he possesses, and intelligent perception and understanding of the disposition he desires to make of it and of the persons he desires shall be recipients of his bounty, and a capacity to recollect and comprehend the nature of the claims of those who are excluded from participating in his bounty; but it is not necessary that he should have sufficient capacity to make contracts and do business generally or engage in complex and intricate business matters. In re Law's Estate, 157– —, 138 N. W. 531.

Mere weakening of mental power will not render a person incapable of executing a will. So long as he retains mind enough to know and comprehend in a general way the natural objects of his bounty, the nature and extent of his estate and the disposition which he is to make of it, it is not necessary that he should be competent to make contracts or transact business generally. Old age and failure of memory do not of themselves necessarily take away a testator's capacity to make a will, nor will the exclusion of some or all of the testator's legal heirs from the benefits of the will be sufficient evidence of incapacity. Perkins v. Perkins, 116–253, 90 N. W. 55.

It is error to instruct as to mental capacity where there is not sufficient evidence to show disability for the making of a will, although evidence of mental incapacity may be competent as bearing on the issue of undue influence. Lingle v. Lingle, 121–133, 96 N. W. 708.

To defeat a will on the ground of senile dementia it must appear that the disease had progressed to such a stage that the testator had not the requisite intelligence to comprehend the condition and extent of his property and the persons who would ordinarily be his beneficiaries. Gates v. Cole, 137–613, 115 N. W. 236.

The burden of proving such condition of mind is on the contestant; but when once established, the presumption of its continuance arises, which presumption may, however, be overcome by evidence, as to which the proponent has the burden in this respect. Ibid.

The knowledge and comprehension which the maker of a will should have as to his estate and the natural claims on him of members of his family and friends are sufficient if it appears that he has the capacity to form a rational judgment of his estate and the manner in which he wishes to dispose of it, although his judgment may in fact be at fault and the will so made may discriminate unjustly between his children and other beneficiaries. Hanrahan v. O'Toole, 139–229, 117 N. W. 675.

Where there is no claim of permanent mental derangement it must be shown that at the time the will was executed the testator had not sufficient mental capacity to make it. Casad v. Ripley, 145–544, 124 N. W. 196.

Mere mental weakness not due to mental disease but solely to physical infirmity does not constitute mental unsoundness. Speer v. Speer, 146–6, 123 N. W. 176.

Mere weakness of mental power does not render a person incapable of executing a will. It is not necessary that he be competent to make contracts or transact business. Old age and failure of memory do not of themselves take away the testator's capacity to dispose of property. Ibid.

Senile dementia being in its nature progressive and incurable, a finding in guardianship proceedings that at a date subsequent to the execution of the will the testator was capable of transacting business tends to negative a claim that he was afflicted with senile dementia when the will was executed. In re Will of Van Houten, 147–725, 124 N. W. 886.

Evidence of a great mental shock to period long prior to the execution of the will is admissible, even though he was subsequently released from confinement on account of being cured. Mental diseases are subject to recurrence and it is proper to show the condition of the person's mind whenever it is the subject of judicial inquiry. Mileham v. Montagne, 148–476, 125 N. W. 664.

Record evidence of the conduct and business transactions of the testator during a period of time material to the issue in the case, held properly admitted. Ibid.

Evidence of a great mental shock to the testator, even though at a time long prior to the execution of the will, held admissible as tending to show impairment of mental capacity at the time the will was executed. Ibid.

Testimony relating to transactions long prior to the making of the will and at a time when testator was insane, held admissible although he had subsequently been discharged from the hospital under the belief that he had been restored to sanity. Ibid.

An adjudication of incompetency in a guardianship proceeding constitutes primafacie evidence of testator's incapacity to make a will. In re Cahill's Estate, 155–340, 136 N. W. 214.

Proof that testator was a believer in spiritualism is not sufficient to show want of testamentary capacity. In re Will of Dunahugh, 130–692, 107 N. W. 925.

Evidence in a particular case held insufficient to show lack of testamentary capacity or undue influence. Arnold v. Livingstone, 155–601, 134 N. W. 101.

Evidence in a particular case as to mental capacity held sufficient to sustain a verdict admitting the will to probate. In re Martin's Will, 142 N. W. 74.

Undue influence, rendering the will invalid, must be such as subjects the will of the testator to that of the person exercising such influence and makes the paper express the purpose of such person rather than that of the testator himself. And such undue influence must be directly connected with the execution of the will and operating at the time it was made. Perkins v. Perkins, 116–253, 90 N. W. 55.

Evidence of mental incapacity, although not sufficient to show disability to make a will, may be admissible on the issue of undue influence. Lingle v. Lingle, 121–133, 96 N. W. 708.

Where incapacity and undue influence are both relied upon and there is substantial evidence of the testator's unsoundness of mind, any evidence however slight, tending to sustain the issue as to undue influence should be freely admitted. In re Estate of Glass, 127–646, 103 N. W. 1013.

Neither advice nor solicitation, however earnest or insistent, will vitiate a will unless it be further shown that the freedom of will of testator was in some way impaired or destroyed thereby. In re Estate of Townsend, 128–621, 105 N. W. 110.

In determining whether the will represents the uninfluenced judgment and purpose of testator, or whether it is the result of surrounding influences brought to bear upon him, his physical condition and strength of mind as affected by illness may be taken into account. In re Wiltsey's Will, 135–430, 109 N. W. 776.

The obligation which the testator may recognize to dispose of property in accordance with the previously expressed wishes of a deceased spouse, does not render the will invalid, as procured by undue influence. Henderson v. Jackson, 138–326, 111 N. W. 821.

Belief in the binding obligation of such a wish does not constitute mental incapacity to execute a will. Ibid.

Where it appeared that the provisions in the will were dictated by relatives in attendance on the testator while sick and incapable of forming an independent judgment as to the disposition of his property, held that it should be set aside on the ground of undue influence. In re Wiltsey's Will, 135–430, 109 N. W. 776.

To defeat a will on account of undue influence it must appear that the mind of the testator was affected at the very time the will was executed, and to such an extent that the will was the result of such influence. Gates v. Cole, 137–613, 115 N. W. 236.

Opportunity and disposition to influence the testator in the making of his will are not sufficient to establish undue influence. Ibid; Casad v. Ripley, 145–544, 124 N. W. 196.

The fact of family relationship or the relationship of confidence and reliance which persons ordinarily repose in acquaintances and friends whose constancy and integrity they have tried will not justify a presumption of undue influence. Hanrahan v. O'Toole, 139–229, 117 N. W. 675.

The burden is upon the party alleging undue influence and the burden is not removed by a simple showing of relationship between the testator and the person drawing the will under which he or his children are to be benefited. Ibid.

The fact of exercising undue influence must not be left to mere inference from opportunity, interest and mental weakness. In re Will of Overpeck, 144–400, 120 N. W. 1044, 122 N. W. 928.

The unreasonableness of the disposition of property may be taken into account in determining unsoundness of mind and proof of mental capacity may be considered in inferring undue influence from circumstances which would not otherwise justify such an inference. Ibid.

To be "undue" and thereby to vitiate a testamentary disposition of property, the influence must be of such character and effect as to subject the will of the testator to that of the person exercising it. It must be equivalent to moral coercion and must have been the controlling force inducing the will at the very time it was executed. Brackey v. Brackey, 151–99, 130 N. W. 370.

It is not necessary that undue influence be shown by direct evidence; but the circumstances relied upon to establish it will not be sufficient if upon a fair review of the whole case they appear to be equally consistent with the theory of good faith. Ibid.

Where a husband caused a will to be prepared for his wife to execute which she refused to do for a considerable time on the ground that it did not make such division of her property as she wished, but she finally yielded to his insistence, held that the finding of a jury that the will was executed under undue influence would not be set aside. Pickler v. Wise, 152–644, 132 N. W. 815.

Fraud, duress and undue influence mean substantially the same thing with reference to the procurement of the execution of a will. Ibid.

Mere solicitation addressed to a person to persuade or induce him to make a gift or devise of his property is not necessarily undue influence; but where urgent solicitations are brought to bear upon a dying man whose physical strength is spent and who is unable to exercise his powers of judgment, the courts will not hesitate to set aside a will thus secured. Wiltsey v. Wiltsey, 153–455, 133 N. W. 665.

Where the physician of the testator is the sole beneficiary in his will and is shown to have been instrumental in procuring the making of it, the burden is upon him to show that it was not procured by undue influence. Cash v. Dennis, 139 N. W. 920.

The fact that an attorney consulted as to the drawing of a will suggests a charitable purpose for which provision may be made, does not tend to show undue influence requiring an explanation to establish the good faith of the transaction. In re Martin's Will, 142 N. W. 74.

Submitting both questions: Error in submitting the question of undue influence will be without prejudice where the jury makes an express finding of want of mental capacity which is supported by the evidence. In re Will of Selleck, 125–678, 101 N. W. 453.

Where the jury in answer to a special interrogatory finds against the contestant on the issue as to undue influence, errors in instructing the jury with reference to such issue will not be ground for reversal of a judgment for contestants on a verdict based on want of mental capacity. In re Will of Wharton, 132–714, 109 N. W. 492.

Where the contestants rely upon both undue influence and want of mental capacity, an error in submitting the issue as to want of mental capacity will be without prejudice where it appears by special finding of the jury that the will should be set aside on account of undue influence. In re Wiltsey's Will, 135–430, 109 N. W. 776

Where the questions of mental capacity and undue influence are submitted together without a request for special findings, error in submitting the question of undue influence will necessitate a reversal of a judgment on a verdict setting aside the will. In re Will of Overpeck, 144–400, 120 N. W. 1044, 122 N. W. 928.

Where the issues as to want of mental capacity and undue influence are both submitted to the jury, and there is a finding for contestants as to each, the fact that there is not sufficient evidence as to undue influence will not defeat the finding as to mental incapacity. In re Will of Van Houten, 147–725, 124 N. W. 886.

Burden of proof—presumption: It is not necessary that the original evidence in behalf of proponent show the sanity of the testator. Sanity is presumed until there is evidence to the contrary. In re Will of Dunahugh, 130–692, 107 N. W. 925.

It is not necessary in the original evidence in behalf of proponents to introduce witnesses in support of the sanity of testator. In re Hull's Will, 117–738, 89 N. W. 979.

Primarily, every person is presumed to be sane until the contrary is proven, and the burden of proof of insanity rests in the first instance upon the party alleging it. And while it is true, on the other hand, that settled and general unsoundness of mind, when proved, is presumed to continue, nevertheless the court will take notice of the fact that temporary mental aberration is not uncommon, and the causes thereof are numerous, and therefore proof of want of mental capacity immediately following a stroke of apoplexy will not be sufficient to give rise to the presumption of continued mental incapacity at a subsequent time when the will in question was executed. Kirsher v. Kirsher, 120–337, 94 N. W. 846.

It is error to instruct that if testator was afflicted with senile dementia the presumption would be that such condition continued up to the time the will was made and that the burden of proof was upon the proponents to show a lucid interval at the time of the execution of the will. Primarily, every person is presumed sane until the contrary is proved, and it is also true that when unsoundness of mind is proved a presumption arises in favor of its continued existence. But the jury should be instructed that they must find a continued mental unsoundness before indulging in the presumption of such condition. In re Estate of Glass, 127–646, 103 N. W. 1013.

When the contestant has introduced evidence tending to show that on and prior to the date of the execution of the will the testator was suffering from a disease of the mind of a permanent and progressive nature amounting to unsoundness, the burden as to the evidence shifts to the proponent to establish the mental competency of the testator at the time of the execution of the will. In re Estate of Jones, 130–177, 106 N. W. 610.

Mental incapacity having been proven is presumed to continue until a condition of capacity is shown. In re Will of Knox, 123–24, 98 N. W. 468.

The presumption of want of capacity arising from the appointment of a guardian may be overcome by evidence as to the condition and acts of the testator at the time of making or revoking the will. Linkmeyer v. Brandt, 107–750, 77 N. W. 493.

Evidence in a particular case considered and held to be sufficient to overcome the presumption in favor of sanity or soundness of mind on the part of testator. Howe v. Richards, 112–220, 83 N. W. 909.

The burden of proving undue influence and that it operated upon the mind of the testator at the very time that the will was executed to such an extent that the will was the result thereof, is upon the contestant. It is not enough to show that there was an opportunity to exercise the undue influence complained of; there must be evidence that it was exercised and that it was instrumental in procuring the will. In re Estate of Townsend, 128–621, 105 N. W. 110.

There must be some showing as to the due execution of the will before contestant is put on his proofs. But this showing may be sufficiently made by the contesting witnesses. The burden of proving want of mental capacity and undue influence is upon the contestants and as a general rule does not shift. In re Goldthorp's Estate, 115–430, 88 N. W. 944.

The burden of establishing testator's mental incapacity or the existence of undue influence, for the purpose of defeating the probate of a will, is throughout upon contestant, save when because of the peculiar relations between the testator and beneficiary it is incumbent on the beneficiary to explain such relations in order to overcome the presumption of undue influence arising therefrom. But the inference to be drawn from the instrument itself is never merely to cast the burden upon contestant in ascertaining its validity. Marshall v. Hanby, 115–318, 88 N. W. 801.

The burden resting on proponents in the first instance is to show the true execution and attestation of the will. The presumption will be in the first instance that the instrument was read to the testator, or that he was otherwise acquainted with its provisions, and the fact that his eyesight appears to have been bad throws no additional burden on the proponents, in the first instance, although it may be considered by the jury on any issue to which it is pertinent. Ross v. Ross, 140–51, 117 N. W. 1105.

The burden is on the contestants to show want of mental capacity. Convey v. Murphy, 146–154, 124 N. W. 1073.

The burden of proving mental incapacity is upon the contestants. In re Walker's Will, Barry v. Walker, 152–154, 128 N. W. 386.

Evidence: Testimony as to mental condition of testator at a period long subsequent to the execution of the will is competent where it appears that the condition testified to has been continuous. In re Will of Wharton, 132–714, 109 N. W. 492.

An obituary notice in which statements are made as to the mental capacity of testator, although published under the sanction of relatives who afterwards contest the will, is not admissible for the purpose of showing mental capacity. In re Hull's Will, 117–738, 89 N. W. 979.

A witness, one of the persons unfavorably affected by a will, may testify to the unfriendliness on the part of testator before the execution of the will. Manatt v. Scott, 106–203, 76 N. W. 717.

Opinion of witnesses: One who shows an acquaintance with the person whose mental capacity is in question and a familiarity with his conduct, may testify affirmatively that in his opinion such a person was of sound mind, while an opinion that such person was of unsound mind must be based on facts consisting of particular acts or conduct indicating unsoundness. In re Hull's Will, 117–738, 89 N. W. 979.

A witness who has testified as to what he has observed may express an opinion as to the mental capacity of the testator based on such facts. In re Will of Selleck, 125–678, 101 N. W. 453.

One who has seen and observed a testator on different occasions during the time it is claimed he was insane, may, after stating the facts connected therewith, be permitted to say that he thought he was not of sound mind. Kirsher v. Kirsher, 120–337, 94 N. W. 846.

It is not for a witness, though an expert, to say what will constitute mental capacity. Nor should such expert be allowed to testify as to the effect of mental capacity upon the validity of a will. Marshall v. Hanby, 115–318, 88 N. W. 801.

A subscribing witness may state his belief as to the testator's condition of mind without first showing grounds on which that belief is based. Furlong v. Carraher, 108–492, 79 N. W. 277; Hertrich v. Hertrich, 114–643, 87 N. W. 689.

Subscribing witnesses may give an opinion that the testator was of sound mind without reciting any particular facts or circumstances, but other witnesses acquainted with the testator and in a situation to observe his conduct may do the same thing, and the testimony of the subscribing witnesses in this respect is to be subjected to the same tests as those applicable to other witnesses. In re Will of Wharton, 132–714, 109 N. W. 492.

To qualify a nonexpert to give an opinion as to insanity it is only necessary that the circumstances related by the witness as a basis for such opinion tend to indicate unsoundness of mind. Stutsman v. Sharpless, 125–335, 101 N. W. 105.

A nonexpert should not be allowed to testify that the testator was capable of making the will in question. But he may be asked as to the testator's capacity at a time prior to the execution of the will. In re Estate of Glass, 127–646, 103 N. W. 1013.

It is not proper to ask an expert whether testator was competent to make a will, this being the ultimate fact for the jury to determine. In re Betts' Estate, 113–111, 84 N. W. 975.

A question as to actions or appearances indicating mental strength or weakness calls for a fact, not an opinion. Manatt v. Scott, 106–203, 76 N. W. 717.

An expert witness may be asked whether in his opinion the testator was capable of transacting ordinary business, and of intelligently disposing of his property. In re Will of Overpeck, 144–400, 120 N. W. 1044, 122 N. W. 928.

Where the proponent assumes the burden at the outset and offers affirmative testimony of the testator's mental soundness, he may properly be allowed in the discretion of the court to test the contestant's expert witnesses by propounding hypothetical questions by way of cross-examination. Brackey v. Brackey, 151–99, 130 N. W. 370.

Testimony of witnesses as to the fact of the physical and mental condition of testator is competent. In re Walker's Will, Barry v. Walker, 152–154, 128 N. W. 386.

Where nonexpert witnesses testify as to unsoundness of mind, the sufficiency of the facts as a basis for such opinion is for the jury and not for the court. Ibid.

Testimony of an expert witness as to capacity of the testator at a time prior to the execution of the will, held competent as against objection that it involved the ultimate question to be determined by the jury. Ibid.

A nonexpert witness having recited facts as to the conduct of the decedent may be allowed to express an opinion as to whether he was of sound mind. Erwin v. Fillenwarth, 137 N. W. 502.

Such a witness may also be asked whether in his opinion the deceased was capable of looking after financial affairs. Ibid.

Declarations: To render declarations of the testator admissible on the question of undue influence, there should be independent testimony indicating that such influence has been exerted, and then such declarations are chiefly pertinent as showing the condition of mind of testator to have been such that he was susceptible to the sinister influence and acted in response thereto. In re Estate of Townsend, 128–621, 105 N. W. 110.

On the issue of undue influence prior declarations of the testator are not admissible in evidence, nor are his age or the character and extent of his property admissible. In re Will of Wiltsey, 122–423, 98 N. W. 294.

On the question of undue influence the contents of a prior will may be shown as indicating the intention of the testator before being subjected to the undue influence relied upon. In re Will of Selleck, 125–678, 101 N. W. 453.

Testator's previous declarations are admissible in support of a will which is impeached on the ground of want of mental capacity. In re Perkins' Estate, 109–216, 80 N. W. 335.

Also it is proper to permit those contesting the will to show the amount of advancements made to them for the purpose of rebutting evidence of declarations claimed to have been made by testator on the subject tending to support the will. Ibid.

For the same purpose entries in deceased's books of account are admissible as tending to show the amount of advancements as bearing on his state of mind with reference to the persons to whom the advancements appear to have been made. Ibid.

Declarations made by testator are admissible as bearing on capacity and undue influence, even though made long after the execution of the will, if they tend to show senile dementia which in its nature is progressive. Manatt v. Scott, 106–203, 76 N. W. 717.

Statements or declarations of testator or conduct on his part tending to throw light on his mental condition at the time the will was executed may properly be considered by the jury in connection with other facts and circumstances surrounding or attending the execution of the will. But subsequent declarations as to the wishes of testator with reference to the disposition of his property cannot be considered as tending to show revocation. Smith v. Ryan, 136–335, 112 N. W. 8.

Where the probate of a will is contested on the ground of mental incapacity and undue influence, declarations of the proponent and beneficiary, made before the execution of the will, and with reference to the cancellation of a contract, are admissible for the purpose of showing want of mental capacity and liability to undue influences. Lundy v. Lundy, 118–445, 92 N. W. 39.

Testimony as to the belief of the testator that the instrument in question was a will is inadmissible. In re Will of Brown, 143–649, 120 N. W. 667.

Evidence of declarations by an attesting witness that the testator was mentally unsound at the time the will was executed is not admissible. Speer v. Speer, 146–6, 123 N. W. 176.

The declarations of one of the beneficiaries under a will tending to show want of capacity or undue influence are not admissible in an action to set aside the probate of a will to which all the beneficiaries are parties. James v. Fairall, 154–253, 134 N. W. 608.

Declarations of a testator made long after the execution of the will are competent for the purpose of showing the signing of the will by such testator and the subsequent witnessing thereof by proper witnesses. Nixon v. Snellbaker, 155–390, 136 N. W. 223.

Declarations of one devisee tending to show unsoundness of mind of testator or undue influence are not admissible if there are other devisees, not joint with the declarant, whose interests would be prejudiced by the refusal to probate the will on the grounds which such declarations tend to establish. Lawless v. Lawless, 156–184, 135 N. W. 560.

Separate devises to different beneficiaries cannot be treated as so far independent that the declarations of one of such beneficiaries may be treated as defeating the devise to him, allowing the devises to other beneficiaries to stand. Ibid.

Declarations of the testator as bearing on her mental capacity made three years after the execution of the instrument, held not admissible. Wendt v. Foss, 140 N. W. 881.

Testimony tending to show forgetfulness both of fact and obligation at a time long subsequent to the execution of the will is not admissible. Ibid.

Reasonableness of will: While the fact that the will is unreasonable or unjust may be considered in connection with evidence bearing on the condition of testator's mind, it is not alone a ground for refusing probate. In re Trotter's Will, 117–417, 90 N. W. 750.

The question whether the will is unnatural and unreasonable may be considered on the issue of testator's mental condition. Hardenburg v. Hardenburg, 133–1, 109 N. W. 1014.

The inequalities of a will may be taken into consideration in determining the mental capacity of the testator or whether undue influence has been exercised, but apparent inequality or inequity in the provisions of a will does not alone warrant the presumption of mental incapacity or undue influence. These may be considered only as circumstances in connection with other facts bearing on the condition of the testator's mind. Manatt v. Scott, 106–203, 76 N. W. 717.

What is meant by unjust, unreasonable and unnatural provisions of a will is that they are not as persons in like situation and similar relationship ordinarily and usually make them. Ibid.

Where testatrix had preferred some of her brothers to her natural heirs, it was held material in looking into the equities of the will to know that in remembering those mentioned she forgot other brothers and sisters in needy circumstances. The fact that the will bestows property on the wealthy and overlooks the claim to bounty of those who are poor in like relationship, is a circumstance suggesting a disordered mind or the working of sinister influences. Ibid.

While the justness and reasonableness of the provisions of the will from a moral point of view are entitled to consideration in determining the question of the sanity of the testator, such consideration must be predicated upon facts proven by competent testimony. In re Will of Knox, 123–24, 98 N. W. 468.

The unreasonableness of the will is a fact which may be considered on the issue of undue influence; but it is not in itself sufficient to show undue influence. In re Townsend's Estate, 122–246, 97 N. W. 1108.

The mere relation of husband and wife, or advice given to the husband by the wife as to the making of the will is not sufficient to give rise to a presumption of undue influence. Ibid.

When a will is assailed as being unreasonable or unjust, evidence of the financial condition of those having claims on the bounty of deceased and likely to have been taken into consideration by him, if in a normal condition of mind in executing his will, is admissible. But the rule ought not to be extended so as to include proof of mere expectancies unless of such a nature as likely to have been known and considered by him. Stutsman v. Sharpless, 125–335, 101 N. W. 105.

The financial circumstances of the testator and the devisee may be taken into account in determining whether the will is so unreasonable as to indicate a disordered mind or the working of sinister influences. In re Will of Wharton, 132–714, 109 N. W. 492.

Mistake of judgment or an unjust conclusion as to the character and merits of testator's children does not invalidate the will if it is the act of a sound mind. Ross v. Ross, 140–51, 117 N. W. 1105.

Neither the testator's age nor the character or extent of his property are evidence of unsoundness of mind or undue influence. Ibid.

Inequalities in the provisions of the will do not alone warrant the presumption of mental incapacity. Mileham v. Montagne. 148–476, 125 N. W. 664.

One who is permanently insane may to all outward appearances act and talk in a most rational manner, although no real abatement of his malady has taken place. Ibid.

While the fact that a will is unreasonable or unjust may be considered in connection with evidence bearing on the condition of the testator's mind, it is not in itself a ground for refusing probate. Sevening v. Smith, 153–639, 133 N. W. 1081.

No mere weakening of the mental powers will invalidate a will executed in due form, so long as the testator retains mind enough to know and apprehend in a general way the natural objects of his bounty and know the extent of his estate and the distribution he wishes to make of it. Ibid.

The fact that the will is unjust to those who are dependent upon the testator's bounty is not, in itself, sufficient to show want of mental capacity or undue influence, but where the provisions of the will are unusual or extraordinary, the fact of mental weakness is to be considered, especially if the relationship of the parties is such as reasonably to warrant the presumption of undue influence. Cash v. Dennis. 139 N. W. 920.

Question for jury: Where there is testimony tending to show undue influence and that the condition of testator's mind was such that he might easily have been influenced by the persons whose undue influence is relied upon, the question as to the sufficiency of the evidence should be submitted to the jury. In re Estate of Jones, 130–177, 106 N. W. 610.

Where there is evidence as to want of mental capacity, fraud or undue influence on which reasonable minds might differ in their conclusions, the question is for the jury. James v. Fairall, 154–253, 134 N. W. 608.

The fact that the effect of a will is to disinherit an heir is a circumstance which may be considered with other testimony as against the validity of the will. Ibid.

Where there was a conflict in the evidence as to whether testatrix was practically unconscious and incapable of expressing her wishes at the time the will was signed, held that the question as to whether the instrument was actually directed to be made and assented to and voluntarily signed by the testatrix was for the jury. In re Hannaher's Will, 155–73, 135 N. W. 34.

Devise in lieu of dower: Under the provisions of the code of '73, held that the creation of a trust of testator's entire property for the purpose of raising a fund for the widow's support and use during life was inconsistent with the dower right of the widow in the property. Campbell v. Sankey, 114–69, 86 N. W. 48.

Under the provisions of the code of '73 the election of the widow to take under the will as against her dower right could only be shown by record, and notice requiring such election must be given to her before any act of election would be effectual. Byerly v. Sherman, 126–447, 102 N. W. 157.

The widow's distributive right is an incumbrance upon the real estate as to which the devisees of specific portions of such estate are required to make ratable contribution, in the absence of any provision on the subject in the will. McGuire v. Luckey, 129–559, 105 N. W. 1004.

Also held that the devise to a wife of a life estate in all of testator's property in the absence of any restrictive words, was not to be construed as made in lieu of dower. This rule of construction is now changed by the language of this section. Percifield v. Aumick, 116–383, 89 N. W. 1101. And see notes to code § 3376 in this supplement.

Where the will gives to the widow the very property real and personal which in the absence of a will she and her children could rightfully hold absolutely, exempt from the claims of creditors, as a homestead, and she accepts the devise, she takes the homestead free from the debts of her deceased husband. Swisher v. Swisher, 157–55, 137 N. W. 1076.

Section applied. Newberry v. Newberry, 114–704, 87 N. W. 658.

Devises to corporations: The statutory limitation as to devises to corporations does not apply to a devise to an individual in trust for charitable use although the beneficiary may be a corporation. Rine v. Wagner, 135–626, 113 N. W. 471.

A devise in trust to a bishop of the Catholic church is not a devise to a corporation. Ibid.

To invalidate a devise under the statute it must appear that it was of more than one fourth of testator's estate. Ibid.

Charitable bequests to two or more separate corporations not for pecuniary profit cannot exceed in the aggregate one fourth of the testator's estate. In re Estate of Ihmes, 154–20, 134 N. W. 429.

Bequests to separate departments of the work of one corporation not for pecuniary profit are to be construed as bequests to the corporation and not to such departments as separate incorporated associations. Ibid.

The design of the statute is to restrain the power of the testator in giving, thereby preventing him from disregarding the just claims of those with natural expectations on his bounty, through pious or philanthropic motives. It does not compel the testator to give his property to his relatives, nor deprive him of the right to give it all to charity during his life. Ibid.

SEC. 3271. After-acquired property.

After-acquired property will pass under the terms of a will whenever the intention to so provide is clear and explicit; otherwise it will be treated as intestate property. Flynn v. Holman, 119–731, 94 N. W. 447.

The purpose of this section was to extend to real property the rule previously recognized as to personal property, that the will speaks from the time of the death of the testator and not from the date of its execution; and held that a devise of testator's real estate, describing it, "and also including all other real estate now owned by me" covered after-acquired real property, the word "now" having reference to the time of the testator's death. Luers v. Luers, 145–600, 124 N. W. 603.

A devise of a share of all property, construed to include after-acquired property, is not a specific devise. Wilts v. Wilts, 151–149, 130 N. W. 906.

SEC. 3274. In writing—witnessed—signed.

Where subscribing witnesses are dead or beyond the jurisdiction of the court, proof of their handwriting is a compliance with the law as to proving execution, and where they are beyond the jurisdiction of the court, even though their depositions are taken and introduced, other evidence of the due execution of the will is admissible. In re Allison's Estate, 104–130, 73 N. W. 489.

Where the subscribing witnesses are dead, other evidence of the execution of the will is admissible. Scott v. Hawk, 105–467, 75 N. W. 368.

Evidence that the deceased, upon examination of the instrument and the signatures thereto, declared it before his death to be his will may be introduced to prove execution in such a case. Ibid.

The making of a mark by a testator will satisfy the statutory requirement as to signature, even though the testator is able to write at the time. Scott v. Hawk, 107–723, 77 N. W. 467.

If the statute is complied with, nothing more in the execution of the will is necessary. Publication, as such, is not required. Ibid.

The testamentary right to dispose of property is regulated by the statute which requires the will to be witnessed in a certain way, and where it does not appear to have been so witnessed, it will not be valid although it is shown that there were other competent witnesses present at the execution. McCarn v. Rundall, 111–406, 82 N. W. 924.

If testator asks a person who is competent to be a witness to attest the will and the person thus requested, instead of attesting in the usual way as a witness, affixes a certificate of acknowledgment thereto, the will is sufficiently witnessed by him. In re Hull's Will, 117–738, 89 N. W. 979.

The attesting clause is not essential to the sufficiency of the attestation by witnesses, though it may be important in furnishing proof that the testator declared the instrument to be his act and that the witnesses signed it in his presence. If there is an attestation clause showing the requisite facts, signed by two witnesses, this is prima facie sufficient, but the proof furnished by such clause is not conclusive. Ibid.

It is sufficient that the witness sign in the presence of testator in response to a request of a third person, made by the testator's direction, approved by some sign or act on the part of the testator, and that the signature of the witnesses is with the knowledge of the testator, and in response to such request. Indeed, it is sufficient if the signing is in the presence of testator, with knowledge on his part that the witnesses are signing in response to a request of the third person, he making no objection. Ibid.

It is not essential that the witnesses attest with reference to one and the same act or declaration of the testator. Ibid.

The burden of proof as to due execution and attestation is on the proponents. Ibid.

Questions as to the sufficiency of the attestation are for the jury. Ibid.

It is not necessary that the will be read to or by the testator in the presence of the witnesses. Smith v. Ryan, 136–335, 112 N. W. 8.

Where the execution of a will is denied, the burden of proof is upon the proponents to establish the genuineness of the signature by a preponderance of the evidence. Beebe v. McFaul, 125–514, 101 N. W. 267.

An instrument of conveyance which is not to take effect by way of passing the title to the property until after the grantor's death is testamentary in character and of no validity unless executed with the formalities of a will. Wilson v. Carter, 132–442, 109 N. W. 886.

An instrument which operates to convey a present interest, although possession and enjoyment are reserved during the life of the grantor, may be effective as a conveyance, but if it passes no present interest and is to be operative only on the grantor's death, then it is testamentary in character and of no effect unless executed with all the formalities of a will. Tuttle v. Raish, 116–331, 90 N. W. 66.

In a contest on the ground of mental incapacity the declarations of the attesting witness made after the execution of the will that the testator was then mentally incapable of making a will are not admissible. Speer v. Speer, 146–6, 123 N. W. 176.

Where a codicil to a second will by which a prior will has been revoked is relied upon as reviving the prior will, it must be duly executed and clearly identified as the will which is thereby revived. Blackett v. Ziegler, 153–344, 133 N. W. 901.

Where it is admitted that the will was written and signed by the testator and signed as witnesses by persons competent to witness it, the presumption is conclusive that it was signed by the testator before it was witnessed and that it was executed with all the formality which is required by the statute. There need be no attesting clause, nor is it necessary that the witnesses should see the testator subscribe the will nor that the testator state to the witnesses the character and purpose of the instrument. Nixon v. Shellbaker, 155–390, 136 N. W. 223.

SEC. 3276. Revocation—cancellation. Wills can only be revoked in whole or in part by being canceled or destroyed by the act or direction of the testator, with the intention of so revoking them, or by the execution of subsequent wills. When done by cancellation, the revocation must be witnessed in the same manner as the making of a new will. [30 G. A., ch. 120, § 3; C. '73, §§ 2329–30; R. §§ 2320–1; C. '51, §§ 1288–9.]

Wills may be revoked either in whole or in part in the manner pointed out by statutory provision. Whether the revocation is entire or partial must depend on the testator's act and intent as gathered from the instrument of revocation itself. The fact that the instrument relied upon as a revocation is called the last will and testament of the testator is not conclusive. If the latter will can be construed with the earlier one so as to prevent partial intestacy the two should be thus construed together if practicable. Fry v. Fry, 125–424, 101 N. W. 144.

A later will in which the testator attempts to dispose of his entire estate works a revocation of a former will even though there is no revocation clause in the later instrument. Schillinger v. Bawek, 135–131, 112 N. W. 210.

Proof of the execution of a subsequent testamentary instrument is not sufficient of itself to establish a revocation. There must be either an express clause of revocation or an inconsistent disposition of the previously disposed property, and the burden is on the contestant to bring forward the subsequent will and demand probate thereof, supporting such demand by proof which would authorize the admission of the subsequent will to probate. In re Will of Dunahugh, 130–692, 107 N. W. 925.

The whole will is not rendered void by an attempt in an unauthorized manner to change one of its provisions. Where the alteration is not attended with the formalities required by statute, it is of no effect, and unless it is impossible to determine what the original will was, it remains the will of the testator. In re Hull's Will, 117–738, 89 N. W. 979.

The will and the codicil should be read together, and the law does not favor revocation of the provisions of a prior will by implication only from a subsequent codicil. Sperry v. Sperry, 126–503, 102 N. W. 491.

Obliteration of a provision of a will is not to be given the effect of destroying the entire will, and the instrument will be carried out so far as its contents, at the time of execution, can be ascertained. Richardson v. Baird, 126–408, 102 N. W. 128.

It appearing that a will conceded to have been executed cannot be found after the death of the testator, the presumption arises that the same was destroyed by him animo revocandi, and the burden is upon the party seeking to establish the will to overcome such presumption by evidence strong, positive and free from doubt. Thomas v. Thomas, 129–159, 105 N. W. 403.

The adoption of a child in the manner authorized by statute has the same effect as the subsequent birth of a legitimate child in operating to revoke a will previously executed. Hilpire v. Claude, 109–159, 80 N. W. 332.

Whether by the insertion in this section of the provision that birth of a legitimate child to the testator before his death will operate as a revocation of his will, it was intended to negative the implied revocation resulting from recognition of an illegitimate child, or to exclude the doctrine that provision made for a legitimate child subsequently born would prevent revocation resulting therefrom, quaere. But held that in a particular case the provision made for a child which was subsequently born was so inadequate and uncertain that it would not prevent the birth of such child from operating as a revocation. Rowe v. Rowe, 120–17, 94 N. W. 258.

Under the express provision of the statute that the subsequent birth of a legitimate child to the testator before his death operates as a revocation of his will, there is no occasion to apply the general rule of construction that the subsequent birth of a child produces an implied revocation only where no adequate provision therefor has been made. (But now also see 30 G. A., ch. 120.) Fry v. Fry, 125–424, 101 N. W. 144.

While a presumption of want of capacity to make a valid revocation may arise from proof that testator was then under guardianship, such presumption may be overcome by evidence. Linkmeyer v. Brandt, 107–750, 77 N. W. 493.

A revocation of a will by destruction is effectual, notwithstanding a subsequent will is held invalid for want of mental capacity. McCarn v. Rundall, 111–406, 82 N. W. 924.

To defeat the revocation in such case it must appear that there was want of mental capacity at the time of the destruction of the first will. Ibid.

Proof of the contents of a destroyed will ought to be of the clearest and most satisfactory character. Ibid.

The divorce of a testator after the making of a will does not in itself revoke the will. In re Estate of Brown, 139–219, 117 N. W. 260.

A conveyance not testamentary in character is not affected by the subsequent birth of a child. Lefebure v. Lefebure, 143–293, 121 N. W. 1025.

Whether in a given case a subsequent will amounts to a revocation of a former will depends on the contents of the subsequent will. In re Will of Brown, 143–649, 120 N. W. 667.

The will of a woman executed before marriage is not revoked by subsequent marriage. Hastings v. Day, 151–39, 130 N. W. 134.

A will expressly revoked by a subsequent will may be republished or revived by the reëxecution thereof, or by codicil executed in accordance with statutory requirements, showing an intent to revive such previous will. Blackett v. Ziegler, 153–344, 133 N. W. 901.

If revocation results from the subsequent execution of an inconsistent will or instrument indicating an intent to revoke the first will, the question whether the destruction of such subsequent will or instrument revives the prior will is one of fact to be determined under all the circumstances of the case, and parol evidence is admissible as tending to show the party's intent in such destruction. Ibid.

SEC. 3278. Executors.

The brother of a testator having no interest in the estate other than as devisee cannot object to the confirmation of the executor named in the will without showing that such person is not proper for appointment. In re Estate of Smale, 150–391, 130 N. W. 119.

SEC. 3279. Posthumous children. Whenever a testator shall have a legitimate child born after the making of a last will, either in the lifetime or after the death of such testator, and shall die leaving such child so after born, unprovided for by any settlement, and neither provided for nor mentioned in such will, every such child shall succeed to, and inherit the same interest in such parent's real and personal estate as though no will had been made, and the said interest shall be taken ratably from the interests of heirs, devisees, and legatees. [30 G. A., ch. 120, § 1; C. '73, §§ 2334–5; R. §§ 2316–17; C. '51, §§ 1284–5.]

[For repeal of original code section see § 3279-b. EDITOR.]

Before the enactment of this section, it was held that the birth of a child to a testator after the making of a will worked a revocation. Hastings v. Day, 151–39, 130 N. W. 134.

SEC. 3279-a. Claims. All claims which it becomes necessary to satisfy, and all amounts necessary to be paid from the estate of a testator in disregard of or in opposition to the provisions of a will, shall be taken ratably from the interests of heirs, devisees, and legatees. [30 G. A., ch. 120, § 2.]

SEC. 3279-b. Repeal. Section thirty-two hundred seventy-nine of the code is hereby repealed. [30 G. A., ch. 120, § 3.]

SEC. 3281. Heirs of devisee.

The provisions of this section apply as well to a devise to a class as to an individual, but such a statute does not apply where the devise is to a class to be determined only when the will takes effect. In re Nicholson's Will, 115–493, 88 N. W. 1064.

It may be provided that in the case of the death of the devisee before the will takes effect, the property so devised shall not go to the devisee's heirs but shall take such other direction as the testator may see fit to prescribe. Gilbert v. Gilbert, 127–568, 103 N. W. 789.

In such case as is contemplated in this section the property passes directly from the testator to the heirs of the devisee. In re Hulett's Estate, 121–423, 96 N. W. 952.

The devisee takes subject to the payment of debts and the proper costs of administration. Therefore the party who claims by substitution takes subject to the same debts and costs. In re Estate of Metcalf, 143–310, 120 N. W. 104.

On the death of a devisee before the death of the testator, his heirs become entitled to the devise, unless a contrary intent appears from the will itself. In re Estate of Freeman, 146–38, 124 N. W. 804.

But in a particular case held that under the provisions of a will the shares devised to particular devisees who died before the death of the testator were to be distributed among other devisees who survived the testator. Ibid.

Where the terms of the will manifested an intention on the part of the testator that on the death of a devisee named, prior to the death of the testator, the property devised should be otherwise disposed of, held that this statutory provision had no application. In re Estate of Phelps, 147–323, 126 N. W. 328.

Where a devisee claims directly under a provision of the will for his benefit as one of the class designated and described by the testator, the provisions of this section have no application. Anderson v. Wilson, 155–415, 136 N. W. 134.

SEC. 3283. Probate—jury trial.

Jurisdiction: A proceeding for the probate of a will is one of which the federal court may take jurisdiction by removal, where the requisite amount is involved and diversity of citizenship exists, as required by the federal constitution and statutes. Wart v. Wart, 117 Fed. 766.

While a probate court called upon to admit a will to probate has no occasion to place a construction upon it, nevertheless such court has jurisdiction at some time during the course of administration to interpret, and having been called upon to do so in a proceeding between the proper parties, its determination is conclusive in the adjudication of the subject matter. Therefore if, in a proceeding to probate, the court construes the will as between parties interested, no objection being made to the forum, its judgment cannot be disputed in a subsequent proceeding in equity to set the will aside or construe it. Niemand v. Seemann, 136–713, 114 N. W. 48.

Prior will: In the proceeding for the probate of a will the validity of a prior will is not in issue. Stutsman v. Sharpless, 125–335, 101 N. W. 105.

Where the probate of a will is contested on the ground of mental incapacity and contestants pray the probate of a prior will, neither will should be admitted to probate until the matter of contest is decided in a proceeding of which all parties interested have notice. In re Cahill's Estate, 155–340, 136 N. W. 214.

Contest: The widow has no such interest in the estate as entitles her to contest the probate of a will. In re Will of Fallon, 107–120, 77 N. W. 575.

One who would be entitled to share in the property of deceased in the absence of a will may contest the probate of the will and on his death the widow and heirs may be substituted. But if the will which is contested relates only to personal property, the substitution should be of the administrator or executor of the deceased contestant. In re Will of Wiltsey, 122–423, 98 N. W. 294.

Executors not otherwise interested in the will cannot protest the probate of a codicil revoking their appointment. Such action is only allowable to one who would have a beneficial interest in the estate if there was no will. In re Estate of Stewart, 107–117, 77 N. W. 574.

Anyone interested may propound a will for probate, and notice of the taking of depositions may be given by a proponent to one who has filed objections to the will and who is the chief legatee or beneficiary thereunder. In re Estate of Jones, 130–177, 106 N. W. 610.

The judgment of the court in an action by the guardian of an insane person to set aside a contract and conveyance between the ward and a beneficiary is conclusive on the question of the insanity of the ward in a subsequent proceeding to probate the will of such person, proposed by the same beneficiary claiming under such will, executed at the same time as the contract and conveyance previously in question. In re Hendershott's Estate, 134–320, 111 N. W. 969.

Parties in interest may, as between themselves, waive the probate of a will and bind themselves to abide by its provisions. By such agreement, the parties are estopped to insist upon the invalidity of the will for want of probate. Farwell v. Carpenter, 142 N. W. 227.

Devisees are entitled to nothing save under the probated will and cannot contest the validity of a probate. Seery v. Murray, 107–384, 77 N. W. 1058.

Procedure: A written petition for the probate of a will is not necessary to give the court jurisdiction. Ibid.

The question of the sufficiency of the attestation, where there is a conflict in the evidence, is for the jury. In re Hull's Will, 117–738, 89 N. W. 979.

There being no controversy as to the execution of the will, the contestant is entitled to the opening and closing on the issues as to mental capacity and undue influence. In re Will of Wharton, 132–714, 109 N. W. 492.

No answer or reply on the part of proponents is required in order to raise an issue on the objections filed to the probate of the will. In re Estate of Jones, 130–177, 106 N. W. 610.

As the contest of a will is triable before a jury, the supreme court will not on appeal interfere with the verdict if there is evidence in its support. In re Hannaher's Will, 155–73, 135 N. W. 34.

Costs: The petitioners for the probate of a will in their own interests and to the end that as beneficiaries named in the instrument they may share in the distribution of the estate are not entitled to have the costs of the proceeding taxed against the estate if the probate of the proposed will is denied. Beebe v. McFaul, 125–514, 110 N. W. 267.

Where it appears that the proponent has acted in good faith in proposing the will for probate, he should not be charged with the costs of the contest, although probate of the will is refused. Lingle v. Lingle, 121–133, 96 N. W. 708.

There is no impropriety in attempting to uphold what is in good faith believed to be a valid will, and the costs of the contest should not be taxed to the party making such contention, but to the estate of the person whose will is contested. Kirsher v. Kirsher, 120–337, 94 N. W. 846.

The costs may properly be taxed to the proponent where the trial is simply a contest between proponent claiming the estate of deceased under the will and contestants claiming it as heirs at law and next of kin, and the probate of the will is denied. In re Hendershott's Estate, 134–320, 111 N. W. 969.

Where the executor named contests the will and no one appears as proponent, the widow may act as proponent; and if the contest is successful, she may be allowed out of the estate her reasonable expense and attorney's fees. But if the contest is substantially one of personal interest between the contestant and the widow, the attorney's fees of the widow acting as proponent are not usually allowed out of the estate. In re Estate of Berry, 154–301, 134 N. W. 867.

SEC. 3284. Notice of hearing. The clerk shall give notice of the time fixed, by publishing a notice, signed by himself and addressed to all whom it may concern, in a daily or weekly newspaper printed in the county where the will is filed, once each week, for three consecutive weeks, the last publication of which shall be at least ten days before the time fixed for such hearing, and the court in its discretion may prescribe a different notice. [30 G. A., ch. 2, § 11; C. '73, § 2341; R. § 2326; C. '51, § 1294.]

SEC. 3287. Recorded—executor to have copy. After being proved and allowed, the will, together with the certificate hereinbefore required, shall be recorded in a book kept for that purpose, and the clerk shall cause the same, or an authenticated copy thereof, to be placed in the hands of the executor therein named or otherwise appointed. And whenever it shall appear that the testator died seized of real estate located in a county of this state other than that in which probate is granted, a complete transcript, properly authenticated, and of the record entry of the order of court admitting the will to probate, and if a copy of such will is not contained therein a certified copy of such will, shall be attached thereto and the same shall be filed by the clerk in the office of the clerk of the district court in such other county, who shall cause the same to be entered in the probate docket, and said transcript shall be recorded in full in the book kept for the recording of wills in such county, and when so recorded such record may be read in evidence in all courts without further proof. The cost of such transcript and of the recording thereof shall be taxed against the estate of the decedent unless administration thereof is closed, in which event it shall be paid by the owner of the real estate involved. [29 G. A., ch. 134, § 1; C. '73, § 2343–4; R. §§ 2327, 2330; C.'51, §§ 1295, 1298.]

SEC. 3290. Vacancies.

This section does not apply to one named as executor in the will but not appointed by the court. In re Estate of Van Vleck, 123–89, 98 N. W. 557.

The court is not required to appoint the executor named. Ibid.

In the event of a vacancy in the position of executor the court has power to appoint a successor with all the authority of his predecessor and the person thus appointed is entitled to receive from his predecessor all the assets of the estate held by him as executor or administrator as the case may be, including funds which the executor was authorized to hold for a special purpose. The legatees and distributees are not compelled to look to the predecessor for their shares of the estate which have come into his hands. Ellyson v. Lord, 124–125, 99 N. W. 582.

SEC. 3291. How filled.

A discretionary power to sell real estate given to the person named as executor by reason of personal trust and confidence cannot be exercised by the administrator with will annexed, but if it appears from the terms of the will that the executor as such and not the person named as executor and thereby made a trustee is charged with the duty of such sale, held that the successor appointed by the court may exercise the power thus conferred. Ellyson v. Lord, 124–125, 99 N. W. 582.

SEC. 3293. Trustees to give bond.

While a person designated by the will as executor may be given a personal trust with reference to the disposition of the property of the testator which cannot be exercised by a substituted executor appointed by the court, if it appears that the power given is conferred upon the executor as such, it may be exercised by a successor duly appointed. Ellyson v. Lord, 124–125, 99 N. W. 582.

A corporation may be appointed trustee for beneficiaries under the provisions of a will. State v. Higby Co., 130–69, 106 N. W. 382.

The allowance to the trustees of the estate may properly be made chargeable upon the estate itself. Parkhill v. Doggett, 150–442, 130 N. W. 411.

The power to remove trustees appointed by will or deed is exercised sparingly by the courts and to justify such action, there must appear the clear necessity to save the trust property. It seems that if a trustee fails to discharge his duties from an honest mistake or a mere misundertanding of them, or from misjudgment, this is no ground for removal unless such failure shows a want of the proper capacity to execute his duties. Waller v. Hosford, 152–176, 130 N. W. 1093.

SEC. 3294. Foreign wills—probated in other states.

To justify a finding that the probate of a will in another state was not conclusive in this state on the ground that the court of such other state had not jurisdiction by reason of the nonresidence of the testator, the burden is upon those resisting the validity of the probate proceeding to prove that the testator had not acquired a residence in that state. But under the evidence held that the showing in that respect was sufficient. Sullivan v. Kenney, 148–361, 126 N. W. 349.

SEC. 3295-a. Sale of real estate by foreign executors—legalized. All conveyances of real property heretofore executed by executors or trustees under foreign wills and prior to expiration of three months after the recording of a duly authenticated copy of the will, original record of appointment, qualification, and bond, as required by chapter one hundred sixty-two, acts of the eighteenth general assembly, are hereby legalized and declared as valid and effectual in law as though the provisions of said chapter had been strictly followed, provided the proper proof of authority was a matter of record in the office of the clerk of the district court in the county where the real property is situated, at the time the conveyance was executed, or was so made a matter of record prior to the passage of this act; provided, nothing in this act shall in any manner affect pending litigation. [27 G. A., ch. 182, § 1.]

SEC. 3295-b. Same—prior to 1913. All conveyances of real property made prior to January first, nineteen hundred thirteen, by executors or trustees under foreign wills and prior to the expiration of three months after the recording of a duly authenticated copy of the will, original record of appointment, qualification and bond, as required by the provisions of section thirty-two hundred ninety-five of the code, are hereby legalized and declared as valid and effective in law as though the provisions of said section had been strictly followed, provided the proper proof of authority was a matter of record in the office of the clerk of the district court in the county where the real property is situated, at the time the conveyance was executed, or was made a matter of record prior to the passage of this act; provided that nothing in this act shall affect pending litigation. [35 G. A., ch. 272, § 12; 34 G. A., ch. 157, § 1.]

SEC. 3295-c. Same. All conveyances of real property made prior to January first, nineteen hundred thirteen, by executors or trustees under foreign wills and prior to the date upon which such will was admitted to probate in Iowa or prior to the expiration of three months after the recording of a duly authenticated copy of such will, original record of appointment, qualification and bond as required by the provisions of section thirty-two hundred ninety-five of the code, and in which such will was subsequent to said conveyance, probated in Iowa or shall hereafter be probated in Iowa, and in which a duly authenticated copy of the will, original record of appointment, qualification and bond as required by said section thirty-two hundred ninety-five was subsequent to such conveyance, or shall be hereafter made a matter of record as provided in said section thirty-two hundred ninety-five, are hereby legalized and declared as valid and effectual in law and in equity as though such will had been probated in Iowa prior to such conveyance and as though the provisions of said section thirty-two hundred ninety-five had been strictly complied with; provided, nothing in this act shall affect[1] pending litigation. [35 G. A., ch. 273, § 1.]

SEC. 3296. Probate conclusive—setting aside.

It is not true that whenever a will has been probated, whether with or without a contest, the order admitting it to probate can only be set aside in an equitable action. Kirsher v. Kirsher, 120–337, 94 N. W. 846.

The burden is on the party suing to have probate of the will set aside to show that the instrument was not properly executed. Smith v. Ryan, 136–335, 112 N. W. 8.

In an action to set aside the probate of a will, the defendants having by counterclaim or cross-petition asked to have the will confirmed, the court has no jurisdiction on dismissal of the action by plaintiff to proceed with the entry of a decree confirming the will, and thus cutting off a future action to set aside the probate. Davis v. Preston, 129–670, 106 N. W. 151.

One who is not made a party to the proceedings to probate a will is not bound by the result of such proceedings. Busse v. Schaeffer, 128–319, 103 N. W. 947.

All matters which might properly have been determined in the probate proceedings are adjudicated in the order therein and cannot again be litigated in an equity case. In re Estate of Brown, 139–219, 117 N. W. 260.

A will having been once duly admitted to probate, its due execution is presumed and the burden of showing want of testamentary capacity is on those who seek to have the probate set aside. Convey v. Murphy, 146–154, 124 N. W. 1073.

The admission of a will to probate without contest is a preliminary order and judgment which effects a prima-facie establishment of the instrument and gives the court and executor authority to proceed with the administration and settlement of the estate, but does not operate to cut off the right of contest in an original action within the statutory period of limitation. Kelly v. Kelly, 157– —, 138 N. W. 851.

An order of a probate court admitting a will to probate is effective throughout the state and may not be attacked collaterally. Erwin v. Fillenwarth, 137 N. W. 502.

In an action to set aside the probate of a will on the ground of want of mental capacity, the plaintiff cannot rely on want of proper execution of the instrument, such ground not having been raised in his petition. Wendt v. Foss, 140 N. W. 881.

The burden of proving that the will admitted to probate was not duly executed is upon the plaintiff. Ibid.

SEC. 3297. Administration granted.

The right to administer upon the estate does not give the widow such interest as to entitle her to contest the probate of a will. In re Will of Fallon, 107–120, 77 N. W. 575.

Until the will is proven, general administration of the estate of the decedent cannot be granted. Alice E. Mining Co. v. Blanden, 136 Fed. 252.

A foreign court acquires no jurisdiction to administer on the estate of a resident of this state. In re Estate of Williams, 130–553, 107 N. W. 608.

An administrator appointed in this state cannot by voluntary appearance in a court of another state confer jurisdiction upon the latter court to administer the estate. Ibid.

A court of equity may prohibit creditors residing in this state from prosecuting claims against the estate of a resident decedent in the courts of a foreign state. Ibid.

Mere nonresidence alone does not disqualify one from being appointed administrator of an estate within this state. The fact of nonresidence is to be considered merely in connection with the ability, character for integrity, etc., of the proposed appointee. Foley v. Cudahy Packing Co., 119–246, 93 N. W. 284.

Where the decedent left surviving him a son, held that the brother of decedent was not next of kin, and administration might properly be given to one recommended by the son. In re Estate of Weaver, 140–615, 119 N. W. 69.

While the statute does not specify what estates are subject to administration in the probate court, yet so long as the period for granting administration has not expired the heirs of a deceased person are not entitled of their own right to an interest in the personal property. If there are no debts, administration need not be granted unless the heirs are unable to agree as to the distribution of the property. In re Estate of Acken, 144–519, 123 N. W. 187.

Two purposes are to be subserved in granting administration: one to collect the assets and pay the debts, funeral expenses, etc., and the other to collect the assets and make proper distribution thereof to those entitled thereto. Ibid.

While intent is not alone sufficient to establish change of residence, yet the intent to remove may be shown as bearing on the question whether a subsequent removal corresponding with such intent was voluntary and constituted a change of residence. In re Estate of Murray, Scrimgeour v. Chase, 145–368, 124 N. W. 193.

If there is a removal with definite intention to abandon the former residence, it is immaterial what the intent is as to the length of residence to which the removal relates. Ibid.

The brother of testator has not, as such, any ground for objecting to the appointment, as executor, of the person named in the will. In re Estate of Smale, 150–391, 130 N. W. 119.

As decedent's widow is entitled to preference in the appointment of an administrator, she can only be removed for cause shown. Fry v. Fry, 155–254, 135 N. W. 1095.

SEC. 3299. Special administrators.

A special administrator is without authority to enter into a compromise of a claim under a policy of life insurance. Rauen v. Prudential Ins. Co., 129–725, 106 N. W. 198.

A special administrator has no authority with reference to debts due to the deceased. Garretson v. Kinkead, 118–383, 92 N. W. 55.

A special administrator cannot bring action against an administrator previously appointed for conversion of property of the deceased, but the conversion by the administrator must be reached by proceedings relative to his accounting. Ibid.

Where the person named in the will as executor procured appointment as temporary administrator, held that the brother of the testator, having no interest in the estate save as devisee, had no ground of complaint. In re Estate of Smale, 150–391, 130 N. W. 119.

SEC. 3300. Inventory—preservation of property.

A special administrator has no power to submit a claim against the estate to arbitration. He has nothing to do with the allowance of claims. Sullivan v. Nicoulin, 113–76, 84 N. W. 978.

SEC. 3301. Bond—oath.

Failure to give bond as required by statute is not jurisdictional, and the defect may be cured by the giving and approval of a bond after objection on that ground has been raised. In re Wiltsey's Will, 135–430, 109 N. W. 776.

Both principal and sureties are estopped from denying the validity of the appointment and insisting that the court had not jurisdiction of the estate. Nash v. Sawyer, 114–742, 87 N. W. 707.

Naming a person as executor does not make him executor in fact upon the testator's death, but ordinarily gives him the right only to become such by compliance with the provisions of the statute. Burlington Prot. Hosp. Assn. v. Gerlinger, 111–293, 82 N. W. 765.

An additional bond given by order of the court is security with the original bond for the final accounting by the administrator for all funds coming into his hands during the administration, and it is immaterial whether the funds which he fails to account for were received before or after the execution of the bond. Ellyson v. Lord, 124–125, 99 N. W. 582.

The sureties are liable for interest from the date of the failure of the administrator to account and if his delinquency exceeds the amount of bond, then the sureties are liable for the principal named in the bond with interest from the date of administrator's failure to account. Ibid.

The sureties on the administrator's bond are liable for the proceeds of property directed to be set apart as a special fund and held in trust, until so set apart and invested with the approval of the court. Ibid.

Although the court has approved the setting aside of a fund to be held by the executor as trustee for purposes designated by the will, until such funds are actually set aside so as to charge the executor therewith, the liability of sureties on his executor's bond as to the funds thus set aside is not terminated. Ibid.

The administrator de bonis non is entitled to the custody of funds which have come into the hand of the executor in pursuance of his appointment and the sureties on the bond of the executor are liable in a suit by the administrator de bonis non. Ibid.

The sufficiency of the bond cannot be questioned in a collateral proceeding. The authority of the court to appoint does not rest upon the bond. Beresford v. American Coal Co., 124–34, 98 N. W. 902.

While there may be successive bonds remaining in full force and effect under which sureties are entitled to contribution, yet where a new bond was required by way of substitution, held that the sureties on such new bond had no right of contribution as against the sureties on the preceding bond. Bankers' Surety Co. v. Wyman, 141–574, 120 N. W. 116.

In an action on the bond the courts will not inquire into the justice of a claim passed upon in final settlement of the estate. Tucker v. Stewart, 147-294, 126 N. W. 183.

The fact that sureties on the bond have relied upon an order made in final settlement disallowing a claim does not however prevent their being subsequently held liable in an action on the bond after the disallowance of such claim has been in proper proceedings set aside and the claim has been allowed. Ibid.

Heirs or legatees discovering fraudulent credits in the final report of an administrator are not required to bring action upon the bond, but they may await the final determination of litigation involving the validity of the claim. Ibid.

Moreover, there may be several breaches of the bond growing out of the same transaction. Ibid.

The liability of the administrator is at all times the measure of the liability of his sureties, and so long as there remains any duty which the administrator is legally bound to perform, the bond continues as security for the performance of such duty. Ibid.

SEC. 3303. Letters.

Administration necessary: In general, the rights of claimants to the property of a deceased person are to be determined through an administration upon his estate, and not in a proceeding for the settlement of the guardianship of such deceased person. In re Guardianship of Lindsay, 132–119, 109 N. W. 473.

Appointment of administrator: The validity of the appointment of an administrator can only be raised in a direct proceeding and cannot be collaterally questioned. Seery v. Murray, 107–384, 77 N. W. 1058.

The court may appoint an administrator without written application. A petition is not necessary to give the court jurisdiction. Ibid.

Powers and liabilities: The executor cannot be said to be interested in the estate and cannot contest the probate of a codicil. In re Estate of Stewart, 107–117, 77 N. W. 574.

An administrator may not, in the absence of statutory authority, bind the estate by his contract, even when, in performing the duties of administration, expenses are necessarily incurred for services rendered or purchases made, but parties with whom the administrator deals must look to him personally for compensation, and no action therefor can be maintained against the estate, though the claim be valid. Valley Nat. Bank v. Crosby, 108–651, 79 N. W. 383.

Parties have been permitted to maintain equitable actions on contracts with the administrator directly against the estate where, because of his insolvency, or some other sufficient reason, their remedy against him is inadequate, but this is always based on a quantum meruit, or benefit received by the estate. Ibid.

An administrator cannot make a binding contract as to the fee to be paid to an attorney for prosecuting a claim for injuries causing the death of deceased. Rickel v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co., 112–148, 83 N. W. 957.

It is doubtful whether an administrator or executor, without the court's approval, has any power to submit controversies as to claims against the estate to arbitration. Sullivan v. Nicoulin, 113–76, 84 N. W. 978.

The administrator of an estate may maintain an action against decedent's grantee to set aside a conveyance, if in fraud of decedent's creditors. Mallow v. Walker, 115–238, 88 N. W. 452.

An executor may as such properly deposit funds in a bank and the estate will not become a preferred creditor of the bank for the amount of funds thus deposited. Officer v. Officer, 120–389, 94 N. W. 947.

Where the will directs the sale of land, without giving discretion to the executor, or authorizing action by his successors, it does not create a trust in the executor, and his authority with reference to the land is terminated by his ceasing to be executor. Especially is this true where the will directs the conversion of land into money for the purpose of distribution. Boland v. Tiernay, 118–59, 91 N. W. 836.

Even though the will gives the executor a right to exercise a discretion as to the time or method of sale of the land, yet, if the power to sell is annexed to the office of executor and created to enable the executor to perform the duties imposed upon him by the will, his authority is that of executor only, and not of trustee. Ibid.

Where a husband was made his wife's sole legatee, and the executor had authority to carry out a contract of sale of her real property, including the homestead, held that his action as executor in completing such sale would not constitute an election to take under the will so as to preclude him from treating the consideration as proceeds of the homestead and using the same to purchase a new homestead exempt from his debts. Milner v. Davis, 120–231, 94 N. W. 511.

Those entitled to share in the distribution of an intestate's estate, in the absence of any indebtedness, may agree to a settlement and distribution without administration, and an administrator subsequently appointed cannot recover the assets from those to whom it has been distributed pursuant to the agreement. Douglas v. Albrecht, 130–132, 106 N. W. 354.

An administrator is not held personally liable where he has acted in good faith and with ordinary care and prudence in the management of an estate, and he is not liable for loss or depreciation in the value of the property in the absence of a showing of bad faith or negligence. The administrator is entitled to his expenses in caring for crops, etc., upon leased premises. In re Estate of Ring, 132–216, 109 N. W. 710.

Actions against: A judgment against an executor who has been discharged is of no validity unless against him personally. Applegate v. Applegate, 107–312, 78 N. W. 34.

An administrator who is entitled to a share in the property of the estate cannot be garnished for such share in order to subject it to the payment of a debt due by him personally. In such case equitable proceedings to subject the property to the payment of his debt may be maintained. Cassady v. Grimmelman, 108–695, 77 N. W. 1067.

Even where the executor has power in the absence of an order of court to settle a controversy respecting the property of the estate in his charge, he cannot delegate such power to another. Williamson v. Robinson, 134–345, 111 N. W. 1012.

The authorities are in conflict as to whether a contract to relinquish the right to administration of an estate is void. Aughey v. Windrem, 137–315, 114 N. W. 1047.

The appointment of an administrator is not subject to collateral attack. Erwin v Fillenwarth, 137 N. W. 502.

Where a power of sale is vested in the executor and has been exercised, it is not necessary to set aside the sale for error therein if the rights of the parties can be secured and enforced without doing so by provisions as to distribution of the proceeds. Blain v. Dean, 142 N. W. 418.

SEC. 3304. Notice of appointment.

The fact of publication is not in itself sufficient to give rise to the presumption that the proper order or direction was made by the clerk. McConaughy v. Wilsey, 115–589, 88 N. W. 1101.

It is not necessary that there be any recorded order of court with reference to publication of notice of the issuance of letters of administration, and an endorsement of such order on the letters, made and signed by the clerk, is sufficient, although the order purports to be the order of the court. Mosher v. Goodale, 129–719, 106 N. W. 195.

SEC. 3305. Limitation. Administration shall not be originally granted after five years from the death of the decedent, or from the time his death was known, in case he died out of the state. But when personal property belonging to the estate of decedent is discovered after the expiration of said five years, administration may be granted after the five year limit, for the purpose only of making proper disposition and distribution thereof. [33 G. A., ch. 199, § 1.] [C. '73, § 2367; R. § 2357; C. '51, § 1325.]

After the expiration of the five years allowed for granting letters of administration, the personal estate of the decedent, if any, vests absolutely in his heirs. Therefore a mere stranger cannot after this period procure letters of administration to be granted for the purpose of subjecting the realty to the payment of claims. Cummings v. Lynn, 121–344, 96 N. W. 857.

Where the decedent does not die out of the state, knowledge of the claimant as to the time of his death is immaterial in determining the time within which administration may be granted. German v. Heath, 139–52, 116 N. W. 1051.

SEC. 3306. Foreign administration.

Funds which have been sent into the state for investment by an agent and have thus become subject to taxation, as provided in code § 1320, continue to be taxable here until removed from the state in the process of administration. In re Miller's Estate, 116–446, 90 N. W. 89.

An administrator appointed in another state may sue in this state for injuries causing the death of the intestate in another state without complying with these provisions, where it appears that no administration has been granted in this state and that by the laws of the state where the injury occurred the administrator is trustee for the widow and children. Knight v. Moline, E. M. & W. R. Co., 140 N. W. 839.

SEC. 3307. Estates of absentees—letters of administration. That section thirty-three hundred and seven of the supplement to the code, 1907, be and the same is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:[1]

When a resident of this state owning property therein, or any person who may have been a resident of this state, has acquired or may hereafter acquire property or property rights within the state, absents himself from his usual place of residence and conceals his whereabouts from his family without known cause for a period of seven years or any such person who has gone to parts unknown for a period of ten years, a petition may be filed in the district court of any county where such property or a part thereof is situated, setting forth such facts, by any person entitled to administer upon such absentee's estate if he was known to be dead, and setting forth the names of the persons who would be the legal heirs of the absentee if he were dead, so far as known, and praying for the issuance of letters of administration upon such estate; thereupon, said court shall prescribe a notice addressed to such absentee and heirs named, and order the same to be published in a newspaper published in said county to be designated by the court, once each week for eight consecutive weeks, and which shall be served personally upon all the heirs residing within the state in the manner, and for the length of time as is required for the service of original notices, proof of the publication and service of which in manner and for the time ordered shall, at the expiration of said period be filed with said petition, and thereupon if such absentee fails to appear, the court shall hear the proof presented, and if satisfied of the truth of the facts set forth in the petition concerning the absentee, shall order letters of administration upon the estate of such absentee to issue as though he were known to be dead. The court shall also hear proof and determine who the legal heirs of such absentee are and their respective interests in such estate. [33 G. A., ch. 200, § 1.] [31 G. A., ch. 9, § 9.]

[1]Substitute continues to and including § 3307-b. EDITOR.

The statutory provision for administration on the estate of one who has absented himself from the state for seven years, concealing his whereabouts, is constitutional, and such administration is conclusive, although the supposed decedent is afterwards found to be alive. Therefore, the administrator appointed in such proceeding has authority to receive insurance money under policies in favor of his estate. New York Life Ins. Co. v. Chittenden, 134–613, 112 N. W. 96.

SEC. 3307-a. Sale of property—disposition of proceeds. The person to whom the administration is granted shall proceed to administer and dispose of the estate in the same manner that administrators are required to dispose of and administer the estates of decedents. In addition thereto, such administrator may, under the orders of the court, sell and dispose of all real estate and other property owned by such absentee, and after the payment of legal costs, expenses and claims, make distribution of the proceeds thereof to the persons entitled thereto. The provisions of law regarding application, notice and manner of sale of real estate for the payment of debts by administrators shall be followed so far as applicable. [33 G. A., ch. 200, § 2.]

SEC. 3307-b. Rights of absentee barred—conveyance by spouse. Administration upon the estate of an absentee shall forever bar his or her right of homestead and statutory distributive share or interest in and to any real estate owned or held by the spouse of such absentee, or in which said spouse may have a legal or equitable interest, and a conveyance thereof by such spouse after one year from and after such administration has been granted, shall be free and clear of any claim or right of homestead or statutory distributive share on the part of such absentee. [35 G. A., ch. 274, § 1.]

SEC. 3308. Releases of liens by foreign administrator, executor or guardian—certificate. That section thirty-three hundred and eight of the code is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"Any administrator, executor or guardian appointed by the courts of any other state or county[1] is authorized to release and discharge of record in any manner and by any instrument authorized by law to the same extent as any such officer appointed under the laws of this state could do, any judgment rendered by the supreme court or by any court of any county where such judgment is a lien on property, or any mortgage or deed of trust given as a mortgage on property within this state belonging to the estate or to the minor or other person represented by him, and may also release and discharge any property in this state from the lien of such judgment, mortgage or deed of trust; but such release shall not be valid or effective unless there is filed either before or after the execution thereof, in the office of the clerk of the district court of the county in this state wherein the property sought to be released is situated, the certificate of the judge or clerk of the proper court, duly attested, that said executor, administrator or guardian was prior to the date of such release or instrument appointed such officer by such court and that, as shown by the records of such court, he had not been discharged before that date; but nothing herein contained shall authorize any administrator, executor or guardian of another state or county[1] to release or discharge any judgment, mortgage or deed of trust in this state while any administrator, executor or guardian of the estate to which such judgment, mortgage or deed of trust belongs, is authorized to act by virtue of appointment, and qualification under the laws thereof." [35 G. A., ch. 275, § 1.] [25 G. A., ch. 51; 21 G. A., ch. 103.]

[1]Evidently should be "country", as in code § 3308. The records show "country" in the original bill and "county" in the enrolled bill. EDITOR.]

SEC. 3308-a. Releases and discharges of judgments — legalized. All releases and discharges of judgments, mortgages or deeds of trust affecting[1] property in this state made prior to January first, nineteen hundred and three, by administrators, executors or guardians appointed by the court of any other state or country without complying with the provisions of section thirty-three hundred and eight of the code are hereby legalized and declared as valid and effective in law and in equity as though the provisions of said section had been strictly followed; provided that nothing in this act shall affect[2] pending litigation. [35 G. A., ch. 276, § 1.]

CHAPTER 3.

OF THE SETTLEMENT OF ESTATES.

SECTION 3310. Inventory.

While it is made the duty of the executor under the collateral inheritance law to file an inventory of real and personal property, the state treasurer has no interest to enforce the performance of this duty unless by the provisions of the will some property or interest therein passes to a collateral heir in such way as to become subject to the tax. While it is the duty of the executor to file an inventory of the personal effects of the deceased without regard to any provision of the collateral inheritance tax law, that is not a duty in the performance of which the state treasurer has any interest. In re Estate of Stone, 132–136, 109 N. W. 455.

The administrator is entitled to take possession and control of leasehold interests of decedent and crops growing unharvested on his land at the time of his death, especially where his interest therein is a leasehold interest only. In re Estate of Ring, 132–216, 109 N. W. 710.

It is the duty of the court to order the filing of an inventory, no matter from what source complaint for failure to do so comes. In re Estate of Duncanson, 141–564, 120 N. W. 88.

SEC. 3311. Appraisement. All property inventoried by the executor or administrator shall be valued by three appraisers, who shall be appointed immediately on the filing of the inventory unless the court or judge or clerk of the district court in vacation shall by an order entered of record waive the valuation of the property so inventoried. The clerk shall issue to them a notice of their appointment, accompanied by a copy of the inventory returned by the executor or administrator, and they shall qualify by taking an oath faithfully and impartially to make the required valuation, and in making the same they shall fix a value to each item of property separately as it appears in the inventory. If any portion of the decedent's personal property is situated in another county, the same appraisers may serve, or others may be appointed. [33 G. A., ch. 201, § 1.] [C. '73, §§ 2373–4, 2378; R. §§ 2363–4; C. '51, §§ 1331–2.]

SEC. 3312. Exempt personal property.

The widow does not waive her right to exemptions allowed to the husband as head of the family by failure to object to their appraisement as a part of the property of the deceased. In re Estate of Ring, 132–216, 109 N. W. 710.

The widow is entitled to have set apart to her as exempt the animals and feed therefor exempted to her deceased husband under code § 4008. In re Estate of Irwin, Conkey v. Irwin, 152–323, 131 N. W. 57.

SEC. 3313. Life insurance — damages for death — widow deemed heir.

Insurance: Where the policy or certificate provides for the payment of the insurance money to the "legal heirs" of insured, the amount due in case of loss does not belong to the estate of the decedent, and the administrator of his estate is not entitled to recover. Schoep v. Bankers' Alliance Ins. Co., 104–354, 73 N. W. 825.

Where the indemnity under a policy of life insurance is expressly made payable to the executors or administrators of the insured, a release given by the widow as special administratrix and in her own right is ineffectual. Rauen v. Prudential Ins. Co., 129–725, 106 N. W. 198.

In the absence of special contract or arrangement with the deceased for the payment of the proceeds of life insurance to his creditors, the widow and heirs are entitled thereto exempt from the debts of the deceased. In re Estate of Donaldson, 126–174, 101 N. W. 870.

Damages for wrongful death: The statute allowing recovery in behalf of the estate against one whose wrongful act has caused the death of the intestate does not create a new right of action, but abrogates the common-law rule by which an existing cause of action is terminated on the death of the party entitled to recover. The fact that the persons entitled to participate in the distribution of the estate are nonresident aliens does not prevent the recovery of such damages by the administrator of the estate. Romano v. Capital City Brick & Pipe Co., 125–591, 101 N. W. 437; Rietveld v. Wabash R. Co., 129–249, 105 N. W. 515.

A man's life, health and future prospects are things having pecuniary value to him, and death by the wrongful act of another occasions a pecuniary loss to his estate for which an action will lie in favor of his administrator. Therefore, held that a bequest of all the testator's estate to his wife was held to cover damages which should be recovered by his administrator against one whose wrongful act had caused his death. In re Estate of Cook, 126–158, 101 N. W. 747.

The funds coming into the hands of the administrator as the result of a claim for the wrongful death of intestate are to be distributed to the heirs and next of kin free from any claim for debts due to either resident or nonresident creditors. In re Estate of Williams, 130–553, 107 N. W. 608.

Money recovered for the death of a person leaving a father and mother, and no wife or child, immediately descends to the father and mother in equal shares, and their interest therein may, after the payment of the judgment into court, be applied in payment of a judgment against them. Cassady v. Grimmelman, 108–695, 77 N. W. 1067.

The distribution of damages recovered on account of injuries causing death is to be determined by the law of the place where the injuries complained of were inflicted. In re Estate of Coe, 130–307, 106 N. W. 743.

Although code § 2403 forbids the sale of intoxicating liquors to an habitual drunkard or to an intoxicated person, and § 2448 subjects one who makes such sales to forfeiture, the administrator of the estate of one who dies by reason of purchasing and drinking liquor sold to him in violation of these provisions cannot maintain an action against the seller of the liquor to recover for the estate damages for causing the death of the person to whom the liquor was sold. Bissell v. Starzinger, 112–266, 83 N. W. 1065.

The cause of action for an injury resulting in death vests in the administrator upon his appointment, in trust for the widow and children where there are no creditors. Flynn v. Chicago G. W. R. Co., 141 N. W. 401.

SEC. 3314. Allowance to widow and children.

The claim of the widow for allowance of support is contingent and uncertain until judicially determined, and her claim thereto abates with her death. Zunkel v. Colson, 109–695, 81 N. W. 175.

The provision of this section for allowance to a widow for a year's support is not a mere charity, but should have a liberal construction to promote the purpose of its enactment. Such allowance should be made even though the widow has independent means, if her income is insufficient for her support without resort to the principal fund. Busby v. Busby, 120–536, 95 N. W. 191.

The allowance to the widow is not a mere charity, nor is it to be limited to the bare necessities of food, drink and clothing. Whatever is reasonably necessary to keep her for a year in the station in life in which her marriage had placed her, and not out of just proportion to the property left by her husband, is proper. The fact that she has a small estate of her own is no reason for denying such allowance. Rankin v. Rankin, 139 N. W. 1079.

The fact that the widow in a proceeding for an allowance lists certain property as belonging to her deceased husband does not estop her from afterwards asserting title thereto. Matheson v. Matheson, 139–511, 117 N. W. 755.

An antenuptial contract cutting off the wife's entire prospective interest in her husband's estate does not cut off her right to a widow's allowance under this section. The widow's right to an allowance is in no sense an interest in the estate of her husband. In re Estate of Miller, 143–120, 121 N. W. 700.

The allowance to the widow is not defeated by the fact that it is not paid until after the expiration of the year and until after her death. Any balance remaining unpaid after her death is recoverable by her administrator. In re Estate of Rice, 146–48, 124 N. W. 792.

Election to accept the benefit of the provisions of the will does not prevent the widow from having an allowance under this section. The amount of such allowance does not become a part of the estate for distribution, nor is the right to it an interest in the estate. In re Estate of Hamilton, 148–127, 126 N. W. 776.

By no provision in an antenuptial contract can the right of the widow to an allowance be relinquished or cut off; but the circumstances, including the provisions of the contract itself, may be taken into account in determining whether an allowance should be made. In re Estate of Johnson, 154–118, 134 N. W. 553; In re Estate of Uker, 154–428, 134 N. W. 1061.

SEC. 3315. Discovery of assets.

An appeal will lie from an order made under a statutory provision in relation to the examination of one claimed to have in his possession the effects of the deceased, and likewise from an order granting a retrial in such a proceeding. In re Behren's Estate, 104–29, 73 N. W. 351.

One who is made defendant in a proceeding for the discovery of property, and after answering takes no further part in the proceedings, is not bound as to any rights he may have in the property by the adjudication of the probate court on an issue not involving such rights. Milburn v. East, 128–101, 102 N. W. 1116.

The proceeding contemplated by this question is inquisitorial in its nature and the court or judge is authorized only to determine whether there is any issue of fact as to the possession claimed for the estate. If no such issue is developed, the property should be ordered turned over to the administrator and such an order constitutes an adjudication. Barto v. Harrison, 138–413, 116 N. W. 317.

The probate court may determine that the possession of property by a person called on to account therefor after refusal of demand for its delivery is wrongful although it was rightful in its inception. In re Elliott's Estate, 140 N. W. 200.

SEC. 3317. Subjecting real estate.

Where the property of deceased does not appear to be sufficient for the payment of his debts, the court or judge may direct the administrator to file a petition in equity to secure to the estate the title of any real estate which in the event of the insufficiency of the personal property may be subjected for the payment of debts. Such an action is to be instituted in the district court of the county in which an equitable action to subject the property of the decedent to the payment of claims against him may be brought under the general statutes relating to the place of bringing action. Long v. Garey Inv. Co., 135–398, 112 N. W. 550.

The fact that a testator has left real property is no ground for granting administration on his estate if it appears that there are no debts to the satisfaction of which such property is to be applied. In re Estate of Acken, 144–519, 123 N. W. 187.

SEC. 3322. Sale of personal property.

With reference to the sale of property directed by the testator, the duty of the executor is simply to carry out the provisions of the will, and in respect thereto he is subject at all times to the orders of the court. In re Estate of Fisher, 128–626, 104 N. W. 1023.

Notwithstanding the provisions of this section, the administrator may dispose of the assets of the estate, including choses in action, by assignment, but he cannot, by a gratuitous assignment to the widow of a cause of action for injuries resulting in the death of the decedent, deprive the children of their interest in such cause of action. Flynn v. Chicago G. W. R. Co., 141 N. W. 401.

SEC. 3323. Sale of real estate—application.

The order for the sale of real estate standing in the name of the deceased must be obtained in the court granting administration. Long v. Garey Inv. Co., 135–398, 112 N. W. 550.

The heirs not being parties to a proceeding for the allowance of claims, are not bound by such allowance. But the allowance of claims by the probate court is sufficient prima facie as against the heirs to authorize an order for the sale of real estate to pay such claims; and it is for the heirs questioning the validity of claims on which it is proposed to make a sale, to introduce some evidence of their invalidity and thus overcome the prima-facie case made by proof of allowance. Milburn v. East, 128–101, 102 N. W. 1116.

In the absence of peculiar circumstances excusing delay, the application for sale should be made within the time allowed for filing and allowance of claims; but where the interest of the deceased in the real estate was not discovered, in the exercise of reasonable diligence, held that it was not error to order a sale more than three years after the appointment of the administrator. Ibid.

On an application for sale of real property it may be shown by way of resistance that personal property belonging to the estate is not inventoried and is in the hands of the administrator and would be sufficient to pay the debts without resorting to the real estate. Duffield v. Walden, 102–676, 72 N. W. 278.

Although there is no showing as to the disposition of the personalty, an order for the sale of realty, although irregular, will not be void. Cheney v. McColloch, 104–249, 73 N. W. 580.

Judgment for the sale of real property on the application of the administrator to pay debts of the estate bars the widow's right to dower in the property sold. In re Estate of Pennock, 122–622, 98 N. W. 480.

Consent by the widow to the sale of real property for the payment of debts will estop her from asserting a dower right in the property thus sold. Ibid.

Where the real property of the deceased is sold for the payment of debts, the widow takes her one-third interest in the proceeds free from any deduction on account of taxes, repairs or expenses. But in the absence of issue the additional one sixth, which passes to her on that account, is subject to deduction for expenses of administration. Wild v. Toms, 123–747, 99 N. W. 700.

Sureties on the executor's bond are liable for the proceeds of the sale of real property in the hands of the executor, although no special bond has been given as required by statute. Ellyson v. Lord, 124–125, 99 N. W. 582.

In determining whether there are claims against the estate requiring the sale of real estate, equitable circumstances excusing the filing of such claims within the period prescribed by code § 3349 may be taken into account; but even where peculiar circumstances are shown the application for the order must be within a reasonable time. In re Estate of Brigham, Corbin v. McAllister, 144–71, 120 N. W. 1054.

Where the widow, without waiving her right to a distributive share, consents to the sale of the property for the payment of debts, with the understanding that her share is to be set off to her out of the proceeds, such share is not subject to the debts and costs of administration. Brown v. Brookhart, 146–79, 124 N. W. 882.

In a proceeding for a sale of real property for the payment of debts the question whether the property constituted a homestead may be considered. Tyrrell v. Shannon, 147–184, 123 N. W. 325.

The pendency of a partition suit is not sufficient reason for abating the application to sell real property. Mullinnix v. Brown, 151–468, 131 N. W. 671.

The fact that the property cannot be divided is a sufficient reason for not ordering a sale of a part thereof sufficient to to pay the debts. Ibid.

Real property may be ordered sold for the purpose of paying an allowance made for a monument and for funeral expenses. Ibid.

The real estate of a decedent, or its rents or profits, can only be resorted to for the satisfaction of debts for the payment of which the personal estate is inadequate, and then only on suit brought by the administrator to which the heirs are made parties and of which they have notice. In re Estate of Pitt, 153–269, 133 N. W. 660.

A sale of real property should not be ordered until the amount of the decedent's indebtedness has been ascertained. Rabbett v. Connolly, 153–607, 133 N. W. 1060.

The application by the administrator for leave to sell real property must be made promptly when it appears that resort to such property will be necessary for the payment of debts. And it will not be allowed after long delay unless the delay be excused by showing of equitable circumstances. Flora v. Brown, 140 N. W. 364.

SEC. 3324. Notice.

Estates of decedents—sale of property—notice: Where a creditor of the heir has attached the interest of the heir in real estate, and afterwards recovered judgment on his claim, he is entitled to notice of a proceeding by the administrator for the sale of the property to pay decedent's debts. Mullin v. White, 134–681, 112 N. W. 164.

Under such circumstances the judgment creditor who has received no such notice is entitled to attack the sale collaterally in a suit to subject the land to his judgment. Ibid.

A lien holder is entitled to notice of the administrator's application for an order to sell. Not having received such notice, his rights are not affected by such sale and the purchaser takes the real estate subject to the rights of the lien holder. Yoder v. Kalona Sav. Bank, 142–219, 119 N. W. 147.

Failure to give notice of the application to some party interested, does not render the proceeding entirely void and open to collateral attack at the instance of a party properly served. Mullinnix v. Brown, 151–468, 131 N. W. 671.

SEC. 3326. Public or private—notice—credit.

While the administratrix has the right to sell lands of decedent to pay the debts of the estate, she cannot sell to herself either directly or through a medium of a third person. Walker v. Walker, 127–77, 102 N. W. 435.

A purchaser at an executor's or administrator's sale to pay debts takes nothing more than the title held by the deceased and is not entitled to protection as a good faith purchaser under the recording acts; nor can he rely upon a warranty either express or implied. Stephens v. Boyd, 157– —, 138 N. W. 389.

SEC. 3328. Bond to prevent sale.

This section has no application to an action by an heir to recover property of the estate taken by a devisee. Seery v. Murray, 107–384, 77 N. W. 1058.

SEC. 3333. Possession of real property.

In the absence of heirs, the administrator has the right to take possession of the land of the deceased and receive the rents thereof, and the probate court is the proper place for an accounting for such rents. Smith v. Smith, 132–700, 109 N. W. 194.

Where an administrator in fact assumes possession and control of the real estate of the deceased, he becomes chargeable as trustee with reference thereto. Schneider v. Schneider, 125–1, 98 N. W. 159.

If the administrator, without right to do so, takes possession of real property of the deceased, he is liable individually to the heirs as trustee, but not as administrator. In re Estate of Pennock, 122–622, 98 N. W. 480.

An adjudication as to the rights of the administrator to rents and profits of real estate, acting in behalf of the heirs, is not binding as affecting title to the property. Milburn v. East, 128–101, 102 N. W. 1116.

An administrator has no claim for injuries done to the land belonging to the deceased, and cannot sue as such for trespass. Hook v. Garfield Coal Co., 112–210, 83 N. W. 963.

The administrator cannot intervene in an attachment proceeding involving the right of decedent to real property. Sammis v. Hitt, 112–664, 84 N. W. 945.

If the administrator has any power to borrow money for keeping up the condition of the real property, such power is limited to cases where due notice has been given to those entitled to the estate, and the liability of the estate is limited to the benefits received. Valley Nat. Bank v. Crosby, 108–651, 79 N. W. 383.

The administrator purporting to act for the estate or for the heirs has no power to make a dedication of real property for a street. Davis v. Bonaparte, 137–196, 114 N. W. 896.

If the administrator takes possession of real property of the deceased, he does so as the official agent of those who have become owners thereof on decedent's death. The devolution by title is not interrupted or affected by such possession. In re Estate of Pitt, 153–269, 133 N. W. 660.

Title to real estate passes to the heirs or devisees upon the death of the ancestor or testator; and save only when there is no one entitled thereto present and competent to take possession, the administrator has nothing to do with the real property of the deceased. Hatton v. Wheaton, 139 N. W. 1108.

SEC. 3334. Proceeds—account.

Without direction of the court to take charge of the real property of the deceased, the administrator has nothing to do with such property, save where there is no heir present and competent to take possession thereof, and if he does assume control of such property, his possession is that of trustee only. In re Estate of Pennock, 122–622, 98 N. W. 480.

SEC. 3336. Provisions of will.

Testator may direct the delivery of a deed after his death on the performance of specific conditions and the delivery of such deed by the executor on performance of the conditions will be sufficient to pass title. So held where a grantee named in a deed had before the death of testator made part payment under a contract to convey. Dettmer v. Behrens, 106–585, 76 N. W. 853.

SEC. 3338. Claims—statement—notice—allowance.

The bar of the statute of limitations cannot become effectual during the interval between the death of the debtor and the time when in the ordinary course of administration the claim can be filed against the administrator for allowance. Alice E. Mining Co. v. Blanden, 136 Fed. 252.

While a judgment against one who is since deceased may be enforced against the real estate upon which it is a lien without filing it as a claim against the estate, yet this must be done while the judgment lien exists. Hansen's Empire Fur Factory v. Teabout, 104–360, 73 N. W. 875.

Where a claim is filed against an estate and parties jointly liable for its payment are insisting that the estate should pay the whole claim, and that their liability in no event exceeds a portion of the amount claimed, the claim of such persons as against the estate is not one which must be filed within one year. Pratt v. Fishwild, 121–642, 96 N. W. 1089.

The mere withdrawal of a claim for the purpose of preparing a petition thereon does not amount to an abandonment of such claim. Clough v. Ide, 107–669, 78 N. W. 697.

The probate court has not exclusive jurisdiction of proof of claims against an estate, and judgment in an action in the district court against the administrator, prosecuted without objection, will be a prior adjudication and defeat a subsequent recovery in a probate court. Ibid.

In presenting a claim against an estate it is not necessary for the claimant to state its legal capacity to sue as a corporation, and denial of corporate capacity must be specific. University of Chicago v. Emmert, 108–500, 79 N. W. 285.

A remedy has sometimes been allowed against the estate on contracts made by the administrator where, by reason of his insolvency, or some other sufficient reason, a remedy against the administrator personally is inadequate, but the allowance is limited to the value accruing to the estate. Valley Nat. Bank v. Crosby, 108–651, 79 N. W. 383.

The estate cannot be bound by the contract of the administrator with reference to the attorney fee to be paid to an attorney who prosecutes a claim in behalf of the estate against a railroad company for injuries causing the death of decedent. Rickel v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co., 112–148, 83 N. W. 957.

Services rendered by an adult daughter to her father under an arrangement involving compensation for such services may properly be the subject of a claim against his estate. Harrison v. Harrison, 124–525, 100 N. W. 344.

A bank has a valid claim against the estate of a deceased officer for misappropriation of funds of the bank. McElroy v. Allfree, 131–518, 108 N. W. 119.

The clerk is expressly directed to enter upon the probate calendar the allowance of claims on the approval thereof by the administrator. Mosher v. Goodale, 129–719, 106 N. W. 195.

Receipts given by the claimant to the deceased in which it is specified that the amounts received are in full for services rendered are admissible as tending to throw discredit upon the claimant's testimony as to services for which claim is made which must have antedated the receipts. Bray v. Bray, 128–234, 103 N. W. 477.

Provisions as to the form for presenting a claim are directory only and failure to observe them will not defeat the jurisdiction of the court. Wise v. Outtrim, 139–192, 117 N. W. 264.

Provisions as to security for costs are not applicable to the prosecution of claims in probate. Ibid.

After the expiration of the period of limitations, the claimant may file a pleading setting up his original claim in a more formal manner. Ibid.

If the prayer for the allowance of a claim has by mistake stated a sum less than the real amount due it may be corrected by subsequent amendment or supplemental allegation after the time for filing claims of the class to which it pertains has expired. In re Estate of Blackman, 143–553, 120 N. W. 664.

The administrator is not necessarily bound to interpose the plea of the statute of limitations against a claim which he believes to be justly due from the estate. In re Estate of Baumhover, 151–146, 130 N. W. 817.

Where the probate court has acquired jurisdiction to pass on the validity of a claim, a court of equity has no jurisdiction to interfere on the ground that the claim was fraudulent or unjust. McIntosh v. Brown, 139 N. W. 926.

SEC. 3340. Denial. All claims filed, and not expressly admitted in writing signed by the executor or administrator, with the approbation of the court, shall be considered as denied, without any pleading on behalf of the estate, but special defenses must be pleaded. The burden of proving that a claim is unpaid shall not be placed upon the party filing a claim against the estate; but the executor or administrator may, on the trial of said cause, subject the claimant to an examination on the question of payment, or consideration, but the estate shall not be concluded or bound thereby. [35 G. A., ch. 277, § 1.] [26 G. A., ch. 75; C. '73, § 2410.]

The burden of proof, if the claim be unpaid, is on the estate. It is not necessary for the claimant to show attempts to collect, nor to show a prima-facie right to recover. Murphy v. McCarthy, 108–38, 78 N. W. 819.

The burden is upon the administrator to show a satisfaction of a claim based on a written instrument purporting to bind deceased. University of Chicago v. Emmert, 108–500, 79 N. W. 285.

Prior to the adoption of the present code there was no provision for pleading special defenses to a claim against the estate. Benton County Sav. Bank v. Strand, 106–606, 76 N. W. 1001.

The formal rules of pleading relating to allegations and denials are not applicable to the statement and denial of claims against an estate. Harrison v. Harrison, 124–525, 100 N. W. 344.

Where in defense to a claim for services rendered to the deceased at his request it is contended that the services were intended and understood to be gratuitous, that fact should be specially pleaded. Saddler v. Pickard, 142–691, 121 N. W. 374.

Where an agreement to pay the claimant for services rendered to the deceased is well established and not left to conjecture, the burden of proving nonpayment is not upon the claimant. Graham v. McKinney, 147–164, 125 N. W. 840.

It is proper to charge the jury on the trial of a claim against the estate where payment is relied upon, that the burden is upon the administration to establish the alleged payment by preponderance of the evidence. Sheldon v. Thornburg, 153–622, 133 N. W. 1076.

SEC. 3341. Hearing—trial by jury.

The county court originally exercised probate jurisdiction without jury trial, except in cases where jury trial was expressly provided for. Such jurisdiction was subsequently transferred to the circuit court and afterwards to the district court, but nothing in the acts changing the forum indicates a legislative purpose to change the mode of trial except in particular cases where jury trial is especially provided for. Duffield v. Walden, 102–676, 72 N. W. 278.

An order of court allowing a claim is in the nature of an adjudication and a party is not entitled to have it set aside and to have a retrial as to the validity of the claim as a matter of right, but must show some valid ground for setting it aside. Hendron v. Kinner, 110–544, 80 N. W. 419, 81 N. W. 783.

The proceeding as to the allowance of a contested claim is at law. Mosher v. Goodale, 129–719, 106 N. W. 195.

The allowance of a claim which is made on behalf of an executor or administrator is not conclusive on the heirs, and the validity of such allowance may subsequently be considered. McDermott v. McDermott, 138–351, 116 N. W. 122.

SEC. 3343. Contingent liabilities.

Where the deceased was surety on a bond in which the principal and sureties obligated themselves, and their "heirs, executors and administrators," liability on which bond did not accrue until after the period fixed for filing claims against the estate, held that such liability could be enforced against the estate in the hands of the distributees, although no claim under the bond had been filed within the time for settling the estate. Security F. Ins. Co. v. Hansen, 104–264, 73 N. W. 596.

The limitation as to the time for filing a claim is not controlling where the claim is contingent. Easton v. Somerville, 111–164, 82 N. W. 475.

Section applied as to contingent claims. In re Allen's Estate, 116–697, 88 N. W. 1091.

A contingent liability may be made the basis of a claim. In re Estate of Skillman, 146–601, 125 N. W. 343.

Therefore held that the contingent liability of the husband to pay the expenses of the last sickness and funeral of his wife was a claim which could be presented by him for allowance out of the wife's estate. Ibid.

Contingent liability on a guarantee bond is a contingent claim such as may be set up against the estate of the person whose obligation is guaranteed. In re Estate of Mardis, 148–740, 127 N. W. 1021.

Where such claim is filed an order should be made to protect the contingent right. Ibid.

SEC. 3344. Referees.

In view of this provision for reference by a court, it is doubtful whether an administrator or executor, without the court's approval, has any power to submit claims to arbitration. Sullivan v. Nicoulin, 113–76, 84 N. W. 978.

SEC. 3345. Actions pending.

The lien of an attachment in an action pending against the husband at the time of his death is subject to the widow's dower right in the property attached and to her right to have such property applied to the payment of an allowance for support which is made to her in the administration of the estate. Tetzloff v. May, 151–441, 131 N. W. 647.

SEC. 3346. Executor interested.

Where a temporary administrator was appointed to pass upon claims of the regular administrator against the estate, held that such temporary administrator was in error in allowing more than was claimed. Rabbett v. Connolly, 153–607, 133 N. W. 1060.

The approval of the erroneous allowance by a temporary administrator does not constitute such an adjudication as to prevent a setting aside of such allowance on a final settlement with the regular administrator. Ibid.

A motion on the final settlement of the case to set aside the allowance thus previously made, held to be a direct attack on the order of allowance. Ibid.

The fact that the widow of deceased appointed administrator of his estate procures the appointment of a special administrator to pass upon her claim against the estate is not a ground for her removal. Fry v. Fry, 155–254, 135 N. W. 1095.

SEC. 3347. Expenses of funeral—allowance to widow.

Burial expenses are not, strictly speaking, debts due from the deceased, but charges which the law, out of decency, imposes upon his estate. But such charges should be reasonable. A decent burial should comport with the social condition of the deceased and the amount of his fortune. Foley v. Brocksmit, 119–457, 93 N. W. 344.

Claims on account of the last sickness and funeral of the deceased are not barred by failure to file within a specified time, and so long as the estate is solvent and unsettled the payment may be insisted upon as against the administrator. Wolfe v. Knapp, 127–479, 103 N. W. 369.

A claim for attorney's fees for services rendered the administrator is not a claim against the estate. Clark v. Sayre, 122–591, 98 N. W. 484.

The expenses of the last sickness and funeral of a deceased wife are to be paid out of her estate as primarily liable therefor, although there may be a secondary liability on the part of the husband to pay such expense. In re Estate of Skillman, 146–601, 125 N. W. 343.

If the husband has already paid such expenses he may have the amount thus paid allowed to him out of the estate of the deceased wife. Ibid.

Where the deceased has left no personal estate from which an allowance made to the widow may be paid, real property of the deceased may be resorted to for the payment of such allowance and an attachment in a pending action against the husband is subject to the application of such property to the payment of such allowance. Tetzloff v. May, 151–441, 131 N. W. 647.

SEC. 3348. Other demands—order of payment—claims for labor.

Other demands against the estate shall be payable in the following order:

1. Debts entitled to preference under the laws of the United States;
2. Public rates and taxes;
3. Claims filed within six months after the first publication or posting of the notice given by the executors or administrators of their appointment;
4. All other debts;
5. Legacies and the distributive shares, if any.

In payment of claims of the third class all debts owing to employes for labor performed within the ninety days next preceding the death of the decedent, having been filed as by law provided, shall be preferred and paid in full before any other claims of said class are paid. If there is not sufficient property to pay said claims in full the same shall be applied ratably on all such claims. [35 G. A., ch. 278, § 1.] [C. '73, § 2420; R. § 2404; C. '51, § 1372.]

Charges of the last sickness and funeral are not included within the class of claims here enumerated. Wolfe v. Knapp, 127–479, 103 N. W. 369.

Until the time for filing claims has expired the court cannot know judicially that there are no claims against the estate. Seery v. Murray, 107–384, 77 N. W. 1058.

The filing of a claim is equivalent to the beginning of an action under the statute of limitations. Van Patten v. Waugh, 122–302, 98 N. W. 119.

Where the claim as filed was on a promissory note of which the claimant was holder, and an amendment of the claim, so as to show that the claimant was surety for the deceased on the note and had paid it, was filed, held that as the statutory limitation against a claim by the surety against the deceased had run when the amendment was filed, there could be no recovery. Ibid.

Where no other provision is made by will, the debts and charges against the estate of decedent are payable from the personal property of the estate, if it be sufficient for that purpose. Pitkin v. Peet, 108–480, 79 N. W. 272.

Under the evidence in a particular case, held that it was a question for the jury to determine whether services rendered to the deceased by a claimant were rendered by her as a member of the family of the deceased. In re Estate of Bishop, 130–250, 106 N. W. 637.

The fact that a valid claim, paid by the administrator, was not properly filed, is not ground for disallowance on the administrator's report. In re Estate of Pennock, 122–622, 98 N. W. 480.

The executor or administrator takes title to the property of the deceased as trustee for the creditors if the estate is insolvent and may assert the claims of the creditors as against an unrecorded chattel mortgage. Blackman v. Baxter, 125–118, 100 N. W. 75.

Fees and costs of administration are to be paid, even though the dividends of creditors filing claims are thereby reduced. In re Estate of Blackman, 143–553, 120 N. W. 664.

In the absence of statutory provisions, or provisions in the will directing otherwise, a decedent's property should be applied to the payment of his debts in the following order: first, the unexempted personalty, except specific bequests; second, the realty appropriated by the will for their payment; third, the real estate descended; fourth, real estate specifically devised. Wilts v. Wilts, 151–149, 130 N. W. 906.

A devise to the widow of an undivided part of all property is not a specific devise or bequest. Ibid.

The provisions of code § 4019 as to priority of claims for labor have no application to the payment of claims against the estate of a decedent. Moss v. Williams, 152–686, 133 N. W. 120.

The filing of a claim by a nonresident creditor does not bar his right to maintain a suit thereon in a federal court if the jurisdictional facts exist. Farmers' Bank v. Wright, (C. C.) 158 Fed. 841.

SEC. 3349. Limitation.

In general: Until the statutory period for filing claims has commenced to run by reason of giving of notice and has expired without claims being filed, the court cannot know in the settlement of the administrator's accounts that the estate is not indebted. Ellyson v. Lord, 124–125, 99 N. W. 582.

Charges of the last sickness and funeral are not barred after one year from the time after notice of the appointment of the administrator. Wolfe v. Knapp, 127–479, 103 N. W. 369.

The special limitation as to the filing of claims supersedes the general statute of limitations and stops the running thereof as to such claims. Alice E. Mining Co. v. Blanden, 136 Fed. 252.

The publication of notice which starts the running of the period of limitation for the filing of claims is sufficient if made on an order of the clerk, endorsed on the letters of appointment. Mosher v. Goodale, 129–719, 106 N. W. 195.

The administrator having a claim against the estate is not excused from filing it within the statutory period. In re Estate of Ring, 132–216, 109 N. W. 710.

The burden is upon defendant to establish the bar of the claim by limitation under this section, and for that purpose the proper giving of notice must be established. McConaughy v. Wilsey, 115–589, 88 N. W. 1101.

The limitation as to the time for filing a claim is not controlling where the claim is contingent. Easton v. Somerville, 111–164, 82 N. W. 475.

Where the date of giving notice does not appear the limitation cannot be applied. Ibid.

This section as to time for filing claims applies by analogy to applications for the sale of real estate and even where peculiar circumstances are shown the application for the order must be shown to have been within a reasonable time. In re Estate of Brigham, Corbin v. McAllister, 144–71, 120 N. W. 1054.

As a rule, every claimant must file his claim within one year of the time of the first publication of notice and if the claim is not allowed by the executor, he must give notice to the executor of such filing. If the executor is prematurely discharged before the expiration of a year and before notice of a claim is given to such executor, the claimant's remedy is suspended and he should proceed by timely action to have the order of discharge set aside and then file his claim and have it allowed or give notice to the executor. The rule applicable to the general statute of limitations does not apply in such case. In re Kimball's Estate, Flanigan v. Kimball, 139 N. W. 456.

The filing of the claim is but a reasonable precaution to fix its status and to save it from the statutory bar. The filing of a claim by a nonresident creditor does not prevent his maintaining an action thereon in the federal courts. Farmers' Bank v. Wright, (C. C.) 158 Fed. 841.

Equitable relief: Notice by publication having been duly given, a resident of the state is bound to file his claim within the statutory period, and will not be entitled to equitable relief merely because he has not had actual notice or has put the claim into the hands of a general collecting agent who has failed to file it within the proper time. Hawkeye Ins. Co. v. Lisker, 122–341, 98 N. W. 127.

Equitable relief from the statutory limitation of time for filing claims will not be extended to one who has been negligent in presenting his claim. Bentley v. Starr, 123–657, 99 N. W. 555.

One who elects to look to the guardian for payment of a claim against a deceased ward instead of filing such claim against such ward's estate cannot have equitable relief against the bar of the statute. Ibid.

The mere promise of an administrator to pay a claim is not sufficient excuse for delay in not filing and serving notice thereof. But it may be sufficient if coupled with a request of the administrator, acted upon by the claimant, that the filing of the claim be postponed. Under the evidence in a particular case, held that there was not such showing of postponement at the request of the administrator as to justify the granting of equitable relief. Mosher v. Goodale, 129–719, 106 N. W. 195.

Where the holder of a note against deceased was induced to withhold the filing of his claim by the false and fraudulent representations of the executor that the estate was insolvent, held that equity would permit the filing of the claim notwithstanding the statutory bar had accrued, it appearing that the estate was solvent and still unsettled. Henry v. Day, 114–454, 87 N. W. 416.

Where a person having a claim against an estate, consisting of a note in the hands of a bank, directed an officer of the bank to take proper steps to have the claim presented and was afterwards assured by such officer within the time for filing claims that the note had been properly filed, which was not true, and was thereby misled, held that he was entitled to equitable relief, although the estate had been otherwise fully settled and the personal property distributed, it appearing that there was real estate belonging to decedent against which the claim might be enforced. Manatt v. Reynolds, 114–688, 87 N. W. 683.

A claim of a municipal corporation against the estate of a deceased person must be filed within the time required by this section and the negligence of the officers of the corporation in failing to file the claim in proper time will not be a ground for equitable relief. In re Jacob's Estate, 119–176, 93 N. W. 94.

While notice of the filing of the claim is not essential to its validity, it is essential that notice be given within a year in order that the claim be not barred under the provisions of this section. Ibid.

While the fact that the estate remains unsettled may be taken into account with other circumstances in determining whether a claimant shall have relief against the statutory bar, such fact alone will not entitle the claimant to equitable relief. Ibid.

The minority of the claimant is not a peculiar circumstance such as to entitle him to equitable relief against the statutory limitation. Boyle v. Boyle, 126–167, 101 N. W. 748.

Where the deceased was surety on a bond in which principal and sureties obligated themselves and their "heirs, executors and administrators," liability on which bond did not accrue until after the period fixed for filing claims against the estate, held that such liability could be enforced against the estate in the hands of the distributees, although no claim under the bond had been filed within the time for settling the estate. Security F. Ins. Co. v. Hansen, 104–264, 73 N. W. 596.

Equity can afford no relief for failure to file a claim within the required period, on account of carelessness of the claimant. McDermott v. McDermott, 138–351, 116 N. W. 122.

This provision as to peculiar circumstances entitling claimant to equitable relief as against the bar of the statute has been held by analogy to apply to applications for the sale of real estate. Even where the peculiar circumstances are shown, the application for the order must be within a reasonable time. In re Estate of Brigham, Corbin v. McAllister, 144–71, 120 N. W. 1054.

Where a woman claiming to be the wife of deceased asserted her right to a widow's share in his property and was defeated on the ground that there was no valid marriage, and then filed a claim against the estate of deceased, remaining unsettled, for compensation for services rendered, which claim was made within a reasonable time after the determination of the former litigation, held that the circumstances were such as to constitute a sufficient equitable ground for avoidance of the objection that the claim was not filed in time. Asher v. Pegg, 146–541, 123 N. W. 739.

The assertion of the status of wife not made on sufficient ground but not shown to have been in bad faith held not to preclude the subsequent assertion of the right to compensation for services. Ibid.

Where the estate remained unsettled and certain items of claim withdrawn on account of the pendency of an action involving the same subject matter were revived within five months after the termination of such action, held that the claimant was entitled to equitable relief as against the statutory bar. Black v. Miller, 138 N. W. 535.

Where the executor has been discharged before the expiration of the time within which claimant may file his claim and give notice thereof, he is entitled to equitable relief. In re Kimball's Estate, Flanigan v. Kimball, 139 N. W. 456.

SEC. 3353. Order of payments—dividends.

The property of the estate is bound for the payment of debts so far as it will go. Blackman v. Baxter, 125–118, 100 N. W. 75.

SEC. 3354. Incumbrances.

Where the widow, as administratrix of her husband's estate, used funds of the estate to carry out a contract of her deceased husband for the purchase of land in another state which by the law of that state became her sole property, held that she could be required to account to the heirs for such undivided interest in the land as would have passed to them had the land been situated in this state. In re Estate of Irwin, Conkey v. Irwin, 152–323, 131 N. W. 57.

SEC. 3355. Specific legacies.

Within the twelve months allowed for filing claims, the executor has no authority without order of court to pay over legacies, whether general or specific. Montgomery v. Gilbertson, 134–291, 111 N. W. 694.

CHAPTER 4.

OF THE DESCENT AND DISTRIBUTION OF THE INTESTATE'S PROPERTY.

SECTION 3362. Personal property.

Under our law the right to a distributive share of personalty in the estate of an intestate vests instanter in the heir upon the death of the owner and not from the time of distribution made. Distribution gives to the distributee no new title, but only ascertains the property to which title attaches. Christe v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co., 104–707, 74 N. W. 697.

After the time for administration has expired so that there are no claims of creditors on the property, the heirs of the deceased may maintain an action in their own names for the recovery of the assets of the estate. Ibid.

After the expiration of time for granting administration so that claims of creditors are no longer involved, the personal property of a deceased person vests in his heirs and any settlement they have made or may make in regard to the estate will be binding upon them. Ibid.

The heir has an interest in the personal estate of his ancestor prior to any distribution by administration, and in the absence of indebtedness of the estate the heirs who are entitled to share in the distribution may by agreement determine the rights to their respective shares, even as against an administrator subsequently appointed. Douglas v. Albrecht, 130–132, 106 N. W. 354.

While heirs may by mutual agreement settle the estate of a deceased person and render administration of the estate unnecessary, the guardian of the deceased cannot in a proceeding for the settlement of his guardianship take advantage of an arrangement between him and the prospective heirs of his ward by which on the death of the ward he is to become entitled to the ward's estate. In re Guardianship of Lindsay, 132–119, 109 N. W. 473.

The legal representative has the right of possession of all personal property owned by the deceased, and this cannot be limited by contracts of or liens created by the heirs, nor can he be required by the heirs to satisfy the debts of the decedent out of one portion of the personal estate rather than another. Foss v. Cobler, 105–728, 75 N. W. 516.

Heirs are not entitled to possession of personal property until through distribution or the expiration of the period of limitation for administration their interest therein has been definitely ascertained. Ritchie v. Barnes, 114–67, 86 N. W. 48.

Since the adoption of the code of '73 the husband cannot by will dispose of the distributive share of the widow in personal property. Poole v. Burnham, 105–620, 75 N. W. 474.

In determining whether the widow is entitled to her distributive share, a contract of separation between herself and her husband releasing her interest in his property cannot be taken into account, although made in another jurisdiction where it would be valid and enforceable. Caruth v. Caruth, 128–121, 103 N. W. 103.

The personal estate of a decedent will be distributed according to the law of his domicile, irrespective of the place of administration. In re Estate of Titterington, 130–356, 106 N. W. 761.

A person cannot have two domiciles at the same time, and a domicile once gained remains until a new one is acquired. To effect a change of domicile, there must be actual residence in the new domicile with the intent that the new residence shall constitute his domicile. Ibid.

Where no administration has been granted and the time for taking out letters thereof has expired, the personal property of decedent passes to his heirs. In re Estate of Acken, 144–519, 123 N. W. 187.

Adult heirs may contract with reference to the distribution of property where the rights of creditors are not involved, but when they are unable to agree as to such distribution administration should be granted unless the time for granting has expired. Ibid.

A wife cannot by will deprive her surviving husband of his distributive share in her personal estate. But the surviving husband cannot question the validity of a gift causa mortis merely on the ground that it deprives him of his distributive share to which he would otherwise be entitled. Vosburg v. Mallory, 155–165, 135 N. W. 577.

SEC. 3364. In kind—proceeds distributed.

Money recovered for the wrongful death of a person leaving a father or mother, and no wife or children may, when paid to the clerk in satisfaction of such judgment, be applied to the satisfaction of judgments against the father and mother. Cassady v. Grimmelman, 108–695, 77 N. W. 1067.

The executor may discharge his trust as to the distribution of the estate by making division of shares of stock among those entitled to participate in the distribution. In re Estate of Fisher, 128–626, 104 N. W. 1023.

The statutory direction that the executor shall sell property likely to depreciate in value is not applicable unless some permanent loss to the property in whole or in part is to be anticipated. It was not intended thereby to require under penalty of personal liability an immediate sale of all property subject to fluctuations in market value and solely on that ground. Ibid.

While the administrator may make distribution of the assets of the estate among those interested when there are no creditors, he cannot, by assignment to the widow of a cause of action for an injury resulting in the death of the decedent, deprive the children of their interest in such cause of action. Flynn v. Chicago, G. W. R. Co., 141 N. W. 401.

SEC. 3366. Share of surviving spouse—dower.

Extent and nature of dower right: The share of the widow cannot be increased beyond a one-third interest in the real estate of which her husband was seized during his lifetime, by reason of any advancements which he may have made to his children by a prior marriage before the marriage to the claimant. Burgoon v. Whitney, 121–76, 95 N. W. 229.

Under the statutes in force from 1853 to 1862, the widow's dower was a life interest in one third of the real property of which the husband was seized during coverture. Bottorff v. Lewis, 121–27, 95 N. W. 262.

The widow is entitled to her one-third share of the proceeds of her deceased husband's realty, which has been sold by the administrator for the payment of debts, free from deduction for taxes, repairs and expenses. Wild v. Toms, 123–747, 99 N. W. 700.

The widow who has one third of the estate of her husband set off to her as her property in fee simple, thereby relinquishes any right of homestead she may have had in the property. The right of homestead can be preserved only by electing to retain the homestead in lieu of a distributive share in fee. Edinger v. Bain, 125–391, 98 N. W. 568, 101 N. W. 119.

So held where the widow claimed one third of the proceeds of her husband's estate sold for the purpose of paying debts; and held that no intention to invest her share in the acquisition of a new homestead would exempt such share from liability for her debts. Ibid.

A title bond or contract for a deed is sufficient to create in the vendee an equitable estate in which his wife is entitled to dower; but if by assignment of the contract on the part of the husband the rights thereunder are transferred to another, and by him to a third, who has no knowledge of the contingent rights of the wife of the original vendee, she cannot assert her dower interest as against the innocent holder of the contract for value, although she did not join in the assignment. Hutchinson v. Olberding, 136–346, 112 N. W. 647.

The dower right, though inchoate pending the life of the husband, is in the nature of a property right, and the wife cannot be divested of it by any act of her husband whether done in good faith or fraud. Warner v. Norwegian Cemetery Assn., 139–115, 117 N. W. 39.

The widow of one who enters land under the timber culture laws of the United States but who has not yet performed the conditions imposed by the statute entitling him to patent, has no dower interest in the land thus entered. In such case the heirs are allowed to succeed to the interest of the entryman and the widow is not in that sense an heir. Braun v. Mathieson, 139–409, 116 N. W. 789.

The spouse succeeding by substitution to an interest in property devised to the deceased, takes subject to debts and costs of administration of the estate of the testator. In re Estate of Metcalf, 143–310, 120 N. W. 104.

Rent accruing on the land after the death of the owner is a part of the realty in determining the dower rights of the widow. Swift v. Flynn, 145–630, 124 N. W. 626.

The provisions of this section are applicable in determining the widow's right of dower in property of her husband sold for taxes before this section took effect. The inchoate dower right may be affected by subsequent legislation. Byington v. Carlin, 146–301, 125 N. W. 233.

It is competent for the legislature to change the statutory provisions as to dower so as to cut off the right of a married woman to redeem the property from a tax sale while her interest remains inchoate. Ibid.

Unless the husband has at some time during the marriage relation held a heritable estate, legal or equitable, no right of dower can attach thereto in the wife's favor. Baker v. Syfritt, 147–49, 125 N. W. 998.

The statute (code supp. § 3447-b) barring the claim of a spouse not joining in a conveyance with the holder of the legal title, except as the provisions of that section require, is not limited to cases where the grantor held title by deed. Hutchinson v. Olberding, 150–604, 130 N. W. 139.

The dower interest of the widow in land, which was subject to a mortgage at the time of coverture and has continued subject to such mortgage until the death of the husband, is to be assigned subject to the mortgage, and the widow is not entitled to have the mortgage satisfied out of the remaining two thirds of the property which passes to heirs. Snyder v. Richey, 150–737, 130 N. W. 922.

The wife's inchoate right of dower will be protected in a court of equity, but an action for the value thereof will not lie until the husband's death. Beach v. Beach, 141 N. W. 921.

When attaches: Possession of real property adverse as against the husband does not become adverse as against the wife's right of dower until the death of the husband, if the possession is not under a judicial sale or in pursuance of a relinquishment of dower by the wife; and the statute of limitations as against the wife's right to dower under such circumstances does not commence to run until the death of the husband. Lucas v. Whitacre, 121–251, 96 N. W. 776.

The dower interest attaches when the title passes from the government, although no patent has issued. Purcell v. Lang, 108–198, 78 N. W. 1005.

Relinquishment or conveyance: The widow may relinquish her dower interest by agreement, although not made by way of formal conveyance. Wright v. Breckenridge, 125–197, 101 N. W. 111.

The marital interest of one spouse in the property of the other cannot be the subject of contract between them, and a contract or conveyance executed to the wife by the husband in consideration of her release of her contingent dower interest is invalid. As a gift to the wife, such conveyance from an insolvent husband is fraudulent as to creditors. Sharff v. Hayes, 132–609, 110 N. W. 24.

By an antenuptial contract fairly entered into, the consideration being that of marriage, the wife may be deprived of her interest in her husband's property, but if the contract operates to deprive the wife of such interest without provision for her in the event she survives her husband, the burden is upon the husband or those representing him to show that the contract was fairly procured. Fisher v. Koontz, 110–498, 80 N. W. 551.

An agreement between husband and wife for future separation involving a release by the wife of her contingent dower interest in her husband's land is invalid. Baird v. Connell, 121–278, 96 N. W. 863.

While a widow may in equity sell and convey her dower interest before assignment, yet she has no power to execute a mining lease for the premises, or any portion thereof. Hook v. Garfield Coal Co., 112–210, 83 N. W. 963.

Although a married woman cannot bind herself by release to her husband of her contingent interest in his property, yet after conveyance of property by the husband in which the wife has not joined she may by quitclaim to her husband's grantee bar her dower interest. Fowler v. Chadima, 134–210, 111 N. W. 808.

The statute of limitations does not begin to run against a wife's right to question the validity of a deed until her dower interest has become vested by the death of her husband. Wallace v. Wallace, 137–169, 114 N. W. 913; Dashner v. Dashner, 142–348, 120 N. W. 975.

The contingent dower interest of the wife is cut off by the sale of the land for taxes and the execution of a deed in pursuance of such sale. Lucas v. Purdy, 142–359, 120 N. W. 1063.

A conveyance made in prospect of marriage if with the knowledge and consent of the prospective wife will cut off any right of dower in such property. Collins v. Smith, 144–200, 122 N. W. 839.

Tenants in common: Where husband and wife are owners in common of property, a conveyance by one of them of his share does not cut off the dower interest of the other in the share thus conveyed.

Noecker v. Wallingford, 133–605, 111 N. W. 37.

Estoppel: The fact that the wife who has been abandoned by her husband knows that he has married another woman, who believes her marriage to be lawful and cares for the children of the first marriage, will not estop the first wife from claiming dower in the estate of her husband after his decease. Failure of the first wife to reveal her relationship will not defeat her rights. Dunn v. Portsmouth Sav. Bank, 103–538, 72 N. W. 687.

The widow who has joined in a conveyance of land during the lifetime of her husband cannot after his death have such conveyance set aside as fraudulent if she has received and retained the consideration for such conveyance. Willis v. Robertson, 121–380, 96 N. W. 900.

In the absence of unreasonable delay or estoppel the widow is not barred from asserting her statutory right to a share in the lands of her husband conveyed by him to an innocent purchaser and as to which she has made no relinquishment. Beeman v. Kitzman, 124–86, 99 N. W. 171.

An acceptance by agreement of a sum in lieu of distributive share bars any subsequent claim for dower. Nesmith v. Platt, 137–292, 114 N. W. 1053.

A widow is not estopped from asserting dower, under a marriage which she relies upon as valid by reason of the presumptive death of a former husband because of his continued absence. Smith v. Fuller, 138–91, 115 N. W. 912.

The widow may by her acts and conduct estop herself from asserting a right to a distributive share in her husband's estate, regardless of any formal election to select such distributive share in lieu of a devise. Koep v. Koep, 146–179, 123 N. W. 174.

Where husband and wife living apart entered into an agreement as to division of property in pursuance of which joint deeds, blank as to consideration and grantee, were put into the possession of each, duly signed, and the husband had availed himself of the advantage of the division, held that he was afterwards estopped from questioning the title of the trustee of the wife's land for which deeds had been placed in her possession. Manatt v. Griffith, 147–707, 124 N. W. 753.

Judicial sale: The sale of land by a sheriff under a trust deed executed by the husband alone to secure payment of his debt which was made in accordance with the authority contained in the deed, and was valid when made under the provisions of § 2096 of the code of 1851, held to cut off the dower interest of the grantor's widow. Pierce v. O'Neil, 132–530, 109 N. W. 1082.

The widow's dower right is barred by a sale of property of the deceased ordered on proper application for the payment of debts of the estate. In re Estate of Pennock, 122–622, 98 N. W. 480.

The exception in the statute as to dower in property sold at execution sale has no application as against a widow who claims under a title adverse to that of the party against whom the execution sale was made. Sherod v. Ewell, 104–253, 73 N. W. 493.

So long as the wife's interest remains inchoate, a judicial sale in a proceeding against the husband is effectual to cut it off. Bowden v. Hadley, 138–711, 116 N. W. 689.

The wife's dower right is not subject to the lien of an attachment in a proceeding against her husband having title to the property in which no judgment has been rendered at the time of his death. Tetzloff v. May, 151–441, 131 N. W. 647.

Specific performance: In an action for specific performance of a contract to convey made by the husband as owner, in which his wife has not joined, the purchaser asking specific performance may be allowed to retain one third of the purchase price until it is determined whether the wife outlives the husband, and a lien for the portion of the price thus retained should be created on the property; but the purchaser should not be required to pay interest on the amount thus retained. Bradford v. Smith, 123-41, 98 N. W. 377.

Reëntry by the grantor of the husband on failure of a condition precedent or a reconveyance of the husband in satisfaction of a vendor's lien, cuts off the wife's inchoate right of dower. Sullivan v. Sullivan, 139–679, 117 N. W. 1086.

In an action by a grantee of the husband to specifically enforce a contract to convey, it is error to decree that a portion of the purchase money equivalent to one third in value of the property be held subject to the possible consummation of the wife's right to dower on the death of her husband, thus limiting her possible dower right to one third in value of the property at the time of the decree. The value of the wife's dower interest is to be determined on the death of the husband with reference to the value of the property at that time, not including, as against the grantee of her husband, any value which had been added by improvements. Butler v. Butler, 151–583, 132 N. W. 63.

Widow causing death: Prior to the amendment of code § 3386 by 29 G. A., ch. 135 (see code supp. § 3386), it was held that under that section the widow causing the death of her husband was not thereby precluded from asserting her dower interest in his property. In re Estate of Kuhn, 125–449, 101 N. W. 151.

SEC. 3367. Homestead.

As between the dower right and the right to occupy the homestead for life, it will be presumed that the widow is claiming her dower right unless her election to take the homestead right appears, and to show such election to retain the homestead by continuance of occupancy it must appear that the premises occupied were in fact the homestead of the deceased husband. Peebles v. Bunting, 103–489, 73 N. W. 882.

Mere delay in setting apart the widow's distributive share will not show an election to retain the homestead in lieu of the distributive share where the circumstances show that the right to the distributive share was being constantly asserted and recognized. Wold v. Berkholtz, 105–370, 75 N. W. 329.

The widow may set up the homestead character of premises in which she is entitled to a distributive share without thereby electing to accept occupancy of the homestead in lieu of dower. In re Estate of Lund, 107–264, 77 N. W. 1048.

It not appearing that the distributive share set apart to the widow is so selected as to include the homestead, such distributive share is not exempt from her debts contracted prior to the setting apart thereof. Benjamin v. Doerscher, 105–391, 75 N. W. 330.

The widow may waive the right of having the homestead included in setting off her distributive share and take her share from a portion of the property which does not include the dwelling house given by law to the homestead; but she cannot dictate a different division or arbitrarily select the particular portion which shall be set off to her, regardless of other interests. Rice v. Rice, 147–1, 125 N. W. 826.

Where it is impracticable to make such division of the property as that the dwelling house may be set off at its fair value to the widow or an heir, the court may properly order the property to be sold and the proceeds divided. Ibid.

By this section, which is somewhat different in its provision from the corresponding section of the code of '73, the dwelling house is to be included in the share set off to the widow as dower, unless there be sufficient property left to pay the debts of the decedent. In re Estate of Crocker, Jamison v. Crocker, 148–104, 126 N. W. 962.

SEC. 3368. Survivor a nonresident.

This section has no application where the grantor is not shown to have been an alien, although his wife was a nonresident alien. Casley v. Mitchell, 121–96, 96 N. W. 725.

This provision that the surviving wife or husband of a nonresident alien shall not be entitled to a distributive share in the estate of the deceased as against a purchaser, if at the time of such purchase such survivor was also a nonresident alien, is applicable to residents of another state; but the term "purchaser" is restricted to a purchaser for a consideration. In re Estate of Kennedy, 154–460, 135 N. W. 53.

SEC. 3369. Setting off survivor's share.

A widow may have her dower admeasured from land owned by the husband during coverture as to which she has not joined in a conveyance. Hyatt v. O'Connell, 130–567, 107 N. W. 599.

The fact that funds derived by the husband from the sale and conveyance of land by him alone have been used in the support of the wife as a member of the family will not estop her from claiming a dower interest in such land. Ibid.

The widow's right to recover for rents and profits derived from land thus conveyed by her husband commences with demand for assignment of dower. Ibid.

On the death of the widow after she has become entitled to a distributive share, her heirs may have such share set apart. In re Proctor's Estate, 103–232, 72 N. W. 516.

The wife's distributive share in real property should be charged with its proportionate share of a mortgage on the entire real estate. Trego v. Studley, 106–742, 75 N. W. 179.

The surviving wife is not entitled as against the heirs to have a mortgage, which was on the land at the time of coverture, satisfied exclusively out of the share descending to the heirs. Snyder v. Richey, 150–737, 130 N. W. 922.

Unassigned dower interest is not subject to levy under execution. Brightman v. Morgan, 111–481, 82 N. W. 954.

Where two or more distinct tracts of land are by the will given to different parties, and the widow has her dower assigned in a lump out of one of them, the person to whom such tract passes by the will has the right of contribution against the person or persons to whom the other tract or tracts pass by the will. Morey v. Morey, 113–152, 84 N. W. 1039.

The right of action of the widow to recover her dower interest in premises conveyed by her husband during the coverture, as to which she has not joined in the conveyance, does not accrue so as to set the statute of limitations running until the death of the husband. Lucas v. White, 120–735, 95 N. W. 209.

Dower may be assigned by proceedings in equity as well as at law. Such assignment may be made in an equitable action in the nature of a suit for partition. Beeman v. Kitzman, 124–86, 99 N. W. 171.

As against a grantee of the husband under a conveyance in which the wife has not joined to relinquish her dower interest, the right of the widow accrues twenty days after the death of the husband, and must be asserted within the statutory period of limitations. Britt v. Gordon, 132–431, 108 N. W. 319.

While application for admeasurement of dower must be brought within ten years from the death of the husband, this limitation does not apply to an action in equity to establish a dower right, or for partition of the distributive share. But the general statute of limitations is applicable to any such action. Ibid.

The widow is not entitled to the benefit of improvements put upon the land by her husband's grantee or those claiming under him. Warner v. Norwegian Cemetery Assn., 139–115, 117 N. W. 39.

The fact that the widow applies to have dower set off to her does not estop her from afterwards contending that such land actually belongs to her, the allegation of the ownership of the husband having been made by mistake. Matheson v. Matheson, 139–511, 117 N. W. 755.

Where the widow, instead of having her share set off to her out of the property, consents to its sale for the payment of debts with the understanding that she is to have her share out of the proceeds, the share to which she is entitled is not subject to the payment of debts and costs of administration. Brown v. Brookhart, 146–79, 124 N. W. 882.

The interest of the widow in several tracts may be assigned from so much of one or more tracts as will in fact constitute one third of the whole. Rice v. Rice, 147–1, 125 N. W. 826.

Therefore where the husband had conveyed to his children certain parcels of land in which the wife had an inchoate dower interest, held that the widow's share of the real estate taken into account also, in the tracts of land thus conveyed, might be set off out of the land of which her husband died seized. Ibid.

SEC. 3376. Share not affected by will—election—made by court. The survivor's share cannot be affected by any will of the spouse, unless consent thereto is given within six months after a copy thereof has been served upon the survivor by the other parties interested in the estate, and notice that such survivor is required to elect whether consent thereto will be given, which consent, when given, shall be in open court, or by a writing filed therein, which shall be entered on the proper records thereof; but if at the expiration of six months no such election has been made, it shall be conclusively presumed that such survivor consents to the provisions of the will and elects to take thereunder. But when such surviving spouse is mentally incapable of making such election, the court on petition being filed alleging such disability may set the matter down for hearing at such time and place as it may deem best, and direct what notice thereof shall be given; and at such hearing the court may enter an order electing for such spouse, which shall be the election under this section, of the person under such disability. [30 G. A., ch. 121; C. '73, § 2452; R. § 2435; C. '51, § 1407.]

Devise in lieu of dower: Under the provisions of code of '73 the grant of a life estate to the widow without provision that such grant should be in lieu of dower was not inconsistent with her taking a dower interest in the estate and in such case no election was required. Sutherland v. Sutherland, 102–535, 71 N. W. 424; In re Proctor's Estate, 103–232, 72 N. W. 516.

Under the provisions of the code of '73 an affirmative act on the widow's part was necessary to deprive her of her distributive share and this affirmative act was required to be evidenced in a stated manner. In the absence of some record of election the fact of election to take under the will could not be shown. Byerly v. Sherman, 126–447, 102 N. W. 157.

Under the language of § 2452 of the code of '73, it was held that the acceptance of the provisions of a will did not bar the wife's dower right, unless the will so expressly provided, or there was some necessary inconsistency between the dower right and the provisions of the will. But such rule is changed by the language of § 3270 of the present code. Kiefer v. Gillett, 120–107, 94 N. W. 270.

Under the statutory provisions in force before the adoption of this section, held that a provision in the will charging the estate with support of the widow during her life was not inconsistent with her dower interest, and no election between the provisions of the will and dower was required. Bentley v. Bentley, 112–625, 84

N. W. 676. See notes to code § 3270 in this supplement.

A widow who has elected to take under the provisions of a will, cannot claim a distributive share under the statute. In re Will of Wiltsey, 122–423, 98 N. W. 294.

A widow may take a life estate under a will, and also her distributive share under the law, unless the latter will be so incompatible with the provisions of the will as to disturb, defeat, interrupt or disappoint such provisions. But when the will clearly indicates the intent that the devise to the widow shall be in lieu of her distributive share, she cannot take both, and if she elects to take under the will her declaration that she also claims her distributive share is of no consequence. Parker v. Parker, 129–600, 106 N. W. 8.

Under the facts in a particular case held that the provisions of the will, giving a life estate to the widow, were inconsistent with her taking a dower interest. Ibid.

Upon renouncing the will the widow becomes entitled to one third in value of the husband's estate, and cannot claim the additional one sixth to which she is entitled by inheritance in the absence of direct heirs, the property having been otherwise disposed of by the will which she renounces. Wright v. Breckenridge, 125–197, 101 N. W. 111.

Under prior statutory provisions, held that a will containing a devise to a widow passed title to her subject to be divested or defeated by the election of the widow to take dower in lieu of such devise. Garrett v. Olford, 152–265, 132 N. W. 379.

Where by the will the remainder of testator's property is fully disposed of otherwise, the devise of a life estate to the widow is inconsistent with dower. Mitchell v. Vest, 157– —, 136 N. W. 1054.

Where the widow in a report as executrix recites the provisions of the will in her behalf and the settlement of the estate in accordance with such provisions, such report duly recorded constitutes a binding election on her part to take under the will. Ibid.

Under the provisions of § 2435, revision of 1860, held that in the absence of any allegation of objection on the part of the widow to the provisions of the will in her behalf, it would be presumed to be in lieu of dower. Van Pappelendam v. Thomas, 157– —, 137 N. W. 952.

Election: Where the acts of the widow with reference to the property were properly referable to her position as executrix, rather than to any claim of hers under the will, held that they did not show an election to take under the will. In re Proctor's Estate, 103–232, 72 N. W. 516.

Where the widow fails to claim her dower right and thereby induces a claimant of the property to treat it as having full title, she is estopped from afterwards asserting her right therein. Goldizen v. Goldizen, 107–280, 77 N. W. 1053.

Where the surviving husband failed during his lifetime to make any claim of a distributive share in addition to the devise made to him in the will, and his heir likewise failed to make any such claim through him for ten years and until the property had been improved at considerable expense by those claiming it under the will, held that such heir was estopped from asserting any claim to an interest in a distributive share. Lewis v. Sherwin, 129–682, 104 N. W. 511, 106 N. W. 583.

Under the provisions of § 2452 of code of '73, held that an election to accept under the provisions of the will might become effective without being entered of record. Brighton v. Morgan, 111–481, 82 N. W. 954.

Where no copy of the will has been served on the widow she is not called upon to elect between the provisions of the will and her statutory right of dower, and acceptance of a benefit under the will does not defeat her dower right. Newberry v. Newberry, 114–704, 87 N. W. 658.

In order to estop the widow from claiming under the statute, notwithstanding the terms of the will, there must be a strict compliance with the statutory requirements. Warner v. Hamill, 134–279, 111 N. W. 939.

Where a life estate is given to the widow by will with the fee to her children at her death, she takes also her statutory interest as not inconsistent with the will. Ibid.

If at the end of six months no election has been made it is to be conclusively presumed that the survivor elects to take under the will. But there can be no election by failure to act where no notice has been served and no consent is entered of record. Bailey v. Hughes, 115–304, 88 N. W. 804.

Where the issue is as to whether the widow has elected to take her distributive share as against the provision made for her in the will, it is not competent for a witness to testify as to the contents of the will, nor as to his understanding as to who was to take under the will. In re Estate of Jones, 130–177, 106 N. W. 610.

Under § 2452 of the code of '73, the election therein provided for was required in all cases to be made of record in the probate court. This express provision could not be evaded or nullified by the plea of an estoppel. The only possible application of the doctrine of estoppel was in a case where no election was necessary. Jones v. Jones, 137–382, 114 N. W. 1066.

On the death of the owner of land the surviving spouse is vested with the right of choice between the distributive share provided by law and the increased or other benefits by will. The choice should be made by such survivor and not by creditors, and the fact that by choosing the benefit provided by will claims of creditors will be cut off does not prevent the survivor from making such election. Robertson v. Schard, 142–500, 119 N. W. 529.

An election to take under the provision of the will simply affirms the presumption existing that the widow will do so. In re Estate of Hamilton, 148–127, 126 N. W. 776.

Under the provisions of the code of '73, held that under a will giving the widow a life estate and providing for a sale of the property, an election to accept the provisions of the will was a bar to a claim for dower. Mohn v. Mohn, 148–288, 126 N. W. 1127.

Also held that where the widow had been appointed executrix of the will and filed a final report reciting the provisions of the will in her behalf, there was such an election in writing and recorded as to bar her dower right. Ibid.

Under § 2452 of the code of '73, the devise to a widow of a life estate was not inconsistent with her claim of dower in the same property, and her acceptance of the provisions of the will was no bar to her claim or that of her heirs to her distributive share. Archer v. Barnes, 149–658, 128 N. W. 969.

Provisions in a will inconsistent with dower are not sufficient in themselves to bar the widow's right. It still remains with her to elect whether she will accept such provisions. Kierulff v. Harlan, 150–671, 130 N. W. 789.

Although the provisions of the will in behalf of the widow are presumed to have been in lieu of dower, she is entitled to elect between such provisions and her dower right and cannot be put to such election until notice is given her to do so. Albright v. Albright, 153–397, 133 N. W. 737.

Under § 2452 of the code of '73, the dower interest of the widow could not be affected by any will of her husband unless she consented thereto within six months after notice and such consent was entered of record. Irish v. Steeves, 154–286, 134 N. W. 634.

Under this section a written notice to the widow is intended, but there is no direction that it shall be served in the method provided for the service of an original notice. Scanlon v. Scanlon, 154–748, 135 N. W. 634.

It is not required that the notice and proof of service be entered upon the record before the six months' period begins to run. Ibid.

It is not necessary that the notice be joined in by all the parties interested in the estate. Ibid.

The manner in which the notice and service thereof shall be made to appear of record is not prescribed. Ibid.

Under prior statutory provisions, held that enjoyment of a life estate in the entire property of the deceased husband under the provisions of the will was not inconsistent with the claim of a distributive share. Parker v. Parker, 155–65, 135 N. W. 71.

The statute does not put any time limit on the widow's right to accept or reject the devise except as found in this section, and she can be compelled to elect only by the notice here provided for and forced to make her election of record. Arnold v. Livingston, 139 N. W. 927.

The election of the widow may be shown by express words or by the actual taking of the thing bequeathed, or it may be shown in any other manner that clearly manifests such an election. Ibid.

Under the statute as it now stands, if the widow accepts the provisions of the will, it is presumed from the act of acceptance that she elects to take the devise in lieu of her statutory rights; but the widow is not bound to accept the bequest made to her and may reject the same and take her rights under the statute. She cannot take both. Thorpe v. Lyones, 142 N. W. 82.

The devise to the wife is presumed to be in lieu of her statutory rights unless it is clearly and explicitly indicated that it is not in lieu of such rights. Ibid.

After the widow has notice of the terms of the will she may elect either to take or reject the devise made to her in the will, and such right to elect vests immediately on receiving the notice of the will and its provisions. Until she does elect, the provisions of the will do not affect her statutory rights. Ibid.

Upon receiving notice of the will or upon her own motion without notice to do so, she may elect to take the devise made to her or her right under the statute. If she elects to take the devise and does take it she is presumed to have taken it in lieu of all her rights to a distributive share, homestead and exemptions. Ibid.

There is no time limit fixed within which the widow is required to make her election, nor does the statute prescribe how the election shall be evidenced. Until she is served with notice requiring her to elect, her failure to make an election does not deprive her of her statutory rights, but if she does not elect within six months after receiving notice as provided by statute, it is conclusively presumed that she consents to the provisions of the will and elects to take thereunder. Ibid.

SEC. 3377. Election as between distributive share and occupancy of homestead—mental incapability. Within six months after written notice to the survivor, given by any heir of a deceased intestate, or by the administrator of his estate in case a sale of the real estate is necessary to pay debts, the survivor may elect to take the distributive share, or the right to occupy the homestead, which election shall be made and entered of record as provided in the preceding section. In case of a failure to make such election, the right to occupy the homestead in lieu of the distributive share shall be waived. But when such surviving spouse is mentally incapable of making such election, the court on petition being filed alleging such disability, may set the matter down for hearing at such time and place as it may deem best, and direct what notice thereof shall be given; and at such hearing the court may enter an order electing for such spouse, which shall be the election, under this section, of the person under such disability; and in case of an election of the distributive share, such distributive share may be set off to such surviving spouse under disability on the petition of the guardian of such spouse and under the provisions for setting off the survivor's share. But this act shall not apply to actions now pending in court. [35 G. A., ch. 279, § 1.] [C. '73, § 2008; R. § 2296; C. '51, § 1264.]

Under the provisions of the code of '73, held that continuous occupancy of the homestead by the widow, where she had a lease of the premises for life from the heirs, did not constitute an election to accept the homestead for life in lieu of dower. The widow's primary right is to a distributive share, and unless she does something which deprives her of that right it will be sustained. Robson v. Lambertson, 115–366, 88 N. W. 943. See also, notes to code § 2985 in this supplement.

The right to elect to take a distributive share while occupying the homestead does not continue indefinitely until notice is served by the heirs requiring the election or an election in writing is made. Although no notice is served the widow may bind or estop herself by an election which has not been reduced to writing and filed in court. Stoddard v. Kendall, 140–688, 119 N. W. 138.

SEC. 3378. Descent—to children.

The provisions of 27 G. A., ch. 37, are not effectual to legalize an inheritance tax under 26 G. A., ch. 28, as to real property descending to heirs before the curative act took effect. Herriott v. Potter, 115–648, 89 N. W. 91.

Rights to property by descent or will may be barred by an estoppel. McDowell v. McDowell, 141–286, 119 N. W. 702.

The failure of the father to provide for a child by will or otherwise does not give rise to an action by the child. Lefebure v. Lefebure, 143–293, 121 N. W. 1025.

Real property of the deceased descends to his heirs immediately upon his death, subject only to the right of the administrator to resort thereto for the payment of the debts of the deceased. In re Estate of Pitt, 153–269, 133 N. W. 660.

SEC. 3379. Wife and parents. That section thirty-three hundred seventy-nine of the code be and the same is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"If the intestate leaves no issue, the whole of the estate to the amount of seventy-five hundred dollars, after the payment of the debts and expenses of administration, and one half of all of the estate in excess of said seventy-five hundred dollars shall go to the surviving spouse and the other one half of said excess shall go to the parents. If no spouse, the whole shall go to the parents." [35 G. A., ch. 280, § 1.] [C. '73, § 2455; R. § 2495; C. '51, § 1410.]

The one-sixth share which the widow takes as heir in the absence of issue is subject to deduction on account of repairs, taxes and expenses properly paid or incurred in the administration of the estate. Wild v. Toms, 123–747, 99 N. W. 700.

Although the surviving wife or husband elects to take a homestead right in lieu of a distributive share, such election does not deprive the survivor of the right to a one-sixth interest as heir in the absence of direct disinheritance. Hays v. Marsh, 123–81, 98 N. W. 604.

The interest which the surviving wife takes beyond her dower interest in the absence of children is taken by her as heir. In re Estate of Kuhn, 125–449, 101 N. W. 151.

The portion which would pass to the widow in the absence of direct heirs over and above her one-third dower interest cannot be claimed by her under the renunciation of a will which disposes of the entire property, for the will is effectual as to all save her one-third dower interest. Wright v. Breckenridge, 125–197, 101 N. W. 111.

It is only in case of failure to devise or bequeath the entire estate over and above the dower or statutory provision for the surviving spouse, that he or she takes anything whatever by way of inheritance. Hastings v. Day, 151–39, 130 N. W. 134.

On the death of an heir to one who as husband of the owner of property had acquired a one-third interest therein, held that each of the three heirs of such deceased heir took one third of such one-third interest. Husted v. Rollins, 156–546, 137 N. W. 462.

Aside from any specific provision in the statutes relating to adoption, the property of the adopted child passes on his death, unmarried and without issue, to his natural parent rather than to the heirs of his deceased adopting parent. Baker v. Clowser, 138 N. W. 837.

SEC. 3381. Heirs of parents.

Descent cannot be claimed through a deceased nonresident alien relative any more than it can through a living relative who cannot inherit on account of being a nonresident alien. Meier v. Lee, 106–303, 76 N. W. 712.

Where property is claimed by descent under the provisions of this section through an intervening relative, such descent is mediate and not immediate. Ibid.

The provision that descent to collateral heirs is to be determined by assuming that the common ancestor had outlived the intestate and died in the possession of a portion falling to his share is for the purpose only of determining the right of inheritance of such collateral heirs. Such right being ascertained, the descent is direct from decedent to such heirs. In re Hulett's Estate, 121–423, 96 N. W. 952.

An adopted child inherits by descent through the foster parent. Shick v. Howe, 137–249, 114 N. W. 916.

Further as to inheritance by or from an adopted child, see notes to code § 3253 in this supplement.

SEC. 3381-a. Parents by adoption—wife. One half of the estate of any adopted child who shall die intestate and leaving no issue shall descend to the parents by adoption of such child, and the other half to his or her surviving spouse. If one of the parents by adoption be dead, in case there was more than one such parent, the portion which would have gone to such parent shall go to the surviving parent by adoption. If such child leave no surviving spouse, his entire estate shall go to his parents by adoption; or if he leave but one such parent then to such parent. [29 G. A., ch. 136, § 1.]

SEC. 3381-b. Heirs of parents by adoption. If the adopted parent or parents, if more than one, be dead, the portion which would have gone to such parent or parents had they or either of them survived the intestate, shall be disposed of in the same manner as if such parent or parents had outlived the intestate and died in possession of such share, and so on through their ascending ancestors. [29 G. A., ch. 136, § 2.]

SEC. 3381-c. Natural parents. If heirs are not thus found, the portion thus uninherited shall go to the natural parents of the intestate, and in case of their death then to their heirs under the ordinary rules of descent. [29 G. A., ch. 136, § 3.]

SEC. 3383. Advancements.

An advancement is an irrevocable gift, made by a parent to a child in anticipation of such child's future share of the parental estate. It must be voluntary, and must have been made with the intent on the part of the parent that it shall be taken into account on the settlement of the estate. But where a voluntary gift from parent to child is shown, the rule is that it is presumed to be an advancement, unless paid to or for the child for his education, maintenance or support, or otherwise in the discharge of ordinary parental duties. Bissell v. Bissell, 120–127, 94 N. W. 465.

Advancements made by a testator prior to the execution of his will, even designated as such at the time made, are taken to be gifts pure and simple, and cannot be considered in the settlement of the estate under the will, unless such instrument so directs in specific terms. In re Cumming's Estate, 120–421, 94 N. W. 1117.

The question of whether a gift of property to an heir is a pure gift or an advancement depends upon the intent of the donor at the time of the transfer, and this intent may be established by his declarations prior to the time of the transfer, or contemporaneous with it. Ellis v. Newell, 120–71, 94 N. W. 463.

But such declarations, like other admissions, are generally regarded as unsatisfactory evidence on account of the ease with which they may be fabricated, the impossibility of contradiction and the consequences which the slightest mistake or failure of memory may produce. Ibid.

Subsequent declarations, however, not a part of the res gestae, are not admissible to show that the transaction was a gift rather than an advancement. Ibid.

Advancements for the purpose of distribution and division are treated as part of the estate, but for no other purpose. The donee cannot be required to refund any portion thereof, nor can it be taken for debts of the estate. Ibid.

Book entries of advancements, when shown to have been made by an ancestor, are evidence both of the fact of the advancements and of the intention with which they are given. Whisler v. Whisler, 117–712, 89 N. W. 1110.

The value of land given to a prospective heir by way of advancement is to be reckoned as of the date of the death of the intestate owner. Eastwood v. Crane, 125–707, 101 N. W. 481.

An advancement to an heir previously given and received constitutes no consideration for a promissory note subsequently given in payment of the property received under such advancement. Marsh v. Chown, 104–556, 73 N. W. 1046.

The doctrine as to advancements is applicable only in cases of intestacy. McCormick v. Hanks, 105–639, 75 N. W. 494; In re Estate of Hall, 132–664, 110 N. W. 148.

The statutory provision as to advancements has no application unless the ancestor dies wholly intestate. The doctrine of advancements rests upon the presumed desire of an ancestor to equalize his estate among his heirs. When he makes a will he thereby expresses his intention in this respect and the presumption does not apply. Gilmore v. Jenkins, 129–686, 106 N. W. 193.

Where the father purchases land, the title to which is taken in the son's name, the presumption is in favor of an advancement rather than a resulting trust, until the contrary intention is shown. Culp v. Price, 107–133, 77 N. W. 848.

An execution purchaser of an heir's interest in realty does not acquire priority over the right existing against the heir to deduct advancements from such interest. Pinckney v. Collie, 114–441, 87 N. W. 406.

An acknowledgment of indebtedness with agreement and promise to pay at the death of the payee, and then to be deducted from the share of the estate of the payee coming to the debtor, is not an advancement, but an acknowledgment of indebtedness, and a devise to such payee does not constitute an extinguishment thereof. Kinney v. Newbold, 115–145, 88 N. W. 328.

By arrangement between the owner of property and a son extinguishing indebtedness of the son to his father in consideration of relinquishment by the son of all interest in his estate, the son's indebtedness may be converted into an advancement, and in such case the son will have no interest in the father's estate on his death. Hickey v. Davidson, 129–384, 105 N. W. 678.

While interest is not usually to be computed on an advancement, the arrangement for an advancement may include indebtedness with interest accrued at the time. Ibid.

An advancement to children, made before remarrying, will not give the second wife of their father a greater interest than a one-third interest in the real property of which he is seized during coverture. Burgoon v. Whitney, 121–76, 95 N. W. 229.

The right to treat an indebtedness of the heir to the ancestor as an advancement is not affected by a discharge of the heir in bankruptcy. In re Estate of Fussell, 129–498, 105 N. W. 503.

The doctrine as to advancements is not applicable where the prospective heir takes title to property of the ancestor without the knowledge of the latter. Moore v. Scruggs, 131–692, 109 N. W. 205.

If a legacy is given by a parent or one standing in loco parentis and the testator afterwards makes an advancement or gift of money or property of the same kind to the same beneficiary, the presumption will arise that the gift was intended in satisfaction of or substitution for the prior legacy, and unless this presumption is rebutted, an ademption in full or pro tanto, as the gift is equal to or less than the prior benefit, will occur. Davis v. Close, 104–261, 73 N. W. 600.

Where the difference between the price paid and the actual value conveyed to an heir is great, the conveyance will be regarded as voluntary to the extent of such difference, and an advancement will be presumed. Mossestad v. Gunderson, 140–290, 118 N. W. 374.

In the absence of statute, the rule seems to be well settled that, if the husband conveys property to his wife or purchased real property in her name, he paying the price, or gives to or purchases for her personal property, paying therefor from his funds, the transaction is prima facie a gift or transfer for her benefit and she cannot be held to account therefor to him nor, upon his death, to his personal representatives. In re Estate of Kennedy, 154–460, 135 N. W. 53.

The doctrine of advancement has no application save in event of intestacy. Ibid.

There is no presumption of an advancement where a husband takes his wife's money coming from her father's estate and invests it in property taking the legal title thereto in his own name. Johnson v. Foust, 139 N. W. 451.

SEC. 3384. Illegitimate children—inherit from mother.

An illegitimate child inherits from the mother, and the fact of the mother's death before descent will not prevent the child from inheriting her share of the estate which would otherwise have descended to her. Johnson v. Bodine, 108–594, 79 N. W. 348.

SEC. 3385. From father.

The recognition required by this section is sufficient if it is extensive, though not universal. The words "general and notorious" should be construed with reference to the circumstances and surroundings of the parties, and held that the evidence in a particular case was sufficient to show such recognition as to entitle an illegitimate son to inherit. Van Horn v. Van Horn, 107–247, 77 N. W. 846.

Recognition in another state will entitle an illegitimate son to inherit from his father, although the laws of such state do not provide for such inheritance. Ibid.

A statute as to inheritance by illegitimates must, like other statutes in derogation of the common law, be liberally construed with a view to promote its object and assist the party in obtaining justice. Ibid.

The burden of proof to establish the parentage and recognition required rests upon the child claiming the right to inherit. Watson v. Richardson, 110–673, 80 N. W. 407.

Evidence in a particular case held not sufficient to establish such recognition in writing as to entitle the claimant to inherit. Ibid.

Declarations of the putative father are competent to show general or notorious recognition, but such evidence must be carefully scrutinized. In a particular case held that the evidence of such recognition was not sufficient. Evidence of current rumors or reports, where the putative father lived at the time of the birth of the illegitimate child, to the effect that such child belonged to him, is inadmissible to show paternity. Ibid.

The recognition contemplated by the statute is not recognition as prospective heir, but recognition as an illegitimate child. If the conditions required by the statute exist at the time of the death of the ancestor the child is entitled to inherit under this section. It is immaterial that the recognition antedated the enactment of the statutory provision authorizing inheritance by illegitimates thus recognized. Alston v. Alston, 114–29, 86 N. W. 55.

Evidence in a particular case held sufficient to show such recognition as to entitle an illegitimate son to inherit. Ibid.

The right of an illegitimate child, duly recognized, may be interposed in a partition proceeding to which the legitimate heirs of the deceased are parties. Ibid.

Declarations in letters to an illegitimate child held to amount to such recognition as to entitle the child to inherit from the person who, by the letters, admitted himself to be her father. Britt v. Hall, 116–564, 90 N. W. 340.

In a partition proceeding held that the evidence of recognition was sufficient to entitle the illegitimate child to a share in the estate of her father. Morgan v. Strand, 133–299, 110 N. W. 596.

Evidence of recognition in particular cases held not sufficient. Brown v. Iowa Legion of Honor, 107–439, 78 N. W. 73; Markey v. Markey, 108–373, 79 N. W. 258; McCorkendale v. McCorkendale, 111–134, 82 N. W. 754; Duffy v. Duffy, 114–581, 87 N. W. 500.

Evidence of rumor or common report of parentage is not admissible to establish the general and notorious recognition required by this section. Murphy v. Murphy, 146–255, 125 N. W. 191.

Recognition of relationship which is not general or notorious is not sufficient. Ibid.

SEC. 3386. Heir or beneficiary causing death or disability. No person who feloniously takes or causes or procures another so to take the life of another shall inherit from such person, or receive any interest in the estate of the decedent as surviving spouse, or take by devise or legacy from him, any portion of his estate; and no beneficiary of any policy of insurance or certificate of membership issued by any benevolent association or organization, payable upon the death or disability of any person, who in like manner takes or causes or procures to be taken the life upon which such policy or certificate is issued, or who causes or procures a disability of such person, shall take the proceeds of such policy or certificate; but in every instance mentioned in this section, all benefits that would accrue to any such person upon the death or disability of the person whose life is thus taken or who is thus disabled shall become subject to distribution among the other heirs of such deceased person, according to the foregoing rules of descent and distribution in case of death, and in case of disability the benefits thereunder shall be paid to the disabled person. [29 G. A., ch. 135, § 1.]

Prior to the amendment of this section, held that it did not apply to the widow's dower right. In re Estate of Kuhn, 125–449, 101 N. W. 151.

CHAPTER 5.

OF ACCOUNTING AND MISCELLANEOUS PROVISIONS.

SECTION 3394. Report.

The oversight and direction of the settlement of estates is committed to the district court, and its discretion in determining whether the executor shall be required to make final report and close the estate will not in general be interfered with. Wheeler v. Long, 128–643, 105 N. W. 161.

Decisions of the court as to intermediate reports are not conclusive, so as to prevent the correction of mistakes therein, when the final report is presented. In re Estate of Smith, 133–142, 109 N. W. 196.

The allowance of a claim against the estate by a special administrator in favor of a general administrator, which is approved by the court, cannot be attacked by exception to the final report. In re Estate of Pennock, 122–622, 98 N. W. 480.

The administrator may be allowed valid claims paid, although not filed against the estate. Ibid.

Where the executor has made use of the funds of the estate in his own business he should account for interest thereon at the rate of six per cent. per annum, with annual rests. In re Brown's Estate, 113–351, 85 N. W. 617.

Where the administrator brings the entire fund into court and subjects it to the jurisdiction thereof, the property remains subject to final adjustment and settlement of the estate. Even if mistakes are made in interlocutory orders they are subject to correction at any time before the final settlement. In re Estate of Metcalf, 143–310, 120 N. W. 104.

The settlement of the estate should not be postponed beyond the time specified by the statute on account of mere contingencies of the prospective collection of debts due the decedent. In re Estate of Brigham, Corbin v. McAllister, 144–71, 120 N. W. 1054.

SEC. 3395. Examination of executor.

As the administrator may be examined under oath and required to account for all property coming into his hands belonging to the estate, the fact that he procures the appointment of a special administrator to pass on his claim against the estate is no ground for his removal. Fry v. Fry, 155–254, 135 N. W. 1095.

SEC. 3398. Mistakes corrected.

Mistakes in settlement may be corrected at any time before final settlement, and the provisions of the next section limiting the time within which application may be made to open up accounts settled in the absence of parties in interest, held to have no application to mistake or fraud in the settlement of the administrator's intermediate accounts. Dorris v. Miller, 105–564, 75 N. W. 482.

An action in equity may be maintained to correct a final settlement in a probate proceeding which has been entered through mistake. Tucker v. Stewart, 121–714, 97 N. W. 148.

Where the administrator, by falsely reporting the assets of the estate in his hands, induces the guardian of minors interested in the distribution of the estate to accept his note without security, and thereby procures his discharge as administrator, such fraudulent settlement may be set aside in an action in equity. Ibid.

Even after the report of a special administrator has been accepted, mistakes in the settlement reported by such administrator may be corrected so long as the estate is unsettled and the general administrator is not discharged. In re Estate of Douglas, 140–603, 117 N. W. 982.

Even after final settlement and discharge mistakes in the settlement may be corrected by equitable proceedings. Ibid.

An erroneous order of allowance of a claim made by the regular administrator and referred to a temporary administrator may be corrected on final settlement of the estate. Rabbett v. Connolly, 153–607, 133 N. W. 1060.

A motion to set aside such improper allowance may be supported by affidavits under the provisions of code § 3833. Ibid.

In the absence of any showing of fraud, the discharge of the administrator terminates the power of the court to allow claims or order the sale of real property. Flora v. Brown, 140 N. W. 364.

SEC. 3399. Settlement contested.

Where the executor uses money of the estate in acquiring property in his own name, a settlement based on a report in which he claims credit for such property as belonging to the estate should be set aside. In re Brown's Estate, 113–351, 85 N. W. 617.

The office of exceptions to executors' reports is not to demand affirmative relief, but to call the attention of the court to errors of omission or commission in the statements of the account. The report and the objections form the issues to be tried and involve no more than the correctness of the account presented by the executor as such. The individual liability of the executor is not involved. Ibid.

Intermediate orders are not conclusive in a final contest as to the correctness of the accounts of a trustee. In re Manning's Estate, 134–165, 111 N. W. 409.

If money received for the estate is in fact used for its benefit, mismanagement of the affairs of the estate will not defeat the right to recover the money so used, unless the claimant is a party to such mismanagement. Ibid.

Mistakes in settlements by administrators may be corrected at any time before final settlement and discharge and the correction may include the allowance of the attorney's fees to the administrator although approved on a prior ex parte application. In re Estate of Sawyer, 124–485, 100 N. W. 484.

Liability of an administrator for conversion of the property of deceased must be determined in proceedings relating to his accounting, and cannot be made the subject of an action against him by a special administrator subsequently appointed. Garretson v. Kinkead, 118–383, 92 N. W. 55.

A claimant is not estopped from questioning the correctness of the report of an executor, or by the acts of attorneys representing such executor, although they may for some purposes also represent the claimant. In re Cummings' Estate, 120–421, 94 N. W. 1117.

Where an order has been made for an allowance of support to the widow, and the money has been paid over in accordance with such order, the action of the court should not be questioned, even for fraud, after the lapse of two years or more. Busby v. Busby, 120–536, 95 N. W. 191.

Three months are allowed within which to move for the vacation of an order discharging the executor without a charge or proof of fraud or mistake. But to justify an interference with the order of discharge, if it has become final, the fraud or mistake relied upon must be something extrinsic or collateral to the matter tried upon the original hearing, and not a fraud or mistake in the matter on which the judgment was entered or order made. Bradbury v. Wells, 138–673, 115 N. W. 880.

An interlocutory order does not amount to an adjudication in such sense that it may not be corrected at any time before final settlement. In re Estate of Metcalf, 143–310, 120 N. W. 104.

After determination on an appeal that the widow was entitled to a fund in the hands of the administrator, held that on a remand of the case for decree in harmony with the opinion the right of the widow could not be further questioned on final settlement of the estate. In re Estate of Cook, 143–733, 122 N. W. 578.

Although the final judgment as to the validity of a claim is a binding adjudication in an action against the sureties on an administrator's bond, nevertheless so long as any question which can be raised as to the obligation of the administrator to allow or pay such claim is subject to judicial determination, the sureties remain liable for the obligations of the administrator. Tucker v. Stewart, 147–294, 126 N. W. 183.

An order of discharge of the administrator obtained by fraud does not relieve the sureties from liability on the bond after such order has been vacated in a proper proceeding. Ibid.

The finding of the court as to the facts upon conflicting evidence will not be reversed on appeal, such appeal not being triable de novo. In re Estate of Clark, 151–511, 131 N. W. 700.

SEC. 3400. Discharge.

The report of the executor should not be approved where it appears that he still has funds to distribute. Lippert v. Lippert, 110–550, 81 N. W. 777.

The settlement of the final accounts of an executor and his discharge terminate his power as to real estate which, by the provisions of the will, he is directed to convert into money. Final settlements seldom, if ever, involve the title and right to possession of realty. Boland v. Tiernay, 118–59, 91 N. W. 836.

After an administrator has been garnished on a claim against the estate, he cannot secure a discharge without reporting such contingent liability and thus defeat the claim without rendering himself personally liable. Geiger v. Gaige, 134–197, 111 N. W. 804.

SEC. 3403. Notice of order—publication. When the court shall make an order affecting an executor or administrator, and it cannot be personally served upon him, service thereof may be made by publication of a notice, stating the substance of such order, in some newspaper published in the county where such order was made, once each week, for four weeks in succession, which publication may be proved as in case of original notice. [31 G. A., ch. 9, § 10; C. '73, §§ 2479–80; R. §§ 2474–5.]

SEC. 3405. Failure to account.

This section imposes a penalty which accrues to the estate immediately upon the default of the executor, and if the probate court has not exonerated the executor for the default he cannot be heard in an action against him on his bond to set up an excuse. Lippert v. Lippert, 110–550, 81 N. W. 777.

SEC. 3410. Executors considered as one.

An action may be brought against one or more of joint executors. Farmers' Bank v. Wright, (C. C.) 158 Fed. 841.

SEC. 3412. List of heirs—discovery.

The list of heirs filed by the administrator is not binding on any one and is not admissible for the purpose of showing title by descent. Prichard v. Mulhall, 140–1, 118 N. W. 43.

Neither the filing of the affidavit provided for in this section nor the examination of the records of the county to ascertain if deceased left real estate, can in any manner affect the transmission of title to the real estate of the deceased. In re Estate of Pitt, 153–269, 133 N. W. 660.

An administrator has no occasion to list with the heirs a husband of the daughter of the deceased. Hatton v. Wheaton, 139 N. W. 1108.

SEC. 3415. Compensation.

The compensation provided for by statute does not cover services in making investments, passing on the value of securities and transacting like business for deceased, but additional compensation cannot be awarded where there is no evidence offered as to the value of such additional services. Fitzgerald v. Paisley, 110–98, 81 N. W. 181.

An allowance to executors of an annual salary for services in addition to the statutory compensation will not be held to include the percentage; and such allowance will be held to apply to past as well as future services, where not otherwise specified, as it is not necessary that such salary be fixed in advance. Anderson v. Sabin, 132–507, 109 N. W. 1080.

Compensation received by executors in excess of that fixed by statute will be presumed to be for extraordinary services unless the contrary is shown. Ibid.

The statutory allowance of compensation is not intended as a mere bonus or retainer, leaving the administrator at liberty to charge and collect the reasonable value of his services in addition thereto. If anything farther is allowed, it is only for necessary extraordinary expenses and services and on good reasons clearly shown to the court. In re Estate of Sawyer, 124–485, 100 N. W. 484.

Attorney's fees incurred by an executor in a proceeding to construe the provisions of the will may properly be allowed out of the funds of the estate, but where the purpose of the application by a devisee to have the will construed is to have his right to a share under the will established, there is no occasion for allowing attorney's fees as against the estate. In re Nicholson's Will, 123–630, 99 N. W. 300.

The statute authorizes an allowance to an administrator for his actual, necessary and extraordinary expenses which would include attorney's fees for services rendered the administrator, but the attorney rendering such services has no claim therefor against the estate. Clark v. Sayre, 122–591, 98 N. W. 484.

An attorney is not entitled to compensation out of the estate for services rendered to an administrator in an attempt to perpetuate himself as administrator of the estate, the effort to secure such appointment being unsuccessful. Dorris v. Miller, 105–564, 75 N. W. 482.

Generally speaking, an executor or administrator is not prima facie chargeable with interest during the time the law allows for collecting the estate and settling the accounts, which is usually one year after administration is taken. Ibid.

No liability on the part of the administrator, such as will defeat his right to compensation, attaches by reason of mere mistake of judgment as to the property which he is entitled to control. In re Estate of Ring, 132–216, 109 N. W. 710.

It is within the proper discretion of the trial court to make an allowance to an executor for attorney's fees and for making his final report and securing his discharge. And this applies also to a subsequent report and accounting after an order of discharge has been entered. In re Estate of Hamilton, 148–127, 126 N. W. 776.

The allowance to an administrator for compensation and attorney's fees is not reviewable de novo on appeal. In re Estate of Baumhover, 151–146, 130 N. W. 817.

This section does not make obligatory the allowance of attorney's fees even in favor of an executor. And where the widow became the proponent of her husband's will in her own interest, held that it was not necessary to allow her attorney's fees out of the estate. In re Estate of Berry, 154–301, 134 N. W. 867.

SEC. 3416. Removal of executor.

The power of the court to remove an administrator is defined by statutory provisions and in general such provisions should be complied with. Haddick v. District Court, 141 N. W. 925.

The validity of an order removing the administrator may be tested by certiorari, although there has been a motion in the lower court to set aside such order. Ibid.

SEC. 3422. Notice of application for discharge.

There is no provision of statute for notice to other persons than parties interested in the estate of the application of an executor or administrator for discharge. Potter v. Brentlinger, 117–536, 91 N. W. 809.

The propriety of refusing to disturb settlements when fraud or mistake is not clearly established is apparent under the present statutory provisions, which require notice to be served on all parties in interest before the allowance of a final accounting or the discharge of the executor or administrator. Bradbury v. Wells, 138–673, 115 N. W. 880.

A final order of discharge of an executor should not be made until the expiration of a full year from the time of his appointment, and if there is an order of discharge before the expiration of the year within which claims may be filed, the claimant may have the order set aside and then file his claim and secure the allowance thereof, or serve notice of such claim upon the executor. In re Kimball's Estate, Flanigan v. Kimball, 139 N. W. 456.

PART THIRD.

CODE OF CIVIL PRACTICE.

TITLE XVIII.

OF PROCEDURE IN COURTS OF ORIGINAL JURISDICTION.

CHAPTER 1.

OF PRELIMINARY PROVISIONS.

SECTION 3424. Proceedings.

Every proceeding in court is an action, and the word "action" as employed in this section has a technical meaning. Morris v. Lowry, 113–544, 85 N. W. 788.

An action is a proceeding in court. The cause of action is the fact or facts that justify it or show the right to maintain it. It is every fact necessary to be proven, if traversed, in order to support the right to a judgment. It does not comprise every piece of evidence which is necessary to prove each fact, but every fact which is necessary to be proved. Box v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co., 107–660, 78 N. W. 694.

SEC. 3425. Civil and special actions.

Unless particularly provided for, a jury is not usually allowed in a special proceeding. In re Bradley, 108–476, 79 N. W. 280.

An action of forcible entry and detainer is a special proceeding. Herkimer v. Keeler, 109–680, 81 N. W. 178.

The proceeding under code § 3826 to compel an attorney to account is a special proceeding. Union Bldg. & Sav. Assn. v. Soderquist, 115–695, 87 N. W. 433.

Where the writ of mandamus is the sole relief sought in an action, it is ordinarily classed as a special proceeding, but still remains triable at law. Ford v. Manchester, 136–213, 113 N. W. 846.

An appeal as to county printing (code § 441) is a special proceeding, and, although not triable to a jury, is to be heard as an ordinary action. In re Cherokee County Printing, 156–282, 136 N. W. 765.

An action against a common carrier for negligence resulting in injury to live stock during transportation may be brought either in contract or in tort, and the plaintiff may recover the damages sustained. Gilbert v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co., 156–440, 136 N. W. 911.

The provision as to jury trial in ordinary actions is not applicable to special proceedings. Klopp v. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co., 156–466, 136 N. W. 906.

SEC. 3426. Form of actions.

The fictions of the common law have been abolished and procedure for actions of right as well as other actions is prescribed by statute. Bevering v. Smith, 121–607, 96 N. W. 1110.

The plaintiff is required to make a statement of the facts constituting his cause of action and a demand for the relief to which he considers himself entitled, and the fact that he states two inconsistent causes of action cannot be made a ground of objection to the judgment rendered if the question is not raised in proper time and manner. Chicago & N. W. R. Co. v. DeClow, 124 Fed. 142.

Mandamus is a law remedy and an action or proceeding in which such remedy is sought is a legal and not an equitable proceeding. Ford v. Manchester, 136–213, 113 N. W. 846.

All forms of action having been abolished, the pleader need only make a plain statement of the facts without legal conclusions which entitle him to relief. Boynton v. Salinger, 147–537, 126 N. W. 369.

SEC. 3427. Equitable proceedings.

One who desires to recover money paid for land, on the ground of fraud or mistake, may tender a reconveyance and bring action at law. He has no occasion for relief in equity. Watson v. Bartholomew, 106–576, 76 N. W. 858.

Not every action for an accounting is cognizable in equity. Citizens' Bank v. Whinery, 110–390, 81 N. W. 694.

Where there was an agreement that the case should be tried in equity, but the record disclosed subsequent entries showing waiver of a jury, without reference to such agreement, held that it did not sufficiently appear that the case was transferred to the equity docket. Ibid.

An instrument absolute in form may be shown to be a mortgage in an action at law as well as in equity, and fraud of this character relied on does not necessitate the transfer of a law action to the equity docket. Frick v. Kabaker, 116–494, 90 N. W. 498.

Although equity has general jurisdiction of the settlement of partnership affairs, yet if in a partnership settlement one partner has withheld from the settlement specific money or property, the other partner may sue for his interest therein at law. Erret v. Pritchard, 121–496, 96 N. W. 963.

Parties may be tenants in common of mining property without being partners, and in such case an action by one against the other for profits and proceeds is not necessarily an equitable action. Doyle v. Burns, 123–488, 99 N. W. 195.

In an action to recover for different items of indebtedness not forming part of a continuous account, it is not necessary to transfer the case to the equity side of the docket. Mayo v. Halley, 124–675, 100 N. W. 529.

The equitable action of interpleader may still be maintained although not expressly authorized by the statute save in actions of replevin. (See code § 3487.) Hoyt v. Gouge, 125–603, 101 N. W. 464.

An application for admeasurement of dower may be made in a probate proceeding, and when so made is to be determined at law. Brandes v. Brandes, 129–351, 105 N. W. 499.

Parties who have voluntarily come into a court of equity cannot complain that they are deprived of a trial by jury. Slaughter v. McManigal, 138–643, 116 N. W. 726.

A court of equity has jurisdiction to foreclose a vendor's lien, and where by amendment to a petition the establishment and foreclosure of such lien is asked, the case may properly be transferred to the equity docket. State Bank v. Brown, 142–190, 119 N. W. 81.

Courts of equity have jurisdiction to relieve in cases of fraud and in so far as the law affords relief, such jurisdiction is concurrent. But there is a large field where a party is helpless at law and the jurisdiction of equity may be properly said to be exclusive. Dickinson v. Stevenson, 142–567, 120 N. W. 324.

If there is evidence showing a party to be entitled to equitable relief not available to him at law, an order transferring the case from the equity to the law docket will be erroneous and sufficient ground for a reversal. Ibid.

Where the relief asked is such that equity only can grant it, plaintiff's action should be dismissed if the facts are not such as to entitle him to such relief, although he might be entitled to relief in a proper action at law. Hall v. Henninger, 145–230, 121 N. W. 6.

An action to enjoin the enforcement of a judgment and have it held null and void and to have the levy made thereunder released and the sale of property in pursuance of such levy set aside, is wholly equitable. Mengel v. Mengel, 145–737, 120 N. W. 72, 122 N. W. 899.

When equity has once obtained jurisdiction of a controversy, it will determine all questions material or necessary to the accomplishment of full and complete justice between the parties, even though in doing so it may be required to pass upon some matters ordinarily cognizable at law. Reiger v. Turley, 151–491, 131 N. W. 866.

Conditions may be attached to the relief granted in equity which could not have been enforced at law as a matter of right. Ibid.

It is not error to refuse to transfer to the law docket an action brought in equity to set aside a settlement of indebtedness on the ground of fraud, where the determination of the issues involves an examination of mutual accounts of payments and credits. Farmers' Sav. Bank v. Aldrich, 153–144, 133 N. W. 383.

The cancellation of a contract can only be procured in equity. Weseman v. Graham, 157– —, 138 N. W. 478.

SEC. 3428. Action on note and mortgage.

A general judgment on a note does not merge the mortgage secured thereby. Smith v. Moore, 112–60, 83 N. W. 813.

SEC. 3431. Ordinary proceedings.

This section distinguishes the method of trial in ordinary and in equitable proceedings, but does not necessarily imply a jury trial in special proceedings. In re Bradley, 108–476, 79 N. W. 280.

Plaintiff who is entitled to maintain an action at common law should not be required to proceed in equity. Van Norman v. Modern Brotherhood, 134–575, 111 N. W. 992.

SEC. 3432. Error—effect of.

Forms of action are not controlling, and one who has brought his adversary into court is entitled to any remedy which the court can afford in any form of action, if the defendant makes no objection to the procedure. Smith v. Haas, 132–493, 109 N. W. 1075.

If the case when commenced is well founded and presents an issue properly triable in equity, the court will have jurisdiction, although the equitable ground of relief is removed, and the court will retain the case for final judgment. Heath v. Halfhill, 106–131, 76 N. W. 522.

An equity action changed by amendment so as to ask only for the recovery of damages at law may still be tried in equity, in the absence of a motion to transfer it to the proper forum. Lough v. Estherville, 122–479, 98 N. W. 308.

Where, after the submission of the case on equitable issues, the plaintiff is allowed to amend his petition so as to convert his action into one at law, the submission should be set aside and the case tried by ordinary proceedings. Hartwig v. Iles, 131–501, 109 N. W. 18.

The objection that an action commenced in equity is cognizable only at law cannot be raised by demurrer. McCormick Har. Mach. Co. v. Markert, 107–340, 78 N. W. 33; McClure v. Dee, 115–546, 88 N. W. 1093.

An objection to the form of proceeding cannot be first raised on appeal. Des Moines Sav. Bank v. Morgan Jewelry Co., 123–432, 99 N. W. 121.

The objection that a proceeding should have been in probate instead of in equity is not jurisdictional. Easton v. Somerville, 111–164, 82 N. W. 475.

Where no objection is raised to the form of action in the trial court, and the petition discloses and the evidence tends to establish a right in the plaintiff to claim a recovery of the amount sued for, the appellate court is not justified in denying relief because the remedy was not sought in the proper forum. Blondel v. Ohlman, 132–257, 109 N. W. 806.

The plaintiff is not entitled to have his action instituted in equity transferred to the law docket on the filing of an amended petition which asks recovery only at law, if the evidence has already been taken by deposition, and the opposite party would be entitled to a continuance if the action were to be tried at law. Saunders v. Wells, 135–11, 112 N. W. 205.

Error as to the kind of proceedings adopted does not render a judgment invalid, no request having been made to have the case transferred to the proper docket. Niemand v. Seemann, 136–713, 114 N. W. 48.

If a wrong forum is selected, the proper remedy is a motion to transfer. In re Estate of Douglas, 140–603, 117 N. W. 982.

The fact that under the allegations of the petition plaintiff is not entitled to equitable relief, but only to relief at law, is not a proper ground for dismissal of the action. Mudge v. Livermore, 148–472, 123 N. W. 199.

If a party desires to take advantage of any error in the form of action as adopted, he must do so by motion to transfer, and failure to do so is a waiver of the objection. Reiger v. Turley, 151–491, 131 N. W. 866.

This provision has no application to a case where the plaintiff fails to show any cause of action. Morton v. Woods, 154–728, 135 N. W. 400.

These provisions obviate the dismissal of a suit in equity when the equities fail. When the equities fail for want of proof and there is enough in the petition to state a cause of action at law, the cause should be transferred to the law side of the calendar and there tried. Fisher v. Trumbauer, 138 N. W. 528, 141 N. W. 419.

SEC. 3434. By defendant.

The fact that defendant in an action at law asks an injunction by way of cross action does not require the transfer to the equity docket of a proceeding by motion to dissolve such injunction. Brody v. Chittenden, 106–340, 76 N. W. 740.

The action of the court in improperly overruling a motion to change the forum will be a ground for reversal. But where the issues in an action commenced in equity are such as must be tried by the court without a jury in an action at law, a refusal to sustain a motion to transfer, even though erroneous, will be error without prejudice. McCormick Har. Mach. Co. v. Markert, 107–340, 78 N. W. 33.

The plaintiff cannot, after issue joined, be taken against his will out of a forum in which his action was properly brought, when he has done nothing to disqualify himself from proceeding therein. Therefore held that where the action was properly brought in equity to foreclose an attorney's lien, the defendant could not, after filing his answer, by releasing the lien under the provisions of code § 322, insist on the transfer of the case to the law docket. Crissman v. McDuff, 114–83, 86 N. W. 50.

Where the action is properly brought in equity, a defendant has no right to trial by jury of a law issue presented by his answer. Ibid.

The fact that a petition in mandamus designates the action as at law does not justify the court in ordering the issues submitted to a jury, although no motion is made for transfer to the equity docket. Klopp v. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co., 156–466, 136 N. W. 906.

Where plaintiff's suit has been brought in equity, it may be maintained there in the absence of any motion of the defendant to transfer it to the law docket, and the defendant cannot insist on a counterclaim being heard on the law side of the calendar. If the equities alleged in the petition have been proven and relief is denied on some other ground than want of evidence, then the court may retain the cause and dispose of it on the merits even though this may result in awarding a remedy peculiar to law. Fisher v. Trumbauer, 138 N. W. 528, 141 N. W. 419.

Where without objection a cause of action at law is joined with a cause of action in equity, the defendant is bound to submit the case on the issues as tendered, but if the relief asked might be properly granted in the equitable action, the plaintiff is not entitled to relief which could only be granted in an action at law. Watt v. Robbins, 142 N. W. 387.

SEC. 3435. Equitable issues.

Where the equitable issues are such as to dispose of the entire controversy, it is not error to proceed with the trial of the action as in equity. Twogood v. Allee, 125–59, 99 N. W. 288.

The fact of the pendency in the same court of an action at law involving the same subject matter does not prevent the court in an equitable case from determining issues arising in that case. Clinton v. Shugart, 126–179, 101 N. W. 785.

In a law action issues cognizable in equity may be transferred to the equity docket, but the issues at law in such case should not be so transferred. Johnston v. Robuck, 104–523, 73 N. W. 1062.

Where the trial of the issues at law will practically settle all matters in controversy, such issues should be first tried. Ibid.

That the pleadings in an action at law set out facts which, if true, would entitle plaintiff to equitable relief is immaterial so long as such relief is not demanded. Boyce v. Allen, 105–249, 74 N. W. 948.

An issue is not equitable within the meaning of the statutory provision as to changing the forum so long as the relief asked or the defenses interposed are not equitable. Ibid.

Where an equitable defense is pleaded to a law action, while that issue may be tried by the court, the right of plaintiff to a jury trial on the case he presents is not affected. Tufts v. Norris, 115–250, 88 N. W. 367.

Error in transferring the case to the equity docket when the issues are properly determinable at law will not be a ground for reversal if the judgment rendered is such as must necessarily have been rendered under the evidence had the case been allowed to remain on the law docket. Rattray v. Talcott, 124–398, 100 N. W. 36.

[Substitute for the paragraph in the code notes to this section which purports to state the case of Carey v. Gunnison, 65–702, the following:

If the defense of mistake, which might be interposed in an action at law, involves facts which might also be made the ground for equitable relief, then such facts may be set up in an equitable answer and the issue arising on such answer will be triable to the court. Carey v. Gunnison, 65–702, 22 N. W. 934.]

Although a counterclaim presents equitable issues only, if these are such as are fully disposed of by a trial at law on the issues raised by the petition and answer, it is not error to proceed to trial of the issues at law before a hearing on the equitable issues. Gibson v. Seney, 138–383, 116 N. W. 325.

Where the decision of the issues in a law action is determinative of those raised in an equitable counterclaim, the motion to transfer to the equity docket may be properly overruled. Keller v. Harrison, 139–383, 116 N. W. 327.

Where the plaintiff in an action of replevin alleges unqualified ownership and the defendant's allegation is in effect a negative of such averment, it is error to transfer the case to the equity docket. Cole v. Cole, 139–609, 117 N. W. 988.

It is not proper to join an action against an individual in his own right to an action against him as administrator, and the defendant cannot be deprived, by such improper joinder, of his right to have an action at law tried as an ordinary action. Faville v. Lloyd, 140–501, 118 N. W. 871.

Where before issues joined the plaintiff's action has been converted into a mere money demand and the issue made thereon is solely one of fact, there can be no reason for depriving either party of the right to have the issue tried at law. Jamison v. Ranck, 140–635, 119 N. W. 76.

Error in transferring a cause involving equitable issues to the law calendar will not work a reversal of the judgment, unless, upon a de novo consideration of the issues joined and evidence offered in support thereof, it appears that a different result should have been reached. Irwin v. Deming, 142–299, 120 N. W. 645.

An insurance company cannot, by pleading fraud in the procurement of the contract and asking its cancellation, deprive the plaintiff of the right to have his cause of action on the policy submitted to a jury. Biermann v. Guaranty Mut. Life Ins. Co., 142–341, 120 N. W. 963.

Although no motion is made to transfer the case to the equity docket, if the answer asks for equitable relief and the right thereto is challenged by the plaintiff the court may grant relief which would be proper only in equity. Tuttle v. Bisbee, 144–53, 120 N. W. 699.

The defense of estoppel does not present an equitable issue. Security Sav. Bank v. Smith, 144–203, 122 N. W. 825.

Neither estoppel nor laches constitutes an issue exclusively cognizable in a court of equity. State Sav. Bank v. Miller, 146–83, 124 N. W. 873.

Where by agreement a cause of action at law and one in equity are consolidated and tried to the court, the defendant cannot complain, not having moved to transfer the case or any issues therein to the law docket. Sullivan v. Kenney, 148–361, 126 N. W. 349.

If an action is improperly brought in equity, the party objecting should move to transfer to the law side of the calendar and failure to do so waives objection to the trial of the case in equity. Cress v. Ivens, 155–17, 134 N. W. 869.

Where there is a mutual mistake concerning the number of acres in an exchange of land, the remedy available is either at law or in equity as the injured party may elect. In such case plaintiff is entitled to a hearing in equity on the merits of the case even though he is praying for the reformation of the deed to which he is not entitled. Fisher v. Trumbauer, 138 N. W. 528, 141 N. W. 419.

Where an action is properly begun at law, it should not be changed to equity on account of the interposition of equitable defenses, counterclaims or cross-petitions. If equitable issues are so raised by the defendant, he may have such issues heard separately, but he is not entitled to have the case transferred to the equity docket. Eller v. Newell, 141 N. W. 52.

SEC. 3437. Errors waived.

Where the objection to an equitable action is as to the forum in which it is brought and not to plaintiff's right to maintain it, the failure to move to transfer to the proper docket will be a waiver, but not where the plaintiff could not maintain his action in equity because he has a plain, adequate and speedy remedy at law. Such objection may be urged even for the first time in the supreme court. McLachlan v. Gray, 105–259, 74 N. W. 773.

Defendant in an action in which equitable relief is asked may object to the maintenance of the action on the ground that no such relief can properly be given. He is not required to move for a transfer of the case to the law docket on the theory that it is improperly brought in equity, even though damages in an action at law might be recovered for the wrong done. Cooper v. Cedar Rapids, 112–367, 83 N. W. 1050.

Where the relief sought in an action might be awarded either at law or in equity, by failing to ask for a transfer of the action to the equity docket, any error in the proceedings of the case on the law docket is waived. No suit is to be dismissed or abated because of an error in the kind of proceedings. Matthews v. Luers Drug Co., 110–231, 81 N. W. 464.

Where a case is tried without objection in equity, it is properly triable de novo on appeal. Clearfield Bank v. Olin, 112–476, 84 N. W. 508.

No objection being made in the trial court to the forum in which the action is brought, the objection that it should have been in probate instead of in equity cannot be raised on appeal. Filkins v. Severn, 127–738, 104 N. W. 346.

Failure to move for the transfer of a case to the proper docket is a waiver of any error as to the forum. This rule is applicable as to proceedings in a probate court with reference to the interpretation of the validity of a will which should properly have been determined in equity. Niemand v. Seemann, 136–713, 114 N. W. 48.

Where no objection is made to the forum in the lower court, such objection cannot be raised on appeal. Wait v. Mystic Workers, 140–648, 119 N. W. 72.

A party complaining of the action of the court in transferring a case to the equity docket does not waive his right to rely upon such error by proceeding with the trial of the case as transferred. State Sav. Bank v. Miller, 146–83, 124 N. W. 873.

Where the only relief sought in the petition is a money judgment, it is error to overrule a motion to transfer from the equity to the law docket. Miller v. Hawkeye Gold Dredging Co., 156–557, 137 N. W. 507.

SEC. 3438. Uniformity of procedure.

This section does not necessarily require a jury trial in special proceedings. In re Bradley, 108–476, 79 N. W. 280.

Proceedings in an action of forcible entry and detainer are to be governed by the rules applicable to ordinary actions. Herkimer v. Keeler, 109–680, 81 N. W. 178.

SEC. 3439. Actions on judgments. No action shall be brought upon any judgment against a defendant therein, rendered in any court of record of this state, within fifteen years after the rendition thereof, without leave of the court, or a judge thereof, for good cause shown, and, if the adverse party is a resident of this state, upon reasonable notice of the application therefor to him; nor on a judgment of a justice of the peace in the state within eight years after the same is rendered, unless the docket of the justice or record of such judgment is lost or destroyed; but the time during which an action on a judgment is prohibited by this section shall not be excluded in computing the statutory period of limitation for an action thereon. The provisions of this section shall apply to all judgments rendered after the taking effect of the code of 1873, and prior to the taking effect of the code of 1897, but the time within which an action may be brought on any judgment rendered during said period, which would otherwise be barred by this amendment, is hereby extended one year after the taking effect hereof. [34 G. A., ch. 158, § 1.] [29 G. A., ch. 137, § 1; C. '73, § 2521.]

Such provision in the code of '73 did not operate to extend the statutory period of limitation on judgments rendered before that code took effect. Wilson v. Tucker, 105–55, 74 N. W. 908.

The change in the statute made by the addition of the last clause to this section in the present code is not applicable to judgments rendered more than twenty years before the taking effect of the code. Cassady v. Grimmelman, 108–695, 77 N. W. 1067.

The change in this section as adopted in the present code is not applicable to judgments already rendered. Norris v. Tripp, 111–115, 82 N. W. 610.

The case of Weiser v. McDowell, 93–772, is followed with reference to the judgment of a justice of the peace rendered before the taking effect of the code. Parks v. Norton, 114–732, 87 N. W. 698.

Unless an action on a judgment of a justice of the peace rendered prior to the taking effect of the code of '97 is brought within the time limited by that code, it must have been brought within one year after the taking effect of 29 G. A., ch. 137. Haugen v. Oldford, 129–156, 105 N. W. 393.

The time during which an action may be maintained on a judgment is now limited to the five years intervening between the expiration of the fifteen years from the rendition and the twenty years therefrom when the same is barred, and this change in the statute which reduces the period of limitation as to actions on judgments is not unconstitutional as applied to judgments rendered before the amended statute took effect, as a reasonable time for bringing action on such judgments is preserved. Wooster v. Bateman, 126–552, 102 N. W. 521.

The twenty-year limitation is applicable to judgments of justices of the peace rendered prior to the taking effect of this section, if the judgment creditor has had one year after the taking effect of the act of 29 G. A., ch. 137, within which to maintain an action on the judgment. Miller v. Rosebrook, 136–158, 113 N. W. 771.

SEC. 3439-a. Acts in conflict repealed. All acts and parts of acts inconsistent with this act are hereby repealed. [29 G. A., ch. 137, § 2.]

SEC. 3440. Judgments not annulled in equity.

A court of equity cannot modify a judgment rendered in an action by ordinary proceedings. Hornish v. Ringen Stove Co., 116–1, 89 N. W. 95.

This section was evidently intended to apply only to parties or privies to the judgment and not to strangers. Stewart Lumber Co. v. Downs, 142–420, 120 N. W. 1067.

A defendant should not be allowed in equity to attack a judgment on account of a defense to the cause of action which might have been interposed in the action in which the judgment was recovered. Ulber v. Dunn, 143–260, 119 N. W. 269.

As to injunction to restrain the enforcement of a judgment on the ground of fraud, see code § 4364.

SEC. 3441. Discovery.

Statutory provisions for requiring answers under oath from the opposite party are a substitute for the equitable action for discovery. Beem v. Farrell, 135–670, 113 N. W. 509.

SEC. 3443. Actions survive.

This section does not create a new cause of action for an injury causing death, but only provides that the cause of action of the party who dies shall pass to the administrator as assets of the estate. Sachs v. Sioux City, 109–224, 80 N. W. 336.

An action for an injury causing death may be brought by the administrator of the deceased without regard to whether the person entitled to the estate of the deceased is a nonresident alien. Romano v. Capital City Brick & Pipe Co., 125–591, 101 N. W. 437; Rietveld v. Wabash R. Co., 129–249, 105 N. W. 515.

The right of action for an injury causing death accrues to the estate, and the wife cannot maintain in her own name an action for damages sustained by her by reason of injuries resulting in the death of her husband. Major v. Burlington, C. R. & N. R. Co., 115–309, 88 N. W. 815.

The surviving husband has no right of action against one whose negligence or wrong has resulted in the instant death of the wife. Seney v. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co., 125–290, 101 N. W. 76.

To support a recovery in an action for injuries causing death it must be shown that the death was caused by the wrongful act of the defendant. Pearson v. Wilcox, 109–123, 80 N. W. 228.

In an action instituted by the administrator in behalf of the estate to recover damages for injuries to the deceased causing his death, there can be no recovery on account of pain suffered during the interval between the injury and the death. Jacobs v. Glucose Sugar Refining Co., 140 Fed. 766.

The right of a vendee under a contract to convey survives to his representatives. Cone v. Cone, 118–458, 92 N. W. 665.

The assignment of choses in action is authorized by this section, and in an action by the assignee thereof the debtor can only interpose such defenses as existed in his favor and against the assignor before notice of the assignment. See code § 3461. Peterson v. Ball, 121–544, 97 N. W. 79.

But it is doubted whether wages to be earned under a contract to labor for an indefinite period at a specified rate of wages is assignable as to wages to be earned in the future, so as to render the employer liable to the assignee for wages so earned. Ibid.

The right of action for damages for breach of contract survives to the executor, and the action therefor may be maintained by him. Iowa-Minnesota Land Co. v. Conner, 136–674, 112 N. W. 820.

The legal representative of a deceased litigant may proceed under the provisions of code § 4091 to have a judgment or decree set aside on the ground of fraud. Wood v. Wood, 136–128, 113 N. W. 492.

Where an action has been commenced in this state to recover damages for personal injuries received in another state, such action being continued after the death of the plaintiff, is governed by the law of this state and not by the law of the state where the action accrued. Gordon v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co., 154–449, 134 N. W. 1057.

The administrator of one for whose death recovery is sought on the ground of negligence may, in separate counts, allege a cause of action under the state statutes and under the federal employers' liability act, and cannot be required to elect as between the two causes of action. Bankson v. Illinois Cent. R. Co., (D. C.) 196 Fed. 171.

SEC. 3445. Actions by or against legal representatives—substitution.

Where on the death of plaintiff his administrator was ordered to be substituted, but the case proceeded to judgment in the name of the original plaintiff without such substitution being made, held that afterwards by a nunc pro tunc entry the court could cure the defect and validate proceedings under such judgment. Hunt v. Johnston, 105–311, 75 N. W. 103.

In a contest over the probate of a will relating to personal property, the administrator or executor of a contestant should be substituted on his death. Such contest cannot be carried on in the interest of the deceased by his widow and heirs. In re Will of Wiltsey, 122–423, 98 N. W. 294.

The sum recovered by the personal representatives of one who has through the negligence of another received injuries causing his death will be distributed according to the law of the state where the injury causing death was inflicted. In re Estate of Coe, 130–307, 106 N. W. 743.

Under the statutes of this state, the suit for an injury causing death is prosecuted in the name of the administrator and anything recovered is distributed as personal property among the heirs. Such action may be maintained to recover the damages provided for under the federal employers' liability act, although the method of distribution and the rules of procedure provided for by that act are different from those provided for in this state. Bradbury v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co., 149–51, 128 N. W. 1.

If a court errs in allowing the substitution of the legal representative rather than the successor in interest of a party to the suit, such error will not deprive the court of jurisdiction, and if objection on that ground is not made in the lower court it cannot be raised on appeal. Oziah v. Howard, 149–199, 128 N. W. 364.

Where an action had been commenced, although notice had not yet been served prior to the death of the defendant, and his legal representatives appeared and defended in the action without objection, held that the court was not without jurisdiction. Campbell v. Collins, 152–608, 132 N. W. 381.

A foreign administrator suing for injuries causing death where the cause of action arose in another state and such administrator is, under the statutes of the state of his appointment, trustee for the widow and children, may maintain an action in this state without complying with the statutory provision for appointment in this state. Knight v. Moline, E. M. & W. R. Co., 140 N. W. 839.

These provisions as applying to actions for injuries which have resulted in death do not create a new cause of action but abrogate the common-law rule by which an existing cause of action is terminated by the death of a party entitled to recover. Flynn v. Chicago, G. W. R. Co., 141 N. W. 401.

Where the decedent survives the injury though but for a short time, the cause of action accrues to him, but it is also deemed to have accrued to the personal representative at the same time. Ibid.

Under the employers' liability act passed by Congress, the cause of action is based, not upon the injury to the deceased, but upon the fact of his death by defendant's wrongful act. The extent of damages in such case is to be measured by the pecuniary loss sustained by particular beneficiaries rather than by the loss to the estate of the decedent as such. In this respect it differs from the law of this state by which the cause of action is presumed to have arisen to the deceased in his lifetime and survived after his death to his administrator. McCullough v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co., 142 N. W. 67.

The courts of this state have jurisdiction to entertain an action arising under the federal statute. Ibid.

Under the federal employers' liability act no action can be maintained for the benefit of relatives other than those specified. The right of action conferred is independent of the right of action which the deceased would have had if he had survived. Thomas v. Chicago & N. W. & R. Co., (D. C.) 202 Fed. 766.

Section applied. Edmunds v. Illinois Cent. R. Co., 80 Fed. 78; Y-Ta-Tah-Wah v. Rebock, 105 Fed. 257.

SEC. 3446. Construction of code provisions.

A statute in derogation of the common law must be liberally construed with a view to promote its objects and assist the parties in obtaining justice. Van Horn v. Van Horn, 107–247, 77 N. W. 846.

Statutory provisions as to grounds for a new trial do not necessarily include the power of the court to grant new trials, such as has been generally exercised under the common-law system. Tathwell v. Cedar Rapids, 122–50, 97 N. W. 96.

This provision held applicable to the statutory provision with reference to adoption. Sires v. Melvin, 135–460, 113 N. W. 106.

The provisions of this section do not exclude the application of the ordinary rule of ejusdem generis in the construction of statutes. Brown v. Bell Co., 146–89, 123 N. W. 231, 124 N. W. 901.

A provision as to filing a petition in an appeal in a drainage ditch proceeding, held to be remedial in its nature and subject to liberal construction. Elwood v. Board of Supervisors, 156–407, 136 N. W. 709.

This section announces the well-established rule that the legislative language of a statutory provision must be liberally construed with a view to promoting the beneficent purpose of the enactment. So held as to the homestead statutes. Swisher v. Swisher, 157–55, 137 N. W. 1076.

The purpose of this section is only to negative the rule of the common law that statutes in derogation thereof are to be strictly construed, and not to change the rule of construction to be applied in determining the extent of a statutory exception to a general statutory provision. Baker v. Clowser, 138 N. W. 837.

The common-law rule that a statute conferring a right in derogation of the common law must be given a strict construction is abrogated by this provision in the interest of justice and fairness. Chiesa v. Des Moines, 138 N. W. 922.

CHAPTER 2.

OF LIMITATION OF ACTIONS.

SECTION 3447. Period of. Actions may be brought within the times herein limited, respectively, after their causes accrue, and not afterwards, except when otherwise specially declared:

1. In actions for injuries from defects in roads or streets—notice. Those founded on injury to the person on account of defective roads, bridges, streets or sidewalks, within three months, unless written notice specifying the time, place and circumstances of the injury shall have been served upon the county or municipal corporation to be charged within sixty days from the happening of the injury;

2. Penalties or forfeitures under ordinance. Those to enforce the payment of a penalty or forfeiture under an ordinance, within one year;

3. Injuries to person or reputation—relative rights—statute penalty—setting aside will. Those founded on injuries to the person or reputation, including injuries to relative rights, whether based on contract or tort, or for a statute penalty, within two years; and those brought to set aside a will, within five years from the time the same is filed in the clerk's office for probate and notice thereof is given; provided that after a will is probated the executor may cause personal service of an original notice to be made on any person interested, which shall contain the name of decedent, the date of his death, the court in which and the date on which the will was probated, together with a copy of said will; said notice shall be served in the same manner as original notices and no action shall be instituted by any person so served after one year from date of service;

4. Mechanic's lien. Those to enforce a mechanic's lien, within two years from the expiration of the thirty or ninety days, as the case may be, for filing the claim as provided in the law relative to mechanics' liens;

5. Against sheriff or other public officer. Those against a sheriff or other public officer, growing out of a liability incurred by the doing of an act in an official capacity or by the omission of an official duty, including the nonpayment of money collected on execution, within three years;

6. Unwritten contracts—injuries to property—fraud—other actions. Those founded on unwritten contracts, those brought for injuries to property, or for relief on the ground of fraud in cases heretofore solely cognizable in a court of chancery, and all other actions not otherwise provided for in this respect, within five years;

7. Written contracts—judgments of courts not of record—recovery of real property. Those founded on written contracts, or on judgments of any courts except those provided for in the next subdivision, and those brought for the recovery of real property, within ten years;

8. Judgments of courts of record. Those founded on a judgment of a court of record, whether of this or of any other of the United States, or of the federal courts of the United States, within twenty years;

9. Recovery of certain real estate. That in all cases where any deed of trust or declaration of trust has been executed and the real estate affected thereby has been conveyed by the trustee or the surviving spouse or heirs of said trustee and such conveyance was duly recorded in the proper county prior to January first, eighteen hundred ninety, and the interest of the cestui que trust thereunder has not been by such cestui que trust conveyed, or established by proper proceedings in court, no action, suit or proceeding shall be commenced or maintained to foreclose the same, or to establish or recover the interest of the cestui que trust therein, or of the surviving spouse or heirs of the cestui que trust, unless such action, suit or proceeding be commenced by filing petition and service of notice not later than the first day of March, A. D. nineteen hundred fourteen. [35 G. A., ch. 282, § 1; 35 G. A., ch. 281, § 1.] [26 G. A., ch. 63; 22 G. A., ch. 25; C. '73, §§ 486, 2529; R. §§ 1075, 1865, 2740; C. '51, § 1659.]

1. In general—effect: The defense of the statute of limitations is not a dishonorable one and it is not libelous to charge a debtor with having escaped the payment of his just debts by interposing such a defense. Hollenbeck v. Hall, 103–214, 72 N. W. 518.

The bar of the statute does not destroy the cause of action but merely bars the remedy after the time limited. German American Sav. Bank v. Hanna, 124–374, 100 N. W. 57.

A statute of limitations is a statute of repose. It takes away the right to maintain an action, but does not pay or cancel the obligation of the debt. Although the action thereon is barred the indebtedness may afford sufficient consideration for a new promise to pay. Spilde v. Johnson, 132–484, 109 N. W. 1023.

In equity: Equity will apply its rules as to the effect of delay and laches in analogy to the statute of limitations. Adams v. Holden, 111–54, 82 N. W. 468.

The statute of limitations is applicable to actions in equity as well as to actions at law. Sioux City & St. P. R. Co. v. O'Brien County, 118–582, 92 N. W. 857.

In an action at law, mere delay or acquiescence will not bar the action unless prolonged for the statutory period, save where there is presented the element of an estoppel, but in equity, laches or acquiescence may bar recovery although the delay has not been for such a length of time as that the action would be barred by the ordinary statute of limitations. Doyle v. Burns, 123–488, 99 N. W. 195.

While a court of equity recognizes as binding upon it the provisions of the statute of limitations, it also possesses the equitable power of disregarding stale claims, even though they may not have been technically barred by the statute. Gray v. Bloom, 151–566, 132 N. W. 42.

Change of statute: While the new limit may constitutionally be made applicable to causes of action already existing, provided a reasonable time is allowed after the statute takes effect in which the action may be brought, yet the general rule of construction is that such a statute will be given a retrospective effect only where it appears that such was the intention of the legislature. Waples v. Dubuque, 116–167, 89 N. W. 194.

The period of limitation may be changed by the legislature at pleasure with reference to causes of action already existing, provided that, if they are shortened, the bar is not immediate, and a reasonable time remains in which to sue, but contract limitations such as those which are usually inserted in policies of fire insurance cannot be impaired by subsequent legislation. Farmers' Co-op. Creamery Co. v. Iowa State Ins. Co., 112–608, 84 N. W. 904.

While it is true that the statute of limitations relates only to the remedy and may be changed from time to time without impairing the obligation of contracts, yet the legislature has no power to cut off the remedy or bar a suit upon an existing cause of action instanter. A reasonable time must be given within which to prosecute an existing cause of action under the new statute. Therefore, held that the last clause of code § 3439 before its amendment by 29 G. A., ch. 137, was not applicable to judgments rendered more than twenty years before the code took effect, and as to which, under the section as it previously stood, and as construed in Weiser v. McDowell, 93–772, there was still a right to bring suit. Cassady v. Grimmelman, 108–695, 77 N. W. 1067.

The reduction of the period of limitation as to an existing contract or judgment is not an impairment of the obligation of contracts if a reasonable time is preserved during which an action may be maintained, and in determining the reasonableness of time preserved the period elapsing between the enactment of the statute and its taking effect may be considered. Wooster v. Bateman, 126–552, 102 N. W. 521.

It is not competent for the legislature by a statute of limitations to take away all remedies existing upon causes of action. Norris v. Tripp, 111–115, 82 N. W. 610.

A change in a statute, by which a remedy not previously available is given, initiates the period of limitation for such action. Rice v. Crozier, 139–629, 117 N. W. 984.

Must be pleaded: The plea of the statute of limitations can be raised only by answer, where the allegations of the petition show that the claim is not barred. Goring v. Fitzgerald, 105–507, 75 N. W. 358.

The statute of limitations cannot be relied upon under an answer interposing only a general denial. Belken v. Iowa Falls, 122–430, 98 N. W. 296.

Where the bar of the statute is not raised by demurrer, nor otherwise, it will be regarded as waived. In re Estate of McMurray, 107–648, 78 N. W. 691.

The court should not submit the statute of limitations to the jury as a defense unless it is pleaded, and a judgment for defendant founded on a verdict returned on that ground will be set aside, even though facts on which such plea might have been founded appear in the record. The statute is deemed waived if not pleaded. McDonald v. Bice, 113–44, 84 N. W. 985.

The bar of the statute of limitations must be specially pleaded and cannot be raised by motion to direct a verdict. Borghart v. Cedar Rapids, 126–313, 101 N. W. 1120.

Under the pleadings in a particular case, held that the question whether plaintiff's action was barred was sufficiently raised by the pleadings. Gray v. Bloom, 151–566, 132 N. W. 42.

One who would rely upon the statute of limitations must specially plead it. Although the defense might under the allegations of the petition be raised by demurrer, yet by an allegation in the nature of a conclusion of law it may be set up in the answer. Central Trust Co. v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co., 156–104, 135 N. W. 721.

Who may plead: A grantee who takes subject to a mortgage already barred cannot rely on the statute of limitations as against a subsequent revival by the mortgagor. Doran v. Doran, 145–122, 123 N. W. 996.

The grantee of mortgaged property under a conveyance excepting the mortgage from the covenants of warranty stands in such privity to the mortgagor that as against an action to foreclose the mortgage brought against him alone he may plead the bar of the statute of limitations. Fitzgerald v. Flanagan, 155–217, 135 N. W. 738.

Amendment after period of limitation: Where the original petition states a complete cause of action and the amendment states another, the two causes of action being so distinct that either could be established without reference to the facts alleged in the other, the two causes of action are distinct, and the one stated in the amendment will be barred if the time for suing thereon has elapsed when the amendment is filed, although the action was commenced before the bar had become complete. Box v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co., 107–660, 78 N. W. 694; Taylor v. Taylor, 110–207, 81 N. W. 472.

But an amendment to conform the pleadings to the facts may properly be made to save the cause of action which it was attempted to plead in the first instance. Taylor v. Taylor, 110–207, 81 N. W. 472.

Where a substituted petition sets up a cause of action of the same nature, but not founded on the same facts, the cause of action is not to be deemed the same, and if the substituted petition is not filed within the statutory period, the cause of action therein pleaded is to be deemed barred. Brooks v. Seevers, 112–480, 84 N. W. 517.

A party cannot by amendment to his pleading set up a new cause of action which is barred at the time the amendment is filed, although it would not have been barred if set up in his original pleading. Van Patten v. Waugh, 122–302, 98 N. W. 119.

Therefore held that where a surety who had paid a note filed a claim against the estate of the principal on the note itself, and subsequently, after his cause of action as surety against his principal was barred, amended his claim so as to show the facts, his claim as thus amended could not be maintained. Ibid.

In an action brought to charge defendant as a member of a firm on an account, an amendment to the petition charging him individually on such account does not state a new action in such sense that it cannot be made after the period of limitation has run. Padden v. Clark, 124–94, 99 N. W. 152.

An amendment filed after the expiration of the statutory period of limitation may be considered if it does not set up a new cause of action, but only amplifies the grounds of specifications germane to the cause of action as originally pleaded. Gordon v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co., 129–747, 106 N. W. 177.

After the expiration of the statutory period of limitation an essential allegation may be added to plaintiff's petition by amendment, if the facts alleged in the petition are sufficient, without such amendment, to constitute a breach of duty, entitling plaintiff to relief. Cahill v. Ill. Cent. R. Co., 137–577, 115 N. W. 216.

After the lapse of the statutory period for bringing action, an amendment may be allowed, the purpose of which is to avoid the effect of the statute of limitations. Wise v. Outtrim, 139–192, 117 N. W. 264.

The pleading of the statute of limitations is an affirmative defense and cannot be first interposed by amendment after verdict. Knight v. Moline, E. M. & W. R. Co., 140 N. W. 839.

After the expiration of the statutory period for bringing an action, an amendment may be permitted in an action brought within the statutory period which does no more than state the details of the alleged cause of action. Russell v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co., 141 N. W. 1077.

In case of disability: After the statute of limitations once commences to run it is not tolled by the subsequent disability of him in whose favor the cause of action exists. Black v. Ross, 110–112, 81 N. W. 229.

Therefore held that insanity of a debtor, after a cause of action against him had accrued, would not extend the statute of limitations. The provisions of code § 3453 with reference to limitation of actions against an insane person apply only to causes of action accruing during disability. Ibid.

When the statutory period has commenced to run against a cause of action it will not be suspended on account of the subsequent death or insanity of the person to whom the right of action has accrued. Roelefsen v. Pella, 121–153, 96 N. W. 738.

In case of death: The running of the statute of limitations is not interrupted by the death of the creditor. In general the statute may not be suspended after it has commenced to run. At any rate, mere denial of liability will not have the effect of suspending the running of the statute. Mereness v. First Nat. Bank, 112–11, 83 N. W. 711.

The running of the statute of limitations is not affected by the death of the debtor. Widner v. Wilcox, 131–223, 108 N. W. 238.

Although there is no statutory provision that the death of the debtor shall toll the statute of limitations, the inability of the creditor to enforce his claim after the debtor's death until in the regular course of administration an executor or administrator has been appointed before whom the claim may be filed, will prevent the bar of the statute accruing during such interval. Alice E. Mining Co. v. Blanden, 136 Fed. 252.

The death of the debtor does not stop the running of the statute of limitations. In re Oldfield's Estate, Bowie v. Trowbridge, 157– —, 138 N. W. 846.

Actions by married women: The statutory provisions as to limitation of actions contain no exceptions in behalf of married women in regard to actions against their husbands. In re Estate of Deaner, 126–701, 102 N. W. 825.

Estoppel: Where a person holding a cause of action is assured by the person against whom the claim exists that the statutory limitation will not be interposed, pending negotiations for settlement, with the intention that the former shall rely on such assurance, and he does so, the person against whom the claim exists cannot in a subsequent suit on such claim interpose the bar of the statute which has accrued during the time when the person holding the claim was reasonably relying on the assurance of the other party that no such claim would be made. Holman v. Omaha & C. B. R. & B. Co., 117–268, 90 N. W. 833.

A defendant who by his own acts or conduct leads the plaintiff to delay the commencement of suit, though there be no express waiver of the limitation, is estopped from availing himself of the provisions of the statute by way of defense. Goodwin v. Merchants' & Bankers' Mut. Ins. Co., 118–601, 92 N. W. 894.

The fact that a claimant is persuaded on grounds relating to his own interest to forbear bringing suit until the expiration of the statute of limitations does not estop the defendant from insisting on the bar of the statute. McKay v. McCarthy, 146–546, 123 N. W. 755, 125 N. W. 207.

Application of payments: In applying the statute of limitations to successive items of indebtedness, payments are to be credited, in the absence of any special direction or application, in the order in which the items accrue. Marion Water Co. v. Marion, 121–306, 96 N. W. 883.

When commences to run in general: Where the petition does not state the exact time of the breach, but is based upon a promise which is continuing, a demurrer that the cause of action is barred will not lie. Rime v. Rater, 108–61, 78 N. W. 835.

The limitation of action against an indebtedness to be paid in the future does not commence to run until the obligation to make payment arises. Harrison v. Harrison, 124–525, 100 N. W. 344.

As against an adverse title arising during coverture, the wife's right of action does not accrue until her dower interest becomes vested by the death of her husband. Wallace v. Wallace, 137–169, 114 N. W. 913.

In cases of fraud: The action by a creditor to subject property fraudulently conveyed by his debtor to the payment of his claim accrues when he has notice of the fraud, and he must bring his action within the statutory period from that time. Stubblefield v. Gadd, 112–681, 84 N. W. 917.

Proceedings to subject property to the satisfaction of a judgment must be brought within five years. Applegate v. Applegate, 107–312, 78 N. W. 34.

So long as the owner is nonresident the action will not become barred. Ibid.

An action based on fraud is barred in five years unless the running of the statute has been prevented by the fraud not being known to or ascertainable by the injured party. Shircliffe v. Casebeer, 122–618, 98 N. W. 486.

In cases of trust: The statute of limitations does not begin to run in favor of a person holding property in trust until he has actually repudiated the trust. Zunkel v. Colson, 109–695, 81 N. W. 175.

The statute of limitations does not begin to run against a trust until there has been some denial or repudiation of it by the trustee. Smith v. Smith, 132–700, 109 N. W. 194.

A cause of action to recover a fund alleged to be held in trust for the plaintiff does not accrue until demand has been made or the trust repudiated. Widner v. Wilcox, 131–223, 108 N. W. 238.

Where a grantee in a conveyance which is in fact a mortgage receives full payment of the debt, he thereupon becomes a trustee and cannot plead the statute of limitations for the purpose of securing or holding title, unless he has done some act indicating the disaffirmance of the trust. Adams v. Holden, 111–54, 82 N. W. 468.

The statute does not begin to run as against an action to establish a trust in real property until the right of the party insisting on the establishment of the trust has completely accrued. Percival-Porter Co. v. Oaks, 130–212, 106 N. W. 626.

The rule that the statute commences to run against an action for fraud from the time of the commission of such fraud does not apply to a case where the grantee takes title to property charged with a constructive trust. In such a case the statute only commences to run from the disavowal of the trust. Newis v. Topfer, 121–433, 96 N. W. 905.

The statute of limitations does not run against a trust until there has been some denial or repudiation by the trustee. Carr v. Craig, 138–526, 116 N. W. 720.

So long as the trust subsists the statute of limitations cannot be invoked as a bar to a suit for its enforcement by the cestui que trust. But after the denial of the right of the cestui by the trustee, so that his possession may be said to have become adverse to any claim thereunder, lapse of time may be interposed by way of plea in bar. Blackett v. Ziegler, 147–167, 125 N. W. 874.

As the trust continues to exist as against a purchaser from the trustee with knowledge of the trust, the statute of limitations as against the cestui does not begin to run on account of such transfer. Therefore held that the statute would not commence to run as against a remainderman on account of transfer of the property by the life tenant. Ibid.

Continuing actions—nuisance: Where an obstruction, placed by a city or town in its streets, is not of a character necessarily permanent, and is without authority, such obstruction is to be considered not a permanent but a continuing nuisance with reference to a property owner injured thereby. Pettit v. Grand Junction, 119–352, 93 N. W. 381.

The repeated obstruction of a street by unlawfully allowing trains to stand thereon is a continuing nuisance on the part of the railroad company, and the statute of limitations does not bar an action to restrain its continuance. Gilcrest Co. v. Des Moines, 128–49, 102 N. W. 831.

The act of the owner of a dominant estate in so draining his land as to cast surface water upon the servient estate otherwise than in the course of nature, constitutes a continuing nuisance, and not a permanent nuisance, and although the injury has continued for more than five years, there may be a recovery for the damage suffered within the five-year limitation. Jones v. Stover, 131–119, 108 N. W. 112.

A tile drain constructed by a landowner discharging water on the premises of an adjoining landowner without right, is a continuing and not a permanent nuisance, and action therefor is not barred within the statutory period after the construction of the drain. Costello v. Pomeroy, 120–213, 94 N. W. 490.

A ditch through which there is no permanent or constant flow of water and which naturally tends to fill up and disappear is not such a permanent structure that all the recoverable damages resulting from conducting water through it upon the lands of an adjoining owner accrue at the date of construction. Geneser v. Healy, 124–310, 100 N. W. 66.

The fouling of a stream by sewage constitutes a continuing nuisance, and a person injured thereby may recover for damage suffered within the five years preceding the bringing of the action. Vogt v. Grinnell, 133–363, 110 N. W. 603.

A nuisance created by a city by polluting a neighboring stream with sewage, such stream not being the stream into which the sewer directly empties, is a continuing and not a permanent nuisance, and right of action for continuance of the nuisance may be maintained without regard to the time when the nuisance was commenced. Bennett v. Marion, 119–473, 93 N. W. 558.

The wrongful discharge of sewage upon the land of a private owner is not a permanent but only a continuing nuisance and an action may be maintained for damages resulting within five years although the sewers through which the wrong is effected have been in existence more than five years. Vogt v. Grinnell, 123–332, 98 N. W. 782.

In case of partnership: The statute of limitations as to an action by one partner against another for a share of the profits of their partnership does not commence to run until the termination of the partnership relation. Petty v. Haas, 122–257, 98 N. W. 104.

Under a contract for winding up the business of a partnership in which it is agreed that each member is to be liable to the other for such assets of the firm as he may reduce to possession, the statute of limitation does not commence to run from the time of the making of the contract, but rather from the time liability thereunder accrues. Varnum v. Winslow, 106–287, 76 N. W. 708.

Contract to pay after death: Where an indebtedness is made payable out of a person's estate, the statute does not begin to run until the death of the obligor. Bennett v. Lutz, 119–215, 93 N. W. 288.

Breach of covenant: The statute of limitations does not commence to run against a cause of action for substantial damages for breach of covenant of warranty until such damages are actually sustained. Foshay v. Shafer, 116–302, 89 N. W. 1106.

The right of action for substantial damages under a covenant against incumbrances does not accrue until the covenant has been broken by the enforcement of the lien which constitutes the incumbrance. McClure v. Dee, 115–546, 88 N. W. 1093.

On contingent liability: Where an action is based upon a contract, the maturity of which depends upon the happening of a contingency, the cause of action accrues only when the contingency happens. Grouse v. Moody, 130–320, 106 N. W. 757.

Extension of time: No cause of action accrues until the expiration of any valid extension that may be given on a note. Iowa Loan & Trust Co. v. McMurray, 129–65, 105 N. W. 361.

Postponing demand: A ward has a right to an accounting upon reaching his majority, and cannot, by postponing the demand therefor, extend the period of limitation. Ackerman v. Hilpert, 108–247, 79 N. W. 90.

The running of the statute cannot be postponed by failure to make demand. Bonbright v. Bonbright, 123–305, 98 N. W. 784.

A party cannot toll the statute of limitations by delay in making his demand, when demand is a condition precedent to the right of action. Collman v. Equitable Life Assur. Soc., 133–177, 110 N. W. 444.

The period of limitation against an action on a certificate of deposit does not commence to run until demand, and such demand need not be made within the statutory period of limitation. (Overruling Mereness v. First National Bank, 112–11.) Elliott v. Capital City State Bank, 128–275, 103 N. W. 777.

Concealment: If the facts which a recorded deed shows, with other facts known, are of a character to suggest fraud, persons interested must be charged with the knowledge which inquiry made with reasonable diligence would disclose. Clark v. Van Loon, 108–250, 79 N. W. 88.

The mere deception practiced by the debtor in denying liability will not constitute such concealment as to prevent the running of the statute of limitations. Mereness v. First Nat. Bank, 112–11, 83 N. W. 711.

The statute does not begin to run where the cause of action is fraudulently concealed until the facts are discovered or might have been discovered by the exercise of diligence. Cole v. Charles City Nat. Bank, 114–632, 87 N. W. 671.

In cases where concealment and ignorance of facts are relied upon to suspend the running of the statute there must have been such concealment as would prevent a person exercising due diligence from discovering the facts. Murray v. Chicago & N. W. R. Co., 92 Fed. 868.

Fraudulent concealment of a cause of action prevents the running of the statute of limitations. Faust v. Hosford, 119–97, 93 N. W. 58.

Where persons stand in reference to each other as principal and agent, and the agent commits an actual fraud upon the principal, mere silence upon his part amounts to a fraudulent concealment. The burden in such cases is on the defendant to show plaintiff's knowledge of the fraud. Ibid.

Limitation in particular cases:

Par. 1. For injuries from defects in roads or streets—notice: The provision for notice is applicable in a case where the injured party has survived more than three months after the injury, and action in behalf of his estate is subsequently brought for the same injury by his administrator. Sachs v. Sioux City, 109–224, 80 N. W. 336.

This provision is applicable where the injury originated in the neglect of the municipality to properly construct or maintain a bridge; for a bridge is properly a part of the street. Ibid.

The object of the statute as to notice is to appraise the city authorities of the location of the defect and the circumstance attending the accident with such reasonable certainty as shall enable them not only to investigate the city's liability while the facts are fresh, but also to ascertain what evidence there may be of conditions then existing, and of the character of the injury while witnesses are at hand. A notice by plaintiff's attorney to defendant demanding a settlement of his claim, not containing any statement of the place or circumstances of the injury, is not sufficient. Giles v. Shenandoah, 111–83, 82 N. W. 466.

Where an action was brought within ninety days on a claim against the city for defective sidewalk and the original notice specified the time, place and circumstances of the injury, held that this was sufficient notice to entitle the plaintiff to recover in another action brought after the expiration of six months. Pardey v. Mechanicsville, 112–68, 83 N. W. 828.

Reasonable certainty as to the place is all that is required in the notice. Rusch v. Dubuque, 116–402, 90 N. W. 80.

Notice of the accident, giving time, place and circumstances in reasonably specific terms, is sufficient. Perry v. Clarke County, 120–96, 94 N. W. 454.

While the circumstances of the injury are to be stated in the notice, the statute does not require the causes which produced the injury to be enumerated. McCartney v. Washington, 124–382, 100 N. W. 80.

Recovery by the claimant at least to the extent of the damage specified in the notice of claim is not defeated by asking in the petition to recover more than the amount claimed. Van Camp v. Keokuk, 130–716, 107 N. W. 933.

The fact that the notice includes more than is necessary under the statute and alleges more than one defect, does not render it insufficient. Bauer v. Dubuque, 122–500, 98 N. W. 355.

Where the primary proof of notice to the city is shown to have been lost, secondary evidence is admissible. Considine v. Dubuque, 126–283, 102 N. W. 102.

Notice of claim against a city for personal injuries may be served by taking acknowledgment of service upon the mayor and city solicitor. McCartney v. Washington, 124–382, 100 N. W. 80.

This provision is not applicable to cities under special charter, but a similar provision expressly applicable to such cities is found in code § 1051. Kenyon v. Cedar Rapids, 124–195, 99 N. W. 692.

Code § 1051, containing provisions similar to those of this paragraph, held applicable only to cities under special charter. Harvey v. Clarinda, 111–528, 82 N. W. 994.

The provisions of code § 1050 as to the limitation of claims for unliquidated damages against special charter cities, held not applicable to claims existing at the time the code took effect. Thoeni v. Dubuque, 115–482, 88 N. W. 967.

Under code § 1051, relating specifically to cities under special charter and containing provisions similar to those found herein, it is sufficient if the notice states the nature and cause of the injury and the defect or negligence complained of. No amendment to the notice is provided for and the statute should have a liberal construction to the end that parties having meritorious claims shall not be cut off by mere technicality as to the form of notice required. Schnee v. Dubuque, 122–459, 98 N. W. 298.

A notice which in fact points out the place of the accident with such definiteness as to reasonably enable the officers of the city to investigate the conditions under which it is said to have happened sufficiently complies with the purpose of the statute. The statutory requirement of notice should be liberally construed to the end that parties having meritorious claims shall not be cut off by a technicality as to the form of notice required. Buchmeier v. Davenport, 138–623, 116 N. W. 695.

The notice is not jurisdictional and is sufficient if it has actually accomplished the purpose intended, although it is not signed. Neeley v. Mapleton, 139–582, 117 N. W. 981.

A notice stating that an injury referred to therein was sustained by reason of a fall on a defective sidewalk, specifying the time and place of the accident, held sufficient. Ibid.

A notice must be sufficiently definite in itself to enable a person of ordinary capacity, with knowledge of the physical condition of the streets, in the exercise of reasonable diligence to locate the place of injury. Sollenbarger v. Lineville, 141–203, 119 N. W. 618.

The question of the sufficiency of the notice is for the jury only when, in connection with proof of the situation and surroundings of the locality in connection with the description, there is an issue as to whether the place is pointed out with reasonable certainty. Ibid.

Notice is sufficiently specific if from its terms, with the inquiries suggested, and in the exercise of proper diligence, the municipal authorities could have discovered the locality of the defect causing the injury. Harrison v. Albia, 144–132, 122 N. W. 816.

The statute should not be given so strict a construction as to exclude proof of all facts relating to the nature and cause of the injury to the defendant or negligence complained of which are not detailed in the notice. It should be given a liberal construction to the end that parties having meritorious claims shall not be cut off by mere technicalities as to form of notice required. Frazee v. Cedar Rapids, 151–251, 131 N. W. 33.

The running of the statutory period for bringing action against a municipal corporation for personal injuries is not affected by the fact of the insanity of the person injured occurring after the injury and before the bringing of the action. Roelefsen v. Pella, 121–153, 96 N. W. 738.

The time prescribed by the statutory provision for bringing action against a municipal corporation for injury on account of a defective street is not extended by the provisions of code § 3453 relating to limitations of actions against minors. Cushing v. Winterset, 144–260, 122 N. W. 915.

Want of notice must be pleaded: The defense that a claim for unliquidated damages has not been made within thirty days is an affirmative one, and to be available the facts constituting it must be pleaded. Borghart v. Cedar Rapids, 126–313, 101 N. W. 1120.

The objection that action against a city for personal injuries received on account of defective streets is not brought within six months after the happening of the injury and that no written notice of the claim has been given is one that must be urged in the lower court, otherwise it cannot be considered on appeal. Reed v. Muscatine, 104–183, 73 N. W. 579.

It is not competent under a general denial in an action against a city to recover damages for personal injuries occasioned by a defective sidewalk, to urge for the first time on appeal the insufficiency of the notice given within sixty days from the happening of the injury. Belken v. Iowa Falls, 122–430, 98 N. W. 296.

Amended pleading: The plaintiff cannot recover under an amended petition filed more than ninety days after the injury, for injuries which are not included within the notice of claim. Ulbrecht v. Keokuk, 124–1, 97 N. W. 1082.

Where within sixty days an action is brought for personal injuries due to defective sidewalk, and the place of the accident is described, an amendment after the expiration of sixty days, slightly changing the description of the place of the accident, but not describing any different place than that mentioned in the original petition, is proper. Sachra v. Manilla, 120–562, 95 N. W. 198.

Where the action is begun within three months after the injury, an amendment to the petition after that period which merely makes more certain the description of the place of the action does not state a new cause of action. Palmer v. Waterloo, 138–296, 115 N. W. 1017.

If action is commenced within three months on account of a sidewalk accident, a substituted petition amplifying the charge of negligence may be filed after the expiration of that period. Woods v. Lisbon, 138–402, 116 N. W. 143.

After the expiration of the time for bringing action the plaintiff may amend so as to include allegations of additional damages resulting to plaintiff beyond those alleged in the original petition. Benson v. Ottumwa, 143–349, 121 N. W. 1065.

Incidental facts not constituting a part of the wrong but elements to be shown for the purpose of supporting a recovery by the plaintiff may also be thus added by way of amendment. Therefore held that plaintiff, a minor, suing for injuries, might by way of amendment allege an assignment to him by his father of any right of action the latter might have on account of injury of such minor. Ibid.

Dismissal of action: Where an action against a city for injuries received from a defective sidewalk is brought within three months, no previous notice of the claim need be shown. But if such action is afterwards voluntarily dismissed, a new action will be barred, unless it is within the provisions of code § 3455, providing that if after the commencement of an action plaintiff, for any cause, except negligence in its prosecution, fails therein, and a new one is brought within six months thereafter, the second shall be held to be a continuance of the first. Ceprley v. Paton, 120–559, 95 N. W. 179.

In instituting the second action the burden is on plaintiff to allege and prove such diligence in prosecuting the first action as to bring the case within such provisions. Ibid.

Where a claim is made within proper time, the dismissal of an action thereon will not defeat a new action on such claim, within the statutory period of limitation, although after the time has elapsed for filing claims. Escher v. Carroll County, 141 N. W. 38.

Par 3. For statutory penalty: An action to recover three times the excessive charge of a common carrier, as authorized by 22 G. A., ch. 28, § 9, held to be an action for a penalty which must be therefore brought within two years. (Following Herriman v. Burlington, C. R. & N. R. Co., 57–187, and distinguishing Koons v. Chicago & N. W. R. Co., 23–493.) Baker Wire Co. v. Chicago & N. W. R. Co., 106–239, 76 N. W. 665.

For injuries to relative rights: An action on a liquor seller's bond for damages to a wife by reason of sales to her husband is based on an injury to the relative rights of the wife, and should be brought within two years. O'Banion v. DeGarmo, 121–139, 96 N. W. 739.

An amendment made more than two years after the cause of action has accrued alleging sales in a different locality than that specified in the bond sets up a new cause of action and is barred. Ibid.

An action to recover damages for personal injuries is barred in two years from the time the right of action accrues. Bogue v. Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co., (D. C.) 193 Fed. 728.

A foreign railroad corporation, operating a line of road within the state, may take advantage of this limitation. Ibid.

Par. 5. Against sheriff or other public officer: While the action against a sheriff for wrongful levy upon property is barred in three years, yet an action on an indemnifying bond given by the execution plaintiff to protect the sheriff may be brought within ten years. Whitney v. Gammon, 103–363, 72 N. W. 551.

An action against a clerk of court for omitting to index a judgment to plaintiff's damage must be brought within three years, and the time within which it may be brought is not extended under the provision of code § 3448 with reference to actions for relief on the ground of mistake. Lougee v. Reed, 133–48, 110 N. W. 165.

Par. 6. Unwritten contracts—other actions: The right of one joint obligor to recover against the other for his share of payments made on the joint obligation is barred in five years. Novak v. Dupont, 112–334, 83 N. W. 1062.

An action on an implied contract brought by a surety to recover indemnity from the principal is barred in five years after payment. Van Patten v. Waugh, 122–302, 98 N. W. 119.

The limitation as to actions on unwritten contracts and for injuries to property is applicable to a case where the owner of a party wall asks an accounting of the adjoining owner who has made use of such wall. Pier v. Salot, 134–357, 111 N. W. 989.

For recovery of personal property: Where upon the death of the owner of personal property one of his next of kin converts it to his own use to the exclusion of the other next of kin, the right of action against him for the recovery of the property thus converted is barred after five years. McCord v. McCord, 136–53, 113 N. W. 552.

Contesting will: Within the statutory period of five years, an original action may be instituted to set aside the probate of a will which has been admitted to probate without contest. Kelly v. Kelly, 157–—, 138 N. W. 851.

Par. 7. On written contracts: A written agreement on the back of a certificate of assessment for street improvements, by which the property owner undertakes to pay the amount of the assessment in installments, is a written contract upon which action may be brought within ten years from the maturity of the demands called for. Talcott v. Noel, 107–470, 78 N. W. 39.

It appearing that defendants had become liable on subscriptions for stock in the corporation of which plaintiff was receiver, and that on sale of their stock to third parties their liability became that of guarantors for the payment of the corporate debts of the company to the amount of their unpaid subscriptions whenever such debts should be ascertained and the corporate property exhausted, held that as defendants' liability was upon the guaranty, the statute did not commence to run as against the same until the debts of the corporation were ascertained and its property was exhausted. Wyman v. Bowman, 127 Fed. 257.

The guardian's principal undertaking to account for funds received by him is a contract, and an action for failure to account for funds so received is an action for breach of contract within the statute of limitations. Blakency v. Wyland, 115–607, 89 N. W. 16.

An action in the federal court on coupons from bonds issued by a municipality is governed by the state statute, and coupons maturing more than ten years prior to the commencement of the action are barred. Reynolds v. Lyon County, 97 Fed. 155.

Action on mortgage: A suit to foreclose a mortgage is barred in ten years, and as the rights of mortgagor and mortgagee are reciprocal, redemption under a mortgage will be cut off in the same time. Adams v. Holden, 111–54, 82 N. W. 468.

The action to foreclose a mortgage is not barred so long as the debt secured may be enforced. Freeburg v. Eksell, 123–464, 99 N. W. 118.

The taking of a judgment for the debt does not discharge the mortgage lien. Ibid.

A mortgage is not barred so long as the debt is unpaid and enforceable. Iowa Loan & Trust Co. v. McMurray, 129–65, 105 N. W. 361.

The rights of the mortgagee by foreclosure as against other lien holders is not barred until the statute has barred the debt secured by such mortgage. Citizens' State Bank v. Jess, 127–450, 103 N. W. 471.

When a note secured by a mortgage is reduced to judgment, the running of the statute of limitations is suspended and the right to have the mortgage foreclosed is not barred so long as the debt secured thereby may be enforced by means of action on the judgment. Gilman v. Heitman, 137–336, 113 N. W. 932.

The right to foreclose and the right to redeem are reciprocal and where the one is barred the other must also be. Mahaffy v. Faris, 144–220, 122 N. W. 934.

A grantee expressly taking subject to a mortgage which is barred cannot insist on the bar as against a subsequent revivor by the mortgagor. Doran v. Doran, 145–122, 123 N. W. 996.

A mortgage is an incident of the debt secured and an action to foreclose is barred by the statute of limitations if the debt itself has become barred. Boynton v. Salinger, 147–537, 126 N. W. 369.

Under a bond for the purchase of real property providing for payment in installments, the statute of limitations runs against every installment from the time of its maturity. Ibid.

An action either on a note or on the mortgage given to secure such note must be brought within ten years from the time the cause of action accrues. If action on the note has become barred, an action to foreclose the mortgage is also barred. The mortgage, being considered a mere incident to the debt, is extinguished when the debt for which it is given is barred. Fitzgerald v. Flanagan, 155–217, 135 N. W. 738.

Recovery of real property: Possession of land under a parol gift will ripen into perfect title in ten years. Sires v. Melvin, 135–460, 113 N. W. 106.

A title by prescription cannot accrue in less than ten years. Empire Real Estate Etc. Co. v. Beechley, 137–7, 114 N. W. 556.

The provision of code supp. § 3447-b relating to limitation of action by spouse who has not joined in a conveyance to extinguish contingent dower right is not amendatory to this subdivision and is not subject to the exception of code § 3453 relating to the disability of insanity. Collier v. Smaltz, 149–230, 128 N. W. 396.

Adverse possession—in general: While it will be presumed that possession of land extends to the entire tract covered by the occupant's claim of right, such presumption will not prevail as against actual adverse possession by another of a portion of the tract covered by such claim, of which possession the claimant of the entire tract has knowledge. Libbey v. Young, 103–258, 72 N. W. 520.

Adverse possession must be shown to sustain the plea of the general statute of limitations in an action to recover possession of real property. Gill v. Candler, 114–332, 86 N. W. 300.

Adverse possession cannot be predicated upon a mistake in describing the land which both parties supposed to be included in the deed. Lougee v. Shuhart, 127–173, 102 N. W. 1125.

Where possession of land is taken under the belief that it is part of a tract which is purchased, which belief is not in accordance with the facts, the possession will not constitute adverse possession. Kahl v. Schmidt, 107–550, 78 N. W. 204.

From the time a railroad company is entitled to a certificate under a grant, adverse possession as against it commences to run, although the legal title remains in the government. Iowa Railroad Land Co. v. Fehring, 126–1, 101 N. W. 120.

When the statute of limitations commences to run by adverse possession, it continues to run so long as such possession continues. Hanson v. Gallagher, 154–192, 134 N. W. 421.

What acts sufficient: The acts of ownership relied on to constitute adverse possession, when there is no actual occupancy, must be such as are necessary to the enjoyment of the use and to acquire the profits the land may yield in its present condition. Stern v. Fountain, 112–96, 83 N. W. 826.

Acts of ownership sufficient to constitute adverse possession of uncultivated land are such acts as are necessary to the enjoyment of its use in its present condition and to acquire the profits which such lands would yield. Rogers v. Turpin, 105–183, 74 N. W. 925.

Claim of right—color of title: Title by adverse possession can in no event be acquired by mere possession. There must be an honest claim of right or color of title. Biglow v. Ritter, 131–213, 108 N. W. 218.

Possession to be adverse under the statute of limitations must have been held in good faith by the claimant. If he knows that he has no title or claim, and his possession is merely wanton, his occupancy, no matter how long continued, will not ripen into a title. Clark v. Sexton, 122–310, 98 N. W. 127.

Possession is presumptively subordinate to the title of the true owner, and the burden is on the party claiming by adverse possession to show that such possession was hostile, which necessarily involves knowledge, either express or implied, on the part of the true owner that such possession was adverse and under claim of right or color of title. McClenahan v. Stevenson, 118–106, 91 N. W. 925.

If possession is originally acquired in subordination to the title of the true owner, there must be a disclaimer of the title from him, and actual hostile possession, of which he has notice, or which is so open and notorious as to raise a presumption of notice. Ibid.

If one enters upon land with the owner's permission, expecting merely that the owner will give it to him in the future, such entry and possession will not consitute a hostile holding. Ibid.

Where the defendant has not been in possession of the property in dispute, no cause of action can be deemed to have accrued against him unless he has in some other way asserted some right thereto. Mead v. Illinois Cent. R. Co., 112–291, 83 N. W. 979.

An adverse holding under good faith claim of title is sufficient, although there is record notice that the title is defective. Severson v. Gremm, 124–729, 100 N. W. 862.

A deed, though made by one having no authority to convey, is sufficient to support a claim of adverse possession, provided such possession was in good faith. Roth v. Munzenmaier, 118–326, 91 N. W. 1072.

Title by adverse possession is sufficient to support an equitable action, under code § 1440, to redeem from a tax sale prematurely made, notwithstanding the provisions of code § 1445 that a person claiming adversely to a tax deed must show fee simple title. Ibid.

Possession under a tax deed which is absolutely void may nevertheless constitute sufficient color of title to serve as the basis for a claim of adverse possession. McCash v. Penrod, 131–631, 109 N. W. 180.

One may claim under color of title, though his grantor has no real or apparent title to the premises, and a conveyance from one in possession is sufficient consideration for a claim of right and color of title on the part of the grantee, even though the grantor had no title whatever. Blankenhorn v. Lenox, 123–67, 98 N. W. 556.

For the purpose of showing claim of right and color of title, a conveyance in writing need not be proven. Parol evidence of sale may be sufficient, when accompanied by possession. Ibid.

Title by adverse possession may be acquired as against all those who claim under a grant of land which takes effect in praesenti, although such possession is not adverse against the government until the issuance of a patent. Blumer v. Iowa Railroad Land Co., 129–32, 105 N. W. 342.

Adverse possession under a tree culture claim may be sufficient to ripen into title if held in good faith, although the claimant is mistaken in his belief that the claim made by him is sufficient. Possession under such claim is adverse to all other claims to the property, although not adverse to the government. Ibid.

Where plaintiff entered upon public land as a homestead claim, held that his possession after title was passed by the government under a railroad grant and his entry was canceled was adverse. Wilbur v. Cedar Rapids & M. R. R. Co., 116–65, 89 N. W. 101.

Possession under a conveyance purporting to convey absolute title and taken in good faith is sufficient to support a claim of title by adverse possession, although the grantee had knowledge at the time of accepting the conveyance that there was the possibility of adverse claim to the property in the future. Wenger v. Thompson, 128–750, 105 N. W. 333.

Where one is in possession of property claiming as owner under a recorded deed, such possession constitutes notice to adverse claimants such as to support the bar of the statute of limitations. McCarthy v. Colton, 134–658, 108 N. W. 217.

One claiming as devisee under a will has color of title although the testator may not have had title to the property devised. Daniels v. Dingman, 140–386, 118 N. W. 373.

One who is in open and notorious possession under a deed in which he is grantee is in adverse possession, his possession being presumptively referable to his deed in the absence of any evidence to the contrary. McBride v. Caldwell, 142–228, 119 N. W. 741.

Claim of right under color of title being shown, it is presumed to be in good faith until the contrary is shown. The party who alleges bad faith has the burden of proving it. Ibid.

Knowledge of defect in title does not defeat the operation of the statute of limitations. Such knowledge is not of itself inconsistent with a bona fide claim of right. Hughes v. Wyatt, 146–392, 125 N. W. 334.

Where the claimant of property puts a deed upon record and enters into possession, his possession is presumptively referable to his deed. In such a case, in so far as good faith is essential to his right, it is presumed in his favor. Ibid.

Possession arising through mistake is not adverse. Keller v. Harrison, 151–320, 128 N. W. 851, 131 N. W. 53.

A claim of right to the property which affords a ground for taking and continuing to hold possession is sufficient as a basis for the claim of adverse possession although there is no color of title. Hanson v. Gallagher, 154–192, 134 N. W. 421.

One who takes possession in his own right may maintain adverse possession although subsequently an interest in the property accrues to him and others as cotenants. Ibid.

For the purpose of establishing a claim by adverse possession, it is not necessary to show knowledge of such claim on the part of others who have an interest in the property. Ibid.

To constitute adverse possession, there must be some claim of right or title or interest in or to the property by which the possessor in good faith supposes he has a right to it and under which he continues in possession. Entry into and continuance of possession as a trespasser will not ripen into a title. Goulding v. Shonquist, 141 N. W. 24.

Against cotenant: Possession by one tenant in common is presumptively for his cotenants as well as himself and not adverse to them, and the burden is on him to show that it was adverse for the required length of time to give him title as against them under the statute of limitations. He must show that the possession was with the intent to hold adversely and such intent must be indicated by acts calculated to exclude the cotenants. Bader v. Dyer, 106–715, 77 N. W. 469.

Exclusive occupancy by one tenant in common, accompanied by acts and declarations of ownership, if known to his cotenant, will amount to an ouster. Notice may be shown by circumstantial evidence. Casey v. Casey, 107–192, 77 N. W. 844.

The defense of adverse possession by one tenant in common against another or his grantee must be based upon a disclaimer of the common ownership and an open assertion of title in hostility thereto. Mere continuance in possession is not sufficient, nor is it sufficient that the party claiming under adverse possession has made use of the property not inconsistent with the common interest of the other tenant or his grantee. Garst v. Brutsche, 129–501, 105 N. W. 452.

The possession by a tenant in common is not adverse to his cotenants until he has in some unmistakable manner given to such cotenants notice or sufficient reason to know that he claims the property adversely. Zunkel v. Colson, 109–695, 81 N. W. 175.

Possession under a sheriff's deed for the interest of one tenant in common does not constitute ouster as to a cotenant. To constitute such ouster there must be actual notice of claim of title, followed by hostile acts under such claim. Curtis v. Barber, 131–400, 108 N. W. 755.

Possession by one tenant in common may be under such assertion of absolute, entire and exclusive ownership as to constitute an ouster against his cotenant, and cause the statute of limitations to commence to run in favor of the tenant asserting such right of possession. Blankenhorn v. Lenox, 123–67, 98 N. W. 556.

Before the statute of limitations will commence to run as between cotenants there must be an ouster and in fact adverse possession. Ordinarily the making of a deed by one cotenant purporting to convey the entire title will amount to an ouster. Stern v. Selleck, 136–291, 111 N. W. 451.

A conveyance by one of several cotenants of the entire premises constitutes an ouster of cotenants, and continued possession under such conveyance under color of title and claim of ownership for the period of limitation bars the cotenants. Murray v. Quigley, 119–6, 92 N. W. 869.

As between joint owners, continued possession by one will prevent the running of the statute of limitations in favor of the other. Truth Lodge, etc., v. Barton, 119–230, 93 N. W. 106.

One cotenant or his grantee may work an ouster and disseisin of his cotenants and, having held adverse possession under a claim of right or color of title for the period of the limitation, may assert full title and evoke the bar of the statute in protection thereof. For this purpose an actual ouster must be made to appear, but proof of actual physical eviction is not necessary. Crawford v. Meis, 123–610, 99 N. W. 186.

So the grantee of a life tenant may so dispute or assail the title of a remainderman as that the latter failing for the statutory period to assert his disputed title will be barred by the statute. Ibid.

Possession by one tenant in common is not adverse as to the others. German v. Heath, 139–52, 116 N. W. 1051.

One heir who continues in possession of real property after the death of the owner cannot be considered as holding adversely to coheirs. Frye v. Gullion, 143–719, 121 N. W. 563.

While the ouster of one cotenant by another may be constructive as well as actual, courts are slow to find such an ouster or to uphold the acquisition of a hostile title by mere possession upon a doubtful or equivocal showing of facts. This is especially true where the tenants in common are members of the same family. Schoonmaker v. Schoonmaker, 154–500, 133 N. W. 741, 135 N. W. 599.

Payment of taxes by the tenant in possession is of no significance as showing ouster. Ibid.

Acts and words relied upon to show an ouster must not be of doubtful character but clear and unambiguous. Ibid.

The burden is upon the cotenant in possession to establish a claim such as to extinguish the title of his cotenants by clear and persuasive evidence. Ibid.

The possession of one claiming to act as executor of a deceased owner is not adverse to the interest of the heirs of such owner. Follett v. Meader, 155–405, 136 N. W. 216.

A life tenant or tenant in common cannot ordinarily hold adversely to the remainderman or cotenant; but this rule is applicable only where such relationship is continuous and uninterrupted and does not apply where there has been an ouster or disseisin, followed by adverse possession under a color of title or claim of right for the statutory period. Mitchell v. Vest, 157–—, 136 N. W. 1054.

Against remainderman: Title by adverse possession may accrue against a remainderman not yet entitled to possession, as under the statutory provision relating to actions to quiet title such remainderman has an interest which he may protect by an action. Hubbird v. Goin, 137 Fed. 822.

Grantor and grantee: The mere fact of retention of possession by the grantor after delivery of a conveyance and the making of improvements on the premises by such grantor, does not of itself amount to adverse possession. Luckhart v. Luckhart, 120–248, 94 N. W. 461.

A grantor remaining in possession after conveyance is presumed, in the absence of a contrary showing, to be holding in subordination to the title of his grantee. He may acquire title by adverse possession, even as against his warranty deed, but he must explicitly disclaim holding under his grantee and openly assert his title in hostility to the title claimed under his own previous deed. McClenahan v. Stevenson, 118–106, 91 N. W. 925.

The continuance in possession by the grantor after the conveyance is not adverse as to the grantee. Garst v. Brutsche, 129–501, 105 N. W. 452.

The possession of the judgment debtor may be adverse to that of the purchaser under execution on such judgment; and it will be so held when it is shown that he has claimed title in himself, open and notoriously, for the statutory period. Bosley v. Stewart, 140–101, 117 N. W. 1103.

Continuance of possession by the grantor in a deed is not of itself sufficient to set running the statute of limitations. Walsh v. Doran, 145–110, 123 N. W. 999.

A vendee taking possession under a contract of purchase holds in subordination to his vendor until the conditions are complied with. Boynton v. Salinger, 147–537, 126 N. W. 369.

Mere continuance of possession by a grantor after his conveyance of the land does not set the statute of limitations to running. In such cases something more than mere possession must be shown. Iowa Cent. R. Co. v. Homan, 151–404, 131 N. W. 878.

Trustee and cestui que trust: At law the cestui que trust is regarded as a tenant at will to the trustee, and until this tenancy is terminated there can be no adverse possession. McClenahan v. Stevenson, 118–106, 91 N. W. 925.

Landlord and tenant: A tenant cannot deny or dispute his landlord's title, and this rule obtains even if the tenant is in possession at the time the lease is made. One who acquires a leasehold interest in land of which he is in possession does an act which so explains his previous possession as to rebut any subsequent claim that it was adverse. McClenahan v. Stevenson, 118–106, 91 N. W. 925.

Railroad right of way: One who purchases and goes into possession of premises, subject to a railroad right of way, does not by continuance of such possession acquire a better right than his grantor had with reference to such right of way, regardless of representations made by the grantor as to extent of the right of way, such representations not being known to the railroad company. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co. v. Snyder, 120–532, 95 N. W. 183.

While property taken for the public use cannot be encroached on by an abutting owner so as to deprive the corporation of its title save by an appropriation absolutely inconsistent with such use when needed, yet where property is dedicated to a railroad company for depot purposes and there is no evidence of its possession or use for such purposes, this doctrine has no application. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co. v. Hanken, 140–372, 118 N. W. 527.

The doctrine of acquiescence as to boundary lines is applicable in a proper case to the depot grounds of a railroad company. The company is not compelled to fence the portion of its depot grounds necessarily used by the public, yet where a division fence has been erected and maintained by the acquiescence of the parties, this is notice of the boundary between the depot ground and the adjacent lots. Iowa Cent. R. Co. v. Homan, 151–404, 131 N. W. 878.

Agreed boundary—acquiescence: The fact that owners of adjoining tracts of land have for many years occupied up to a line, supposed to represent the boundary between them, and have acquiesced in such boundary, is a strong circumstance to show the correctness of such boundary line. Corey v. Ft. Dodge, 118–742, 92 N. W. 704.

The boundaries recognized by parties at the time of a conveyance and with reference to which they subsequently occupied the property adversely to each other become binding after the statutory period of adverse possession, and will control the description. Dows Real Estate & Trust Co. v. Emerson, 125–86, 99 N. W. 724.

Acquiescence in a certain line, with possession up to it for a period of ten years, is conclusive evidence of an agreement as to the true line, and will bind the parties concerned. Axmear v. Richards, 112–657, 84 N. W. 686.

Where a division line between adjoining owners has been acquiesced in by them for a period of ten years, an agreement to make it the true boundary will be implied and neither may ordinarily be heard to dispute it. Kulas v. McHugh, 114–188, 86 N. W. 288.

Occupancy to a line of trees planted upon what the parties agreed was the boundary line, held to be adverse, although it subsequently appeared that there was a mistake as to the location of the line. Handorf v. Hoes, 121–79, 95 N. W. 226.

Where, for a period longer than the statute of limitations, property owners whose premises abut on opposite sides of a highway have occupied to the boundaries of the highway, as fixed by them, one of them cannot afterwards complain that the boundaries of the highway are not in accordance with its true location. Buch v. Flanders, 119–164, 93 N. W. 101.

If coterminous owners have adopted another line than that of the government survey as their division line, and have occupied up to it and recognized it as such for a period of ten years, then such line is to be regarded as the boundary line. Miller v. Mills County, 111–654, 82 N. W. 1038.

Where the owner of a government subdivision of land erected a fence and subsequently planted a hedge on what he claimed to be his line, and cultivated to such fence, and the adjoining proprietor likewise in cultivation recognized the fence as the boundary line, and this claim and recognition continued for ten years, held that the first party had acquired title by adverse possession to a strip of land included by his fence beyond the true boundary of the subdivision of land to which he had title. Fullmer v. Beck, 105–517, 75 N. W. 366.

Where a division line between two tracts of land has been definitely marked by the erection and maintenance of a fence, which has been recognized by the owners as the division line, and to which they have occupied and cultivated land without objection under a claim of ownership for more than ten years, the line so established is the division line between such tracts. Lawrence v. Washburn, 119–109, 93 N. W. 73.

Where adjoining property owners improved their property with reference to a line run by a surveyor and continued to occupy their respective premises with reference to such line for the statutory period of limitation, held that such line had become the boundary line by adverse possession and acquiescence and could not be disturbed on account of a subsequent survey showing that the agreed line did not correspond with the actual line. O'Callaghan v. Whisenand, 119–566, 93 N. W. 579.

The boundary line between the two premises having been established for a part of its distance by reason of acquiescence in the making of improvements, held that the boundary line would be deemed to be a straight line determined by the portion of it thus established. Ibid.

Occupation to a boundary line, acquiesced in by the parties as being founded on a claim of right, is adverse regardless of whether the boundary by acquiescence is the true boundary. Klinkner v. Schmidt, 114–695, 87 N. W. 661; Rattray v. Talcott, 124–398, 100 N. W. 36; Klinkefus v. Vanmeter, 122–412, 98 N. W. 286; Harndon v. Stultz, 124–734, 100 N. W. 851; Watson v. Hogan, 130–350, 106 N. W. 759; Younker v. White, 136–23, 111 N. W. 824; McBride v. Bair, 134–661, 112 N. W. 169.

A boundary line up to which each party has occupied for more than ten years is not to be questioned by a resurvey. The purpose of the surveyor should be to locate the line as originally located. Bevering v. Smith, 121–607, 96 N. W. 1110.

Where adjoining owners treat a division fence as marking the line between their lands, and so recognize it for the statutory period of limitations, it will ordinarily be held to constitute the true boundary, and a mere agreement to have a resurvey made which does not bind either party to an acceptance of the result will not overthrow the boundary line as established by acquiescence. Andrews v. Meredith, 131–716, 109 N. W. 287.

Acquiescence in a definite line as the true boundary for the period of limitations is binding upon the parties, and is not negatived by the showing of a mere oral agreement to have a survey made to ascertain and establish the true line, there being no subsequent acquiescence in the result of such survey. Uker v. Thieman, 132–79, 107 N. W. 167.

To give rise to title by adverse possession to the common boundary line it must appear that the claim of title by possession to such boundary line has continued for the statutory period or for such length of time and under such circumstances as to raise an inference that the boundary has been settled by acquiescence. Hootman v. Hootman, 133–632, 111 N. W. 60.

Neither failure of the boundary line as determined from a survey based on the description in a plat or conveyance to correspond with the line established by acquiescence, nor the fact that the line established by acquiescence is not a straight line such as is called for in the description, furnish such controlling circumstances as will defeat a claim of title based on acquiescence in a boundary line. Laughlin v. Francis, 129–62, 105 N. W. 360.

The doctrine of adverse possession as distinguished from acquiescence in a common boundary line does not apply where the party claiming title has not been in the exclusive hostile possession to the boundary line contended for, and is not shown to have had an intent to claim to such boundary line, regardless of the true boundary. Boltz v. Colsch, 134–480, 109 N. W. 1106.

Possession to be adverse must have been uninterrupted and hostile. Ibid.

Where a survey is had to ascertain the line, and the line thus ascertained is treated as the correct one under the belief that it is so, possession of such land will not be adverse of any portion of the adjoining tract which by mistake has been included within the premises. Kahl v. Schmidt, 107–550, 78 N. W. 204.

In the absence of proof of acquiescence in the boundary line indicated by a fence, one of the adjoining owners is not estopped by proof of the existence of such fence from showing the true line. Erikson v. Slate, 130–187, 106 N. W. 621.

The mere fact that there is a fence upon a line claimed by one of the parties as a boundary line between adjoining properties is not conclusive upon the question of acquiescence or adverse possession. But if it appears that the two adjoining owners have by parol fixed a line or acquiesced in it as a common boundary line, such line is conclusive, although the possession with reference thereto may not have been for the full statutory period. Kitchen v. Chantland, 130–618, 105 N. W. 367.

Where the boundary line has been in dispute, adverse possession by acquiescence does not arise. Liddle v. Blake, 131–165, 105 N. W. 649.

The doctrine of acquiescence in a common boundary does not apply where there is no showing that the fence designating such boundary as originally built was intended as a designation of the boundary line, or that the parties have ever treated it as designating such boundary. Boltz v. Colsch, 134–480, 109 N. W. 1106.

An oral agreement creating an easement, while it may not be enforceable against a subsequent purchaser without notice, is sufficient for the foundation of a claim of right which may ripen into good title by adverse usage. O'Reagan v. Duggan, 117–612, 91 N. W. 909.

The line up to which an owner occupies by eaves, window blinds and sewer drains must be held to be the boundary line of his adverse possession. Atkins v. Pfaffe, 136–728, 114 N. W. 187.

The maker of improvements with reference to an established line shows acquiescence in such line as a boundary. Leifheit v. Neylon, 139–32, 117 N. W. 4.

Although the doctrine of adverse possession does not apply to a case where a party has had no intent to claim more than his deed calls for, yet a line may be established by recognition and acquiescence, although neither of the parties has intended to claim more than is described in his deed. Bradley v. Burkhart, 139–323, 115 N. W. 597.

Acquiescence does not presuppose an agreement to a line, but on the other hand an agreement to a boundary is to be inferred from a long acquiescence therein. Keller v. Harrison, 139–383, 116 N. W. 327.

One who has claimed title and occupied premises up to a definite boundary line with the consent and acquiescence of the adjoining landowner has title by adverse possession. Anderson v. Buchanan, 139–676, 116 N. W. 694.

Possession by acquiescence up to a boundary line for the statutory period gives title by adverse possession. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co., 140–372, 118 N. W. 527.

Possession held by mistake and without intention to assert possession beyond the true boundary is not adverse. Webster v. Shrine Temple Co., 141–325, 117 N. W. 665.

Possible circumstances may be such as to justify the inference of acquiescence in a boundary line in a less time than ten years; but where nothing is shown save occupation up to a fence or other monument marking the division between adjoining premises, such occupation must have continued for the period of the statute of limitations to become conclusive on the parties. Matson v. Poncin, 152–569, 132 N. W. 970.

Where title has been established by adverse occupancy to an agreed boundary line, a subsequent consent to a survey to establish the real line without an agreement to abide by the result does not destroy the effect of the adverse possession. Frederickson v. Bierent, 154–34, 134 N. W. 432.

In such case, a new survey would not of itself establish the boundary. An express agreement to that effect would be necessary. But such an agreement, even if shown, unless followed by possession or improvement of the property with reference to the new line, with the acquiescence or agreement of the plaintiff, would not affect the old line as established by acquiescence and adverse possession. Ibid.

Acquiescence in an agreed boundary line accompanied by possession for ten years up to such line is conclusive evidence of an agreement that such line shall constitute the boundary line. McCoy v. Paxton, 156–194, 135 N. W. 1091.

Proof of acquiescence for many years based upon the maintenance and repair of a fence and occupancy of the land to the line thus indicated is sufficient to establish title. Savage v. Armstrong, 156–473, 137 N. W. 474.

The inference arising from ten years' acquiescence in a boundary fence and occupancy with reference to such fence as the true line may be overcome by proof of other controlling circumstances inconsistent with and contradicting the inference of acquiescence; but if there are no controlling circumstances to overcome the inference from acquiescence, then the presumption from such acquiescence is sufficient to determine the boundary line in controversy. Ibid.

Where a boundary line is found to have been established by acquiescence, it is binding upon the parties as to the true line. McGovern v. Heery, 141 N. W. 435.

A title which arises from acquiescence or estoppel is not necessarily limited by fixed and platted boundaries. Willson v. Beck, 142 N. W. 78.

Acts of ownership and control over a tract of land which are as consistent with harmless encroachments on unoccupied property as with ownership or claim of right, do not amount to adverse possession to a particular boundary. Ibid.

Easement: Use of a right of way, with permission of and without claim of right in hostility to the owner, is not adverse possession. Friday v. Henah, 113–425, 85 N. W. 768.

The burden of proof as to adverse possession is on the party claiming in hostility to the title, and in case of an easement by grant, the adverse possession must consist of assertion of right as against the claim under the grant, continued for the statutory period of limitations. Reed v. Gasser, 130–87, 106 N. W. 383.

Husband and wife: It is doubtful if the husband may, under any circumstances, hold adversely to his wife, especially where the property is a homestead. The possession of husband and wife is the possession of the one in whom is the legal title. Hays v. Marsh, 123–81, 98 N. W. 604.

Recovery of dower: The wife's right of action for dower out of lands conveyed by her husband during coverture in which she has not joined does not accrue until the death of the husband, and until that time the statute of limitations does not commence to run as against such right. Lucas v. Whitacre, 121–251, 96 N. W. 776.

The action of a widow against the grantee of her husband for the recovery of her dower interest in land conveyed by her husband during coverture, without her joinder in the conveyance, does not accrue until the death of the husband. Lucas v. White, 120–735, 95 N. W. 209.

The possession by the grantee of the husband under a conveyance in which the wife has not joined to extinguish her dower right becomes adverse as to the wife's dower right twenty days after the death of the husband. (See code § 3369.) And the widow's action to assert her right to a distributive share in such property must be brought within ten years thereafter. Britt v. Gordon, 132–431, 108 N. W. 319.

The right of a widow to recover her distributive share of her husband's property does not accrue until ouster, or some denial on the part of the heirs of her husband or their grantees of her right. Mere possession on the part of such heirs or grantees is not adverse and does not give rise to a right of action. But where the widow's action is against strangers, who claim the entire title and estate under a deed from the husband under which they have been in actual possession, the widow's right of action accrues immediately upon the death of her husband, and the statute begins to run in favor of such adverse claimants. Ibid.

Against public: Title by adverse possession alone cannot be acquired against the public. The public may be estopped by its conduct, but the statute of limitations will not run against the sovereign or its agencies. The only basis for an estoppel as against the public is conduct of the officers having authority with relation to the subject matter in standing by and permitting improvements to be made on property which belongs to the public. Biglow v. Ritter, 131–213, 108 N. W. 218.

The statute of limitations does not apply to a city so as to prevent its exercise of governmental functions; but the doctrine of acquiescence in a certain line as being the true line is applicable to municipalities as well as to private individuals. Eldora v. Edgington, 130–151, 106 N. W. 503.

As against the state holding title to the beds and banks of navigable rivers for the public, there can be no adverse possession. Board of Park Commissioners v. Taylor, 133–453, 108 N. W. 927.

Ordinarily the rule of adverse possession does not apply to a public corporation in the exercise of its governmental functions. Vorhes v. Ackley, 127–658, 103 N. W. 998.

In establishing and maintaining a highway a municipality exercises governmental functions and the statute of limitations does not run against it with respect to encroachments therein. Quinn v. Baage, 138–426, 114 N. W. 205.

The doctrine of adverse possession does not apply to municipalities or other bodies exercising governmental functions for the reason that the statute of limitations does not run in such cases. Johnson v. Shenandoah, 153–493, 133 N. W. 761.

But as to the right of a city to a street, an adverse claimant may rely upon estoppel on the part of the city to claim that the street is at any other place than where the parties owning abutting property acknowledge it to be. Ibid.

Such estoppel may be based upon the erection of valuable and permanent improvements with reference to lines marked out and claimed by abutting property owners who would be greatly injured were they compelled to remove such improvements. Ibid.

As to streets: The statute of limitations will not run to defeat the city in the exercise of its governmental authority with reference to streets. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co. v. Council Bluffs, 109–425, 80 N W. 564.

While it may be that the statute of limitations as to real property does not run against a claim of a city to premises belonging to it as a street, yet it may so deal with the property, by recognizing the rights of another as owner thereof, as to estop itself from asserting the title thereto. The exaction of public charges against the property as belonging to a private owner will constitute such estoppel. Davenport v. Boyd, 109–248, 80 N. W. 314.

The owner of a lot abutting on the street does not acquire title by adverse possession as against the city to the strip of land between his lot line and the sidewalk, by mere occupancy. Markham v. Anamosa, 122–689, 98 N. W. 493.

While mere nonuser for the statutory period will not constitute an abandonment by a city of a street duly laid out, yet where there has been such nonuser, accompanied by actual and notorious possession of the land by an individual as private property, under a claim of right, an abandonment will be presumed and the public right in the street will be held to be extinguished. Weber v. Iowa City, 119–633, 93 N. W. 637.

One who claims the right to an alley, shown on the plat to be a public alley, and as to which there have been proceedings by the town for dedication, although irregular, and makes improvements thereon accordingly, may rely upon such possession, continued for a sufficient length of time, as giving title by adverse possession. Blennerhasset v. Forest City, 117–680, 91 N. W. 1044.

Long occupancy of city lots and improvement thereof in accordance with lines and corners which may have been marked out at the time the plat was filed, is better evidence that these are correct than the deductions and measurements of a surveyor regardless of his competency and experience. Harris v. Lewis, 156–413, 136 N. W. 674.

While a landowner cannot by limitations acquire title adversely to a city or town with reference to its streets, the municipality may, by the conduct of its citizens and its officers, be estopped from claiming beyond a given line as the street although it be not the true line. Bridges v. Grand View, 139 N. W. 917.

Par. 8. Judgments of courts of record: In the absence of any statutory limitation in the state in which a judgment is rendered, an action on such judgment brought in this state will be barred only under the provisions of the statute of limitations in this state. Mahoney v. State Ins. Co., 133–570, 110 N. W. 1041.

The fact that the indebtedness on which a foreign judgment was rendered was barred at the time of bringing the action cannot be urged as a defense against the judgment rendered on such cause of action. Tomlin v. Woods, 125–367, 101 N. W. 135.

The rule adopted in Weiser v. McDowell, 93–772, has no application to a judgment rendered before the code of '73 went into effect. Wilson v. Tucker, 105–55, 74 N. W. 908.

The act of the 29 G. A., ch. 137 (code supp. § 3439), reducing the period of limitation for actions on judgments rendered prior to the taking effect of the code, is not unconstitutional, as it preserves to the holder of the judgment a reasonable time within which his action may be maintained. Wooster v. Bateman, 126–552, 102 N. W. 521.

Under the provisions of 29 G. A., ch. 137, actions on judgments rendered prior to the taking effect of the code of 1897 must be brought within the limitation prescribed by the code, unless brought within one year after the taking effect of that statute. Haugen v. Oldford, 129–156, 105 N. W. 393.

Where a judgment of a justice of the peace by the filing of a transcript becomes a judgment of the district court, it is subject only to the limitation applicable to other judgments of the district court, and the period of limitation commences to run from the time the justice's judgment is made a judgment of the district court by the filing of a transcript and a proper entry on the records of the district court. Miller v. Rosebrook, 136–158, 113 N. W. 771.

Right of action on a judgment by confession for the amount of a note secured by mortgage runs for twenty years irrespective of the period of limitation as to the indebtedness thus secured. Gilman v. Heitman, 137–336, 113 N. W. 932.

Execution under a judgment may be levied within twenty years, although the lien of the judgment on the property seized has already expired. Mudge v. Livermore, 148–472, 123 N. W. 199.

(In the code notes to this section, on page 1245, second column, the reference for the case of Auchampaugh v. Schmidt, should be 70–642, instead of 72–656. In the last paragraph on page 1248, second column, the word "stay" in the sixth line should be "start.")

SEC. 3447-a. Death of party to be charged—extension of time. That in all cases where by the death of the party to be charged, the bringing of an action against his estate shall have been delayed beyond the period provided for by statute, the time within which action may be brought against his estate is hereby extended for six months from the date of the death of said decedent. [31 G. A., ch. 151.]

Before the passage of this statute, the death of the debtor did not toll the statute. But such rule was not applicable to the allowance of claims in probate. In re Kimball's Estate, Flanigan v. Kimball, 139 N. W. 456.

SEC. 3447-b. Recovery of interest in real estate when spouse failed to join in conveyance. That section thirty-four hundred forty-seven-b of the supplement to the code, 1907, be and the same is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"In all cases where the holder of the legal or equitable title or estate to real estate situated within this state, prior to the first day of January, eighteen hundred ninety, conveyed said real estate or any interest therein by deed, mortgage, or other instrument, and the spouse failed to join therein, such spouse or the heirs at law, personal representatives, devisees, grantees, or assignees of such spouse shall be barred from recovery unless suit is brought therefor within one year after the taking effect of this act. But in case the right to such distributive share has not accrued by the death of the spouse making such instrument, then the one not joining is hereby authorized to file in the recorder's office of the county where the land is situated, a notice with affidavit, setting forth affiants claim, together with the facts upon which such claim rests, and the residence of such claimants; and if such notice is not filed within two years from the taking effect of this act, such claim shall be barred forever. Any action contemplated in this section may include land situated in different counties, by giving notice thereof as provided by section thirty-five hundred forty-four of the code. Provided that the repeal of said section shall not affect any act done, any right accruing or which has accrued or been established, nor any suit or proceeding had or commenced in any civil cause before the time when such repeal takes effect; but the proceedings in such cases shall be conformed to the provisions of said repealed section as far as consistent." [34 G. A., ch. 160, § 1; 34 G. A., ch. 159, § 1.] [31 G. A., ch. 152, § 1.]

The provisions of this statute are not subject to the exception of code § 3453 relating to the disability of insanity. Collier v. Smaltz, 149–230, 128 N. W. 396.

Nor is the statutory provision unconstitutional as prescribing an unreasonable limitation on a right of action. Ibid.

It was not the legislative intention to restrict the operation of this statute to cases where there was paper title placed on record. The intent was to require all parties claiming a dower right, although contingent, to follow the course pointed out in the statute. Hutchinson v. Olberding, 150–604, 130 N. W. 139.

SEC. 3447-c. Foreclosure of certain mortgages. That section thirty-four hundred forty-seven-c of the supplement to the code, 1907, is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

No action shall be maintained to foreclose or enforce any real estate mortgage, bond for deed, trust deed or contract for the sale or conveyance of real estate, after twenty years from the date thereof, as shown by the record of such instrument, unless the record of such instrument shows that less than ten years have elapsed since the date of maturity of the indebtedness or part thereof, secured thereby, or since the right of action has accrued thereon, or unless the record shows an extension of the maturity of the instrument or of the debt or a part thereof, and that ten years from the expiration of the time of such extension have not yet expired. The date of maturity, when different than as appears by the record of the instrument, and the date of maturity of any extension of said indebtedness or part thereof, may be shown at any time prior to the expiration of the above periods of limitation by the holder of the debt or the owner or assignee of the instrument filing an extension agreement, duly acknowledged as the original instrument was required to be acknowledged, in the office of the recorder where the instrument is recorded, or by noting on the margin of the record of such instrument in the recorder's office an extension of the maturity of the instrument or of the debt secured, or any part thereof; each notation to be witnessed by the recorder and entered upon the index of mortgages in the name of the mortgagor and mortgagee; provided that the holder or assignee of any such instrument, or the holder of any debt or part thereof, secured by any instrument, shall have until July fourth, nineteen hundred twelve, in which to file such extension agreement or to note the marginal extension as to any instrument executed prior to the taking effect of this act and coming within the provisions hereof. This act shall in no case revive the rights or claims barred by section thirty-four hundred forty-seven-c of the supplement to the code, 1907. [35 G. A., ch. 283, § 1; 34 G. A., ch. 161, § 1.] [31 G. A., ch. 152, § 2.]

SEC. 3448. Fraud—mistake—trespass.

The fraud referred to in this section is such as is solely cognizable in a court of equity. Daugherty v. Daugherty, 116–245, 90 N. W. 65.

In an action to recover on account of fraud the statute begins to run from the time the fraud is discovered. Telegraph v. Loetscher, 127–383, 101 N. W. 773.

For the purpose of starting the running of the statute of limitations against an action for fraud, the recording of a deed involving the fraud complained of is sufficient to constitute notice. McDonald v. Bayard Sav. Bank, 123–413, 98 N. W. 1025.

The filing of a patent from the state to the patentee is notice to those claiming title under such patent of any fraud involved in the issuance of the patent. Murray v. Quigley, 119–6, 92 N. W. 869.

Where an action is cognizable in equity by reason of the fiduciary relations existing between the parties, this section is applicable. Faust v. Hosford, 119–97, 93 N. W. 58.

So long as it is legally impossible to say whether or not a representation as to title of property conveyed is false, the statute does not begin to run as against an equitable action to set aside the conveyance for the falsity of such representation. Weise v. Grove, 123–585, 99 N. W. 191.

The statutory provision with reference to limitation of actions on the ground of fraud and mistake is applicable to such mistake as is cognizable in courts of law as well as the basis of equitable relief. But the statute commences to run against the cause of action arising from a pure mistake at the time when the mistake might in the exercise of ordinary diligence have been discovered. West v. Fry, 134–675, 112 N. W. 184.

The fraud referred to in this section is such as was originally cognizable in equity, but the matter of mistake is not so limited. Therefore in case of a mistake, whether cognizable in equity or at law, the action does not accrue until discovery of the mistake. Baird v. Omaha & C. B. R. & B. Co., 111–627, 82 N. W. 1020.

This provision as to when a right of action based on mistake accrues has no application to an action to recover taxes subsequently paid by a tax purchaser on property, as to which his tax title appears to have been defective by reason of mistake of the auditor. Such an action is barred in five years from the time of payment of taxes. Lonsdale v. Carroll County, 105–452, 75 N. W. 332.

As against an action for the cancellation or reformation of a deed on the ground of mistake, the limitation does not commence to run until the mistake is discovered. Bottorff v. Lewis, 121–27, 95 N. W. 262.

Where a railroad company, claiming title to land under a railroad grant from the United States, had been notified that land certified to it had been certified under a mistake as to the legal rights of the company, held that in afterwards redeeming the land from taxes it acted at its peril, and an action to recover taxes so paid, not brought within the statutory period, was barred by the statute of limitations. Sioux City & St. P. R. Co. v. O'Brien County, 118–582, 92 N. W. 857.

A cause of action to reform a conveyance on account of mistake arises immediately upon the discovery of the mistake, and if the action is not brought within the statutory period after such discovery it is barred. Garst v. Brutsche, 129–501, 105 N. W. 452.

In an action for money had and received predicated upon the wrongful payment by the county treasurer to the defendant school district of taxes collected on property situated in the plaintiff school disdict, the period of limitation commences to run from the time of erroneous payment and not from the time when the mistake was discovered. Independent School District v. Independent School District, 123–455, 99 N. W. 106.

The provision that actions for relief on the ground of mistake are not to be deemed to accrue until the mistake is discovered has no application to an action against a clerk of court for omitting to index a judgment. Lougee v. Reed, 133–48, 110 N. W. 165.

Wherever relief is asked on account of fraud in the sale of land, the plaintiff is charged with knowledge of such fraud from the time of the recording of a conveyance executed in pursuance of the fraud relied upon. Piekenbrock v. Knoer, 136–534, 114 N. W. 200.

Fraudulent concealment is the same as actual fraud, and where a fiduciary relation exists, mere silence on the part of the agent or trustee is fraudulent concealment. Caffee v. Berkley, 141–344, 118 N. W. 267.

Notice to or knowledge by an agent who is acting in hostility to his principal is not notice to the principal. Ibid.

The principal is not bound to search the records of conveyances for the purpose of ascertaining the truth or falsity of representations made to him by his agent with reference to the conveyance of property. Ibid.

An action for deceit which was cognizable at common law accrues when the transaction is consummated rather than when the deceit is discovered by the aggrieved party. McKay v. McCarthy, 146–546, 123 N. W. 755, 125 N. W. 207.

It is immaterial under this section whether the action be solely cognizable in equity or not, if it appear that there has been a fraudulent concealment of the facts such as to toll the period of limitation. Cress v. Ivens, 155–17, 134 N. W. 869.

The recording of a deed constitutes notice to all parties interested in the breach of a constructive trust under which the land is held by the grantor, and the statute of limitations commences to run from that time. Burch v. Nicholson, 157– —, 137 N. W. 1066.

Section applied in case of mistake. Cole v. Charles City Nat. Bank, 114–632, 87 N. W. 671.

SEC. 3449. Open account.

An action upon open account brought within five years after the date of the last item is not barred. Padden v. Clark, 124–94, 99 N. W. 152.

In an action to recover compensation for services practically continuous for many years, the plaintiff cannot be limited to evidence of such service within five years. In re Oldfield's Estate, Bowie v. Trowbridge, 157– —, 138 N. W. 846.

SEC. 3450. Commencement of action.

This provision is applicable also to special statutory limitations. Smith v. Callanan, 103–218, 72 N. W. 513.

The provisions of this section apply only to the general statute of limitations. A right which is given to be enforced by bringing an action within a specified period is controlled by the provisions of code § 3514, that actions shall be commenced by serving defendant with notice. (Distinguishing Smith v. Callanan, 103–218.) Hawley v. Griffin, 121–667, 92 N. W. 113, 97 N. W. 86.

The delivery of an original notice to the sheriff for service does not constitute the commencement of the action where, after it has been placed in the sheriff's hands, he is unable to make service and two terms of court are allowed to intervene without further attempt to have service made. The intention that the notice shall be served must be continuous, and the effect of it is lost where the notice placed with the sheriff is abandoned. Richardson v. Turner, 110–318, 81 N. W. 593.

Where there is nothing in the record to disclose the service of an original notice which would interrupt the statute of limitations, and the only appearance of the defendant is the voluntary filing of an answer after the expiration of the statutory period of limitation, the date of the answer will be regarded as the time of the commencement of the action, although the petition was filed before the expiration of the period of limitation. Dolan v. Burlington, C. R. & N. R. Co., 129–626, 105 N. W. 834.

For every purpose save the determination of the question whether action is brought before the expiration of the period of limitation, the action is deemed to be commenced only when the notice is in fact served. If service is by publication, then it is commenced on the date of the last publication required by statute. Littlejohn v. Bulles, 136–150, 113 N. W. 756.

Where, after the right to sue on a foreign judgment has become barred, the defendant has appeared in an attachment proceeding in which his property has been seized before the bar of the statute has run, the court may proceed in the attachment suit to subject the attached property to the payment of the debt, but acquires no jurisdiction to render a personal judgment. In such case the attachment proceeding should be deemed commenced from the time of the filing of the petition and levy on the property. Slater v. Roche, 148–413, 126 N. W. 925.

Save for the purpose of avoiding a plea of the statute of limitations, an action is not begun by delivering a notice to the sheriff but by service of notice being actually obtained. Boone v. Boone, 137 N. W. 1059, 141 N. W. 938.

An action is commenced when the original notice is placed in the hands of the sheriff for service, and as between two actions, that one is prior in commencement in which notice is thus first placed in the hands of the sheriff. Wray v. Wray, 140 N. W. 414.

The fact that the petition is demurrable does not destroy its effect as constituting a commencement of the action within the period of limitation. Knight v. Moline, E. M. & W. R. Co., 140 N. W. 839.

SEC. 3451. Nonresidence.

The time during which the defendant is a nonresident of the state is not to be computed in determining the period of limitation. Davenport v. Allen, 120 Fed. 172.

In an action to subject property fraudulently conveyed to the payment of a judgment, nonresidence will prevent the running of the statute until the property comes into the hands of a resident. Applegate v. Applegate, 107–312, 78 N. W. 34.

As against an action for partition the statute of limitations does not begin to run until there is someone within the jurisdiction of the state against whom the action might be brought. Even though the defendant had a tenant in possession of the property upon whom service might have been made, the nonresidence of the owner will defeat the statute of limitations. Stern v. Selleck, 136–291, 111 N. W. 451.

Where nonresidence of the defendant was relied upon by the plaintiff as obviating the objection of the statute of limitations, an instruction that if defendant established and maintained a residence in another state, then during such time as he was a resident of such other state he was a nonresident of this state, was proper. Des Moines Sav. Bank v. Kennedy, 142–272, 120 N. W. 742.

Mere delay in bringing action does not defeat the right of a creditor to rely upon the nonresidence of his debtor as defeating the statute of limitations. Thomas v. Holmes, 142–288, 120 N. W. 636.

This section applies to a case where the defendant was a nonresident prior to the accrual of the cause of action and remained a nonresident until the action was brought. It is immaterial that the plaintiff himself is a nonresident. McNamara v. McAllister, 150–243, 130 N. W. 26.

Residence and not citizenship is referred to by the provisions of this section. Bogue v. Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co., (D. C.) 193 Fed. 728.

SEC. 3452. Bar in foreign jurisdiction.

An action for wrongful attachment in another state where the cause of action arose and the defendant resides, which is barred by the laws of that state, is also barred here. Smyth v. Peters Shoe Co., 111–388, 82 N. W. 898.

Where a note executed in another state is mailed to the payee in this state, in accordance with agreement, express or implied, the cause of action on such note is one arising in that state, and if barred by the law of that state where the maker resided and still continued to reside until the bar was completed, it is barred here although the payee of the note has resided in this state. Tharp v. Thero, 112–573, 84 N. W. 709.

A judgment by confession upon warrant of attorney rendered in another state against one who is a resident of this state may be valid although the cause of action is already barred by the laws of this state. Cuykendall v. Doe, 129–453, 105 N. W. 698.

In determining whether the cause of action is one arising within this state, the intention of the parties to the contract out of which the cause of action arises will ordinarily prevail, and that intention may be found from the circumstances surrounding the transaction. So when a note was by previous agreement signed and mailed to the payee in this state who in pursuance of the transaction thereupon remitted to the maker the amount of the note, held that the cause of action thereon was one arising in this state. Moran v. Moran, 144–451, 123 N. W. 202.

The cause of action on a promissory note arises, within the meaning of this statutory provision, at the time when the note becomes a legal and binding obligation. It does not accrue until the note is payable. Ibid.

Where the court of another state in which the parties have resided might have entertained an action with reference to the subject matter but could not have afforded a full and adequate remedy on account of the situation of the property involved being in this state, the fact that during such residence the cause of action in such other state may have become barred will not constitute a bar to the action in this state. Curtis v. Armagast, 138 N. W. 873.

A cause of action cannot be said to arise in any jurisdiction whose courts cannot take cognizance of the complaint and administer the proper relief. Ibid.

The fact that the cause of action is barred by the laws of another state where it arose is effectual as a bar in this state by reason of the provisions of this section. Knight v. Moline, E. M. & W. R. Co., 140 N. W. 839.

SEC. 3453. Minors and insane persons.

This provision applies only to those who are under disability at the time the cause of action accrues. Such disability subsequently arising does not extend the statutory period. Roelefsen v. Pella, 121–153, 96 N. W. 738.

Therefore, held that the insanity of a debtor, occurring nine years and four months after the cause of action on a contract accrued, would not extend the limitation of action on the contract. Black v. Ross, 110–112, 81 N. W. 229.

As against a minor the period of the statute of limitations does not become complete until the expiration of a year after he attains his majority. Rice v. Bolton, 126–654, 100 N. W. 634, 102 N. W. 509.

The provisions of par. 1 of code § 3447 relating to the time for bringing action against a municipal corporation for an injury due to a defective street are not extended by this section relating to limitation of actions brought by minors. Cushing v. Winterset, 144–260, 122 N. W. 915.

The exception of this section does not apply to the provisions of code supp. § 3447-b relating to a limitation on an action by the spouse who has not joined in a conveyance of real property. Collier v. Smaltz, 149–230, 128 N. W. 396.

The exception as to insane persons extends to idiots, lunatics and persons of unsound mind. Jefferson v. Rust, 149–594, 128 N. W. 954.

SEC. 3455. Failure of action.

Where plaintiff's first action was dismissed on account of his negligence in not filing the petition in time for the term designated in his notice, held that a subsequent action brought after the expiration of the statutory period of limitation but within six months from the dismissal of the first action could not be sustained. Conley v. Dugan, 105–205, 74 N. W. 774.

A plaintiff against whom judgment has been rendered after refusal to amend upon ruling against him, on demurrer to his petition, cannot bring a new action under this section. Gregory v. Woodworth, 107–151, 77 N. W. 837.

Where the plaintiff is entitled to a continuance on account of an emergency arising in the progress of the case, but instead of asking such continuance he dismisses the action, he is negligent within the language of this section. Pardey v. Mechanicsville, 112–68, 83 N. W. 828.

This section does not apply where the cause of action stated in the second action is different from that alleged in the first, though based on the same transaction. Whalen v. Gordon, 95 Fed. 305.

This provision has no application to a second action on a policy of insurance brought after the expiration of the limitation provided by the contract, although such action is commenced within six months of the dismissal of an action in which the plaintiff failed because it was prematurely brought. The contract provision in an insurance policy supersedes the statutory provisions. Wilhemi v. Des Moines Ins. Co., 103–532, 72 N. W. 685. And see Harrison v. Hartford F. Ins. Co., 67 Fed. 298.

Where the first action is dismissed and the second brought after the expiration of the period of limitations, but within six months of the dismissal of the first action, the burden is on the plaintiff to allege and prove such diligence in prosecuting the first action as to bring the case within the provisions of this section. Ceprley v. Paton, 120–559, 95 N. W. 179.

SEC. 3456. Admission in writing—new promise.

The debtor cannot avoid a written admission of liability signed by him by showing that he signed the same without reading it under a misapprehension of its contents, due to statements of the attorney of the opposite party, which were not fraudulent. Bannister v. McIntire, 112–600, 84 N. W. 707.

Where a guardian in his written statement of account acknowledged the receipt of money as guardian, held that this was sufficient acknowledgment to extend the statute of limitations as to an action against him to recover the amount thus acknowledged to have been received. Blakeney v. Wyland, 115–607, 89 N. W. 16.

It is not necessary that the admission be express; it is enough if the writing clearly and unequivocally refers to the instrument in suit and clearly admits that it is not paid. Will v. Marker, 122–627, 98 N. W. 487.

An admission such as is contemplated by statute does not arise by mere implication. It must be clear, express and direct, with reference to the indebtedness admitted. Parol evidence is competent to connect the admission with the indebtedness referred to therein, but not for the purpose of giving rise to an implied promise to pay an indebtedness not therein referred to. Therefore held that a written acknowledgment as to one of the notes secured by a mortgage did not prevent the bar of the statute subsequently becoming effectual as to another note so secured. Finn v. Seegmiller, 134–15, 111 N. W. 314.

The extension agreement may be signed by an authorized agent. Iowa Loan & Trust Co. v. McMurray, 129–65, 105 N. W. 361.

It is not competent by parol evidence to show that a subsequent note was given for unpaid interest on the note in suit in order to remove the bar of the statute of the limitations which can only be done by an admission in writing. Kleis v. McGrath, 127–459, 103 N. W. 371.

A judgment may be revived by a written admission or a new promise. Spilde v. Johnson, 132–484, 109 N. W. 1023.

In a particular case held that reference to the claim in a letter was sufficient to constitute a written admission or a new promise. McConaughy v. Wilsey, 115–589, 88 N. W. 1101.

Evidence in a particular case held sufficient to identify the instrument sued on as one acknowledged by the debtor in writing as a valid obligation. Campbell v. Campbell, 118–131, 91 N. W. 894.

It is not necessary that both an admission of the debt and a new promise to pay shall be made and signed by the party, but either is sufficient. Senninger v. Rowley, 138–617, 116 N. W. 695.

To have the effect of an admission within the statute, it is not required that the writing specifically describe the debt or mention its exact amount, but the identity of the debt and the amount thereof may be shown by extrinsic evidence. Ibid.

The revivor of the debt revives the mortgage given to secure its payment. Ibid.

A conveyance subject to a mortgage described therein is a sufficient admission in writing to revive the mortgage debt. Doran v. Doran, 145–122, 123 N. W. 996.

It should appear with reasonable certainty that the admission relates to the debt in suit, and if such relation does reasonably appear it is for the debtor insisting that the admission relates to some other indebtedness to show its existence. Ibid.

The statute relates only to the form of evidence necessary to remove the bar of the statute. It does not require a new promise or its equivalent. Ibid.

It is not necessary that the admission in writing be made to the creditor himself or someone representing him or in privity with him; and held that where a mortgagor after the mortgage indebtedness had become barred by the statute conveyed the property subject to the mortgage, such conveyance constituted a sufficient admission to revive the mortgage debt in favor of the mortgagee. Ibid.

The recovery on account of the admission or new promise should be limited to the amount admitted, irrespective of the amount actually due; and where the admission was of five hundred dollars and accruing interest, held that there could be no recovery for interest which had accrued on that amount of indebtedness prior to the admission. Ibid.

Neither an oral nor a written representation to the plaintiff not fraudulent, inducing him to withhold the bringing of action until the statutory bar has accrued, will constitute a revivor of such cause of action. McKay v. McCarthy, 146–564, 123 N. W. 755.

The grantee of a mortgagor, although he has not assumed the payment of the debt, may waive the statute of limitations as against an action to subject the land to the payment of such debt by foreclosure of the mortgage. Fitzgerald v. Flanagan, 155–217, 135 N. W. 738.

Such waiver may be established by parol evidence of a new promise to pay. Ibid.

SEC. 3457. Counterclaim.

A claim which is already barred but which was held by the defendant at the time plaintiff's cause of action arose and was not barred at the time the claim sued on originated, may be pleaded as a counterclaim. Richardson v. Richardson, 134–242, 111 N. W. 934.

A ground of counterclaim is available as a defense although not interposed until after the bar of the statute of limitations as to the ground of counterclaim has accrued. Bradley v. Hufferd, 138–611, 116 N. W. 814.

CHAPTER 3.

OF PARTIES TO AN ACTION.

SECTION 3459. Plaintiff—party in interest—exception.

Where a city provides salaries for police judge and marshal, so that the fees thereof are to go into the city treasury, the city may, as the real party in interest, bring action for the recovery of such fees in criminal cases from the county. Des Moines v. Polk County, 107–525, 78 N. W. 249.

One to whom a note is indorsed for collection may maintain an action thereon. Lehman v. Press, 106–389, 76 N. W. 818.

One to whom negotiable municipal bonds, transferable by delivery, have been delivered as agent for another, may sue thereon in his own name, being vested with the legal title, although the action is subject to any defense between the maker and the beneficial owner. Salmon v. Rural Ind. School Dist., 125 Fed. 235.

A party holding the title of an instrument may sue thereon. So, where the action was brought by a foreign receiver which could not be maintained by him as such receiver, held that as an individual to whom the cause of action sued on had been assigned he could maintain such action. Hale v. Harris, 112–372, 83 N. W. 1046.

The assured in a contract of fire insurance may maintain an action to recover thereunder, although it has been pledged to a mortgagee. Smith v. Continental Ins. Co., 108–382, 79 N. W. 126.

With respect to contracts made by the cashier of a bank for its benefit, he may maintain an action without joining the bank, being the trustee of an express trust for the bank. Leach v. Hill, 106–171, 76 N. W. 667.

Where a contract is made for the benefit of a person not a party thereto, such third party may bring action thereon. Therefore, held that where one party authorized another to draw checks in his own name on a certain bank with the agreement that the first party would see that the checks were honored, the cashier of a bank receiving such checks had a right of action against the person who had agreed to see that the checks were paid. Ibid.

The trustee of an express trust may bring action without joining those for whose benefit the action is prosecuted. Zion Church v. Parker, 114–1, 86 N. W. 60.

Defect of parties appearing on the face of the petition is waived by not objecting thereto in the proper manner. Ibid.

The party for whose benefit a contract has been made may maintain an action thereon. Runkle v. Kettering, 127–6, 102 N. W. 142.

The principle that one may sue upon the promise made to another for his benefit is confined to cases where the person for whose benefit the promise is made has the sole, exclusive interest in its performance. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co. v. Ottumwa, 112–300, 83 N. W. 1074.

The party with whom or in whose name the contract is made for the benefit of another may sue thereon in his own name without adding the descriptive words used by him in designating the capacity in which he acted in making the contract. McKee v. Needles, 123–195, 98 N. W. 618.

One who sells property to another on an agreement that its value shall be credited on the note of a third person may, on failure of the purchaser to make the credit as agreed, maintain an action against the purchaser for the value of the property. Dorr Cattle Co. v. Jewett, 116–93, 89 N. W. 109.

The holder of an unaccepted check may maintain an action thereon against the bank subject to the offset of any note or other claim held by the bank against the drawer. (Following earlier cases, but not referring to § 189 of the negotiable instruments act, supp. § 3060-a.) Gloom v. Winthrop State Bank, 121–101, 96 N. W. 733.

In a contest over the probate of a will relating to personal property, the administrator or executor of a contestant should be substituted on his death. Such contest cannot be carried on in the interest of the deceased by his widow and heirs. In re Will of Wiltsey, 122–423, 98 N. W. 294.

A member of an unincorporated association cannot maintain an action in behalf of the association. Westbrook v. Griffin, 132–185, 109 N. W. 608.

An order of substitution of a trustee in bankruptcy in place of the bankrupt in an action to recover property delivered under a sale procured by fraud, does not terminate the jurisdiction of the court as to the bankrupt himself, and a judgment against him is not invalid. Kuh, Nathan & Fisher Co. v. Glucklick, 120–504, 94 N. W. 1105.

While an action should be prosecuted in the name of the real party in interest, one who sues by way of substitution is subject to the burdens as well as entitled to the benefits of the action of his predecessor. Crary v. Kurtz, 132–105, 105 N. W. 590, 109 N. W. 452.

The executor named in a will which has not yet been admitted to probate is not a trustee of an express trust in such sense as to be authorized to contest the probate of a codicil. In re Estate of Stewart, 107–117, 77 N. W. 574.

This section will be recognized by the federal courts in determining whether a suit is brought in the name of the proper party. Edmunds v. Illinois Cent. R. Co., 80 Fed. 78.

One for whose benefit a contract is made is the real party in interest as to an action for breach thereof, regardless of whether the consideration proceeds from him or another. In re Estate of Youngerman, 136–488, 114 N. W. 7.

An officer or stockholder of a corporation is not a real party in interest in an action brought in behalf of the corporation. Stewart v. Hall, 144–113, 122 N. W. 609.

But if the suit has been prosecuted in the name of one not entitled to maintain it, the supreme court, on reversal on that ground, may remand the case with leave to plaintiff to bring in the necessary parties. Ibid.

One whose apparent interest in the controversy might be eliminated by a formal disclaimer is not necessarily a real party in interest. White v. Chicago & N. W. R. Co., 145–389, 124 N. W. 162.

One who sues as surviving partner for a claim belonging to the partnership sues in his own right, and his description of himself as surviving partner is immaterial. Murphy v. Cochran, 146–443, 123 N. W. 349.

In an action brought by a party with whom a contract is made for the benefit of others, it is not necessary to make defendant another person named in the contract who has no real interest whatever in the matter in dispute. Rapp v. Linebarger, 149–429, 128 N. W. 555.

The owner of property is entitled to maintain an action for damages thereto, without regard to the rights of another who may be entitled to the proceeds of such recovery. Betts v. Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co., 150–252, 129 N. W. 962.

One for whose benefit a contract is made may maintain an action thereon. Weiser v. Ross, 150–353, 130 N. W. 387.

Where one contracting in his own right has used a trade name in making such contract, he may sue thereon either in his own name or in the name used. Enslow v. Ennis, 155–266, 135 N. W. 1105.

Where the plaintiff sues purely in a representative capacity, he can only recover on showing a cause of action which has accrued to him in that capacity, and not a cause of action in his own right. Van Sickle v. Staub, 155–472, 136 N. W. 546.

A party who is authorized by statute to sue need not be the real party in interest. Reusch v. Loserth, 139 N. W. 454.

Whether or not a third person may enforce a contract made for his benefit does not depend at all upon whether he has furnished the consideration for the agreement. Gould v. Gunn, 140 N. W. 380.

Where a plaintiff sues an assignee of a cause of action and the assignor testifies on the trial and has knowledge of plaintiff's claim as assignee, such assignor is estopped from thereafter making any claim against the assignee. Carpenter v. Modern Woodmen, 142 N. W. 411.

SEC. 3460. Plaintiffs joined.

Several judgment creditors may join as plaintiffs in an action to set aside a fraudulent conveyance. Gamet v. Simmons, 103–163, 72 N. W. 444.

Where the claims of the insured and the person for whose benefit the policy is specified to have been taken have been assigned to another, who sues for the loss, there may be a reformation of the policy without the original parties thereto being made parties to the action. Benesh v. Mill Owners' Mut. F. Ins. Co., 103–465, 72 N. W. 674.

Where all the parties having a like interest join in the bringing of an action, the amount in controversy is the aggregate of the amounts of the claims of the different parties so joining. Comstock v. Eagle Grove, 133–589, 111 N. W. 51.

Members of a voluntary association may join in asking relief as against other members who have been guilty of fraud in representing such association, all persons interested being made parties to the proceeding. Cress v. Ivens, 155–17, 134 N. W. 869.

This provision for the joinder of all parties having an interest in the subject matter of the action or in obtaining the relief demanded was designed to introduce into ordinary actions the rules which formerly obtained in chancery practice with respect to parties plaintiff. Miller v. Hawkeye Gold Dredging Co., 156–557, 137 N. W. 507.

But although claims of different plaintiffs grow out of the same transaction, if they are not interested in the same cause of action they cannot join. Ibid.

To justify joining parties as plaintiffs there must be some community of interest in the principal claim presented for adjudication and some common benefit or advantage in the relief sought. Ibid.

SEC. 3461. Assignment—without prejudice.

The assignment of a chose is without prejudice to any counterclaim, defense or cause of action, whether matured or not, if matured when pleaded, existing in favor of the defendant and against the assignor before notice of the assignment. Hayes v. Clinton County, 118–569, 92 N. W. 860.

Since the adoption of this statutory provision, the assignee is subject not only to defenses, but also to equitable rights of set-off existing in favor of the maker of a note as against the assignor. DeLaval Separator Co. v. Sharpless, 134–28, 111 N. W. 438.

The assignee of a cause of action held by an insolvent bank takes such claim subject to a set-off in favor of the debtor of any deposit he may have in such bank. Little v. Sturgis, 127–298, 103 N. W. 205.

One who takes a negotiable instrument by assignment and not by negotiation in due course takes subject to the defenses available to the maker as against the assignor. Hecker v. Boylan, 126–162, 101 N. W. 755.

In an action by the assignee of a chose in action, the defendant can only interpose such defenses as existed in his favor and against the assignor, before notice of the assignment. Peterson v. Ball, 121–544, 97 N. W. 79.

After the assignment of a judgment the judgment debtor is not entitled to set off as against such assignee a judgment subsequently acquired against the judgment creditor. Miller v. Rosebrook, 136–158, 113 N. W. 771.

An assignment of a right to recover damages on account of injuries is good although the defendant has no notice of such assignment until after the statutory period of limitation has expired. Benson v. Ottumwa, 143–349, 121 N. W. 1065.

The right of action to recover damages for a tort may be sold, transferred or assigned so as to give the assignee the same right of action as that held by the assignor. But the assignor cannot by settlement with the wrongdoer cut off any rights existing as against the assignee with reference to the disposition of the proceeds of the action. Kithcart v. Kithcart, 145–549, 124 N. W. 305.

SEC. 3462. Defendants.

In an action against an insolvent corporation it is not necessary to make the receiver of the corporation a party defendant unless an attempt is made thereby to interfere with the right of the receiver to the property intrusted to his care. State Bank v. McElroy, 106–258, 76 N. W. 715.

The action of the board of a public corporation in issuing bonds cannot be annulled on certiorari where the holders of the bonds have not been made parties. Brockway v. Board of Supervisors, 133–293, 110 N. W. 844.

A contractor to whom bonds have been issued in payment of work is an indispensable party to a suit to restrain the further issuance of bonds to him and the collection of the taxes for the payment thereof. Tod v. Crisman, 123–693, 99 N. W. 686.

The surety is not a necessary party to a cross-petition in which the principal debtor seeks to assert his rights against a third person growing out of the transaction with reference to which he is sued. First National Bank v. Dutcher, 128–413, 104 N. W. 497.

In an action to set aside a conveyance for false representation as to title it is immaterial that a third person appearing to have some interest in the property is not made a party. Weise v. Grove, 123–585, 99 N. W. 191.

It is not error to refuse to permit other parties to be brought in as defendants where there is no controversy presented by the pleadings the determination of which will affect their rights. Burns v. Chicago, Ft. M. & D. M. R. Co., 110–385, 81 N. W. 794.

In an action on a nonnegotiable instrument, brought by a transferee thereof, the defendant, who has therefore the opportunity to make as against the holder any defense which he could make against the original payee, is not entitled to have the payee and assignor of the instrument made a party. Shambaugh v. Current, 111–121, 82 N. W. 497.

Joinder of different parties defendant liable to the plaintiff on different causes of action is not allowable. Iowa Lillooet Gold Mining Co. v. Bliss, 144 Fed. 446.

A misjoinder or uniting of parties who should not be joined cannot be taken advantage of by demurrer, but must be reached by motion. Dolan v. Hubinger, 109–408, 80 N. W. 514.

If such objection is not raised by motion it is deemed waived. Lull v. Anamosa Nat. Bank, 110–537, 81 N. W. 784.

One who has conditionally paid a sum of money which is in controversy to the clerk of the court and has no further interest in its disposition, is not a necessary party to a suit with reference to the disposition of such money. Hubbard v. Ellithorpe, 135–259, 112 N. W. 796.

Where two persons are asserting conflicting claims to property in possession of a third person indifferent in interest as to which shall succeed, such third person should be made a party defendant. Barto v. Harrison, 138–413, 116 N. W. 317.

One who has an interest in the controversy or is a necessary party to its adjudication may be made a defendant. Benjamin v. Iowa City Elec. Light Co., 144–659, 123 N. W. 322.

There is manifest distinction between a case in which, by reason of defect of parties, plaintiff is entitled to no relief whatever and one in which the plaintiff has shown himself to be entitled to relief, but it appears that the relief granted will not be effectual as to persons interested who have not been made parties. In the latter case, the court is not without jurisdiction. Oziah v. Howard, 149–199, 128 N. W. 364.

In an action against an unincorporated association, service on one member is not sufficient to give jurisdiction as to other members of such association. And if the association only is named as defendant, service of notice upon one member thereof is unavailing. Hanley v. Elm Grove Mut. Telephone Co., 150–198, 129 N. W. 807.

An action for attachment, in which no issue is raised as between plaintiff and defendant in regard to the ownership of the attached property, should not be abated on account of failure to bring in as a defendant a third person who may have a claim to such property. Dimsdale v. Tolerton-Warfield Co., 151–425, 131 N. W. 689.

A petition is not subject to demurrer because of defect of parties defendant. Reed v. Hollingsworth, 157–94, 135 N. W. 37.

SEC. 3463. United interest.

Tenants in common when jointly interested in the damages must join in an action for trespass. Anderson v. Acheson, 132–744, 110 N. W. 335.

Nonjoinder of a necessary party plaintiff must be raised in the manner pointed out by statute in order to be available. If the defect is apparent on the face of the petition it can only be raised by demurrer, and if not thus apparent, by answer alleging the facts rendering the joinder of such party necessary. Ibid.

SEC. 3464. One suing for all.

Where in a bank receivership proceeding some of the creditors object to the allowance of preferred claims, other creditors of the same class and in the same right may join in an appeal although not formally made parties in such proceeding. In re First State Bank, 149–662, 129 N. W. 70.

One or more parties plaintiff may sue for others who have the same general interest or who are so numerous as to make it impracticable to bring all of them before the court. Dumont v. Peet, 152–524, 132 N. W. 955.

SEC. 3465. Joint and several obligations.

If plaintiff maintains his action against one of several defendants he may have judgment against that one, and the other defendants may have judgment against plaintiff for costs. Lull v. Anamosa Nat. Bank, 110–537, 81 N. W. 784.

Notwithstanding the provisions of this section, a partnership contract not to engage in a particular business for a specified time, although signed by the members of the firm as individuals, will be binding only on the partnership, and not on the individual members. Streichen v. Fehleisen, 112–612, 84 N. W. 715.

Action against the surety on a liquor seller's bond for civil damages caused by the sale of liquor may be maintained without making the principal a party. Knott v. Peterson, 125–404, 101 N. W. 173.

The maker and the indorser of a note may be joined as defendants in a suit thereon. Swartley v. Oak Leaf Creamery Co., 135–573, 113 N. W. 496.

So in an action to reach the property of a dormant corporation for a corporate debt, officers of the corporation holding its property may be joined with the corporation. Ibid.

In an action against the maker of a promissory note the indorser thereof may be joined as defendant. Darling v. Blazek, 142–355, 120 N. W. 961.

Though the action is instituted against defendants jointly and they join in one answer and a general verdict is rendered against them, a new trial may be granted as to one of such defendants for insufficiency of evidence to justify a verdict as against him. Pearse v. Balm, 152–422, 132 N. W. 821.

The plain purpose of this section is to abolish the common-law rule requiring the joinder in one action of all parties jointly bound, no matter how the obligation arises. Therefore suit may be brought against one or more of several joint executors or administrators. Farmers' Bank v. Wright, (C. C.) 158 Fed. 841.

An action to recover damages for causing the intoxication of a person, to plaintiff's injury, may be maintained against separate sellers who have contributed to such intoxication, or against the sureties on the bonds of such sellers. Kaus v. American Surety Co., (D. C.) 199 Fed. 972.

SEC. 3466. Other parties brought in.

When the determination of a controversy between the parties before the court cannot be made without the presence of other parties, they must be ordered brought in. Farmers' Savings Bank v. Independent School Dist., 122–99, 97 N. W. 988.

A plaintiff may be required to bring in other defendants for the purpose of avoiding a multiplicity of actions against the same party. Stroup v. Bridger, 124–401, 100 N. W. 113.

Failure to bring in indispensable parties may be a sufficient ground for denying relief, although the objection is not raised in the trial court. Tod v. Crisman, 123–693, 99 N. W. 686.

One who is a proper but not a necessary party need not be brought into the litigation, and a failure to bring in such party cannot be complained of. Busse v. Schaefer, 128–319, 103 N. W. 947.

Where a party is necessary to the granting of effective relief he may be brought in, although it is not necessary for the establishment of the cause of action. Rea v. Ferguson, 126–704, 102 N. W. 778.

An action may be maintained against a surety alone without bringing in his principal. Bannister v. McIntire, 112–600, 84 N. W. 707.

In an action to recover real property it is not proper for defendant in a cross-petition setting up adverse possession by reason of occupation to a boundary line different from that recognized by plaintiff, to bring in as codefendants other parties owning adjoining property as to whom the same question may arise. Klinker v. Schmidt, 106–70, 75 N. W. 672.

A mortgagee of personal property, sued by the mortgagor for its conversion, has the right to have subsequent mortgagees brought in. Kohn v. Dravis, 94 Fed. 288.

Where one seeks protection against conflicting claims to the same debt or duty and has an opportunity by having a party brought in, to have the conflicting claim settled in one action at law, he has no right to the equitable remedy entered by bill of interpleader. Hoyt v. Gouge, 125–603, 101 N. W. 464.

A court of equity has the power to order any person to be brought in as a plaintiff who has or claims to have any interest in the controversy. Benjamin v. Iowa City Elec. Light Co., 144–659, 123 N. W. 322.

Where a case may be decided without prejudice to the rights of those who might have been made parties but have not been brought in, it is not error to enter a decree in their absence. Duetzmann v. Kuntze, 147–158, 125 N. W. 1007.

The rule as to necessary parties, requiring that all parties whose interests are involved in the matter be brought in, has application only to proceedings in equity where the plaintiff is asking some relief to which he is not entitled, unless he can make the decree binding on those who are to be affected by it. Searles v. Northwestern Mut. Life Ins. Co., 148–65, 126 N. W. 801.

The remedy for the failure to bring in the necessary parties is not by pleading by way of abatement but by motion asking the court to bring in such parties. Ibid.

Even in equity cases the impossibility of bringing in the necessary parties is a reason for not doing so. Ibid.

The absence of defendants who might have been made parties does not deprive the court of jurisdiction over the subject matter and the parties before it. Stewart v. Hall, 150–744, 130 N. W. 993.

This provision is specially applicable to cases where the debtor is under an apparent liability to two different parties for the same debt and only one of them is before the court. Kauffman v. Phillips, 154–542, 134 N. W. 575.

But the defendant thus brought in cannot by cross-petition against the plaintiff set up a cause of action of his own, independent of the claim which renders his presence in the case necessary to the adjudication of the plaintiff's right. Ibid.

SEC. 3467. Suit on public bond.

Anyone who has sustained an injury may sue on such bond as the real party in interest. Home Sav. & T. Co. v. District Court, 121–1, 95 N. W. 522.

An action on a bond may be maintained in the name of any person intended to be secured thereby. Hipwell v. National Surety Co., 130–656, 105 N. W. 318.

Where a bond was executed to the chief financial officer of a life insurance association for the security of the funds of the association deposited by him in a bank and before action on the bond was brought he had ceased to be such officer, held that he was not a party entitled to maintain an action on such bond. Bort v. McCutchen, 147 Fed. 626.

SEC. 3468. Partnership.

The creditor of a partnership may bring an action against members of the partnership individually to charge them with a partnership debt without joining the firm, but to maintain such action the plaintiff must show that the alleged indebtedness existed. In such a case it would be a complete defense to show that as between plaintiff and the alleged members of the firm the indebtedness had been finally adjudicated not to exist. Baxter v. Rollins, 110–310, 81 N. W. 586.

In an action brought against a partnership it is not proper to render judgment against a member of the firm for an individual liability. Ogle v. Miller, 128–474, 104 N. W. 502.

A judgment against a partnership as such is a judgment against the firm and nothing more, and no judgment can be entered against an individual member except as he has been made a party defendant and served with notice. Anderson v. Wilson, 142–158, 120 N. W. 677.

The plaintiff may prosecute his case to judgment against the partnership alone, or against the partnership and any member thereof, and may enforce his judgment against such defendants without waiting to obtain jurisdiction over other members and without losing his right to proceed in a new action on the original cause against members not made parties; and his execution can be no broader than his judgment nor can it run against any other property than that of the judgment defendant. If he desires an execution against the property of any individual member, he must first obtain a judgment in some manner against the owner of such property. Ibid.

Where the defendant takes the position that the claim sued upon in a partnership name in fact belongs to an individual, doing business under such partnership name, he cannot afterwards object that judgment is rendered in favor of such individual. Hartkemeyer v. Griffith, 142–694, 121 N. W. 372.

If the plaintiff chooses to take his judgment against the partnership alone, a judgment against the partnership is all that he has; and his execution can be no broader than his judgment, nor can it run without some special order against any other property than that of the partnership. If he desires an execution against the property of an individual member, he must first obtain a judgment in some manner against such member. Lansing v. Bever Land Co., 157– —, 138 N. W. 833.

Under this provision, action may be brought by or against a partnership, as such, or against all or either of the individual members, or against it and all or any of its members. Bruett v. Austin Drainage Excavator Co., (C. C.) 174 Fed 668.

SEC. 3475. Actions by state.

This provision has no relation to actions by a county or other municipal corporation, and an appeal in an action in which judgment is rendered against a county will not suspend the judgment unless a supersedeas bond is filed. Harrison v. Stebbins, 104–462, 73 N. W. 1034.

SEC. 3476. Transfer—abatement.

Where a cause of action is transferred by assignment there is no occasion for dismissing the action, nor is the assignee entitled to intervene. His proper relief, if any, is to have himself substituted as plaintiff. Bank of Commerce v. Timbrell, 113–713, 84 N. W. 519.

An assignment of a cause of action after suit thereon has been instituted is not a ground for abating the action or for requiring the substitution of assignee as the party plaintiff. Mayo v. Halley, 124–675, 100 N. W. 529; Emerson v. Miller, 115–315, 88 N. W. 803; Kringle v. Rhomberg, 120–472, 94 N. W. 1115; Citizens' State Bank v. Jess, 127–450, 103 N. W. 471.

A substituted party takes up the prosecution or defense of the case at the point where the original party left it, assuming the burdens as well as receiving the benefits of the action of his predecessor. Crary v. Kurtz, 132–105, 105 N. W. 590, 109 N. W. 452.

A pending action is not abated by the discharge of the plaintiff in a bankruptcy proceeding subsequently instituted. Wilsey v. Jewett, 122–315, 98 N. W. 114.

After loss a policy of fire insurance may be assigned and if the assignment be after action brought, the suit may be continued in the name of the assignee. Bartling v. German Mut. L. & T. Ins. Co., 154–335, 134 N. W. 864.

One who acquires, by execution sale, the rights of a judgment plaintiff may ask to be substituted as plaintiff, pending an appeal; but the defendant cannot on account of such transfer of interest have the action abated. Markley v. Western Union Tel. Co., 141 N. W. 443.

SEC. 3477-a. Recovery by woman or her estate for personal injury—maximum. When any woman receives an injury caused by the negligence or wrongful act of any person, firm or corporation, including a municipal corporation, she may recover for loss of time, medical attendance and other expenses incurred as a result thereof in addition to any elements of damages recoverable by common law; and if such injury result in causing death, her administrator may sue and recover for her estate, the value of her services as a wife or mother or both in such sum as the jury may deem proportionate to the injury resulting in her death, in addition to such damages as are recoverable by common law; also loss of services and expenses incurred before death, if not previously recovered, and in such case of injury arising from wilful, gross, or wanton negligence, punitive damages may be allowed by the jury in addition to other damages herein provided, but in no event shall the amount exceed the sum of six thousand dollars. [34 G. A., ch. 163, § 1.]

SEC. 3480. Actions by minors.

A court acquires jurisdiction in an action brought by a minor in his own name and not by guardian or next friend and though its judgment may be erroneous because the action is not properly brought it is not void. Parkins v. Alexander, 105–74, 74 N. W. 769.

Therefore, where in an action brought by a minor in his own name before a justice of the peace judgment was rendered for the plaintiff and defendant appealed to the district court, held that the latter court had jurisdiction to allow the substitution of a next friend as plaintiff and proceed with the case. Ibid.

An action in favor of a minor should be brought by his guardian or next friend, but as the minor is the real party in interest, the court is not without jurisdiction if the action is brought by the minor in his own right. First Nat. Bank v. Casey, 138 N. W. 897.

SEC. 3482. Defense by minor.

A judgment against an infant without defense by a guardian is clearly erroneous, and such error may be made the ground for granting a new trial under the provisions of code § 4091. Wise v. Schloesser, 111–16, 82 N. W. 439.

A judgment rendered against a minor without appointment of or defense by a guardian is not void, but at most irregular. Reints v. Engle, 130–726, 107 N. W. 947.

The fact that a guardian ad litem appears for a minor does not render it imperative that such guardian represent the minor on appeal. The court may appoint a general guardian and authorize him to prosecute the appeal for such minor. In re Estate of Strang, 131–583, 106 N. W. 631.

An appointment of a guardian ad litem before the court has acquired jurisdiction of the minor is not invalid. Rice v. Bolton, 126–654, 100 N. W. 634, 102 N. W. 509.

The appointment of such a guardian is not in itself a jurisdictional matter. Ibid.

The entry of judgment without such appointment in the absence of an appearance is not void, but an irregularity only. Ibid.

The appointment of a guardian ad litem for a minor defendant will ordinarily be made upon the motion of either party, and it is to be presumed that the court appoints a proper person for such purpose. The fact that the guardian appointed does not make active defense is not in itself evidence of fraud. Harris v. Bigley, 136–307, 111 N. W. 432.

The entry of judgment against a minor without defense by guardian is reversible error. State v. Stark, 149–749, 129 N. W. 331.

The presence, during the trial, of the parent who has not been appointed guardian of the minor's property is not sufficient. Ibid.

Where a guardian ad litem files an answer for the minor, the court has jurisdiction over the person of the minor and over the subject matter and its judgment, though erroneous, is not subject to collateral attack. Ringstad v. Hanson, 150–324, 130 N. W. 145.

The fact that the defense of a minor defendant is not made by guardian does not deprive the court of jurisdiction to render judgment, although a judgment without such defense is erroneous. First Nat. Bank v. Casey, 138 N. W. 897.

SEC. 3485. Defense of insane person—appointment of guardian.

Where the insanity of a defendant is not called to the attention of the court and a judgment is rendered against him by default, no guardian ad litem being appointed nor defense made, the judgment may be set aside on petition, under the provisions of code § 4091, relating to new trial after the expiration of the term at which the judgment is rendered. Hawley v. Griffin, 121–667, 92 N. W. 113, 97 N. W. 86.

A decree against a defendant who is in fact insane may be vacated and a new trial ordered, where no guardian ad litem was appointed to defend, although the fact of insanity was not made to appear of record in the proceeding. Ibid.

Where plaintiff in an action against an insane defendant is unsuccessful, compensation for the services of the guardian ad litem appointed by the court should be taxed against him as costs. Burkhardt v. Burkhardt, 107–369, 77 N. W. 1069.

In a proceeding by the guardian for the sale of the ward's property in which a guardian ad litem has been appointed for the ward, the guardian ad litem should plead whatever might defeat the action of the guardian. In re Guardianship of Kimble, 127–665, 103 N. W. 1009.

In an action against an insane person represented by a guardian, a personal judgment may be rendered enforceable against the property of such insane person. Gressly v. Hamilton County, 136–722, 114 N. W. 191.

SEC. 3487. Interpleader.

Although an interpleader is expressly recognized only in actions of replevin, the general statutory provision that a plaintiff may prosecute his action by equitable proceedings in all cases where courts of equity before the adoption of the code had jurisdiction (code § 3427), still authorizes the action of interpleader as previously recognized in equity. Hoyt v. Gouge, 125–603, 101 N. W. 464.

CHAPTER 4.

OF PLACE OF BRINGING ACTION.

SECTION 3491. In relation to real property.

Where the court acquires jurisdiction by virtue of the location of the real property, one who is made defendant in the action and seeks to establish his title is not entitled to have the venue changed to the county of his residence. Booth v. Bradford, 114–562, 87 N. W. 685.

An action for specific performance is transitory, unless made local by statute, and may be brought in the court having jurisdiction of the property, or in one having jurisdiction of the person only, at the option of the plaintiff. Epperly v. Ferguson, 118–47, 91 N. W. 816.

An action for specific performance is contract to convey land may be brought and prosecuted in the county where the land is situated, and the defendant is not entitled to have the venue changed to the county of his residence. Bradford v. Smith, 123–41, 98 N. W. 377.

An action for the specific performance of a contract for the sale of land and to quiet title thereto may properly be brought in the county where the land is situated. Donaldson v. Smith, 122–388, 98 N. W. 138.

A suit to set aside a deed and declare the property that of another than the grantee therein should be brought in the county where the real estate or some part of it is situated. Long v. Garey Inv. Co., 135–398, 112 N. W. 550.

A court having jurisdiction of an action by an administrator regarding lands in more than one county, may, on dismissal as to the lands located in the county where the action is brought, retain jurisdiction to grant relief as to the lands in another county. Ibid.

SEC. 3493. To foreclose mortgage or mechanic's lien.

Although this section requires that an action for the foreclosure of a mortgage on real property shall be brought in the county in which the property to be affected is situated, nevertheless the objection that an action to foreclose is brought in another county from that in which the property is situated is not jurisdictional, and if the defendant does not move for a transfer of the action to the proper county, he cannot afterwards urge such objection. McDonald v. Second Nat. Bank, 106–517, 76 N. W. 1011.

The statute confers on the defendant a right to insist upon a foreclosure suit being tried in the county in which the subject matter is situated, but this right may be waived by defendant. Ibid.

In an action to foreclose a mortgage, properly brought in the county in which the mortgaged property is situated, one who is on cross-petition of the defendant made a party to the suit is not entitled to have the venue changed to the county of his residence. Such cross-petition and the proceedings thereunder do not constitute a separate action. Brown v. Holden, 120–191, 94 N. W. 482.

SEC. 3494. Local actions. Actions for the following causes must be brought in the county where the cause, or some part thereof, arose:

1. For fines, penalties or forfeitures. Those for the recovery of a fine, penalty or forfeiture imposed by a statute; but when the offense for which the claim is made was committed on a watercourse or road which is the boundary of two counties, the action may be brought in either of them;

2. Against public officers. Those against a public officer or person specially appointed to execute his duties, for an act done by him in virtue or under color of his office, or against one who by his command or in his aid shall do anything touching the duties of such officer, or for neglect of official duty;

3. On official bonds. Those on the official bond of a public officer;

4. Executor, administrator or guardian. Those on the bond of an executor, administrator, or guardian may be brought in the county in which the appointment was made and such bond filed;

5. Actions on other bonds. And actions on all other bonds provided for or authorized by law may be brought in the county in which such bond was filed and approved. [31 G. A., ch. 153; 27 G. A., ch. 99, § 1; C. '73, § 2579; R. § 2796.]

SEC. 3496. Place of contract.

To authorize suit against defendant in a county other than that of his residence on the ground that the contract on which he is sued provides for performance at a particular place, the provisions must be express and not merely by implication. Baily v. Birkhofer, 123–59, 98 N. W. 594.

To authorize action on a contract to be brought against a nonresident of the county on the ground that performance in the county is provided for, it must appear in terms from the agreement that there was to be a performance in such county; otherwise an application for change of venue should be granted. Moyers v. Council Bluffs Nursery Co., 125–672, 101 N. W. 508.

If the jurisdiction of the court depends on the fact that the contract sued upon is payable at a particular place, it is competent in a collateral attack upon the judgment to show that as a matter of fact the contract did not so provide. Cooley v. Barker, 122–440, 98 N. W. 289.

A bond for the payment of damages which shall be sustained by failure to perform a decree which may be subsequently rendered is not a contract to be performed at any particular place. Prader v. National Masonic Accident Assn., 107–431, 78 N. W. 60.

A blank left for the purpose in a note may be filled in by the payee so as to authorize suit to be brought in a particular county thus designated. Johnston v. Hoover, 139–143, 117 N. W. 277.

Where a resident of one county contracted with a resident of another for the purchase of property to be paid for on delivery in money or by giving an approved note payable in the county of the residence of the seller, held that there was no contract for performance in a particular place. Wayt v. Meighen, 147–26, 125 N. W. 802.

If in an action properly brought in a county other than defendant's residence in the state, a cause of action is joined on which suit can only be maintained in the county of defendant's residence, the latter cause of action may properly be stricken out on motion. First Nat. Bank v. Shriver, 152–504, 132 N. W. 848.

If the action is on an implied contract, this statutory provision has no application, and if it is upon a written contract or agreement to pay or perform at a given place, it must be express in order to give a court at that place jurisdiction in an action against the resident of another county. Wixom v. Hoar, 139 N. W. 890.

SEC. 3497. Against common carriers. An action may be brought against any railway corporation, the owner of stages, or other line of coaches or cars, express, canal, steamboat and other river crafts, telegraph and telephone companies, and the lessees, companies or persons operating the same, in any county through which such road or line passes or is operated. [29 G. A., ch. 138, § 1; C. '73, § 2582.]

A railroad company is suable in any county through which its road passes and may be sued in the superior court of a city in such county; but if not a resident of the city, it is entitled to change the venue to the district court under code § 261. Wiar v. Wabash R. Co., 151–121, 130 N. W. 794.

SEC. 3498. Against construction companies.

The statutory provision as to venue of actions against persons engaged in the construction of railways does not authorize a suit against a subcontractor on an oral contract for grain purchased by him to feed his team in a county other than that of his residence. Wilkinson v. McCarthy, 127–292, 103 N. W. 136.

SEC. 3499. Against insurance companies.

These provisions as to place of bringing suit on a policy of insurance are applicable, although as an incident to the relief sought the court is asked to reform the terms of the policy. Benesh v. Mill Owners' Mut. F. Ins. Co., 103–465, 72 N. W. 674.

An insurance company may be sued where the contract of insurance is made. Teller v. Equitable Mut. L. Assn., 108–17, 78 N. W. 674.

The statutory provision that an action for breach of contract of insurance may be brought in the county in which the contract was made is not to be confined in its application to actions for losses under policies of insurance, but it applies also to actions relating to the consideration for a policy. Cameron v. Mutual Life & Trust Co., 121–477, 96 N. W. 961.

Where one company undertakes to carry out the contracts of another, it is subject to suit under such contracts wherever the company entering into such contracts might have been sued. Petite v. Atlas Ins. Co., 142–265, 120 N. W. 642.

An action on an accident insurance policy may be brought in the county where the loss occurs, and application to transfer it to the county of the company's main office cannot be sustained. Jenkins v. Hawkeye Com. Men's Assn., 147–113, 124 N. W. 199.

When a mutual company consents to the removal of property covered by its policy to another county and receives premiums on the policy after such removal, the action may properly be brought and maintained in the county where the loss occurs. Kesler v. Farmers' Mut. F. & L. Ins. Assn., 141 N. W. 954.

SEC. 3499-a. Against operators of coal mines brought in county where mine is located. An action may be brought against any corporation, company, or person, owning, leasing, operating, or maintaining a coal mine, in the county where said mine is located, on any contract, or for any tort, in any manner connected with or growing out of the construction, use, or operation of said mine. [28 G. A., ch. 121, § 1.]

SEC. 3500. Office or agency.

This section does not require that the office or agency be permanent rather than transient nor that the business carried on be a considerable share of that done by the principal. Locke v. Chicago Chronicle Co., 107–390, 78 N. W. 49.

The fact that the person served with notice was at the time representing the defendant company as secretary in the making of a contract and in determining the manner of execution thereof, held sufficient to show an agency such as to authorize the bringing of an action on a contract thus made within the county of such agency. Thistle Coal Co. v. Rex Coal & Mining Co., 132–592, 109 N. W. 1094.

Under this section, held that where a resident of one county sent an agent into another county to sell and contract for the delivery of fruit trees, and subsequently sent the same agent with the trees to that county for delivery, in accordance with the terms of the contract, an action relating to the contract could be brought against him in that county. Wood v. Rice, 118–104, 91 N. W. 902; Goodrich v. Fogarty, 130–223, 106 N. W. 616.

A suit for commission in connection with the sale of real property may be brought in the county in which the agent acts in negotiating such sale. Gilbert v. McCullough, 140–362, 118 N. W. 511.

A steamship company having established an agency in a city for the sale of tickets, an action for breach of the contract of transportation arising out of the sale of a ticket by such agency may be brought within the county. Zabron v. Cunard Steamship Co., 151–345, 131 N. W. 18.

This section is not confined in its application to actions upon contracts alone. Donisthorpe v. Lutz, 155–379, 136 N. W. 233.

Where, as a ground for motion for change of venue, it is contended that the cause of action did not grow out of the business of the office or agency in the county, the question thus raised is to be determined by affidavits and counter affidavits. Ibid.

SEC. 3500-a. Against surety companies. Suit may be brought against any company or corporation furnishing or pretending to furnish surety, fidelity, or other bonds in this state, in any county in which the principal place of business of such company or corporation is maintained in this state, or in any county wherein is maintained its general office for the transaction of its Iowa business, or in the county where the principal resides at the time of bringing suit, or in the county where the principal did reside at the time the bond or other undertaking was executed; and in the case of bonds furnished by any such company or corporation for any building or improvement, either public or private, action may be brought in the county wherein said building or improvement, or any part thereof is located. [34 G. A., ch. 164, § 1.]

SEC. 3501. Place of residence.

Except as otherwise specified, personal actions are to be brought in the county where the defendants or some of them, if more than one, actually reside. Wilkinson v. McCarthy, 127–292, 103 N. W. 136.

It is not error to overrule a motion to tax the costs to the plaintiff on the ground that defendants are sued in the wrong county, if it appears that one of them was in fact a resident of the county of trial. Prewitt v. Wilson, 128–198, 103 N. W. 365.

The statute exacts service on residents of the state in the counties of their actual residence. Des Moines Sav. Bank v. Kennedy, 142–272, 120 N. W. 742.

Without his waiver or consent, the maker of a promissory note cannot be drawn from the county of his residence to that of the residence of the indorser to defend an action on the note; but the indorser may be so drawn to the county of the maker where the latter is a resident of the state. Darling v. Blazek, 142–355, 120 N. W. 961.

The general rule is that all personal actions must be brought in the county where the defendant actually resides, if he is a resident of the state, with an exception as to action upon a written contract to be performed in a county other than that of the defendant's residence. If, with an action properly brought in a county other than that of the defendant's residence, a cause of action is joined which cannot properly be sued on in such county, the latter cause of action may be stricken out on motion. First Nat. Bank v. Shriver, 152–504, 132 N. W. 848.

An action cannot be brought in a county other than that of defendant's residence except it be upon a written contract which expressly provides that it is to be performed at some other place. Wixom v. Hoar, 139 N. W. 890.

SEC. 3502. Residents of different counties.

While a dismissal of the action as to resident defendants entitles nonresident defendants to dismissal as to them, such nonresidents must ask relief by motion, otherwise they will be bound by the adjudication. Brown v. Iowa Legion of Honor, 107–439, 78 N. W. 73.

Where the case has not been disposed of as against the resident defendant prior to the return of the verdict against the nonresident, the latter is not entitled to have the action dismissed as against himself on the ground that no relief is granted as against the resident defendant. Lyon v. Barnes, 133–717, 111 N. W. 9.

If the action is dismissed as to those who are residents of the county, or judgment is rendered in their favor, a nonresident defendant is entitled to have the cause dismissed also as to him. Woodling v. Mitchell, 127–262, 103 N. W. 115.

Before one claiming to be a nonresident defendant can avail himself of the provisions of this section he must show the fact of nonresidence. Constantine v. Rowland, 147–142, 124 N. W. 189.

SEC. 3504. Change when brought in wrong county.

By answering after the overruling of an application for a change of place of trial the applicant does not waive error in overruling such motion. Foss v. Cobler, 105–728, 75 N. W. 516.

Where administration is granted in a county other than that of the residence of deceased at the time of his death, it is void. In such case motion for a change of venue is not necessary. In re King's Estate, 105–320, 75 N. W. 187.

If an action to foreclose a mortgage is brought in a county where no part of the mortgaged property is situated, it may on motion be changed to the proper county, but failure to ask for the change will be a waiver of the objection. The court is not without jurisdiction in such case. McDonald v. Second Nat. Bank, 106–517, 76 N. W. 1011.

This provision as to transfer of the case to the proper county has no application where suit is brought in one county to enjoin the enforcement of a judgment rendered in another county in violation of the provisions of code § 4364. Hawkeye Ins. Co. v. Huston, 115–621, 89 N. W. 29.

The defendant sued in the wrong county who procures a change of venue to the proper county is not entitled to recover personal expenses and attorney's fees in defending the case. The allowance is largely discretionary with the court. Moyers v. Council Bluffs Nursery Co., 132–98, 107 N. W. 924.

The party desiring a change of venue is entitled to compensation for attorney in preparing application for change and affidavits in support thereof, but he is not entitled to the expense of his attorney in traveling to the place of holding court if the motion is not resisted and he has no reason to believe that it will be resisted. Athey v. Slife, 137–173, 114 N. W. 915.

Where, in an action brought in a county other than that of the defendant's residence in the state, two causes of action are joined, one of which cannot properly be maintained in that court, the remedy is not by moving to change the venue of the action to the county of defendant's residence, but by striking out the cause of action improperly joined. First Nat. Bank v. Shriver, 152–504, 132 N. W. 848.

These provisions as to change of venue have no application to a proceeding for the appointment of a guardian. If the court finds that the person for whom guardianship is asked is not a resident of the county, the proceedings should be dismissed. Holly v. Holly, 157– —, 138 N. W. 445.

SEC. 3504-a. Against municipal corporations. Actions against municipal corporations, including cities organized under special charter, in all counties where terms of the district court are held in more than one place must be brought in the county and at the place where terms of the district court are held nearest to where the cause or subject of the action originated. [32 G. A., ch. 162.]

CHAPTER 5.

OF CHANGE OF PLACE OF TRIAL.

SECTION 3505. Grounds for. A change of the place of trial in any civil action may be had in any of the following cases:

1. County a party. Where the county in which the action is pending is a party thereto, if the motion is made by the party adversely interested, and the issue be triable by jury;

2. Judge a party or interested. Where the judge is a party, or is directly interested in the action, or is connected by blood or affinity with any person so interested nearer than the fourth degree;

3. Prejudice or local influence. Where either party files an affidavit, verified by himself and three disinterested persons not related to the party making the motion nearer than the fourth degree, nor standing in the relation of servant, agent or employe of such party, stating that the inhabitants of the county or the judge is so prejudiced against him, or that the adverse party or his attorney has such an undue influence over the inhabitants of the county, that he cannot obtain a fair trial; and when either party files such an affidavit the other party shall have a reasonable time in which to prepare and file counter affidavits, and the court or judge, in its discretion, may cause the affiants upon either side to be brought into court for examination upon the matters contained in their affidavits, and, when fully advised, shall allow or refuse the change according to the very right and merits of the matter;

4. Agreement. By the written agreement of the parties;

5. Jury not obtainable. If the issue is one triable by a jury, and it is made apparent to the court or judge that a jury cannot be obtained in the county where the action is pending, then, upon the application of either party, a change of place of trial shall be granted to the nearest county in which a jury can be obtained.

6. Fraud in the inception of written contract. In an action brought on a written contract in the county where the contract by its express terms is to be performed, in which a defendant to said action, residing in a different county in the state, has filed a sworn answer alleging fraud in the inception of the contract constituting a complete defense thereto, such defendant, upon application and the filing of a sufficient bond, may have such action transferred to the district court of the county of his residence. If upon the trial of the action judgment is rendered against the defendant, it shall include the reasonable expenses incurred by the plaintiff and his attorney, on account of change of place of trial, as part of the costs. The bond above referred to shall be with sureties to be approved by the clerk, in an amount to be fixed by the court or judge in vacation for the payment of all costs which may accrue in the action in the court in which it is brought, or in any other to which it may be carried, either to the plaintiff or to the officers of the court.

Not more than two such changes to either party shall be allowed for any of the causes enumerated in this section; nor shall a change be allowed in case of appeal from a justice of the peace; nor, when the issues can only be tried to the court, for any objection to the inhabitants of the county, or for the objection that the adverse party or his attorney has such an undue influence over the inhabitants thereof that he cannot obtain a fair trial. After a change of place of trial has been taken and a trial had, and the jury discharged or a new trial granted, a subsequent change may be taken for any of the causes mentioned in this section. [33 G. A., ch. 202, § 1.] [20 G. A., ch. 94; 17 G. A., ch. 118; C. '73, § 2590; R. § 2803; C. '51, § 1706.]

Par. 1. County a party: In an action against the county, the plaintiff has the right to change of venue to another county, and if he does not elect to have a change, he cannot challenge the jurors on the ground that they are taxpayers of the county. Wilson v. Wapello County, 129–77, 105 N. W. 363.

Par. 3. Prejudice: The judge is warranted in considering matters which are of his own knowledge and conviction in the disposition of a motion, and the denial of the change for prejudice of the judge will not be disturbed on appeal where the circumstances indicate that the denial was in the exercise of a reasonable discretion. Petty v. Hayden, 115–212, 88 N. W. 339.

Where the showing is of prejudice in the portion of the county where the transaction involved took place, it is not sufficient. State v. Moats, 108–13, 78 N. W. 701.

Where change of place of trial was asked on account of prejudice in the community arising from previous trials of another case involving the same facts, held that it could not be presumed that the verdicts rendered in the other cases were not the result of a fair consideration of the facts by the jury, and that they indicated passion and prejudice in the community against the defendant in that case, who was the same defendant as in the case in which the application for change was made. Croft v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co., 134–411, 109 N. W. 723.

The showing in a particular case held not sufficient to require change of venue on account of prejudice likely to have been created by newspaper publications. Alverson v. Anchor Mut. F. Ins. Co., 105–60, 74 N. W. 746.

In general: This section relates to civil actions, and not to special proceedings. Union Bldg. & Sav. Assn. v. Soderquist, 115–695, 87 N. W. 433.

The granting or refusing of an application for change of venue is a matter largely within the discretion of the court to which the motion is addressed, and when a showing is made which is regular in form and prima facie sufficient, the ruling of the trial court sustaining it is rarely, if ever, reversed on appeal. The correctness of the ruling of the trial court is not to be determined by comparative count of affidavits. Faivre v. Manderscheid, 117–724, 90 N. W. 76.

Where a party, as a condition to having a default against him set aside, agreed to a trial of the case without change of venue, held that it was not necessarily beyond the power of the court, after one trial had been had and prejudice and passion had become apparent, to grant a change of venue to another county. Doyle v. Burns, 138–439, 114 N. W. 1.

SEC. 3507. To what county or court. If the application for a change is granted for any cause except on account of the prejudice or disability of the judge, or under subdivision six of the first section of this chapter, the cause shall be sent to the nearest or most convenient county in the district, unless objections supported by affidavit are made to each county in the district, in which case to the nearest or most convenient county in another district. If the objections are to the judge, the cause shall not be tried by him, but retained on the docket and tried as provided in the chapter relating to the district court. [33 G. A., ch. 202, § 2.] [C. '73, § 2592; R. § 2805; C. '51, § 1707.]

SEC. 3509. When change perfected.

The making and transmission of the transcript is not the act, or one of the acts, which is necessary to perfect a change of venue. If the clerk gives a defective transcript it may be perfected within a reasonable time. Faivre v. Manderscheid, 117–724, 90 N. W. 76.

When the papers transmitted are received into the official custody of the clerk of the court to which the change is granted, and the case is entered upon the docket of that court, the court acquires jurisdiction, and an omission of the clerk to properly note such filing can be cured by order of court. Ibid.

SEC. 3511. Costs of change. Unless the change is granted under subdivisions two, four, five or six of the first section of this chapter, all costs caused thereby or that are rendered useless by reason thereof, shall be paid by the applicant, and the court or judge, at the time of making the order, shall designate in general terms such costs, and no change shall be held perfected until the same are paid. [33 G. A., ch. 202, § 3.] [C. '73, § 2596; R. § 2809; C. '51, § 1712.]

The court having failed to designate or point out the costs to be paid as a condition for granting the change of venue, it must be assumed that there were no costs which the party was required to pay. Faivre v. Manderscheid, 117–724, 90 N. W. 76.

Failure to comply with conditions imposed by the court which it has a right to impose, constitutes a waiver of the right to transfer. Iowa Loan Co. v. Wilson, 145–381, 124 N. W. 201.

CHAPTER 6.

OF THE MANNER OF COMMENCING ACTIONS.

SECTION 3514. Original notice.

Commencement of action: The commencement of the action with regard to special statutory limitations is to be dated from the placing of the notice in the hands of the sheriff for service, the same rule being applicable as in case of the general statute of limitations under the provisions of code § 3450. Smith v. Callanan, 103–218, 72 N. W. 513.

The provision of this section is to be applied in determining whether an equitable action to redeem the lands of a minor or insane person within one year after the termination of the disability has been brought within proper time, and also in determining whether a proceeding by petition to set aside a judgment against a minor or insane person, not represented by guardian, has been commenced within one year, as required by code § 4094. The provision in the general statute of limitations (code § 3450), that an action shall be deemed commenced when the notice is placed in the hands of the sheriff for service, has no application in such cases. (Distinguishing Smith v. Callanan, 103–318.) Hawley v. Griffin, 121–667, 92 N. W. 113, 97 N. W. 86.

Under code § 3450 the placing of an original notice in the hands of the sheriff for service is a sufficient commencement of the action under the statute of limitations, but the intention that the notice shall be served must be continuous, and if the sheriff returns the notice as unserved, and two terms of court are allowed to elapse without further attempt to have service made, the action is to be deemed abandoned. Richardson v. Turner, 110–318, 81 N. W. 593.

Service of notice by publication is completed in such sense that the action has been begun when the last publication provided for has been made. Littlejohn v. Bulles, 136–150, 113 N. W. 756; Keller v. Harrison, 139–383, 116 N. W. 327.

In an attachment proceeding in which service is had by publication the action, so far as it subjects the property to the payment of the debt, is to be deemed commenced when the petition is filed and the property is levied upon. Slater v. Roche, 148–413, 126 N. W. 925.

Service of notice is the commencement of the action for the purpose of determining the jurisdiction of the court to appoint a receiver therein. Paine v. Mueller, 150–340, 130 N. W. 133.

Except for the purpose of avoiding a plea of the statute of limitations (see code § 3450), an action is not begun by delivering a notice to the sheriff, but by service of notice being actually obtained. Boone v. Boone, 137 N. W. 1059, 141 N. W. 938.

An action is begun by service of notice actually obtained. Wray v. Wray, 140 N. W. 414.

Where action by a partnership has been commenced in the original names of the members and notice of such action has been served, the right of defendant, a citizen of another state, to remove the case to the federal court has become complete and cannot be defeated by amending the petition so as to show the action to be by the partnership only. Bruett v. Austin Drainage Excavator Co., (C. C.) 174 Fed. 668.

Jurisdiction: The general provision is for obtaining jurisdiction by a personal service. Provisions as to jurisdiction on notice by publication are exceptional. Bisby v. Mould, 138–15, 115 N. W. 489.

Personal service outside the state is not sufficient to give the court jurisdiction in personam. Raher v. Raher, 150–511, 129 N. W. 494.

Sufficiency: The time fixed by statute as to notice, filing of pleadings, etc., is to enable the parties to prepare for trial; but by consent of parties the court may have jurisdiction to try the case at the term at which the petition is filed, although proper notice of the filing of the petition has not been given. Rummel v. Dealy, 112–503, 84 N. W. 526.

A notice of a cause of action against two persons for goods sold and delivered to them will sustain a prosecution of action against one of them for goods sold and delivered to him alone. Padden v. Clark, 124–94, 99 N. W. 152.

In an action to foreclose a mortgage it is not necessary to describe the land covered by the mortgage, and therefore a misdescription in the notice of the land covered by the mortgage will not render the notice void so that the court is without jurisdiction to determine the sufficiency of the notice and to render a valid judgment. Fleming v. Hager, 121–205, 96 N. W. 752.

As to the signing of the notice, no more is required than that the name of the plaintiff or that of his attorney be attached to the notice by any of the known methods of impressing the name on paper, whether by writing, printing or lithographing, providing it is done with the intention of signing, or be adopted in issuing the original notice for service. Cummings v. Landes, 140–80, 117 N. W. 22.

The notice is required to designate the time and place for appearance of the persons served and this requirement is mandatory. Ibid.

It is not necessary that the notice state in detail the nature of the cause of action as specifically as might be required in the petition, but it must be specific enough to permit the defendant to understand the cause or causes upon which plaintiff expects to take judgment, and it should not be so constructed as to deceive an ordinarily cautious defendant and secure the entry to his prejudice of a judgment or order, of the purpose to ask which the notice gives him no warning. The defendant has the right to assume that the notice has been drawn and framed in good faith. Blain v. Dean, 142 N. W. 418.

As to the sufficiency of the original notice in an action to quiet title, see notes to § 4224 in this supplement.

SEC. 3515. Dismissal for failure to file petition.

Statutes with reference to time for filing pleadings not in express terms made mandatory are generally regarded as directory only. Edwards Loan Co. v. Skinner, 127–112, 102 N. W. 828.

Where the petition is not filed by the time fixed therefor in the original notice the defendant is entitled to have the case dismissed. Conley v. Dugan, 105–205, 74 N. W. 774.

This statutory provision does not require the dismissal of the action on the ground that the petition is not signed by the plaintiff or his attorney. First National Bank v. Stone, 122–558, 98 N. W. 362.

SEC. 3517. How long before term.

Where notice is served on a party outside of the state, within less than twenty days before the term at which judgment is entered against him, such judgment is at least premature and should be set aside. Streeter v. Gleason, 120–703, 95 N. W. 242.

SEC. 3518. Method of service.

A judgment entered on substituted service is valid. Hass v. Leverton, 128–79, 102 N. W. 811.

The holding in Fanning v. Krapfl, 61–417, that whoever undertakes to give notice by publication and misnames the defendant is without excuse and the notice will not confer jurisdiction, is equally pertinent to a case of substituted service Thornily v. Prentice, 121–89, 96 N. W. 728.

In an action against a married woman the original notice may be served by leaving a copy with her husband at his place of residence in case the wife is not found within the county, although she may have temporarily abandoned him and is not actually residing with him at the time. Galvin v. Dailey, 109–332, 80 N. W. 420.

Anyone upon whom service may be made may acknowledge such service; and thus service upon a municipal corporation being authorized to be made by service on the mayor or clerk, an acknowledgment of the service by mayor or clerk is binding on the corporation. McCartney v. Washington, 124–382, 100 N. W. 80.

While it may be that the parent or guardian can acknowledge service of notice in behalf of a minor, such acknowledgment in his own behalf, he being a party to the suit, does not constitute an acknowledgment in behalf of the minor such as to render the service effectual on such minor. Cummings v. Landes, 140–80, 117 N. W. 22.

To justify service of notice by leaving a copy with a member of the family, the defendant must be an actual resident of the county. Des Moines Sav. Bank v. Kennedy, 142–272, 120 N. W. 742.

Acknowledgment of service of notice dated and signed will be presumed genuine. Black v. Chase, 145–715, 122 N. W. 916.

To confer jurisdiction in personam, personal service must be made within the state. Raher v. Raher, 150–511, 129 N. W. 494.

Unless otherwise specified, a statute providing for the service of notice contemplates personal service and not one which is merely constructive or substituted. Scanlon v. Scanlon, 154–748, 135 N. W. 634.

The acknowledgment of service should be dated in order to make it effectual to give priority over another action in which there is actual service and parol evidence is not admissible to show priority of the acceptance. Wray v. Wray, 140 N. W. 414.

SEC. 3519. Return of personal service.

Where the affidavit of service appears to have been signed by the person making it, and the notary so writes the jurat as to make use of the signed name as a part of the jurat itself, this fact does not prevent the return being considered as duly signed and sworn to. Blair v. Hemphill, 111–226, 82 N. W. 501.

The statutory provisions with reference to service of notice recognize no smaller governmental subdivisions than counties and a return of service of the original notice as having been made in a particular town does not show that town to be the residence of the person upon whom service is made. Shoemaker v. Roberts, 103–681, 72 N. W. 776.

The return of the officer as to substituted service should correctly state the township, town or city where the service was made, and an error in such statement will render the notice ineffectual to confer jurisdiction. Thus, where the return was of service in a certain township, whereas it was in fact made in a town included within that township, held that a default rendered on such service was void. Bradley Mfg. Co. v. Burrhus, 135–324, 112 N. W. 765.

The return of an officer as to service by leaving a copy held not to be overcome by the testimony of a witness, given many years afterward, based only upon his recollection. Galvin v. Dailey, 109–332, 80 N. W. 420.

Service of notice will be presumed from recital thereof in the judgment, and the burden is on the person attacking the judgment to overcome the presumption, which will not be done by showing facts from which merely a contrary presumption may arise, such as absence of notice from the files or of entries in the appearance docket and fee book. Farnsley v. Stillwell, 107–631, 78 N. W. 678.

Where there was a recital of service in a decree, and as against that explicit denials on the part of the party alleged to have been served of the service of any notice, strengthened by other evidence, held that the finding of the lower court that there had been no service would be sustained. Miller v. Minneapolis & St. L. R. Co., 119–41, 93 N. W. 76.

The judgment of the court is conclusive as to whether the facts essential to jurisdiction in the particular case exist. Applegate v. Applegate, 107–312, 78 N. W. 34.

Where a return showed service on defendant's son but it did not appear that defendant was not found within the county or that a copy was left at his usual place of residence or that the son was a member of his family or over fourteen years of age, held that such return showed no service whatever, and not simply defective service. Thompson v. Thompson, 117–65, 90 N. W. 493.

Return of service "by leaving a copy of notice with Paul Thornily, over 15 years of age, his son," held not sufficient to show service upon the defendant. Thornily v. Prentice, 121–89, 96 N. W. 728.

A return of substituted service which states that the notice was left with the defendant's wife is sufficient, without naming her. Hass v. Leverton, 128–79, 102 N. W. 811.

In a particular case held that evidence of want of service of notice in pursuance of which a judgment was rendered was sufficient to overcome the presumption of service arising from the rendition of the judgment and from entries on the appearance docket and fee book showing return of service, the original of the sheriff's return not being introduced in evidence. Shehan v. Stuart, 117–207, 90 N. W. 614.

A judgment may be collaterally attacked for want of jurisdiction when there is no notice, as, for instance, where the notice is by publication without the previous filing of an affidavit as required in such cases. But where there is a notice supported by a proper preliminary proceeding, the sufficiency of which is subject to construction and upon which the court must judge of its own jurisdiction, the judgment is good until set aside in some direct proceeding. Priestman v. Priestman, 103–320, 72 N. W. 535.

Where there is an attempted service, and the question is whether the forms of law were complied with, the case is one of defective service, and not want of service. Longueville v. May, 115–709, 87 N. W. 432.

A judgment which is void for want of service may be set aside at any time. Spencer v. Berns, 114–126, 86 N. W. 209.

Where the service of notice is merely informal or defective the judgment is not subject to collateral attack. Thornily v. Prentice, 121–89, 96 N. W. 728.

If the notice is defective merely, such defect cannot be taken advantage of in an action on the judgment. Tomlin v. Woods, 125–367, 101 N. W. 135.

A nonresident who has come into this state for the purpose of attending a trial in an action to which he is a party, is privileged from the service of civil process in another action. Murray v. Wilcox, 122–188, 97 N W. 1087.

The unsupported testimony of defendant that the notice was not served, held not sufficient to overcome the sworn return of the officer. Bowden v. Hadley, 138–711, 116 N. W. 689.

It is not provided that the return of service shall disclose a statement of the age of the person served. Ringstad v. Hanson, 150–324, 130 N. W. 145.

In a particular case, held that the evidence was sufficient to sustain the finding of the lower court in favor of service as recited in the return and as against oral testimony to the effect that no such service was made. Ibid.

Where the service of an original notice is defective only, the judgment is not void and cannot be collaterally attacked. Mullinnix v. Brown, 151–468, 131 N. W. 671.

SEC. 3524. Proof of service—patients in hospital for insane.

The entry of judgment on a return purporting to be made by a deputy sheriff, and not under oath, is not conclusive that the person making such return had authority to do so, and parol evidence is admissible to show that no such service was ever made, and that the court was therefore without jurisdiction in entering the judgment. Buck v. Hawley, 129–406, 105 N. W. 688.

A judgment rendered upon service of notice upon an insane person without compliance with the special provisions as to service in such case is not absolutely void, but voidable. Day v. Goodwin, 104–374, 73 N. W. 864.

The return of personal service made outside the state is not sufficient to give jurisdiction in personam. Raher v. Raher, 150–511, 129 N. W. 494.

SEC. 3525. Superintendent may acknowledge service.

Acknowledgment of service on an insane person by the superintendent of a hospital for the insane in which such person is confined is authorized. And in a particular case, held that the acknowledgment was sufficient although there was a variance in name, there being no question as to the identity of the person to be served. In re Estate of Strang, 131–583, 106 N. W. 631.

SEC. 3528. Service on county—presentation of claims.

Where a city provides salaries for police judge and marshal, and the fees of such officers therefor become payable to the city, and such fees in criminal cases are to be paid by the county, the filing with the county auditor of transcripts showing that such fees have been earned, is a sufficient demand against the county to enable the city to recover the fees in an action. Des Moines v. Polk County, 107–525, 78 N. W. 249.

The acceptance of a portion of a claim allowed by the board does not bar recovery of the balance if there is an absolute liability for the full amount of the claim. Resner v. Carroll County, 126–423, 102 N. W. 148.

The provision requiring notice of unliquidated demands before the institution of suit thereon applies to all demands of that character whether arising out of contract or tort. Little v. Pottawattamie County, 127–376, 101 N. W. 752.

But the failure to make demand before suit is brought may be cured by such demand subsequently made and alleged in supplemental or amended petition. Ibid.

No provision similar to that of this section is found in the statute applicable to cities except in code § 1050, which is applicable only to cities under special charter. Kenyon v. Cedar Rapids, 124–195, 99 N. W. 692.

The requirement of a filing of a claim has application to unliquidated claims of all kinds—those arising from tort as well as from contract. Escher v. Carroll County, 146–738, 125 N. W. 810.

A claim must be presented in writing and it must appear that the payment demanded in such writing was refused. An oral demand on a claim is not sufficient. Ibid.

The presentation of the claim under this section is a condition precedent to the right to maintain suit against the county, and the institution of an action against the county on the claim is not a substitute for the presentation of the claim. Seddon v. Western Union Tel. Co., 146–743, 126 N. W. 969.

Where the board has considered and rejected a claim, the county cannot be heard to say that its disallowance was ineffective to justify the bringing of an action on the ground that the claimant desiring speedy action in order to be enabled to institute his suit before the expiration of the statutory period of limitation requested immediate action, preferring immediate rejection to postponement. Brooks v. Van Buren County, 155–282, 135 N. W. 1110.

The board should have a reasonable time in which to determine what disposition shall be made of the claim. Failure of the board to act is equivalent to refusal to pay. Escher v. Carroll County, 141 N. W. 38.

The statute does not require that the paper on which the claim is stated should be marked filed. Receipt of it by the auditor is sufficient. Ibid.

The claimant may file a claim for additional damages and include such claim in his prayer for damages on the bringing of the action. Ibid.

SEC. 3529. On agent of corporation. If the action is against any corporation or person owning or operating any railway or canal, steamboat or other river craft, or any telegraph, telephone, stage, coach or car line, or against any express company, or against any foreign corporation, service may be made upon any general agent of such corporation, company or person, wherever found, or upon any station, ticket or other agent or person transacting the business thereof or selling tickets therefor in the county where the action is brought; if there is no such agent in said county, then service may be had upon any such agent or person transacting said business in any other county. If the action is against any railway corporation which has merged and consolidated its stock, property, franchises and liabilities with that of any other railway corporation, as authorized by section two thousand and thirty-six of the code, or which has sold or leased its property and franchises to any other railway corporation as authorized by section two thousand and sixty-six of the code, service of the original notice may be made upon any station, ticket or other agent of the merged, vendee or lessee corporation in the county where the action is brought; if there is no such agent in said county, then service may be made upon such agent or person in any other county. [32 G. A., ch. 163; 29 G. A., ch. 139, § 1; C. '73, § 2611; R. § 2825; C. '51, § 1727.]

Service upon a resident agent of a foreign corporation is not effectual unless he is a general agent maintaining an office in this state and the subject matter of the suit has relation to the business of such office. McGuire v. Great Northern R. Co., (C. C.) 155 Fed. 230.

A corporation is conclusively presumed to be a citizen of that state under whose laws it is organized, and jurisdiction in an action against it in another state cannot be acquired without service of notice upon some duly authorized agent. Carpenter v. Willard Case Lumber Co., (C. C.) 158 Fed. 697.

A commission merchant, having an order for the purchase of lumber under which he makes a contract for the purchase of lumber from a foreign corporation, does not become the agent of such corporation in such sense that jurisdiction may be secured against it by service of notice upon him, the corporation having no property or place of business within the state. Ibid.

SEC. 3530. On agent of insurance company.

This section which first appears in the code of 1897 was undoubtedly intended to be cumulative rather than exclusive in character, and to provide a method of service upon an agent in any case, no matter whether the action arose out of or was connected with any business involved in his agency or not. Bradshaw v. Des Moines Ins. Co., 154–101, 134 N. W. 628.

SEC. 3531. On municipal or other corporation.

If the notice is directed to a school district and served on the president thereof, it is sufficient to constitute notice to the district. Haggard v. Independent School Dist., 113–486, 85 N. W. 777.

The mayor or clerk upon whom service may properly be made may accept such service by written acknowledgment thereof. McCartney v. Washington, 124–382, 100 N. W. 80.

Service upon the secretary of a corporation is sufficient service upon the corporation. The Telegraph v. Lee, 125–17, 98 N. W. 364.

Although the defendant in the action may be designated as a copartnership, yet if it is in fact a corporation, and is served as a corporation, the court acquires jurisdiction. Taft Co. v. Bounani, 110–739, 81 N. W. 469.

Where foreign corporations are required as a condition of doing business within a state to appoint an agent upon whom service may be made within the state, service upon an agent appointed in attempted compliance with such statutory requirements will be valid, although it does not technically authorize the service of process upon him. Green v. Equitable Mut. L. & End. Assn., 105–628, 75 N. W. 635.

Under this section service may be made on a corporation, even after an attempt at voluntary dissolution, in an action to enforce against it a claim which was unliquidated at the time of such dissolution. Wisconsin & Ark. Lumber Co. v. Cable, 140 N. W. 211.

SEC. 3532. On agent, as to business of office or agency.

It is sufficient if the principal has an office or agency in the county in which the suit growing out of or connected with the business of that office or agency is brought and service of the notice be made upon an agent or clerk employed in that office or agency. Locke v. Chicago Chronicle Co., 107–390, 78 N. W. 49.

A nonresident corporation may be sued in any county in which it can be found and service upon it may be made by serving an officer or agent. Moffitt v. Chicago Chronicle Co., 107–407, 78 N. W. 45.

To sustain a service on an agent or clerk under this section, it must appear that the action grew out of some matter connected with the business of such agent or clerk. Barnabee v. Holmes, 115–581, 88 N. W. 1098.

SEC. 3533. On minor.

A return of service on a minor by reading and delivering a copy to him in the presence of his father, mother or guardian is not a compliance with the statute. Cummings v. Landes, 140–80, 117 N. W. 22.

Such defective service will not be rendered sufficient by personal service on the parent or guardian who is a party to the suit in his own interest. Ibid.

The statute prescribing what the return of service shall disclose does not exact any statement of the age of the person served. Ringstad v. Hanson, 150–324, 130 N. W. 145.

SEC. 3534. By publication. Service may be made by publication, when an affidavit is filed that personal service cannot be made on the defendant within this state, in either of the following cases:

1. In actions brought for the recovery of real property, or an estate or interest therein;
2. In an action for the partition of real property;
3. In an action for the sale of real property under a mortgage, lien or other incumbrance or charge;
4. In actions to compel the specific performance of a contract of sale of real estate, or in actions to establish or set aside a will, where in such cases any or all of the defendants reside out of this state and the real property is within it;
5. In actions brought against a nonresident of this state, or a foreign corporation, having in the state property or debts owing to such defendant, sought to be taken by any of the provisional remedies, or to be appropriated in any way;
6. In actions which relate to or the subject of which is real or personal property in this state, when any defendant has or claims a lien or interest, actual or contingent, therein, or the relief demanded consists wholly or partly in excluding him from any interest therein, and such defendant is a nonresident of the state or a foreign corporation;

7. In all actions where the defendant, being a resident of the state, has departed therefrom, or from the county of his residence, with intent to delay or defraud his creditors, or to avoid the service of a notice, or keeps himself concealed therein with like intent;

8. Where the action is for a divorce, if the defendant is a nonresident of the state, or his residence is unknown;

9. Where the action is an action to quiet title to real estate if the defendant is a nonresident of the state or his residence is unknown;

10. Where the action is for the annulment of an illegal marriage, if the defendant is a nonresident of the state, or his residence is unknown. [35 G. A., ch. 285, § 1; 35 G. A., ch. 284, § 1.] [C. '73, § 2618; R. §§ 2831–2; C. '51, § 1725.]

Whoever undertakes to give notice by publication and misnames the defendant is without excuse, and the notice will not confer jurisdiction. (Following Fanning v. Krapfl, 61–417.) Thornily v. Prentice, 121–89, 96 N. W. 728.

Where judgment is rendered by default in a divorce proceeding, on service of notice by publication which does not correctly give the name of defendant nor spell it so as to indicate the correct pronunciation, the judgment is subject to collateral attack. Hubner v. Reickhoff, 103–368, 72 N. W. 540.

The fact that in an original notice in an action to foreclose a mortgage the land covered by the mortgage is misdescribed does not deprive the court of jurisdiction to proceed under such notice, and a judgment rendered in pursuance thereof is not void, so as to be subject to collateral attack. Fleming v. Hager, 121–205, 96 N. W. 752.

The filing of an affidavit is a condition precedent to the service of notice by publication, and a judgment rendered without an appearance by the defendant served only by publication when the affidavit has not been filed is void. Priestman v. Priestman, 103–320, 72 N. W. 535.

And held that filing of the affidavit after the first publication, although before the conclusion of the publication, was not sufficient. Ibid.

Where the decree recites service by publication, and the appearance docket shows that an affidavit of nonresidence was filed with the petition and before the first publication, and there is evidence of witnesses that they saw the affidavit, etc., the judgment will be sustained, although the affidavit was not found on file after the judgment was entered. Omaha Nat. Bank v. Squire, 113–365, 85 N. W. 624.

A proceeding by a subcontractor to enforce a mechanic's lien may be maintained as a proceeding in rem without asking a personal judgment against the principal contractor, where the principal contractor is a nonresident upon whom personal service cannot be obtained. Simonson Bros. Mfg. Co. v. Citizens' State Bank, 105–264, 74 N. W. 905.

The rule that a judgment without personal service against a nonresident is only good so far as it affects the property which is taken or brought under the control of the court or tribunal, is applicable also where a city attempts to enforce by personal judgment an indebtedness for special assessments on his property. Dewey v. Des Moines, 173 U. S. 193.

Service of notice by publication is authorized as to actions to quiet title, it being made to appear by affidavit that the defendant is a nonresident of the state. Bales v. Williamson, 128–127, 103 N. W. 150; Ruppin v. McLachlan, 122–343, 98 N. W. 153.

Notice by publication may be served on a nonresident defendant in an action to construe a will. Dillavou v. Dillavou, 130–405, 106 N. W. 949.

Action is not commenced by publication of notice until the last publication provided for by statute has been made. Littlejohn v. Bulles, 136–150, 113 N. W. 756.

Where the published notice designated the defendant as "Chase Marker" instead of "Chan Marker," held that the notice was not such as to confer jurisdiction. Schaller v. Marker, 136–575, 114 N. W. 43.

The court acquires jurisdiction by publication only by a strict compliance with the statutory requirements. Ibid.

The ordinary presumptions in favor of a judgment do not apply to a judgment rendered on service by publication. Ibid.

There is no provision for service of notice by publication in a proceeding to annul a marriage. Bisby v. Mould, 138–15, 115 N. W. 489.

Where the defendant in a divorce action is actually living in another state, service by publication cannot be defeated on account of the mere statement of an intention to return to reside in the state. Lewis v. Lewis, 138–593, 116 N. W. 698.

In an attachment proceeding to subject the property of a nonresident to the payment of his debts the action is to be deemed commenced, so far as the statute of limitations is concerned, when the petition is filed and the property is levied upon. Slater v. Roche, 148–413, 126 N. W. 925.

The statute provides for service by publication in actions to quiet title only as to defendants who are in fact nonresidents, and proof that a defendant served only by publication was in fact a resident of the state renders the decree in such case ineffectual as to him. Oziah v. Howard, 149–199, 128 N. W. 364.

Personal service outside the state, although it be upon one who is a resident of this state, does not give jurisdiction in personam. Raher v. Raher, 150–511, 129 N. W. 494.

SEC. 3534-a. Decrees legalized—affidavit of nonresidence. That in all cases where decrees of court have been obtained prior to the first day of January, nineteen hundred and seven, upon publication of notice before the filing of the affidavit of nonresidence, as provided by section thirty-five hundred thirty-four of the code, and the same has not been filed as provided by law, but has been filed during the time that the notice was being published, on which such decrees are based, are hereby legalized and such decrees shall have the same force and effect as though the affidavit of nonresidence, as provided in said section, was filed at the time of or prior to the first publication of such notice, and that all decrees so obtained, as aforesaid, are hereby legalized and held to have the same force and effect as though the affidavit of nonresidence had been filed, as by law required. [34 G. A., ch. 224, § 1.]

SEC. 3534-b. Not to affect pending litigation. Nothing in this act contained shall be construed as to affect pending litigation. [34 G. A., ch. 224, § 2.]

SEC. 3535. Method.

A daily record of court proceedings and transfers of property which is mailed to regular subscribers is a newspaper within the meaning of this section. Brice v. Graves, 142–722, 121 N. W. 504.

The affidavit must show publication for the full time before it is made and such affidavit must be filed before default on such service is entered. Manion v. Brady, 138 N. W. 558.

Parol testimony to show the facts which should appear of record as to service is not admissible. Ibid.

The statutes conferring jurisdiction to render a judgment against a nonresident defendant on service of notice by publication only, must be strictly and literally complied with or the judgment and all subsequent proceedings based thereon are void. Ibid.

The affidavit that personal service cannot be made on the defendant within the state must be filed before publication of the notice. Ibid.

SEC. 3536. When complete—proof.

A published notice requiring appearance at an impossible date is no notice and confers no jurisdiction on the court over the party or the subject matter. Gaar v. Taylor, 128–636, 105 N. W. 125.

The plaintiff in an action commenced by publication cannot take the affidavit of the publisher as to the fact of publication for the purpose of providing the proof thereof required by statute. Empire Real Estate & Mort. Co. v. Beechley, 137–7, 114 N. W. 556.

Insufficiency of the proof of publication on which judgment by default is entered cannot be raised on appeal from such judgment without having moved to set it aside or in some other manner attacked the sufficiency of the service in the trial court. Belknap v. Belknap, 154–213, 134 N. W. 734.

The affidavit must be made by the publisher or his foreman. Manion v. Brady, 138 N. W. 558.

SEC. 3536-a. Decrees legalized—affidavit of publication by editor. That in all cases where decrees of court have been obtained prior to January first, nineteen hundred eleven, in which the proof of the publication of the original notice has been made by the affidavit of the editor of the newspaper in which such original notice was published, are hereby legalized, and such decrees shall have the same force and effect as though the affidavit of the publisher, or his foreman, of the newspaper in which the original notice was published had been filed as provided by section thirty-five hundred thirty-six of the code, and that all decrees so obtained as aforesaid are hereby legalized and held to have the same force and effect as though the proof of the publication of the original notice had been made by the affidavit of the publisher, or his foreman, of the newspaper in which such original notice was published. [35 G. A., ch. 286, § 1.]

SEC. 3536-b. Not to affect pending litigation. Nothing in this act contained shall be construed as affecting pending litigation. [35 G. A., ch. 286, § 2.]

SEC. 3537. Actual service.

Personal service of notice outside of the state gives the court jurisdiction to render judgment in rem in an attachment suit. Clark v. Tull, 113–143, 84 N. W. 1030.

Personal service of notice in another state does not give the court jurisdiction to render a personal judgment. Richardson v. Richardson, 134–242, 111 N. W. 934.

Actual personal service without the state, although made upon one who is a resident of this state, is a substitute for notice by publication, but does not confer jurisdiction in personam. Raher v. Raher, 150–511, 129 N. W. 494.

SEC. 3538. Unknown defendants. That section thirty-five hundred thirty-eight of the code be and the same is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"Where it is necessary to make an unknown person defendant, the petition shall be sworn to and state the claim of plaintiff with reference to the property involved in the action, that the name and residence of such person is unknown to the plaintiff, and that he has sought diligently to learn the same. The notice thereof shall contain the name of the plaintiff, a description of the property, the claim of the plaintiff thereto, the relief demanded, the name of the court, and the term in which appearance must be made. Such notice must be entitled in the full name of the plaintiff against the unknown claimants of the property and shall be signed by the plaintiff or his attorney." [35 G. A., ch. 287, § 1.] [24 G. A., ch. 34; C. '73, §§ 2622–3; R. §§ 2836–7.]

SEC. 3540. Length of publication. Such notice shall be filed in the action, and its contents shall be published in the paper, and for the time designated, at least once each week for four successive weeks, and at the end of said time service shall be complete, and such unknown person in court at the next term thereafter. [32 G. A., ch. 164; 31 G. A., ch. 154; C. '73, § 2625; R. § 2839.]

SEC. 3541. Mode of appearance—when required. That section thirty-five hundred forty-one of the code be and the same is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"The mode of appearance may be:

1. By delivering to the plaintiff or the clerk of the court a memorandum in writing to the effect that the defendant appears, signed either by the defendant in person or his attorney, dated the day of its delivery and filed in the case;

2. By entering an appearance in the appearance docket or judge's calendar or by announcing to the court an appearance which shall be entered of record;

3. By taking part either personally or by attorney in the trial of the case;

4. Any defendant may appear specially for the sole purpose of attacking the jurisdiction of the court. Such special appearance shall be announced at the time it is made and shall limit the party to jurisdictional matters only and shall give him no right to plead to the merits of the case.

5. No member of the general assembly shall be held to appear or answer in any civil or special action in any court while such general assembly is in session, nor shall any person be held to answer or appear in any court on any day now or hereafter made a legal holiday." [34 G. A., ch. 162, § 1.] [15 G. A., ch. 10; C. '73, § 2626; R. § 2840.]

Effect of appearance: An appearance by the assignee in insolvency of a foreign corporation may by comity be recognized and will bind the corporation although such assignee has no legal authority beyond the extent of the jurisdiction in which he is appointed. State Bank v. McElroy, 106–258, 76 N. W. 715.

The court having jurisdiction of the subject matter acquires jurisdiction of the case by appearance. Applegate v. Applegate, 107–312, 78 N. W. 34.

By appearance to an action, even though for a special purpose, jurisdiction to determine the case upon its merits is conferred upon the court. Locke v. Chicago Chronicle Co., 107–390, 78 N. W. 49; Moffitt v. Chicago Chronicle Co., 107–407, 78 N. W. 45.

Appearance by motion to dismiss for want of jurisdiction, where service has been made on an alleged agent, is sufficient to give the court jurisdiction in case the motion is overruled. Teller v. Equitable Mut. L. Assn., 108–17, 78 N. W. 674.

The appearance of a defendant in a divorce proceeding to object to the granting of temporary alimony is such appearance as to give the court jurisdiction. Hamilton v. Hamilton, 129–628, 106 N. W. 5.

A defendant may not make a special appearance to resist an interlocutory order or ruling, and then say he is not in court for the purpose of a judgment on the merits. Blondel v. Ohlman, 132–257, 109 N. W. 806.

Appearance by a nonresident defendant to plead to the jurisdiction of the court, held to constitute a waiver of objection to the jurisdiction of the federal court on removal of the case from the state court. Louden Machinery Co. v. American Malleable Iron Co., 127 Fed. 1008.

Recital that defendant defaulted for want of pleading after appearing in the action is sufficient to show jurisdiction of the court. Harrison County v. State Sav. Bank, 127–242, 103 N. W. 121.

A trustee holding the legal title to mortgaged property cannot appear for the cestui que trust so as to render a personal judgment against the latter binding. Thornily v. Prentice, 121–89, 96 N. W. 728.

The appearance which gives the court jurisdiction must have some relation to the merits of the controversy and the purpose must be to invoke some action on the part of the court having direct bearing in some way upon the question of the judgment or decree proper to be entered. The taking of a stay of execution is not such appearance as to confer jurisdiction for the entry of a personal judgment for deficiency. Bank of Horton v. Knox, 133–443, 109 N. W. 201.

Voluntary appearance or submission to the jurisdiction of the court on the part of a garnishee will not confer jurisdiction to render judgment against him if there is no valid judgment against the defendant for want of original jurisdiction in the case. Schaller v. Marker, 136–575, 114 N. W. 43.

An appearance by filing a motion to quash the writ in an action of replevin is an appearance to such action. Bummelhart v. Boone, 147–390, 126 N. W. 338.

A special appearance to object that the action is not maintainable in the county gives the court jurisdiction. Zabron v. Cunard Steamship Co., 151–345, 131 N. W. 18.

Appearance by city attorney in an action against the city is sufficient to give the court jurisdiction. Rankin v. Chariton, 139 N. W. 560, 141 N. W. 424.

Holidays: Judicial business may be transacted on the fourth of July and a witness may be punished for contempt in not appearing on that day in response to a subpœna. Chambers v. Oehler, 107–155, 77 N W. 853.

Legal holidays are also enumerated in code § 3053 as days on which negotiable paper cannot be presented for protest. Brennan v. Roberts, 125–615, 101 N. W. 460.

The statutory exemption as to appearance in an action on the days specified as holidays has no application to subsequent proceedings in the case, after there has been a sufficient appearance. Michel v. Borholm Co-operative Creamery, 128–706, 105 N. W. 323.

Sunday or any other day mentioned by this section as a holiday should not be excluded in estimating the three days within which a motion for new trial is to be filed. German Sav. Bank v. Cady, 114–228, 86 N. W. 277.

Privilege: A nonresident who has come into this state for the purpose of attending a trial in an action to which he is a party, is privileged from the service of civil process in another action. He is entitled to the same privilege as one who attends as a witness. Murray v. Wilcox, 122–188, 97 N. W. 1087.

SEC. 3543. Notice of action pending — indexing. That section thirty-five hundred forty-three of the code be and the same is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"When a petition affecting real estate is filed, the clerk of the district court where filed shall forthwith index same in an index book to be provided therefor, under the name of the parties plaintiff and defendant, entering a memorandum at each place where indexed, giving the description of the premises involved, the number of the case and the nature of the claim made. If the petition be amended to include other parties or other lands, same shall be similarly indexed. When the cause is finally determined the result shall be indicated in said book wherever indexed. When so indexed said action shall be considered pending so as to charge all third persons with notice of its pendency, and while pending no interest can be acquired by third persons in the subject matter thereof as against the plaintiff's rights. If the real property affected be situated in the county where the petition is filed it shall be unnecessary to show in said index lands not situated in said county, and if the description be lengthy the clerk may give same in full in one place and refer thereto at all other places in said index book." [35 G. A., ch. 288, § 1.] [C. '73, § 2628; R. § 2842.]

Where, without authority of one party, a case was marked on the judge's calendar as settled, and a corresponding entry was made in the court record, but subsequently a trial notice was filed in the case and it was put on the calendar for the succeeding term, held that one who purchased real property involved in such action after the service of the trial notice was affected with notice of the pendency of the action. Furry v. Ferguson, 105–231, 74 N. W. 903.

A purchaser at execution sale under a judgment takes subject to any right subsequently established in an action already pending, to have the premises declared a homestead and exempt from sale under such judgment. McClelland v. Bennett, 106–74, 75 N. W. 667.

The primary object of the rule as to lis pendens is to keep the property within the power of the court until final judgment or decree shall be entered, and thus to enable the courts to give force and effect to such judgments. In the absence of the statutory provisions, the notice involved in the pendency of the action continues until the suit is determined by final decree, or until it is suspended by a failure to make what is called a "full prosecution." An appeal from the final judgment of an inferior court continues the lis pendens during the pendency of the appeal. It has also been held that where there is an apparent neglect to prosecute, a reasonable excuse for the delay complained of is always available to keep the lis pendens alive. Full prosecution exists so long as the action is pending and the court has complete jurisdiction over the matter in controversy. Under the provisions of this section lis pendens commences when the petition has been filed and continues while the action is pending. Olson v. Leibpke, 110–594, 81 N. W. 801.

Lis pendens is notice to those only who attempt to acquire some interest in the subject matter of a litigation after suit is begun and from a party thereto. But one who has instituted such suit does not become a purchaser in such sense as to be protected against unrecorded instruments. Noyes v. Crawford, 118–15, 91 N. W. 799.

One purchasing at execution sale is bound to take notice of an action as to the title to the property pending against the owner. Bacon v. Early, 116–532, 90 N. W. 353.

One who purchases or otherwise acquires an interest from the defendant in a foreclosure proceeding, brought in the county where the land is situated, takes subject to the determination of such proceeding, and, although not made a party, has no equitable right to redeem from the foreclosure sale. Cooney v. Coppock, 119–486, 93 N. W. 495.

The lessee of a party enjoined from the use of premises for the sale of intoxicating liquors is bound by such injunction. Harris v. Hutchison, 140 N. W. 830.

CHAPTER 7.

OF JOINDER OF ACTIONS.

SECTION 3545. When permitted—issues tried separately.

Causes of action may be joined where each may be prosecuted by the same kind of proceedings, by the same party, in the same right, and if suit on all may be brought and tried in the same county. Chambers v. Oehler, 104–278, 73 N. W. 481.

It is proper to join in one action claims on tort and on contract. Devin v. Walsh, 108–428, 79 N. W. 133.

An action by a wife for damages by reason of sales of liquor to her husband cannot be joined with an action to recover penalty for sales to minors or habitual drunkards. Carrier v. Bernstein, 104–572, 73 N. W. 1076.

It is not proper to join with an action on a bond to indemnify against the enforcement of a decree a cause of action on the decree itself. Prader v. National Masonic Accident Assn., 107–431, 78 N. W. 60.

It is not proper in the same action to join separate causes of action against different defendants. Iowa Lillooet Gold Mining Co. v. Bliss, 144 Fed. 446.

Distinct causes of action triable by the same method may be pleaded in different counts of one petition. Waters v. Waterloo, 126–199, 101 N. W. 871.

The statement in different counts of two inconsistent causes of action does not show an election to rely upon one of them rather than another. Continental Ins. Co. v. Clark, 126–274, 100 N. W. 524.

A party cannot split up his cause of action or defense and try the case in piecemeal. Hogle v. Smith, 136–32, 113 N. W. 556.

There can be a joinder of actions only where the several causes of actions can be tried by the same kind of proceedings and are held by the same party and against the same party and in the same right or capacity. It is not permissible to deprive defendant of a right to trial by ordinary procedure of a cause of action against him by joining with it another cause of action triable by equitable procedure. Faville v. Lloyd, 140–501, 118 N. W. 871.

Where two causes of action are joined, one of which only may be properly maintained in the county, the action on the cause which cannot properly be maintained in such county may be stricken out on motion. First Nat. Bank v. Shriver, 152–504, 132 N. W. 848.

Where a cause of action at law is improperly joined with a cause of action in equity and the defendant has made proper objection, the supreme court will on appeal refuse to give consideration to the action at law on finding that the decree for the defendant in equity was improperly granted. Keckevoet v. Dubuque, 157– —, 138 N. W. 540.

If there be two or more contracts of the same general nature upon each of which the defendant and his guarantor have assumed the same kind of liability, recovery for breach of each may be sought in one action. Watkins Medical Co. v. Moss, 141 N. W. 497.

It is not proper to join in an equitable action a cause of action which is cognizable only at law. Watt v. Robbins, 142 N. W. 387.

The administrator of the estate of one for whose death recovery is sought on the grounds of negligence may, in separate counts, ask recovery under the state statutes and under the federal employers' liability act. Bankson v. Illinois Cent. R. Co., (D. C.) 196 Fed. 171.

SEC. 3548. Misjoinder waived.

The remedy for misjoinder of actions is by motion. Citizens' State Bank v. Jess, 127–450, 103 N. W. 471; Mitchell v. McLeod, 127–733, 104 N. W. 349.

By failing to appear, a defendant waives objection to misjoinder of actions. McDonald v. Second Nat. Bank, 106–517, 76 N W. 1011; Lull v. Anamosa Nat. Bank, 110–537, 81 N. W. 784.

CHAPTER 8.

OF PLEADING.

SECTION 3551. Motions and demurrers.

The provision that motions assailing pleadings must be in writing may be waived and the opposite party will be deemed to have acquiesced therein where without objection the motion is made orally and taken down by the official stenographer. Fischer v. Johnson, 106–181, 76 N. W. 658.

Failure to object to the filing of a motion as not within the proper time may be urged in connection with the consideration of the motion on its merits, and need not be taken at the time the motion is filed. Turley v. Griffin, 106–161, 76 N. W. 660.

A motion to strike from the files another motion is wholly unnecessary. The motion may be overruled if not properly introduced, although no specific objection to it on that ground is made. German Sav. Bank v. Cady, 114–228, 86 N. W. 277.

A receiver's final report on which his discharge is granted may be set aside on the ground that no notice of a motion for the acceptance of the final report and for discharge had been entered on the motion docket in accordance with the practice prevailing in the county with reference to noting the filing of motions upon such docket. Williams v. Des Moines Loan & Trust Co., 126–22, 101 N. W. 277.

SEC. 3552. Subsequent pleadings.

While a party, after his pleading has been held defective, is entitled until noon of the next day in which to amend or plead over, yet if without objection he allows the court to proceed before the expiration of that time without so amending or pleading over he cannot complain on appeal. Chase v. Wright, 116–555, 90 N. W. 357.

The defendant is required to demur to the petition or to assail it by motion or to take issue upon it before noon of the second day of the next term after proper service has been made. This is the time when defendant is required by law to answer or plead, and an application for removal to the federal court must be made before such date, irrespective of any extension of time by order of court or agreement of parties within which the defendant may be allowed to thus plead. Wilson v. Big Joe Block Coal Co., 135–531, 113 N. W. 348.

Although a reply is not filed in due season, it is within the discretion of the trial court to permit it to be filed. Ellis v. Oliphant, 141 N. W. 415.

SEC. 3554. Extension of time.

When time is given until a day named for filing a pleading it should be filed before the named day. Carver v. Seevers, 126–669, 102 N. W. 518.

Extension of time for further pleading does not extend the time within which application for removal to the federal courts may be made. Wilson v. Big Joe Block Coal Co., 135–531, 113 N. W. 348.

SEC. 3557. Pleadings defined—filing—forms abolished.

The rule that when the construction of a pleading is doubtful, after giving to the language a reasonable intendment, it should be resolved against the pleader, is not to be applied save when the attack is by motion or demurrer. The rules by which the sufficiency of pleadings is to be determined are those prescribed by this section. Lampman v. Bruning, 120–167, 94 N. W. 562.

While a motion is for some purposes to be regarded as a pleading, yet the bar of the statute of limitations cannot be raised by a motion to direct a verdict, but must be specially pleaded. Borghart v. Cedar Rapids, 126–313, 101 N. W. 1120.

Questions presented for determination by motions or demurrers are issues, the determination of which constitutes a trial. Columbus Junction Tel. Co. v. Overholt, 126–579, 102 N. W. 498.

A party is required only to prove what is essential to entitle him to the relief sought and in an action against a common carrier for negligence in the transportation of live stock, it is immaterial whether the action is in form one for breach of contract or for tort. Gilbert v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co., 156–440, 136 N. W. 911.

Although forms of action are abolished, yet the substance remains and the relief formerly obtainable in equity by bill of review or a bill in the nature of a bill of review is still available through pleadings such as are authorized by the code. Barz v. Sawyer, 141 N. W. 319.

SEC. 3558. Copy filed—fee—taking files from office.

Failure to file a copy of a pleading is not a ground for vacating the judgment afterwards rendered. Stephens v. City Council, 132–490, 107 N. W. 614.

SEC. 3559. Petition—what to contain—counts—divisions—paragraphs.

Title of action: The omission to properly entitle the petition as provided in paragraph two of this section is merely a defect of form for which the defendant is not entitled as a matter of right to have the action dismissed. First National Bank v. Stone, 122–558, 98 N. W. 362.

Statement of cause of action: Allegations in the petition which direct the attention of the court with reasonable certainty to the facts upon which the prayer for relief is based, are ordinarily held sufficient. Conner v. Baxter, 124–219, 99 N. W. 726.

A statement of facts relied upon by the plaintiff as entitling him to relief is a sufficient pleading of such facts to sustain a decree for the relief to which, as a matter of law, the plaintiff is entitled under such facts. Atlee v. Bullard, 123–274, 98 N. W. 889.

When a material fact necessary to a recovery is omitted from a petition it is said that it does not state a cause of action. Box v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co., 107–660, 78 N. W. 694.

A prayer for relief cannot take the place of a statement of facts showing the party to be entitled to relief. In re Estate of Bruning, 122–8, 96 N. W. 780.

A party is presumed to have stated the case as strongly as the facts will justify in his favor and nothing will be assumed in his favor which has not been averred or may not upon a liberal or fair interpretation be implied from his averments. Witham v. Blood, 124–695, 100 N. W. 558.

An allegation of ownership, although in effect a mere legal conclusion, is to be treated as an allegation of fact. Ruppin v. McLachlan, 122–343, 98 N. W. 153.

The petition in an action to foreclose a mortgage covering specific personal property should state the facts entitling plaintiff to a special execution, and if it does so the court may decree a special execution to issue for any part of the property, no matter where it may be located within the state. King v. Nelson, 120–606, 94 N. W. 1095.

Allegations of contractual relations with a common carrier or telegraph company do not necessarily make the action one upon contract rather than in tort. Cowan v. Western Union Tel. Co., 122–379, 98 N. W. 281.

A petition is sufficiently certain if it advises the opposite party of the exact claim made by the plaintiff. McCrary v. Lake City Elec. Light Co., 139–548, 117 N. W. 964.

On information: A statement of facts on information and belief is sufficient, in the absence of a motion attacking the pleading on this ground. Robinson v. Ferguson, 119–325, 93 N. W. 350.

Ultimate facts: The pleading should state ultimate facts and not the evidence. Johnson v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co., 107–1, 77 N. W. 476.

A paragraph in a petition which is in the nature of a statement of evidence not relevant to any issue in the case and not of ultimate and material facts may properly be stricken out on motion. Tisdale v. Major, 106–1, 75 N. W. 663.

Ultimate facts only and not evidence of them are to be stated in the petition; but held that allegations that the placing of a trolley pole in front of plaintiff's premises was without necessity and to annoy plaintiff and injure and depreciate the value of his property, and that it was an obstruction to the enjoyment of his property and had caused depreciation therein, were sufficient to set out a cause of action, in the absence of a motion for more specific statement. Snyder v. Ft. Madison Street R. Co., 105–284, 75 N. W. 179.

Where statutes of another state relied on are merely evidence of ultimate facts, they need not be pleaded, but can be introduced in evidence in support of the ultimate fact which is properly pleaded. Green v. Equitable Mut. L. & End. Assn., 105–628, 75 N. W. 635.

Allegations of evidence have no proper place in the pleadings. Morton v. Woods, 154–728, 135 N. W. 400.

Implied contracts: Under allegations showing implied promise to pay for services, no recovery can be had under breach of an express agreement. Duncan v. Gray, 108–599, 79 N. W. 362.

Where the petition states a cause of action on an express agreement alone, no recovery can be had on quantum meruit. In re Oldfield's Estate, Bowie v. Trowbridge, 157– —, 138 N. W. 846.

And further see notes to code § 3597 in this supplement.

Negligence: An allegation of negligence in a mine owner in allowing the roof of an entry to be in a dangerous condition with knowledge thereof, is sustained by evidence that it had been in a dangerous condition for such length of time as that knowledge thereof would be imputed to defendant. Blazenic v. Iowa & W. Coal Co., 102–706, 72 N. W. 292.

In an action to recover damages for injuries resulting from negligence, the plaintiff should be limited in his testimony to the specific negligence alleged. Wirstlin v. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co., 124–170, 99 N. W. 697.

Statement of the specific acts or facts constituting the alleged negligence by which the injury has been occasioned is not necessary to the statement of a cause of action for such negligence, and after the period of limitation for bringing such action has expired, an amendment in an action seasonably brought may be allowed if it simply amplifies the specifications or grounds of the alleged negligence. Gordon v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co., 129–747, 106 N. W. 177.

Freedom from contributory negligence: Plaintiff, in an action to recover damages for malpractice of a physician should allege freedom from contributory negligence, and, having failed to do so, the defendant may raise the objection by motion in arrest of judgment. Decatur v. Simpson, 115–348, 88 N. W. 839.

The fact that the petition does not allege freedom of plaintiff from contributory negligence in a case where such fact should be alleged may be raised by motion in arrest of judgment. Kleineck v. Reiger, 107–325, 78 N. W. 39.

Where the wrong charged in plaintiff's petition is a wilful one, contributory negligence need not be negatived. Continental Ins. Co. v. Clark, 126–274, 100 N. W. 524.

A general allegation in an action for an injury alleged to be due to defendant's negligence, that plaintiff was without fault or negligence on his part, is sufficient, unless specifically attacked. Hobbs v. Marion, 123–726, 99 N. W. 577.

Where defendant in an action for personal injuries sets up the contributory negligence of the plaintiff, the plaintiff who intends to rely upon the fact that defendant might have avoided the injury in the exercise of reasonable care after the negligent act of the plaintiff became known to him, should allege such matter by way of reply. Ford v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co., 106–85, 75 N. W. 650.

Although absence of contributory negligence should be alleged in an action to recover damages for negligence, such allegation is not essential to the cause of action and may be alleged in an amendment after the expiration of the statutory period of limitations. Cahill v. Illinois Cent. R. Co., 137–577, 115 N. W. 216.

Fraud: In alleging fraud committed by an agent it is not necessary to set up the fact of agency, nor that of ratification. The fraud in such case may be pleaded as that of the principal. Higbee v. Trumbauer, 112–74, 83 N. W. 812.

Mere general statements of fraud are insufficient. But where attempt is made to set out the claim of fraud, though not sufficiently specific, the defect must be reached by motion; and if not then raised, cannot afterwards be relied upon. Seeley v. Seeley-Howe-Le Van Co., 130–626, 105 N. W. 380.

Fraud cannot be pleaded in general terms, but the facts relied upon must be stated; and a pleading containing nothing more than the mere allegation that a transaction was fraudulent is subject to demurrer. Toovey v. Ayrhart, 136–694, 114 N. W. 181.

While the facts relied upon to constitute fraud should be clearly stated, yet an allegation of fraud in terms somewhat general may be sustained if not attacked by motion for more specific statement. Johnson v. Carter, 143–95, 120 N. W. 320.

Waiver: Where facts are alleged by way of waiver they cannot be proven to establish the making of a contract. A contract relied upon should be pleaded and a party should not be allowed to plead it one way and prove it to be different. Kinkead v. McCormick Har. Mach. Co., 106–222, 76 N. W. 663.

Where a passenger sued to recover damages for being put off a train on account of insufficiency of his ticket, held that if he relied on waiver of the conditions of the ticket such waiver must be pleaded. Trezona v. Chicago, G. W. R. Co., 107–22, 77 N. W. 486.

Waiver of breach of conditions in a policy of insurance must be pleaded. McCoy v. Iowa State Ins. Co., 107–80, 77 N. W. 529.

In an action on an insurance policy, allegation that due notice was given necessarily implies proofs of loss, and waiver of proofs must be specially pleaded. Parsons v. A. O. U. W., 108–6, 78 N. W. 676.

While it is true that a waiver must be pleaded, it is also true that insufficiency of the pleading of the waiver, where it is apparent that a waiver is intended to be pleaded, may be waived by failure to seasonably raise the objection. Barrett v. Des Moines Mut. H. & C. Ins. Assn., 120–184, 94 N. W. 473.

A waiver which is relied on must be pleaded. Kinkead v. McCormick Har. Mach. Co., 106–222, 76 N. W. 663; Murray v. Thicssen, 114–657, 87 N. W. 672; Herrstrom v. Newton & N. W. R. Co., 129–507, 105 N. W. 436.

Estoppel: Matters in estoppel to be available as such must be specially pleaded. Spencer Co. v. Papach, 103–513, 70 N. W. 748, 72 N. W. 665; Kingsbury v. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co., 104–63, 73 N. W. 477; Tracy Land Co. v. Polk County Land & Loan Co., 131–40, 107 N. W. 1029.

Custom: A custom relied upon as affecting a contract must be pleaded. Eller v. Loomis, 106–276, 76 N. W. 686.

In an action against a master for negligence as to inspection and repair for the purpose of keeping safe the place where the servant is to work, the general custom in such business as to the duty to inspect and repair, with reference to whether it rests upon the master or the servant, may be proven without being pleaded. Thayer v. Smoky Hollow Coal Co., 121–121, 96 N. W. 718.

Duress must be specially pleaded, and until pleaded evidence to prove it cannot properly be received over objection. Sturman v. Sturman, 118–620, 92 N. W. 886.

Payment: A pleading which contains an allegation that a given sum of money is "substantially if not wholly" paid does not allege with sufficient definiteness that such amount has been fully paid. Hardin County v. Wells, 108–174, 78 N. W. 908.

In actions for breach of contract for the payment of a specified sum of money, nonpayment constitutes the breach of the contract sued for, and must be alleged. Such an allegation is put in issue by a general denial. Howerton v. Augustine, 130–389, 106 N. W. 941.

Where the action is based upon contract and nonpayment constitutes the very breach for which plaintiff is demanding a recovery, the petition must allege the nonpayment in order to state a cause of action; but where damages were alleged for wrongful termination of a contract of employment, held that an allegation of nonpayment of such damages was not essential. Harrod v. Wineman, 146–718, 125 N. W. 812.

Want of notice: Where in an action on a certificate of insurance in a mutual accident association it was alleged that plaintiff had complied with all the conditions and provisions of the articles of incorporation and by-laws of said association on his part to be kept and performed, and defendant interposed only a general denial, held that defendant could not rely on failure of the plaintiff to prove the giving of notice as required by the articles. Hart v. National Masonic Acc. Assn., 105–717, 75 N. W. 508.

Allegation of damage: In an action to recover damages for personal injuries, an allegation that plaintiff suffered great bodily pain, etc., is sufficient to sustain an allowance for mental pain and suffering. Ousley v. Hampe, 128–675, 105 N. W. 122.

In an action to recover damages for personal injuries an averment that by reason of the injuries alleged plaintiff has continually suffered, and still suffers pain, and believes said injuries to be permanent, is sufficient to support a recovery for future pain and suffering. Evans v. Elwood, 123–92, 98 N. W. 584.

In alleging damages in an action for personal injuries, where recovery is sought for pain and suffering, it is not necessary to allege the particulars of the personal injuries from which the pain and suffering resulted. Kircher v. Larchwood, 120–578, 95 N. W. 184.

Under an allegation of damage to property, proof of its destruction is competent. Monarch Mfg. Co. v. Omaha & C. B. & S. R. Co., 127–511, 103 N. W. 493.

Under a general allegation of damages, plaintiff may prove and recover all such damages as are the natural and direct consequence of the wrong of which complaint is made. But the allegations of the injury must be sufficient to apprise the adverse party, at least inferentially, of what may reasonably be anticipated in order that he may be prepared to meet the proof. Palmer v. Waterloo, 138–296, 115 N. W. 1017.

Prayer: A prayer that plaintiff have "such other rights as would be proper in the premises" does not convert a petition to recover possession of personal property, or the value thereof, into an equitable action, but where the petition, which seemed otherwise to be based on a right to recover at law, also averred a trust arising under the facts for plaintiff's benefit, held that it sufficiently appeared that the petition was in equity. Stokes v. Sprague, 110–89, 81 N. W. 195.

A prayer that a deed be set aside for fraud, or, if it be held valid, that the contract price be recovered and a vendor's lien given does not involve such inconsistent or contradictory relief as to be improper. Hogueland v. Arts, 113–634, 85 N. W. 818.

It is not necessary that there be a prayer for costs. Reed v. Corrigan, 114–638, 87 N. W. 676.

The jury should be specifically limited as to the amount of recovery to the specific items on which recovery is asked in an action on an account, and it is error to so instruct as that there can be a total recovery for an amount not exceeding the total claim, without regard to a finding as to the specific items. Baker v. Oughton, 130–35, 106 N. W. 272.

In an equity action to enforce a lien it is proper to render a money judgment under a prayer for general relief. American Trading & Storage Co. v. Gottstein, 123–267, 98 N. W. 770.

The prayer for general relief is broad enough to authorize a judgment for the recovery of a sum of money. Saunders v. King, 119–291, 93 N. W. 272.

It is error for the court to grant relief not called for by the petition, or a judgment or decree different from that prayed for. Bottorff v. Lewis, 121–27, 95 N. W. 262.

The judgment must follow the prayer for relief and cannot be extended beyond it. Browne v. Kiel, 117–316, 90 N. W. 624.

Under a prayer for general relief, a party is entitled in equity to any relief which is consistent with the allegations of the petition and sustained by the proof. Johnston v. Myers, 138–497, 116 N. W. 600.

Under a prayer for general relief in an equitable action the court may award money damages without any specific prayer therefor. Johnson v. Carter, 143–95, 120 N. W. 320.

In an action to recover money payable on demand, for payment of which proper demand has been made, interest may be recovered without a special allegation in the petition as to the right to interest if the amount claimed in the petition is enough to include such interest. Fremont County v. Fremont County Bank, 145–8, 123 N. W. 782.

Under a general prayer for equitable relief, the court may grant any relief which appears to be equitable upon the facts pleaded and proved, and it may retain jurisdiction of the proceedings for the complete adjudication of every right which is fairly involved in or dependent upon the issues tendered by the pleadings, even though such relief be inconsistent with the specific relief prayed for. Reiger v. Turley, 151–491, 131 N. W. 866.

It is not a valid objection to the exercise of equitable jurisdiction that the party seeking relief prays alternatively that if such relief be denied he may have a money recovery. Ibid.

A prayer for relief not resting upon any allegation of the petition does not entitle the plaintiff to relief. Watt v. Robbins, 142 N. W. 387.

Entire cause of action: A party cannot split up his cause of action. When he brings suit to claim a lien he must present all the facts entitling him thereto, and will not be allowed in one case to assert a mortgage lien, and when defeated with reference thereto, claim a general equitable lien in another action against the same property for the same indebtedness. Zion Church v. Parker, 114–1, 86 N. W. 60.

A party to litigation may not split up his causes of action and try his case by piecemeal. He may not present one branch of his case for the determination of the court and when unsuccessful therein begin over again and present some other matter upon which he relies which might theretofore have been presented and determined. Ingold v. Symonds, 134–206, 111 N. W. 802.

A continuous book account is to be treated as an entirety, and cannot without agreement of the parties be split into separate and distinct demands so as to form a basis for distinct suits. The fact that the items of the account are for goods sold at different times and on different orders does not entitle the seller to sue separately for each distinct item. Williams-Abbott Elec. Co. v. Model Elec. Co., 134–665, 112 N. W. 181.

Even though different items of an account might have been the subject of separate suits, yet after the right of action as to all the items has matured, they must be embodied in one suit to avoid multiplicity of actions. Ibid.

Issues not raised: As parties may be amendment introduce new issues, or make certain those intended, their interpretation of the pleadings, when clearly manifested, is uniformly adopted by the courts. Permitting the introduction of evidence on an issue not specifically pleaded, without objection, obviates the necessity of its formal presentation. Fenner v. Crips, 109–455, 80 N. W. 526.

Counts: The objection that the petition and an amendment thereto stating but one count allege inconsistent and contradictory causes of action must be taken before the submission of the case to the jury. Robbins v. Bosserman, 133–318, 110 N. W. 587.

Although in the same count of the petition is stated a cause of action for breach of warranty and also a claim for recovery as upon rescission of the contract of sale, yet if no attack is made on account of the improper joinder of causes of action in the same count, a recovery may be sustained, if supported by the evidence, upon either ground. Westbrook v. Reeves, 133–655, 111 N. W. 11.

The plaintiff may allege two inconsistent causes of action as based on the same facts, such as a cause of action for breach of contract and another for tort in an action against a common carrier; but in the absence of any objection made in proper time and manner to such double pleading, the opposite party cannot take advantage of such inconsistency after verdict. Chicago & N. W. R. Co. v. DeClow, 124 Fed. 142.

Plaintiff may in separate counts ask to recover damages for breach of specific contract and also for quantum meruit under an implied contract. Bowe v. Frink, 137–1, 114 N. W. 543.

The same cause of action may be pleaded in different counts and plaintiff may join two counts in which recovery is asked on different and inconsistent states of facts. Hendrix v. Letourneau, 139–451, 116 N. W. 729.

Where the petition states more than one cause of action, each must be stated wholly in a count or division by itself and must be sufficient in itself. Watt v. Robbins, 142 N. W. 387.

Where, in the same action, the administrator of the estate of a deceased person asks recovery on account of the death of the deceased, due to negligence, under the state statutes and under the federal employers' liability act, the two causes of action should be stated in separate counts. Banksón v. Illinois Cent. R. Co. (D. C.) 196 Fed. 171.

SEC. 3560. Amended before answer.

When plaintiff amends his petition before answer, notice of such amendment must be served upon the defendant. Ogle v. Miller, 128–474, 104 N. W. 502.

SEC. 3561. Demurrer—causes of.

Grounds in general: Some of the grounds of demurrer relate to the omission of allegations which are not essential to the statement of a cause of action. Cahill v. Illinois Cent. R. Co., 137–577, 115 N. W. 216.

Capacity to sue: Failure of plaintiff suing as a corporation to allege corporate capacity may be taken advantage of by way of demurrer, but cannot be raised after judgment. Calnan Construction Co. v. Brown, 110–37, 81 N. W. 163.

Where want of capacity to sue is apparent on the face of the petition, such want of capacity is a ground of demurrer and unless the objection is raised by demurrer, it is deemed to be waived. Dumont v. Peet, 152–524, 132 N. W. 955.

Another action pending: The provision that pendency of another action between the same parties for the same cause may be a ground of demurrer, and that objections which are grounds of demurrer may be taken by answer when the ground does not appear on the face of the petition, does not determine the question whether the pendency of a prior action in another state or in a foreign country is a ground of abatement. Such pendency is not as a matter of law pleadable in abatement to an action in this state. Schmidt v. Posner, 130–347, 106 N. W. 760.

Defect of parties: A question as to defect of parties is not jurisdictional, and such a defect is waived unless raised by demurrer or in other proper manner. Fulliam v. Drake, 105–615, 75 N. W. 479.

The defect of parties which will afford ground for demurrer is the nonjoinder of those who should have been joined, either as plaintiffs or defendants. A misjoinder can be taken advantage of only by motion. Dolan v. Hubinger, 109–408, 80 N. W. 514.

Nonjoinder of necessary parties is such defect of parties as may be raised by demurrer. Anderson v. Acheson, 132–744, 110 N. W. 335.

Misjoinder of parties or of causes of action should be raised by motion and not by demurrer. Citizens' State Bank v. Jess, 127–450, 103 N. W. 471.

Defect in parties is not waived by a failure to make objection when the omitted parties are indispensable to the final adjudication of the rights of the parties before the courts. Such a defect of the parties may be raised for the first time on appeal. Tod v. Crisman, 123–693, 99 N. W. 686.

Nonjoinder of a necessary party is waived by not demurring to the petition or raising the question by answer. Lenoch v. Yoss, 157– —, 136 N. W. 542.

Insufficient statement of cause of action: When the construction of a pleading assailed by demurrer is doubtful, after giving to its language a reasonable intendment, the doubt is to be resolved against the pleader. Stephens v. City Council, 132–490, 107 N. W. 614.

To entire pleading: Where the petition contains but a single count it must upon demurrer be held good or bad as an entirety, and the demurrer should go to the sufficiency of the entire petition, and not to specified portions thereof. Gordon v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co., 129–747, 106 N. W. 177.

Sufficiency of demurrer: Although the demurrer raises an objection which should have been raised by motion, nevertheless if no question is raised as to the sufficiency of the demurrer on that ground there is no error in treating it as a motion and ruling upon it accordingly. Frazer v. Andrews, 134–621, 112 N. W. 92.

A demurrer made to depend, not upon what is alleged or revealed in the pleading demurred to, but upon a statement or recitation of facts not appearing in such pleading, is a "speaking" demurrer and is bad. Jeffries v. Fraternal Bankers' Reserve Soc., 135–284, 112 N. W. 786.

The grounds of the demurrer must meet the case made by the petition. Harris-Emery Co. v. Pitcairn, 122–595, 98 N. W. 476.

What admitted by demurrer: A demurrer only admits facts which are well pleaded. Cowell v. City Water Supply Co., 130–671, 105 N. W. 1016.

A demurrer admits all facts well pleaded, but not conclusions of law or facts which are contrary to law or which are legally impossible. Iowa Mut. Tornado Ins. Assn. v. Gilbertson, 129–658, 106 N. W. 153.

Where the demurring party stands upon his demurrer, he admits facts alleged in the pleading demurred to so far as they are well pleaded. Jeffries v. Fraternal Bankers' Reserve Soc., 135–284, 112 N. W. 786.

Allegations of fact as to the law of another state are confessed by demurrer. American Trading & Storage Co. v. Gottstein, 123–267, 98 N. W. 770.

Waiver: The defendant by not moving to strike an amendment to the petition, after the original pleading has been held to be defective on demurrer, waives the right to claim that the amendment is merely the restatement of the petition which has been held defective. Koboliska v. Swehla, 107–124, 77 N. W. 576.

While, generally speaking, grounds of motion are waived by demurring, the court has never been very insistent upon technical accuracy in the use of names given to such pleadings, and although a ground of demurrer is stated as a ground of motion the court may properly treat it as raising an objection proper to be raised by demurrer. Wisconsin Lumber Co. v. Greene & Western Tel. Co., 127–350, 101 N. W. 742.

Demurrer to evidence: An objection to evidence because no cause of action is stated in the petition is not recognized in practice. It is a sort of oral demurrer for which there is no authority. Bower v. Commercial Building Inv. Co., 110–491, 81 N. W. 720.

As to motion to direct a verdict see notes to code § 3722 in this supplement.

SEC. 3562. How specific.

A demurrer is not a pruning hook and cannot be used to trim out immaterial and irrelevant matter. This must be done by motion. In re Estate of McMurray, 107–648, 78 N. W. 691.

In a special proceeding the demurrer must specify and number the grounds of objection to the pleading. Ibid.

A demurrer to a petition in an action at law, stated in the terms of the fifth division of the preceding section, is not sufficient and should be overruled. Stokes v. Sprague, 110–89, 81 N. W. 195.

In an action at law the defects in the petition must be specifically pointed out and a general statement of the ground of demurrer is not sufficient. Robinson v. Grant, 119–573, 93 N. W. 586.

In a law action the demurrer must point out the ground of objection; it is not sufficient to say that the facts stated do not constitute a cause of action or a defense. Timken Carriage Co. v. Smith & Co., 123–554, 99 N. W. 183.

In a law action a demurrer to an answer which in effect states no more than that the allegations of the answer do not constitute a defense, is insufficient. Slafter v. Concordia Fire Ins. Co., 142–116, 120 N. W. 706.

Where the sole relief demanded is equitable, a general demurrer is sufficient. Mengel v. Mengel, 145–737, 120 N. W. 72, 122 N W. 899.

In an action on contract, the statement by way of demurrer that the facts alleged in plaintiff's petition did not entitle plaintiff to recover because the petition did not allege or show that defendant had ever become liable on any enforceable contract entered into on his part, was held sufficient. Stewart v. Puck Soap Co., 154–411, 135 N. W. 70.

SEC. 3563. Objection raised by answer—arrest of judgment.

Waiver of objections: Grounds of demurrer or motion are waived by proceeding to trial without raising such objection. Chicago & N. W. R. Co. v. DeClow, 124 Fed. 142.

Failure to demur or move in arrest of judgment on account of defects in the petion constitutes a waiver of such defects. Nichols-Shepard Co. v. Ringler, 135–181, 112 N. W. 543.

A defect appearing in the petition is waived if no attack is made thereon, either by demurrer or motion in arrest. Mitchell v McLeod, 127–733, 104 N. W. 349.

Where defendant answers he thereby waives any ground of demurrer. Barrett v. Des Moines Mut. H. & C. Ins. Assn., 120–184, 94 N. W. 473.

Failure to demur on the ground of nonjoinder of parties is a waiver of such objection. Anderson v. Acheson, 132–744, 110 N. W. 335.

Objection to improper joinder of causes of action is waived by answering. Keller v. Strong, 104–585, 73 N. W. 1071.

Objection as to misjoinder of causes of action should be made by motion to strike, and is waived by failure to raise the objection. Campbell v. Spears, 120–670, 94 N. W. 1126.

An objection which might be raised by motion for more specific statement is waived by going to trial. Fox v. Waterloo Nat. Bank, 126–481, 102 N. W. 424.

Where a case has been tried on the theory that the pleadings are sufficient to present the question which is submitted, a party cannot on appeal for the first time take advantage of defects in such pleadings. Alexander v. Grand Lodge A. O. U. W., 119–519, 93 N. W. 508.

The allegations of a pleading not sufficiently specific will support a judgment if not in any manner questioned. A party who has had the benefit of the correct rule of law on the theory on which the case had been tried cannot afterwards complain of insufficiency of the pleadings Hobbs v. Marion, 123–726, 99 N. W. 577.

After waiving any objection which might have been raised to the pleadings, a party cannot claim that they did not present the issue which is in fact tried Caldwell v. Drummond, 127–134, 102 N. W. 842.

Where defendant is allowed to introduce, without objection, under the general issue, evidence of a defense that could be properly offered only under a special defense pleaded, plaintiff should be deemed to have waived the objection to the insufficiency of the pleading. Beach v. Wakefield, 107–567, 76 N. W. 688, 78 N. W. 197.

And see notes to § 3597.

Statute of frauds: When parol evidence of a contract within the statute of frauds is introduced upon the trial without objection, it cannot afterwards be objected to upon appeal. Marr v. Burlington, C. R. & N. R. Co., 121–117, 96 N. W. 716.

Statute of limitations: The defense of the statute of limitations is an affirmative one, and is waived if not pleaded. When not pleaded such defense should not be submitted to the jury, even though supported by facts appearing in the record. McDonald v. Bice, 113–44, 84 N. W. 985.

Although the allegations of the petition are such that the defense of the statute of limitations might be raised by demurrer, such defense may be raised by an allegation in the answer in the nature of a conclusion of law. Central Trust Co. v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co., 156–104, 135 N. W. 721.

And see notes to § 3447.

Misjoinder of parties: The method of reaching misjoinder is by motion and not by demurrer or answer. Steber v. Chicago, G. W. R. Co., 139–153, 117 N. W. 304.

Ruling not conclusive: The ruling on a demurrer does not constitute the law of the case in such sense that a subsequent ruling inconsistent with that made on the demurrer may not be sustained. Darling v. Blazek, 142–355, 120 N. W. 961.

A ruling on demurrer does not become the law of the case, and the same question which is raised by demurrer may be raised at subsequent stages of the procedure as though no such ruling had been made. Pleading over after a ruling on demurrer does not waive the right to raise the same question in some other manner. Back v. Back, 148–223, 125 N. W. 1009.

Where a demurrer to the petition is overruled and an answer is filed, the ruling on the demurrer is not an adjudication of the questions raised and the sufficiency of the pleading attacked may be determined as if no demurrer had been filed. Ware v. Leffert, 151–17, 130 N. W. 793.

Motion in arrest of judgment: It is not every objection which might have been good if raised by demurrer that is available to the unsuccessful party on motion in arrest of judgment. The objection that inconsistent causes of action are stated in the same count of the petition cannot thus be raised. Robbins v. Bosserman, 133–318, 110 N. W. 587.

Where plaintiff in an action for personal injuries fails to allege freedom from contributory negligence, and defendant demurs to the petition on that ground and the demurrer is overruled, defendant may still raise the objection by a motion in arrest of judgment, and if the plaintiff does not offer to cure such defect by taking advantage of code § 3760, the court may properly sustain the motion. Decatur v. Simpson, 115–348, 88 N. W. 839.

Failure in a petition stating a cause of action for personal injuries to allege the freedom of the plaintiff from contributory negligence may be taken advantage of by motion in arrest of judgment. Brown v. Illinois Cent. R. Co., 123–239, 98 N. W. 625.

The court should not, however, make the omission of such allegation a ground for directing a verdict for the defendant without giving the plaintiff an opportunity to amend in that respect. Ibid.

The objection that an action was prematurely brought may be raised by motion in arrest of judgment. Reeves v. Lamm, 120–283, 94 N. W. 839.

The objection that notice of a claim for damages against a telegraph company was not presented within sixty days, as required by statute (code § 2164), may be first raised by motion in arrest of judgment. Free v. Western Union Tel. Co., 135–69, 110 N. W. 143.

A party does not by pleading over waive his right to attack the pleading of the adverse party at a subsequent time in the progress of the case, but he may raise the question of the sufficiency of the pleading by motion in arrest of judgment, or to direct a verdict. If, however, he fails to make objection this way he cannot have the ruling reviewed on appeal. Hawkeye Loan & Brokerage Co. v. Gordon, 115–561, 88 N. W. 1081.

If the pleadings do not present a cause of action or defense, and the question has been properly raised in the court below, and a ruling had thereon, the question may be reviewed upon proper assignment of error in an equity case, notwithstanding the fact that the party may have pleaded over and had a trial on the merits. Ibid.

A motion in arrest of judgment should not be sustained on account of a defect in the pleading which might be cured by amendment; and where an issue has in fact been submitted which might have been raised by proper pleading, the technical failure to raise such issue is cured by the verdict. Cahill v. Illinois Cent. R. Co., 137–577, 115 N. W. 216.

SEC. 3564. Demurrer to one of several causes—effect of demurrer and ruling.

The provision of 25 G. A., ch. 96, that no pleading should be held sufficient on account of the failure to demur thereto, held not to entitle a party to urge in the supreme court objections to a pleading not raised in the trial court. Reed v. Muscatine, 104–183, 73 N. W. 579; Wood v. Dunham, 105–701, 75 N. W. 507; Lacy v. Kossuth County, 106–16, 75 N. W. 689.

An objection to the petition, not raised by answer or demurrer, is not deemed waived under the present code. Pierson v. Independent School Dist., 106–695, 77 N. W. 494.

The provision of 25 G. A., ch. 96, as to the effect of a ruling on demurrer, does not change the rule of pleading that a party answering over after his demurrer to a petition has been overruled thereby waives any error in such ruling. Buchanan v. Blackhawk Coal Works, 119–118, 93 N. W. 51.

The provision as to the effect of the overruling of a demurrer was not designed to permit a review of the ruling on the demurrer which had been overruled, where the party demurring had afterwards filed an answer or replied, but to provide that the ruling should not have the effect of an adjudication, and to permit the party demurring unsuccessfully to question the sufficiency of the pleading in other ways during the progress of the trial, as by motion to direct a verdict, or in arrest of judgment. In such a case the party, by pleading over, waives his right to complain of the ruling on his demurrer, but does not waive his right to attack the pleading on the grounds upon which his demurrer was founded at any subsequent time in the progress of the case. Frum v. Keeney, 109–393, 80 N. W. 507.

Notwithstanding the provisions of 25 G. A., ch. 96 (now embodied in the last sentence of this section), questions not raised in the court below will not be considered on appeal. Hough v. Gearen, 110–240, 81 N. W. 463.

Mere failure to demur to a defective petition does not prevent defendant from raising the objection in some other way. But he cannot allow the case to be tried on the theory that the petition is sufficient and then on exceptions to the giving of instructions on the issue raise the question as to whether a cause of action is stated. Enix v. Iowa Cent. R. Co., 114–508, 87 N. W. 417.

Where the sufficiency of a pleading is not attacked by demurrer or otherwise and the allegations thereof are established by the proof, the party relying on such pleading is entitled to succeed, although it might have been held defective had it been attacked. Ormsby v. Graham, 123–202, 98 N. W. 724.

The objection that the defendant is a township and therefore is not a public corporation which can be sued is not waived by failure to demur to the petition on this ground, but may be raised in any other proper manner. Austin Western Co. v. Weaver Twp., 136–709, 114 N. W. 189.

In order to raise by objection to evidence a question as to the sufficiency of an answer which might be raised by demurrer, the objection must in some way call the court's attention to that as the ground. Coad v. Schaap, 144–240, 122 N. W. 900.

SEC. 3565. Joinder in demurrer—answering, amending or pleading over.

Pleading over: By amending or pleading over after an adverse ruling on a motion or demurrer the pleader waives any error in such ruling. Hurd v. Ladner, 110–263, 81 N. W. 470; Frick v. Kabaker, 116–494, 90 N. W. 498; McKee v. Illinois Cent. R. Co., 121–550, 97 N. W. 69; Hunn v. Ashton, 121–265, 96 N. W. 745; Davis v. Boyer, 122–132, 97 N. W. 1002; Scribner v. Taggart, 123–321, 98 N. W. 798; Redhead v. Iowa National Bank, 123–336, 98 N. W. 806; Long v. Furnas, 130–504, 107 N. W. 432; Iowa-Minnesota Land Co. v. Conner, 136–674, 112 N. W. 820.

A party going to trial after the overruling of a motion to strike, or of a demurrer, cannot urge error in such ruling on an appeal from the final judgment, unless subsequently on the trial he has presented in some way to the court his objections to the pleadings. Puritan Mfg. Co. v. Emporium, 130–526, 107 N. W. 428.

If a party, after an adverse ruling on demurrer or on motion, pleads over or secures time to plead, he by so doing waives the error in the ruling, and it has likewise been held that where the law tenders an issue without the filing of further pleadings, he who would take advantage of an order overruling a demurrer must stand upon the pleading in order to have his case reviewed; but a defendant who demurs to plaintiff's petition and after the overruling of the demurrer does not ask for further time to plead over, files no other pleading in the case and makes no further appearance, is deemed to stand on the demurrer without the record showing a formal election. If it affirmatively appears that the unsuccessful party did not waive the error under the ruling, that is sufficient. Denby v. Fie, 106–299, 76 N. W. 702.

By filing an amendment to his petition after a demurrer thereto is sustained, the plaintiff waives any error in the ruling on the demurrer. But such ruling does not thereby become an adjudication in such sense that the same question cannot be raised in some other way. On the other hand the defendant by failing to object further to the allegations in the amendment which are open to the same objection previously made by demurrer does not waive his grounds of demurrer if his answer contains the same objections which by demurrer were interposed to the original petition. Marshall Ice Co. v. LaPlant, 136–621, 111 N. W. 1016.

By pleading over after a ruling sustaining a demurrer to his petition, plaintiff waives the error, if any, but the ruling does not constitute an adjudication, and the same question may be presented in other ways. Geiser Mfg. Co. v. Krogman, 111–503, 82 N. W. 938.

One who pleads over after an adverse ruling on a demurrer waives the error in that ruling, but such ruling does not constitute an adjudication binding in the subsequent course of the trial and the same question may be presented in other ways as by motion in arrest or to direct a verdict or by objections to evidence. Watkins v. Iowa Cent. R. Co., 123–390, 98 N. W. 910.

One who after his pleading has been held defective on demurrer pleads over by a mere repetition of the matter before held insufficient, does not waive the ruling against him, but if he has not excepted to the ruling the only question on a subsequent motion to strike the new pleading as a mere repetition is as to whether it is in fact a repetition of the pleading held to be insufficient. But new matter cannot be attacked by a motion to strike on the ground that the allegation thereof is a mere repetition. Ibid.

Plaintiff appealing from judgment against him on demurrer to his petition on the ground that it does not state facts sufficient to show a cause of action, cannot complain of the sustaining of a motion complied with by him requiring him to make his petition more specific. Sigmond v. Bebber, 104–431, 73 N. W. 1027.

Standing upon pleading or demurrer: Where judgment has been rendered against plaintiff whose petition has been held insufficient on demurrer, and who has elected to stand on his petition and not to amend, such judgment constitutes a final adjudication. Gregory v. Woodworth, 107–151, 77 N. W. 837.

In general, judgment goes against the party whose pleading is held insufficient on demurrer only when he elects to stand on his pleading, or when, having asked leave to amend, he is in default for not doing so. Williams v. Williams, 115–520, 88 N. W. 1057.

A party who elects to stand on his demurrer concedes the facts properly pleaded and simply challenges the conclusions of law predicated upon such facts. Slafter v. Concordia Fire Ins. Co., 142–116, 120 N. W. 706.

A demurrer is a legal exception to the sufficiency of a pleading; and when the petition is held insufficient as to certain items contained therein and plaintiff fails to plead over, judgment of dismissal as to counts containing such items may be entered. Wapello State Sav. Bank v. Colton, 143–359, 122 N. W. 149.

Where a party stands on his pleading which has been held insufficient on demurrer and appeals he cannot after affirmance amend so as to obviate the ruling on demurrer. Ibid.

SEC. 3566. Answer—what to contain—distinct defenses.

Denial: In an action for libel where plaintiff alleges the falsity of the statements, defendant may under general denial introduce evidence of their truth. Locke v. Chicago Chronicle Co., 107–390, 78 N. W. 49; Moffitt v. Chicago Chronicle Co., 107–407, 78 N. W. 45.

Under a general denial of a settlement, any evidence should be received which tends to show that no valid settlement was made. Beach v. Wakefield, 107–567, 76 N. W. 688, 78 N. W. 197.

Under general denial in an action for breach of contract the defendant may not only offer testimony in denial of the contract as claimed by plaintiff, but also to prove the contract which defendant claims was in fact made, and the nonperformance thereof on plaintiff's part. Tracy Land Co. v. Polk County Land & Loan Co., 131–40, 107 N. W. 1029.

In an action for goods sold to defendant the defendant may under general denial prove that the goods were purchased by him for another. Cole v. Laird, 121–146, 96 N. W. 744.

Where plaintiff's claim is based on various items, each of which is expressly denied, the validity of each item is put in controversy, although the plaintiff claims in the aggregate much less than the total amount of the items specified. Steele v. Crabtree, 130–313, 106 N. W. 753.

Where plaintiff sues for breach of contract for the payment of a specified sum of money, he must allege the fact of nonpayment and such fact is put in issue by a general denial. Howerton v. Augustine, 130–389, 106 N. W. 941.

In an action for specific performance based on a contract of sale made by an agent, the defendant may under general denial show want of authority to the agent to enter into such contract. Staten v. Hammer, 121–499, 96 N. W. 964.

A general or specific denial as authorized by the statute may be introduced without being objectionable as a conclusion. While conclusions may not be pleaded by way of affirmative averment, there is no such objection to a general or specific denial. Provident Bank Stock Co. v. Schafer, 110–440, 81 N. W. 689.

A specific denial in response to any specific allegation, not predicated on any new matter, adds no new issue to that arising by a general denial. Hess v. Hayes, 146–620, 125 N. W. 671.

While a general denial of indebtedness does not raise an issue, the defendant cannot be properly charged as being in default while such denial remains unassailed. Thorn v. Hambleton, 149–214, 128 N. W. 393.

New matter — affirmative defenses: Where the plaintiff's petition shows on its face that the claim is not barred by the statute of limitations, the question can be raised by defendant only by an answer. Goring v. Fitzgerald, 105–507, 75 N. W. 358.

Settlement is an affirmative defense as to which the burden of proof is on the defendant. Johnson v. Berdo, 131–524, 106 N. W. 609.

A defendant, in order to avail himself of facts not appearing on the face of a contract to establish its invalidity, must plead such facts. Richey v. Rowland, 130–523, 107 N. W. 423.

Where affirmative matter is pleaded both by way of defense and as a ground for a counterclaim, the dismissal of the counterclaim does not constitute a dismissal of the defense. Steele v. Crabtree, 130–313, 106 N. W. 753.

Confession and avoidance: While allegations by way of avoidance must be coupled with a confession of plaintiff's cause of action, it is sufficient if the confession be by implication. Jackson v. Independent School Dist., 110–313, 81 N. W. 596.

A plea in confession and avoidance is necessary only when defendant proposes to admit the truth of a material allegation made by the plaintiff and to avoid liability thereon by affirmative proof of matters which destroy the effect of the allegations admitted. Staten v. Hammer, 121–499, 96 N. W. 964.

Special defenses: In an action for malicious prosecution, evidence of advice of counsel as rebutting malice and want of probable cause is admissible without being specially pleaded. McAllister v. Johnson, 108–42, 78 N. W. 790.

If it is desired to rely upon facts as an affirmative defense, they should be pleaded in avoidance. Kingsbury v. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co., 104–63, 73 N. W. 477.

In a suit against a municipal corporation, based on a contract for services, the defense that the contract is ultra vires must be specially pleaded. Ryan v. Lone Tree, 122–420, 98 N. W. 287.

If the defendant in an action on a written contract relies upon breach by plaintiff of a condition precedent, the plaintiff relying upon waiver of the performance of such condition must plead such waiver. Cavanagh v. Iowa Beer Co., 136–236, 113 N. W. 856.

And see notes under § 3629.

Inconsistent defenses: While a defendant has the right to plead the same defense as many times as he sees fit, he has the right to prove it but once, and if this right is preserved to him he cannot complain of the action of the trial court in striking out portions of his answer. Shambaugh v. Current, 111–121, 82 N. W. 497.

Where one of the divisions of an answer admits defendant's liability, plaintiff is entitled to judgment, although in other divisions of the answer defendant's liability is controverted. Burns v. Chicago, Ft. M. & D. M. R. Co., 110–385, 81 N. W. 794.

Defendant in an action for goods sold and delivered may plead rescission and also set up a counterclaim for breach of warranty. He is not required to elect. Thorson & Cassidy Co. v. Baker, 107–49, 77 N. W. 510.

As to inconsistent defenses see code § 3620 and notes.

In an action on a contract, the defendant may, in addition to a general denial, plead another and different contract by the terms of which the plaintiff was to be compensated in a different manner than under the contract referred to in the petition. Lemke v. Franzenburg, 141 N. W. 332.

Partial defense: A demurrer cannot be interposed to allegations in an answer not pleaded in themselves as a complete defense, but as material with other allegations in making out a defense. Seaton v. Grimm, 110–145, 81 N. W. 225.

Even matter in mitigation should be specially pleaded as a partial defense, and cannot be proven under a general denial. Vierling v. Binder, 113–337, 85 N. W. 621.

Equitable defense: A judgment cannot be attacked in equity on account of any defense which might have been interposed to the recovery of judgment. Ulber v. Dunn, 143–260, 119 N. W. 269.

Counterclaim: Allegations in the answer which are in the nature of a counterclaim will support affirmative relief to the defendant, no objection to the sufficiency of the pleading as constituting a counterclaim having been made. Crawford v. Ft. Dodge Plaster Co., 125–658, 101 N. W. 479.

The defendant has a right to file a counterclaim at the time of filing his answer. Smith v. Redmond, 141–105, 119 N. W. 271.

A defendant sued upon a specified contract may counterclaim for any alleged breach thereof by the plaintiff unless the demand or cause of action so pleaded has been in some manner settled or adjusted or the defendant has in some other manner estopped himself from asserting it. If the right to counterclaim has been thus lost or avoided or waived, that fact constitutes an affirmative defense which, to be of avail, must be pleaded. Watkins Medical Co. v. Moss, 141 N. W. 497.

SEC. 3568. Divisions of answer.

Where the answer is in separate divisions, the matter pleaded in other divisions may be taken into consideration in determining what force and effect should be given to any one division. Teeple v. Hawkeye Gold Dredging Co., 137–206, 114 N. W. 906.

The fact that affirmative defenses are joined with a general denial will not authorize the sustaining of a demurrer to the entire answer, the remedy of the plaintiff being by motion to require the defendant to separately plead the separate defenses or to elect on which he will rely. McKay v. McCarthy, 146–546, 123 N. W. 755.

SEC. 3570. Counterclaim—how stated—what may constitute.

Nature of counterclaim—when proper: The counterclaim proper presents matter upon which an original action might have been brought in defendant's favor. Bardes v. Hutchinson, 113–610, 85 N. W. 797.

A counterclaim does not constitute a defense. Johnson v. Nash-Wright Co., 121–173, 96 N. W. 760.

The mere fact that affirmative relief is prayed for in a counterclaim or cross bill against the plaintiff does not justify judgment in the defendant's favor against the plaintiff on the failure of the latter to appear if the allegations of the defendant's pleading are merely defensive in character. Stewart v. Gorham, 122–669, 98 N. W. 512.

Any new matter constituting a cause of action in favor of defendant may be pleaded as a counterclaim against the demand of the plaintiff, provided such counterclaim was held by the defendant at the time the action by plaintiff was brought. Richardson v. Richardson, 134–242, 111 N. W. 934.

A cause of action not held by the defendant at the time action is instituted against him by the plaintiff cannot be interposed as a counterclaim. Morrison Mfg. Co. v. Rimerman, 127–719, 104 N. W. 279.

A counter demand going directly to the amount due on account of the very transaction out of which the demand arises is a right of recoupment which is often spoken of as a defense and is more than a mere counterclaim. Medart Pulley Co. v. Dubuque Turbine & Roller Mill Co., 121–244, 96 N. W. 770.

Inasmuch as the landlord in an action for an attachment for rent cannot join other causes of action against the tenant, if the tenant sets up a counterclaim plaintiff may in reply interpose any matter of set-off which he may have as against the counterclaim. Illsly v. Grayson, 105–685, 75 N. W. 518.

After trial in an equity case and remanding the case for further proceedings, it is not proper to allow the introduction of a counterclaim which sets up a right of recovery at law and which does not grow out of the same transaction. Allen v. Davenport, 115–20, 87 N. W. 743.

A claim for repayment of money paid for intoxicating liquors illegally sold (code § 2423) exists from the time such payment was made, and nothing but a demand is necessary to mature it, and therefore such a claim may be introduced by way of counterclaim, although the demand for repayment has not been made until after the bringing of the action in which the counterclaim is sought to be introduced. Brown v. Wieland, 116–711, 89 N. W. 17.

A counterclaim based on a cause of action arising out of the contracts or transactions set forth in the petition or connected with the subject of the action is in effect a set-off. Hogle v. Smith, 136–32, 113 N. W. 556.

A cause of action thus pleaded is barred by a judgment in the action in which the counterclaim is so pleaded, although the defendant neglects to introduce evidence in support of such counterclaim. Ibid.

In an action brought for the value of goods as in conversion or upon an implied promise to pay the value thereof, the defendant may plead by way of counterclaim any indebtedness of the plaintiff to him. Smith Lumber Co. v. Scott County Garbage Co., 149–272, 128 N. W. 389.

A codefendant who answers a cross-petition on its merits without objection submits the subject matter to the jurisdiction of the court and cannot afterwards complain that the cross-petition contains matter not pertaining to the petition. Novak v. Novak, 137–519, 115 N. W. 1.

One of two codefendants cannot by cross-petition set up against the plaintiff a cause of action in which his codefendant has no interest. Kauffman v. Phillips, 154–542, 134 N. W. 575.

Action in representative capacity: In an action brought in a representative capacity a counterclaim against the plaintiff as an individual cannot be interposed. Headington v. Smith, 113–107, 84 N. W. 982.

Debt belonging to partnership: A claim against an estate after the death of the intestate cannot be set up as a counterclaim in an action by the administrator. Sullivan v. Nicoulin, 113–76, 84 N. W. 978.

To be available as a counterclaim the claim must have been owed to the defendant at the time of the commencement of the action, and it is not enough that the debt belonged to a partnership of which he was a member. Ibid.

The indebtedness of one member of a partnership cannot be set off as against an action brought by the partnership to recover partnership funds. Hoaglin v. Henderson, 119–720, 94 N. W. 247.

Failure to interpose: A counterclaim may or may not be pleaded in an action as the defendant shall elect, and held that the vendee of property, buying under a guaranty, might plead breach of the guaranty as a defense in an action for the balance of the purchase money, and afterwards in an independent action recover damages sustained by reason of the seller's breach. Jones v. Witousek, 114–14, 86 N. W. 59.

If the matter of set-off or counterclaim is presented and passed upon in the suit it is barred by the judgment; if not, defendant may make it the subject of a separate and distinct action. Ibid.

The fact that defendant in an attachment suit pleads and establishes a counterclaim, thus defeating recovery of judgment by plaintiff, does not show that the attachment was sued out maliciously and without probable cause. The defendant has the election not to plead the indebtedness in his favor as a set-off or counterclaim, but to make it the subject of a separate and distinct action. Smeaton v. Cole, 120–368, 94 N. W. 909.

Failure to plead an existing cause of action as a counterclaim does not operate as a cancellation or satisfaction of such cause of action. Ferguson v. Epperly, 127–214, 103 N. W. 94.

SEC. 3572. Counterclaim by comaker or surety.

An adjudication of the principal's right to a set-off or counterclaim is conclusive on the surety afterwards seeking the benefit thereof. Beh v. Bay, 127–246, 103 N. W. 119.

SEC. 3574. Cross-petition.

Wholly distinct and independent transactions cannot be brought into an action by cross-petition. It is only where a defendant has a cause of action affecting the subject matter of the main suit that a cross-petition against a codefendant or a third person may be interposed. Culbertson v. Salinger, 131–307, 108 N. W. 454.

New parties may be brought into a case in order to settle in one action all controversies growing out of the transaction to which the action relates by affording the parties thus brought in an opportunity to file a cross-petition. Farmers & Mer. Bank v. Wood, 143–635, 118 N. W. 282, 120 N. W. 625.

The law allows and encourages the bringing, so far as practicable of all controversies relating to the same subject matter of dispute into one action. Therefore held that a defendant might, in a cross bill, get relief against a codefendant although the matter alleged constituted no answer to plaintiff's claim. Minden Canning Co. v. Hensley, 149–168, 126 N. W. 1115.

Wholly distinct and independent transactions cannot be brought into the case by cross-petition against a codefendant. Such petition must relate to the subject matter of the action or the contract or transaction upon which the action was instituted. Eller v. Newell, 141 N. W. 52.

One who is not made party to the suit cannot, in the federal courts, file a cross bill. United States Gypsum Co. v. Hoxie, (C. C.) 172 Fed. 504.

SEC. 3575. Demurrer to answer.

If matter pleaded as a defense is not attacked by motion or demurrer it will, if proved, defeat the plaintiff's action, although had the question been raised the answer would have been held to present no defense. Ormsby v. Graham, 123–202, 98 N. W. 724.

Failure to make sufficient answer in a proceeding auxiliary to execution is not to be taken advantage of by demurrer. Jordan Co. v. Sperry, 141–225, 119 N. W. 692.

The statement as ground of demurrer to an answer that the facts set out do not constitute a defense is not sufficient. Slafter v. Concordia Fire Ins. Co., 142–116, 120 N. W. 706.

SEC. 3576. Reply—when necessary.

A reply introducing a new cause of action should be stricken out on motion. Hunt v. Johnston, 105–311, 75 N. W. 103.

Where in an action for personal injuries defendant pleads contributory negligence of the plaintiff, the plaintiff, desiring to rely upon the fact that defendant might by reasonable care have prevented the injury to plaintiff after plaintiff's contributory negligence became apparent, should plead such fact in the reply. Ford v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co., 106–85, 75 N. W. 650.

Matter in avoidance of facts alleged in the answer should be pleaded in a reply. Pitstick v. Osterman, 107–189, 77 N. W. 845.

The allegations of an answer setting up an affirmative defense are denied by operation of law without the filing of a reply. League v. Ehmke, 120–464, 94 N. W. 938.

The averment of settlement in an answer is denied by operation of law. If, however, the plaintiff desires to impeach such settlement on account of fraud or mistake, such matter should be set up in a reply. Stomne v. Hanford Prod. Co., 108–137, 78 N. W. 841.

A reply should not be stricken out on motion for being inconsistent with the petition where no inconsistency appears on the face of the reply, though such inconsistency may become apparent under the evidence. Keairnes v. Durst, 110–114, 81 N. W. 238.

Where one sets up matter of avoidance in the reply it is not necessary that he couple it with a denial. The law denies all affirmative allegations in the answer, save where a counterclaim is pleaded. Parno v. Iowa Merchants Mut. Ins. Co., 114–132, 86 N. W. 210.

Facts recited in a reply are not to be treated as constituting a cause of action, either of themselves or in connection with matters stated in the petition, but only as avoiding the defense alleged in the answer. Cedar Rapids Water Co. v. Cedar Rapids, 117–250, 90 N. W. 746.

Refusal to strike an unverified reply may be error without prejudice, though the petition is verified, if the reply consists only of a general denial to the allegations of the answer. Keller v. Harrison, 139–383, 116 N. W. 327.

SEC. 3577. Statements of.

Allegations of the answer being denied by operation of law, the burden of proving the same is upon the defendant, notwithstanding confession and avoidance pleaded in the reply. Parsons v. A. O. U. W., 108–6, 78 N. W. 676.

SEC. 3580. Verification—when necessary.

The omission of the signature of plaintiff's attorney at the conclusion of the petition is a defect of form only, and in the absence of a showing that the defendant has been misled or prejudiced thereby, it does not necessitate the dismissal of the action on defendant's motion. First National Bank v. Stone, 122–558, 98 N. W. 362.

The signature of a pleading purporting to be signed by the party in whose behalf it is filed, may be assumed, in the absence of evidence to the contrary, to be his signature. Frank v. Berry, 128–223, 103 N. W. 358.

Although the jurat does not show in what county the oath was administered, it will be presumed that it was administered in the proper county. Turner v. Loomis, 146–655, 125 N. W. 662.

The failure to verify an answer, when verification is necessary, does not expose the defendant to the peril of being held in default so long as his pleading stands unassailed by motion or demurrer. Thorn v. Hambleton, 149–214, 128 N. W. 393.

SEC. 3581. By corporation.

A corporation may verify its answer denying the genuineness of the corporate signature by the oath of its secretary. Marshall Field Co. v. Oren Ruffcorn Co., 117–157, 90 N. W. 618.

SEC. 3583. By agent or attorney.

The provision that an affidavit of an attorney to a pleading is insufficient if it fails to show his competency to state the facts has reference to pleadings only and not to other matters which may require verification. The affidavit of an attorney made the basis of an auxiliary proceeding will be presumed to have been made with knowledge of the facts and to have been accepted by his client in whose behalf such affidavit is made. Carpenter v. Clements, 122–294, 98 N. W. 129.

Where the verification is by an attorney his competency to make oath as to facts must appear; but the recital that he is familiar with all the statements made in the pleading and that they are true as he verily believes, is sufficient. Turner v. Loomis, 146–655, 125 N. W. 662.

SEC. 3588. Failure to verify.

Failure to verify a petition of forcible entry and detainer will be waived if not taken advantage of in the trial court. Herkimer v. Keeler, 109–680, 81 N. W. 178.

Advantage of the failure to verify a pleading can only be taken by motion to strike. Newburn v. Lucas, 126–85, 101 N. W. 730.

Verification of a reply is immaterial when such reply pleads only a general denial of the answer such as is implied by operation of law. Keller v. Harrison, 139–383, 116 N. W. 327.

SEC. 3591. Amendments not verified.

The court may permit an amendment to be filed without verification. Thompson v. Brown, 106–367, 76 N. W. 819.

Where no new cause of action is set up in an amendment to the petition it is not necessary that such amendment be verified. Keller v. Harrison, 139–383, 116 N. W. 327.

Section applied. Boos v. Dulin, 103–331, 72 N. W. 533.

SEC. 3592. Pleading in slander and libel.

Extrinsic facts need not be alleged in an action for slander to show that the language charged was spoken in a defamatory sense. Craver v. Norton, 114–46, 86 N. W. 54.

SEC. 3593. Matter in mitigation—justification.

Matters in mitigation cannot be proven unless specially pleaded. Craver v. Norton, 114–46, 86 N. W. 54; Flam v. Lee, 116–289, 90 N. W. 70.

In an action for breach of promise of marriage, want of chastity on the part of the plaintiff before or after the alleged promise is a circumstance tending to lessen damages, but must be specially pleaded by way of mitigation. Likewise seduction of plaintiff by the defendant, if relied upon, should be specially pleaded in such case by way of aggravation. Herriman v. Layman, 118–590, 92 N. W. 710.

In an action for criminal conversation the bad character of plaintiff's wife prior to her marriage is matter in mitigation of damages only, and as such must be pleaded. Frank v. Berry, 128–223, 103 N. W. 358.

In an action by the wife for alienation of her husband's affections, the bad moral character of the plaintiff may be pleaded and shown by way of mitigation of damages. Hardwick v. Hardwick, 130–230, 106 N. W. 639.

Under a denial, a plea in mitigation, such as that the defendant in an action for slander did not intend to charge a crime, cannot be proven. Ladwig v. Heyer, 136–196, 113 N. W. 767.

The plea of justification in libel must be as broad as the charge. Mulvaney v. Burroughs, 152–439, 132 N. W. 873.

Where the defendant in an action for slander denies the speaking of the words charged and alleges nothing by way of mitigation, it is not necessary for the court to instruct as to the effect of mitigating circumstances which may appear in the evidence. Hahn v. Lumpa, 157– —, 138 N. W. 492.

SEC. 3594. Intervention.

In a proceeding before the board of supervisors for the remission of a mulct tax, there is no right of intervention by a mortgagee of the premises on which the tax has been levied for the determination of the question whether his mortgage is prior to the lien of the tax, nor can such question be raised in the district court on appeal from the action of the board. David v Hardin County, 104–204, 73 N. W. 576.

It is the policy of the law to permit conflicting claims of priority growing out of a single mortgage to be settled in one action and such a result may be secured by intervention of parties interested in the property. Cooper v. Mohler, 104–301, 73 N. W. 828.

An assignee for the benefit of creditors, to whom has been transferred a right to recover on an attachment bond, may intervene in the original action for the purpose of recovering on such bond. Ringen Stove Co. v. Bowers, 109–175, 80 N. W. 318.

An assignee of the claim on which the action is based is not entitled to intervene. He may allow the action to proceed in the name of the assignor, or may have himself substituted. Bank of Commerce v. Timbrell, 113–713, 84 N. W. 519.

Where the wife in a proceeding for divorce and alimony asked to have a conveyance of property from her husband to a third party set aside as fraudulent, and after a dismissal of the action by plaintiff was filed and before any order of dismissal had been entered, attorneys for the wife sought to intervene, asking to have their claims for attorneys' fees enforced against the land, held that they had no such standing with reference to the controversy as to be entitled to intervene, and that at any rate the application was too late. Keehn v. Keehn, 115–467, 88 N. W. 957.

The creditor of an insolvent partnership may come into a receivership proceedings in which the distribution of assets of the firm is being determined as between the partners and have an order for the payment of his claim. Johnson v. Johnson, 132–457, 107 N. W. 802.

One who intervenes in an action may subsequently withdraw such intervention so as not to be bound by the further proceedings in the case. Guinn v. Iowa & St. L. R. Co., 125–301, 101 N. W. 94.

In an action against the tenant of a farm to restrain him from interfering with or obstructing the outlet to a tile drain carrying water from adjoining premises, the owner of the land involved is entitled to intervene for the purpose of having his rights as against the threatened discharge of water upon his land protected. Orcutt v. Woodard, 136–412, 113 N. W. 848.

A decree against defendant by default will not be binding on an intervener whose petition of intervention remains undisposed of at the time the decree is rendered. McCullough v. Connelly, 137–682, 114 N. W. 301.

There is no method provided by which the attaching plaintiff can compel another person to intervene for the purpose of setting up any claim he may have to the property. Dimsdale v. Tolerton-Warfield Co., 151–425, 131 N. W. 689.

One who intervenes in an action is not entitled to maintain a cross bill against the plaintiff on an independent cause of action. Kauffman v. Phillips, 154–542, 134 N. W. 575.

On an appeal from the action of the board of supervisors in holding a petition for general consent to the sale of intoxicating liquors to be insufficient, any citizen may intervene under the provisions of code § 2450. Anderson v. Board of Supervisors, 156–153, 135 N. W. 570.

SEC. 3595. Decision—no delay—costs.

The provisions of this section as to delay refer to delay of trial and not to such delay as may result from an immediate trial. If the intervener, by his action, does not occasion any postponement, he is not chargeable with delay resulting from the trial of his petition of intervention. Ringen Stove Co. v. Bowers, 109–175, 80 N. W. 318.

SEC. 3597. Variance—amendments.

A variance between allegations and proof which does not mislead the opposite party is immaterial. Harward v. Davenport, 105–592, 75 N. W. 487; Wenks v. Hazard, 149–16, 127 N. W. 1099.

Objection cannot be made to the allowing of an amendment on the ground of surprise when the evidence which may be introduced thereunder would have been admissible under the original pleading. Thompson v. Brown, 106–367, 76 N. W. 819.

As the parties by amendment may introduce new issues or make certain those intended, their interpretation of the pleadings, when clearly manifested, is uniformly adopted by the courts. Thus, permitting the introduction of evidence on an issue not specially pleaded, without objection, obviates the necessity of its formal presentation. Fenner v. Crips, 109–455, 80 N. W. 526.

It does not constitute a fatal variance between the allegations and the proof that the plaintiff establishes more than is necessary to sustain the allegations of his petition. Goodrich v. Fogarty, 130–223, 106 N. W. 616.

Where the case goes to trial without objection on a cause of action not set up in the petition, but which is supported by evidence, the defendant cannot complain of the defect in the petition. Shoemaker v. Turner, 117–340, 90 N. W. 709.

A verdict should not be directed on account of a defect in the petition which might be cured by amendment. Cahill v. Illinois Cent. R. Co., 137–577, 115 N. W. 216.

Where the parties have construed the pleadings as raising an issue, neither one afterwards will be allowed to contend that the pleadings do not present such issue. Parker v. Parker, 155–65, 135 N. W. 71.

A party cannot complain that the trial court submits the case to the jury upon his own theory inconsistent with the allegations of his pleading. Boerner Fry Co. v. Mucci, 138 N. W. 866.

Where the case has been tried upon the theory that the issues presented are raised by the pleadings, the objection that the pleadings do not in fact raise such issues is waived; but this rule does not apply where the evidence offered is admissible upon the issues actually tendered, and in such case no acquiescence can be inferred from a failure to object to the introduction of such testimony. Watt v. Robbins, 142 N. W. 387.

And see notes to § 3563.

A plaintiff relying upon an express agreement must prove it and cannot recover under an implied contract. Duncan v. Gray, 108–599, 79 N. W. 362; Hunt v. Tuttle, 125–676, 101 N. W. 509; Leonard v. Leonard, 134–131, 111 N. W. 409; In re Oldfield's Estate, Bowie v. Trowbridge, 157– —, 138 N. W. 846.

Plaintiff need not file an amendment to his petition because of variance between the allegations and the proof, where the defendant is estopped to say that he was misled thereby. Voelker v. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co., 116 Fed. 867.

Where plaintiff suing for breach of contract does not allege whether it is oral or in writing, in the absence of any attack on the pleading on that ground, recovery can be had on proof of an oral agreement. Newburn v. Hyde, 132–88, 107 N. W. 604.

SEC. 3599. Failure of proof.

Failure to prove unnecessary allegations in the petition will not defeat recovery.

See notes to code § 3639 in this supplement.

SEC. 3600. Amendments allowed.

Right to amend: The rule is to allow amendments to pleadings, and where the amendment is offered before trial is begun and presents matter which has any reasonable relevancy to the controversy to be decided, leave to file such amendment should be granted. Bruner v. Brotherhood of American Yeomen, 136–612, 111 N. W. 977.

The clause, "when the amendment does not change substantially the claim or defense," has reference solely to "conforming the pleadings or proceedings to the facts proved," and does not limit the portion of the section relating to the correction of a mistake in the name of the party, or a mistake in any other respect. Taylor v. Taylor, 110–207, 81 N. W. 472.

Statutes authorizing amendments are to be liberally construed. Ibid.

A party may not by successive amendments present his case by piecemeal. Ingold v. Symonds, 134–206, 111 N. W. 802.

Failure of the plaintiff in an action to recover damages for personal injuries to allege freedom from contributory negligence should not be taken advantage of by the trial court as a ground for directing a verdict for the defendant without affording the plaintiff an opportunity to amend by alleging want of contributory negligence. Such defect may be waived by the defendant. Brown v. Ill. Cent. R. Co., 123–239, 98 N. W. 625.

The necessary averment, in an action for negligence, of plaintiff's freedom from contributory negligence may be made by amendment after the expiration of the statutory period within which the action may be instituted. Cahill v. Illinois Cent. R. Co., 137–577, 115 N. W. 216.

The fact that the matter set out by way of amendment is one without which plaintiff would not have been entitled to recover does not necessarily preclude the allegation of such fact in an amendment after the expiration of the statutory period. Ibid.

The rule is to allow amendments whenever substantial rights are not prejudiced by doing so. Hanson v. Cline, 142–187, 118 N. W. 754.

Where the granting of leave to amend operates to give both parties an opportunity to submit their claims to the jury, the allowance of the amendment will be sustained as in the interest of justice. Welsh v. Haleen, 157– —, 138 N. W. 502.

The right to file amendments at any stage of the case is liberally granted so long as the exercise of such right does not result in prejudice to the adverse party. Detrick v. Patterson, 141 N. W. 325.

Discretion of trial court: The trial court may exercise a wide discretion in the matter of allowing amendments in the interest of justice. Livingston v. Heck, 122–74, 94 N. W. 1098.

Amendments to pleadings are allowed with great liberty, and a large discretion is vested in the trial courts in permitting them Unless some prejudice results from the filing thereof or some injustice appears, rulings with reference to such matters will not be disturbed on appeal. Williams Shoe Co. v. Gotzian, 130–710, 107 N. W. 807; McClurg v. Brenton, 123–368, 98 N. W. 881.

The exercise of discretion on the part of the court in striking out an amendment will not be reviewed unless an abuse of discretion appears. Bay v. Monroe County, 121–302, 96 N. W. 854.

While the matter of allowing amendments is discretionary, still this discretion is a legal one and should always be exercised with a view to substantial justice. Cole v. Laird, 121–146, 96 N. W. 744.

In a particular case held that the court did not abuse its discretion in allowing an amendment. Weiland v. Ehlers, 107–186, 77 N. W. 855.

To allow amendments is the general rule and unless the court abuses its discretion in this respect, there is no reversible error. Mansfield v. Mallory, 140–206, 118 N. W. 290.

It is within the discretion of the court to permit an amendment to be made to the pleadings at any time where the amendment contains matter material to the proper determination of the case; and the discretion of the trial court in permitting an amendment will not be interfered with on appeal when substantial prejudice is not shown to have resulted to the party complaining. Farmers' Mercantile Co. v. Farmers' Ins. Co., 141 N. W. 447.

Where an amendment is offered and allowed, the ruling will not constitute error in itself, although the opposite party objects at the time on the ground that he has not proper opportunity to meet the issue presented, for he may ask for time to meet such issue and, if necessary, have a continuance to enable him to produce the evidence which he desires; and if he does not do so, he cannot complain of the allowance of the amendment and have a new trial. Ibid.

To grant amendments is the rule; to refuse them, the exception. The allowance or refusal of amendments is a matter which is largely within the sound discretion of the trial court. The advisability of allowing an amendment is a question of fact to be determined by the trial court and its determination will not be reviewed on appeal except in cases showing gross abuse of its discretion. Roberdee v. Bierkamp, 142 N. W. 217.

Leave to file: Amendments are allowed with great liberality, and the mere fact that they are filed without leave is no ground for striking them from the files where the amendment is such an one as should have been allowed had permission been asked to file it. West Side Lumber Co. v. Hathaway, 115–654, 89 N. W. 35.

Leave to file is immaterial if the court subsequently treats the amendment as constituting a part of the pleadings. Rice v. Bolton, 126–654, 100 N. W. 634, 102 N. W. 509; Berkey v. Lefebure, 125–76, 99 N. W. 710.

Formal leave to file an amendment is not necessary where it is filed in open court during the progress of trial and properly entered on the notice book. McGuire v. Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co., 138–664, 116 N. W. 801.

Although a party has no right to file an amendment without leave of court, such an amendment should not be stricken on motion if it is one which should have been allowed had leave to file been asked. Hanson v. Cline, 142–187, 118 N. W. 754.

Within what time—pending trial: The allowance of amendments at almost any stage of the trial is the rule, and the refusal of such privilege is the exception. Jarozewski v. Allen, 117–632, 91 N. W. 941.

An amendment pending the trial for the purpose of conforming the pleadings to the proofs is proper. Tyler v. Bowen, 124–452, 100 N. W. 505; Johnson v. Farmers' Ins. Co., 126–565, 102 N. W. 502.

An amendment to a pleading so as to make its allegations conform to the evidence should not be denied, though not made until after the evidence is closed. Cole v. Laird, 121–146, 96 N. W 744

After the conclusion of the evidence and before the opening of the arguments to the jury a party may be allowed to amend his pleadings to correspond to the proofs. Taylor v. Star Coal Co., 110–40, 81 N. W. 249.

Liberality in permitting amendments is the rule and the party against whom a demurrer has been sustained may amend or plead over as a matter of course at any time before the opposing party takes advantage of his default by motion for judgment. Redhead v. Iowa Nat. Bank, 123–336, 98 N. W. 806.

An amendment offered after the evidence is all in which does not involve a change of front but is designed to obviate a supposed variance of the pleading and proof may be permitted after the close of the evidence. Pace v. Webster City, 138–107, 115 N. W. 888.

It is not error to refuse to strike an amendment filed at the conclusion of the trial and without leave of court if it does not change the issues nor call for any relief which could not properly have been awarded without it. Johnson v. Carter, 143–95, 120 N. W. 320.

It is within the discretion of the trial court to permit an amendment to the petition at the close of the evidence. If the defendant is taken by surprise he should ask for postponement of the trial and not doing so cannot raise the objection on appeal. Duffy v. Henderson, 155–117, 135 N. W. 573.

After the close of the evidence an amendment to the petition may be allowed which asks relief in connection with the subject matter on account of rights accruing since the petition was filed. Erwin v. Fillenwarth, 137 N. W. 502.

After submission: The court will not be presumed to have taken into consideration an amendment to the pleadings filed after the case was submitted, without leave of court or notice to the opposite party. Sturman v. Sturman, 118–620, 92 N. W. 886.

A party is not entitled to file an amendment to his pleading after the case has been submitted which substantially changes the cause of action or defense. LeMars Bldg. & Loan Assn. v. Burgess, 129–422, 105 N. W. 641.

Where an application was not made for leave to file an amendment to a petition for the purpose of making it conform to the evidence until several days after the verdict was rendered, held that the action of the court in refusing to allow such amendment would not be reversed on appeal. Ankrum v. Marshalltown, 105–493, 75 N. W. 360.

Error in admitting evidence of an issue not raised by the pleadings cannot be cured by an amendment of the pleadings after the trial introducing such issue. Cole v. Thompson, 134–685, 112 N. W. 178.

An amendment filed after the entry of the judgment appealed from cannot be considered on the appeal from such judgment. Hartkemeyer v. Griffith, 142–694, 121 N. W. 372.

An amendment after verdict will not be permitted for the purpose of setting up the statute of limitations. Knight v. Moline, E. M. & W. R. Co., 140 N. W. 839.

Discretion as to time: While a great liberality should be shown by the courts in allowance of amendments that are in furtherance of justice, the right to amend is not absolute and attorneys should not be encouraged to wait until the last moment before presenting their cases. If the amendment is not filed until the commencement of the trial the exercise of discretion by the trial court in striking the amendment from the files will be sustained. Emerson v. Converse, 106–330, 76 N. W. 705.

The discretion of the court in disregarding an amendment on the ground that it was filed too late will not be interfered with on appeal. Burkhardt v. Burkhardt, 107–369, 77 N. W. 1069.

Amendment of pleadings after trial is begun is not always a matter of right and the ruling of the trial court in refusing leave to file such amendment will not be interfered with on appeal in the absence of a showing of any abuse of discretion.

American Life Ins. Co. v. Melcher, 132–324, 109 N. W. 805.

There is no abuse of discretion in not allowing an answer to be filed after the trial has been called and the jury waived, the defensive matter averred being admissible under general denial. Dunton v. Dawley, 122–512, 98 N. W. 307.

The discretion of the court in denying the right to file an amendment not offered in proper time will not be interfered with on appeal. Davis v. Boyer, 122–132, 97 N. W. 1002.

The trial court has large discretion in the matter of extending time for filing amendments, and where no default has actually been entered, its action in giving further time to amend will not, in general, be disturbed. Davis v. Huber Mfg. Co., 119–56, 93 N. W. 78.

Parties who do not complete their pleadings until trial has begun ordinarily have no room to complain if the trial court declines to look with leniency upon such procrastination, especially where no excuse is suggested. O'Neil v. Adams, 144–385, 122 N. W. 976.

The court may in its discretion fix a time in the future after which amendments which might reasonably have been interposed within that time will not be considered. Sawyer v. Stilson, 146–707, 125 N. W. 822.

Rulings as to the allowance of amendments are largely within the discretion of the trial court, and where a party had delayed filing an amendment for many months and filed it only on the day set for trial, held that the exercise of discretion on the part of the trial judge in striking it from the record was not reversible error. Markley v. Western Union Tel. Co., 151–612, 132 N. W. 37.

New parties: To save an action from abating, plaintiff should be allowed, on request, to have proper parties substituted before the court directs a verdict for the defendant on the ground that plaintiff is not the proper party to sue. Hook v. Garfield Coal Co., 112–210, 83 N. W. 963.

Where a party sues in his own right he may, if the facts warrant, amend his complaint so as to make the suit stand in his representative capacity; and conversely, if he sues in his representative capacity, he may be allowed to amend by declaring as an individual. In either case, such amendment does not amount to a substantial change of the cause of action. Myers v. Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co., 152–330, 131 N. W. 770.

Raising new issues: Where an amendment to an answer tendered an entirely new and distinct issue after the case had been once tried, and was offered at the conclusion of defendant's evidence upon the second trial, no good reason appearing for not having filed it before that time, held that it was properly refused. National Horse Importing Co. v. Novak, 105–157, 74 N. W. 759.

An amendment to a petition in an attachment suit may set up a new ground of attachment. Emerson v. Converse, 106–330, 76 N. W. 705.

Where, in an action to recover for negligence, one ground of negligence is stated in the petition and another in an amendment thereto, the cause of action stated in the amendment will be barred if barred when the amendment is filed, although not barred when the action was commenced. Box v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co., 107–660, 78 N. W. 694.

An issue tendered by an amended answer, setting up want of consideration in a written contract sued upon, may be considered although the amendment is not filed until after motion is made to direct a verdict, the ruling of the court allowing such amendment not being attacked. Beaty v. Carr, 109–183, 80 N. W. 326.

The allowance of an amendment, the purpose of which is to avoid the statute of limitations, leaving the essential grounds for recovery substantially unchanged, is upheld. Taylor v. Taylor, 110–207, 81 N. W. 472; Wise v. Outtrim, 139–192, 117 N. W. 264.

Where a substituted petition sets up a cause of action of the same nature, but not founded on the same facts, the cause of action is not to be deemed the same, and if the substituted petition is not filed within the statutory period, the cause of action therein pleaded is to be deemed barred. Brooks v. Seevers, 112–480, 84 N. W. 517.

An amendment filed after verdict, raising an entirely new issue, may be stricken out on motion. Shawyer v. Chamberlain, 113–742, 84 N. W. 661.

After a final submission, either before or after reversal on appeal, there is no good reason for opening the case for the purpose of allowing the introduction of a new cause of action by way of counterclaim, not growing out of the same transaction, and which may quite as well be investigated and decided in a separate proceeding. Allen v. Davenport, 115–20, 87 N. W. 743.

The question whether plaintiff may amend his petition setting up a different cause of action should be raised by motion to strike, and if such motion is sustained, the plaintiff should have the opportunity allowed by statute to cure the defect in his petition by further amendment. It is not proper in such case to render judgment against the plaintiff without the lapse of the statutory period allowed for further pleading. Williams v. Williams, 115–520, 88 N. W. 1057.

In an action against a city for personal injuries by reason of defective sidewalk, the place where the accident occurred is material to the cause of action, but a change of the description of such place, to cure an oversight or inadvertence, does not introduce a new cause of action. Sachra v. Manilla, 120–562, 95 N. W. 198; Woods v. Lisbon, 138–402, 116 N. W. 143.

While amendments are allowed with great liberality, yet it is quite irregular to introduce a new cause of action after the submission of a case for the purpose of conforming the pleadings to the proof and the court may properly refuse to entertain such amendment. Boardman v. Louis Drach Const. Co., 123–603, 99 N. W. 176.

An amendment seeking to hold the defendant as a debtor on his own account while the original petition charged him as a member of a partnership, does not so change the cause of action that such amendment cannot be made after the five-year limit has expired. Padden v. Clark, 124–94, 99 N. W. 152.

Refusal to allow the filing of an amended pleading introducing new issues during the trial is not an abuse of discretion requiring reversal. Allen v. North Des Moines M. E. Church, 127–96, 102 N. W. 808.

The statement in an amendment of additional grounds of negligence does not constitute the interposition of a new cause of action. Thayer v. Smoky Hollow Coal Co., 129–550, 105 N. W. 1024.

New issues should not be injected by amendment after the conclusion of the arguments to the jury. Herrstrom v. Newton & N. W. R. Co., 129–507, 105 N. W. 436.

An amendment to the answer tendered at the close of the argument interposing a new defense may be rejected at the discretion of the court, no reason being made to appear why it should not have been earlier offered. Kettering v. Eastlack, 130–498, 107 N. W. 177.

It is not error to refuse leave to file an amendment to the petition after the close of the evidence, in which a new substantive allegation is made. American Soda Fountain Co. v. Dean Drug Co., 136–312, 111 N. W. 534.

The proper function of an amendment after the trial of the case is to conform the pleadings to the proof, but it is not permitted to substitute a new cause of action or bring in new parties. Austin Western Co. v. Weaver Twp., 136–709, 114 N. W. 189.

It is within the discretion of the court to refuse to defendant the permission to amend so as to change the issues after the plaintiff has rested his case. Vorhes v. Buchwald, 137–721, 112 N. W. 1105.

An amendment which merely makes a matter of description in the petition more certain cannot be regarded as stating a new cause of action. Palmer v. Waterloo, 138–296, 115 N. W. 1017.

An amendment which would effect a radical change in the issues and which is offered so late in the progress of the case that a trial of such issues would necessarily delay the determination of the issues pending may properly be refused. Moyers v. Fogarty, 140–701, 119 N. W. 159.

An amendment alleging no new facts and tendering no new issues, but changing only the prayer for relief, may properly be allowed to stand. Burke v. Burke, 142–206, 119 N. W. 129.

If either party permits the other without objection to put in evidence facts which indicate the necessity of an amendment of a pleading in order to have the real merits of the controversy considered and decided, no wrong is done if objection to such amendment is overruled. Zelenka v. Port Huron Mach. Co., 144–592, 123 N. W. 332.

Plaintiff may be permitted to amend before verdict so as to increase the amount of his claim. De Lashmutt v. Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co., 148–556, 126 N. W. 359.

An amendment to an answer tendering a new issue, which is filed after all the evidence has been introduced, may properly be stricken. Bradbury v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co., 149–51, 128 N. W. 1.

An amended reply setting up new matter by way of confession and avoidance in response to new matter set up in an amendment to the answer should not be stricken out. Knapp v. Brotherhood of American Yeomen, 149–137, 126 N. W. 336.

An amendment setting up a defense after the close of plaintiff's evidence which might have been interposed before the trial may be stricken from the files in the court's discretion, in the absence of any showing of excuse for the delay. Dumont v. Peet, 152–524, 132 N. W. 955.

Where, in an action for negligence resulting in personal injuries, an amendment filed after the expiration of the period of limitation does no more than state the details of the alleged negligence, it does not state a new cause of action. Russell v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co., 141 N. W. 1077.

Where an amendment does not change the cause of action and adds only a more specific description, a continuance on account of the allowance of such amendment may be refused. Wilson v. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co., 142 N. W. 54.

Amendments are frequently allowed where there is a change in the claim as originally made. But where it is done the court allows the change upon conditions and gives to the other parties always an opportunity to introduce further testimony to meet the change in the issues. Roberdee v. Bierkamp, 142 N. W. 217.

After action barred: If the new matter pleaded does not state a new cause of action, but merely amplifies the charges of negligence made in the petition, the amendment may be upheld, although filed after the period of limitation has run. Gordon v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co., 129–747, 106 N. W. 177.

An amendment specifying more particularly the damages flowing from the wrongs alleged in the petition may be interposed after the statutory period for maintaining the action for such injuries has run. Anderson v. Acheson, 132–744, 110 N. W. 335.

Substitute: An amended pleading may appear to be and be treated as a substitute. In re Estate of McMurray, 107–648, 78 N. W. 691.

Superseded pleading: Where a pleading has been superseded by a subsequent pleading filed as a substitute, the former pleading cannot be used for any purpose on the trial without being introduced in evidence. Longley v. McVey, 109–666, 81 N. W. 150.

It is only when the original pleading has been superseded by a subsequent pleading that the averments of such original pleading are not to be taken against the pleader unless the pleading is introduced in evidence. Burns v. Chicago, Ft. M. & D. M. R. Co., 110–385, 81 N. W. 794.

A pleading which has been superseded or withdrawn cannot be submitted to the jury to prove an admission contained therein unless it is introduced in evidence. Marshall Field Co. v. Oren Ruffcorn Co., 117–157, 90 N. W. 618.

The fact that averments of a substituted petition are inconsistent with those of the previous pleading is not a ground of demurrer. Williams v. Williams, 115–520, 88 N. W. 1057.

Pleadings superseded remain a part of the record, but they cannot be read or commented on in the trial unless formally introduced in evidence. Ibid.

Pleadings when superseded by others may be introduced in evidence, but only as showing admissions of adverse party. As such they are not conclusive. McClure v. Great W. Acc. Assn., 141–350, 118 N. W. 269.

Admissions in a pleading which has been superseded may be considered as evidence against the party filing such pleading, if it is introduced in evidence. Arnd v. Aylesworth, 145–185, 123 N. W. 1000.

A pleading which has been withdrawn may be introduced in evidence as constituting an admission, but it is not a conclusive admission and goes to the jury with other evidence. Sievertsen v. Paxton-Eckman Chem. Co., 133 N. W. 744, 142 N. W. 424.

Must be substantial: It is proper to strike out a pleading, even though filed as a substitute for all previous pleadings, which is in substance a mere repetition of allegations which have been held insufficient on a demurrer to a former pleading in the same case. Hoyt v. Beach, 104–257, 73 N. W. 492.

The court may properly strike out an amendment which amounts to nothing more in legal effect than a refiling of the original pleading. McKee v. Illinois Central R. Co., 121–550, 97 N. W. 69.

An amended and substituted petition, restating what has been previously pleaded, may be stricken out on motion. Curl v. Foehler, 113–597, 85 N. W. 811.

After the sustaining of a demurrer to a pleading, an amendment which does not obviate the objections to such pleading may be properly stricken from the files. Blackett v. Ziegler, 147–167, 125 N. W. 874.

Entered on docket: Where an amendment is treated by all the parties as filed and the case tried on the issues raised by such amendment, it cannot afterwards be objected that the amendment was not entered on the appearance docket. Foley v. Cedar Rapids, 133–64, 110 N. W. 158.

Change of forum: Under the code system of pleading no litigant should be denied relief because of an error in the mere form of the action, when he has the right to amendment to adopt that appropriate to the relief prayed. The mere method should not obscure the results to be obtained. Cox Shoe Co. v. Adams, 105–402, 75 N. W. 316.

Therefore, held that in an action of replevin wherein it appeared that the plaintiff was entitled to equitable relief, he should be allowed to amend, asking such relief, and have the case transferred to the proper calendar. Ibid.

After the trial of a case as in equity, if the plaintiff is allowed to amend his petition so as to convert his demand from one of equitable cognizance to an action at law for damages, the court should set aside the submission and proceed to a trial by ordinary proceedings. Hartwig v. Iles, 131–501, 109 N. W. 18.

A party should not be allowed by amendment to convert an equitable action into one at law and have a change to the law docket after the evidence has been taken by depositions as in an equitable action. Saunders v. Wells, 135–11, 112 N. W. 205.

After remand: To justify the filing of an amendment after the remanding of a cause heard de novo on appeal, matters must have arisen subsequently to the decree or things must have happened pending the trial which could not have been considered at the trial or owing to some other contingency which reasonable foresight could not well have guarded against. Kossuth Co. St. Bank v. Richardson, 141–738, 118 N. W. 906.

An amendment which does no more than conform the pleadings with the proof upon which the case has been tried and upon which it is in fact tried after remand on appeal should not be stricken out. Hanson v. Cline, 142–187, 118 N. W. 754.

SEC. 3601. Errors disregarded.

The statutory provisions abolishing forms of action do not obliterate all difference between kinds of actions. A party declaring upon conversion of property cannot have recovery as upon a contract or agreement to pay. Himmelman v. Des Moines Ins. Co., 132–668, 110 N. W. 155.

Informalities in the submission and determination of a case will not constitute sufficient ground for reversal on appeal where the party complaining was given full opportunity to and did present his whole case. Pratt v. Fishwild, 121–642, 96 N. W. 1089.

This section is applicable to the pleadings in the case. Lampman v. Bruning, 120–167, 94 N. W. 562.

SEC. 3603. How amendment made.

An amendment is regarded as a continuation of the original pleading, and as relating back to the commencement of the suit. Scott v. Frank, 121–218, 96 N. W. 764.

An amendment is to be construed with the original pleadings. Mock v. Chalstrom, 121–411, 96 N. W. 909; Brutsche v. Bowers, 122–226, 97 N. W. 1076.

An amended petition may be an essentially different pleading from an amendment to a petition, and may clearly appear to be intended as a substitute. In re Estate of McMurray, 107–648, 78 N. W. 691. And see notes to code § 3600 in this supplement.

After the filing of a substitute petition and a subsequent withdrawal of the same, the plaintiff may file an amendment to the original petition. Thayer v. Smoky Hollow Coal Co., 129–550, 105 N. W. 1024.

SEC. 3604. Interrogatories annexed to pleading.

It is not necessary to submit interrogatories which do not call for ultimate facts nor for answers which would necessarily control the verdict. Thompson v. Brown, 106–367, 76 N. W. 819.

The statutory provision requiring answers by the opposite party to interrogatories attached to the pleading are applicable to corporations as well as to individuals. The answers in such cases are to be made by the proper agent of the corporation. Blair v. Sioux City & P. R. Co., 109–369, 80 N. W. 673.

Interrogatories may be attached to an amendment to a pleading, and it is within the sound discretion of the court to permit such amendment at any time during the trial. Ibid.

It is proper to strike out interrogatories proposed in an amended petition where it is manifest that to permit them to stand would necessarily postpone the trial, and plaintiff offers no excuse for the delay in propounding them. Theis v. Chicago & N. W. R. Co., 107–522, 78 N. W. 199.

In the absence of objection by the opposite party, it is not error to allow interrogatories to be propounded in an amendment to the pleading. Free v. Western Union Telegraph Co., 135–69, 110 N. W. 143.

Interrogatories attached to a pleading are not a part of the pleading, and the answers thereto cannot be considered in determining the issues of law arising on the pleadings. Van Norman v. Modern Brotherhood, 134–575, 111 N. W. 992.

Statutory provisions for requiring answers under oath to interrogatories propounded in the pleadings to the opposite party are a substitute for the proceeding for discovery in equity. If the party who has called for the answers does not see fit to introduce them in evidence, the party making the answers cannot do so save under such circumstances as would authorize the use of a deposition by such party. In behalf of the party in whose favor the answers are given they are subject to the objection that the witness is present in court and able to testify and also subject to any objections which might be properly urged to them if given in a deposition. Beem v. Farrell, 135–670, 113 N. W. 509.

While permitting amendments to answers to interrogatories is discretionary with the court, such amendments, if allowed, should be limited to mere corrections of oversights. A party should not be allowed by amendment of his answer to add evidence which should properly be introduced by depositions. City Deposit Bank v. Green, 138–156, 115 N. W. 893.

SEC. 3605. Answers thereto.

If after filing answers to interrogatories the party answering desires to add to the testimony thus given, he should do so by testimony given in the usual form or by deposition and not by amendment to his answers. City Deposit Bank v. Green, 138–156, 115 N. W. 893.

SEC. 3606. Time of responding.

While exceptions to interrogatories annexed to a pleading should be passed on before the entry of an order requiring answers thereto, circumstances may arise justifying the setting aside of the order requiring answers, in order that exceptions to the interrogatories may be interposed. Free v. Western Union Tel. Co., 135–69, 110 N. W. 143.

SEC. 3609. How verified.

Where the answers to interrogatories made by the officers of a corporation in a case against the corporation show on their face that they are not made in good faith, and that, although the officers making the answers have not personal knowledge of the facts inquired about, they might have acquired such knowledge from the records and books of the corporation accessible to them, such answers may be stricken out and the penalty for failure to make proper answers may be enforced. Blair v. Sioux City & P. R. Co., 109–369, 80 N. W. 673.

The pleading of a corporation may be verified by the oath of its proper officer. Marshall Field Co. v. Oren Ruffcorn Co., 117–157, 90 N. W. 618.

SEC. 3610. Effect of failure to answer.

Failure to answer interrogatories propounded in a pleading does not authorize the summary entering of judgment. Modern Steel Structural Co. v. Van Buren County, 126–606, 102 N. W. 536.

Before rendering judgment for failure to make answers to interrogatories, an opportunity should be afforded to answer the interrogatories by fixing a time within which such answers must be filed, either by entering such an original order or by extending the time originally fixed, and such remedy cannot be given where the time for answering has elapsed without an order affording such reasonable time. Free v Western Union Tel. Co., 135–69, 110 N. W. 143.

Failure to answer the interrogatories propounded, even where there is the prescribed affidavit, does not entitle the party propounding such interrogatories to a judgment without a trial nor preclude the other side from the right to trial by jury. Independent School Dist. v. Solon Ind. School Dist., 148–154, 125 N. W. 184.

If this statute should be construed as providing that the affidavit may be made by counsel for the litigant, he should at least aver his knowledge of the matters in controversy. Ibid.

The defendant is entitled to have the questions propounded by him answered by the persons to whom they are addressed and an answer volunteered by another may be rightfully excluded. On the exclusion of such answers, the defendant may demand that a day be fixed for the filing of appropriate answers by proper persons and that upon failure to do so, the plaintiff's action shall be dismissed. Baldwin v. Moser, 155–410, 136 N. W. 195.

SEC. 3611. Answers compelled.

Without regard to statutory provisions, the court may compel answers to interrogatories by proceedings for contempt, and on failure of the party to answer may strike his pleadings. Free v. Western Union Tel. Co., 135–69, 110 N. W. 143.

But where the facts sought to be elicited are admitted by answer even though filed without leave of court, and there is nothing to show bad faith, the court should not strike the defendant's pleading for failure to answer interrogatories propounded by plaintiff, and enter judgment by default against him. Ibid.

SEC. 3613. Allegations as to time.

Allegations of time, when not material, need not be proven as made. Arrison v. Mystic Toilers, 129–303, 105 N. W. 580.

Allegations as to time are not as a general rule material. Central Trust Co. v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co., 156–104, 135 N. W. 721.

SEC. 3615. Evidence under denial.

A custom relied upon as affecting a contract cannot be proven under a general denial, but must be pleaded. Eller v. Loomis, 106–276, 76 N. W. 686.

In an action for criminal conversation the defendant cannot, under general denial, prove consent or connivance of the husband to the improper relations with the wife. Such facts should be pleaded by way of special defense. Morning v. Long, 109–288, 80 N. W. 390.

The evidence which tends to negative or disprove the matters of fact alleged in the petition is proper to be admitted under a general denial. Therefore in a joint action against an employer and an employe for a tort committed by the latter, a general denial of liability by the former is sufficient to warrant the admission that the latter was an independent contractor for whose acts the former was not liable. Overhouser v. American Cereal Co., 128–580, 105 N. W. 113.

A mere general denial of a claim based on a written contract raises no issue under which testimony as to the peculiar or trade meaning of the words used in the contract is admissible. Tubbs v. Mechanics' Ins. Co., 131–217, 108 N. W. 324.

Only evidence negativing the facts relied upon by the plaintiff is admissible under a denial. An affirmative defense should be specially pleaded. Saddler v. Pickard, 142–691, 121 N. W. 374.

Further as to general denial see notes to § 3566.

SEC. 3618. Sham defenses—redundant matter.

The remedy for getting rid of immaterial and irrelevant matter is by motion. In re Estate of McMurray, 107–648, 78 N. W. 691.

The objection that a pleading is sham or frivolous cannot be interposed by demurrer. Williams v. Williams, 115–520, 88 N W. 1057.

Even upon its own motion the trial court has the inherent power to strike from the files a petition containing scandalous and irrelevant matter. Crabtree v. Steele, 137–726, 115 N. W. 593.

SEC. 3620. Inconsistent defenses—verification.

Defendant in an action for goods sold and delivered may plead rescission and also set up a counterclaim for breach of warranty. He is not required to elect. Thorson & Cassidy Co. v. Baker, 107–49, 77 N. W. 510.

A party may interpose inconsistent defenses. Thus defendant in an action to set aside a conveyance as fraudulent may deny the sale and also allege that the sale relied upon by the plaintiff was in fraud of creditors. Jordan v. Crickett, 123–576, 99 N. W. 163.

Defendant may in different divisions of his answer plead a general denial and a confession and avoidance, and the effect of the general denial will not be nullified by the colorable confession necessarily alleged in connection with the avoidance. Rudd v. Dewey, 121–454, 96 N. W. 973.

The doctrine of election in pleading applies only to inconsistent causes of action, and not to inconsistent defenses. Bruner v Brotherhood of American Yeomen, 136–612, 111 N. W. 977.

Inconsistent defenses may be pleaded and relied upon, and the defendant cannot be required to elect as between them. Cole v Laird, 121–146, 96 N. W. 744.

Inconsistent defenses may be pleaded in different divisions of the answer. Sturgis v. Slocum, 140–25, 116 N. W. 128.

The defendant may plead inconsistent defenses. Davidson v. Smith, 143–124, 121 N. W. 503; In re Estate of Crocker, Jamison v. Crocker, 148–104, 126 N. W. 962; Henderson v. Standard Fire Ins. Co., 143–572, 121 N. W. 714.

SEC. 3622. What deemed admitted.

Allegations of the petition which are not denied are to be treated as true. Kent v. Muscatine, N. & S. R. Co., 115–383, 88 N. W. 935; Redhead v. Iowa Nat. Bank, 127–572, 103 N. W. 796.

Where the parties proceed to trial without answer or other pleading to an amended petition the plaintiff cannot afterwards claim that defendant is in default as to the amendment or that its allegations should be treated as confessed. Gregory v. Bowlsby, 126–588, 102 N. W. 517.

The statements made in a pleading which have been superseded or withdrawn do not constitute admissions presumptively true as against the pleader. McDonald v. Nugent, 122–651, 98 N. W. 506.

The rule that allegations in the petition not denied in the answer are to be deemed true has no application on an appeal from the board of review for the assessment of taxes, although such appeal is to be determined as an equitable proceeding. City Council v. National Loan & Investment Co., 122–629, 98 N. W. 488.

An answer denying nothing but the damages suffered by the plaintiff raises no issue. Byrne v. Independent School Dist., 139–618, 117 N. W. 983.

SEC. 3623. Account—bill of particulars.

Although a verified bill of particulars does not in every respect meet the requirements of this section, yet in the absence of timely objection it may be treated as sufficient if it serves the purpose of the case. Sitzer v. Fenzloff, 112–491, 84 N. W. 514.

SEC. 3626. Conditions precedent.

The general denial of a general allegation of the performance of conditions precedent does not put such allegations in issue. Krause v. Modern Woodmen, 133–199, 110 N. W. 452.

SEC. 3627. Action in representative capacity.

In filing a claim against an estate it is not necessary to specify in what capacity the claim is made, and denial of the capacity of plaintiff to sue must be made specific. University of Chicago v. Emmert, 108–500, 79 N. W. 285.

While a failure to allege corporate capacity is a ground of demurrer, such objection comes too late after judgment. Calnan Const. Co. v. Brown, 110–37, 81 N. W. 163.

It is necessary to allege the representative capacity of a plaintiff or defendant, as the case may be, and a failure to do so is a ground of demurrer. Ware v. Leffert, 151–17, 130 N. W. 793.

SEC. 3628. Denial—facts must be stated.

Where the petition in an action on a policy of insurance states that plaintiff has performed every act necessary to comply with the terms of the policy, defendant cannot rely upon failure to submit to an appraiser without pleading such fact as a defense. Smith v. Continental Ins. Co., 108–382, 79 N. W. 126.

Where corporate existence is a material allegation of fact, proof of which is necessary to sustain plaintiff's claim, the case is not governed by this section. Taft Co. v. Bounani, 110–739, 81 N. W. 469.

Where plaintiff alleges its corporate capacity, and the denial is merely want of information on the subject, this is not sufficient to put in issue the corporate capacity of the plaintiff. Iowa Sav. & L. Assn. v. Selby, 111–402, 82 N. W. 968.

To put in issue defendant's corporate capacity as alleged in the petition, facts showing want of such capacity must be specially pleaded. Stork v. Supreme Lodge K. of P., 113–724, 84 N. W. 721.

A trustee in bankruptcy, suing in the interest of creditors, need allege no more than the fact of his representative capacity to entitle him to maintain the suit, and such allegation can only be put in issue by specially pleading the facts relied upon to show that he is not entitled to maintain such suit. Crary v. Kurtz, 132–105, 105 N. W. 590, 109 N. W. 452.

After the specific denial contemplated by this section, the burden rests upon the plaintiff to prove performance of a condition precedent or waiver thereof. Knapp v. Brotherhood of Am. Yeomen, 139–136, 117 N. W. 298.

An allegation as to corporate capacity must be controverted by specifically pleading the want of such capacity. Iowa Bus. Men's B. & L. Assn. v. Fitch, 142–329, 120 N. W. 694.

A general denial of the existence of a partnership is not sufficient to raise an issue. Richards v. Hellen, 153–66, 133 N. W. 393.

SEC. 3629. Matters specifically pleaded.

In an action for criminal conversation, defendant, desiring to prove the acquiescence of the husband in the relations to his wife, should set up the facts by way of special defense. If he does not do so, he cannot prove them under general denial. Morning v. Long, 109–288, 80 N. W. 390.

The defense of the statute of limitations is waived if not pleaded. McDonald v. Bice, 113–44, 84 N. W. 985.

Matter which is admissible under a general denial need not be pleaded by way of justification. Overhouser v. American Cereal Co., 128–580, 105 N. W. 113.

In an action for breach of contract for the payment of a specified sum of money, an allegation of nonpayment is essential and the fact of payment need not be alleged as a special defense, but may be proven under a general denial. Howerton v. Augustine, 130–389, 106 N. W. 941.

Where it is desired to show, in opposition to a claim for services rendered at the request of deceased, that they were intended and understood to be gratuitous, such defense should be specially pleaded. Saddler v. Pickard, 142–691, 121 N. W. 374.

Where a carrier is sued for damage to goods on a connecting line, the defendant cannot, under a general denial, show that it contracted for exemption from liability as to connecting lines. Aultman Engine & Thresher Co. v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co., 143–561, 121 N. W. 22.

Where the plaintiff has alleged and proved facts entitling him to recover, he need not go further and prove nonessential averments contained in his petition. Swiney v. American Express Co., 144–342, 115 N. W. 212, 122 N. W. 957.

Section applied. Shawyer v. Chamberlain, 113–742, 84 N. W. 661.

And see notes under § 3566.

SEC. 3630. Motion for more specific statement.

A motion to strike out defensive matter from an answer on the ground that it is immaterial and redundant cannot be supported by affidavit. Mast v. Wells, 110–128, 81 N. W. 230.

In an action against two defendants to recover compensation for keeping, caring for and feeding stock at the request of the defendants, orally made, held that it was error to overrule a motion asking that plaintiff be required to state whose property it was he kept, cared for and fed, and at whose instance and for whose benefit he performed the labor specified. Hurd v. Ladner, 110–263, 81 N. W. 470.

Where defendant in his answer denies, either generally or specifically, the allegations of plaintiff's petition, he cannot be required by motion for more specific statement to make such denials more particular. Provident Bank Stock Co. v. Schafer, 110–440, 81 N. W. 689.

Section applied as to stating whether a contract is in writing. Montgomery v. Downey, 116–632, 88 N. W. 810.

In an action to enjoin a liquor nuisance, held that while the general allegation of unlawfully keeping and selling intoxicating liquor in violation of law was sufficient, yet where it was made to appear by a motion, supported by affidavit, that the defendant was entitled to sell liquor under a permit, the court rightly sustained a motion to require the plaintiff to state more specifically wherein the keeping and selling by defendant was unlawful. Abrams v. Sandholm, 119–583, 93 N. W. 563.

Where the petition in a liquor injunction case charged defendants with maintaining a liquor nuisance, held that the defendants were not, on showing by affidavits that they were operating under the mulct law, entitled to a more specific statement as to the particulars of the violation charged. Knauss v. Gruenwald, 156–331, 136 N. W. 690.

Any error in the sustaining of a motion tor more specific statement is waived by amending in response to such motion. Hunn v. Ashton, 121–265, 96 N. W. 745.

A petition is sufficiently specific if it advises the defendant of the exact claim made by the plaintiff. Although the trial court has some discretion in ruling on a motion for more specific statement, yet where it clearly appears that the pleading is sufficient, the act of the court in sustaining a motion for more specific statement may be corrected on appeal. McCrary v. Lake City Elec. Light Co., 139–548, 117 N. W. 964.

The remedy for failure to make sufficient answer in a proceeding auxiliary is not to be taken advantage of by motion to strike, but by motion for more specific statement. Jordan Co. v. Sperry, 141–225, 119 N. W. 692.

SEC. 3638. Bond—breaches of.

Judgment against sureties on a bond being for the delinquency of the principal not to exceed the amount named in the bond, interest on a principal's liability should be added even as against the sureties from that time. Ellyson v. Lord, 124–125, 99 N. W. 582.

SEC. 3639. Amount of proof.

Unnecessary averments in a pleading need not be proven. Kerr v. Topping, 109–150, 80 N. W. 321; Russell v. Holder, 116–188, 89 N. W. 195; Krejci v. Chicago & N. W. R. Co., 117–344, 90 N. W. 708; Perpetual B. & L. Assn.. v. United States Fid. & Guar. Co., 118–729, 92 N. W. 686; Anderson v. Acheson, 132–744, 110 N. W. 335; Williamson v. Robinson, 134–345, 111 N. W. 1012.

A party is not required to prove more of the allegations of his pleading than necessary to entitle him to the relief demanded or any relief included in that which is demanded. Garvik v. Burlington, C. R. & N. R. Co., 124–691, 100 N. W. 498; Everett v. Christopher, 125–668, 101 N. W. 521.

Where plaintiff seeks to recover on an implied contract and also for trespass on the same facts, he may recover on the implied contract without proving the trespass. Harrison v. Palo Alto County, 104–383, 73 N. W. 872.

Although plaintiff in an action for assault and battery alleges malice which is not necessary to be proven in such an action, he may recover without malice being shown. Reizenstein v. Clark, 104–287, 73 N. W. 588.

A party to an action is not compelled to prove more than is necessary to entitle him to the relief asked for. Blunck v. Chicago & N. W. R. Co., 142–146, 120 N. W. 737.

Where an allegation might have been entirely omitted without rendering the pleading inadequate as a statement of a cause of action, it is not necessary to prove such allegation. Luttermann v. Romey, 143–233, 121 N. W. 1040.

It is sufficient that the party prove such of his essential allegations as entitle him to judgment. Murphy v. Cochran, 146–443, 123 N. W. 349.

One who sues in a representative capacity cannot recover on a cause of action established in his favor in his individual capacity. Van Sickle v. Staub, 155–472, 136 N. W. 546.

On an issue raised by a general denial, plaintiff need prove no more than enough to make out a prima-facie case for recovery, no matter what may be the allegations in his petition. Central Trust Co. v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co., 156–104, 135 N. W. 721.

To make out a prima-facie case of liability of the common carrier of goods, it is only necessary to prove a breach of the contract to safely transport by showing good condition when delivered to the carrier and receipt at the end of the transportation in bad condition, not apparently due to natural vice of the property. Gilbert v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co., 156–440, 136 N. W. 911.

While the plaintiff is not required to prove all the allegations of his petition, he must allege enough to constitute a cause of action and the interpretation which he puts upon such cause of action is binding upon him. Dean v. Goodrich, 140 N. W. 435.

The plaintiff is not bound to prove any fact stated in his petition which is not necessary to a recovery. Forsythe v. Kluckhohn, 142 N. W. 225.

SEC. 3640. Denial of genuineness of signature.

Having once denied the signature under oath, defendant is not bound to renew his denial in subsequent amendments. Renner v. Thornburg, 111–515, 82 N. W. 950.

Such denial throws the burden of proof on the opposite party. Ibid.

In an action on a note purporting to be signed by a corporation, the corporation may deny the genuineness of its signature by alleging that its president who signed the corporate name had no authority to do so. The verification of such sworn denial by a proper officer of the corporation is sufficient to put in issue the genuineness of the corporate signature. Marshall Field Co. v. Oren Ruffcorn Co., 117–157, 90 N. W. 618.

Where the execution of a note and mortgage is denied under oath, the burden is on the plaintiff to prove the execution. Damman v. Vollenweider, 126–327, 101 N. W. 1130.

Where the signature of a written instrument is so denied as to throw the burden of proof upon the plaintiff suing thereon, and the plaintiff wholly fails to sustain the averments of his petition, as against such denial, it is not error to render a judgment for the defendant. Peterson v. Ball, 121–544, 97 N. W. 79.

Where the genuineness of the signature is not denied under oath, the party relying on the invalidity of the contract sought to be established has the burden of proving that it is not genuine. Currier v. Clark, 145–613, 124 N. W. 622.

Failure to verify the denial of the genuineness of the signature of an instrument on which the suit is founded does not affect the sufficiency of such denial to tender an issue. Thorn v. Hambleton, 149–214, 128 N. W. 393.

It is doubtful whether this statutory provision has any application in a case where the person whose signature is questioned is dead. Elliott v. Capital City State Bank, 149–309, 128 N. W. 369.

Where the issue as to the genuineness of a signature is properly raised, the burden is upon the plaintiff to offer some sort of legitimate evidence as to the character of the signature attached to the paper on which he relies. Doty v. Braska, 151–23, 126 N. W. 1108.

Under the denial of the signature, it is not competent to prove a material alteration of the instrument for the purpose of establishing its invalidity. Hessig-Ellis Drug Co. v. Todd-Baker Drug Co., 153–11, 132 N. W. 866.

Where neither the instrument sued upon nor copy thereof is attached to the pleading, the provisions of this section have no application. Black v. Miller, 138 N. W. 535.

Section applied. Carthage Nat. Bank v. Butterbaugh, 116–657, 88 N. W. 954.

[The code note for the case of Schulte v. Coulthurst, near the bottom of second column on page 1394, should be changed to read as follows:

Where a claim against an estate is based upon a note, a denial of the execution of the note puts in issue the genuineness of the signature and overcomes the presumption which ordinarily obtains in favor of the signature of a written instrument when the statutory denial is not made. Schulte v. Coulthurst, 94–418, 62 N. W. 770.]

SEC. 3641. Supplemental pleading.

A continuance of the same grievance complained of in the original petition may be pleaded by way of supplemental petition for the purpose of securing additional relief. Foote v. Burlington Gas Light Co., 103–576, 72 N. W. 755.

The true criterion for determining the propriety of a supplemental petition does not lie in ascertaining whether it states a cause of action which might be independently maintained. If it may be read with the original petition and both considered as one pleading, and if its scope is limited to strengthening, developing or reenforcing the original cause of action, or of enlarging the extent of, or changing the relief sought, then it meets the very purpose of such pleading. The new cause of action which the law will not permit to be thus pleaded is one not related to that stated in the original petition and which, under the rules of pleading, must be set up in a separate count or division. Ibid.

Therefore, held in an action to recover damages resulting from the maintenance of a nuisance, a claim for additional damages accruing since the commencement of the action by reason of a continuance of the nuisance might be set up in a supplemental petition. Ibid.

This section does not authorize the presentation of an entirely new cause of action. Allen v. Davenport, 115–20, 87 N. W. 743.

In an action against a county on an unliquidated claim the failure to make demand as required by code § 3528 before instituting suit may be cured by a subsequent demand pleaded in a supplemental or amended petition. Little v. Pottawattamie County, 127–376, 101 N. W. 752.

A motion relating to the enforcement of a decree is not properly entitled a supplemental pleading. Dunton v. McCook, 120–444, 94 N. W. 942.

The fact that an action is prematurely brought is not a ground for abatement if the cause of action is complete and mature before the case comes to a hearing. The rule is to permit a supplemental pleading to be filed and to allow the case to proceed. Gribben v. Clement, 141–144, 119 N. W. 596.

It is not proper to allege in a supplemental pleading facts not materially affecting the remedy. Wapello State Sav. Bank v. Colton, 143–359, 122 N. W. 149.

Section applied. Christie v. Iowa Life Ins. Co., 111–177, 82 N. W. 499.

SEC. 3642. Matter in abatement.

Where a prior action is so dismissed by the plaintiff as to waive any right to recover therein, such prior action cannot be relied on in abatement of a subsequent action. Pray v. Life Indem. & Secur. Co., 104–114, 73 N. W. 485.

One of the recognized tests of determining whether the plea of another action pending is good lies in ascertaining whether the judgment, when obtained, would necessarily be res adjudicata of the issues of the action wherein the plea is interposed. Valley Bank v. Shenandoah Nat. Bank, 109–43, 79 N. W. 391.

Two actions for the same cause may not be maintained at the same time because the second suit is unnecessary for the enforcement of rights or the redress of wrongs, and simply annoys and harasses the defendant without cause, but the reason of the rule applies only when the plaintiff in both actions is the same person, and hence the rule itself falls when this is not true. The fact that the parties do not stand in the same relation in the two suits is an insuperable obstacle to the plea. Pratt v. Howard, 109–504, 80 N. W. 546.

The fact that the action depends upon the same right or title as another action pending will not suffice to sustain a plea in abatement. The two actions must involve the same cause of action. Watson v. Richardson, 110–698, 80 N. W. 416.

The rule that the court first acquiring jurisdiction of the case will retain the same to the exclusion of any other court of concurrent jurisdiction is not applicable unless it appears that the suits are between the same parties seeking the same remedy. State v. Clough, 111–714, 83 N. W. 727.

Another action pending is a good plea in abatement where the parties are the same, the issues identical and the interests of respective parties such as must be determined, although the parties plaintiff are not the same in the two suits. Guinn v. Elliott, 123–179, 98 N. W. 625.

The doctrine that a subsequent action may be abated on the ground of the pendency of a prior one between the same parties for the same cause does not apply where the prior action is pending in the courts of another state or in a foreign country. Schmidt v. Posner, 130–347, 106 N. W. 760.

This section does not specify what shall be a good plea in abatement. That must be determined independently of this statute. Moffitt v. Chicago Chronicle Co., 107–407, 78 N. W. 45.

Pleas in abatement do not go to the merits of the action but rather to the procedure; and a pleading tending to show that the action has been prematurely brought is a plea in abatement, and judgment for defendant on that ground will not bar a subsequent action. Nor will a judgment for defendant on the ground that the plaintiff has not proven capacity to sue constitute a bar to another suit. Telegraph v. Lee, 125–17, 98 N. W. 364.

An affirmative defense in the nature of a plea in abatement is denied by operation of law. State v. Beardsley, 108–396, 79 N. W. 138.

The pendency of a prior suit, on being pleaded, will be given effect to abate a suit subsequently brought, where the parties are the same, the issues growing out of the same set of facts are identical and the relief prayed for is the same. Van Vleck v. Anderson, 136–366, 113 N. W. 853.

Pendency of another action does not deprive the court of jurisdiction to proceed and is pleadable in abatement only. Hemmer v. Dunlavey, 143–265, 121 N. W. 1024.

SEC. 3644. Consolidation of actions.

Two actions, one in law and the other in equity, although between the same parties, should not be consolidated. Hodowal v. Yearous, 103–32, 72 N. W. 294.

Where so far as the parties defendant are actually served with notice the actions may properly be consolidated, such consolidation will not be erroneous on account of the fact that other parties defendant are named in the two actions, who if they had been properly brought into court would have prevented the consolidation. Bank of Montreal v. Ingerson, 105–349, 75 N. W. 351.
